This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

STANFORD·VNIVERSITY·LIBRARY

CASSELL'S GAZETTEER
OF
GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND

CASSELL'S

GAZETTEER

OF

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND

BEING

A Complete Topographical Dictionary of the United Kingdom

WITH NUMEROUS ILLUSTRATIONS

AND

SIXTY MAPS

NEWCHURCH — SOMERSETSHIRE

CASSELL AND COMPANY, LIMITED

LONDON, PARIS, NEW YORK & MELBOURNE

1900

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

258968

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

	PAGE
Newhaven, Signal Station	3
Newlyn, The Slip	7
Newmarket, The Heath	7
Newport Bridge	10
Newquay, The Harbour	13
Newstead Abbey	15
Newtown, The Long Bridge	23
Norbiton, Princess Louise Home	28
Nore Lightship, The	29
Norham Castle	31
Northampton, Market Place	34
Northfleet, Cement Works	37
Norwich Cathedral	45
Nottingham, Market Place	48
Nuneham Courtney, Cottages at	52
Oa, The Mull of	54
Oakham, Market Place and Butter Cross	55
Oban, General View	58
Odd Rode, Old Moreton Hall	60
Oich, Loch, looking towards Glengarry	63
Oldbury, Worcestershire, View at	64
Oldham, The Town Hall	66
Olney, Cowper's House	68
Orford Castle	72
Orwell, Ipswich, On the	77
Otford	81
Ottery St. Mary, The Parish Church, from the South-West	83
Oulton Broad	84
Ouse, The, Junction of with the Cam	86
Overstrand Church	88
Ovoca, Vale of	90
Oxford	94
Oystermouth Castle	98
Paisley, Town Hall	102
Partick, On the Clyde at	109
Patrick's Island	112
Peebles, from Neidpath Castle	116
Peel, St. German's Cathedral	118
Pembroke Castle	120
Penarth Beach	122
Penmaenmawr	126
Penshurst Place	131
Penzance, from Newlyn	134
Peover, Lower, St. Oswald's Church	135
Perranarworthal	136
Perth	138
Peterborough Cathedral	141
Peterhead	142
Pevensey Castle	145
Pimlico, Buckingham Palace	152
Pitlochry, from the West	155
Pleaskin Head	158
Plymouth Hoe, the Smeaton Lighthouse	161
Plympton Maurice, General View of	163
Polperro	166
Pontefract, All Saints' Church	167
Pool, The Upper	171
Poplar, Millwall Docks	172
Port Ellen, Harbour and Lighthouse	174
Portland, The Breakwater	177
Portsmouth Town Hall	181
Poul-a-Phooka	185
Poulton-le-Fylde, Whipping-post, Stocks, and Market Cross	186
Powerscourt Waterfall	187
Predannack Point	188
Preston, looking East	190
Primrose Hill	195
Princetown	196
Puffin Island	199
Putney Bridge	201
Queenborough, The Swale at	205
Queenstown Harbour	207
Radcot Bridge	211
Raglan Castle	213
Ramsgate, The Sands at	218
Ratcliff, St. George Street	221
Rathmullan, Ruins near	225
Reading, The Market Place	230
Reculvers, The Sisters	233
Regent's Park, Flower Walk	238
Repton	241
Rhayadr Mawddach	244
Richmond Hill, View from	248
Richmond, Yorkshire	249
Riddlesden Hall	251
Ringwood	255
Ripon Cathedral	257
Rochester Castle and Grounds	265
Rochford Hall	266
Rockingham Castle	267
Rodel, McLeod's Tomb at	268
Romsey Abbey	273
Roslin Chapel	278
Ross Castle	281
Rosstrevor Quay	282
Rothesay	286
Rowsley, The "Peacock" Inn	290
Roxburgh Castle	291
Rugby, The Close	296
Rugeley	297

	PAGE
Rumbling Bridge	297
Runnymede, from Cooper's Hill	299
Rushen Castle	300
Rydal Water, from Nab Scar	304
Ryde, from the Pier	305
Rye	306
St. Albans, The Abbey	312
St. Andrews, from the West Beach	314
St. Asaph	317
St. Bees and St. Bees Head	318
St. Cross, The Church of	324
St. Davids, The Cathedral	325
St. Ives, Cornwall	333
St. Ives Old Bridge	334
St. Leonards on Sea, The Pier	337
St. Margaret at Cliffe Church	339
St. Mary's, Scilly Islands, Star Castle	342
St. Michael's Mount	344
St. Osyth	348
St. Pancras Station, Exterior	349
St. Peter Port, The Harbour	350
St. Saviour's Church, Southwark	352
Salcombe Harbour	356
Salisbury Cathedral, West Front	359
Saltash, The Royal Albert Bridge	362
Saltburn, The Viaduct	363
Saltwood Castle	365
Sandal Castle Hill	368
Sandringham House	372
Sandwich, The Barbican	373
Sark, The Coupée	375
Savoy, The Chapel Royal	378
Scafell and Scafell Pike, from head of Wastwater	381
Scarborough Bay and Spa	383
Seaford, Church Street	391
Seasalter	393
Seaton, The Seafront	394
Selborne Church and Vicarage	398
Selby, The Market Place	398
Selkirk	399
Semperingham, South Porch	401
Settle, The Shambles	402
Sevenoaks, Entrance to, from the South	403
Shakespeare's Cliff, Dover	406
Sharpness, Severn Bridge	409
Sheffield, The Ruskin Museum	414
Shepperton	419
Sherborne Minster	420
Sheringham Hall	423
Shields, North, The Fish Pier	425
Shoreham, Old, Church and Bridge	433
Shottery, Anne Hathaway's Cottage	435
Shrewsbury, Timbered Houses	436
Shugborough Tunnel (North End)	438
Sidmouth, The Esplanade	441
Silchester, The First Christian Church	442
Silkstone Collieries	443
Skiddaw, from Falcon Crag	451
Skipton Castle	452
Sligo Abbey	460
Snowdon, The Peaks of	467

LIST OF MAPS.

	PAGE
Hebrides, Portion of	Frontispiece
Argyleshire, Inverness-shire, and Ross and Cromarty, Portions of	To face 49
Inverness-shire and Perthshire, Portions of	„ 97
Kincardineshire, and Portions of Aberdeenshire, Banffshire, Forfarshire, Inverness-shire, and Perthshire	„ 145
Argyleshire, Portion of	„ 193
Argyleshire, Dumbartonshire, Fifeshire, Inverness-shire, Perthshire, and Stirlingshire, Portions of	„ 241
Kinross-shire, and Portions of Fifeshire, Forfarshire, Haddingtonshire, and Perthshire	„ 289
Argyleshire and Bute, Portions of	„ 337
Renfrewshire, and Portions of Ayrshire, Argyleshire, Bute, Dumbartonshire, Dumfriesshire, Lanarkshire, Linlithgowshire, and Stirlingshire	„ 385
Berwickshire, Edinburghshire, Peeblesshire, Selkirkshire, and Portions of Dumfriesshire, Haddingtonshire, Lanarkshire, Linlithgowshire, and Roxburghshire	„ 433

DEFINITION OF TERMS.

Barony.—Properly the estate of a Baron; a territorial division of a county in Ireland, probably in former times the district of a native chief.

Borough, originally a fortified or corporate town:

County Borough.—Any borough instituted by the Local Government (England and Wales) Act, 1888, and therein defined as "a borough which on June 1, 1888, either had a population of not less than 50,000 or was a county of itself. Such boroughs are, for the purposes of this Act, administrative counties."

Municipal Borough.—A borough possessing a charter, and governed by a Mayor and Corporation.

Parliamentary Borough.—A borough returning a member, or members, to Parliament, or forming one of a group of boroughs represented in Parliament.

Burgh.—The Scottish term corresponding to the English "borough" (q.v.):

Burgh of Barony.—A burgh governed by a council and magistrates, or by the latter alone, and owing its charter to a feudal superior, not directly to the sovereign.

Burgh of Regality.—A Burgh of Barony formerly possessing exclusive criminal jurisdiction within its boundaries. The name is retained, but the jurisdiction has been abolished.

Municipal Burgh.—The same as Municipal Borough (q.v.).

Parliamentary Burgh.—The same as Parliamentary Borough (q.v.).

Royal Burgh.—A burgh created by Royal Charter.

Chapelry, a district assigned to a chapel-of-ease.

Civil Parish or Township. [TOWNSHIP.]

Ecclesiastical Parish.—A division of a parish, or parishes, for ecclesiastical purposes.

Hamlet, a section of a parish, a village, a group of houses.

Liberty.—A territorial division, in some counties, and sometimes containing more than one parish. The name refers to the fact that in this district certain franchises or privileges were, or still are, enjoyed.

Market Town.—A town which has the privilege of holding a public market on stated days of the week.

Parish.—A territorial division of a county for civil and ecclesiastical purposes.

Quoad Sacra Parish.—A parish, in Scotland, for ecclesiastical purposes only.

Riding.—One of the divisions (North, East and West) of the County of York in England, and of Co. Cork (East and West) in Ireland. The term is a corruption of the Old English thryding = a third part.

Tithing.—Originally a company of ten householders, or the district occupied by them. The name has now no practical signification.

Townland.—A division of a parish in Ireland, without rating powers.

Township.—A civil division of an ancient parish in England and Wales, where a separate poor rate is levied. The name is often retained even after the township is absorbed for rating purposes. In such cases the population does not appear in the Census Returns.

In the matter of place-names the spelling of the Census Returns has been followed, as has the official method of printing names in which a distinctive epithet occurs. Places to the names of which Great, Little, North, South, and the like are prefixed, should be looked for under the principal word. Thus East Newchurch will be found on page 1 as Newchurch, East.

When a number of places of the same name occur, they are arranged in the following order — English, Welsh, Scots, and Irish, the most important ones coming first in each group.

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS.

Abers.	Aberdeenshire.
Antr.	Antrim.
Args.	Argyllshire.
Arm.	Armagh.
Ayrs.	Ayrshire.
Banffs.	Banffshire.
Beds.	Bedfordshire.
Berks.	Berkshire.
Berws.	Berwickshire.
Brecons.	Brecknockshire.
Bucks.	Buckinghamshire.
Caiths.	Caithness-shire.
Cambs.	Cambridgeshire.
Cardigs.	Cardiganshire.
Carl.	Carlow.
Carmarths.	Carmarthenshire.
Carnarvs.	Carnarvonshire.
Cav.	Cavan.
Chesh.	Cheshire.
Clacks.	Clackmannanshire.
Cornw.	Cornwall.
Cumb.	Cumberland.
Denbighs.	Denbighshire.
Derbys.	Derbyshire.
Dev.	Devon.
Don.	Donegal.
Dors.	Dorset.
Dub.	Dublin.
Dumbarts.	Dumbartonshire.
Dumfs.	Dumfriesshire.
Dur.	Durham.
E. R., N. R., W. R. Yorks.	East, North, West Riding, Yorkshire.
Edins.	Edinburghshire.
Elgs.	Elginshire.
Ferm.	Fermanagh.
Fifes.	Fifeshire.
Flints.	Flintshire.
Forfs.	Forfarshire.
Glamorgs.	Glamorganshire.
Gloucs.	Gloucestershire.
Haddings.	Haddingtonshire.
Hants.	Hampshire.
Herefords.	Herefordshire.
Herts.	Hertfordshire.
Hunts.	Huntingdonshire.
Invs.	Inverness-shire.
I. of A.	Isle of Anglesey.
I. of M.	Isle of Man.
I. of W.	Isle of Wight.
Ir.	Ireland.
K. Co.	King's County.
Kilk.	Kilkenny.
Kincs.	Kincardineshire.
Kinrs.	Kinross-shire.
Kirkcuds.	Kirkcudbrightshire.
Lanarks.	Lanarkshire.
Lancs.	Lancashire.
Leics.	Leicestershire.
Leit.	Leitrim.
Lincs.	Lincolnshire.
Linliths.	Linlithgowshire.
Lim.	Limerick.
Londy.	Londonderry.
Longf.	Longford.
Merions.	Merionethshire.
Middx.	Middlesex.
Mon.	Monmouthshire.
Montgoms.	Montgomeryshire.
Nairns.	Nairnshire.
Norf.	Norfolk.
Northants.	Northamptonshire.
Northumb.	Northumberland.
Notts.	Nottinghamshire.
Ork.	Orkney.
Oxon.	Oxfordshire.
Peebs.	Peeblesshire.
Pembs.	Pembrokeshire.
Perths.	Perthshire.
Q. Co.	Queen's County.
Radnors.	Radnorshire.
Renfs.	Renfrewshire.
Roscom.	Roscommon.
Ross and Crom.	Ross and Cromarty.
Roxbs.	Roxburghshire.
Rutld.	Rutland.
Salop	Shropshire.
Sc.	Scotland.
Selks.	Selkirkshire.
Somerset	Somersetshire.
Staffs.	Staffordshire.
Stirls.	Stirlingshire.
Suff.	Suffolk.
Suths.	Sutherlandshire.
Tip.	Tipperary.
Tyr.	Tyrone.
Warws.	Warwickshire.
Waterf.	Waterford.
Westmd	Westmorland.
Wex.	Wexford.
Wick.	Wicklow.
Wigs.	Wigtownshire.
Wilts.	Wiltshire.
Worcs.	Worcestershire.
Wstm.	Westmeath.

ac.	acres, acreage.
affl.	affluent.
b.	born.
bar.	barony.
cent.	century.
chap.	chapelry.
co.	county.
co. bor.	county borough.
Co. Co.	County Court.
d.	died.
Dec.	Decorated.
dis.	district.
div.	division.
E.	East.
eccl. pa.	ecclesiastical parish.
E. Eng.	Early English.
(F.)	Friday.
ft.	foot, feet.
ha.	hamlet.
in.	inch, inches.
lib.	liberty.
(M.)	Monday.
mkt.	market.
mun. bor.	municipal borough.
N.	North.
Norm.	Norman.
pa., pas.	parish, parishes.
parl. bor.	parliamentary borough.
Perp.	Perpendicular.
pl.	place.
q.s. pa.	quoad sacra parish.
q.v.	quod vide (= which see).
S.	South.
(S.)	Saturday.
sess.	sessional.
sub.	suburb.
(T.)	Tuesday.
temp.	tempore (= in the time of).
(TH.)	Thursday.
ti.	tithing.
tld.	townland.
to.	town.
tp.	township.
Trans	Transition.
U.	union.
vil.	village.
viz.	namely.
W.	West.
(W.)	Wednesday.
yd., yds.	yard, yards.

☞ The Table at the foot of the pages contains those places which are found in the Census Returns, and for these only is it possible to give the population. The distances of such places in Great Britain are given from London, and of places in Ireland from Dublin.

GAZETTEER

OF

GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND.

Newchurch (1), pa. and vil. on the Yar, I. of W., 6 S.W. of Ryde; ac. 4,619; soil sand and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1883) is E. Eng.; it contains several monuments to the Dillington and Bissett families, and some good oak-work. There are Congregational and Weslevan chapels, and some small charities. Ashey Down, a high hill partly in this pa., is surmounted by an obelisk, being one of the highest points in the island.

Newchurch (2), pa. and vil., E. Mon., 7 S.E. of Usk; ac. 5,494; soil loam and sand, resting on gravel and sandstone grit. The church, occupying a bleak elevation, is E. Eng. and Dec., but much modernised. There are Wesleyan and Welsh Methodist chapels. At Gaer-llwyd is a fine cromlech. Gaer-fawr is an extensive British camp, with an inner and an outer vallum of stones, extending over nearly 20 ac., and occupying a position of great natural strength on the spur of a hill.

Newchurch (3), pa. and vil., S. Kent, 5 N.W. of New Romney; ac. 3,059; soil stiff mould, overlying stiff clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp., and has a fine Perp. oak screen, a stoup in the north porch, and piscinæ in the chancel and adjacent chapels. There is a charity of about £25 a year.

Newchurch (4), (formerly "Newchurch-with-Bacup"), tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 7 S. of Beverley; ac. 5,937.

Newchurch (5), tp., pa. of Kinnersley (q.v.), N. Herefords., 8 S.E. of Kington.

Newchurch (6), pa. on the Gwili, S.W. Carmarths., 3 N.N.W. of Carmarthen; ac. 5,015; soil mostly fertile. The church was rebuilt in 1829. The Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are traces of a Roman road and camp. In the court of Tranmanr stands a stone with an inscription to Severinus, son of Severus; it was formerly supposed to commemorate the son of the Emperor Severus, who was said to have been slain in a battle with the Britons, fought here about 72 A.D., but the characters appear to be later.

Newchurch (7), pa., S. Radnors., adjoining Herefords., 6 N. of Hay; ac. 1,838; soil various, partly red clayey earth. The church of St. Mary was built in 1850. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel.

Newchurch, East, tp., pa. of Newchurch (q.v.), E. Mon., about 7 S.E. of Usk; ac. 3,396.

Newchurch-in-Pendle, eccl. pa., formed from the pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 6 N.W. of Burnley. The church of St. Mary is in Classic style.

Newchurch-in-Rossendale, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Irwell, pa. of Whalley (q.v.) and mun. bor. of Rawtenstall, E. Lancs., 3½ W. of Bacup. The church of St. Nicholas (rebuilt in Late Perp. style, 1826, on the site of the old chapel, dating from 1512) contains monumental tablets to the Hargreaves, Law, Lord, and Patrick families; in the churchyard is a stone with quaint inscription to John Kershaw, founder of the grammar school, and his wife. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Baptist, Unitarian, and United Free Methodist chapels. The inhabitants are principally employed in the cotton and woollen manufactories and in the stone quarries. The grammar school, founded 1701, and endowed with property yielding about £25 a year, was rebuilt 1890. Height-side House is a seat.

Newchurch Kenyon, pa. and vil., S. Lancs., 13 W. of Manchester; ac. 7,054; soil clayey, resting on clay. The church (dedication unknown) was restored 1877; there are two brasses, dated respectively 1560 and 1646. There are Primitive Methodist chapels and a Presbyterian church. The manufacture of cotton is carried on here, and bricks and tiles are made. The charities include a bequest of property by Henry Johnson in 1727 for the free schooling and clothing of poor Protestant children, the income being about £27 per annum.

Newchurch, West, tp., pa. of Newchurch (q.v.), E. Mon., about 7 S.E. of Usk; ac. 2,098. In this tp. is a considerable portion of all that remains of the ancient forest of Wentwood, where are the ruins of the Castle of Troggy, or Cas Troggy, said to have been built temp. Edward I. by Roger Bigod, Earl of Norfolk. The ascription of the name of Strigul, by Camden and some other writers, to this castle has doubtless arisen from a corruption of the name

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newchurch (1)	Newchurch	88	1526
Newchurch (2)	Chepstow (6)	141	532
Newchurch (3)	Ham Street (4)	60	355
Newchurch (4)	Waterfoot	205	26217
Newchurch (6)	Carmarthen (3)	233	690
Newchurch (7)	Whitney (2)	163	102
Newchurch, East	Chepstow (6)	141	393
Newchurch-in-P.	Brierfield (2¾)	216	797
Newchurch-in-R.	Waterfoot	205	3196
Newchurch Kenyon	Culcheth	193	2626
Newchurch, West	Chepstow (6)	141	139

of Cas Troggy or Stroggy, and has given rise to much confusion between this place and the real Strigul or Chepstow.

Newchurch-with-Bacup. [NEWCHURCH (4).]

New Cowper, small vil., pa. of Holme Cultram (q.v.), W. Cumb., 3½ N. of Aspatria.

New Cross, southern suburb of London, bor. of Deptford (q.v.), Kent and Surrey, 3½ S.E. of St. Paul's. The New Cross Road, continuing the Old Kent Road, runs through the dis., which is named after an old hostelry bearing the sign of "The Golden Cross," mentioned by Evelyn in his "Diary" (1675). Here is the Royal Naval School, founded at Camberwell 1833, mainly for the sons of necessitous naval and military officers, the present building being opened by Prince Albert on the 1st of June, 1843, the anniversary of Lord Howe's victory.

Newdale, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Wellington (q.v.), Mid Salop.

New Delaval, colliery vil., pa. of Earsdon (q.v.), S. Northumb., 1 S.E. of Horton. There is a church dedicated to St. Bede, as well as Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Christian Lay chapels. The vil. has a Mechanics' Institute, and there is a large colliery.

Newdigate, pa. and vil., S. Surrey, about 5 S.E. of Dorking; ac. 4,546; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1877) is an E. Eng. building, of which the tower is the most interesting feature, being framed in timber throughout, dating from the 15th cent. There are several charities, and the school has an endowment. N. Place is a seat.

Newenden, pa. and vil. on the Rother, S. Kent, 9 N.W. of Rye; ac. 1,030; soil clay and loam, overlying gravel and sand. The church of St. Peter is a mutilated edifice of stone, partly Perp.; it contains a fine Norm. font. The school has a small endowment. Here was anciently a house of Carmelite friars (founded 1241). Near N. is an entrenchment, and Roman coins have been found.

Newent, pa. and mkt. to. (T.), head of U., Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., N.W. Glouc., near the borders of Worc. and Herefords., 9 N.W. of Gloucester; ac. 7,213; soil light sand inclining to red, overlying coal, ironstone, red sandstone, sand, and clay. N. appears to have been formerly a place of considerable importance, having been a bor. governed by a bailiff. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a handsome structure, originally erected about 1590, and contains an altar-tomb, with recumbent effigies of a knight in armour and his lady; a brass to Roger Porter (d. 1523); and memorials to the Nourse and Woodward families; and to William Rogers, a benefactor of the pa. (1690); a marble monument, with several finely-executed figures, commemorates Barbara, wife of Charles Bourchier. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The Market House is an interesting example of timber work of the 16th cent., and was thoroughly restored in the year 1864 by the late Richard Foley Onslow, whose arms and those of Mrs. Onslow, in stained glass, decorate one of the windows. There are ten almshouses, and charities yielding about £57 a year. N. has always been in great repute for the production of cider and perry. The industries include flour mills, a tannery, and the manufacture of bricks and drain-pipes. There are several mineral springs in the vicinity, possessing properties similar to those of Cheltenham and Gloucester; the principal one lies a short distance from the to., and is surrounded by splendid scenery; on the south-west of N. is Yartledon Hill, now called "May Hill," on account of the games celebrated there on May Day. In 1558 Edward Horne was burnt at Old Court, formerly an orchard connected with the Court House, for his religion; and during the Civil War there was a garrison for the king at N., under the command of Col. Meine. About 1812 several brass and silver Roman coins were found. N. Court is a handsome residence, with colonnaded portico, situated on an eminence near the church, in park-like grounds. Sturdens is a modern mansion of stone standing in park-like grounds.

New Ferry (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Bebington (q.v.), W. Chesh., 2 S. of Birkenhead, on the road to Chester. Here is a steamboat station on the Mersey and an iron pier. The church of St. Mark the Evangelist is in E. Eng. style, and there are Nonconformist chapels. At Port Sunlight in the pa. are extensive soap works. The Gladstone Village Hall, opened 1891, is in the Old Eng. Domestic style of architecture. Moored in the Mersey opposite N. F. are training and school ships.

New Ferry (2), vil. on the Bann, pa. of Ballyscullion (q.v.), E. co. Londy., Ir., 7 N. of Toomebridge.

Newfield (1), tp. and vil. on the Wear, pa. of Auckland St. Andrew (q.v.), S. Dur., 3 N.W. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 206. The Primitive Methodists and Methodist New Connexion have chapels. The old manor house, now converted into two residences, stands near the centre of the vil. There are a number of coke ovens, and fire-bricks are manufactured.

Newfield (2), ha., pa. of and about 1 W. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.

Newfield (3), estate, pa. of Dundonald (q.v.), W. Ayrs., Sc., about 2 S.E. of Drybridge station. There is a seat of the same name.

Newfieldyke and Thornrow, part of vil. of Binniehill and Southfield (q.v.), S.E. Stirls., Sc.

New Forest, a royal forest, S.W. Hants, the most extensive tract of woodland left in the English lowlands, formerly covering almost the whole of the area between the estuary of the Avon and Southampton Water. Stretching 20 miles from north-west to south-east, and 15 miles from east to west, it comprises 92,365 ac., of which the Crown has the right to keep 16,000 ac. enclosed and planted. The whole of the plantations are under the control of the Commissioners of Woods and Forests; and the forest laws and customs are administered by seven verderers, one of them appointed by the Crown, the other six by the commoners and their officers—the forest courts, called Courts of Swainmote, being held at the Verderers'

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Newdigate	Ockley (2)	32	681
Newenden	Rye (9)	70	149
Newent	Newent	124	2605

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
New Ferry (1)	Bebington	192	3874
Newfield	Heawick (1½)	246	1130

Hall, Queen's House, Lyndhurst. According to the monkish chroniclers, William the Conqueror destroyed towns, villages, and churches over an area some thirty miles in length in order to lay out the Forest. The Saxon Chronicle, however, gives no hint of any such proceeding, and there is little doubt that the afforesting in this reign was on a much smaller scale, the probability being that the greater part of the land has never been cultivated. In later days the Forest furnished most of the timber for the Royal Navy. It now consists of wide expanses of heathery moor and of woodland, the trees being mostly oak and beech. The deer were destroyed or removed about the middle of the 19th cent., but the half-wild horses, supposed to be of Spanish extraction, still flourish here. The chief tourist centres are Brockenhurst (q.v.) on the south, Ringwood (q.v.) on the west, and Lyndhurst (q.v.) in about the middle of the Forest. Rufus's Stone, 4 N.W. of Lyndhurst, marks the spot where William II. was slain by the arrow, as is generally believed, by Walter Tiril. [MINSTEAD.]

New Forest Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Hants. It lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Newfound, ti., pa. of Wootton St. Lawrence (q.v.), N. Hants, 2 N.W. of Basingstoke. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

New Found Pool, pa. within the co. bor. of Leicester (q.v.); ac. 43.

Newgal, or Newgale, stream, S.W. Pembs., rises near Llanreithan, and flows 5 S. and 2½ W., entering St. Bride's Bay near St. Elvis, at a point 6½ E. by S. of St. David's. The fine stretch of sand through which the river passes at its mouth when the tide is out is the traditional site of a forest, traces of which have been discovered.

Newgate Street (Christchurch), pa., City of London, Middx.; ac. 12. Christ Church was rebuilt after the Great Fire by Wren, and renovated 1834 and 1862. It contains several ancient tablets, among them one to Dame Mary Ramsey (d. 1596), who established a free writing-school in Christ's Hospital. [LONDON, p. 229; and for NEWGATE, p. 231.] Here too lies Richard Baxter (d. 1691), with "The Saint's Rest," in allusion to the best-known of his works, for his epitaph. The west and the side galleries are set apart for the boys of Christ's Hospital. Since 1797 the annual Spital (Hospital) sermons have been preached in this church.

New Hadley, ha., pa. of Wellington (q.v.), Mid Salop, 2 E. of Wem.

Newhall (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Stapenhill (q.v.), S. Derbys., 6 N.W. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch. The church of St. John (1842) is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Free Methodist chapels. The Hall, erected 1874, contains reading- and news-rooms, billiard-rooms, and a spacious lecture hall, but has for some years been closed. There are coal-pits and brickfields. Stanton House is a seat.

Newhall (2), tp. on the Weaver, pas. of Wrenbury and Audlem (q.v.), W. Chesh., 5 S. of Nantwich; ac. 4,159.

Newhall (3), formerly a separate tp., pa. of Davenham (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 3½ S.E. of Northwich.

Newhall (4), estate on the North Esk, pa. of Penicuik (q.v.), S. Edins., Sc. There is a seat of the same name.

Newhall Hey, ha., pa. of Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 6 S.W. of Rochdale. [COWPE LENCH, NEWHALL HEY, AND HALL CARR.]

Newhalls, vil. on the Firth of Forth, pa. of Dalmeny (q.v.), N.E. Linliths., Sc., ½ E. of Queensferry. Here is a pier, built about 1809. The "Hawes Inn," an ancient building, on the walls of which the dates 1588 and 1633 still remain, was the meeting-place of Jonathan Oldbuck and young Lovell in Scott's "Antiquary."

Newham (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N. Northumb., 6 S.E. of Belford; ac. 2,690.

Newham (2), tp., pa. of Whalton (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 9 S.W. of Morpeth; ac. 1,349.

Newham (3), ha., pa. of Marton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Stokesley.

Newhampton, pa. consisting of two houses, N.E. Herefords., about 6 E. of Leominster; ac. 148.

New Hampton. [HAMPTON HILL.]

Newhaven (1), pa. and seaport to., head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., on the Ouse, S. Sussex, 9 E. of Brighton; ac. 906 land, 184 water. The church of St. Michael (restored) is a building of flint, partly Norm., with a small semicircular apse. Christ Church, a chapel-of-ease, was erected in 1881, and is chiefly in the E. Eng. style. There are also Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels; and the Seaman's Mission has a hall and reading-room. There is a cemetery of 3 ac., formed in 1884. N. derives its name from the change, caused by the great storm of 1570, in the course of the river Ouse, which then entered the sea at Seaford. In 1848 Louis Philippe landed here, accompanied by Queen Marie Amélie, having crossed from Tréport in a fishing vessel under the names of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. N. is chiefly known

SIGNAL STATION, NEWHAVEN.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, Lee.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
New Forest Division	.....	.....	51328
New Found Pool	Blaby	97	2160
Newgate Street	....	.....	958
Newhall (1)	Swadlincote (1)	126	4313
Newhall (2)	Nantwich (5)	162	734

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newham (1)	Newham	318	208
Newham (2)	Meldon (5)	293	43
Newhampton	Bromyard (6)	135	10
Newhaven (1), pa.	Newhaven	56	4522
Newhaven (1), to.	Newhaven	56	4955

as a steam-packet station. A branch of the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway connects it with London, and fast steamers run daily to and from Dieppe; and there are services in connection with Honfleur, Caen, and the Channel Islands. The harbour is at the entrance of the Ouse, at the north-west extremity of Seaford Bay. At spring-tides there is as much as 24 ft. of water inside the harbour, and at neap-tides never less than 16 ft. An important traffic is carried on with the Continent in fruit, vegetables, wines, spirits, etc.; and there is also a fair trade in coal, timber, iron, and grain. The coasting trade is partly water-borne to Uckfield and Lewes. There is an extensive brewery. Castle Hill, west of the harbour, is strongly fortified. N. has a yearly regatta. Meeching Place is a seat.

Newhaven (2), ha., pa. of and 2½ E. from Hartington (q.v.), W. Derbys.

Newhaven (3), pl., pa. of Parkham (q.v.), N. Dev., 7 S.W. of Bideford.

Newhaven (4), q.s. pa. and to., on the Firth of Forth, pa. of North Leith (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., 1½ N. of Edinburgh. The name is derived from the harbour and dock formed in the reign of James IV. (1488–1513), which were thus distinguished from the old harbour at Leith. The to. is a quaint old-world place with low red-tiled houses, entered by flights of steps which ascend to the second storey. The Established church (1838), in Perp. style, has been altered and improved. There is also a Free church in Gothic style. The ancient chapel of Our Lady and St. James is represented by some scanty remains. On the wall of a house in Main Street are carved a quadrant, anchor, and other naval devices, surmounted by a thistle and the inscription "In the name of God, 1588." The tidal harbour was reconstructed 1876–77; the pier on its east side has a lighthouse at its further end. The fishing population, of Scandinavian character, are noted for their bold, thrifty, and energetic character. The fishwives of N., remarkable alike for their splendid physique, their morality, and their picturesque costume, are vividly described in Charles Reade's "Christie Johnstone."

Newhey, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Rochdale, E. Lancs. The church of St. Thomas was built 1875, in E. Eng. style. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Coal and stone are won here, and there is a brick and tile manufactory.

Newhill, ha., pa. of Wath-upon-Dearne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Rotherham.

Newhills, pa., S.E. Abers., Sc., 5 N.W. of Aberdeen. The river Don forms its boundary on the north-east; ac. 10,282. The general appearance of the country is hilly, and towards the west becomes mountainous.

New Holkham. [LONGLANDS (1).]

Newholm, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Raithwaite Hall is a seat. [NEWHOLME-WITH-DUNSLEY.]

Newholme, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Dolphinton (q.v.), E. Lanarks., Sc., about ½ S.E. of Dunsyre station.

Newholm-with-Dunsley, tp., pa. of and 2½ W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 2,196.

Newhouse (1), ha., pa. of Ugborough (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 N.E. of Modbury.

Newhouse (2), ha., pa. of Stanhope (q.v.), S. Dur., 1 N.W. of Weardale St. John.

Newhouses, ha., pa. of Romald Kirk (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Barnard Castle.

New Houses, vil., pa. of Lanchester (q.v.), N.W. Dur., about 5 W.N.W. of Durham. There is a Mission church and a Roman Catholic chapel.

Newick, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, Mid Sussex, 8 N. of Lewes; ac. 1,977; soil light, overlying clay and sand rock. The church of St. Mary (restored 1887) is partly Norm. There is a Baptist chapel and a cottage hospital. Beechland and Newick Park are seats.

Newington (1), parl. bor. and pa., N.E. Surrey, 1 S. of St. Paul's, forming part of South London; ac. 631. The south and east parts of N. are occupied by the dis. known as Walworth, which returns one of the two members for the bor. The pa. church is believed by Lysons to have been originally in this dis.; and he suggests that in or before the reign of Henry III., when it was removed further to the west, the houses that sprang up around it gradually acquired the name of "New Town" (= "Newington"). The church of N., dedicated to St. Mary, and standing on the west side of Newington Butts, was rebuilt 1791–93, and in 1876 was demolished in order to effect a street improvement, a handsome Gothic clock-tower being erected 1877 on the site, and the graveyard laid out as a public garden. The new church, more centrally situate on the east side of the Kennington Park Road, is a large and lofty edifice in Gothic style. In the first of the two churches off Newington Butts were buried Thomas Middleton the dramatist (d. 1627) and George Powell, "King of the Gipsies" (d. 1704); the graveyard contains a monument to Wm. Allen, killed in the Wilkes riots in St. George's Fields (1768). The list of rectors includes Dr. Samuel Horsley, F.R.S., afterwards Bishop of St. Asaph. There are several eccl. pas. —viz. All Saints', Surrey Square; All Souls', Grosvenor Park; Holy Trinity; St. Andrew's; St. Mary's; St. Matthew's; St. Stephen's; St. Agnes', Kennington Park; St. Paul's, Lorimore Square; Lady Margaret's, Walworth; St. John's, Walworth; St. Mark's, East Street, Walworth; and St. Peter's, Walworth. Of the Dissenting places of worship, the most important is the Metropolitan Tabernacle, built 1859–61 for the late Mr. C. H. Spurgeon on a part of the site of the Fishmongers' Almshouses, in Newington Butts. It has a Corinthian portico, measures 140 ft. by 80 ft., and has accommodation for 6,000 persons. Attached to it are a lecture hall, schoolrooms, almshouses, and the Pastors' College, for ministerial students. The Sessions House, in Newington Causeway, dating from 1799, has been twice rebuilt; the Horsemonger Lane Gaol, which

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newhaven (4)	Newhaven	403	6085
Newhey	New Hey	193	2857
Newhills	Buxburn (1)	532	5526
Newholm-w.-D.	Whitby (2)	244	377

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newick	Newick & Chailey (1½	43	1033
Newington (1), bor.	.....	.....	115804
Newington (1), pa.	.....	.....	115804

formerly adjoined it, was demolished about 1880, a portion of the site being converted into a playground for children. The Vestry Hall is in the Walworth Road; the Workhouse in Westmorland Road, Walworth. Near the "Elephant and Castle," an important centre of omnibus and tramway traffic, are the almshouses of the Drapers' Company (rebuilt 1778). A former feature of N. was the Royal Surrey Gardens, formed out of the grounds of the Walworth Manor House, with approaches from Manor Place and Penton Place, for the purposes of a menagerie and recreation gardens. Here was built a music hall, which on October 19, 1856, during a service conducted by Mr. Spurgeon, was the scene of a fatal panic, resulting in the loss of seven lives. It was burnt down in 1861, but was rebuilt and occupied as a temporary hospital while the new St. Thomas's Hospital was being erected at Westminster Bridge. The place is now commemorated by the Surrey Gardens Memorial Hall.

Newington (2), pa., tp., and vil., on the Thame, S. Oxon, 9 S.E. of Oxford; ac. of pa. 2,825, of tp. 2,105; soil strong blue clay on green sand and gault. The church of St. Giles is chiefly Dec.; in the south wall of the chancel is a recessed 14th-cent. tomb and a piscina, and on the north side a priest's door; there are remains of a Perp. rood-screen and of old glass; the south and north doors, the latter blocked up, are of Norm. work. In the chancel is an alabaster monument to Walter Dunch and Mary, his wife, 1650, and another to Henry Dunch, 1686; in the chapel or transept is a brass to Alice and Maria Skyrmote (1463). The lower part of the tower is E. Eng., the upper portion and the spire Dec. There is a sundial on the east gable. N. House is a seat.

Newington (3), pa. and to., N. Kent, 8 E. of Rochester; ac. 2,115. The church of St. Mary is a Dec. flint building, with some E. Eng. work and a lofty Perp. west tower; on the walls of the north aisle are paintings representing a "Doom," etc., and in the chancel arch is some fine Dec. woodwork. The church contains an altar-tomb, a font with an Elizabethan "buffet" cover, some brasses, and a curious chest bound with iron. A Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1880. There are several small charities. N. may have been the Roman Durolevum, and many urns, etc., have been discovered. Hops and fruit are largely grown in the neighbourhood.

Newington (4), pa. and vil., S. Kent, 2½ N.E. of Hythe; ac. 3,110 land, 30 water; soil light, subsoil chalky. The church of St. Nicholas is partly Perp., and contains some interesting monuments and brasses. In the pa. is an entrenchment, and Roman pottery has been found. Beachborough House is a seat.

Newington (5), pa. forming the western part of the parl. and mun. bor. of Hull (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 760. The church of St. John the Baptist was built 1878, in E. Eng. style. There are various Nonconformist chapels.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newington (2), pa.	Littlemore (6)	60	404
Newington (2), tp.	Littlemore (6)	60	343
Newington (3)	Newington	42	968
Newington (4)	Westenhanger (4)	63	454
Newington (5)	Hull	196	18395
Newington (10)	Newington	395	9957
Newington Bagpath	Tetbury (6)	92	179

Newington (6), small ha., pa. of and about 1 W. from Newington Bagpath (q.v.), E. Glouc.

Newington (7), vil. on the Idle, pa. of Mission (q.v.), N. Notts., 3 S.E. of Bawtry.

Newington (8), vil., pa. of North Ferriby (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of South Cave.

Newington (9). [Newnton, North.]

Newington (10), q.s. pa. in Edinburgh, N.E. Edins., Sc. The dis., which lies to the east of Grange, was formed about 1800; it consists mainly of suburban residences. Arthur's Seat and Salisbury Crags rise conspicuously to the north-east. The Established church dates from 1823. There is also a Free church.

Newington Bagpath, pa. and vil. on the Avon, S. Glouc., 6 W. of Tetbury; ac. 2,086; soil clay and stone-brash, overlying oolite. The church of St. Bartholomew is E. Eng. Lasborough Park is a seat.

Newington-next-Hythe. [Newington (4).]

Newington, North, tp. and vil., pa. of Broughton (q.v.), N. Oxon, 3 N. of Bloxham; ac. 1,108. There is a Congregational chapel and a charity of £122 yearly value. There is also an endowed school (£50 yearly), erected 1853.

Newington, South, pa. and vil., N. Oxon, 6 S.W. of Banbury; ac. 1,437; soil red loam and clay, overlying red rock and clay. The church of St. Peter is of mixed architecture, containing Norm., E. Eng., and Perp. work; there are piscinæ in the chancel and south aisle, and a cylindrical Norm. font; the aisle roofs are of the 15th cent.; in 1892–93 several frescoes were discovered, but not in good preservation. In the churchyard is a fragment of an E. Eng. cross. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel and a Friends' meeting-house.

Newington, Stoke. [Stoke Newington.]

Newington, West, one of the two parl. divs. of the bor. of Newington (q.v.), N.E. Surrey. It returns one member.

New Inn (1), pl., pa. of Hentland (q.v.), S. Herefords., 4 N.W. of Ross.

New Inn (2), pl., Upper Loughtee bar., S. co. Cavan, Ir., 10 S.E. of Cavan, on the road to Virginia.

New Inn (3), pl., Kilconnell bar., E. co. Galway, Ir., 4 S.W. of Kilconnell. Here are remains of an ancient castle and chapel.

New Inn (4), pl., Portnahinch bar., N.E. Q. Co., Ir., 6½ N. of Monasterevin.

Newinn, vil., pa. of Knockgraffon (q.v.), S. co. Tip., Ir., 5 N.E. of Caher.

Newlake, eminence (1,525 ft.) on Dartmoor, Mid Dev., 5 W. of Chagford.

New Lambton, vil., pa. of and about 3 E. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.

Newland (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the Wye, W. Glouc., 4 S.E. of Monmouth; ac. of pa. 8,678, of tp. 7,885; soil gravel and loam, overlying clay, limestone, and sandstone. The church of All Saints (restored 1862) is a Dec. and Perp. building,

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newington, North	Banbury (2)	77	375
Newington, South	Bloxham (1½)	87	282
Newington, West	.....	.....	56623
Newinn	Caher (5)	124	113
Newland (1), pa.	Newland	149	4537
Newland (1), tp.	Newland	149	4237

containing a font dated 1661, an altar-tomb in the south aisle (temp. Edward III.) to Sir John Jose and his wife, in the north aisle two 14th-cent. effigies of priests and a marble monument to Sir Edmund Probyn, Chief Baron of the Exchequer (d. 1742), and his wife; there are also memorials to the Hall, Wyndham, and Throgmorton families; there is a piscina in each of the chapels, and an aumbry in the chancel; the rood-stairs still exist. In the churchyard are the remains of a cross; the raised tomb, with recumbent effigy, of John Wyrall (1457); and a slab with recumbent figure of an archer. The chapel-of-ease at Lower Redbrook was erected 1873, in E. Eng. style. Almshouses for four men and four women were founded in 1626 by Edward Bell, of Writtle, Essex, and have an endowment of £210: there are also almshouses for eight men and eight women (founded 1615 by William Jones), under the charge of the Haberdashers' Company, and also a lectureship in connection with the almshouses of £70 yearly, with a residence; the Haberdashers' Company contribute £230 yearly. There are two small charities. The grammar school has been moved to Coleford, but twelve boys from N. have free education there. Birchamp House, N. House, and Oak House are seats.

Newland (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Great Malvern (q.v.), W. Worcs., 6 S.W. of Worcester; ac. 738; soil stiff, overlying marl and ironstone. The church of St. Leonard occupies the site of an ancient wooden building (temp. Edward III.) which was pulled down in 1864, and is in Dec. style; it contains some beautiful frescoes and marble-work; the church forms part of the group of buildings containing the new Beauchamp almshouses. The chancel of the old church has been re-erected as a mortuary. The almshouses are Gothic buildings, erected 1862–63.

Newland (3), eccl. pa., formed from the pas. of Cottingham and Skidby (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. of Cottingham. The church of St. John is a brick building with stone dressings.

Newland (4), tp. between the Aire and the Ouse, pa. of Drax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3½ N.E. of Snaith; ac. 2,296. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Newland (5), tp., pa. of Hurst (q.v.), W. Berks., about 5 S.E. of Reading; ac. 1,237.

Newland (6), ha., pa. of Colton (q.v.), E. Staffs., 2 N. of Abbots Bromley.

Newland (7), vil., pa. of Exhall (q.v.), W. Warws., 4 N. of Coventry.

Newland (8), ti., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Wootton Glanville (q.v.), W. Dors.

Newland (9), ha., pa. of Swimbridge (q.v.), N. Dev., 4½ S.E. of Barnstaple.

Newland (10), vil., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Ulverston (q.v.), N. Lancs. [EGTON-WITH-NEWLAND.]

Newland (11), ha., pa. of Cogges (q.v.), Mid Oxon, in the south-east neighbourhood of Witney.

Newland (12), island off the west coast of Cornw., about 1 N.W. of Pentire Point.

Newlandrigg, vil., pa. of Borthwick (q.v.), E. Edins., Sc., 4 S.S.E. of Dalkeith.

Newlands (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 4 S.W. of Keswick. The chapel was rebuilt in 1843, and restored in 1885.

Newlands (2), tp. and ha., pa. of Bywell St. Peter (q.v.), S. Northumb., 12 S.E. of Hexham; ac. 1,630. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Newlands (3), pa., N. Peebs., Sc.; ac. 12,518. The surface is diversified with hill and dale, and the hills are mostly green, without heath. Trees thrive in most parts of the parish, and the greater part is enclosed by hedgerows and fences. N. church is about 12 N.W. of Peebles. At the confluence of the Lyne Water with the Tarth stands the ruins of Drochil Castle, once a large structure, partly erected by the Regent Morton, and left unfinished when he was put to death on the scaffold. Lamancha, Romanno, and Whim House are seats.

Newlands (4), vil., pa. of and about 3 E. from Bothwell (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc.

Newland St. Lawrence, small pa. of scattered houses on the Blackwater estuary, E. Essex, 19 E. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,004; soil and subsoil loamy. The church of St. Lawrence was rebuilt 1879, in the Perp. style. There is a small charity.

Newlands Corner, elevation (562 ft.) on the North Downs, Mid Surrey, 2 E. of Guildford. Several roads converge on the summit, which commands fine views.

Newlands Row, ha., pa. of Boltons (q.v.), Mid Cumb., about 4½ S. of Wigton.

Newlands, Vale of, S.W. Cumb., between Keswick and Buttermere. It presents some pastoral beauty, and is traversed by a beck.

Newland with Woodhouse Moor, pa. on the Calder, W.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Wakefield; ac. 311; soil strong, overlying gravel and coal. There is a large colliery. N. Hall, an ancient mansion on an eminence, commands fine views.

Newlaw, hill (599 ft.), pa. of Rerrick (q.v.), S Kirkcuds., Sc., about 1 N.W. of Dundrennan.

Newlay, vil. with railway station, pa. of Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. from the city of Leeds. It is on the Aire, and has large dye works; the manufacture of woollens and glue is carried on.

New Leeds, vil., pa. of Strichen (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., 8 S. of Fraserburgh. Here is a United Presbyterian church.

Newliston, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Kirkliston (q.v.), N.E. Linliths., Sc., about 1 S.W. of Kirkliston station. The plantations are said to represent the disposition of the British troops just before the battle of Dettingen (1743).

Newlyn (1), pa. and vil., E. Cornw., 9 N. of Truro; ac. 8,010; soil variable, subsoil clay. The church of St. Newlyn (restored 1883) is Gothic; at the east end of the south aisle is the burial-place of the Arundells of Trerice; there are piscinæ in the chancel and south transept, and the rood-

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newland (2)	Great Malvern (3)	129	221
Newland (3)	Hull (1)	181	6940
Newland (4)	Eastrington (1)	191	261
Newland (5)	Wokingham (3½)	36	301
Newlands (1)	Cockermouth (2½)	311	108
Newlands (2)	Stocksfield (3½)	281	148
Newlands (3)	Leadburn (2)	391	715
Newlands (4)	Uddingston (1½)	393	317
Newland St. L.	Southminster (5)	46	189
Newland with W. M.	Wakefield (3)	176	57
Newlyn (1)	Newquay (5½)	270	1191

stairs and rood-screen remain. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. N. has for some years been a favourite spot with artists, and possesses a picture gallery. Trerice was formerly the home of the Arundells; and of the original mansion, erected 1572, a large part still stands. Tresillian House is a seat.

Newlyn (2), eccl. pa. and seaport vil. at the mouth of the Tolcarne, pas. of Madron (q.v.) and Paul (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 1 S.W. of Penzance. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt 1865–66, in E. Eng.

The Slip, Newlyn.

style, has a memorial window to the Earl of Ilddesleigh, and a reredos which includes a reproduction in terra-cotta of Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper." On a rock near the church is an ancient granite cross, found in a field close by. The Wesleyans and the Primitive Methodists have chapels. N. is the chief fishing station of Mount's Bay, and maintains a fleet of about 400 boats, engaged in the mackerel and pilchard fisheries. Two massive granite piers, partially enclosing the harbour, have been constructed. The south pier, built 1885, is 700 ft. in length, and at its extremity is a lighthouse. The north or Victoria pier, built 1888 and extended 1893, is 1,760 ft. long. Many artists are attracted here by the mildness of the climate, which permits outdoor painting throughout the year, and by the quaint old streets and picturesque dwellings of the fishermen.

Newmains, small to., pa. of Cambusnethan (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., about 2 E. of Wishaw. Here are the extensive works of the Coltness Iron Company, Limited.

Newman Street, ha., pa. of Doulting (q.v.), E. Somerset, about 7 E.S.E. of Wells.

Newmarket (1), mkt. to. (T.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., Cambs. and Suff., 13 E. by N. of Cambridge. N. contains two pas.—N. All Saints and N. St. Mary's—the former in Cambs. and the latter in Suff., the High Street dividing the two counties. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. and Late Perp.; the chancel retains an E. Eng. piscina, discovered in 1856 and found to enclose a small purse containing three Nuremberg jettons of common type. There are some 17th-cent. monuments. All Saints' Church, erected in 1876–77 on the site of an older structure, is a building of flint with Bath stone dressings, in Dec. style. The eccl. pa. of St. Agnes has a modern church in Dec. style. The Congregational chapel (1863) is a structure in Gothic style, on the site of the old palace of Charles II., in commemoration of the Nonconformists who suffered persecution in the reign of that monarch; the pulpit and sittings are of oak, and were made from the timber of the old building. There is also a Wesleyan chapel in Gothic style, a Roman Catholic church, and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The cemetery is on high ground near the racecourse. A cottage hospital and almshouses were erected in 1879–80 as a memorial to Admiral Rous (d. 1877). The almshouses are for twelve persons, three married couples and six single persons; the hospital, on the pavilion system, contains ten beds for patients, chiefly reserved for those meeting with accidents in connection with the many racing establishments; the buildings are situated on an eminence east of the town, near the railway station, and form a picturesque group, of English Renaissance character, on three sides of a quadrangle. There is also a fever hospital, and a Stablemen's Institute with a library. There are public baths with a steam laundry. The town has several charities. A corn market is held, and there are fairs for stock on Whit Tuesday and November 8. A sale of cattle, sheep, and pigs is held on market days. Here is a house which was occupied by Nell Gwynne. N. is celebrated for its races, racecourse, and racing and training establishments, which are frequented by visitors from all parts of the country and the

The Heath, Newmarket.
(Photo. H. Sherborn, Newmarket.)

Continent; the course, on which several stands have been erected, adjoins the town, and extends to about 4 miles westward; there are generally

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newlyn (2)	Penzance (1)	320	3833
Newmains	Newmains	387	2598

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newmarket (1)	Newmarket	70	6213

about 1,000 horses in training on the Downs, where there is a remarkable earthwork, called "The Devil's Ditch," 4 or 5 miles long, and consisting of a deep fosse and mound, with a slope of 52 ft. on the south-west side and 26 ft. on the north-east side, the whole being 100 ft. in breadth. N. is the chief seat of the Jockey Club, in connection with which commodious buildings have been erected, provided with suites of rooms for the use of the members during the race meetings.

Newmarket (2), pa. and vil., N.W. Flints., 4½ N.E. of St. Asaph; ac. 1,075; soil limestone and boulder-clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Michael is a small modern edifice; in the churchyard is a handsome 14th-cent. cross with much elaborate ornament. There are Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. Offa's Dyke divides this pa. from that of Llanasaph. Newmarket Cop (q.v.) has associations with ancient British history.

Newmarket (3), ha., pa. of Horsley (q.v.), E. Glouc., 3 S.W. of Minchinhampton. Bacon-curing is extensively carried on here.

Newmarket (4), pl. forming part of the vil. of Laxdale, pa. of and 1½ N. from Stornoway (q.v.), Lewis island, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc.

Newmarket (5), mkt. to. (TH.) and head of a petty sess. div., pa. of Clonfert (q.v.), N. co. Cork, Ir., about 5 N.W. of Kanturk. The ancient name of this place was Ahahasne, or "the place of the ford," from its situation near a ford, now superseded by a bridge, at the entrance of the town. Its present name is derived from the establishment of its market, granted by James I. It consists principally of two streets intersecting each other. The Protestant church possesses little to attract notice except its lofty tower and spire. The altar of the Catholic church is a copy from that of the ancient abbey of Quin. The court-house is a stone building. N. was the birthplace of the celebrated John Philpot Curran. Here is a creamery. Monthly fairs are held. N. House is a seat.

Newmarket, All Saints. [NEWMARKET (1).]

Newmarket Cop, eminence, pa. of Newmarket (q.v.), N.W. Flints., 4½ E.N.E. of Rhuddlan. The tumulus called Cop 'Ar 'Leni, which crowns the hill, is a structure of unhewn stones some 36 ft. in height extending over 1½ ac. According to local legend, the cairn covers the bodies of those who were slain in the battle between Boadicea and Suetonius Paulinus; another account makes it the tomb of the British Queen herself, but probably a local chieftain is interred beneath it.

Newmarket (or Eastern) Division, one of the three parl. divs. of Cambs. It returns one member.

Newmarket Hill, eminence on the South Downs, S. Sussex, 4 E.N.E. of Brighton.

Newmarket-on-Fergus, to., pa. of Tomfinlough (q.v.), S. co. Clare, Ir., 7 S.E. of Ennis, on the main road to Limerick. The to. contains a Catholic church, a national school, a dispensary, constabulary barracks, and court-house, in which petty sessions are held every alternate Thursday. Fairs are held on Easter Monday, May 2, Aug. 27, Nov. 6, and Dec. 20. There are many seats in the immediate neighbourhood.

Newmarket, St. Mary. [NEWMARKET (1).]

Newmill (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Kirkburton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S.E. of Huddersfield. Christ Church is in Gothic style.

Newmill (2), ha., pa. of Wath-upon-Dearne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N. of Rother.

Newmill (3), vil., pa. of Llangeinor (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 6 N. of Bridgend.

New Mill (1), ha., pa. of Gulval (q.v.), W. Cornw., 4 N.E. of Penzance. The Free Methodists have a chapel.

New Mill (2), q.s. pa. and vil. (Newmills) on the Isla, pa. of and 1½ N. from Keith (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc. The Established church was erected in 1870. The vil. also contains a Free Church mission hall.

New Mill End, pl. with railway station, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Luton (q.v.), S. Beds.

New Miller Dam, vil., pa. of Sandal Magna (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 S. of Wakefield.

Newmills. [NEW MILL (2).]

New Mills (1), pa. and to. on the Goyt, N.W. Derbys., on the Chesh. border, 7½ S.W. of Glossop; ac. 5,078; soil and subsoil clay. (The place was originally known as Bowden Middle Cale, its present name being derived from a cornmill.) The church of St. George, at Beard (q.v.), was built 1831 in Gothic style. The church of St. James the Less, a chapel-of-ease to St. George's, was built in E. Eng. style 1880, together with the almshouses adjoining. These, six in number, form three sides of a quadrangle. The Catholic church of St. Mary, in E. Eng. style, dates from 1838. There are also Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Free Methodist chapels. The Public Hall (1871), in front of which is a memorial drinking fountain, affords accommodation for the Mechanics' Institute and the Savings Bank. The industrial works comprise iron and brass foundries, calico printing and bleach works, cotton spinning and cotton band manufactories.

New Mills (2), ha., Mid Montgoms., about 4 S. of Llanfair.

New Mills (3), vil., pa. of Tullaniskin (q.v.), S.E. co. Tyr., Ir., about 4 N.E. of Dungannon. The Protestant church was built about the year 1750. The principal occupation of the inhabitants is weaving and bleaching.

Newmilns, manufacturing town and burgh of barony, on the river Irvine, pa. of Loudoun (q.v.), E. Ayrs., Sc., 24 S. of Glasgow. It was first created a burgh of barony in 1490 by King James IV., and this charter was confirmed by Sir Matthew Campbell, of Loudoun, in 1566. The manufacture of muslins and lace is carried on here extensively, a large number of hands being employed in this branch. A Board school was erected in 1894-95; there is also one endowed and built at a cost of over £6,000, now under control of the Board. A new town hall was erected in 1896. There is a

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newmarket (2)	Prestatyn (3)	205	383
Newmarket (5)	Newmarket	164	986
Newmarket All SS.	Newmarket	70	2322
Newmarket Division	.....	.....	48878
Newmarket-on-F.	Newmarket	146	456
Newmarket St. M.	Newmarket	70	2543

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newmill (1)	Kirkburton	210	2429
New Mill (2), q.s. pa.	Keith (1½)	581	1421
New Mill (2), vil.	Keith (1½)	581	612
New Mills (1)	New Mills	173	5498
Newmilns	Newmilns	394	3704

Working Men's Institute; and in the centre of the town are the remains of an old castle, said to have been erected as early as that of Edinburgh, but nothing is known of its ancient possessors.

Newminster Abbey, tp., pa. of and ½ w. from Morpeth (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 715. It is named after the Cistercian Abbey of St. Mary, founded 1138 by Ranulph de Merlay for monks from Fountains Abbey. The house was frequently burnt by the Scots, and rebuilt. At the Dissolution it appears to have been almost entirely destroyed, nothing now remaining above ground but the 15th-cent. doorway of the church. In recent years some interesting fragments have been unearthed, including a stone coffin, believed to be that of St. Robert, the first abbot. At N. A. are the kennels of the Morpeth Foxhounds.

Newmoat, pa., E. Pembs., 7½ N. by W. of Narberth; ac. 3,123; soil productive. The church of St. Nicholas is an ancient Gothic edifice with an embattled west tower. Near the church is an artificial mound, defended by a deep moat, from which the pa. takes its name; it is believed to have been formed by the Flemings, who settled in this part of Wales in the reign of Henry II. There are also traces of a Roman camp, 900 ft. in diameter. Moat House is the seat of the ancient family of Scourfield.

Newmore, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Rosskeen (q.v.), E. Ross and Crom., Sc., about 3½ N.W. of Invergordon.

Newnes, tp., pa. of and 1 S.S.W. from Ellesmere (q.v.), W. Salop.

Newnham (1), pa., to., and head of a Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., beautifully situated on the western bank of the navigable river Severn, W. Glouc., 11 S.W. of Gloucester; ac. 2,058. In the 13th cent. N. is said to have been a bor., returning one member to Parliament; but, the inhabitants praying to be exempted from this privilege on account of the expense, the representation was discontinued. In 1171 Henry II., with Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke, set sail herefrom on his expedition to Ireland. The church of St. Peter, situated on an eminence, after being enlarged and restored in 1875, was destroyed by fire in 1881, but has been rebuilt in facsimile in the Norm., E. Eng., and later styles. The font is Late Norm., carved with figures of Apostles. There is a Congregational chapel in the Gothic style. The town hall (1873) is a building of brick. An inscribed sword of office presented to the Corporation by King John is now kept at The Haie. There is a large tannery, and a considerable trade is carried on in bark, timber, slate, and coal, the town having communication by mineral lines with the coal and iron mines in the Forest of Dean. Near the church is a long raised Fossway, constructed for defensive purposes, but now converted into an agreeable promenade. Cattle fairs are held in June and October. The Haie, celebrated for its gardens, is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Severn, and commands an extensive view.

Newnham (2), pa. and vil. on the Nene, S.W. Northants, 2 S. of Daventry; ac. 1,886; soil red sand and clay, resting on blue clay. The vil. lies in a deep valley, entirely surrounded by hills, the slopes and summits of which command views of great beauty. The Dec. and Perp. church of St. Michael has on the south side of the chancel two stone seats and a piscina. Most of the windows retain small fragments of ancient stained glass. On the east wall of the south aisle is a brass effigy of a lady in a wired headdress and loose cloak, representing Letitia, wife of Richard Catesby; the effigy of her husband (d. 1467) and the inscription have both disappeared. The Congregationalists have a chapel, and there is a reading-room. N. Hall is pleasantly situated.

Newnham (3), pa. and vil. on a small brook, N. Herts., 8 N.E. of Hitchin; ac. 974; soil gravel and loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Vincent (partially restored 1881) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a marble monument to Thomasine, wife of Sir William Dyer, Bart. (d. 1697), and brasses to the latter (d. 1680), to Joane Dowman and her eight children (d. 1607), and a nameless one dated 1490.

Newnham (4), pa. and vil., N. Hants, 4½ E. by N. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,298; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas, rebuilt (1847) in the Norm. style, retains a fine Norm. arch. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel (1846) and a small charity. Hook House is a seat.

Newnham (5), pa. and vil., N. Kent, 7 S.E. of Sittingbourne; ac. 1,272; soil and subsoil chiefly chalk and gravel. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1868) is Norm., E. Eng., and Dec. There is a Congregational chapel and a Workmen's Institute and Reading Room. Doddington Place and Sharshed Court are seats.

Newnham (6), ha. with railway station, pa. of Lindridge (q.v.), Worcs., 3 E. of Tenbury. N. Court is a seat.

Newnham (7), ha., pa. of and about 1 E. from Aston Cantlow (q.v.), S.W. Warws.

Newnham Murren, pa. and vil. on the Thames, S. Oxon, 14 S.E. of Oxford; ac. 1,852; soil various, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1849) is a stone and flint Norm. building; in the chancel is a piscina, a locker, and a small squint; the south aisle of the nave is Dec., the pulpit is Jacobean, and the font Norm. There is a small charity. N. House is a seat.

Newnham Paddox. [MONKS KIRBY.]

Newnham Regis, pa. and ha. on the Avon, W. Warws., 4 N.W. of Rugby; ac. 1,418. The church (dedication unknown) has long been in ruins, nothing standing except the tower; in 1852 explorations were made, and many tombs, skeletons, coffins, etc., unearthed. The pa. contains limeworks. There is a bath (restored 1857) impregnated with lime, much frequented in the 17th cent., and said to have been discovered by a labouring man who had injured his hand while felling trees. Two heads and other remains of the Siberian rhinoceros were found here in 1815.

Newnton, Long, pa. and vil., N.W. Wilts., divided

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newminster Abbey	Morpeth (½)	288	174
Newmoat	Maenclochog (1½)	259	316
Newnham (1)	Newnham	125	1401
Newnham (2)	Daventry (2)	74	397
Newnham (3)	Arlesey (3)	37	125
Newnham (4)	Hook (1)	42	446
Newnham (5)	Teynham (4½)	49	301
Newnham Murren	Wallingford (1)	51	214
Newnham Regis	Rugby (4)	83	114
Newnton, Long	Tetbury (1½)	92	323

from the pa. of Shipton Moyne in Glouces. by a small stream, 1½ E. from Tetbury station; ac. 2,289; soil various, overlying clay and stone. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1870) is E. Eng. The charities are of £61 yearly value, £41 of which is applied to education and apprenticing. Here is a cottage hospital.

Newnton, North, pa. and vil. on the Avon, W. Wilts., 9 S.E. of Devizes; ac. 1,105; soil clay, subsoil chalky. The church of St. James (restored 1862) is E. Eng.; the chancel retains piscina and sedilia.

New Parks, pa., Mid Leics., 1 W.N.W. of Leicester, formerly part of Leicester Forest; ac. 812; soil clayey, resting on clay.

Newport (1), pa., tp., mun. and co. bor., port, mkt. to. (W. & S.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., and forming one of the Monmouth District of parl. bors., S. Mon., 23 S.W. of Monmouth; ac. 4,463. The to. is on the Usk, which is crossed by a bridge of five arches, erected 1800, and widened and improved in 1866. It was anciently called Novus Burgus, or New Town, to distinguish it from Caerleon; it was also styled Castell Newydd, or Newcastle—Robert, Earl of Gloucester, a natural son of Henry I., having erected here a fortress. Several of the towers and some of the walls of the castle still remain on the edge of the river, and have been converted into a brewery. The first charter of incorporation granted by Richard II. was confirmed by Henry VI. A new one was obtained from James I., and under this the bor. continued to be governed until 1835. In 1839 N. was the scene of a formidable Chartist riot. Ten thousand miners, armed with guns, pikes, swords, and clubs, met in front of the "Westgate Hotel," where the magistrates, with a few soldiers and constables were assembled, and fired on the magistrates, wounding the mayor. The troops at length returned the fire, and shot twenty of the miners dead, dispersing the rest. The leaders were sentenced to death; but the penalty was commuted to penal servitude, and a pardon was granted in 1856. The port extends from Redwick Pill (limits of Chepstow) to the river Rhymney, and to the middle of the Severn; its chief trade is the export of coal and the import of timber. The old docks at Pillgwenlly (opened 1842 and enlarged 1858) are about 12 ac.; the Alexandra Docks (1875) 28¾ ac.; the South Dock (1893) 27 ac. The old church of St. Woollos, Stow Hill, is partly Norm., but was largely added to in the 15th cent., and extensively repaired 1855. Between the west end and the tower is a building of considerable size and ancient date, occupying the site of the original British church. St. Luke's is a chapel-of-ease. N. comprises several eccl. pas. with modern churches; there are also several mission churches, besides Roman Catholic and Nonconformist places of worship and a Jewish synagogue. The public buildings include the town hall (rebuilt 1885), the County Council Offices (1886), the Custom House (1858), the Mercantile Marine Office (1882), the Market Hall (rebuilt 1889), the Corn Exchange (1878), forming a memorial of Lord Tredegar, the Free Library (1870), with branch reading-rooms at Pillgwenlly and Marisdee, the Museum and Art Gallery (1895), the Corporation Baths (1890), the Albert Hall, the Victoria Assembly Rooms (1865), the Temperance Hall, and the New Theatre (1889). There are barracks for either cavalry or infantry, besides drill halls for Volunteers. The Newport and County Infirmary, founded as a dispensary 1839, was enlarged 1883 and 1887. The almshouses were founded and endowed 1700, and rebuilt 1845. The Elliot Home for Seamen, Temple Street, was erected 1886; attached to it are an institute and church. There is also a branch institute in Ruperra Street. The Cattle Market covers an area of 5 ac. Cattle fairs are held in April, Whitsun week, August, and November; and a wool fair takes place in June. There are numerous foundries; steam-engine and boiler works; anchor, chain, cable, and nail factories; and shipbuilding establishments, with dry docks. Railway plant, chemical manures, and agricultural implements are also manufactured; and there are glass, pottery, and lime works, flour mills, breweries, and maltings. The water works were acquired by the Corporation in 1888.

NEWPORT BRIDGE.
(Photo. Hudson.)

Newport (2), pa., mun. bor., mkt. to. (S.), and holiday resort, I. of W., 5 S. of Cowes; ac. of pa. 59, of bor. 511. The great superiority of the situation of the to. over Carisbrooke for trade appears to have been the cause of its rising into importance on the decay of the former. Camden speaks of N. as "the principal merceate toune of the whole isle." It stands on a pleasant eminence, watered on the east by the Medina and on the west by a small tributary of this river. From its central position, it is often chosen as the headquarters of travellers wishing to visit all the most attractive parts of the island. It received its first charter from Henry II.; the governing charter was granted by Charles II. It returned two members to Parliament until 1867, when the number was reduced to one; but in 1885 it lost its separate representative. The church of St. Thomas the Apostle (rebuilt) is a highly-enriched specimen of E. Dec. style. The interior is lofty and noble; the roof is open, of timber, with moulded ribs and sculptured corbels. There is a splendid monument by Marochetti to the memory of the Prince

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newnton, North	Woodborough (2½)	79	332
New Parks	Narborough (2)	99	71
Newport (1), pa.	Newport	151	41903
Newport (1), tp.	Newport	151	10387
Newport (1), bor.	Newport	151	54707
Newport (2), pa.	Newport	88	3058
Newport (2), bor.	Newport	88	10216

Consort, who laid the foundation stone (1854) and gave one of the stained windows, another being the gift of Queen Victoria. The vault of Elizabeth, second daughter of Charles I. (discovered 1793), is near the communion-table, and a stone with the initials E. S. marked the spot. She, as well as the king, was detained in Carisbrooke Castle, and died (1650) about a year and a half after her father was beheaded. A beautiful monument of white marble (a recumbent figure), also by Marochetti, was placed here to her memory by Queen Victoria in 1856. There is also a monument to Sir Edward Horsey, Captain of the Isle of Wight (d. 1582). The pulpit is a piece of beautiful workmanship bearing date 1636. St. John the Baptist, on the south-west side of the to., is an eccl. pa. (pa. of Carisbrooke, q.v.) with a church in E. Eng. style (erected 1837). The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, dates from 1791. There are also Congregational, Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Bible Christian, and Unitarian chapels, with meeting-houses for the Society of Friends and Brethren. The town hall, standing on a double set of arches, with the market place beneath, was built (1816) by Nash, the architect of the Regency. The Corn Exchange was opened in 1891. The Isle of Wight Institution, founded 1810, is now a social club. The Newport Free Club, with a library and reading-room, was established in 1837. The Albany (formerly Parkhurst) Barracks, dating from 1799, and partly rebuilt, provide accommodation for nearly 1,000 men, besides women and children; attached to them is an extensive camping-ground. At Parkhurst Prison, formed out of the hospital of the barracks, and assigned as a general penitentiary in 1838, are done the printing and bookbinding for all the gaols in England and Wales. The Drill Hall, the headquarters of the local Volunteers, is also used for dramatic entertainments. Worsley's Almshouses (rebuilt 1879) were founded by Giles Kent, and endowed by Sir Richard Worsley, Bart., and another donor. The Upper Almshouses probably date from about 1650. The general charities yield about £60 a year. In the Free Grammar School (founded 1614, and endowed by Sir R. Worsley and others) Charles I. met the Parliamentary Commissioners on September 18th, 1648. The Blue School, or Girls' Charity School, was established in 1761. In addition to the Saturday market, there is one on alternate Wednesdays. An extensive trade is carried on in timber and malt, and a large quantity of wheat and flour is exported.

Newport (3), pa. and vil. (formerly a mkt. to.), on the Cam, N.W. Essex, 3 s. of Saffron Walden; ac. 1,714; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (partially restored 1858–59) is a Dec. and Perp. building, containing some fine stained glass, including some remains of 14th-cent. work; there are piscinæ in the transepts and chancel, an E. Eng. font, a 14th-cent. lectern with a chained Bible, and a 15th-cent. oak screen; there is a brass to Geoffrey Nightingale (d. 1608) and his wife Katherine, and one to Thomas Brand (d. 1515) and his wife Margery; the muniment chest is interesting. There is a Congregational chapel. The old grammar school is used as a parish room. The charities amount to £60 yearly. The grammar school (founded 1588) has an endowment of £550 yearly; the new buildings were erected in 1878. There was formerly a hospital for lepers, founded in the reign of King John by Richard de Newport; and part of the building is now a farmhouse. The "Crown" House, once occupied by Nell Gwynne, and the "Coach and Horses Hotel" are both interesting. In the centre of the village is the house called "Monk Barns," once the sanatorium of the monks of St. Martin in the Fields, where till 1875 a bell was rung at 4 a.m. during the winter, and is still rung at 8 p.m. from Michaelmas to Lady Day. Shortgrove, a seat, is a red-brick building, in Queen Anne style, standing in a deer-park.

Newport (4), pa. and mkt. to. (S. & M.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., 8 N.E. of Wellington, E. Salop, on the border of Staffs.; ac. 566. The to. appears to have been founded by Henry I., and was afterwards incorporated, the corporation being, however, abolished by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1883. The Perp. church of St. Nicholas has been partly rebuilt. The Roman Catholic church of SS. Peter and Paul was erected 1832, in Late Perp. style. There are also Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The town hall, in Gothic style, dates from 1860. There is a Literary Institution, founded 1883. The Market Cross, in the High Street, is a plain structure of stone, now much decayed. There are foundries for the manufacture of agricultural implements and machinery. The almshouses in Vineyard Road were rebuilt 1836; there are others in Lower Bar. The Free Grammar School, administered by the Haberdashers' Company, London, and by local governors, was founded 1657 by Wm. Adams, a haberdasher; it has four exhibitions tenable at Christ Church, Oxford. The income of the Newport Marsh estate, amounting to about £350, is applied to the general improvement of the town.

Newport (5), eccl. pa., pas. of Barnstaple and Bishop's Tawton (q.v.), forming the south-east part of the mun. bor. of Barnstaple, N. Dev. The church of St. John the Baptist, in Gothic style, was restored and enlarged 1883. N., in the reign of Henry VI., had a mayor and corporation of its own.

Newport (6), pa., seaport, and watering-place, N. Pembs., 6½ E. by N. of Fishguard; ac. 4,494. The to. is situated at the mouth of the Nevern, at the head of Newport Bay; in front of it stretches a fine sandy beach. It consists of narrow irregular streets, largely interspersed with trees, which give it a picturesque appearance. The church of St. Mary (originally Norm. and E. Eng.) has been greatly altered, and is now chiefly in Dec. style. There are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The castle, situated on an eminence at the end of the main street, was originally built in the last decade of the 11th cent. by William, son of Martin of Tours; it is now included in a private dwelling-house; the remains consist of a graceful circular tower, which becomes polygonal in the upper stage, and a vaulted chamber, the roof of which is supported by a central E. Dec.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newport (3)	Newport	40	984
Newport (4)	Newport	145	2675
Newport (5)	Barnstaple	203	1485
Newport (6)	Cardigan (8)	275	1337

pier. Corn, butter, and slates are shipped here: coal, culm, limestone, and timber being imported in exchange. The vessels engaged in the trade find shelter in the small harbour, which has a sandbank at its entrance. There is a fine cromlech on the south-east side of the town. N. received a charter from the Martin family in 1192. It was the centre of the trade of this part of Wales, and early in the 16th cent. had a considerable woollen manufacture, but suddenly declined owing to a destructive pestilence, and has never fully recovered its former prosperity.

Newport (7), ancient bor., pa. of St. Stephens-by-Launceston (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., on the west side of the to. of Launceston, from which it is separated by a small inlet of the river Tamar. N. sent two members to Parliament from 1552 until the Reform Act of 1832. The building named the town hall was built in 1829, and is an octagonal embattled structure; it covers the base and a portion of the shaft of an ancient cross.

Newport (8), or River Bridge, vil., pa. of Eastrington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Howden. A bridge here crosses the Market Weighton Canal—hence the name River Bridge. The Roman Catholics and Wesleyans have places of worship. The manufacture of bricks, drain-pipes, and tiles is largely carried on.

Newport (9), vil. in the south-west part of the parl. bor. of Middlesbrough (q.v.), N.R. Yorks. There are iron works and wire mills.

Newport (10), vil., pa. of and 2 S.S.E. from Berkeley (q.v.), W. Glouc. There is a mission church dedicated to St. Maurice.

Newport (11), ha., pa. of North Curry (q.v.), W. Somerset, 5 S.E. of Taunton. It formerly had the privileges of a corporate town.

Newport (12), q.s. pa. and residential watering-place, pa. of Forgan (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc. N. stretches along the south bank of the Firth of Tay, is picturesquely situated, directly opposite to Dundee, and about 2 S. therefrom, the ground sloping upwards to a considerable height from the Tay. Many villas have been erected here; and as there is constant communication with Dundee by railway since the opening of the Tay Bridge, and also by the steamers, and the climate being salubrious and comparatively mild, it has now become a popular suburb of Dundee. N. possesses five churches and a commodious public hall.

Newport (13), to. on a tributary of the Shannon, pa. of Kilvellane (q.v.), Owney and Arra bar., co. Tip., Ir., 11 E. by N. of Limerick. The town consists of one long street, and has several seats in the neighbourhood. The Protestant church of St. John contains a monument erected in 1825 to Sir Robert Waller, Bart. The Catholic church is a building of unpretending appearance. The court-house is a commodious building (1864), in which petty sessions are held every alternate Friday. There is a school under the National Board of Education. N. confers the title of Baron on the Earl of Roden. Fairs are held on March 25, April 27, Trinity Thursday, July 21, October 23, and December 27, for cows, sheep, pigs, etc.

Newport (14), or Newport Pratt, seaport, mkt. to. (T.), and head of petty sess. div., on the Newport or Beltra, and Clew Bay, pa. of Burrishoole (q.v.), W. co. Mayo, Ir., 11½ N.W. of Castlebar. The river is crossed by a good stone bridge, and there are weirs constructed for the purposes of the salmon fishery, which is pursued here advantageously, and the produce contributes largely to the Dublin and inland markets. The channel is safe, being unobstructed by bars or sandbanks, and vessels of 250 tons burthen can come up to the quay. A pier has recently been erected. The place is also admirably adapted for sea bathing, and it is the resort of many families of distinction during the season. The surrounding scenery is of the most picturesque character. The mountains abound with game, and seal-shooting along the coast is much pursued. The town, though small, has a very neat and clean appearance. The places of worship are a Protestant church (restored 1842), a Catholic church, a church for Presbyterians, and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel; and here are two national schools. There is a small courthouse. The exports consist chiefly of grain and oatmeal; for the latter there is a considerable mill contiguous to the town. The imports, since the removal of the custom house to Westport, have become inconsiderable. Fairs are held the first Monday of every month.

Newport (15), river, an alternative name of the Beltra (q.v.).

Newport (or Northern) Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Salop. It returns one member.

Newport Pagnell, pa. and mkt. to. (W.), head of U. and of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., N.E. Bucks., 4½ S. of Olney; ac. 3,320. It is pleasantly situated on a gentle elevation from the south bank of the Ouse, at its junction with the Lovat, which runs through the town. The adjunctive name is derived from the family name of Paganels, the ancient possessors of the manor, whose castle here continued a place of great strength till the Civil Wars, when it was garrisoned for the Parliament, the force being under the command, from 1643 to 1646, of Sir Samuel Luke, believed to be the original of Butler's Hudibras. The church of St. Paul and St. Peter (restored) is E. Eng. and later; the north porch, with a priest's room above, and the chantry chapel at the east end of the south aisle, are the oldest parts of the structure, dating from the reign of Edward III. The south porch has fine E. Eng. arcading, and there is an arcade in the south aisle; there is a brass in the church, much worn, to a civilian, dating from about 1440. In the churchyard, which is beautiful in situation, is the epitaph of Thomas Abbott Hamilton (d. 1788), from Cowper's pen. The Congregationalists, Baptists, and Wesleyans have chapels; there is also a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. The Cemetery, formerly called "Hill Close," is probably the site of the castle not far from which it is said a Roman road passed from Linford through N. P. to Bedford. There is a Public Room and a building known as the Masonic Hall. Queen Anne's Hospital, founded by John de Somery in the reign of Edward I. and dedicated to St. John

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newport (12), q.s. pa.	Newport, E. & West	446	1864
Newport (12), to.	Newport, E. & West	446	2548
Newport (13)	Birdhill (5¼)	110	774

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Newport (14)	Newport	168	596
Newport Division	.....	.....	53035
Newport Pagnell	Newport Pagnell	56	3788

the Baptist and St. John the Evangelist, was re-founded by Anne of Denmark, Queen of James I., for a master (the vicar), three men, and three women. There are also almshouses, erected 1763 and endowed by John Revis, besides the Congregational chapel almshouses. The charities yield about £100 per annum. Fairs are held in February and June. Tickford Abbey is a handsome mansion on the bank of the Ouse, in a small but well-wooded park, and is said to occupy the site of a priory of Cluniac monks, founded in the reign of William Rufus by Fulk Paganell, and dedicated to St. Mary. Subordinate to the Abbey of St. Martin at Tours, it was seized as an alien priory by Edward III. during the war with France, but subsisted till the dissolution of the monasteries.

Newport Pratt. [NEWPORT (14).]

Newport, St. Woollos. [NEWPORT (1)].

Newquay, small seaport to. and watering-place, pa. of and 8 S.W. from St. Columb Minor (q.v.), N.W. Cornw. The cliff scenery is extremely picturesque and grand, and there is a fine sandy beach, 2 miles long and ½ mile wide. The harbour is an artificial work, with a jetty and piers, one of which was partly washed away by a gale, March 20,

THE HARBOUR, NEWQUAY.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

1889. The chief exports are iron and other ores, china clay, granite, fish, and grain. The church of St. Michael (1857) was enlarged 1873 and 1881. There are Baptist, Free Methodist, Wesleyan, Congregational, and Bible Christian chapels. The Oddfellows and Freemasons have halls; the lecture hall was formerly a Congregational chapel. There is a coastguard and a lifeboat station. The Tower is a seat in Tudor style, with a Catholic chapel attached, to which there is public admission during service.

New Quay, seaport and watering-place on New Quay Bay, pa. of Llanllwchaiarn (q.v.). S.W. Cardigs., 5 S.W. by W. of Aberayron. The vil. is pleasantly situated near New Quay Head, which shelters it from the west gales. It is a picturesque little place, comprising an intricate mass of small streets built on the declivity of a steep hill. Its bracing climate and fine sandy beach make it a favourite health resort. Owing to the mildness of the air, roses, hydrangeas, and other flowers are cultivated on a large scale, and continue to blossom late in the year. The vil. contains the pa. church and several Nonconformist places of worship. The harbour, formed in 1835, admits ships of considerable burden. Timber forms the chief export.

New Quay Bay, inlet of Cardigan Bay, S.W. Cardigs., 4 S.W. of Aberayron, is 1 mile wide at its mouth and extends about ¼ mile inland.

New Quay Head, headland (about 300 ft.), S.W. Cardigs., forming the west termination of New Quay Bay, 4½ W.S.W. of Aberayron. The view is extensive, including on the north side the Lleyn peninsula and Bardsey Island.

Newrath, vil., pa. of Kilculliheen (q.v.), W. co. Waterf., Ir., a little N.E. of Waterford.

Newrath Bridge, vil., pa. of Rathnew (q.v.), E. co. Wick., Ir., about 2 N.W. of Wicklow.

New Rattray. [RATTRAY.]

New River, artificial stream, S.E. Herts. and N.E. Middx., which brings the waters of the Chadwell and Amwell springs, between Hertford and Ware, and others lower down its course, into the reservoirs of the New River Company at Hornsey and Stoke Newington and at New River Head, Clerkenwell, so forming one of the sources of the water-supply of North London. For the greater part of its course of 40 miles it runs parallel with the Lea (q.v.), by which it is augmented at Broxbourne. It was made 1609–13 by Sir Hugh Myddleton, a Welsh goldsmith, at a cost of half a million.

New Ross, tp. and mkt. to. (W. & S.), pa. of St. Mary's, W. co. Wex., and Rosbercon, S.E. co. Kilk., Ir., 15 N.E. of Waterford; ac. 458. The to. is situated on the east bank of the Barrow, about a mile from the junction of that river with the Nore. In the 13th cent. it was a walled to., but when Cromwell took it in 1649 he dismantled the walls. N. R. suffered greatly in the rebellion of 1798, having been attacked by a force of 30,000 insurgents under Bagenal Harvey, who gained some temporary advantage and fired part of the to., but were ultimately driven off with great loss. Edward III. gave a charter to N. R., which returned two members to the Irish Parliament till the Union and one member to the Imperial Parliament till 1885. The Protestant church (1805) is a plain building with a square tower, and there is a chapel-of-ease. There are two handsome Catholic churches, a chapel for Independents and two for Methodists, four convents, schools conducted by the Christian Brothers, and a free school. The tholsel is surmounted by a turret with a clock; and in Priory Street is a commodious court-house, in which quarter and petty sessions are held. N. R. possesses a fever hospital, with a dispensary attached; a lying-in hospital; and Trinity Hospital, founded in the reign of Elizabeth, for widows having been householders, who, besides their apartments, have a money allowance. A brisk trade in provisions and agricultural produce is carried on by means of the Barrow, which is connected with St. George's Channel, and by the Nore with five or six of the most populous and productive counties in the kingdom. Fairs are held monthly.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newquay	New Quay	296	1891
New Quay	Llandyssil (13)	252	1286

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newrath	Waterford	112	259
New Ross	New Ross	102	5847

Newry (1), pa., ... [illegible] ... the Newry river and the Newry Canal, Upper ... [illegible] ... S.E. of Armagh ... [illegible] ... Lordship of Newry, S.W. ... Lower Iveagh, co. of Armagh, ac. of pa. ... [illegible] ... N. is a very ancient ... and per. ... formerly enjoyed ... privileges that ... [illegible] ... in the ... [illegible] ... 1175 Maurice M'Loughlin, King of Ireland, founded an abbey here for ... [illegible] ... and endowed it with ... [illegible] ... which were ... [illegible] ... afterwards confirmed by Hugh de Lacy, Earl of Ulster, in 1237. In 1543 the abbey was converted into a collegiate church, but the church was restored in the reign of Edward VI. and the abbey converted into a private dwelling. N. sent two members to the Irish Parliament till the Union, and now returns one member to the Imperial Parliament. In 1689 the Duke of Berwick, to secure his retreat to Dundalk from the English forces under the command of the Duke of Schomberg, set fire to N. and left it in a very ruinous condition. The general appearance of N. as seen from without is prepossessing: the old town, on the eastern side, situated on the face of a hill with its crown and spire rising above the houses, forms a picturesque object. There are two Protestant churches—St. Patrick's, in the old portion of the town; and St. Mary's, in the modern part. The latter is a handsome Gothic building, having a tower and spire. The Catholic church, in Pointed Gothic style, consists of a clerestoried nave and aisles, with handsome granite pillars supporting lofty Pointed arches. There are three Presbyterian places of worship; one for Congregationalists, one for Wesleyans, and one for Unitarians. The other public buildings are the Town Hall, of red brick and terra-cotta, with grey granite dressings—the interior comprises a public hall or assembly-room, and offices for the Town Commissioners; two courthouses, a bridewell, the custom-house, the fever hospital, and the infantry barracks. The exports are principally oats, wheat, butter, linen-cloth, flax, oatmeal, eggs, and cattle; the imports are timber, coal, slates, cotton, wine, groceries, and various kinds of manufactures. The granite from the quarries of the neighbourhood is capable of receiving a very high polish, and is made into monuments, columns, tombstones, and chimney-pieces. Among other trades are rope- and sail-making, tanning, and a manufactory for spades, shovels, and other implements of husbandry. Monthly fairs are held. N. gives the title of Viscount to the Earl of Kilmorey.

Newry (2), river, S.W. co. Down, Ir. It rises on the south border of the Lordship of Newry, and flows to the north border, at this point forming the boundary between this bar. and that of Upper Iveagh. The streams here make a bend, and, flowing nearly due south, fall into the Newry Canal at Newry.

Newry Canal Navigation, cos. Down and Armagh, Ir. The canal begins 4 S.S.E. of Newry, in the vicinity of Fathom, and runs past Newry and Portadown to the river Bann, 1¼ S.E. of Portadown. ... [illegible] ... being continued from this point ... [illegible] ... by means of the river. The total length of the navigation is about 30 miles. It was constructed 1729–42, for the exportation of coal from ... [illegible] ... and the importation of ... [illegible] ...

Newry Lordship of, bar., S.W. co. Down, Ulster, ac. [illegible], it is separated from cos. Louth and Armagh by the Newry Canal and Upper Iveagh, and has Newry in the north-east and south. ... [illegible] ... Newry.

Newsam Green, vill., pa. of Whitkirk (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 E. of Leeds.

Newsell, hmlt., pa. of Barkway (q.v.), N. Herts, 3½ S.E. of Royston. N. Park is a seat.

Newsham (1), tp., pa., ch., pa. of and 1½ w. from Easby (q.v.), S.E. Durham; ac. 1,572.

Newsham (2), tp. and vill., pas. of Kirkby Ravensworth and Barningham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks, 7 S.W. of Richmond; ac. 3,467.

Newsham (3), ha., pa. of Appleton-le-Street (q.v.), N.R. Yorks, 2 S.W. of Malton.

Newsham (4), small vill., pa. of Winston (q.v.), S. Durham, 4 S.E. of Barnard Castle. There is a chapel of ease (built 1876–77) in E. Eng. style. N. Hall is a seat.

Newsham (5), hmlt., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), Lancashire, 2 N. of Preston.

Newsham and South Blythe, tp. on the German Ocean, in the parish of Earsdon (q.v.), S. Northumb., 9 S. and within the parl. bor. of Morpeth; ac. 1,2 ... There are large ... bles.

Newsham-with-Breckenbrough, tp. and small ... in the Wiske, pa. of Kirby Wiske (q.v.), N. Yorks., 4 S.W. of Thirsk; ac. 1,914. Dr. George Hickes, 1642–1715, Dean of Worcester and Nonjuring Bishop, was a native. There are no remains of Freckenbrough Castle. Breckenbrough Hall is a seat.

Newsholme (1), tp., pa. of and 2 s. from Gisburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 751.

Newsholme (2), ha., pa. of and 2½ s. from Keighley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Newsholme (3), ha., pa. of Wressel (q.v.), E. Yorks., 1½ N.W. of Howden.

Newshot Island, islet in the Clyde, pa. Inchinnan (q.v.), N. Renfrew, Sc., 2 N.W. of Glasgow. The islet is low and swampy. It is 1 mile in length and ¼ mile broad.

Newsome (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Almondbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., and mun. and parl. bor. of Huddersfield, from which it is 1½ s. The church of St. John the Evangelist was erected 1872, in Gothic style. The manufacture of woollen goods is carried on here.

Newsome (2), ha., pa. of and 4½ N. from Bridlington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.

Newstead (1), or Newstead Priory, pa. and ... in a picturesque situation south-west of Sherwood Forest, W. Notts., 6 S. of Mansfield; ac. 3,209; ... sandy, resting on limestone. The chief feature ...

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. in (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Pop.	Lat.
Newry (1), pa.	Newry	76	20169
Newry (1), tp.	Newry	76	12961
Newry (1), bor.	Newry	76	13591
Newry, Lordship of	.....	.....	12537
Newsham (1)	Lancaster (2)	235	79
Newsham (2)	Richmond (7)	237	211

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. in (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Pop.	Lat.
Newsham and S. B.	Blyth (4)	288	3
Newsham-with-B.	Thirsk (4)	210
Newsholme (1)	Newsholme	230
Newsome (1)	Berry Brow (1)	185	1
Newstead (1)	Newstead	134	1

the pa. is the abbey, which has acquired its greatest interest from having been the residence of Byron. Founded in 1170 by Henry II. in expiation of the murder of Thomas à Becket, as a priory of black canons, it was granted by Henry VIII. to Sir John Byron, then Lieutenant of Sherwood Forest, and remained in possession of that family until 1818, when it was sold by the last Lord Byron to the late Colonel Wildman, who restored and enlarged it. It has since been further restored and embellished. The chapter-house, a structure of great beauty on the east side of the cloisters, is now used as a chapel for the household and tenantry; the ancient sedilia remain, and there are richly-stained windows. The entrance-hall and servants' hall, formerly the guesten chamber, are groined. The beautiful west front, all that now remains of the old abbey church, is of the latest E. Eng. The abbot's apartments are carefully kept in the same state as when occupied by Byron. The apartments named after Edward III., Henry VII., and Charles II., richly hung with tapestry, were used by those monarchs when visiting the abbey. In the grand saloon, a noble room with oak roof, richly decorated and furnished, is treasured Philips's portrait of Byron. The grand dining-hall was the ancient refectory. Some relics of David Livingstone are also preserved in the abbey. The grounds, which extend over 60 acres, are undulating and beautifully wooded, and include two ornamental sheets of water and a monument to Byron's dog Boatswain. In the mortuary chapel divine service is conducted about once a month. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. A colliery, opened in 1876, gives employment to about 1,000 men.

NEWSTEAD ABBEY.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

Newstead (2), pa. on the Ancholme, N. Lincs., 23 N. of Lincoln; ac. 465. Here was once a Gilbertine priory, founded by Henry II. before 1173, of which the chapter-house crypt still exists.

Newstead (3), tp., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N. Northumb., 5½ S.E. of Belford; ac. 2,054.

Newstead (4), ha., pa. of Wilton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 N.W. of Masham.

Newstead (5), vil. on the Tweed, pa. of and 1 E. from Melrose (q.v.), N.W. Roxbs., Sc.

Newstead Priory. [NEWSTEAD (1).]

New Street, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Chart, Great (q.v.), S. Kent.

Newthorpe (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Sherburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8 S.E. of Leeds; ac. 746.

Newthorpe (2), vil. with railway station, pa. of Greasley (q.v.), W. Notts., 7 N.W. of Nottingham. The Baptists, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are several collieries.

Newtimber, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 7 N.W. of Brighton; ac. 1,626; soil clay and chalk, subsoil chalky. The church of St. John the Evangelist (partly restored 1875) is an E. Eng. building of rubble, containing a 16th-cent. oak pulpit. N. Place is a fine 17th-cent. mansion, surrounded by a moat and standing in a park of 40 ac.

Newton (1), or Newton-near-Wisbech, pa. and picturesque vil. in the Isle of Ely, N. Cambs., on the Norf. border; ac. 3,056; soil loam, resting on clay and silt. The Dec. and Perp. church of St. James has several ancient sepulchral slabs and an early font. There is a Free Methodist chapel.

Newton (2), or Newton-near-Cambridge, pa., S. Cambs., 6 S. of Cambridge; ac. 963; soil chalky, resting on chalk. Of the church of St. Margaret (restored 1851) the transept arches are E. Eng. and those of the aisle Dec.; the roofs of both nave and transepts are Perp., while the tower-arch is a very fine example of Dec. work, with deep continuous mouldings; the font dates from about 1200, and consists of a square basin chamfered upwards to an octagon and supported on five shafts.

Newton (3), or Newton-in-the-Willows, pa. and vil., N. Northants, 3½ N. of Kettering; ac. 1,153; soil clay, red sandstone, and limestone, overlying

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newstead (2)	Brigg (1)	162	40
Newstead (3)	Newham (2)	318	106
Newthorpe (1)	Micklefield (2)	185	71
Newtimber	The Dyke (2)	55	203

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton (1)	Ferry (2)	99	436
Newton (2)	Harston (1)	53	196
Newton (3)	Kettering (3½)	72	68

clay. The church of St. Faith (restored 1858, when a chancel was added) was originally the family chapel of the Treshams, whose residence stood in what is now the adjoining field. It contains a brass bearing a restored inscription to John Mulsho and his wife (1400); another to Margaret, wife of Maurice Tresham (d. 1604); and the alabaster tomb of Richard Tresham and his wife (1433).

Newton (4), pa. and vil., S. Lincs., 8 S.W. of Sleaford; ac. 1,220; soil loam, overlying oolite and blue lias. The church of St. Botolph (restored 1865–66) is Norm., E. Eng., and later, the nave arcades being Dec., and the upper stage of the tower Perp.; in the south chantry chapel is a squint and a piscina; in the north chantry chapel are two narrow squints, and two slabs with crosses in the north aisle. There are some small charities. N. has a chalybeate spring. N. House is a seat.

Newton (5), or Newton, North, pa., S.E. Pembs., 3 W. by S. of Narberth; ac. 659. For ecclesiastical purposes the pa. is attached to Slebech (q.v.).

Newton (6), or Newton-upon-Rawcliffe, eccl. pa. and tp., pas. of Levisham and Pickering (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 N. of Pickering; ac. 2,169. The church of St. John (founded 1689) was rebuilt 1870, in Gothic style. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels.

Newton (7), or Newton-by-Middlewich, tp. in pa. and forming a suburb of Middlewich (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 1,319. The Primitive Methodists and Free Methodists have chapels. The Trent and Mersey Canal passes through the tp., and on its banks are chemical and salt works. N. Hall and the Manor House are seats.

Newton (8), or Newton Moor, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Mottram in Longden Dale (q.v.), N.E. Chesh., within the bor. of Hyde; ac. 870. The church of St. Stephen (built 1889) is in E. Eng. style, and the Roman Catholics, Free Methodists, Primitive Methodists, and New Connexion Methodists have chapels.

Newton (9), tp. and small vil. on the Hodder, pa. of Slaidburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 N.N.W. of Clitheroe; ac. 5,869. The Congregationalists have a chapel, and there is an endowed school.

Newton (10), eccl. pa. and tp. on the Eskley, pa. of Clodock (q.v.), S.W. Herefords., 14 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 1,754. The church of St. John (restored 1863) was built in 1842. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Newton (11), tp., pa. of Croft (q.v.), Mid Herefords., 4 S. of Leominster; ac. 515.

Newton (12), tp. on the Bollin, pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 4 N.W. of Macclesfield; ac. 267.

Newton (13), tp., pa. of Bywell St. Peter (q.v.), S. Northumb., 7 E.N.E. of Hexham; ac. 791.

Newton (14), tp., pa. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 1,585.

Newton (15), vil., pa. of Clifton-on-Dunsmore (q.v.), E. Warws., 2 N.E. of Rugby. At the entrance to the vil., where three roads meet, formerly stood a cross, dedicated to St. Thomas the Apostle, and it is said pilgrimages were made to it. Edward Cave (1691–1754), the projector and publisher of the Gentleman's Magazine, was born here. [NEWTON AND BIGGIN.]

Newton (16), ha., pa. of Burneston (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 E.S.E. of Bedale. N. House, standing in a park, is a seat. [EXELBY, LEEMING, AND NEWTON.]

Newton (17), tp., pa. of Stokesay (q.v.), S. Salop, 7½ N.W. of Ludlow. It has a market hall, and a market is held here weekly, cattle sales every fortnight, and a cattle fair monthly.

Newton (18), ha., pa. of Dunton (q.v.), N. Beds., 2½ E. of Biggleswade.

Newton (19), vil., pa. of Holme Cultram (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5 W. by S. of Abbey Town.

Newton (20), ha., pa. of Gosforth (q.v.), S.W. Cumb., 5½ N.W. of Ravenglass.

Newton (21), ha., pa. of Whitbeck (q.v.), W. Cumb., 3 S. of Bootle.

Newton (22), vil., pa. of Blackwell (q.v.), E. Derbys., 3½ N.E. of Alfreton.

Newton (23), vil., pa. of Handley (q.v.), N.E. Dors., 6½ N.E. of Cranborne.

Newton (24), ha., pa. of Ledsham (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5½ N. of Pontefract.

Newton (25), ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Sprotbrough (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Newton (26), ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Wakefield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Newton (27), pl., pa. of and 1½ S. from Poulton-le-Fylde (q.v.), W. Lancs. [HARDHORN-WITH-NEWTON.]

Newton (28), ha., pas. of Bingham and Shelford (q.v.), S.E. Notts., 2 N.W. of Bingham. There is a mission-hall.

Newton (29), vil. on Milford Haven, pa. of Llanstadwell (q.v.), Pembs., 2 S.E. of Milford.

Newton (30), ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Bromyard (q.v.), N.E. Herefords.

Newton (31), ha., pa. of Hope-under-Dinmore (q.v.), N. Herefords., 4 S.W. of Leominster.

Newton (32), ha., pa. of Whittington (q.v.), N. Lancs., 4 N. of Hornby.

Newton (33), vil., pa. of Newton Nottage (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 4½ S.W. of Bridgend.

Newton (34), vil., pa. of Oystermouth (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 5½ S.W. of Swansea.

Newton (35), vil., pa. of Manorbier (q.v.), S. Pembs., 5½ N.W. of Tenby.

Newton (36), ha., pa. of and about ½ S.E. from Blithfield (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Newton (37), ha., pa. of and 3½ S. by W. from Leintwardine (q.v.), N. Herefords. [WALFORD, LETTON, AND NEWTON.]

Newton (38). [NEWTON-NEAR-SUDBURY.]

Newton (39). [STURMINSTER NEWTON.]

Newton (40). [NEWTON-IN-CLEVELAND.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton (4)	Billingborough (3)	76	187
Newton (5)	Narberth (3)	252	24
Newton (6), eccl. pa.	Levisham (½)	226	512
Newton (6), tp.	Levisham (½)	226	266
Newton (7)	Middlewich	166	2369
Newton (8), eccl. pa.	Newton (1)	196	3898
Newton (8), tp.	Newton (1)	196	7333
Newton (9)	Clitheroe (7)	221	315
Newton (10)	Vowchurch (3)	160	223
Newton (11)	Ford Bridge (1)	153	50
Newton (12)	Wilmslow (1½)	177	55
Newton (13)	Stocksfield (3)	281	171
Newton (14)	Newton Heath	187	36834

Newton (41), pa. and vil., N.E. Edins., Sc.; ac. 2,032. Coal is obtained abundantly within the pa., and a large number of the inhabitants are employed in the mines. Millerhill, the principal vil., has a station on the North British Railway.

Newton (42), vil., pa. of Cambuslang (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., about 5½ S.E. of Glasgow.

Newton (43), vil., pa. of Pencaitland (q.v.), W. Haddingt., Sc., 3 S.E. of Tranent. A Reading Room was erected in 1880. The inhabitants are mostly colliers.

Newton (44), vil., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Renfrew (q.v.), E. Renfs., Sc.

Newton (45), vil., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Wick (q.v.), E. Caithn., Sc.

Newton (46), ha. on Loch Fyne, pa. of Strachur and Stralachlan (q.v.), E. Args., Sc., 4 S.W. of Strachur.

Newton Abbot, mkt. to. and head of U., pas. of Wolborough and Highweek, S.E. Dev., 6 N.W. of Torquay. The to. is situated amid picturesque scenery at the head of the navigable portion of the Teign. The Perp. church of St. Mary, Wolborough, on an elevated position south of N. A., has in the chancel a fine altar-tomb, with full-sized effigies of Sir Richard Reynell, of Forde (d. 1633), and Lucy (Brandon) his wife (d. 1652); in the south transept are a recessed tomb and a squint; the chancel retains an aumbry. The fine rood-screen has been restored and replaced in its original position, and the panel paintings have been renewed; screens of similar character enclose the transept. The brass eagle lectern was dug up at Bovey Heathfield, where it had been buried during the wars of the Commonwealth; some of the windows retain portions of ancient glass, while the font is of Norm. date. St. Leonard's chapel-of-ease was erected 1834-36, in Perp. style. St. Paul's is in E. Eng. style. The tower of the destroyed chapel of St. Leonard, a work of the Dec. period, now stands altogether detached at the east end of Wolborough Street. The church of All Saints, Highweek, situated on an eminence north-west of the to., is a fine Perp. structure containing memorials of the Yardes, of Bradley, from 1557. It was renovated 1892, when the chancel and south aisle were lengthened. St. Mary's chapel-of-ease, also Perp., contains a holy-water stoup. The oldest Dissenting place of worship in the to. is the Baptist chapel in East Street, dating from 1679. There are also Roman Catholic, Congregational, Wesleyan, Free Methodist, Bible Christian, and Brethren chapels. An octagonal pedestal of granite in Wolborough Street, now surmounted by a lamp, once supported the Market Cross, from which the declaration of the Prince of Orange to the people of England was first read after his landing at Torbay. The town hall includes a large room for concerts, etc. The Public Rooms were built 1857 as a Unitarian chapel, and were afterwards known as the Temperance Hall. Devon Lodge, in the Gothic style, is the headquarters of the Freemasons. Forming part of the Market and Corn Exchange (erected 1871) is the Alexandra Hall; opposite are the Vegetable and Fish Markets. The industrial works of the to. comprise a large tannery and a flour mill, an iron foundry, breweries, malt-houses and saw-mills; here also are the locomotive and carriage building workshops of the Great Western Railway Company. Three large fairs are held—at midsummer, in September, and in November. N. A. is rich in charities, which include almshouses and widows' houses, a dispensary, and a cottage hospital. Adjoining Courtenay Park is Forde Park. St. Augustine's Priory, Abbotsleigh, was built 1861 for a community of nuns from Spettisbury, Dorset, originally settled at Louvain. Close to the to. are several seats—Forde House, of Jacobean date, where Charles I. was twice entertained and the Prince of Orange lodged; Bradley House, burnt early in the 15th cent.; Sandford Orleigh, Abbotsbury, and White Hill.

Newton and Biggin, tp., pa. of Clifton-upon-Dunsmoor (q.v.), W. Warws., about 3 E. of Rugby; ac. 1,014. [NEWTON (15).]

Newton and Edgebold, tp., pa. of and 2½ W. from Brace Meole (q.v.), Mid Salop.

Newton and West Haven, north-east suburb of Carnoustie (q.v.), pa. of Panbride, S.E. Forfs., Sc.

Newton Arlosh, or Long Newton, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Holme Cultram (q.v.), N.W. Cumb., 3 S. of Kirkbride. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1843), after having lain in ruins for a long period, was built in 1309, and is a curious example of the fortified Border churches; the walls of the tower are 5 ft. thick, and the base is a vaulted chamber, entered from the nave; in the south-east angle a newel staircase leads to the two floors above; the only entrance to the church is a doorway 2 ft. 7 in. wide, and none of the windows are less than 7 ft. from the ground.

Newton Bank. [BANK NEWTON.]

Newton Bewley, tp. and small vil., pa. of Billingham (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 5 N.E. of Stockton; ac. 1,564.

Newton Blossomville, pa. and small vil. on the Ouse, N. Bucks., 9 W. of Bedford; ac. 1,050; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1862) is Dec. and Perp.; it contains a piscina, as well as brasses to Jane, daughter of John Bodington Clerke (1663) and to Bridget Bodington (1673). There are some small charities.

Newton Bromshold, pa. and vil. on the Beds. border, E. Northants, 8½ E. of Wellingborough; ac. 806; soil and subsoil clay. The Dec. and Perp. church of St. Peter has six sedilia in the south wall of the chancel, one of them inclosing a piscina; there are brasses to William Hewet, rector (d. 1426), and to Roger Hewet, chaplain (d. 1487). A window in the north aisle retains some ancient glass, displaying the head of a mitred ecclesiastic, believed to be Archbishop Chicheley.

Newton Burgoland, ha., pa. of Swepstone (q.v.), N. Leics., 6 S. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
ton (41), pa.	Millerhill	391	1180
ton (42)	Newton	395	868
ton and Biggin	Lilbourne (2)	86	220
ton & W. Haven	Carnoustie (1)	468	909
Newton Arlosh	Kirkbride (2½)	312	421
Newton Bewley	Billingham (2½)	239	126
Newton Blossomville	Olney (2½)	60	191
Newton Bromshold	Higham Ferrers (3)	82	146

Newton Bushell, a part of Newton Abbot [illegible]

Newton by Castle Acre, pa. [illegible] Mid Norf., [illegible] The church of All Saints [illegible] Edward the [illegible]

Newton-by-Chester, pa. [illegible] Cheshire [illegible] The church of St. Oswald [illegible] 1844.

Newton-by-Daresbury, [illegible] pa. of Runcorn, [illegible] W. Chesh., [illegible] of Warrington and [illegible] Ordnance [illegible]

Newton-by-Frodsham, [illegible] pa. of Frodsham, [illegible] NW. Chesh., [illegible] Warrington and [illegible] Ordnance [illegible]

Newton-by-Malpas, or Newton-juxta-Malpas, [illegible] Malpas, [illegible] W. Chesh. [illegible]

Newton-by-Middlewich. [NEWTON, T.]

Newton-by-Tattenhall, [illegible] pa. of Tattenhall, [illegible] W. Chesh., [illegible] Tattenhall and [illegible] Birmingham.

Newton-by-the-Sea, [illegible] pa. of Embleton, [illegible] Alnwick and [illegible] Alnwick, and [illegible] Hexham and that [illegible] Berwick-upon-Tweed, [illegible]

Newton-by-Toft. [TOFT-NEXT-NEWTON.]

Newton Cap, [illegible] Bishop Auckland, [illegible] W. Durh., [illegible] Auckland and [illegible] Darlington Rural [illegible] Primitive Methodists. [illegible] contains the barracks of the Northumberland and Durham Light Infantry [illegible]

Newton Castle. [BLAIRGOWRIE.]

Newton, Cold. [COLD NEWTON.]

Newton Colliery, mining vil., pa. of Cambuslang, [illegible] N. Lanark., 5½ m. S.E. of Glasgow. [illegible] are extensive steel and nail works.

Newton-cum-Larton, for[illegible] a separate tr., pa. of West Kirby, [illegible] W. Cheshire, 6½ m. W. of Birkenhead.

Newton Dale, [illegible] valley, 4 m. [illegible] (q.v.), N.R. Yorks. It is shut in on [illegible] by wooded hills, 700 ft. high, broken here [illegible] by rocky scars, one of which, known as [illegible] Scar, was formerly celebrated for a [illegible] of lambs.

Newton Dorman, one of the 23 parl. divs. of [illegible] the north-west of the co., and [illegible]

Newton Dorman. [LOWICK.]

Newton, East, [illegible] pa. of Allerough (q.v.), E.R. Yorks, [illegible] N.E. of Howden; ac. 907 and fore-shore 9.

Newton, East, and Layntborp, [illegible] pas. of Stonegrave and [illegible] N.R. Yorks, 4 m. S.E. of Helmsley [illegible]

Newton Ferrers, pa. and vil., pleasantly situated [illegible] on an [illegible] on a navigable creek which [illegible] the Yealm, 5 m. S.W. of Plymouth; [illegible] mostly rising on rocks. The church (St. Peter, Cross mostly Perp.) has a [illegible] with carved waggon roof, and monuments to the Ferrers and Tonge families. Attached to [illegible] a chapel, built in 1886, in Gothic style, with [illegible] decorations and fittings. Parton's Well, a [illegible] seat, is beautifully situated.

Newton Flotman, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 7 m. of Norwich, [illegible] sand and clay, subsoil [illegible] the church of St. Mary the Virgin (E. Eng. and [illegible] cross to members of the Blomefylde family, ringing in late from 1490 to [illegible]

Newton Grange, [illegible] pa. of and 5 m. from Ashbourne, [illegible] W. Derbys., on the border of Staffordshire.

Newton Grange, [illegible] vil., pa. of Newbattle (q.v.), N.E. [illegible] of Dalkeith. The name is [illegible] extra-distinction to Preston Grange, both these places having been granted [illegible] monks of Newbattle. The [illegible] and a school. In or [illegible] coal, fireclay, paper mills, collieries, and brick [illegible] the site of an edifice erected [illegible] taken down in 1870 [illegible] an ecclesiastic, said to represent [illegible] who introduced mining [illegible]

Newton Grange, West, [illegible] pa. of Oswaldkirk, [illegible] N.R. Yorks, [illegible] S. of Helmsley. Roger [illegible] (1656–1744), antiquarian and topographer, was [illegible] he was the principal compiler of the "Monasticon Anglicanum."

Newton Green, vil., pa. of Newton-near-Sudbury (q.v.), [illegible] of Sudbury.

Newton Hall, [illegible] pa., tp., and vil. on the road from [illegible] to Newcastle, pa. of Bywell St. Peter, [illegible] Northumb., 5 m. N.E. of Hexham; ac. 901. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1874) is in E. Eng. style. New Hall is a seat.

Newton Hall, [illegible] pa. of Wintringham (q.v.), E.R. Yorks, 7 m. E. of Malton.

Newton Hall, [illegible] estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Yeaveley (q.v.), S. Haddings., Sc., about 2 m. S.W. of Gifford.

Place	Nearest Railway Station, and dist. in miles (2) in furlongs	Population.
Newton-by-Castle Acre	Swaffham (4)	111
Newton-by-Chester	Chester (1½)	179
Newton-by-Daresbury	Daresbury (2)	183
Newton-by-Frodsham	Frodsham (2½)	182
Newton-by-Malpas	Malpas (1¼)	177
Newton-by-Tattenhall	Tattenhall (1)	177
Newton-by-the-Sea	Christon Bank (2½)	314
Newton Cap	Bishop Auckland 1	244
Newton, Colliery	Newton	395
Newton Division		63[illegible]
Newton, East	Barton Constable (6)	205
Newton, East, and L.	Nunnington (4)	216
Newton Ferrers	Plymouth (7)	229
Newton Flotman	Flordon (1½)	107
Newton Grange (1	Ashbourne (5)	152
Newton Grange (2	Dalhousie (1)	388
Newton Hall, Leeds pa	Corbridge (3)	280
Newton Hall, tp.	Corbridge (3)	286

Newton Harcourt, chap. and tp. on the Union Canal, pa. of Wistow (q.v.), Mid Leics., 6¾ S.S.E. of Leicester; ac. 1,131. The Gothic church of St. Luke, of which the communion-plate dates from the time of Queen Elizabeth, was partly rebuilt 1834, and further renovated 1875.

Newton Heath, to., pa. and parl. bor. of and 1½ E. from Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. The Rochdale Canal passes through the town, and the Medlock flows by on the south. All Saints' and St. Anne's are eccl. pas., with churches respectively in Norm. and E. Eng. styles. St. Mark's and St. Augustine's are eccl. pas. of more recent formation. There are Wesleyan, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Philips Park Cemetery comprises about 45 ac. The Barnes House of Recovery, a branch of the Manchester Royal Infirmary, was built 1872 for fever and small-pox cases, and has accommodation for 220 patients. There are cotton mills, chemical and dye and bleach works. Culcheth Hall has been almost wholly modernised, all that remains of the ancient building being a wainscotted room.

Newton, Higher, or Newton-in-Cartmel, vil., pa. of Cartmel (q.v.), N. Lancs., 4 N. of Grange-over-Sands.

Newtonhill, pl., pa. of Fetteresso (q.v.), N.E. Kincs., Sc., 5½ N.N.E. of Stonehaven. Here is an Episcopalian school.

Newton-in-Cartmel. [NEWTON, HIGHER.]

Newton-in-Cleveland, or Newton, pa. and small vil. at the foot of an eminence, N.R. Yorks., 4 S.W. of Guisborough; ac. 1,172; soil clay, overlying clay and stone. The church of St. Oswald is Norm. Newton Hall is a seat.

Newton-in-Makerfield (otherwise Newton-le-Willows), pa. and to., S. Lancs., 5 E. of St. Helens; ac. 3,103; soil various, resting on red sandstone. The to. returned two members to Parliament from the first year of Queen Elizabeth (1558) to the passing of the Reform Act in 1832. The church of Emmanuel (1841) is in E. Eng. style. St. Peter's is an eccl. pa. with a church, rebuilt 1834 in E. Eng. style, and enlarged 1893. The Catholic church of St. Mary and St. John (1864) has a spire 120 ft. in height. The Congregational church is in E. Dec. style; in the burial-ground attached to it is a magnificent obelisk of polished granite in memory of Richard Evans, of Haydock (d. 1864), erected by the workmen in his employ. There is also a Wesleyan chapel. The town hall is in High Street, and is used by a Working Men's Club, as well as for administrative purposes. The Dean School Trust, value about £80 yearly, is awarded to four scholars upon examination open to all the elementary schools. A foundry gives employment to about 750 hands, and printing and stationery works employ about 500; and there are large paper mills, glass works, and collieries. The Liverpool Farm Reformatory School (established 1859) is one of the schools managed by the Liverpool Juvenile Reformatory Association; in connection with it are 33 ac. of land cultivated as a farm and mkt. garden. Fairs are held in May and August. The racecourse measures 80 ac.

Newton-in-Mottram, eccl. pa., formed from the pa. of Mottram in Longden Dale (q.v.), N.E. Chesh., within the bor. of Hyde. The church of St. Mary (built 1839) is in Gothic style.

Newton-juxta-Malpas. [NEWTON-BY-MALPAS.]

Newton Kyme, pa. and vil. on the Wharfe, W.R. Yorks., 1½ W.N.W. of Tadcaster; ac. 1,371; soil land and loam, with gravel, overlying gravel and limestone. The ancient church of St. Andrew contains numerous monuments of the Fairfax family. Newton Hall, adjoining the church, and for long the residence of a branch of the Fairfaxes, is a handsome building of stone with a Corinthian colonnade, situated at one end of a fine avenue of limes. In the gardens are remains of an ancient hall or castle of the Barons de Kyme, of Kyme, in Kesteven, Lincs. Many Roman coins and also an alabaster urn have been found here.

Newton-le-Willows (1), tp. and vil., pas. of Patrick Brompton and Finghall (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3½ W.N.W. of Bedale; ac. 1,858. The vil. is wholly in Patrick Brompton pa. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and endowed schools.

Newton-le-Willows (2). [NEWTON-IN-MAKERFIELD.]

Newton-le-Wold. [WOLD, NEWTON.]

Newton, Long, pa., tp., and vil., S.E. Dur., 4 S.W. of Stockton-on-Tees, on the road to Darlington; ac. of pa. 6,829, of tp. 4,312; soil various. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1857) is in E. Eng. style; adjoining the chancel is a mausoleum for the Vane family, with monuments (one by R. Westmacott and another by Monti) from an older church on the same site. The churchyard contains two fine sycamore-trees. The Wilson Church Institute (built 1887) is a red-brick building with stone dressings. The Vane family formerly had a seat here. Of the manor house only the entrance gate and garden walls remain.

Newton Longville, pa. and vil., N.W. Bucks., 10 E. of Buckingham; ac. 1,645; soil some light, and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Faith (restored 1881-91) is an ancient stone edifice; the piers and arches of the nave and the tower arch are E. Eng., the chancel, the clerestory, and aisles being Perp.; there are piscinæ and credence shelves in the aisles and chancel, one in the latter bearing the arms of William of Wykeham; the font has a fine carved oak cover. There are Primitive Methodist and Baptist chapels. The pa. has a small charity. A Cluniac priory was founded here in the reign of Henry I., and suppressed in 1415. William Grocyn (d. 1519) was rector here 1479–1504.

Newton, Lower, vil., pa. of Cartmel (q.v.), N. Lancs., 11 E.N.E. of Ulverston.

Newton Mearns. [MEARNS.]

Newton Moor. [NEWTON (8).]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton Harcourt	Glen (2¼)	92	167
Newton-in-C'land	Pinchingthorpe (1½)	246	99
Newton-in-Makerfld.	Newton-le-Willows	188	12861
Newton-in-Mottram	Hyde (2) [(½)	181	2645
Newton Kyme	Newton Kyme	191	173
Newton-le-Willows	Jervaulx (½)	229	478
Newton, Long, pa.	Yarm (3)	231	304
Newton, Long, tp.	Yarm (3)	231	287
Newton Longville	Bletchley (2½)	47	415

Newtonmore, vil., pa. of Kingussie and Insh, E. Invs., Sc., 3 W.S.W. of Kingussie.

Newton Morrell, tp., pa. of Gilling-near-Richmond (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 7 N.E. of Richmond; ac. 634.

Newton Mulgrave, tp., pa. of Lythe (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 9 N.W. of Whitby; ac. 2,345.

Newton-near-Cambridge. [NEWTON (2).]

Newton-near-Sudbury, pa. and scattered vil. pleasantly situated, surrounding a green of about 45 ac., S. Suff., 3¼ E. of Sudbury; ac. 2,159; soil and subsoil, loam. The church of All Saints, principally Dec., has on the north side of the nave a beautiful Saxon arch, with double zigzag moulding, formerly a doorway, but now a window to the baptistery; there is an ancient monument of a lady, shown by the coats-of-arms to have been a Corbonel married to a Boteler, or Butler, probably the wife of Butler, Earl of Wiltshire, temp. Edward IV., and believed to have been the builder of the chancel; a very ancient monument of a lady, dug up under the floor of the nave, and supposed to represent the foundress of the nave, has been placed on a slab under one of the arches. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Newton-near-Wisbech. [NEWTON (1).]

Newton Netherootе, ha., pa. of Swepstone (q.v.), N. Leics., 4½ S.E. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch.

Newton, North (1), eccl. pa., pa. of North Petherton (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 4½ S.W. of Bridgwater. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt 1884, in E. Eng. style, except the tower (supposed to be Saxon), which was restored, the fine carved oak screen and pulpit, dated 1637, being also renovated. The vestry door is beautifully carved, two of the panels with representations of the parable of the Ten Virgins; the communion plate is of silver, dated 1637. The Free Methodists have a chapel. Maunsel House is an ancient mansion in pleasant grounds.

Newton, North (2). [NEWTON (5).]

Newton Nottage, pa. on the Bristol Channel, S. Glamorgs., 4¾ W. by S. of Bridgend; ac. 3,391. The sea has here encroached considerably on the land, and tracts which were formerly adapted to grazing are now buried under the sand. The church of St. John (partly restored 1885) is an interesting Gothic edifice, containing a stone pulpit with carving depicting the Scourging of the Saviour, access to which is gained by a passage in the wall; the west doorway (now walled up) is also a noteworthy feature; in the graveyard is a sculptured stone. The pa. contains Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. A well in the south vicinity of the church ebbs when the tide is flowing, and vice versâ. N. Downs (now enclosed) command wide views over the Bristol Channel; they were crossed by a Roman road, vestiges of which remain. In N. Court, a curious old Elizabethan house, Queen Anne Boleyn is said to have been entertained. Porthcawl (q.v.) is in the pa.

Newton of Perintosh. [FERINTOSH, NEWTON OF.]

Newton of Pitcairns, vil., pa. of Dunning (q.v.). S.E. Perths., Sc., 4½ E. by N. of Auchterarder. The vil. adjoins that of Dunning on the south.

Newton, Old, pa. and vil., Mid Suff., 3 N. of Stowmarket; ac. 2,348; soil and subsoil heavy clay. The church of St. Mary is Perp. The village stocks are still standing on the green hard by. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Dagworth Hall is now a farmhouse.

Newton-on-the-Moor, tp. and vil., pa. of Shilbottle (q.v.), N. Northumb., 6 S.S.W. of Alnwick; ac. 939. The Jubilee Hall dates from 1887. There is a colliery and some limeworks. N. Hall is a seat.

Newton-on-Trent, pa. and vil. on the Trent, W. Lincs., 11 S. of Gainsborough; ac. 1,520; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1876–79) is E. Eng., with some Norm. work; the church retains a piscina and remains of the rood-loft. There are some small charities and a Wesleyan chapel. A bridge of four arches crosses the river, on which there are some wharfs.

Newton, Out. [OUT NEWTON.]

Newton Park, tp., pa. of Mitford (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 3 W.N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 370.

Newton Poppleford, eccl. pa. on the west bank of the Otter, pa. of Aylesbeare (q.v.), E. Dev., 4 N.W. of Sidmouth. The E. Eng. church of St. Luke (restored 1826 and 1875) was originally a chantry, founded in 1331, and after the Reformation was used until 1751 as a chapel-of-ease. The Brethren have a chapel.

Newton Purcell, pa., N.W. Oxon, 6 N.E. of Bicester; ac. 593; soil stonebrash, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1875) is Norm., the north doorway being a fine example; in the north wall is a monument to Gilbert Harrison (d. 1790). There is a small charity.

Newton Regis, pa. and vil., N. Warws., 5 N.E. of Tamworth; ac. 1,610; soil clay and sand, overlying sandstone and clay. The church of St. Mary is Dec. A reading and lecture room was erected in 1883.

Newton Regny, pa., tp., and vil. on the Petteril, E. Cumb., 4 N.E. of Penruddock; ac. of pa. 1,013, of tp. 2,574; soil clay and sand, overlying rock. The church of St. John (restored 1892, and the chancel rebuilt 1876) was built late in the 12th or early in the 13th cent.; portions of the rood-loft remain, and there is a Norm. piscina preserved in the chancel wall; there are also piscinæ in the aisles; in the north chantry are remains of a monument; on the nave floor is a slab bearing the arms of Vaux of Catterlen; another to James Pearson, curate 1636–76; the communion plate includes a cup dated 1568. Catterlen Hall is a fortified Border mansion of various periods from the 15th to the 17th cents.

Newton St. Cyres, pa. and vil., Mid Dev., 4½ N.W. of Exeter; ac. 4,305; soil clay and red sandstone,

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newtonmore	Newtonmore	515	364
Newton Morrell	Scorton (6)	231	63
Newton Mulgrave	Hinderwell (½)	254	84
Newton-nr.-Sudbury	Sudbury (3)	59	421
Newton, North (1)	Bridgwater (4)	152	783
Newton Nottage	Porthcawl (1½)	193	1758
Newton of Pitcairns	Dunning	440	159
Newton, Old	Haughley Road (1)	83	672
Newton-on-th'-Moor	Alnwick (6)	309	215
Newton-on-Trent	Torksey (3)	140	307
Newton Park	Morpeth (3)	288	12
Newton Poppleford	Sidmouth (4)	168	485
Newton Purcell	Buckingham (4½)	60	90
Newton Regis	Polesworth (3)	106	488
Newton Regny, pa.	Blencow (1½)	284	257
Newton Regny, tp.	Blencow (1½)	284	153
Newton St. Cyres	St. Cyres (½)	176	757

subsoil schistous. The E. Perp. church of St. Cyr and St. Julitta (mother of St. Cyr) contains an undated monument, with full-length effigy under a canopy, to John Northcote, and memorials of the Quickes. Silver ore was found here temp. Queen Anne, and also manganese, of which a rich lode has lately been worked.

Newton St. Faith. [HORSHAM ST. FAITH AND NEWTON ST. FAITH.]

Newton St. Loe, pa. and beautiful vil. on the Avon, N.E. Somerset, 3½ w. of Bath; ac. 1,578; soil stonebrash, resting on blue lias. The E. Dec. church of the Holy Trinity was thoroughly restored and enlarged and an aisle added in 1857, the chancel being rebuilt; there is some very beautiful oak carving; in the church are handsome tablets to the Langton family, and in the churchyard is a marble monument to Captain Edward Gore-Langton. A large club-room was erected by Earl Temple in 1886. The charities yield about £70 per annum. Newton Park is a seat.

Newton St. Petrock, pa. and vil. on the Torridge, W. Dev., 11 s. of Bideford; ac. 1,556; soil clayey, resting on clay. The church of St. Petrock (restored 1884) contains some ancient carved oak benches, bearing the shields of Prideaux, Hatch, Grenville and others; the rood-loft stairs and the doorway leading to them now form the entrance to the pulpit, which is constructed of carved oak found beneath the floor during the restoration. The Baptist chapel dates from 1862.

Newton Solney, pa. and vil. on the Trent, at its junction with the Dove, S.W. Derbys., 9 s.w. of Derby, on the border of Staffs.; ac. 1,393; soil clay, resting on sandy loam and clay. The picturesque church of St. Mary the Virgin was founded in the 13th cent. and has been several times restored; a blocked-up doorway in the north aisle and some fragments of the original chancel-arch are of Norm. date; the E. Eng. period is illustrated by several lancet windows in the same aisle, but the greater part of the church is Dec., although considerable changes were made in the Perp. period. Against the wall of the south aisle is the mutilated stone effigy of a knight in armour, probably of the 13th cent.; another knightly effigy (headless) dates from about 1275; in the chancel is the recumbent alabaster effigy, in good preservation, of a knight in armour, on an altar-tomb dating from the last quarter of the 14th cent.; these three monuments are believed to represent members of the Solney family, after whom the pa. is named. There are four almshouses. Brick-making is carried on here. Newton Park is a seat in the pa.

Newton, South, pa. and vil. on the Wiley, S. Wilts., 5 N.W. of Salisbury; ac. 3,474; soil and subsoil gravel and chalk. The church of St. Andrew (rebuilt 1862) retains the original Norm. arches and windows. There are some small charities. Wilton Union workhouse is in the pa.

Newton Stacey, ha., pa. of Barton Stacey (q.v.), W Hants, about 5 s.w. of Whitchurch.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton St. Loe	Tiverton (2)	108	392
Newton St. Petrock	Holsworthy (7)	218	234
Newton Solney	Burton (2)	127	467
Newton, South	Wilton (2)	86	546
Newton Stewart	Newtown Stewart	382	2738

Newton Stewart, burgh of bar. and mkt. to. (P.) on the Cree, principally in the pa. of Penningham (q.v.), N.E. co. Wigs., with a small portion on the left bank of the stream in the pa. of Minnigaff, S.W. Kirkcuds., Sc., 8 N. of Wigtown. The river is here crossed by a bridge of five arches, connecting the two divisions of the town. N. S. is principally composed of one large street, in the centre of which is the Town House. The places of worship are the Established church (an elegant modern structure), a Free church, a United Presbyterian church, and one for Roman Catholics. The Douglas Academy and the Ewart Institute are richly-endowed educational establishments, incorporated under the title of the N. S. Educational Trust; the Industrial Home supports about fifty destitute and orphan girls. M'Millan Hall (1885), in the centre of the town, is in Italian style. There is a Mechanics' Institute in the town, with a library. A Gothic monument to Randolph, ninth Earl of Galloway, was erected in 1875. The cotton manufacture was formerly carried on here and in the neighbourhood to some extent, but it is now extinct. The staple at present is wool, furnished from the surrounding country, and mostly supplied to the Yorkshire markets. Cattle markets are held on the second Friday in every month, the annual hiring fairs on the second Friday in April and October, and the horse fairs in February, June, and November.

Newton Toney, pa. and vil., E. Wilts., 4 N.E. of Amesbury, on the Hants border; ac. 2,326; soil alluvial, overlying gravel and chalk. The church of St. Andrew, in Dec. style, has some monuments from an older church. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there are some charities. Wilbury House, of Jacobean date, is one of the earliest specimens of the Italian style in England.

Newton Tracey, pa. and vil., N. Devon, on the old road from Torrington to Barnstaple, from which to. it is 4½ s.w.; ac. 336; soil good loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (restored 1868) is Perp.; at the restoration some curious old wall-paintings were found in the chancel, but, owing to the insecure condition of the walls, they were destroyed. N. House is a seat.

Newton Underwood, tp., pa. of Mitford (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 4 w. of Morpeth; ac. 906.

Newton Unthank, ha., pa. of Rathby (q.v.), Mid Leics., 7 w. of Leicester.

Newton-upon-Ayr, pa. on the right bank of the Ayr, W. Ayrs., Sc., partly included in the to. of Ayr (q.v.); ac. 585; soil mostly sandy, partly overlying freestone, sandstone, and coal. The surface, extending inland from a low sandy beach, is level and scantily wooded. There are Established, Free, and United Presbyterian churches. The urban part of the pa., divided by the river Ayr from Ayr royal burgh, lies within the limits of the mun. and parl. bors. of Ayr. N. has a harbour and dock, and the coal obtained in the vicinity is shipped here in large quantities. The manufactures include chemicals, carpets, lace, and

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton Toney	Grateley (3)	73	292
Newton Tracey	Porton (3½)	78	140
Newton Underwood	Morpeth (4)	288	60
Newton-upon-Ayr	Newton-upon-Ayr	392	8564

boots and shoes. N. appears to have become a place of importance by the close of the 13th cent., as about that time it was made a burgh of barony. The old castle, once the abode of the Wallaces of Craigie, was destroyed in 1701.

Newton-upon-Derwent, tp. and vil. on the east bank of the Derwent, pa. of Wilberfoss (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 6 W. of Pocklington; ac. 1,715. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Newton-upon-Ouse, pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks., 9 N.W. of York; ac. of pa. 5,148, of tp. 1,734; soil various, resting on clay and sand. The church of St. Mary, except the lower portion of the tower, which is Norm., was built on the site of a plain structure in 1849, the tower being surmounted by an elegant spire rising to the height of 150 ft. The east window is filled with stained glass. In the chancel, beautifully paved with encaustic tiles, is a brass tablet containing the full-length effigies of Lord and Lady Downe (d. 1846 and 1848). At the entrance to the chancel are brass plates commemorating some branches of the Bourchier family. The Wesleyans have a chapel. [BENNINGBROUGH AND LINTON-UPON-OUSE.]

Newton-upon-Rawcliffe. [NEWTON (6).]

Newton Valence, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 5½ S. of Alton; ac. 2,258; soil clay and chalk, resting on gravel and clay. The E. Eng. church of St. Mary was restored in 1871. Pelham is an elegant modern building, commanding a beautiful view, and enclosed by grounds containing one of the largest tulip-trees in England. Other seats are Kitcombe House and The Manor House.

Newton, Water. [WATER NEWTON.]

Newton, Welsh. [WELSH NEWTON.]

Newton, West (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 7 N.N.E. of Lynn; ac. 1,205; soil sandy and chalk, resting on chalk, carr-stone, and gravel. The Perp. church of SS. Peter and Paul was restored in 1881, and again in 1891, when the north aisle was added, by the Prince of Wales, under the direction of A. W. Blomfield, who presented the carved oak lectern. The reredos of tiles and mosaic was given by the late Duke of Albany; the jewelled altar-cross of brass, with two candlesticks and vases, by the late German Emperor (Frederick III.) and the Empress Frederick; the alms-dish, by Lord Colville of Culross; the crimson and purple altar-covers, by the Duke and the late Duchess of Cambridge. The chancel is fitted with stalls of carved oak, the gift of the Duke of Edinburgh; the pulpit was the offering of the Prince of Wales's household; the fine organ was presented by Queen Victoria; and several of the windows have been filled with stained glass at the charges of various members of the Royal Family. The Village Club, for the servants and workmen engaged on the Sandringham estate, was built in 1873, in the Swiss domestic style, by the Prince and Princess of Wales. His Royal Highness, as lord of the manor, has also built a number of picturesque cottages, principally for the use of persons in his employ.

Newton, West (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Aldbrough and Swine (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 8 N.E. of Hull; ac. 2,069.

Newton, West (3), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Bromfield (q.v.), W. Cumb., 2 N.W. of Aspatria. The church of St. Matthew is in E. Eng. style.

Newton, West (4), ha., pa. of North Petherton (q.v.), W. Somerset, 3 S.W. of Bridgwater.

Newton, West (5). [WESTNEWTON.]

Newton, West, and Allonby, tp., pa. of Bromfield (q.v.), W. Cumb., about 2 N.W. of Aspatria; ac. 4,154.

Newton-with-Scales, tp., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 1,523. There is a Blue Coat School, founded in 1707 for the education, maintenance, and clothing of poor children of the tp.

Newton Wolves. [WOLVES NEWTON.]

Newton Wood. [WOOD NEWTON.]

New Town (1), vil., pa. of St. Mary, Stockport (q.v.), E. Chesh., 7 S.E. of Stockport.

New Town (2), ha., pa. of Ribchester (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 6½ N.E. of Preston.

New Town (3), ha., pa. of Wedmore (q.v.), N. Somerset, ½ S. of Theale.

New Town (4), ha. on the road from Bloxwich to Stafford, pa. of Bushbury (q.v.), W. Staffs., 2½ E.N.E. of Essington. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Newtown (1), or St. John, pa. within the city of Chichester (q.v.), W. Sussex; ac. 5. The proprietary chapel of St. John the Evangelist, in St. John's Street, was built 1813, in Classic style, on the site of the Blackfriars monastery founded 1227–28 by Richard, Earl of Cornwall, brother of Henry III.

Newtown (2), pa. and vil. on the Emborne, N. Hants, 6 N.W. of Kingsclere, on the border of Berks.; ac. 476; soil various, resting on white gravel. The church of SS. Mary the Virgin and John the Baptist was rebuilt 1865, in E. Eng. style There is an interesting lich-gate. N. House and Heatherfield are seats.

Newtown (3), parl. bor., pa., and mkt. to. (T. & S.), on the Severn, S.E. Montgoms., 8 W.N.W. of Montgomery; ac. 3,390; soil mostly fertile. The Severn is here crossed by a stone bridge of three arches, erected in 1827. The Montgoms. Canal (q.v.) runs from N. to Llanymynech. The church of St. Mary (1847), in Gothic style, has replaced an ancient church with Dec. and Perp. features, which remains in a ruined condition; the ancient font and a fine rood-screen have been transferred to the modern building; the latter is now used as a reredos. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The Public Rooms, the Market Hall, and the Montgoms. Infirmary are large and commodious buildings. The flannel manufacture, introduced about 1790, is conducted on a very large scale, the removal of the flannel market to N. from Welshpool in 1832 having con-

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newton-u.-Derwent	Pocklington (6)	198	204
Newton-up.-Ouse, pa.	Shipton (3)	193	834
Newton-up.-Ouse, tp.	Shipton (3)	193	517
Newton Valence	Alton (5)	47	291
Newton, West (1)	Wolferton (2)	103	304
Newton, West (2)	Ellerby (4)	204	166
Newton, West (3)	Aspatria (2)	319	411
Newton, West, and A.	Aspatria (2)	319	853
Newton-with-Scales	Kirkham (1½)	217	231
Newtown (1)	Chichester	69	138
Newtown (2)	Newbury (2)	53	221
Newtown (3), bor.	Newtown	195	6474
Newtown (3), pa.	Newtown	195	4038

duced greatly to the prosperity of the town. There are also iron foundries, and brewing and tanning are carried on. Robert Owen (1771–1858), the Socialist, was born here, and his body rests in the ruined church of St. Mary. N. belongs to the Montgomery District (q.v.) of boroughs. Dolforgan, N. Hall (formerly the seat of the Pryces, in which Charles I. spent two days on his way to Chester), and Vaynor are seats near the town.

NEWTOWN, THE LONG BRIDGE.
(Photo. J. Owen, Newtown, North Wales.)

Newtown (4), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Calbourne and Newtown Borough and Shalfleet (q.v.), I. of Wight, 5 E. of Yarmouth. Formerly a considerable quantity of salt was made here in the salterns, which may still be seen on the coast. Although now a small vil., N. was anciently a to. of some importance, called Francheville, the ground still showing evidences of two long streets connected by shorter streets. It is said to have been burned by the Danes in 1001, and it certainly was by the French temp. Richard II.; and it was after this devastation that it arose under its present name; it received from Queen Elizabeth the privilege (cancelled in 1832) of sending two members to Parliament. It still preserves its town hall. The chapel of the Holy Ghost has been rebuilt in Norm. style.

Newtown (5), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Wem (q.v.), N. Salop. The church of King Charles the Martyr (built 1870) is in Gothic style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Newtown (6), eccl. pa., pas. of Southampton St. Mary and South Stoneham (q.v.), S. Hants, forming part of the bor. of Southampton. The church of St. Luke was built 1853, and enlarged 1860 and 1873.

Newtown (7), eccl. pa., pa. and in the to. of Bishop Stortford (q.v.), E. Herts. The church of the Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style.

Newtown (8), tp. and ha., pa. of Chillingham (q.v.), N. Northumb., 4 S.E. of Wooler; ac. 1,132.

Newtown (9), tp., pa. of Rothbury (q.v.), N. Northumb., 7 S.W. of Alnwick; ac. 925.

Newtown (10), eccl. pa., formed from the pa. of St. Peter, Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. John the Baptist is in E. Dec. style.

Newtown (11), ha., pa. of Huish Episcopi (q.v.), S.E. Somerset, adjoining Langport.

Newtown (12), pl., pa. of Alstonefield (q.v.), N.E. Staffs., about 2 S.W. of Longnor.

Newtown (13), vil., pa. of and ½ S.E. from St Martin in Meneage (q.v.), S. Cornw.

Newtown (14). [ASHFORD (3).]

Newtown (15), ha. near the Arrow, pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Leominster (q.v.), N. Herefords.

Newtown (16), ha., pa. of Eccles (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 3 N.E. of Worsley.

Newtown (17), ha., pa. of Bedwelty (q.v.), W. Mon., on the east of Ebbw Vale. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels.

Newtown (18), ha., pa. of and ½ N. from the to. of Beaminster (q.v.), W. Dors.

Newtown (19), ha., pa. of Handley (q.v.), N.E. Dors., 7½ N.W. of Cranborne.

Newtown (20), dis., pa. of Canford Magna (q.v.), E. Dors., about 5 N.E. of Poole. The church of St. Clement, a chapel-of-ease, is in E. Eng. style. Here is the Poole Sanitary Hospital.

Newtown (21), ha., pa. of Dunton (q.v.), N. Beds., 2 E. of Biggleswade.

Newtown (22), ha., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Hungerford (q.v.), S.W. Berks.

Newtown (23), vil., pa. of Irthington (q.v.), N. Cumb., 2 N.W. of Brampton, on road to Longtown.

Newtown (24), ha., pa. of Durnford (q.v.), S. Wilts., 3 N. of Salisbury.

Newtown (25), ha., pas. of Hilton and Stainton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 E. of Yarm.

Newtown (26), vil., pa. of Baschurch (q.v.), W. Salop, 8 N. by W. of Shrewsbury. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The free school was founded in the 18th cent.

Newtown (27), vil., pa. of and ½ S. from Borrowstounness (q.v.), N.W. Linliths., Sc.

Newtown (28), ha., pa. of and about 1 W.N.W. from Fintry (q.v.), Mid Stirls., Sc.

Newtown (29). [NEWTOWN ST. BOSWELLS.]

Newtown (30), pa., Fartullagh and Moycashel bars., S. co. Wstm., Ir., 4 S.S.E. of Castletown; ac. 10,260.

Newtown (31), pa., Lower Kells bar., N. co. Meath, Ir., 3 N.E. of Kells; ac. 1,080.

Newtown (32), vil., pa. of Shandrum (q.v.), N.W. co. Cork, Ir., 5 S.W. of Charleville.

Newtown (33), vil., pa. of Clonmel (q.v.), S.E. co. Cork, Ir., near Queenstown.

Newtown (34), pl., pa. of Lusmagh (q.v.), W. K. Co., Ir., 3 S.W. of Banagher.

Newtown (35). [SEAPATRICK.]

Newtownards, pa. and mkt. to. (S.), head of U. and petty sess. div. (formerly a parl. bor.), partly

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newtown (4)	Newport (6)	88	328
Newtown (5)	Wem (3)	174	359
Newtown (6)	Southampton	78	9841
Newtown (7)	Bishop Stortford	31	2415
Newtown (8)	Ilderton (2)	327	75
Newtown (9)	Rothbury (6)	312	32
Newtown (10)	Leeds	185	8231

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newtown (27)	Winchburgh (1½)	403	567
Newtown (30)	Hill of Down (1)	38	1492
Newtown (31)	Kells (3)	41	85
Newtown (32)	Charleville (5)	130	158
Newtown (33)	Queenstown	178	116
Newtownards, pa.	Newtownards	127	12086
Newtownards, to.	Newtownards	127	9197

[illegible] Castlereagh bar., but chiefly in that [illegible] Ards, N.E. co. Down, Ir., [illegible] of pa. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

3 N. of Carrick-on-Suir; ac. 5,774. Limestone and slate are found in abundance.

Newtown Limavady, mkt. to. (M.) on the Roe, pa. of Drumachose (q.v.), Mid co. Londy., Ir., 12 s.w. of Coleraine. Beside the pa. church there are Presbyterian, Wesleyan, and Roman Catholic chapels, and a meeting-room for Plymouth Brethren. The Alexander Memorial Hall contains an assembly-room, newsroom, and savings bank. There are seven annual cattle fairs, and a fortnightly petty sessions court. N. L. has good trade and constant communication with Belfast and Londonderry. Spinning and weaving are extensively carried on, and there are large steam flour and oatmeal mills. There is good trout- and salmon-fishing on the Roe. N. L. is a place of great antiquity, and suffered severely in the rebellion of 1641. In 1688 a body of horse was raised here for the defence of Derry, and through it King James marched to the siege of Derry. In 1798 a small body of yeomanry here opposed the march of 5,000 United Irishmen from Belfast on Derry, and thus gave a death blow to the rebellion in Ulster. Newtown Limavady appears in the Census as the name of this to., which, however, is locally called Limavady. In Drenagh demesne are the ruins of the ancient church of Drumachose. L. is the subject of Thackeray's ballad "Peg of Limavady." "Peg" lived at an inn close to the town.

Newtown Linford, pa. and pleasant vil., Mid Leics., 6 N.W. of Leicester; ac. 4,388; soil marl, resting on gravel and clay. The church of All Saints, restored 1860, when a south porch was added, is E. Eng.; the communion plate includes a chalice and paten dated 1685. Roecliffe Hall is a handsome mansion, surrounded by a richly-wooded park with picturesque scenery.

Newtownmountkennedy, vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Upper Newcastle (q.v.), N.E. co. Wick., Ir., 20 s. of Dublin. The neighbourhood abounds with beautiful scenery. There are Catholic and Protestant churches and schools. The courthouse was formerly the market hall. Extensive corn-mills were erected here, but they have fallen into disuse. Six annual fairs are held.

Newtown-near-Newbury. [NEWTOWN (2).]

Newtownpark, vil., pa. of Stillorgan (q v.), S. co. Dub., Ir., 4 S.E. of Dublin.

Newtown-Pery. [LIMERICK (2).]

Newtown St. Boswells, large vil., pa. of and 3 s. from Melrose (q.v.), N.W. Roxbs., Sc. Here is a United Presbyterian church. Large cattle sales are conducted here every alternate Monday, and there are also important lamb sales in July and August.

Newtownsandes, vil., pa. of Murher (q.v.), N. co. Kerry, Ir., about 4 s. of Tarbert.

Newtown Stewart, mkt. to. (M.) on the Mourne, head of U. and petty sess. div., pa. of Ardstraw (q.v.), N. co. Tyr., Ir., 24 s. of Londonderry. This place was originally called Lislas, and it acquired its present name from Sir William Stewart, to whom it was granted by Charles I. The Protestant church is at Ardstraw; a Catholic church at Glenock, about half a mile from the town; two Presbyterian places of worship, and one each for Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists. At the foot of the principal street stands the house in which James II. slept on his way to Londonderry, and in the vicinity is a castle standing on a high hill, with a round tower and a platform. This castle belonged to Henry O'Neal, who, according to tradition, was King of Ulster in the 5th cent. Other old castles are in the neighbourhood, and the district altogether is remarkably interesting, and studded with beautiful seats. Monthly fairs are held.

Newtown Trim, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Trim (q.v.), Mid co. Meath, Ir.

Newtown Unthank, ha., pa. of Ratby (q.v.), Mid Leics., about 6½ W. of Leicester.

Newtown Vevay, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Bray (q.v.), N.E. co. Wick., Ir.

Newts Down, eminence, E. Dev., 1 S.E. of Tiverton, commanding a fine view of the to. and of the valley of the Exe.

Newtyle, pa. and vil., S.W. Forfs., Sc., 5½ E. by N. of Coupar Angus; ac. 5,192; soil chiefly black earth and clay, with an intermixture of sand and gravel, overlying rock, clay, sand, gravel, and marl. From the Sidlaw Hills, which traverse the pa. in the south, reaching in Kinpurny Hill an extreme height of 1,134 ft., the surface declines to the great plain of Strathmore (q.v.), part of which is included within its north-west borders. The "Glack of Newtyle" was formerly a pass of considerable military importance. In the vil., which dates from 1832, are an Established church (1872) in Gothic style, a Free church, and a public library. Hatton Castle (q.v.) is the principal antiquity. There are traces of a square camp, in which Montrose's army is said to have remained for several days. Grahame's Knowe and King's Well are, acccording to tradition, situated on the route taken by Macbeth in his flight northwards.

Newtyle Hill, eminence (996 ft.), pa. of Caputh (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., 2 E. of Dunkeld. The hill is picturesquely wooded, and the summit commands fine prospects. Here are two standing-stones.

New Village, vil., pa. of Eastrington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 6 E. of Howden.

Newyatt, ha., pa., and about 1½ E. from the to. of Witney (q.v.), Mid Oxon.

New York, vil. on the Nidd, pa. of Kirkby Malzeard (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 7 W.N.W. of Ripley. There are large flax-spinning mills.

Neyland (1), ha., pa. of Ashwellthorpe (q.v.), S. Norf., 4 S.E. of Wymondham.

Neyland (2). [MILFORD, NEW.]

Niarbyl Point, headland on the west coast of the I. of M., 4 S.S.W. of Peel. There are some fine caves at its base, and the view of the sea and coast from the cliffs above them is one of the grandest in the island.

Nibley, ha. on the Frome, pa. of Westerleigh (q.v.), S. Gloucs., 2 W. of Chipping Sodbury.

Nibley, North, pa. and vil., S.W. Gloucs., 2 S.W.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Newtown Limavady	Limavady	189	2796
Newtown Linford	Glenfield (4)	107	357
Newtownmountk'dy	Kilcool (3)	20	350
Newtownpark	Blackrock (1)	4	529
Newtown St. B'wells	St. Boswell's (1½)	356	481
Newtownsandes	Listowel (7)	179	258
Newtown Stewart	Newtown Stewart	153	1171
Newtyle, pa.	Newtyle	466	833
Newtyle, vil.	Newtyle	466	414
Nibley, North	Dursley (2)	130	784

of Dorsley; ac. 3,410; soil loamy, resting on blue clay. The E. Eng. and Perp. church of St. Martin was anciently a chapel to Wotton-under-Edge; the chancel was rebuilt 1860. There is a small chapel-of-ease at Ridge, and also a Congregational chapel. The pa. is well provided with charities. It is believed to have been the birthplace (1484) of William Tyndale, the first translator of the Bible, to whose memory a monument 111 ft. high was erected on Nibley Knoll in 1866, on a site presented by Lord Fitzharding.

Nibon, islet, pa. of N. Ronaldshay, in St. Magnus Bay, off the west coast of Mainland, Shetland, Sc., 23 N.N.W. of Lerwick. The isle extends 3 N.N.E. and S.S.W., and lies within a furlong of the mainland.

Nibthwaite, vill. on the west side of Coniston Water, pa. of Colton (q.v.), N. Lancs., 7 N. of Ulverston.

Nicholashayne, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Culmstock (q.v.), N. Dev.

Nicholaston, pa. in Oxwich Bay, N.W. Glamorgan, 9 W. by S. of Swansea. Pop. 488. The church of St. Nicholas is a modern edifice in Gothic style. Cefn Bryn (q.v.) is in the pa.

Nichol Forest, eccl. pa., tn., and vil., pa. of Kirk Andrews upon Eske (q.v.), N. Cumb., 6 to 14 N.E. of Longtown, extending 10 miles along the rivers Liddel and Kershope. The church (dedication unknown), built 1744 and rebuilt 1866, is in Gothic style.

Nicker, vill., pa. of Gretton (q.v.), E. co. Line., 3 miles S.W. of New Bolingbroke.

Nidd, vil., pa., tn., extending into the pa. of Ripley, and vil. on the N.E., W.R. Yorks., 3 N. of Harrogate and 11 pa. l. 46 of tp. 1,203; soil mainly overlying sand, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Paul, rebuilt 1866, is in E. Eng. style. In the churchyard is the shaft of a Saxon cross. N. Hall is a seat.

Nidd, river, W.R. Yorks., rises in the north part of the Riding under Great Whernside, and runs E.S.E. and N.E. through Nidderdale to the Ouse at N. end of Monkton, just Pateley Bridge, Ripley, and Knaresborough. Above the Dacre Banks are a singularly picturesque series known as Brimham Rocks.

Nidderdale, the valley of the Nidd (q.v.).

Niddry, vil., pa., tn. of Kirkliston (q.v.), N.E. Linlithg., 8½ N.N.E. of Broxburn. N. Castle, an ancient fortress, is famous as the place where Mary Queen of Scots passed the night of her escape from Loch Leven Castle. It was built, the property of Lord Seton. The site now belongs to the Earl of Hopetoun, who, it gives the title of Baron.

Niddry Mill, vil., pa. of Linton (q.v.), N.E. Ellis., S. 1½ N.N.E. of Pittsville. Here are traces of a chapel, founded 1087 by the Wauchopes of Niddrie-Marshall. Coal is worked here. N. House or Niddry-Mains is a handsome edifice in Scottish Baronial style, erected in the latter part of the 18th cent.

Nier, stream, N. co. Waterf., Ire., rises in the Comeragh Mountains, on the south declivity of Knocknamaffrin, and runs west to the Suir, which it joins 5 S.W. of Ardfinnan, at a point 9 miles (in a direct line) from its source. The river is very impetuous, and in its upper course it receives many mountain streams.

Nigg, tn. pa. on the right bank of the Dee, N.E. Kincard., opposite Aberdeen; ac. 4,432; soil black loam, elsewhere clay, mainly overlying granite. N. is supposed to derive its name from its situation in the extreme north-east of the county, between the Dee on the north and north-west, and the North Sea on the east; the north part forms a promontory, terminating in the headland of Girdle Ness. The Established church dates from 1829. There is a Free church at Torry. Near the shore are the ruins of an ancient church, dedicated to St. Fittack or Fiacre, who is believed to have lived in the early part of the 7th cent.; on the bell-tower, erected at a later period than the rest of the building, is the date 1704. St. Fittack's Well, in the south vicinity of the church, was long frequented by pilgrims.

Nigg (2), pa. and vil. on Cromarty Firth, E. Ross and Cromarty, Sc., about 9 S. of Tain; ac. 7,818. A third of the parish consists of its most interesting physical feature, the Hill of Nigg (500 ft.); from the highest point nine counties may be seen by the unassisted eye.

Nigg Bay, on the north side of Cromarty Firth, E. Ross and Cromarty, Sc. It is bordered by the pas. of Nigg, Logie Easter, and Kilmuir Easter.

Nigg, Hill of. [NIGG (2).]

Nightcott, ha., pa. of Brushford (q.v.), W. Somerset, 2 S. of Dulverton.

Nightingale, vill., pa. of Trevithin-with-Pontypool (q.v.), E. Mon., 1 N.W. of Pontypool.

Nilteen Grange, pa., Upper Antrim bar., S. co. Antrim, Ire., 3 E. of Antrim; ac. 2,736. It contains the village of Parkgate.

Ninebanks, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Allendale (q.v.), S. Northumb., 12 S.W. of Hexham. The church of St. Mark is in E. Eng. style, and the Primitive Methodists have a chapel. N. has a reading-room, and there is a small charity. There are remains of an ancient Scottish border tower.

Nine Barrow Down, summit (642 ft.) at the termination of a chalk ridge, S.E. Dors., 3 E. of Corfe Castle.

Nine Elms, flat on the south bank of the Thames, pa. of Lambeth (q.v.), Surrey, between Vauxhall and Chelsea bridges. It is named after lofty elms which formerly grew beside the river. Here are the principal goods depôt of the London and South Western Railway, a large wharf in connection with the same company, and extensive gas-works.

Nine Maidens, stone circle, pa. of St. Columb Major (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 6 N.W. of Penzance. It is 81 ft. in diameter, and comprises nineteen stones about 3 ft. in height, three of them being prostrate. In the centre stands a monolith 8½ ft. high and 3½ ft. out of the perpendicular.

Place	Nearest Rly. Sta., and dist. (1) from place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Nicholaston	Swansea (10)	294	100
Nichol Forest	Longtown (10)	308	347
Nicker	Pallas (1)	115	116
Nidd (1), pa.	Nidd Bridge (1)	206	156
Nidd (1), tp.	Nidd Bridge (1)	206	167

Place	Nearest Rly. Sta., and dist. (1) from place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Niddry	Winchburgh (2)	403	634
Nigg (1)	Cove 1½	523	4513
Nigg (2)	Nigg	629	930
Nilteen Grange	Antrim (3)	126	696
Ninebanks	Staward (6)	300	546

Ninemileburn, vil. on Monks Burn, pa. of and 4 W.S.W. from Penicuik (q.v.), S. Edins., Sc.

Nine Mile House, vil., pas. of Templemichael and Grangemockler (q.v.), E. co. Tip., Ir., on the Kilkenny border, about 9 N. of Carrick-on-Suir.

Nine Mile Water, stream, W. Hants, rises near the border of Wilts., and flows 9 E. to the Test.

Ninestane Rig, hill-ridge (943 ft.), pa. of Castleton, S.W. Roxbs., Sc., 7 N. by E. of New Castleton. The ridge is 4 miles in length and 1 mile wide. On it is an ancient circle, which retains five stones out of the original nine; on two of these it is said, was placed the caldron in which Lord Soulis was boiled to death as a reputed sorcerer.

Nine Stones (1), stone circle about 28 ft. in diameter, pa. of Winterborne Abbas (q.v.), S. Dors., 6 N.W. of Dorchester.

Nine Stones (2), circle of 17 stones on the north border of Dartmoor (q.v.), Mid Dev., 2½ S.E. of Okehampton.

Ninfield, pa. and vil., W. Sussex, 9½ W. of Hastings; ac. 2,570; subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1885) is chiefly E. Eng. and Dec. There are Calvinistic and Wesleyan chapels. On Standard Hill tradition relates that William the Conqueror raised his standard before the battle of Hastings; upon the hill stands an ancient building dated 1687.

Ninnes, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Madron (q.v.), W. Cornw.

Nisbett, vil. with railway station, on the Teviot, pa. of Crailing (q.v.), N. Roxbs., Sc., about 4 N.E. of Jedburgh.

Nith, river, E. Ayrs. and W. Dumfs., Sc., rises 3½ E. of Dalmellington, and flows 16 N. and E. through the pa. of New Cumnock; after entering Dumfs., flows E.S.E. past Sanquhar, then S., afterwards S.E., and finally S., past Dumfries to the Solway Firth. The valley of the river in Dumfs., called Nithsdale (q.v.), contains much varied and beautiful scenery. For nearly 17 miles before entering the sea the N. divides the cos. of Dumfs. and Kirkcuds. Salmon, trout, and other fish are taken in its waters. The river is tidal and navigable below Dumfries.

Nithsdale, the most westerly of the three divisions of Dumfs., Sc., the others being Annandale and Eskdale. It is a district of somewhat vague extent, embracing, besides that part of the basin of the Nith which lies within Dumfs., some of the land included in the basin of Lochar Water. The scenery on the Nith below Sanquhar is varied and extremely picturesque, the richest combination of wood, water, and rock occurring in a narrow pass about two miles in length, crossed 7½ N.W. of Dumfries by Auldgirth Bridge. In ancient times the district (then considerably larger) was known as Strathnith or Stranith. In the earlier half of the 12th cent. it belonged to a Celtic line of chieftains, ancestors of the Randolphs, Earls of Moray, to whom it passed by lineal descent. N. gave the title of Earl to the Maxwell family from 1620 to 1715, when the fifth earl was attainted for his share in the Jacobite rising Niton, pa. and pretty vil., I. of W, 5 W. of Ventnor; ac. 1,335; soil chalk, greenstone, firestone and gault, and heavy clay. In this pa., occupying the south-west angle of the island, are St. Catherine's Point, with its lighthouse, and one of the most romantic portions of the district known as The Undercliff, where are mansions and lodging-houses. The Trans. church of St. John the Baptist, which has some Norm. features, was one of those given by William Fitz-Osborne to his abbey of Lyra, in Normandy; it came to the Crown at the dissolution of religious houses, and was given to Queen's College, Oxford, by Charles I. Close by are the steps of an ancient cross, upon which a shaft was erected in 1874. The Baptists and Wesleyans have chapels. There is a Mechanics' Institute and Reading Room. The charities yield about £37 per annum. There is a coastguard station.

Nitshill, vil., pa. of Abbey (q.v.), S.E. Renfs., Sc., 3½ S.E. of Paisley. Levern Water passes the vil. on the north-west. There is a Free church and a Roman Catholic church. Chemicals are manufactured. The inhabitants are to a large extent engaged in the quarries and collieries in the vicinity.

Nivingston, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Cleish (q.v.), S. Kincs., Sc., 3 S.W. of Kinross.

Nixons, ha., pa. of Bewcastle (q.v.), E. Cumb., 12 N.E. of Longtown.

Noah Hill, ha., pa. of Newton Valence (q.v.), N. Hants, 3 S. of Alton.

Noak Hill, vil., pa. of Romford (q.v.), S. Essex, 4 W. of Brentwood. The church of St. Thomas (a chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style; there is some fine ancient stained glass. Dagnam Park is a seat.

Nobber, pa. and vil., N. co. Meath, Ir., 12 N. of Navan; ac. 10,411. There are Catholic and Protestant churches. N. has a Saturday market, and eight fairs are held during the year. Carolan the bard was born here (1670). Brittas House, with a beautifully-wooded estate, in which is a monument to General Bligh, and Whitewood, are seats.

Noblehill, vil., pa. of and 1 E. from Dumfries (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc.

Noblehouse, ha., pa. of Newlands (q.v), N. Peebs., Sc., about 2½ S.E. of West Linton station.

Nobles Green, ha., pa. of Eastwood (q.v.), S. Essex, 2 S.W. of Rockford.

Nobold, tp., pa. of and 1 W. from Brace Meole (q.v.), Mid Salop.

Nobottle, ha., pa. of Brington (q.v.), S. Northants, 6 N.W. of Northampton.

Nob Sand, sandbank, 2½ miles by ½ mile, in the middle of the mouth of the Thames, 9 N. of Herne Bay, with the Girdler light on the south.

Nobutt, Lower, ha., pa. of Leigh (q.v.), E. Staffs., 3 W. of Uttoxeter.

Nobutt, Upper, ha., pa. of Leigh (q.v.), E. Staffs., 4 W. of Uttoxeter.

Nochty, Water of, stream, pa. of Strathdon, S.W. Abers., Sc., flows 5 E. and S.E., joining the Don 9 S.W. of Lumsden.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Nine Mile House	Carrick-on-Suir (9)	149	102
Ninfield	Bexhill (4)	67	773
Niton	Ventnor (4)	92	931
Nitshill	Nitshill	405	1048

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Nobber, pa.	Nobber	44	1057
Nobber, vil.	Nobber	44	179
Noblehill	Dumfries (1)	332	364

Nocton, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 7½ S.E. of Lincoln; ac. 5,340; soil gravel, fen-land, and heath, overlying limestone. The church of All Saints (built 1862 in Dec. style) contains some fine stone carving, an alabaster reredos, a carved pulpit, and an altar-tomb to the Earl of Ripon (d. 1859). There is a small charity. On the Abbey Hills was a Priory of Black Canons, founded 1140 by Robert D'Arcy. N. Hall, a seat, was built in 1841 in the Elizabethan style, on the site of a former building which was destroyed by fire in 1834.

Noctorum, tp., pa. of Woodchurch (q.v.), W. Chesh., 2 S.W. of Birkenhead; ac. 330.

Noddfa, ha., pa. of Darowen (q.v.), W. Montgoms., 6 N.E. of Machynlleth.

Noddsdale Water, or Noddle Burn, stream, pa. of Largs, N. Ayrs., Sc., rises near the Renfs. border, and runs 7 S.S.W. to Largs Bay, ¾ N. of Largs.

Noe (1), river, N.W. Derbys., rises near Kinder Scout, on the south side of The Peak, and flows 9 E. and S.E. into the Derwent at Mytham Bridge, 2 miles above Hathersage.

Noe (2), stream, pa. of Ardchattan and Muckairn, N.E. Args., Sc., rises 4¾ W.N.W. of Dalmally, and runs N.W. along Glen Noe to Loch Etive, which it joins 2¾ N.E. of Bonawe, 3¾ miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Noel Park, eccl. pa., formed from the pa. of Tottenham (q.v.), Middx., about 6 N. of St. Paul's. The church of St. Mark is in E. Eng. style. N. P. is an estate consisting chiefly of artisans' dwellings.

Nohaval (1), pa., Kinalea bar., S.E. co. Cork, Ir., 5 E. of Kinsale, and extending to the coast; ac. 2,568. There are granite and stone quarries in the parish, but they are not now worked.

Nohaval (2), pa. on the Maine, Trughanacmy bar., Mid co. Kerry, Ir., 6 S.E. of Tralee; ac. 3,204.

Nohaval (3). [NOUGHAVAL.]

Nohavaldaly, pa. on the Blackwater, partly in Duhallow bar., N.W. co. Cork, and partly in Magunihy bar., E. co. Kerry, Ir., 6 N.W. of Millstreet; ac. 17,372. There is a Roman Catholic church.

Noirmont Point, headland on the south coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, at west end of St. Aubin's Bay.

Noke, secluded pa. and vil. on the Ray, Mid Oxon, 6 N.E. of Oxford; ac. 784; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Giles is E. Eng. and later; the font is E. Eng.; the Jacobean pulpit is covered in the Italian style; and there are some old open benches; an hourglass-stand of iron remains in the splay of the north-east window; in the organ chamber is a mutilated effigy and a brass to Johan (Hurst), 1598. John King, a native of this place and a farm labourer, is recorded to have attained, at his death in 1766, the age of 128 years.

Noltland Castle. [WESTRAY.]

Nolton (1), pa. on St. Bride's Bay, W. Pembs., 5½ W. by N. of Haverfordwest; ac. 1,548; soil mostly fertile. The church of St. Madog is an ancient Gothic edifice. Grant's School is endowed.

Nolton (2), vil., pa. of Coyty (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 2 N.E. of Bridgend.

No Man's Heath, eccl. pa. and vil. (formerly ex-par.), pa. of Newton Regis (q.v.), N. Warws., 9 N. of Atherstone. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (erected 1863) is in Perp. style.

No Man's Land, pa., S.E. Wilts., 10 S.E. of Salisbury; ac. 620. It consists of several small freeholds, and was formerly extra-parochial.

Noness, vil. on east coast of Mainland, pa. of Dunrossness (q.v.), S. Shetland, Sc., 2 S.S.E. of Sandwick.

Noneley, tp., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Loppington (q.v.), N. Salop. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Nonington, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 7 S.W. of Sandwich; ac. 3,997; soil chalky, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary is chiefly E. Eng., with windows of later date. Fredville Manor House, Ratling Court, and St. Albans Court are seats.

Nonsuch House. [CUDDINGTON (2).]

Nook (1), formerly a separate tp., but now for civil purposes merged in the tp. of Wark, pa. of and about ½ E. from Bellingham (q.v.), S. Northumb.

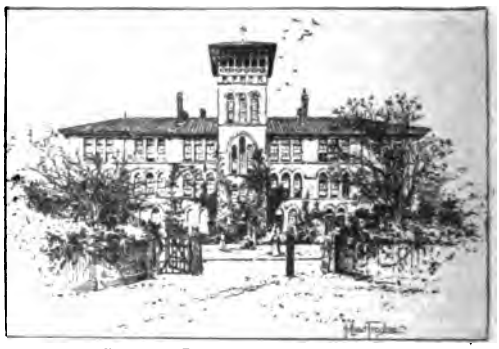
Nook (2), ha., pa. of Burton-in-Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd., 3 N.E. of Milnthorpe.

Nook (3), ha., pa. of and 3 W. from Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd.

Nook (4), vil., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 13 S.W. of Halifax.

Noran Water, stream, Mid Forfs., Sc., is formed by the union of two headwaters in the north of Tannadice pa., and runs S. and S.E. through that pa., and then E.S.E. between the pa. of Tannadice and those of Fearn and Careston to the South Esk, which it joins after a course of 10 miles.

Norbiton, eccl. pa., pa. of Kingston-upon-Thames (q.v.), N. Surrey, 11 S.W. of St. Paul's. It is called



PRINCESS LOUISE HOME, NORBITON.
(Photo. The Photographic Tourists' Association, Catford, S.E.)

Norbiton to distinguish it from Surbiton, and forms a northern suburb of Kingston. The church of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Nocton	Nocton & Dunston (1	123	578
Noctorum	Birkenhead (2)	194	202
Noel Park	Green Lanes	7	6714
Nohaval (1)	Kinsale (5)	190	394
Nohaval (2)	Tralee (6)	207	473
Nohavaldaly	Millstreet (6)	165	3276

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Noke	Islip (2)	72	100
Nolton (1)	Haverfordwest (6)	264	129
No Man's Heath	Tamworth (6)	110	131
No Man's Land	Dean (3)	83	155
Nonington	Adisham (2½)	68	764
Norbiton	Norbiton	11	6601

St. Peter was built 1842, in Norm. style, from designs by Sir Gilbert Scott. The Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows was founded 1854. Coombe House was a favourite residence of the Earl of Liverpool, Prime Minister under the Regency and afterwards, who died here 1828. At Coombe Lodge the ex-Empress Eugénie lived for a few months after leaving Chislehurst in 1881. Another seat is Coombe Springs.

Norbreck, ha., pa. of Bispham (q.v.), N. Lancs., 3 N. of Blackpool. N. Villa is a seat. [BISPHAM-WITH-NORBRECK.]

Norbury (1), pa. on the Dove, W. Derbys., 5 S.W. of Ashbourne; ac. 2,285; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1841) is an ancient building; the large chancel was built between 1370 and 1380 in Late Dec. style. The church is notable for its old stained glass, some of which dates from the 14th cent.; there is a fine screen, several piscinæ, and three sedilia; the oldest monument is a slab in the chancel-floor (c. 1250); in the chancel are also a 13th-cent. recumbent effigy of Sir Henry Fitzherbert (fifth Lord of N.), an alabaster slab to Alis Bothe (wife of Nicholas Fitzherbert), another to Henry Prynce (rector 1466–1500), who built the Perp. roof of the chancel, alabaster altar-tombs to Nicholas Fitzherbert (d. 1473), and Ralph Fitzherbert (d. 1483) and his wife Elizabeth, and a marble slab to the latter, and a brass to Sir Anthony Fitzherbert (d. 1538); the font is E. Eng.; in the aisle is a monument to Margaret, daughter of William Bowyer (1737), and his son Thomas (1742); in the south chapel is an altar-tomb to John Fitzherbert, twelfth Lord of N. (1530). The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a small endowment for the school and other charities. N. Old Hall contains some oak panelling and stained glass.

Norbury (2), pa., tp., and vil. on the Shropshire Union Canal, W. Staffs., 4 N.E. of Newport; ac. of pa. 3,328 and 38 water, of tp. 2,079 and 28 water; soil variable, overlying clay and sand. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1885, is a Dec. building containing several monuments to the Boteller and Skrymsher families, including one of the latter who was adjutant-general to Prince Rupert. There are several small charities. Loynton Hall is a seat.

Norbury (3), pa. and vil., S.W. Salop, 4 N.E. of Bishop's Castle; ac. 2,330; soil loam, overlying stone and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1879–80) is an ancient building; the chancel was rebuilt 1892–93. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The Brow or Borough was a Roman fort.

Norbury (4), eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Cheadle), tp., and vil., pa. of Stockport (q.v.), E. Chesh., 3 S.E. of Stockport, on the road to Macclesfield; ac. 1,249. The church of St. Thomas (built 1834) is in Gothic style. There are collieries.

Norbury (5), tp. on the Ellesmere Canal, pa. of Marbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., 7 S.W. of Nantwich; ac. 1,553. The Congregationalists and Wesleyans have chapels.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norbury (1)	Norbury	147	414
Norbury (2), pa.	Gnosall (3½)	140	418
Norbury (2), tp.	Gnosall (3½)	140	236
Norbury (3)	Lydham Heath (1)	178	209

Norbury (6), ha. with railway station, pa. of and 3 N.W. from Croydon (q.v.), N.E. Surrey.

Norby, ha., pa. of Walls (q.v.), in the west of Mainland, W. Shetland, Sc., 20 N.W. by W. of Lerwick.

Norchard, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Hartlebury (q.v.), W. Worcs.

Norcroft, ha., pa of Crathorne (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 N.W. of Barnsley.

Nordelph, or Northdelph, vil. on the Nene (here crossed by an iron bridge), pa. of Upwell (q.v.), W. Norf., 4 S.W. of Downham Market. The church of the Holy Trinity (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style; and there are Wesleyan and Reformed Wesleyan chapels.

Norden, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 3 W. from Rochdale (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. St. Paul's Church was built 1861, on a hill.

Nore, river, co. Tip., Q. Co., and co. Kilk., Ir., rises 6½ S.S.W. of Roscrea; flows N.E. through Ikerrin, Clandonagh, and Upperwoods bars., passing Borris-in-Ossory; makes a curve near Mountrath, and runs S.S.W. past Castletown, Abbeyleix, Durrow, Ballyragget, and Kilkenny; and finally S.W. past Thomastown (where it becomes navigable for barges) and Inistioge (where it becomes tidal) to the Barrow, which it joins 2 N.N.W. of New Ross. There is some picturesque scenery on the river, especially between Dunmore and Kilkenny, and at and below Mount Juliet.

Nore Hill, eminence, E. Surrey, near the Kent border, 7½ S.E. of Croydon.

Nore, The, sandbank at the mouth of the Thames, 8 N.E. of Sheerness, and 47 E. of London Bridge. A lightship, the first placed on the English coast, was stationed off its east end in 1731 by a Mr. Hamblin, and was soon afterwards taken over by Trinity House. The present vessel, built at Limehouse about 1850, is 96 ft. by 21 ft., with a tonnage of 156. At the masthead is a hollow globe 6 ft. in diameter, made of bent laths; below is fixed the lantern, an octagonal glass case framed in copper, which shows a revolving half-minute light. The ship is fitted with sails to steady her in rough weather, and to enable her to run to anchorage in the event of her being driven from

THE NORE LIGHTSHIP.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norbury (4), eccl. pa.	Middlewood	181	5246
Norbury (4), tp.	Middlewood	181	1495
Norbury (5)	Whitchurch (5)	171	346
Norden	Rochdale	195	3026

her moorings. On the north edge of the bank is a buoy, marking a depth of water at low spring-tide of 16 ft. The Nore anchorage, off the sandbank, was in 1797 the scene of the famous mutiny, which broke out on May 20 and was not suppressed till June 13. Richard Parker, the ring-leader, was hanged a few days later, and others of the mutineers were executed or flogged through the fleet.

Norfolk, an eastern maritime co. of England, on the north and east washed by the North Sea, on the south separated from Suffolk by the Waveney and Little Ouse, and on the west bounded by Cambs. and Lincs. and by the estuary of The Wash. Its greatest length from north to south is 41 miles, and greatest breadth from east to west 66 miles. It has a coast-line of 88 miles, which, though somewhat low, is exposed and almost harbourless, the only ports being Great Yarmouth and King's Lynn. The total area of the co. is 1,312,954 ac., of which 60 per cent. is arable land, 22 per cent. permanent pasture and meadow, 2 per cent. rough grazing land, 4 per cent. timber, and the remainder foreshore, water, roads, etc. Light soils predominate, being generally peaty in the west and more or less sandy in the east, with marly and loamy tracts in the centre of the co., and some limited patches of clay. The land is in the highest state of cultivation, and the growth of corn crops is favoured by the dryness of the climate. Malting barley of fine quality is most extensively produced, though wheat was formerly the chief crop. Oats, beans, peas, turnips, and potatoes are also important crops; and there is a relatively large growth of mustard. Fruit orchards occupy over 2,000 ac. The co. is famous for its draught-horses, cattle, sheep, and pigs; and large quantities of poultry are reared for the London market. On the west the ground rises gradually from the Fenland flat into a range of low hills, which run southward from the coast near Hunstanton, marking the outcrop of the chalk. Farther east there are lower undulations and broad intervening valleys extending to the coast-line. Along the shores of The Wash much land has been gained by embanking the tidal flats, but on the northern coast the sea is rapidly encroaching, and several old villages have disappeared. The western part is drained by the Great Ouse and its tributaries, aided on the low ground by numerous artificial channels. On the eastern side are the Waveney, Yare and Wensum, and Bure, which unite before reaching the sea at Great Yarmouth. A marked feature of this part of the co. is the occurrence of shallow lakes of fresh water, known as "The Broads," much admired for their scenery, and a favourite resort for fishing and for the shooting of wild-fowl. These are chiefly due to the arrested drainage of broad, low-lying river-courses. Hickling Broad and Ormesby Broad are the largest. The strata of the co. dip towards the east, and the oldest beds therefore emerge on its western border. These consist of dark blue "Kimmeridge Clay." On the rising ground farther east a narrow strip of alternating beds of red or white sand, sandstone, and clay are exposed, in which ammonites and other fossils are occasionally found. These form the "Lower Greensand" series. The sands have in places been dug for glass-making. The "Gault" clay, which overlies the Lower Greensand in the South of England, is doubtfully represented in Norfolk; while in the North its place is taken by a band of Red Chalk crowded with fossils, which is admirably exposed at Hunstanton. The White Chalk, which succeeds, underlies five-sixths of the co. The lower portion is hard and flintless, and is used on a limited scale as a building-stone. The Upper Chalk is softer, and contains many flint nodules, which sometimes take the shape of huge irregular cylinders, known as "paramoudras," supposed to be the casts of large sponges. Among the abundant fossils of the chalk may be mentioned sea-urchins, fishes' teeth, and the remains of very large reptiles. The chalk is largely burnt for lime, and also used for the manufacture of whiting. From the scarcity of building-stone, the flints have often been roughly dressed and used for walls, and the small country churches thus built form a characteristic feature. The manufacture of gun-flints was once a staple industry, and is not yet extinct. In various places, especially in the neighbourhood of Norwich, there occurs a variable group of sands, pebbly gravels, and laminated clays, with occasional seams of shells (Norwich Crag Series) of Newer Pliocene Age, and at its base the remains of many extinct land-animals have been found. It is succeeded in the north by the Forest-bed Series. These loamy, gravelly, and peaty beds have yielded bones (which are also frequently dredged up from the bed of the North Sea off Norfolk) of the elephant, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, bear, hyæna, stags of various kinds, etc. Shells, plant-remains, and the drifted stumps of trees are also found. Above this series are thin beds of sand and clay with fossils, and the whole is overlaid by a thick mass of boulder-clay, sand, loam, and gravel, often confusedly intermingled (Contorted Drift), which is held to be the product of an ice sheet filling the bed of the North Sea. Famous sections in these deposits are revealed in the cliffs near Cromer. The plateau gravels on the high ground probably date from the melting of this ice sheet; while the valley gravels, which in many localities have yielded rude flint implements, are of somewhat later date. Blown sands line many parts of the coast, and also occur in some places in the interior. The antiquities are numerous and interesting. Besides the Palæolithic implements mentioned above, Neolithic flints are frequently found. Barrows and old entrenchments occur in many places, and traces of lake-dwellings have been met with. The Romans had several stations and four roads in the co., and remains of the period are frequently unearthed. During their dominion part of the Fenland was embanked, but was afterwards again flooded. With the decay of the Roman power came the colonisation of the county by the Angles, and later its invasion by the Danes, who in 1004 plundered and burnt Norwich. Remains of Norman keeps exist at Castle Rising, Norwich, etc.; and there are many ecclesiastical relics of interest, among which is the Abbey of Walsingham (q.v.). The co. abounds in fine mansions and ancient country houses. Nelson was born at Burnham Thorpe. Norwich is the co. town, and other places of importance are Great Yarmouth, King's Lynn, Thetford, Cromer, Hunstanton, and Wells. Railways traverse the co. in every direction, chiefly under the control of the Great Eastern Company. Agriculture is the chief industry; but the fisheries, both along-shore and deep-sea, are very important; and there is a considerable manufacture of boots and shoes, silk

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Norfolk	.....	 454516 brushes, machinery, mustard and starch, etc., along with corn-milling, malting, and brewing. For parl. purposes the co. is separated into six divs.—Eastern, Mid, Northern, North-Western, South, and South-Western—each returning one member.

Norfolk, Eastern. [NORFOLK.]

Norfolk, Mid. [NORFOLK.]

Norfolk, Northern. [NORFOLK.]

Norfolk, North-Western. [NORFOLK.]

Norfolk, Southern. [NORFOLK.]

Norfolk, South-Western. [NORFOLK.]

Norham, pa., tp., and vil. on the Tweed (here spanned by a bridge), N. Northumb., 8 s.w. of Berwick-upon-Tweed; ac. of pa. 15,169, of tp. 2,343; soil loamy, resting on gravel and stone. N. was formerly of great importance as the capital of Norhamshire (q.v.), and a place where the Bishops of Durham held their courts. The vil. consists principally of one broad street, nearly a mile long, many of the houses in which are of considerable antiquity. The church of St. Cuthbert is chiefly in Norm. style, the only portions of the original work being the chancel and the south arcade; on the south side of the chancel is an altar-tomb bearing a mutilated recumbent effigy of a knight in armour (cross-legged) under an elaborately-carved Dec.

NORHAM CASTLE.
(Photo. York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

stone canopy. The church anciently had three chantries—dedicated to the Blessed Virgin, St. Cuthbert, and St. Nicholas—and possessed the privilege of giving sanctuary for thirty-seven days. Here, in 1291, Edward I. received the homage of Bruce and Baliol, the rival claimants to the Crown of Scotland; here, too, Gospatric, thirteenth Saxon Earl of Northumberland (d. about 1069), is said to have been buried. At the east end have been discovered the foundations of some ancient ecclesiastical building—possibly the Saxon church built here by Egfrid, Bishop of Lindisfarne (828–46), and to which were transferred the remains of Ceolwulf, King of Northumbria (731–38); and a number of carved stones recovered during the excavations have been built up on the spot in the form of a column. There are two Presbyterian churches, and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The Public Hall (1889) comprises reading-rooms. About the centre of the vil. is a grassy space, on which stands a stone cross, 6 ft. 6 in. high. It was restored in 1877, but the six circular steps and the base are original. N. Castle (rendered familiar in modern times by Scott's "Marmion") was built in 1121 by Ralph Flambard, Bishop of Durham, on a rocky platform high above the stream, and soon became the most important of all the fortresses between Carlisle and Berwick. Between 1136 and 1138 it was twice captured and held by David, King of Scotland. King John paid two visits to N., in 1209 and 1211; and in 1213 it was attacked, though unsuccessfully, by Alexander of Scotland. In May, 1291, Edward I. came hither to meet the Scots and receive the rival claimants to the Scottish Crown. From the reign of Edward II., who is said to have greatly strengthened the fabric, to that of Henry VI. the castle played a leading part in Border history, being often attacked by the Scots, but rarely taken. In the reign of Henry VII. it was besieged for sixteen days, in 1497, by James IV. of Scotland, but on the arrival of Lord Surrey the siege was raised. The Scottish monarch, however, returning in 1513, captured N. on August 29; the castle, despoiled by the Scots, was thoroughly repaired by Bishop Ruthal (1509–23); later, having been again partially ruined, it was rebuilt. In 1542 new repairs were effected by Bishop Tunstal; on Tunstal's death (1559) it was detached from the see of Durham and transferred to the Crown, and maintained as a defence up to 1583. The keep, occupying the east angle of the inner ward, measures at its base 86 ft. by 64 ft., with walls from 12 ft. to 15 ft. thick, but less at the summit, where it reached a height of about 90 ft., now reduced to 70 ft. Fragments remain also of other parts of the castle, together with considerable portions of the curtain surrounding it.

Norham Mains, tp., pa. of Norham (q.v.), N. Northumb., 6 s.w. of Berwick; ac. 1,100. Morris Hall is a seat.

Norhamshire, dis., originally a detached part of the co. of Dur., over which the sheriffs, coroner, justices, and other civil officers of the Bishops of Durham exercised royal rights, but in the reign of William IV. annexed to Northumb., and now constituting a ward of that co.

Norland, eccl. pa., tp., and small vil. on an eminence in the vale of the Calder, pa. of and 2 s.s.w. from Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,273. The church of St. Luke is in E. Eng. style; and the Baptists and Methodist New Connexion have chapels.

Norley (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 4½ s.e. from Frodsham (q.v.), N.W. Chesh.; ac. 1,411. The church of St. John the Evangelist is a red sandstone building; and the Wesleyans, Free Methodists, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a Temperance Hall (built 1874),

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norfolk, Eastern	.....	.....	50693
Norfolk, Mid	.....	.....	49612
Norfolk, Northern	.....	.....	51072
Norfolk, N.-Western	.....	.....	51183
Norfolk, Southern	.....	.....	49723
Norfolk, S.-Western	.....	.....	46560
Norham, pa.	Norham	344	2412
Norham, tp.	Norham	344	873
Norham Mains	Norham (1)	344	92
Norland, eccl. pa.	Sowerby Bridge (2)	195	1024
Norland, tp.	Sowerby Bridge (2)	195	1977
Norley (1), eccl. pa.	Acton Bridge (3)	173	691
Norley (1), tp.	Acton Bridge (3)	173	689

a Foresters' Hall (erected 1888), and an endowed church school. N. Hall and N. House are seats.

Norley (2), ha., pa. of and 1 s. by w. from Cowlinge (q.v.), S. Suff.

Normacott, eccl. pa., pas. of Stone and Trentham (q.v.), Mid Staffs., about 4 S.E. of Stoke-upon-Trent. The church of the Holy Evangelists was built in 1847, in E. Eng. style, and was enlarged in 1891. There is a church mission hall, and Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels.

Normanby (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the west bank of the Severn, N.R. Yorks., 6 S.W. of Pickering; ac. of pa. 2,405, of tp. 1,785; soil clayey and loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (renovated) retains some Norm. remains. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Normanby (2), or Normanby-by-Spital, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 11½ N. of Lincoln; ac. 1,676; soil loam and clay, overlying clay and limestone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (renovated 1890) is E. Eng. There are Wesleyan Methodist and Free Methodist chapels.

Normanby (3), tp. and to., pa. of Eston (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4½ S.E. of Middlesbrough; ac. 1,462. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are iron mines and brick and tile works. Crossbeck House is an ancient stone building at the foot of the N. Hills. N. Hall, a handsome modern mansion, is charmingly situated at the foot of the Cleveland Hills, in a well-wooded park of about 40 ac. N. House, another ancient mansion, has some quaint carvings.

Normanby (4), or Normanby and Stowe, tp., pa. of Stowe-by-Gainsborough (q.v.), N.W. Lincs., 5 S.E. of Gainsborough; ac. 1,755.

Normanby (5), vil., pa. of Burton-upon-Stather (q.v.), N. Lincs., 9½ N.W. of Brigg. N. Hall, with a mansion in Italian style standing in a well-timbered deer-park, is a seat.

Normanby (6), ha., pa. of Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Whitby.

Normanby and Stowe. [NORMANBY (5).]

Normanby-by-Spital. [NORMANBY (2).]

Normanby-on-the-Wolds, pa. and small vil., Mid Lincs., 5 S. of Caistor; ac. 1,941; soil stiff, overlying chalk and green sandstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is partly E. Eng. and partly Dec.; the chancel has a credence table, sedilia, and a reredos of Caen stone and alabaster.

Norman Cross, ha. at the junction of the roads from Peterborough and Wansford to Huntingdon, pas. of Folksworth and Yaxley (q.v.), N. Hunts. Barracks formerly stood here, and during the French war about 7,000 French prisoners were confined here during the years 1797–1816.

Normandy, vil., pa. of Ash (q.v.), N.W. Surrey, 4½ N. of Guildford. The Wesleyans have a chapel. N. Park is a seat. [ASH AND NORMANDY.]

Normandykes. [PETERCULTER.]

Normanhurst. [CATSFIELD.]

Norman's Law, eminence (558 ft.), pa. of Abdie, N.E. Fifes., Sc., 5 E.N.E. of Newburgh. The view from the hill is extremely fine. Near the summit are three concentric stone circles.

Normanton (1), pa., tp., and to. on the Calder, W.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Wakefield; ac. of pa. 4,124, of tp. 1,227; soil strong, resting on gravel, hard clay, and coal. The Norm. and Perp. church of All Saints has on the south side a chapel, which has been the burial-place of the families of Bunny of Newland, Torre of Snydale, Faveil, Smith, Mallett, and Levett, and which contains many monuments; at the north-east end of the nave stands an altar-tomb to John Freston (d. 1594); the font is dated 1662. St. John's Roman Catholic school church dates from 1888; and here are Wesleyan, Baptist, Congregational, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The collieries by which the pa. is surrounded produce abundance of coal; and there is a stone quarry and a chemical manufactory. A moat which once surrounded a Roman encampment here is still traceable. Part of the vil. cross still remains. On the east side of the to. is an artificial mound, called "Haw Hill," and supposed to be a barrow.

Normanton (2), pa. on the Gwash, Mid Rutld., 7 W. of Stamford; ac. 720; soil sand and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1874) is a small Perp. building containing some mural monuments to the Heathcote family, and to Baroness Willoughby de Eresby. N. Park and N. Hall are seats.

Normanton (3), pa. and small vil., W. Lincs., 7½ N.E. of Grantham; ac. 1,540; soil loam and heath, overlying stone. The church of St. Nicholas (partially restored 1867) is of mixed periods, the north arcade being E. Eng., the tower Dec. with Perp. window, and the clerestory rich Perp. There are some small charities.

Normanton (4), pa., tp., and vil., S. Derbys., 2 S. of Derby; ac. of pa. 1,390, of tp. 1,181; soil loam overlying clay and marl. The church of St. Giles was rebuilt 1862, in E. Eng. and Perp. styles. There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Normanton (5), ha., pa. of Bottesford (q.v.), N. Leics., 6 N.W. of Grantham.

Normanton (6), ha., pa. of Southwell (q.v.), S.E. Notts., about 7 W. of Newark. N. Court is a seat.

Normanton Division, one of the 19 parl. divs. of the W.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Normanton-le-Heath, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Nailstone (q.v.), W. Leics., 16 W.N.W. of Leicester; ac. 1,320. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1895) is Dec., with some fine windows and an oak screen. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Normanton, New, tp., bor. of Derby (q.v.), S. Derbys.; ac. 209.

Normanton-on-the-Wolds, tp. and vil., pa. of Plumtree (q.v.), S. Notts., 6 S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 803. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Normacott	Normacot	148	5437
Normanby (1), pa.	Pickering (6)	220	200
Normanby (1), tp.	Pickering (6)	220	157
Normanby (2)	Market Rasen (7)	145	347
Normanby (3)	Eston Grange	242	9128
Normanby (4)	Gainsborough (5)	146	289
N'manby-on-the-W.	Usselby (2)	147	139
Normanton (1), pa.	Normanton	179	15480
Normanton (1), tp.	Normanton	179	10234
Normanton (2)	Luffenham (3)	94	81
Normanton (3)	Honington (2)	112	143
Normanton (4), tp.	Derby (2)	128	1186
Normanton (4), pa.	Derby	128	5086
Normanton Division	.....	.....	72012
Normanton-le-H'ath	Ashby-de-la-Zouch	118	166
Normanton, New	Derby [(2)	128	3900
N'manton-on-the-W.	Plumtree (1)	118	209

Normanton-on-Trent, pa. and vil. near the Trent, W. Notts., 4 S.E. of Tuxford; ac. 1,165; soil clayey and alluvial, overlying sand. The church of St. Matthew is a small Gothic building; in the chancel is a piscina and a brass to Robert Curtis, vicar (1680). There are some small charities and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel.

Normanton, South, pa. and vil., E. Derbys., 7 S.W. of Mansfield; ac. 1,934; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael (almost entirely restored 1878) is Dec. and Perp., with a Norm. south doorway; there are two piscinæ in the chancel; in the north aisle is the tomb of Robert Revel (1714) and his wife Ann; during the restoration a fine priest's door with dog-tooth mouldings was discovered. There is a chapel-of-ease, and Primitive, Wesleyan, and (two) Free Methodist chapels. The pa. has some small charities. There are coal-pits, and a market is held every Saturday. Carnfield Hall, an Elizabethan mansion, and Prospect House are seats.

Normanton Spring, vil., pa. of Handsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Sheffield.

Normanton Temple. [Temple Normanton.]

Normanton-upon-Soar, pa. and vil. on the Soar, S. Notts., 12 S.W.S. of Nottingham; ac. 1,500; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. James (restored 1889) is E. Eng.; there is a piscina and sumbry, and monuments to Francis Walkden (1606), William Willoughby (1636), John Powell of Solihull (1777), and Ann Ragdale (1768). There are several charities. The Baptists and Wesleyans have a chapel.

Normoss, ha., pa. of and 1½ S. from the to. of Poulton-le-Fylde (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Norney (1), or Blyth Norney, ha., pa. of Blyth (q.v.), N.W. Notts., about 4 S.W. of Bawtry.

Norney (2), ha., pa. of and 2 N.N.W. from Godalming (q.v.), S.W. Surrey. Here is a church (dedicated to St. Mary) in E. Eng. style.

Norridge, ti., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Upton Scudamore (q.v.), W. Wilts.

Norrie's Law. [Largo.]

Norris Castle. [Cowes.]

Norriston, q.s. pa., pa. of Kilmadock (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., about 10 N.W. of Stirling.

Northall (1). [Northaw.]

Northall (2), vil., pa. of Edlesborough (q.v.), E. Bucks., on the Beds. border, 3 N.E. of Ivinghoe. The Baptists have a chapel.

Northallerton, pa., tp., and mkt. to. (W.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., N.R. Yorks., 17 N. of Ripon; ac. of pa. 14,011, of tp. 3,650; soil various, overlying gravel, sand, and clay. N. formerly returned one member to Parliament, but in 1885 it was merged electorally in the Riding. Consisting principally of one wide street running nearly north and south, it is a healthy and thriving town, depending for its trade on the agricultural district around. The church of All Saints (restored) was originally Norm., dating from about 1120, but was reconstructed 1200–10, and partly destroyed by fire during an irruption of the Scots in 1318. In 1381 the tower was rebuilt by Thomas de Hatfield, Bishop of Durham. The great window of the south transept was inserted by Bishop Neville (1438–57). In 1885 the chancel was rebuilt in Perp. style. The Norm. church is still represented by the massive piers of the north arcade of the nave; the south arcade and the transepts are E. Eng., and the tower Perp.; the font dates from 1662. There is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to All Saints; and the Baptists, Congregationalists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists also have chapels. The town hall, erected 1874 on the site of the old butchers' shambles, contains on the upper floor a large hall, used for public assemblies and entertainments, and on the ground-floor a market-place. Horse, cattle, sheep, cheese, and leather fairs are held in February, May, September, and October. The Sessions House, erected about 1780, comprises two court-houses, in which the general quarter sessions of the peace for the North Riding are held. A hospital (Maison de Dieu), founded 1476 by Roger de Moore, a draper of N., for poor men and women, is now represented by two houses for four poor women. A farmhouse called "Spital" occupies the site of another ancient hospital on the York road, about 1 S. of the town. A cottage hospital was founded 1877. The grammar school, founded in the 14th cent. by a Canon of Durham, is near the church. Thomas Rymer, the editor of the "Fœdera," and John Radcliffe, founder of the library and observatory at Oxford which bear his name, were educated here. Standard Hill, near N., is the place where the famous Battle of the Standard was fought (August 22, 1138) between the Scots, headed by David I., and the English, under William de Fortibus, surnamed "Le Grosse," Earl of Albemarle, and other barons, when the Scots sustained a complete defeat, with a loss of 12,000 men. The battle took its name from the standard of the English host, consisting of the mast of a vessel fastened to a car upon four wheels, at the top of the mast being a large crucifix, having in its centre a silver box containing the Host, and below these the banners of St. Peter of York, St. John of Beverley, and St. Wilfrid of Ripon, the three tutelary saints of Yorkshire.

Northam (1), pa. and vil. on an eminence, commanding a beautiful view of Barnstaple or Bideford Bay and of Lundy Island, N.W. Dev., 1½ N. of Bideford; ac. 4,190; soil light and sandy, resting on gravel and rock. The Perp. church of St. Margaret was restored between 1849 and 1865. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The charities yield about £100 per annum, and there are almshouses for four old maids and four old widows. From the vil. a steep hill descends to N. Burrows, a level plain of turf 1,000 ac. in extent, formed by the sandy deposit from the sea and rivers, and protected from the waves by the Pebble Ridge. [Westward Ho.] The neighbourhood abounds in antiquities. At Kenwith Castle are the remains of ancient fortifications, in the attack on which (A.D. 877–88) the Danes under Hubba were defeated by the Saxons under Alfred, and their Raven standard captured. A spot, still known as "Bloody Corner," is traditionally regarded as the scene of a duel between two of the chieftains.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Normanton-on-Trent	Tuxford (4)	132	312
Normanton, South	Alfreton (1½)	136	4192
Normanton-up.-Soar	Hathern (½)	114	339
Norriston	Doune (3)	426	899

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Northallerton, pa.	Northallerton	218	6006
Northallerton, tp.	Northallerton	218	3802
Northam (1)	Bidefrod (1½)	229	5043

Hallsannery House is a modern mansion, commanding magnificent sea and land views. Other seats are Connibere, Durrant, Elm Field, Lenwood, Port Hill, Raleigh, Wellesbourne, and Woodville.

Northam (2), eccl. pa., pa. of St. Mary, Southampton (q.v.), S. Hants. The church of St. Augustine was built 1881–84, in E. Eng. style. Christ Church, built 1854, is now in ruins.

Northampton (1), co., mun. and parl. bor. (returning two members), mkt. to. (W. & S.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., on the Nen, Mid Northants, 21 N.W. of Bedford; ac. of co. and mun. bor. 1,311, of parl. bor. 1,972. The to. is probably of British origin; in the 11th cent. it became the occasional residence of the Sovereign; in 1131 Henry I. assembled a Parliament here, when the English barons swore homage to his daughter the Empress Matilda, whom he appointed his successor. It was incorporated by Henry II., and has sent members to Parliament since the time of Edward I. In the Civil War N. was held by the Parliamentarians, and in 1675 it was nearly destroyed by fire, more than 600 houses being burnt. N. consists principally of two spacious and regular streets nearly a mile in length, which, intersecting each other at right angles, divide it into four nearly equal parts; the houses, principally of stone, are well built. The water-supply, which is abundant, is in the hands of the corporation. The mun. bor. comprises the pas. of All Saints, St. Giles, St. Peter, and St. Sepulchre, each having a church. The pa. of the Priory of St. Andrew is divided into eccl. pas. with modern churches. There were formerly seven parochial churches within the walls and two without; only four now remain. The church of All Saints (formerly collegiate) was rebuilt after the fire in 1675, the ancient tower (the lower stage of which is Norm. and the upper part Dec.) and the crypt under the chancel being incorporated in the new work. The church of St. Giles (restored 1857) dates from the 12th cent.; in a chapel of the south aisle is an alabaster tomb, supposed to belong to the Gobion family; the west door is Norm. The church of St. Peter (restored 1850) is Late Norm., and is said to occupy the site of a Saxon church, Saxon work having been used by the builders in the present structure. The church of the Holy Sepulchre is one of the four remaining round churches erected by the Templars after the model of the church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem; it contains an effigial brass to George Coles (d. 1640), his two wives, and children. N. is the head of a Roman Catholic diocese, comprising the cos. of Northants, Beds., Bucks., Cambs., Hunts., Norf., and Suffolk. The cathedral of SS. Mary and Thomas, in E. Dec. style, is from the designs of the Pugins (father and son). The bishop's residence, in Marriott Street, is in Domestic-Gothic style. The church of St. John, in Bridge Street, was the chapel of the ancient hospital of St. John the Baptist, founded in 1137 for aged and infirm persons. There are several Nonconformist places of worship, a meeting-house for Friends, and a synagogue. At the Doddridge Congregational chapel (1635) Philip Doddridge was the first minister. The Free Grammar School was founded in 1541; and in the same buildings the Science, Art, and Technical Schools are carried on. The town hall (1864), in St. Giles's Square, is in Gothic style; its principal front is adorned with statues under canopies; the western portion was completed in 1892. The County Hall, in George Row, was erected soon after the fire in 1675; it is in Italian style. At the back is the County Council Chamber (1890). The Corn Exchange Buildings (1850), on the Parade, and the Opera House (1884), in the Guildhall Road, are in Italian style. The Temperance Hall and the Masonic Hall are in Renaissance style, as is the Post Office (1872); the Museum, Free Library, and Reading Room is in the Guildhall Road. There is a good collection of local geological specimens and antiquities. N. has also Public Swimming Baths, several clubs, a General Infirmary, St. Andrew's Hospital for Mental Diseases, a Dispensary and a Medical Institute, an orphanage, and Catholic asylums for children and the aged poor. The Hospital of St. Thomas (1450) has eight in- and seventy out-pensioners; the Hospital of St. John the Baptist still retains its pensioners. [WESTON FAVELL.] The Abbey Park and Franklin's Gardens comprise over 30 ac. of attractive grounds, and the County Cricket Ground lies about 1½ E. of the town. The Pytchley Hunt races are held here in March and November; the course, of about 117 ac., is a little east of the town. N. has a great reputation for its boots and shoes, of which large quantities are made for the supply of the army and the London market; a considerable trade is carried on in the currying and tanning of leather. The town is also noted for its breweries. Here are extensive iron foundries, several maltings, and flour mills; and brick- and tile-making is also carried on. The Cattle Market, in MARKET PLACE, NORTHAMPTON.

(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Northam (2)	Northam	77	5838
N'ampt. (1), parl. bor.	Northampton	66	70872

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
N'ampt. (1), c. & m. b.	Northampton	66	61012

the Cow Meadow, on the south of the town, occupies an area of about 6 ac. Monthly fairs are held.

Northampton (2), small ha., pa. of and 1½ N.N.W. from Ombersley (q.v.), W. Worcs.

Northampton, All Saints. [NORTHAMPTON (1).]

Northampton, Priory of St. Andrew. [NORTHAMPTON (1).]

Northampton, St. Giles. [NORTHAMPTON (1).]

Northampton, St. Peter. [NORTHAMPTON (1).]

Northampton, St. Sepulchre. [NORTHAMPTON (1).

Northamptonshire, one of the South Midland cos. of England, bounded on the north by Lincs., Rutld., and Leics., on the west by Warws., on the south by Oxon, and on the east by Bucks., Beds., Hunts., and Cambs. Its greatest length is 70 miles, and greatest breadth 26 miles. Its total area is 641,991 ac., of which 34 per cent. is arable land, 51 per cent. permanent pasture, 4 per cent. timber, and the remainder town-lands, water, roads, etc. The soil varies from a dark peaty loam in the north-east to rich brown or red loams and clays in the south and west, but is almost everywhere very fertile and in a high state of cultivation. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, and turnips. There is much rich pasture-land, especially in the west; and stock-rearing and dairying are of great importance. The north-eastern part of the co. is low and flat, forming a portion of the Fenlands; and its drainage is largely artificial. But south and west of Peterborough the ground rises; and though there are no notable elevations, the rest of the co. is throughout undulating and diversified, especially in the south-west, while the abundance of fine old trees and of stately country seats gives a pleasing character to much of the scenery. In early times the co. was in great part forest-covered, and the names of some districts—like Rockingham Forest and Yardley Chase—still bear evidence to their former condition. The western part of the co. is upon the watershed of England, the Avon having its source there, and flowing W. to the Severn, while the Welland (forming the northern border) and the Nen (in the centre), which are the chief rivers, flow N.E. to The Wash. The Ouse also rises in the south of the co. Among other canals are the Grand Union and Grand Junction, though these waterways are now not much used. The co. is traversed by the main lines of the London and North Western, the Midland, and the Great Northern railway companies (with that of the Great Western skirting the southern border); and there are also numerous cross-country branches. The geological structure of the co. is simple; the solid strata are all of Secondary (or Mesozoic) Age, and, their general inclination being towards the south-east, their lines of outcrop at the surface tend to run from south-west to north-east. The oldest rocks are the Lower Lias clays, occupying the western part of the co. The Middle Lias marlstone, which succeeds the clays, is chiefly a brown ferruginous limestone, frequently quarried for building; it is usually full of fossils—Rhynchonellæ, Terebratulæ, and Ammonites being the most characteristic. This is overlaid by the Upper Lias clays, which are worked in many places for brick-making. In these clays the bones of large Saurians are sometimes found, and a thin band of limestone among them is known as the "Fish and Insect Bed," from the prevalence of fossils of that nature. These Liassic rocks are succeeded by the Oolitic series of alternating beds of sandstone, limestone, and clay, which occupy the eastern half of the co., except where they have been cut through by the streams. At the base of these Oolites is the Northampton Sand, a ferruginous and sometimes calcareous sandstone, with ironstone beds, which are extensively worked and smelted, the annual output of the blast-furnaces being about 144,000 tons. The next member of this series is the Lincolnshire Limestone, which at the base is thin and fissile (Collyweston Slates), and is then used for roofing, while the more massive upper portion furnishes an excellent freestone largely employed since the Middle Ages for architectural purposes. Above this is found the Great Oolite series of clays and limestones, the latter largely used for lime; and these are capped by the Cornbrash, a hard ferruginous limestone widely developed in the vicinity of Peterborough. Next in succession is the Oxford Clay, much worked in the east of the co. for bricks. A thick covering of superficial drift deposits, however, frequently occurs at the surface, transported from the north-east during the Glacial Period. Of later date are the river gravels, which occur as terraces in the larger valleys, in positions high above the greatest floods of the present day. In these gravels ancient stone implements have occasionally been found. Arrow-heads and other flint weapons of a later period also occur sparingly on the surface of the land. There are numerous earthworks, camps, and tumuli of prehistoric date. Roman remains have very frequently been unearthed, especially in the vicinity of the numerous camps, as at Castor, Irchester, etc.; and the two great Roman roads, Watling Street and Ermine Street, traverse the co. At this early date the iron-ore seems to have been worked. During the Saxon inroads the region was occupied by the Middle Angles, and it afterwards formed part of the kingdom of Mercia. It was harried by the Danes in the 10th cent. Of later noteworthy events are the sanguinary battle at Northampton (1460), when Henry VI. was taken prisoner by the Yorkists; the execution of Mary Queen of Scots at Fotheringhay Castle in 1587; the mustering of the Parliamentarian army at Northampton in 1642, followed by the drawn battle of Edgehill in the same year, and the crushing Royalist defeat at Naseby in 1645. Northampton is the co. to., and other tos. of importance are Peterborough (in part), Wellingborough, and Kettering. The principal industries besides agriculture are boot and shoe making, tanning, and other branches of the leather trade; lace-making, iron-stone mining and smelting, malting, brewing, and milling. For parl. purposes the co. is separated into four divs.—North, East, Mid, and South—each returning one member.

Northamptonshire, East. [NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.]

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
N'ampton, All Saints	Northampton	66	9133
N'ampton, St. Andr.	Northampton	66	10625
N'ampton, St. Giles	Northampton	66	20202
N'ampton, St. Peter	Northampton	66	1752

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
N'ton, St. Sepulchre	Northampton	66	19300
Northamptonshire	.....	.....	302183
N'amptonshire, East	.....	.....	65501

Northamptonshire, Mid. [NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.]

Northamptonshire, North. [NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.]

Northamptonshire, South. [NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.]

Northamridge, ha., pa. of Northam (q.v.), N. Dev., 2½ N.W. of Bideford.

North Anston. [ANSTON-CUM-MEMBRIS.]

Northaw, or Northall, pa. and vil., S.W. Herts., 5½ S.E. of Hatfield; ac. 3,295; soil clay, overlying gravel. The former church of St. Thomas à Becket was destroyed by fire in 1881; the new church is in Dec. style; the chancel contains sedilia and a piscina. There are large charities, partially devoted to the maintenance of the schools, and a Convalescent Home. Nyn Park and Woodlands are seats.

Northay, ha., pa. of White Staunton (q.v.), S. Somerset, 8 S.W. of Crewkerne.

Northbeck, ha., pa. of Scredington (q.v.), S. Lincs., 3 S.E. of Sleaford.

North Beechburn, colliery vil., pa. of Auckland St. Andrew (q.v.), S. Dur., about 2 W.N.W. of Bishop Auckland.

North Berwick, royal burgh, pa., and seaport to., N. Haddings., Sc.; ac. 5,067. The to., on the shores of a small bay of the same name, is 23 N.E. of Edinburgh. It consists principally of one long main street, running east and west, and another proceeding northward towards the sea; and on the East and West Links are some houses of a superior kind. The harbour, which is small, is formed by a tolerably good pier, and the rocks at the entrance allow only small vessels to enter; these can ride here in safety, the harbour being boomed. The chief trade is the export of potatoes, and the imports are coal and bones for manure. There are five churches and several good schools in the town. Fidra Roads, about 2 W., are considered a very safe anchorage. In the offing are several bleak islets, only of value as rabbit warrens; and 3 E., within 2 miles of the coast, is the Bass Rock (q.v.). About 3 E. of Berwick are the interesting ruins of Tantallon Castle (q.v.). A little south-west are the extensive remains of an abbey, said to have been founded by David I. for Cistercian nuns; and directly south of the town rises North Berwick Law. N. B. House is a seat.

North Berwick Law, eminence (612 ft.), pa. of and ¾ S.S.E. from North Berwick, N. Haddings., Sc. The Law is a conical hill of igneous formation. The ruins of a signal-station on the summit, erected during the French war, produce a picturesque effect. The view is magnificent.

North Bitchburn, colliery vil., pa. of Witton-le-Wear (q.v.), S. Dur., about 4 W.N.W. of Bishop Auckland. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

North Blyth, small fishing vil., pa. of Bedlington (q.v.), S. Northumb., about 5 W.S.W. of Morpeth. It occupies a small peninsula at the mouth of the Blyth, which is here crossed by a ferry to the town of Blyth. Coal is exported.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
N'amptonshire, Mid	.....	.....	48794
N'amptonshire, Nth.	.....	.....	46718
N'amptonshire, Sth.	.....	.....	46627
Northaw	Potter's Bar (3)	13	582
NorthBerwick, burgh	North Berwick	383	1324
rth Berwick, pa.	North Berwick	383	3038

Northborough, or Northburgh, pa. and vil., N Northants, 2 S. of Market Deeping, on the Lin border; ac. 1,120; soil alluvial, resting on c and silt. The church of St. Andrew (chiefly D and Perp., with traces of Norm. and E. Eng.) a singular and lofty gable bellcot at the west e supported by tall flat buttresses of the 12th ce On the south-east is a turret, enclosing a suppos priest's chamber. The transeptal chantry, ill trating the transition from Dec. to Perp., has f windows and some monumental arches and canopi and contains monuments of the Cromwells a Cleypoles. One tomb, dated 1594, is supposed be that of Oliver Cromwell's widow (d. 166 there is also an inscribed floor-stone to Mart daughter of John Cleypole (d. 1663). On the w of the south aisle are some frescoes. The chur was restored 1893, when sedilia and a dou piscina were discovered, together with a sepulch There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. T remains of the manor-house, built by Geoffrey la Mare 1340, consist chiefly of the ground-fl of the gatehouse and the hall of the house; t hall is now much subdivided, but at the w end three original doorways, with ogee-arch heads enriched with crockets and the ball-flow ornament, remain. It still retains its origi crocketed gable, culminating in an octago chimney at the west end, and a cornice embellis with the ball-flower. It was here that Cr well's widow died, as also did Mrs. Cleypole, favourite daughter, who was buried in Henry V chapel at Westminster Abbey. On the road Peterborough are the remains of an ancient bri of 16 arches.

Northbourne, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 4 S. of Sa wich; ac. 3,600; soil loamy, overlying chalk. T church of St. Augustine is partly Norm., par E. Eng., and contains a fine monument to Edwin Sandys (1629). Lord Northbourne tak his title from this place.

Northbrook, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Kirtlingt (q.v.), Mid Oxon.

North Burton. [BURTON FLEMING.]

North Chapel, pa. and vil., W. Sussex, 5 N. Petworth, on the road to London; ac. 3,923; s and subsoil clay. The church of St. John Baptist was rebuilt 1877–78, in E. Eng. sty There are two almshouses. Broadlands is a seat

North Chideock, ha., pa. of and 1 N. fr Chideock (q.v.), W. Dors.

Northchurch, or Berkhampstead St. Mary, and vil., E. Herts., 3½ S.E. of Tring; ac. 3,888; s loam, overlying clay and chalk. The church St. Mary (restored 1883) is Dec.; on the sou wall of the nave is a tablet to Peter the Wild B found in the forest of Hertswold, Hanover, 1725, who died here in 1785. There is a missi church and a Baptist chapel. There are seve charities. Rossway is a seat.

Northcott, tp., pa. of Boyton (q.v.), W. D 6 N. of Launceston; ac. 668.

Northdelph. [NORDELPH.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Po LAT
North Berwick, to.	North Berwick	383	2
Northborough	Peakirk	82
Northbourne	Walmer (2)	83
North Chapel	Haslemere (5)	43
Northchurch	Berkhampstead (1½)	28	1
Northcott	Launceston (6)	223

Northelm, ti., pa. of and 1½ S.S.E. from Chew Magna (q.v.), N. Somerset.

North End (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Fulham (q.v.), S. Middx. The church is dedicated to St. Mary.

North End (2), vil., pa. of Burton Dassett (q.v.), S.E. Warws., 4 N.E. of Kineton. There is a chapel-of-ease in Gothic style; and the Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels.

North End (3), ha., pa. of Great Waltham (q.v.), Mid Essex, 4 S.E. of Dunmow. There is a chapel-of-ease, a plain building.

North End (4), ha., pa. of and 2½ W. from Belchamp Walter (q.v.), N.E. Essex.

North End (5), small ha., pa. of Littlebury (q.v.), N. Essex, 2 N.W. of Saffron Walden.

Northend (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Portsea (q.v.), S. Hants. The church of St. Mark was built 1874, in E. Eng. style.

Northend (2), ha., pa. of Culmstock (q.v.), N. Dev., 7 N.E. of Cullompton.

Northend (3), ha., pa. of North Stoneham (q.v.), S. Hants, 5½ N. of Southampton.

Northend (4), ha., pa. of Crayford (q.v.), N. Kent, ½ S. of Erith.

Northend (5), ha., pa. of Hamsey (q.v.), E. Sussex, 3 N. of Lewes.

Northend (6), ha., pa. of Findon (q.v.), W. Sussex, 5 N. of Worthing.

Northenden, pa., tp., and vil. on the Mersey, N. Chesh., 6 S. of Manchester; ac. of pa. 5,565, of tp. 1,437; soil clayey, resting on clay and gravel. The church of St. Wilfred, rebuilt 1875 (except the E. Eng. tower), in E. Eng. style, contains tablets to the Tattons of Wythenshawe Hall and others. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities yield about £90 a year. Wythenshawe Hall was garrisoned for the King during the Civil War, and captured 1643. Other seats are Rose Hill and Sharston Hall, dating in part from 1701.

Northen Etchells, tp., pa. of Northenden (q.v.), N.E. Chesh., 7 S. of Manchester; ac. 2,322.

North Esk, q.s. pa., pa. of Inveresk (q.v.), N.E. Edins., Sc. It forms part of the to. of Musselburgh (q.v.). The church is modern and in Gothic style.

Northfield (1), pa. and vil. on the Rea, N.W. Worcs., 5½ S.W.S. of Birmingham; ac. 5,951; soil loam, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Lawrence is chiefly E. Eng. and Dec., but has some traces of Norm. work. St. Michael's is a chapel-of-ease. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. Of Weoley Castle but little remains. There are freestone quarries and brickworks.

Northfield (2), estate with seat of the same name, on the Annan, pa. of and about 1 N. from Annan (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc.

North Finchley. [FINCHLEY.]

Northfleet, pa. and vil., N.W. Kent, 2 W. of Gravesend; ac. 3,934 land, 404 water; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Botolph (restored) is Dec., with portions of a still older edifice; there is a fine brass to Peter de Lacey (d. 1375), a 14th-cent. rood-screen, sedilia, and monuments. The pa. contains Roman Catholic, Congregational, Primitive Methodist, and Wesleyan chapels. The Factory Club was erected in 1878. Huggens' College consists of residences for decayed ladies, and there are also out-pensioners. The public recreation ground has an area of 10 ac. The north-west marsh was formerly covered by the Thames, but is now protected by high flood-gates. There are large Portland cement, chalk, lime, and brick works.

CEMENT WORKS, NORTHFLEET.

North Forty-foot Bank. [FORTY-FOOT BANK, NORTH.]

North Hales. [COVEHITHE.]

North Hill, pa. and vil. on the Lynher, E. Cornw., 7 S.W. of Launceston; ac. 7,546; soil light, overlying granite and slate. The church of St. Torney (restored 1892) is Perp.; in the chancel are a piscina and part of a squint. There is a fine altar-tomb to Thomas Vyncents (d. 1606) and his wife, with their effigies and those of their fifteen children. In the pa. are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. Trebartha Hall, on the banks of the Lynher, is a seat; the Tors, the wood, and a romantic waterfall combine to make the scenery here very beautiful.

Northiam, pa. and vil., E. Sussex, 8 N.W. of Rye; ac. 3,486 land and 14 water; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is principally Dec.;

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
North End (1)	.....	.....	5702
Northend (1)	Portsmouth (½)	73	11786
Northenden, pa.	Northenden	181	2347
Northenden, tp.	Northenden	181	1560
Northen Etchells	Northenden	181	758

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
North Esk	Inveresk	389	5532
Northfield (1)	Northfield	138	9907
Northfleet	Northfleet	21	11717
North Hill	Launceston (7)	223	971
Northiam	Robertsbridge (8)	48	1128

the tower is partly Norm., with some work reputed to date from the Saxon period. On the north side is the mausoleum of the Frewen family. There are two Wesleyan chapels. Brickwall is a seat.

Northill, pa. and vil., Mid Beds., 3¾ W.N.W. of Biggleswade; ac. 3,943; soil and subsoil mostly clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored) is partly Dec. and partly Perp.; the stained heraldic glass, formerly in the east window, has been inserted elsewhere; a brass with Latin inscription, brought hither from Ampthill in 1890, commemorates Sir Nicholas Hervey (d. 1532); the church retains six ancient stalls, four piscinæ, and some curious tiles. The church of All Saints, Caldicote (chapel-of-ease), is in Byzantine style. The charities for distribution amount to £50 yearly. At Caldicote are five almshouses, erected and endowed 1876. About half-way between N. church and Ickwell Bury [ICKWELL] is a singular earthwork, either British or Roman, enclosing some long pools, believed to have been used as fish-ponds by the monks either of N. College or of the Priory of Ickwell Bury. The college was founded temp. Henry IV. as a cell to Marmoutier.

Northington, pa., and vil., Mid Hants, 9 N.E. of Winchester; ac. 2,414; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. John the Evangelist was rebuilt in 1889, in Perp. style. N. Grange, a seat, was designed by Inigo Jones, and enlarged by Sir John Soane. George IV., when Prince of Wales, resided here.

Northlands, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Sibsey (q.v.), Mid Lincs. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Northleach, pa., tp., and mkt. to. (W.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., on the Cotswold Hills, W. Glouc., 13 E.S.E. of Cheltenham; ac. of pa. 3,997, of tp. 43; soil stone-brash, overlying rock. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1884) is a noble specimen of Perp.; the porch of two bays is enriched throughout with tracery, and has a groined roof; and the exterior of the building is relieved by canopied niches and crocketed pinnacles; the chancel retains sedilia; the rood-loft in the north aisle and a double squint in the south (or Bricknell) chapel were discovered during the restoration; in the nave are some ancient brasses to woolmen of the to. and others, including one to John Fortey (d. 1458), by whom the clerestory was built; the communion plate comprises a chalice and paten cover of Elizabethan date, and a tall gilt chalice of 1620. The Congregational chapel is in E. Eng. style. The former Wesleyan chapel is now used as Salvation Army barracks. There is an Institute and Reading Room, with a library attached. The charities include almshouses for six men and as many women; there are also 50 ac. of grass-land on which each householder has a common right to pasture one "milch cow." Two statute fairs for hiring servants are held in October. The neighbourhood is celebrated for its fine breed of Cotswold sheep and Hereford short-horned cattle.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Northill	Biggleswade (4)	41	1419
Northington	Micheldever (4) [(5	58	276
Northleach, pa.	Notgrove & Westfield	96	1106
Northleach, tp.	Notgrove & Westfield	96	787
Northleigh (1)	Honiton (4) [(5)	155	190
North Liberties	.....	.....	2335

Northleigh (1), pa. consisting of a few scatt houses, S. Dev., 4 S.E. of Honiton; ac. 994; mixed, overlying red marl. The Perp. churc St. Giles was restored in 1869; it contains a N font. The charities amount to about £15 a ye

Northleigh (2). [LEIGH, NORTH (1).]

Northleigh (3), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from G leigh (q.v.), N. Dev.

Northlew. [LEW, NORTH.]

North Liberties, bar., N. co. Lim., Ir.; ac. 3 It was formed from Pubblebrien bar., with w the population is often returned.

North Lindsey (or Brigg) Division. [BRIGG NORTH LINDSEY) DIVISION.]

North Lonsdale Division, one of the 23 parl. of Lancs. It lies in the north of the co., an turns one member.

Northlordland, ha., pa. of and 6 S.E. from bergh (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Northmavine, pa., Shetld., Sc. It comprises most northerly portion of Mainland island, is n 15 miles in length and from 5 to 10 miles in brea ac. 49,037. The pa. church is at Hillswick, 36 N. by road from Lerwick.

Northmolton. [MOLTON, NORTH.]

Northmoor, pa. and vil. on the Isis, S.W. O 6½ S.W. of Oxford; ac. 2,037; soil limestone gravel, overlying gravel. The church of St. D (restored 1887) is of mixed periods; the curio constructed west tower is Dec.; the E. Eng. cha contains a piscina, three sedilia, and a paint the Dec. north chapel has a piscina and sepulchral recesses. The Primitive Methodists Wesleyans have chapels. There are charitie over £50 per annum.

Northmoor Green, or Moorland, eccl. pa. and pa. of North Petherton (q.v.), Mid Somerset. church of SS. Peter and John is a modern build Northmostown, ha., pa. of Otterton (q.v.), S. 3 N.W. of Sidmouth.

Northmuir, vil., pa. of and 1 N. by W. Kirriemuir (q.v.), W. Forfs., Sc.

Northolme. [WAINFLEET ST. THOMAS.]

Northolt, pa. and vil., Mid Middx., 10 N.W London; ac. 2,217; soil and subsoil clay. church of St. Mary is a Dec. and Perp. building contains brasses to Henry Rowdell (d. 1452), Gyfforde and his wife Susan (d. 1560), an Isaiah Bures, vicar (d. 1610), and his wife; a s to Samuel Lisle, Bishop of St. Asaph, 1744–49, memorials to members of the Shadwell family; font is Perp. Several fights during the War the Roses and the Civil War took place nea Iselips Manor is a seat.

Northop, pa. and vil., Mid Flints., 3 N. of M ac. 10,675, with 2,338 tidal water and foresh soil boulder-clay and sand and gravel, overl Coal Measures. The estuary of the Dee forms north-east boundary. The church of St. Eur and St. Peter (rebuilt 1840) is a handsome edifi Perp. style, with a tower of five stages; it cont

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		P LA
North Lonsdale Div.	.....	.....	5
Northmavine	Thurso (186)	744
Northmoor	Oxford (6½)	63
Northmoor Green	Bridgewater (2)	152
Northolt	Harrow (2½)	11
Northop	Connahs Quay (2)	188

monuments with effigies of Edwyn ap Gronow (d. 1073), a Welsh chieftain who withstood William I.; Ithel Vychan ap Bledd-Vach, a knight apparently of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, in 14th-cent. armour; and a lady (d. 1482), said to be the celebrated beauty Leuci Llwyd; the last-named is surmounted by an elaborate canopy. There are Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. There are some remains of Llys Edwyn, the abode of Edwyn ap Gronow (d. 1073). [MOEL-Y-GAER (1)]. Shipbuilding and brick- and tile-making are carried on, and there are important collieries and lead mines in the vicinity.

Northorpe (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Lincs., 8 N.E. of Gainsborough; ac. 1,785; soil loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist is of Norm. plan, but chiefly Perp. architecture; the door of the south aisle is beautifully carved, and possibly dates from 1370; the arcades and a doorway in the chancel are Norm.; in the north chancel wall is a small Easter sepulchre, and opposite a piscina; there are remains of three brasses of the Yerburgh family, and brasses to William Monson (d. 1538) and Anthony Monson (d. 1648). The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. Parts of the old Hall, an Elizabethan building, are still standing; the New Hall is a seat.

Northorpe (2), ha., pa. of Donnington (q.v.), S. Lincs., 8 E. of Falkingham.

Northorpe (3), ha., pa. of Thurlby (q.v.), S. Lincs., 2 S. of Bourn.

Northover, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, adjoining Ilchester; ac. 440; soil loamy, resting on gravel. The Gothic church of St. Andrew, which contains an E. Norm. font, was restored 1878, when a beautifully-painted triptych was placed in the chancel, the subject being the Nativity. A coin of Augustus Cæsar found here has been sent to the British Museum.

Northowram, tp. and to. in north-east part of pa., and partly in the bor. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 3,520. The church of St. Thomas dates from 1859. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, New Connexion Methodists, Baptists, and Congregationalists have chapels. There is a Mechanics' Institute. The income derived from a farm called "Moor Fall" and a stone quarry at Swales Moor is devoted to Board School scholarships and to pensions to aged people in the proportion of one-third and two-thirds. There is a worsted spinning manufactory, and the neighbourhood abounds in stone quarries and collieries. N. Hall is a seat.

Northrepps, pa. and vil., E. Norf., 7 N. of North Walsham; ac. 2,731; soil light, subsoil gravel. The church of St. Mary is Perp.; the Perp. screen, found in a barn, is now deposited in sections in the tower, the upper stage of which is decorated with royal coats-of-arms, monograms, etc., the lower stage bearing "M R" crowned. Sir Thomas Fowell Buxton, Bart., died at N. in 1845. N. Hall is an Elizabethan structure with modern additions.

North Rocks, off Ards bar., E. co. Down, Ir., about 2 N.E. of Guns Island (q.v.). They are also called St. Patrick's Rocks.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Northorpe (1)	Northorpe	155	196
Northover	Martock (5)	140	79
Northowram	Ovenden (½)	196	20517

North Roe, ha., pa. of Northmavine (q.v.), Mainland island, Shetland, Sc., 24 N. of Voe.

North Sand Head. [GOODWIN SANDS.]

Northsceugh, High, ha., pa. of and 3½ S.E. from Cumwhitton (q.v.), N. Cumb.

Northsceugh, Low, ha., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Cumwhitton (q.v.), N. Cumb.

Northshield Rings, hill-fort, pa. of Eddlestone (q.v.), N. Peebs., Sc., 5½ N. of Peebles. It is oval in form, consisting of three stone walls with sunk fosses; its length and breadth are 450 ft. and 370 ft. respectively.

North Shore. [KIRKDALE (2).]

North Side, ha., pa. of Camerton (q.v.), W. Cumb., 1 N. of Workington.

North Street, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Stoke (q.v.), N. Kent.

North Town, ha., pa. of Cookham (q.v.), E. Berks., about 1 N. of Maidenhead.

Northumberland, a maritime co. forming the most northerly portion of England, separated on the north from the Scotch cos. of Berwick and Roxburgh by the Tweed and the Cheviot Hills, bounded on the west by Cumberland, on the south by Durham, and on the east by the North Sea. Its greatest length is 68 miles, and greatest breadth 52 miles. Its rugged and picturesque coast-line has a length of 70 miles, and close to the coast are the islets Holy Isle, the Farne Islands, and Coquet Isle. The total area of the co. is 1,283,264 ac., of which 36 per cent. is permanent pasture or meadow land, 19 per cent. arable, 35 per cent. uncultivated hill-pasture, 3 per cent. timber land, and the remainder mineral land, waste, roads, etc. The prevalent soil of the lowlands is gravelly loam and clay, while the grassy Cheviots make excellent sheep-walks; and to the south of them are many tracts of limestone soil which afford nutritive herbage, but there are other considerable areas of almost soil-less craggy and heathery moorland. The cultivated land is chiefly in the eastern part of the co., where agriculture is skilfully and vigorously prosecuted, the chief crops being oats, barley, wheat, turnips, and potatoes. For the high quality of its sheep, horses, and cattle the co. is celebrated. A famous herd of half-wild white cattle, supposed to be the direct descendants of the British wild cattle, is preserved at Chillingham Park. The Cheviot Hills form a centre from which the ground descends towards the south and east in a succession of high moorlands trenched by valleys. The chief rivers are the Tyne, with its tributaries the North Tyne and Rede; the Blyth, Wansbeck, Coquet, Aln, and Tweed, with its tributary the Till. Most of these streams afford excellent sport to the angler. Internal communication is afforded by the North Eastern Railway Company. The oldest rocks are the small inliers of contorted clay-slates and grits of Silurian age. These strata are covered unconformably by volcanic rocks of Old Red Sandstone age, consisting of thick beds of ancient lava (porphyrite) and volcanic ash, of which the Cheviot Hills are to a large extent composed. Overlying and dipping away southward and eastward from this boss of volcanic rocks are the Carboniferous strata which occupy the remainder of the co. At the base these consist of dark-red Conglomerates, made up chiefly of rounded fragments of the porphyrites, which pass upwards into a thick series of sandstone, greenish and purplish shales, and impure limestone. These rocks are capped by the thick beds of coarsish sandstone (the Harbottle Grits) forming most of the high barren moorlands in the extreme west of the co. Next follow a variable succession of thin limestones, shales with clay-ironstone nodules, sandstones and grits of different degrees of coarseness, and thin coal seams (the Bernician Series). In these rocks fossils are often numerous, especially crinoid stems and large Producti and other brachiopods. Some of the coal-seams are worked, and the rocks are traversed by numerous mineral lodes which have yielded lead in large quantities, and there are still important mines of barytes at Fallowfield, and other places. An interesting feature in these rocks is the occurrence of a thick sheet of intrusive dolerite or basalt (extensively quarried for road-metal, etc.) known as the Whin Sill, which can be traced throughout the co. from the valley of the Tyne, near Haltwhistle, to the coast at Alnwick, Bamborough, and Holy Isle. There are also basalt dykes of later date which cut across the strata, usually with a south-east to north-west course. The Bernician Series is overlaid in the south-east of the co. by about 300 ft. of sandstone and shale (Millstone Grit and Gannister Series), and these in turn are covered by the true Coal Measures, consisting of alternations of sandstone, shale, coal-seams, and under-clays, about 2,000 ft. in thickness. It is from the 16 or 18 workable coal-seams of these Measures that the enormous output of the co. (over 9,000,000 tons annually) is chiefly got. Large quantities of fireclay are also obtained. The only other solid rocks present are the small patches of Permian Rocks which occur immediately to the north of the mouth of the Tyne. The ice-sheet under which this area was buried during the Glacial period has spread a thick covering of boulder-clay and gravel over all the lower ground in the co. The gravels are frequently heaped up into long steep ridges called "eskers," probably marking the course of the sub-glacial rivers. Of later date are the peaty deposits of the moorland districts, in which are found the remains of the red deer, etc.; and the loams (used for pottery and bricks) and gravels of the present river-valleys. The coast is frequently fringed with high dunes of blown sand. Relics of the Later Stone Age are abundant, including axe-heads, hammers, etc., of stone and flint arrow-heads, knives, etc. Many burial-places of this or the succeeding Bronze Age also exist, and there are numerous ancient camps, cairns, and incised stones. Roman remains abound, among which Hadrian's Wall, built in the 2nd cent., is the most interesting. In the early days of the Saxon invasion the co. formed the kingdom of Bernicia, the capital of which was at Bamborough. Early in the 7th cent. Æthelfrith established the kingdom of Northumbria over all the lands between the Forth and the Humber, and its later kings still further extended their rule. At this period Lindisfarne or Holy Isle was one of the principal seats of religion and learning in England. In the 9th cent. N. fell for a time under the Danish rule. N. resisted for some time the Norman Conqueror, and felt the full measure of his wrath. In later times, being the chief Border county, it was frequently harried by the Scots, and many celebrated battles were fought within its borders. There are numerous fine remains of castles and castellated mansions and of ecclesiastical buildings in the co. Of the latter, those on Holy Isle and at Hexham are especially noteworthy. Newcastle is the capital, and other towns are North Shields and Tynemouth, Morpeth, Blyth, Hexham, and Alnwick. Berwick-upon-Tweed is usually held to constitute an independent co. The chief industries of the co. besides agriculture are coal-mining, shipbuilding, smelting of various ores, iron and steel working in various branches, the manufacture of machinery, heavy artillery, chemicals, glass-ware, etc. These all have their centre on the Tyne, and outside the coal-field the co. is very sparsely populated. The fisheries, both along-shore and deep-sea, are also very important. For parl. purposes the co. is separated into four divs.—viz. Wansbeck, Tyneside, Hexham and Berwick-upon-Tweed—each returning one member.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Northrepps	Cromer (3)	138	625
Northumberland	.....	.....	506030

Northumberland Heath, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Erith, N. Kent.

North Water Bridge, ha. with railway station, near the mouth of the Esk, pa. of St. Cyrus (q.v.), S. Kincs., Sc., about 3 N. of Montrose.

Northway, ha., pa. of Aschurch (q.v.), N. Glouces., 2 N.E. of Tewkesbury.

Northwich, tp. and mkt. to. (F.), head of U. and of Co. Co. dis., at the conflux of the Weaver and the Dane, pa. of Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 11 S.E. of Warrington; ac. 13. N. is mentioned in the Domesday Survey. During the Civil War it was visited by the Parliamentary forces, who fortified the place and furnished it with a garrison. In the following March it was vainly attacked by a detachment of Royalists; but in 1643, in consequence of the defeat of Sir William Brereton, near N., the Parliamentarians were compelled to withdraw their garrison and abandon the place. In and around the to. are numerous salt works and rock-salt mines. The industries also include dock-yards, in which flat-bottomed boats are built for the conveyance of salt; iron foundries, brick- and tile-making, chemical works, and brewing. The streets are narrow and irregular, and, owing to the immense excavations occasioned by the pumping-up of brine, subsidences of the ground not infrequently occur. In 1892 a portion of the High Street, which had sunk below the level of the Weaver, had to be raised 6 ft. The Perp. church of St. Helen, Witton, stands on high ground overlooking the Dane; the roof, which is very richly carved, dates from 1686-88; the chancel was rebuilt 1861. The church of the Holy Trinity was erected 1842 by the trustees of the Weaver Navigation. The Catholic chapel of St. Wilfred was built 1866. There are also Congregational, Free Methodist, Primitive Methodist, and Wesleyan chapels. The town hall is disused, owing to the subsidence of the site; the Drill Hall is used for concerts, etc. The Brunner Free Public Library and Museum was opened 1887. The commodious market-house dates from 1843. Verdin Park (formerly part of the Wennington Bank estate, and measuring about 20 ac.) was presented (1887) to the town by the late Robert Verdin, M.P., together with a mansion (converted into the

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Northwich	Northwich	172	938

Victoria Infirmary) and the Public Brine Baths, both of these buildings being within the enclosure. Witton House is a seat. [CASTLE NORTHWICH AND WITTON.]

Northwich Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Chesh. It returns one member.

Northwick (1), ha. on the Severn, pa. of Henbury (q.v.), S.W. Glouces., 5 S.W. of Thornbury. [REDWICK AND NORTHWICK.]

Northwick (2), ha., pa. of and 1½ W.N.W. from Mark (q.v.), N.E. Somerset.

Northwick (3), ti., pa. of and 2 N. from Chew Magna (q.v.), N. Somerset.

Northwick (4), ha., pa. of Blackley (q.v.), S. Worcs., 2½ N.W. of Moreton-in-the-Marsh. N. Park is a seat.

Northwick (5), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Claines, North (q.v.), Mid Worcs.

North Withial, a small uninhabited island of the Scilly group. Its area is only 8 ac.

Northwold, pa. and vil. on the Wissey, S.W. Norf., 7½ N. of Brandon, on the road from Thetford to Lynn; ac. 5,214; soil a mixture of loam, sand, chalk, and fen, overlying chalk. The church of St. Andrew is Perp. and E. Eng.; the tower has various devices inlaid with flint; the roof of the nave is of oak, painted and richly gilt and ornamented with figures of angels with extended wings. There is a large Wesleyan chapel, and one for Primitive Methodists. There are fourteen almshouses for poor people, and several charities. A fair is held yearly on the 30th of November and following day; there is a large chalk pit in this pa. The vil. is pleasantly situated, and contains several exceedingly pretty residences; at the Stoke end is an ancient stone cross. The national school is endowed. The old school is now used as a village hall, in which parochial meetings and entertainments are held. An old farmhouse in the vil., bearing the date 1635, is now a reading-room, with an endowment. Another library, given by a late rector, is now self-supporting.

Northwood (1), pa. and vil., N. I. of W., 2½ N. of Newport; ac. 4,289; soil loamy, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored and the tower and spire built 1864) is a Norm. building containing some fine stained glass. There are charities of about £30 yearly, and the school has a small endowment; there is a Wesleyan chapel. Parkhurst prison stands partly in N.

Northwood (2), eccl. pa., pas. of Ruislip, Rickmansworth, and Watford, S.W. Herts. and N.W. Middx., 3 W. of Pinner. Holy Trinity church is in E. Eng. style.

Northwood (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Stoke-upon-Trent (q.v.), N. Staffs. The church of the Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style.

Northwood (4), tp., pa. of and 3 N. from Ellesmere (q.v.), W. Salop, on the Flints. border.

Northwood (5), ha., pa. of and 1½ N. from Westbury-on-Severn (q.v.), W. Glouces.

Northwood (6), ha., pas. of St. Peter and St. Lawrence (q.v.), E. Kent, 1 N. of Ramsgate.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Northwich Division	.....	.....	69893
Northwold	Brandon (6)	86	1144
Northwood (1)	Cowes (1½)	87	9468
Northwood (2)	Northwood	17	711
Northwood (3)	Bucknall & Northw'd	147	10211

Northwood (7), ha., pa. of and 3½ N.W. from Wem (q.v.), Salop.

Northwood (8), ha., pa. of Stoughton (q.v.), W. Sussex, 6½ N.W. of Chichester.

North Wood End, ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Hawnes (q.v.), N. Beds.

Nortoft, ha., pa. of Guilsborough (q.v.), W. Northants, 10 N.W. of Northampton.

Norton (1), pa. and large vil., S.E. Dur., 1½ N. of Stockton-on-Tees, on the road to Sunderland; ac. 4,653; soil fertile. N. has a large village green, on which was formerly held a weekly fair; there is a tramway connecting N. with Stockton-on-Tees. The church of St. Mary (restored) was formerly collegiate, and had eight canons; it is chiefly Trans. Norm., with E. Norm. portions; the chancel retains a piscina and 13th-cent. sedilia. The north transept, known as the Blakiston Porch, contains several mural monuments; the south transept, formerly a chapel dedicated to the Virgin as Our Lady of Pity, is known as the Pity Porch. There is an effigy, apparently early 14th-cent., of a knight in chain armour and surcoat; it is surmised that the figure was subsequently appropriated by a Blakiston, who had the shield re-carved with the arms of his family. The Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Friends have places of worship. There are some charities, and the grammar school is endowed. N. House is a seat.

Norton (2), pa. and pleasant vil., N. Derbys., on the Yorks. border, 8 N.W. of Chesterfield; ac. 4,437; soil and subsoil various. The Late Norm. and Perp. church of St. James (restored 1882) contains the Blythe chapel, erected by the family of that name early in the 16th cent.; there are monuments to the Blythe and Bullock families, and a tablet to Sir Francis Chantrey, R.A., who was born here 1781 (d. 1841), and is buried in the churchyard. There is a Vicarage Library. There is a Free Methodist chapel. The charities, yielding about £70 a year, include a bequest of Sir F. Chantrey, divided between five old men and as many old women. Scythes, sickles, and saw-files are made here. N. Hall is a handsome mansion in a finely-wooded park. Other seats are Chantrey Grange, Norton House (rebuilt), and The Oaks.

Norton (3), or Norton-by-Daventry, pa. and vil. on Watling Street and the Grand Junction Canal, W. Northants, 2 N.E. of Daventry; ac. 3,260. All of the windows of the Dec. church of All Saints are stained, and display the arms of the Knightleys, Bretons, and Botfields; on the south wall is a splendid alabaster monument to Elizabeth Seymour, fourth daughter of the Protector Somerset, and second wife of Sir Richard Knightley, Bart. (d. 1602); other monuments commemorate various members of the Breton and Knightley families. The charities amount to £56 yearly. N. Hall is a mansion situated near the church in a deer-park of 100 ac. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Norton (4), pa. and to. on the east side of the Derwent, which divides it from Malton (q.v.), E.R.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton (1)	Norton	238	378[illegible]
Norton (2)	Heeley (1)	157	547[illegible]
Norton (3)	Daventry (2)	74	427
Norton (4)	Malton (1)	209	368[illegible]

Yorks., 20 N.W. of Driffield; ac. 2,551; soil light sandy, resting on sand and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas, rebuilt about 1815 in Romanesque style, contains two antique chairs of carved oak, presented 1856; on the vestry wall are two ancient brasses beneath rich canopies of carved stone, to Captain William Courley (d. 1591) and to Thomas Westrop (d. 1604); in the west transept are monuments to the Bower and other families. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The court-house is situated in the principal street. There are wood-turning and steam joinery works, a bone-mill, and an iron foundry; malting also is carried on. N. and its vicinity are noted for the training of racehorses. There is also an establishment for the breeding of thoroughbred stock. N. Grove, Sutton House, and The Mount are seats. [WELHAM.]

Norton (5), pa. and vil., N. Suff., 7½ E.N.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 2,449; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of St. Andrew is Perp.; there are six miserere stalls in the chancel and two in the sacrarium; the aisles are almost entirely seated with ancient oak benches, some of which are finely carved with poppy-heads and figures; the font is octagonal, of the 14th cent., well carved; in the north wall of the nave is a holy-water stoup; some of the windows are filled with ancient stained glass, and the blank matrices of some ancient brasses remain. There are some charities. Little Haugh is a seat.

Norton (6), pa. and vil. on the Avon, S.W. Worcs., 3 N. of Evesham; ac. 2,596; soil sand, loam, and clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Egwin (restored and partly rebuilt 1844) is a Perp. building, containing some fine monuments, including an altar-tomb with recumbent effigies to Thomas Bigg (1581) and his wife Maudlen (1574), another to Sir Thomas Bigg (1613) and his wife Ursula (1601), and a third to Sir Thomas Bigg (1621), above them being suspended banners, helmets, etc.; other monuments are to Tryphena Verney (1679), Elizabeth Craven (1687), William Craven (1665), and Sir William Craven (1655); the marble lectern, made 1206, was brought from Evesham Abbey, and in 1872 a Perp. window from Bengeworth church was placed in the north wall of the nave.

Norton (7), pa. and vil. on the Ivel, N. Herts., 4½ N.E. of Hitchin; ac. 1,750; soil heavy, overlying clay with small chalk stones. The church of St. Nicholas is an E. Eng. flint building, containing monuments to Thomas Cole of Radwell (d. 1648), and William Pym (d. 1716) and Elizabeth his wife (d. 1734). There are several small charities. At Wilbury Hill are the remains of a fortified camp. Roman coins have been found, and Icknield Street, a Roman road, passes through the pa.

Norton (8), pa. and vil. on the Severn, N. Glouc., 5 N.N.E. of Gloucester; ac. 1,875; soil clay and pebbles, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is Perp. There is a small charity. The Wesleyans have a chapel. N. Court is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton (5)	Elmswell (2)	86	762
Norton (6)	Worcester (3)	106	407
Norton (7)	Baldock (1)	37	195
Norton (8)	Gloucester (5)	114	354
Norton (9)	Teynham (2½)	49	165
Norton (10)	Malmesbury (4)	94	99

Norton (9), pa., N. Kent, 3½ W. of Faversham; ac. 902; soil loam, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1872) is a small Dec. building, with some remains of Norm. work. N. Court, built in 1625, from designs by Inigo Jones; Provender, a gabled mansion; and Rushett are seats.

Norton (10), or Norton Coleparle, pa. and vil., N.W. Wilts., 8 N.E. of Chippenham; ac. 994; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is E. Eng.

Norton (11), pa. and vil., E. Radnors., on the Herefords. border, 2 N. by W. of Presteigne; ac. 3,178; soil mostly productive. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1868) is an ancient building. Boultibrook is a seat.

Norton (12), tp. and large vil., pa. of Campsall (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8½ N. of Doncaster; ac. 2,320. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels.

Norton (13), tp., pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh., 16 E.S.E. of Liverpool; ac. 2,235. N. Priory is a seat.

Norton (14), tp., pa. of Norton Cuckney (q.v.), W. Notts, about 7 N. of Mansfield; ac. 1,607.

Norton (15), ha., pa. of and 2 E. from Weston Subedge (q.v.), E. Glouc. N. Hall and N. House are seats. The latter is an ancient mansion; near are the remains of a house which belonged to Sir William Keyte; after squandering his estate he set fire to the house and perished in the flames in 1741.

Norton (16), ha., pa. of Aldingbourn (q.v.), S.W. Sussex, 4 N.E. of Chichester.

Norton (17), ha., pa. of Selsey (q.v.), S.W. Sussex, 6 S. of Chichester.

Norton (18), ha., pa. of Old Swinford (q.v.), N. Worcs., about 5 S. of Dudley.

Norton (19), ha., pa. of Selborne (q.v.), E. Hants, 3 S. of Alton.

Norton (20), coast vil., pa. of Freshwater (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants, ¼ W. of Yarmouth.

Norton (21), vil., pa. of and ½ N. from Stockton (q.v.), N. Salop.

Norton (22), ha., pa. of Newton St. Cyres (q.v.), Mid Dev., 4 N.W. of Exeter.

Norton (23), ha., pa. of Townstall (q.v.), S. Dev., 1 W.N.W. of Dartmouth.

Norton (24), vil., pa. of Oystermouth (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 4 S.W. of Swansea.

Norton (25), estate, pa. of and 1 N.W. from Ratho (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc.

Norton Bavant, pa. on the Wiley, S.W. Wilts., 2½ S.E. of Warminster; ac. 2,005; soil clay and chalk, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of All Saints is an ancient stone structure of mixed periods; it was rebuilt, except the tower, in 1840, and again restored in 1868. N. House is a seat; the greater part of the house is of the date of Queen Anne.

Norton Beauchamp, ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Kewstoke (q.v.), N.E. Somerset.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton (11)	Knighton (3)	181	266
Norton (12)	Norton	164	500
Norton (13)	Norton	183	430
Norton (14)	Langwith (2½)	147	285
Norton Bavant	Heytesbury (1)	109	163

Norton, Bishop, pa., tp., and vil., N. Lincs., 13 E. by N. of Gainsborough; ac. of pa. 3,500, of tp. 2,449; soil clay and limestone, overlying sand. The church of St. Peter was rearranged and refitted 1868; on the north side of the chancel is a small mortuary chapel, and in the tower is an ancient stone coffin of unknown date. There is a Free Methodist and a Primitive Methodist chapel. Norton Place is a handsome mansion surrounded by a well-wooded park of 150 acres, in which is a large sheet of ornamental water well stocked with fish.

Norton Bridge, ha. with railway station, pa. of Chebsey (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., about 6 N.W. of Stafford.

Norton-by-Bredon, tp. and vil., pa. of Bredon (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 13 S.W. of Worcester. The chapel, dedication unknown (restored and partly rebuilt 1883), partly Norm., partly E. Eng., contains a tablet to William and Mary Hancock (1685–1719).

Norton-by-Daventry. [NORTON (3).]

Norton-by-Kempsey, pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 4 S. of Worcester; ac. 1,811; soil various, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. James was practically rebuilt in 1874–75, but retains a Perp. west tower and a Norm. arch to the south porch. N. barracks were built in 1876. Wood Hall is a seat.

Norton Canes, or Norton-under-Cannock, pa. and vil., S. Staffs., 6 N. of Walsall; ac. 4,077; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of St. James (rebuilt after a fire 1888) is Dec. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The pa. has some small charities, and the national schools have an endowment. The Working Men's Institute was opened in 1882. N. Hall is a seat.

Norton Canon, pa. and vil., W. Herefords., 9 S.E. of Kingston; ac. 2,148; soil loam, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Nicholas is partly E. Eng., and has been restored and partly rebuilt at various dates; it contains monuments to the Carless family (1827), James Whitney (1726), and John Tunstall (1835). The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are charities of £50, and the school is partly endowed. Calver Hill is a pleasantly-situated seat.

Norton, Chipping. [CHIPPING NORTON.]

Norton, Cold. [COLD NORTON (1) and (2).]

Norton Coleparle. [NORTON (10).]

Norton Conyers, tp., pa. of Wath (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 N. of Ripon; ac. 1,041. Norton Hall is a Jacobean mansion, standing in a large well-timbered park.

Norton Cuckney, pa. and vil., W. Notts., on the Derbys. border, 5½ S. of Worksop; ac. 5,324; soil sand and limestone, resting on clay. In the chancel of the church of St. Mary is a large slab of black marble, supposed to be the tomb of the first Baron Pierrepont, killed (on the king's side) during the Civil War in 1643. The Wesleyans have a meeting-room. Adjoining the churchyard is a mound called Castle Hill, around which the remains of a moat can be traced; it is believed to be the site of an old castle formerly occupied by Thomas de Cockeney, the original founder of Welbeck Abbey. There are limestone quarries.

Norton Disney, pa. and vil., W. Lincs., on the Notts. border, 11 S.S.W. of Lincoln; ac. 2,289; soil sandy, resting on clay and moorland. The E. Eng. church of St. Peter, anciently appropriated to the priory of Sempringham, contains several ancient memorials of the Disney family, including a brass to William Disney, Sheriff of Lincolnshire (d. 1532), with effigies of himself in armour, Margaret his wife, and nine children, and another—a palimpsest with a Dutch inscription on the reverse side—to his son Richard, who also was sheriff of the co. (1557 and 1566), with demi-effigies of himself in armour, his two wives, and twelve children. There is also the matrix of a cross-legged effigy in armour. The font is 14th cent., and the screen Elizabethan. N. D. Hall is a seat.

Norton, East, pa. and vil., and head of a petty sess. div., S.E. Leics., on the Rutland border, 5½ W. of Uppingham; ac. 1,390; soil rich clay, subsoil chiefly marly clay with brick-earth. Of the E. Eng. church of All Saints, the chancel was restored about 1850, when a new transept was added. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The Manor House is a mansion in Tudor style, and is surrounded by pleasure-grounds.

Norton Ferris, ha., pa. of and 1½ E. from Kilmington (q.v.), E. Somerset.

Norton Fitzwarren, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, 2 N.W. of Taunton; ac. 1,216; soil rich loam, resting on marl and gravel. The church of All Saints, for the most part rebuilt, in Dec. style, has a fine embattled west tower, dating from the reign of Richard II.; a curious oak screen, erected about 1500, and carved with figures of two dragons and a plough drawn by three oxen, separates the chancel and chapel from the nave and aisle; on the south side of the nave is a monument to James Prowse (1672). The south-west corner of the churchyard has long been a burial-place for gipsies. The Congregational chapel was built 1821. Norton Camp, on a hill near the church, is a circular earthwork of about 13 acres, with three covert ways leading from the interior at different points, and a path crossing it from south to north-east. In the valley below a large quantity of Roman pottery has been unearthed. Burnshill, Montys Court, and Norton Manor are seats.

Norton Folgate, pa. in parl. bor. of Tower Hamlets (q.v.), E. Middx., 1 N.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 10. The street of this name extends from Bishopsgate Street Without on the south to High Street, Shoreditch, on the north.

Norton Green, ha., pa. of Norton-in-the-Moors (q.v.), N. Staffs., 3 N.E. of Burslem. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Norton Hawkfield (or Hautville), pa., N. Somerset, 5 S. of Bristol; ac. 576; soil loamy sand,

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton, Bishop, pa.	Kirton Lindsey (6)	157	422
Norton, Bishop, tp.	Kirton Lindsey (6)	157	321
Norton-by-Bredon	Bredon (1)	167	222
Norton-by-Kempsey	Norton Junction	117	811
Norton Canes	Cannock (2)	128	4047
Norton Canon	Moorhampton (1)	154	281
Norton Conyers	Melmerby (1)	216	104
Norton Cuckney	Langwith (2½)	147	1405
Norton Disney	Swinderby (1)	148	181
Norton, East	East Norton	93	139
Norton Fitzwarren	Norton Fitzwarren	160	530
Norton Folgate	....	.....	1449
Norton Hawkfield	Pensford (½)	124	48

resting on red sandstone. Here are the kennels of the Stanton Drew Harriers.

Norton-in-Hales, pa. and vil. on the Tern, N.E. Salop, 4 N.N.E. of Market Drayton; ac. 1,878; soil sand, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Chad (restored 1864–65, and enlarged 1872) was originally built in the reign of Stephen, rebuilt Edward III., and the chancel added Henry VII.; there is a Norm. doorway in the south tower which contains several memorials of the Cottons. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel; and the pa. has some charities. Bellaport Hall and Brand Hall are seats.

Norton-in-the-Moors, pa. and vil., N. Staffs., 6 S.W. of Leek; ac. 4,391; soil strong and heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Bartholomew (rebuilt 1738) is a plain brick building. There are some small charities, and Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The pa. has extensive ironworks and several collieries. Greenway Bank is a seat.

Norton-juxta-Twycross, pa., tp., and vil., W. Leics., 6 W. of Market Bosworth; ac. of pa. 2,568, of tp. 1,858; soil mixed, resting on gravel and clay. The E. Eng. church of the Holy Trinity was restored 1890, when the spire was taken down.

Norton-le-Clay, tp. and vil., pa. of Cundall (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 N. of Boroughbridge; ac. 1,092. The church of St. John (chapel-of-ease) is a brick building; and there is a Wesleyan chapel.

Norton Lees, vil., pa. of Norton (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 5 S.E. of Sheffield. There is a church dedicated to St. Paul; and the United Free Methodists have a chapel.

Norton, Lower, ha., pa. of Budbrooke (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 2 N.W. of Warwick.

Norton Lindsay, pa. and vil., Mid Warws., 4 S.W. of Warwick; ac. 568; soil clayey, overlying sand and gravel. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1874–75) is an E. Eng. and Dec. building, containing some old oak.

Norton Malreward, pa., N. Somerset, 5 S. of Bristol; ac. 1,068; soil in parts clayey, resting on red sandstone and white lias. The church of the Holy Trinity, rebuilt (with the exception of the tower and Norm. arch) 1861, in Norm. and Dec. styles, retains a Norm. font. At the south end of the pa. is a huge circular stone called "Hautvilles Quoit." [MAES KNOLL.] Here Lane, formerly connected with Wans-dyke, or Woden's-dyke, traceable to Old Sarum, and terminating at Portishead, is now a public bridle-way. Human skeletons and British pottery have been exhumed in this locality from ancient graves. Bones and an ancient gold ring have been found in a quarry on the Manor Farm; and the barrows hereabout are very conspicuous. N. M. Court is a seat.

Norton Mandeville, pa. and small vil., W. Essex, 7 S.W. of Chelmsford; ac. 774; soil various, subsoil loamy. The church of All Saints is a Norm. stone and shingle building. There is a small Congregational chapel.

Norton-near-Evesham. Another name for NORTON (6).

Norton, Over. [OVER NORTON.]

Norton St. Philip, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 7 S. of Bath; ac. 1,527; soil loamy and clay, resting on stone. The church of SS. Philip and All Saints, Gothic, with a modern tower (1886), was restored 1847; high carved open screens of oak enclose the north aisle and vestry. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities yield £27 16s. per annum. At the George inn, an interesting specimen of 15th-cent. Domestic architecture, the Duke of Monmouth slept on June 26, 1685, shortly before the battle of Sedgmoor. The Manor House retains a dovecote believed to be of Elizabethan date.

Norton Street, a name given to the vil. of Burnham Norton (q.v.), N.W. Norf.

Norton Subcourse, pa. and scattered vil., S.E. Norf., 9 N.E. of Bungay; ac. 1,862; soil light and mixed, overlying sand, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Mary is an E. Eng. structure of flint. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel; and there are charities of about £10 a year.

Norton-under-Cannock. [NORTON CANES.]

Norton-under-Hamdon, pa. and vil. on the Parrett, S.E. Somerset, 6 W. of Yeovil; ac. 538; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1862) is E. Perp., with a more ancient porch. The Wesleyan chapel dates from 1842.

Norton-with-Brockhampton, tp., pa. of and 1½ S. from Bromyard (q.v.), N.E. Herefords.; ac. 1,549. On the Downs, in an elevated part of this tp., is the racecourse, and also rifle-butts and stone quarries.

Norton Woodseats, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Norton (q.v.), N. Derbys., on the Yorks. border. The church of St. Paul is at Norton Lees, in the northern part of the pa. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel.

Norton Wood, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Norton-in-Hales (q.v.), N.E. Salop.

Norwell, pa., tp., and vil. on a tributary of the Trent, W. Notts., 7 N.N.W. of Newark; ac. of pa. 3,946, of tp. 2,569; soil mostly heavy clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1875) is chiefly E. Eng., with portions of earlier date; the nave is separated from the aisles by arcades of four bays, the south arcade being Norm. and the north E. Eng. A lofty arch unites the nave to the tower, the lowest stage of which constitutes a baptistery; at the east end of the north aisle is the stairway to the rood-loft, now opened and restored; the south porch has an inner doorway of Norm. work, but is externally E. Eng. A niche over the arch contains a stone figure of St. Lawrence; in the south transept chapel is the recumbent figure of a knight, and in a recess in the south wall a female effigy in stone. The Wesleyan chapel dates from 1845.

Norwell Woodhouse, tp., pa. of and 2 W.S.W.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton-in-Hales	Norton-in-Hales	159	396
Norton-in-the-Moors	Ford Green (1)	150	9919
Norton-j.-Twyc's,pa.	Snarestone (1½)	111	342
Norton-j.-Twyc's,tp.	Snarestone (1½)	111	251
Norton-le-Clay	Boroughbridge (3)	210	91
Norton Lindsay	Warwick (4)	108	127
Norton Malreward	Pensford (1)	124	114
Norton Mandeville	Ongar (3)	23	135

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norton, St. Philip	Freshford (4)	100	536
Norton Subcourse	Reedham (3)	119	348
Norton-under-H.	Montacute (3)	137	515
Norton-with-B.	Bromyard (2)	135	550
Norton Woodseats	Heeley (1)	157	4158
Norwell, pa.	Carlton-on-Trent(1)	126	719
Norwell, tp.	Carlton-on-Trent(1)	126	441
Norwell Woodhouse	Carlton-on-Tr'nt(2½	126	98

from Norwell (q.v.), W. Notts.; ac. 455. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Norwich, parl., co., and mun. bor., city and co. of itself, the seat of a bishopric, assize, U., and Co. Co. to., on the Wensum, just above its junction with the Yare, E. Norf., 20 w. of Yarmouth; ac. of bor. 7,558. N. is said to have been founded in the 6th cent.; it certainly had a mint under the later Saxons, and the Domesday Survey shows that it was at that period one of the most important places in the kingdom. In the 14th cent. an immigration of Flemish weavers greatly improved the worsted and clothing trades here. In 1413 the first corporation was formed, and members have been returned to Parliament since 1298. The Cathedral of the Holy Trinity, founded by Bishop Herbert Losinga in 1096, after the removal of the see from Thetford to Norwich in 1094, is invaluable as an illustration of the pure Norm. ground plan, which it retains in a manner almost unchanged since its erection. The cathedral, as at present existing, is a cruciform structure, consisting of apsidal choir of four bays, with aisles and lateral chapels; transepts, with an ancient apsidal chantry or sacristy projecting eastward from the northern arm, nave of fourteen bays, and a central tower with spire, 315 ft. in total height; the total length, formerly, with the Lady Chapel, 464 ft., is now 407 ft., the width, including the aisles, 97 ft., and the height to the centre of nave vaulting, 69 ft.; the breadth across the transepts 178 ft., and the height of vaulting 73 ft. The choir terminates eastward in a semicircular apse, which still retains the double-arched entrance, formerly conducting to the now destroyed Lady Chapel. The choir aisles are continued round the apse, forming an eastern processional path, which opens into two radiating chapels, each with a semicircular apse projecting eastward—the Jesus chapel on the north, and St. Luke's on the south; the latter, serving also as the parish church of St. Mary in the Marsh, was destroyed in 1563. The transept is without aisles, but has in the north wing the eastern apsidal chapel of St. Anne; the corresponding chapel in the south wing has given place to a Dec. sacristy of the 15th cent., vaulted, with an upper chamber. Above the crossing, raised on massive piers, rises the loftiest and richest example of a Norm. tower in England; it consists of four stages, three surrounded with arcading, and the fourth displays a double row of large circles, the upper tier being glazed so as to light that stage of the tower; the Dec. battlements are adorned with shields, and at the angles are square embattled turrets, with crocketed spirelets, of the same date as the great octangular spire, which is richly crocketed and capped with an elegant finial. The nave is the largest, grandest, and most interesting of any in this country; on either side are seven double bays, with piers supporting an open triforium. The windows of the clerestory appear through the centre arch of an arcading, and above these spreads a superb vaulting of stone, of Perp. date, adorned with 328 elaborately-sculptured bosses. The south aisle is of uncommon height and has three storeys; in the north aisle is a door leading to the green-yard, where there was anciently a preaching-cross. The west front, although possessing the advantages afforded by a surrounding open space and forest trees, is wanting in dignity and importance. The cloisters adjoining the cathedral on the south side, and in part occupying the angle between the nave and south transept, date from 1297–1430, and are only inferior in size to those of Salisbury, being 177 ft. in length on the west and east sides and 176 ft. on the north and south, with a height of 15 ft.; at the north-west angle are a slype, and outer or great parlour; in the west alley are the E. Eng. door of the guest-house and the lavatories, formed by inclosing arches recessed in the wall, panelled and enriched with carved foliage, while at the back are narrow canopied niches, inclosing pedestals; in the east alley are the processional door and the beautiful triple entrance to the now destroyed chapter-house. Of the infirmary, only three Late Norm. pillars of its hall remain. Immediately opposite to the west front of the cathedral is the Erpingham Gate, erected between 1411 and 1420 by Sir Thomas Erpingham; it is a very early example of the ornamental Perp. flint work peculiar to the Eastern Counties. The charnel chapel of St. John the Evangelist, standing obliquely between this gate and the cathedral, and now used as the grammar school, was built by Bishop Salmon in 1316. Some distance south of these stands St. Ethelbert's, or the Court Gate, built by the citizens about 1272, with a hanging or upper chapel of black flint. On the north side, in St. Martin's Plain, is the Palace or St. Martin's Gate, erected by Bishop Alnwick about 1430; near it is the Bishop's Palace, a considerable pile, dating from the foundation of the church, and embracing almost every subsequent style. In the palace gardens are the remains of a Dec. chapel (130 ft. by 30 ft.) and of the Palace Hall (100 ft. by 60 ft.), built in 1299–1325, and destroyed by Cromwell, as well as the basement of a gatehouse erected by Bishop Salmon, and a kitchen of the 13th cent. The principal monuments in the cathedral are the following:—Bishop Herbert Losinga (d. 1119), a modern altar-tomb erected in 1682; Prior W. Walsham (1218); Sir Thomas Erpingham (1420), low tomb; Sir Thomas Wyndham, vice-admiral (1421), an altar-tomb; Bishop John Wakeryng (1246); Bishop James Goldwell (1499), with canopied effigy; Sir John Hobart, attorney-general to Henry VII.; Bishop Richard Nykke or Nyx (1536), a flat tomb, arched over, with the iron work for the sacring bell of the chantry chapel; Bishop John Parkhurst (1575); Lady Elizabeth Calthorp (1582); and Chancellor Miles Spencer, an altar-tomb of the 16th cent., on which the tenants formerly paid

NORWICH CATHEDRAL.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London, S.E.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norwich	Norwich	114	100970

their rents; there is also a statue in Carrara marble, by Chantrey, to Bishop Henry Bathurst, who died in 1837. In the sacristy the table of the reredos of the Jesus chapel (1380–1400) has pictures, on panel, of the 14th cent., in five compartments, representing the closing scenes in the Life of our Lord; the heads are treated in the Italian manner, and the grouping is that of the Sienuese school. The city contains numerous pas., all with ancient churches, and many eccl. pas. The church of St. Peter Mancroft (restored 1881–82), in the Upper Market Place, is the largest and most magnificent pa. church in the city; it is of the Perp. period. The columns of the nave, with the clerestory windows above, are singularly light and graceful; and the roofs of the nave and chancel are good specimens of fan-tracery, rising from stone shafts supported on corbels. Below the sacrarium, which is raised eight steps above the floor of the nave, is a passage with a vaulted roof, the greater part of the church being built over a crypt adapted to the rise of the hill, and forming the platform on which the church was erected. At the extreme east end is a Lady Chapel, used of late years as a vestry; the font stands under a remarkable canopy supported by pillars, and was formerly surmounted by a richly-decorated cover. The east window is filled with old stained glass. There is an ancient brass to Sir Peter Reade (1568) and several mural monuments, including one to Sir Thomas Browne, the author of "Religio Medici," who was knighted by Charles II. on his visit to Norwich in 1671, and died Oct. 19th, 1682. St. Andrew's Church is Perp., and contains memorials of the Sucklings, with a monument erected by Sir John Suckling to his father and mother; his own effigy is placed on the monument. The Catholics have three churches; that begun in 1884, from Scott's designs, at the expense of the Duke of Norfolk, is still unfinished. The Sisters of Notre Dame have a convent, with boarding and day school. The Congregational chapel, in Princes Street, is in Classic style, and the Baptist chapel, in Unthank Road, in E. Gothic style. These bodies have other places of worship, and there are also chapels for various branches of the Methodist body and Unitarians, a meeting-house for Friends, a Jewish Synagogue, and a Catholic and Apostolic church. The grammar school, west of the cathedral, was founded in 1547, and a new scheme for its government was framed in 1886. Among its eminent pupils were John Caius, founder of Caius College, Cambridge (d. 1573); Chief Justice Coke (d. 1634); Tenison, Archbishop of Canterbury (d. 1715); Cosin, Bishop of Durham (d. 1672); Lord Nelson (d. 1805), of whom a statue stands in the close; and Rajah Brooke of Saráwak (d. 1868). Norman's School, founded 1723, has an endowment of over £1,000 a year. The Blind Asylum and Schools were founded in 1804. The Female Training College, with a practising school, is in Classic style. The Guildhall, in the Market Square, is a large 15th-cent. building, chiefly of flint and freestone; it contains portraits of early mayors and benefactors. The city regalia, also preserved here, comprise a silver-gilt mace, set with crystals, presented by Queen Elizabeth, others given by the Duke of Norfolk and Sir Robert Walpole, and one formerly belonging to the St. George's Company; the Corporation has also some very valuable plate. In the Shire Hall, adjoining the Castle, the assizes and quarter sessions for the county are held. To the north-west is the County Police Station. St. Andrew's Hall, a little west of the cathedral, was the nave of the conventual church of the Black Friars, and now one of the finest Perp. halls in the kingdom. It contains a numerous collection of civic portraits, and is used for the musical festivals and civic feasts, and for meetings. The chancel or choir of this church, leased in 1625 to Dutch and Flemish refugees, and hence called "the Dutch church," now serves as an adjunct to the hall. The Corn Exchange is a structure of white brick, built in 1861. The Castle was probably founded by Uffa, the first King of East Anglia, about 575. It became a royal castle about 642, and the portion now remaining, consisting of the embattled Norm. keep, 110 ft. by 92 ft., and about 70 ft. high, is, on account of its elevated position, one of the most striking buildings in the city. The whole is inclosed with a high battlemented granite wall surrounded by a terrace walk, commanding good views of the city, and the inclining sides of the hill are well planted with trees and shrubs. On the east side of the ancient keep is Bigod's tower, a projecting structure, built, it is conjectured, by Hugh Bigod, Earl of Norfolk. It contains a very fine Norm. doorway, forming the original grand entrance to the keep; over the fosse (now laid out as a public garden) is an ancient stone bridge of one circular arch, 40 ft. span, and considered to be of Saxon date. From the 14th cent. the Castle was used as a county gaol, but in Aug., 1887, the prisoners were transferred to a new prison erected on Mousehold. The Castle and grounds have been purchased by the Corporation for the reception of the collections of the Norfolk and Norwich Museum, which are probably unrivalled in the provinces. The Agricultural Hall, opened in 1882 by the Prince of Wales, is an edifice of red stone and red brick. The Post Office (1875) is in Italian style; the Free Library (1857) is a large and handsome building. The theatre dates from 1826. N. has several hospitals and many charitable institutions, and here are the County and City Lunatic Asylums. There are cavalry, infantry, and militia barracks. The chief manufactures of the city are bombazine, crape, gauze, challis, mousselin-de-laine, fillover shawls, silk shawls, bandannas, camlet, mohair, paramatta, poplin, barège, glove cloths, sewing cotton, coach lace, horsehair cloth, sacking, and sail cloth. There are several large foundries; agricultural implements, steam boilers, galvanized wire netting, iron fencing and iron gates are extensively made here, and the proximity of the city to the rivers Wensum and Yare gives great facility for transport. There are also dyehouses, foundries, machine works, tanneries, five large breweries, maltkilns, coach works, rope works, chemical works, soaperies, paper mills, artificial manure works, mustard, starch, and vinegar works, and extensive brick, tile, and drain-pipe works. The boot and shoe trade employs some thousands of hands, and has now become one of the staple trades of the city; and the manufacture of ready-made clothing gives employment to a large number. The goods are exported chiefly by river to Yarmouth and Lowestoft, and by rail to London.

Nor Wick, inlet, N.E. coast of Uist Island (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., 48 N. by E. of Lerwick. The bay is 1¼ mile wide at its entrance, and extends the same distance inland.

Norwick, ha. on Nor Wick, N.E. coast of Uist Island (q.v.), N. Shetland, Sc., 48 N. by E. of Lerwick. Here is a ruined church.

Norwood (1), large suburban dis. with three eccl. pas., pas. of Croydon (q.v.), Lambeth (q.v.), and Battersea (q.v.), 5 S. of St. Paul's. N. is hilly and finely wooded, and forms one of the pleasantest of the suburbs of London. The church of All Saints and that of St. John the Evangelist, both at Upper N., are in E. Eng. style; that of St. Mark, at South N., is in E. Dec. style. There are also several other modern churches, besides Nonconformist places of worship. In Central Hill is a Convent Orphanage, surrounded by extensive grounds. The Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind, established on Anerley Hill, Norwood, 1872, was removed to its present site 1873; buildings have been added from time to time, and in addition to the main college there are now eight other buildings, gymnasiums, skating rinks, and a swimming bath, the whole being in a simple form of E. Eng. Gothic. The N. Cottage Hospital, Hermitage Road, Central Hill, was founded 1881 and enlarged 1893. The Gipsy Hill and Upper N. Dispensary was established 1868. The Jewish Convalescent Home, Portland Road, was founded 1869 in memory of Judith Lady Montefiore. Public baths for both sexes were opened at South N. in 1881 by the Croydon Corporation; and there is a branch here of the Croydon Free Library. The N. Cemetery, 42 ac. in extent, is the property of the South Metropolitan Cemetery Company. N. Institute was established 1859 for the benefit of all classes within a radius of five miles. The building, in Chapel Road, is mostly used by charitable societies and private clubs. The West N. Free Library was inaugurated 1888. St. Saviour's Almshouses, or Hospital for the poor of the parish of St. Saviour, Southwark, in Hamilton Road (erected 1863), the ancient hospital at Southwark having been removed, consist of 38 houses, with a chapel and lodge, and are inhabited by decayed housekeepers and widows.

Norwood (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Hayes (q.v.), W. Middx., 1½ S. of Southall. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, originally Norm., was rebuilt by Archbishop Chichele 1439, and partly reconstructed 1864; the chancel is part of the older building; some fragments of old glass remain, and there are some ancient brasses and the canopied altar-tomb of Edward Cheeseman (d. 1547) and his son Robert (d. 1556), lord of the manor. The churchyard, now laid out as a garden, contains an old yew and a memorial cross to Archbishop Chichele (d. 1443). There are four almshouses (rebuilt 1814) for widows. N. Green is an open space of about 10 ac., surrounded by fine elm-trees.

Norwood (3), ha., pa. of Fewston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N. of Otley. [CLIFTON-WITH-NORWOOD.]

Norwood Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Lambeth (q.v.). It returns one member.

Norwood End, ha., pa. of Wales (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8¼ E. of Sheffield.

Norwood Hill, ha., pa. of Charlwood (q.v.), Mid Surrey, 6 S.W. of Reigate.

Norwood Park, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Glastonbury (q.v.), Mid Somerset.

Norwood, South. [NORWOOD (1).]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Norwood (2), eccl. pa.	Southall (1½)	9	2885
Norwood (2), tp.	Southall (1½)	9	7627

Norwood, Upper. [NORWOOD (1).]

Noseley, pa., S. Leics., 11 S.E. of Leicester; ac. 880; soil heavy loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary was formerly that of a college founded here temp. Edward II., and dedicated to the Ascension and the Assumption; the east window is filled with ancient stained glass; in the chancel are two Dec. piscinæ and three sedilia, and there are also two piscinæ in the nave; the chancel also contains the beautiful marble tomb, with recumbent effigies, of Sir Arthur Hesilrige (d. 1660), colonel in the Parliamentary army, and his two wives. Another tomb is that of Sir Thomas Hesilrige (d. 1629) and his wife. In N. Hall, for centuries the seat of the Hazelriggs, hangs the old bell of the church, dated 1596.

Noss, island, pa. of Bressay (q.v.), S. Shetld., Sc., 3½ E. by S. of Lerwick. The island, separated from that of Bressay by a channel 1 furlong wide, has an extreme length and breadth of 1½ mile. The surface, which is mostly pasture-land, rises gradually towards the east, culminating in the Noup of Noss. The coast is rugged and precipitous.

Noss Head (1), headland on the west coast of Caithness., Sc., 3½ N.N.E. of Wick. The headland is bold and rugged, with grand cliff scenery. It is pierced by a very large cavern. The ruins of Castle Girnigoe and Castle Sinclair are in its west vicinity. On the headland is a lighthouse with a revolving light, seen 18 miles.

Noss Head (2), headland (592 ft.) on the east coast of the island of Noss (q.v.), S. Shetld., Sc., 5 E. by S. of Lerwick.

Nossmayo, vil. near the Yealm, pa. of Yealmpton (q.v.), S. Dev., 7 S.E. of Plymouth.

Noss, Noup of, rocky cliff on the south side of Noss Head, S. Shetld., Sc. The Noup rises precipitously from the sea, presenting on one side a sheer wall of rock. It is frequented by innumerable sea-birds.

Nostel, ha. with railway station, pa. of Wragby (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Wakefield. N. Priory is a mansion standing near the site of an Augustinian priory founded in the 12th cent.; the mansion was built in the 18th cent.; on the east side is a fine avenue of elms, on the west is a large sheet of water; the park is well timbered and stocked with deer. [HUNTWICK WITH FOULBY AND NOSTEL.]

Nosterfield, vil., pa. of West Tanfield (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. of Masham. There are Wesleyan and Reformed Wesleyan chapels.

Notgrove, pa., E. Gloucs., 19 E. of Gloucester; ac. 1,530; soil and subsoil stone-brash. The church of St. Bartholomew, principally Perp., was restored 1872–73. The chancel retains a piscina and aumbry, and on the east wall are ancient paintings of the Crucifixion and other subjects; above, under richly-gilt canopies, are represented the Annunciation, the Adoration of the Magi, and the Coronation of the Virgin, and over these are figures of six saints and an embattled cresting, now much decayed. Both sides of the chancel were also once decorated, and the Norm. arches of the nave-arcades bear traces of colour. Within the communion-rails is a handsome tomb with the date 1630, surmounted by the effigy of a lady, conjectured to represent a member of the Whittington family. On the south side of the chancel lies the marble effigy of William Whittington in legal robes and a ruff; on a slab supported by short marble pillars is the recumbent figure of a knight in armour of the Elizabethan period, assigned to John Whittington, father of the preceding. The original Norm. font is in good preservation. The old manor house was the seat of the Whittington family, descendants of Sir Richard (Dick) Whittington, Lord Mayor of London in the 14th cent.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Noseley	Kibworth (3)	89	26
Notgrove	N. & Westfield (1)	96	133

Nothe, The, promontory on the west side of Weymouth (q.v.), S. Dors., a favourite resort of the townspeople. Here are infantry barracks.

Noth, Tap o', eminence (1,851 ft.), pa. of Rhynie, N. Abers., Sc., 7 S.S.W. of Huntly. On it is a large vitrified fort with a rampart about 15 ft. high and nearly 10 ft. in thickness, with an entrance on the south-east side.

Notley Abbey. [CRENDON, LONG.]

Notley, Black, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 2 S. of Braintree; ac. 1,936; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1879) is Norm.; the chancel has piscinæ, sedilia, and an old carved oak roof. The charities amount to £54 yearly. The manor house (or Gobians) is near the church. In 1852 many antiquities were found in this parish. B. N. was the birthplace of William Bedell, Bishop of Kilmore (b. 1579), John Ray the naturalist (b. 1628, and buried in the churchyard 1705), and Captain Richard Symonds, who wrote the "Diary of the Royal Army during the Great Civil War." Lynders Wood and Oaklands are seats.

NOTTINGHAM MARKET PLACE.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Notley, White, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 4 S.E. of Braintree; ac. 2,228; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church, dedication unknown (restored 1875 and 1888), is a small building of rubble mixed with Roman tiles, partly consisting of the remains of an old church; there is an octagonal shingled spire. The pa. has some small charities.

No Town, ha., pa. of Bleasby (q.v.), Mid Notts., 3 S.E. of Southwell.

Nottage, vil., pa. of Newton Nottage (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 6½ W. of Bridgend.

Notter, vil. on the Lynher (here crossed by a bridge of three arches), pa. of St. Stephens by Saltash (q.v.), S.E. Cornw., 2 N.W. of Saltash.

Nottingham, parl., co., and mun. bor., co. and mkt. to. (W., F., & S.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., locally in S. Notts., but forming a co. in itself, 27½ N. of Leicester; ac. 10,935. The parl. bor. has three divisions—East, South, and West—each with one member. N. is si nearly in the centre of the kingdom, at the west extremity of the forest of Sherwoo occupies the acclivity of a sandy rock, comm an extensive view of the Vale of Trent a fertile meadows watered by that river a Leen. A Roman settlement, it was called Saxons Snotengaham, by the Normans Snoten and afterwards Snottingham. On the site older fort, crowning an eminence rising pe cularly from the Leen, William the Co built a formidable castle, of which his natur William Peveril, was appointed castellan, at the same time being strongly fortified. reign of Edward III. Mortimer, Earl of Marc the Queen-Dowager Isabel resided in the but a party of noblemen in the interest of th having obtained entrance through a subter passage, surprised Mortimer in an apartme joining the Queen's, and conveyed him to L where he was hanged. In the same reign a ment was held here. It was at N., too, t the beginning Civil War Ch set up his st on a hill with limits of the still known as dard Hill." and castle afterwards be and taken by t liamentary who here st Colonel Hut with a stron rison. Under Cromwell the was dismanti so far demoli to be render serviceable. the Restorat became the perty of the of Buckingham, who sold it to William Cav first Duke of Newcastle, by whom it was down, and a mansion in the Classic style b 1674 on a part of the site, and completed years after his death. This was much inj October, 1831, by a mob which had been inc take revenge on Thomas (Pelham-Clinton) Duke of Newcastle, for his opposition Reform Bill. It is now the property of t poration, and has been converted into a m and art gallery. Some fragments of the castle gateway, repaired some years sinc some portions of the outworks still remai subterranean passage called "Mortimer's H an object of interest, and there are nu caverns and galleries excavated in the rock are of great antiquity. In 1811 and 18 working men, ascribing their distresses introduction of the improved machinery excited to the destruction of property "Luddites." The church of St. Mary, occ a conspicuous position on the High Pavem spacious and elegant Perp. structure rem

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Notley, Black	Bulford (1)	43	658
Notley, White	White Notley	42	417

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Nottingham, p. bor.	Nottingham	124
N'ham, co. & mun. bor.	Nottingham	124

umber and size of its windows. The south ighly enriched with panelling, while fan- epends from the finely-groined roof. The was restored 1867, and again 1873–91. ch of St. Nicholas, Castle Gate, was re- 8 and enlarged 1756 and 1783. The oldest hurches is that of St. Peter (restored near the Market Place, containing some features, but mostly Perp. St. James's n Standard Hill, dates from 1809. There al eccl. pas., with modern churches. The of St. Barnabas, in the Derby Road 42–44 from designs by the younger Pugin, g. style) is one of three Roman Catholic The convent of Our Lady of Mercy, in Street, comprises schools and a House of r the training of servants. There are 0 Nonconformist chapels, some of them e specimens of modern Gothic. The public include the Guildhall and Borough Courts (1887–88), in Burton and South Streets, in the French Renaissance style; ty Hall (1770), High Pavement, in the yle; the Corporation Baths (rebuilt 1895), Street; the Poor Law Offices (1887), are Street; and the Post Office (1868), and Queen Streets, in the Italian style. rt Hall (1875), North Circus Street, is in yle, with a tower 120 ft. high; the Victoria 6) is in Lower Talbot Street; the People's Heathcote Street, comprises reading-rooms ubscription library; the Masonic Hall oldsmith Street, is in Queen Anne style; tre Royal (1865, enlarged 1890), Market of the Corinthian order. N. University Shakespeare, South Sherwood, and Bilbie erected by the Corporation 1881, in the style, and affiliated with the Oxford and ge Universities), has above the central a tower with spire 120 ft. high. It com- he Free Public Libraries and Reading he Free Museum of Natural History, the l Schools, and University Extension class- he High School, Arboretum Street (founded er site 1513 by Agnes, widow of Richard Mayor of N., and now worked under a approved by the Charity Commissioners s an endowment of £2,000 a year; the hool for Girls (in the same street) is a f the Girls' Public Day School Co., Lim.; oat School (established 1723, and endowed 0 a year) was removed to the Mansfield 53. The Municipal School of Art Design l 1843) is housed in a handsome building ian Gothic style, in Waverley Street. The Baptist College (founded 1797) was trans- n 1882 to premises acquired and adapted n Forest Road. In the Congregational (Forest Road West) students are trained ge and mission pastorates and evangelistic Bromley House Library (subscription), ew (established 1816), includes the library ev. Dr. Standfast (d. 1744). The Mechanics' , Milton and Burton Streets, was established The County Gaol was enlarged 1894, and ommodation for about 240 prisoners; the Prison, St. John Street (occupying the convent of the Hospitallers of St. John of m) is now disused except a portion occupied as a police station, and the governor's house used as a girls' home. Among the medical institutions are the General Hospital (1782), on Standard Hill; the Free Hospital for Children (established in Postern and Amberly Streets 1869, and several times enlarged); the N. and Midland Eye Infirmary (1859), St. James's Street; the Co. Lunatic Asylum (1812), Sneinton; the Borough Asylum (1879), Porchester Road, in Gothic style; the Lunatic Hospital (1859), Coppice Hill, in Elizabethan style; the Midland Institution for the Blind (1853, enlarged 1889), Clarendon and Chaucer Streets, in Elizabethan style; the Dispensary (1843), Broad Street; and two hospitals for women. The Great Market Place has an area, including Cheapside and the Poultry, of 5½ acres. The Cattle Market (1886), East Croft, covers an area, including buildings and enclosures, of 7 acres, and includes the Horse Fair and the Hay and Straw Market; adjoining it is the Hide, Skin, and Fat Market. The "Goose Fair," for geese, cattle, and cheese, is held in October. The to. is well provided with charities, including several groups of almshouses, of which the more ancient ones have been rebuilt. The Arboretum (opened in 1852, and measuring 17½ acres) is pleasantly situated on two hills. In 1882 a public playground was laid out in Pennyfoot-stile; there are, besides, pleasant recreation walks. The trade of N. includes the manufacture of bobbin-net and beautiful laces, hosiery of all kinds, the throwing and dyeing of silk, and bleaching. The machines for stockings and lace are principally made in the town. There are several mills for spinning and twisting silk and for spinning cotton and woollen yarn; there is also extensive business in malt. The to. derives great facility for trade from its numerous lines of railway, and also from its situation near the Trent, from the Grantham Canal, and from the N., Cromford, and Erewash Canals. Among eminent natives of the to. were Sir Charles Fellowes, the archæologist; Paul Sandby and Dawson, the artists; Henry Kirk White; and Mr. Philip James Bailey, author of "Festus."

Nottingham Canal, W. Notts. and E. Derbys. (completed 1802), commences at the Trent, on the west side of Nottingham, and terminates in the Cromford Canal (q.v.). Its length is 15 miles.

Nottingham, East. [NOTTINGHAM.]

Nottinghamshire, a North Midland co. of England, bounded on the east by Lincs., on the south by Leics., on the west by Derbys., and on the north-west by Yorkshire. Its greatest length is 50 miles, and greatest breadth 25 miles. Its area is 539,754 acres, of which 45 per cent. is arable, 38 per cent. pasture, and 5 per cent. timber land, and the remainder town sites, roads, water, etc., there being very little waste land in the co. The soil is variable, with a predominance of red loams on the rising ground, and gravelly or clayey land elsewhere. Most of the co. is in a high state of cultivation, the chief crops being wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas, turnips, and potatoes. Of these, the barley is noted for its fine malting qualities, and the preparation of malt is an important industry. The breeding and rearing of stock receive great attention, the herds being noted for their general excellency. In some districts dairy-farming is extensively carried on. The surface of the co. is

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
ham, East	Nottingham	124	67974

24

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Nottinghamshire	.....	.....	445823

flat in the north and in the broad valleys of the Trent and Idle, and gently undulating elsewhere. The splendid timber for which the co. is famous, and the open prospect, together with the numerous stately country-seats, combine to give much charming scenery in the southern and western districts, especially in the area known as "The Dukeries." There still remain some fragments of the great Sherwood Forest, which once covered at least one-fifth of the co. The co. is drained by the Trent, and its tributaries the Idle, Soar, Erewash, etc. Its canal system unites the Trent and Witham. The railway facilities are excellent, being furnished by the main or branch lines of the Great Northern, the Midland, the Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire, and other companies. The geology is not very varied, the different formations running in broad belts parallel to the length of the co. The oldest rocks occur in the south-western corner, where an extension of the productive Coal Measures of the Yorkshire and Derbyshire coal-field enters the co., and outcrop at the surface. Farther east these Coal Measures are overlaid by newer rocks, but are reached by deep shafts. Six or seven seams are worked, and the average output of the mines is nearly 5½ million tons annually. The importance of this coal-field has rendered the co. of great industrial consequence. The Permian rocks, which overlie the Coal Measures, extend north and south along the western margin of the co., their prevalent dip being towards the east. Their lowest member is the Magnesian Limestone Series, the limestone beds of which are extensively quarried for lime-burning and for building-stone. The limestone is fossiliferous in some localities. Above the Upper Permian Marls and Sandstones are the Triassic strata, which underlie the eastern side of the co., comprising, at the base, the Bunter Sandstone and Pebble-beds, succeeded by the Keuper Marls and Sandstones. The sandstones are the source of an excellent water-supply, and also yield building-stone. The marls contain extensive deposits of gypsum, from 70,000 to 80,000 tons per annum of which is annually raised for the manufacture of plaster-of-Paris, manure, etc., while the more ornamental portion is converted into alabaster ornaments. Both Permian and Triassic Marls are also dug for brick-making. Fossils are very rare in the Trias, though reptilian footprints are occasionally found. The uppermost beds of the Trias, with the Rhætic marls and overlying dark shales with limestone bands of the Liassic formation, fall just within the eastern border in the vicinity of Newark and further south, these being the newest solid rocks of the co. The Great Ice Age has left a thick covering of superficial deposits of clay and gravel on most of the low ground, and the widespread flood-gravels show that at a later period the rivers have possessed a far larger volume than at present. The remains of the mammoth have been found near Nottingham, etc. Of prehistoric times the chief relics are the tumuli at Oxton and other places; the camps and earthworks, and the weapons of flint and other stone occasionally found on the surface. The Roman occupation is indicated by numerous traces of villas and military stations, and by roads like the Foss-way. Among its historical associations are the treaty made by Ethelred with the Danish invaders at Nottingham in 868, the fighting around Nottingham in the reign of Stephen, and the sieges of Newark and Nottingham during the Parliamentary wars. Nottingham, the co. town, is the place of chief importance; other towns are Newark, Retford, Worksop, Mansfield, and Southwell. Besides agriculture, the principal industries are coal-mining, the manufacture of lace, hosiery, silk, worsted, and cotton-goods, bicycles, agricultural implements, paper, and chemicals, brass- and iron-founding, tanning, malting, brewing, and quarrying. Among the numerous features of architectural interest are the fine old church at Southwell, the seat of a bishopric; the remains of an abbey at Newstead, and other ruins at Beauvale, Mattersey, etc.; the old castles of Nottingham and Newark; and many ancient mansions. For parl. purposes the co. has four divs.: Bassetlaw, Newark, Rushcliff, and Mansfield, each returning one member.

Nottingham, South. [NOTTINGHAM.]

Nottingham, West. [NOTTINGHAM.]

Notting Hill, dis. of West London, pas. of Kensington and Chelsea (q.v.), Middx., 4 W. of St. Paul's. The name is derived by Lysons from the manor of Knotting-Barnes or Knutting-Bernes, which once belonged to the De Veres, Earls of Oxford; afterwards to the Paulets, Earls of Wiltshire; to Lord Burleigh; and then to the Copes and others. The potteries that once flourished here are still kept in remembrance by Pottery Lane. Of late years the neighbourhood has been a favourite residence for artists.

Nottington, vil., pas. of Broadway and Buckland Ripers (q.v.), W. Dors., 2½ W. of Weymouth. N. Spa is a mineral spring rising on the margin of the Wey; the water is sulphureous, but its use as a medicinal spring has ceased. N. House is a seat.

Notton (1), tp. and vil. on an eminence, pa. of Royston (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.S.E. of Wakefield; ac. 2,602.

Notton (2), ha., pa. of Maiden Newton (q.v.), W. Dors., 8 N.W. of Dorchester.

Notton (3), ha., pa. of Lacock (q.v.), N.W. Wilts., about 3 N. of Melksham.

Notts. [NOTTINGHAMSHIRE.]

Noughaval (1), pa., Kilkenny West bar., co. Wstm., and Ratheline and Shrule bars., co. Longford, Ir., 9 N.N.W. of Moate (q.v.); ac. 12,726. It contains part of the mkt. to. of Ballymahon (q.v.).

Noughaval (2), pa., Burren bar., N. co. Clare, Ir., 2 N.E. of Kilfenora; ac. 4,661.

Noughaval (3). Another form of NOHAVAL (q.v.).

Noup (or Noop) Bay, inlet on north-west coast of island of Westray, N. Ork., Sc., 25 N. of Kirkwall. The bay is about 4½ miles wide at its mouth, and extends nearly 1½ miles inland. Towards the west it is terminated by Noup Head. A dangerous reef extends across the bay.

Noup (or Noop) Head, headland (240 ft.), pa. of Westray and Papa Westray (q.v.), N. Ork., Sc., forming the north-west termination of the island

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Nottingham, South	Nottingham	124	62046
Nottingham, West	Nottingham	124	82037
Notton (1)	Notton	174	269
Noughaval (1)	Moate (9)	70	1895
Noughaval (2)	Kilfenora (2)	205	176

of Westray. N. Head, with its bold sharp outline and overhanging crags, is one of the grandest features in the coast scenery of the Orkneys. A detached portion, separated from the adjacent cliff by a narrow chasm, is called the Stack of Noup.

Noup (or Noop) Hill, eminence in Westray Island, N. Ork., Sc., 24 N. of Kirkwall. The hill extends in a north-west direction, terminating in Noup Head.

Noup of Noss. [NOSS, NOUP OF.]

Nova Scotia, ha., pa. of and about 3 N.E. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.

Noverton, ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Prestbury (q.v.), N. Glouc.s.

Nowton, pa. and vil., W. Suff., 2 S. of Bury; ac. 1,157; soil clay, gravel, and chalk, with a loam surface. The church of St. Peter is Norm., with a Late Norm. doorway.

Nubbuck, ha., pa. of and 4 S.W. from Hexham (q.v.), S. Northumb.

Nuffield, pa. and vil., S. Oxon, 7 N.W. of Henley; ac. 2,076; soil light, resting on chalk. The Dec. church of the Holy Trinity, with a modern chancel, was restored prior to 1850; the font is a plain stone cylinder of the 13th cent., with a Latin inscription in Lombardic characters; there is a small brass, with half-effigy of a priest and an inscription in Norm.-French to Beneit Engliss (d. about 1360).

Nunburnholme, pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 4½ N.N.W. of Market Weighton; ac. of pa. 2,533, of tp. 1,857; soil loam and clay, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. James is Norm.; and the Wesleyans have a chapel.

Nuncar Gate, ha., pa. of Kirkby-in-Ashfield (q.v.), W. Notts., 6½ S.W. of Mansfield.

Nunclose, ha., pa. of Hesket-in-the-Forest (q.v.), E. Cumb., 9 S.S.E. of Carlisle. N. is so named from having formerly belonged to a Benedictine convent.

Nuneaton, pa. and mkt. to. (S.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., and a polling-place for the north-eastern div. of the co., N.E. Warws., 9 N. of Coventry; ac. 6,021; soil clay and heavy loam, overlying clay. N. appears in Domesday as "Etone," and derives its name from the Anglo-Saxon "ea" ("water"), and from the nunnery founded here in King Stephen's time by Robert, Earl of Mellent and Leicester, about 1150. The town lies low, but is pleasantly situated, having a rise in every direction, and is near the north-eastern (Leicester) border of the co., on a branch of the Anker, which is crossed by three bridges. The Coventry Canal passes close to the town. The ancient Roman road called Watling Street, "the pilgrims' road," forming part of the boundary of the Danelagh, passes within about 2½ miles of N., on the way to Atherstone. The church of St. Nicholas (given by Robert, son of the founder, to the monastery of Lyra in Normandy, and afterwards belonging to the priory of Shene, in Surrey) is a large and handsome edifice of stone of the E. Eng. period; the interior was rearranged in 1895; there are monuments to the families of Stratford and Newman (1703), ancestors of the Dugdale family; a memorial to the Right Rev. John Ryder, Archbishop of Tuam (d. 1757); there is also an altar-tomb of white marble, with recumbent effigy in armour, commemorating Sir Marmaduke Constable (d. 1560), created a knight banneret by the Earl of Surrey in the camp at Roquesborough in 1547, and his wives Elizabeth (D'Arcy) and Margaret (Butler). The eccl. pa. of St. Mary has a very interesting church (1878); the site, 1½ ac. in extent, is additionally valuable as including within its precincts the ruins of the ancient priory of St. Mary the Virgin, founded by Robert (Blanchmains), Earl of Leicester, in the reign of Henry II. for nuns of the Benedictine order, a circumstance which influenced the designs for the church. The foundations of the priory church still exist, and the bases of the four piers supporting the tower, which have been uncovered, are in fine preservation, and exhibit workmanship of good character; the new nave is a reproduction, as nearly as can be arrived at, of the nave of the old church, in Trans. style, the transepts Norm., and an E. Eng. choir. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, Baptists, and Congregationalists have chapels. N. has a Literary Institute, with a library, and a Cottage Hospital (1893), and Liberal and Conservative clubs. There are several small charities. The manufacture of ribbons and the weaving of worsted goods are carried on to some extent. An extensive corn mill, cotton, hat, and elastic factories are actively maintained, and there is a large establishment for wool and skin dressing and tanning. Stone is also quarried. There are large mines of coal and ironstone in the immediate vicinity, which afford employment to a great number of hands. The making of blue and red bricks, tiles, and drain-pipes is carried on to a considerable extent. Camp Hill Hall is a seat in Elizabethan style, pleasantly situated 2 W. of the town, on an eminence supposed to have been a Roman camp, and is surrounded by grounds extending over nearly 300 ac., containing some good timber.

Nuneaton (or North-Eastern) Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Warws. It returns one member.

Nuneham Courtney, pa. and vil. on the Isis, which separates it from Berks., S.W. Oxon, 3 N.E. of Abingdon; ac. 2,041; soil Lower Greensand with patches of gault and Kimmeridge clay, subsoil gravel. Of the old church of All Saints, there are some remains in the grounds of Baldon House. [BALDON.] Its immediate successor (designed and built 1764 by Simon, first Earl Harcourt, in Classic style) is still standing on a small eminence near the Isis, though it is now disused. The new church, close to the vil., was built (1860) in E. Eng. style by the late Mr. E. W. Harcourt, M.P., a mortuary chapel being added 1890. Nuneham Park (1,200 ac., finely-timbered and well stocked with deer) is beautifully situated on the left bank of the Isis, and commands extensive and beautiful views on every side. On a knoll near Whitehead's Oak stands the Conduit, a rectangular Renaissance structure, originally erected (1610) at Carfax, Oxford, by Otho Nicholson, a student of Christ Church, presented by the city to the second Earl

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Nowton	Welnetham (2½)	73	234
Nuffield	Wallingford (4)	51	236
Nunburnholme, pa.	Nunburnholme	195	283
Nunburnholme, tp.	Nunburnholme	195	252

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub	POPULATION.
Nuneaton	Nuneaton	97	11580
Nuneaton Division	.....	.....	52644
Nuneham Courtney	Littlemore (3)	60	285

Harcourt (1787), when it was rebuilt here. The gardens were laid out by "Capability" Brown and Mason the poet. The mansion, built by the first Earl Harcourt, a large but plain structure, contains many valuable works by old masters, besides an interesting collection of family and other portraits. In the library are preserved many autograph letters and family MSS., among them a number of letters written by George III. Here also are preserved some interesting relics, including Rousseau's pocket-book and copy of Tasso, tapestry worked by Mary Queen of Scots, and a quarry of glass from Stanton Harcourt (q.v.), on which Pope scratched the words, "In the year 1718 Alexander Pope finished here the Fifth Book of Homer."

COTTAGES AT NUNEHAM COURTNEY.

Nungate, east suburb of Haddington (q.v.), on the Tyne, W. Haddings., Sc. N. takes its name from a Cistercian convent at Abbey, founded in 1178 by Ada, Countess of Northumberland, mother of Malcolm IV. and William the Lion. Here is an old five-arched bridge, part of which crosses the river.

Nunhead, eccl. pa., pa. of Camberwell (q.v.), N.E. Surrey, 4 S.E. by S. of St. Paul's. The church of St. Antholin is a modern building. The Asylum of the Metropolitan Beer and Wine Trade Association was built 1851–53, and enlarged 1872. Nunhead Green is an open space 1½ ac. in extent. Nunhead Cemetery covers an area of about 50 ac. On the south-west side of it are reservoirs of the Southwark and Vauxhall Water Company.

Nunkeeling-with-Bewholme, pa., E.R. Yorks., 3 N.W. of Hornsea; ac. 2,314; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Helen was rebuilt 1810, but retains 14th-cent. mutilated effigies of an armed knight and a lady. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels in the pa. A priory for Benedictine nuns was founded here in the 12th cent., but no remains exist.

Nun Monkton, pa. and pleasant vil. at the confluence of the Ouse and Nidd, W.R. Yorks., 8 N.W. by W. of York; ac. 1,702; soil various, resting on clay and sand. There is a private ferry here, which was granted to Lord Latimer by Henry VIII. The church of St. Mary, mostly E. Eng. style, formerly belonged to a Benedictine convent, founded in the reign of King Stephen by William de Arches and Ivetta, his wife, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin. The west front, a singular but remarkably elegant design, includes a Trans. doorway with three tall lancets above it, that in the centre rising into the tower, and all of them carved with dog-tooth ornament. The doorway is flanked by semicircular-headed niches, one of which contains a mutilated figure. On the south side are Trans. blocked doorways, once, probably, opening into a cloister. The windows are considerably enriched on the inside, and alternate with lancet arches, surmounted by trefoil-headed niches, opening into a mural passage, and forming a kind of triforium arcade. The font is E. Eng. The chancel was rebuilt and the rest of the church re-roofed and re-seated 1873. The Catholic chapel of St. John dates from 1870. There is also a Wesleyan chapel. The Priory is a substantial building in the Queen Anne style, surrounded by gardens of great beauty.

Nunnery How, eminence (492 ft.), pa. of Braddan (q.v.), S. I. of M., 1 S.W. of Douglas. On its north side is The Nunnery, a seat situated in wooded grounds.

Nunney, pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Frome, E. Somerset, 3½ W.S.W. of Frome; ac. 2,431; soil various, resting on clay and limestone. The north transept of the E. Eng. church of St. Peter contains several altar-tombs with recumbent figures to members of the De la Mere family, one of which represents Sir John de la Mere, the founder of Nunney Castle. The chancel was rebuilt and the rest of the church restored 1874. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities yield nearly £500 a year. Edge-tools are manufactured. A cattle fair is held in November. The remains of a Roman tessellated pavement, in good preservation, were discovered some years ago; and near the vil. are the remains of a Roman encampment. Nunney Castle was for many years the seat of the De la Meres, and later of the Paulets. The walls, overgrown with ivy, are of great strength, the side walls being 7½ ft. in thickness, and those of the tower 7 ft. A moat, 22 ft. wide and 10 ft. deep, which communicated with a stream flowing near, surrounded the whole building. During the Civil War it was garrisoned for the King, and after a determined resistance surrendered, the buildings being then dismantled. In 1889 the ruins were enclosed, and a small charge is now made for their inspection.

Nunnington, pa., tp., and vil., pleasantly situated on an eminence sloping towards the Rye, N.R. Yorks., 11 N.W. of Malton; ac. of pa. 1,432, of tp. 2,123; soil partly limestone, resting on limestone rock, red sandstone, and clay. The church of All Saints and St. James is E. Eng. (restored 1884). There are monuments to Sir Richard Graham, first Baron Preston (d. 1695); to William, fourth Baron Widrington (d. 1743); and to Thomas Jackson, a famous jockey, of Thornton-le-Street (d. 1766). The Wesleyans have a chapel. The hospital and school were founded 1678 by Ronald Grahme, the rebuilder of the church, who endowed them with

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Nungate	Haddington	387	712
Nunhead	Nunhead	6	15186
Nunkeeling-with-B.	Hornsea (3)	211	238
Nun Monkton	Shipton (3)	193	232

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Nunney	Frome (3½)	107	914
Nunnington, pa.	Nunnington	216	269
Nunnington, tp.	Nunnington	216	354

£20 yearly for the support of the schoolmaster and of the inmates. At the east end of the vil. is an ancient hall, formerly the seat of Viscount Preston, whose coronet and arms are over the entrance.

Nunny Kirk, tp. on the Font, pa. of Netherwitton (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 9 N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 117. N. Hall is a seat.

Nun Ormsby. [ORMSBY, NORTH.]

Nunriding, tp., pa. of Mitford (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 5 N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 661.

Nunstainton, ha., pa. of Aycliffe (q.v.), S. Dur., 5 N. of Darlington.

Nunthorpe, chap., tp., and small vil., on the road between Stokesley and Redcar, pa. of Great Ayton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4½ S.E. of Middlesbrough; ac. 1,427. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt 1824, in Gothic style. Grey Towers and N. Hall are seats.

Nunton, vil. in the north-west of island of Benbecula, pa. of South Uist (q.v.), N.W. Invs., Sc., 46 W. of Portree. The remains of an ancient convent, from which the name is derived, have been used in the construction of a modern mansion.

Nunton and Bodenham, pa., S.E. Wilts., 3 S.E. of Salisbury; ac. 1,211; the soil is gravel and chalk, subsoil chalk. The church (dedication unknown) is of mixed periods, dating from the 12th cent.; it was almost wholly rebuilt in 1855. Here is a place of worship for Baptists. New Hall is a seat.

Nunwell Mansion, seat, pa. of and 1 W. from Brading (q.v.), I. of W. In 1880 an interesting discovery was made near here of the foundations of a Roman villa, which on excavation has proved to be one of the most important and interesting remains of the kind in the kingdom; many coins of the reigns of Severus (A.D. 197–211), Constans (A.D. 333–350), and Magnentius (A.D. 350–353), and pieces of pottery have been found; several of the chambers can be very clearly traced, and the mosaic pavement of the dining-hall and the bath-room, and other apartments are remarkably perfect; the whole has been covered in, and is now carefully protected.

Nunwick-with-Howgrave, tp., pas. of Kirklington and Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 N. of Ripon; ac. 938.

Nup End (1), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Codicote (q.v.), N. Herts.

Nup End (2), ha., pa. of and about 1 N.E. from Eastington (q.v.), N. Gloucs.

Nup End (3), ha., pa. of Horsley (q.v.), Mid Gloucs., 4½ S. of Stroud.

Nurney (1), pa. and vil., Forth and Idrone East bars., Mid co. Carlow, Ir., 2 N.E. of Leighlinbridge; ac. 2,717.

Nurney (2), pa. and vil. in West Offaly bar., W. co. Kildare, Ir., 4 S.W. of Kildare; ac. 1,798.

Nurney (3), pa., Carbury bar., N. co. Kildare, Ir., 3½ N.E. of Edenderry; ac. 2,128.

Nursery, The, ha., pa. of and 1¼ W. from East Hoathly (q.v.), S. Sussex.

Nursling, or Nutshalling, pa. and vil. pleasantly situated on the Test, W. Hants, 5 N.W. of Southampton; ac. 2,227; soil gravel, clay, and sand, overlying clay. The E. Eng. church of St. Boniface, of which the chancel was restored 1882, contains several monuments; in the vestry are recumbent stone effigies in memory of Sir Richard Mille, Bart. (1613), of Thomas Knollys (1751), and of the family of Edmund Morris (1776). There is a Wesleyan chapel. Grove Place, a Late Tudor mansion occasionally occupied by Queen Elizabeth as a hunting-box, was purchased about 1860 by the late Lord Palmerston, and converted into a commodious farmhouse.

Nursted, pa. and vil., N.W. Kent, 4 S. of Gravesend; ac. 522; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mildred is a small Perp. building, with a finely-carved reredos. Only a portion of N. Court, a 14th-cent. building, remains.

Nurston, vil., pa. of Penmark (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 5½ S.E. of Cowbridge.

Nurton, ha., pa. of Pattingham (q.v.), S.W. Staffs., 5½ W. of Wolverhampton.

Nutbean, ha., pa. of Penton Grafton (q.v.), N. Hants, 3 N.W. of Andover.

Nutbourne (1), vil., pa. of Pulborough (q.v.), N.W. Sussex, 4 S.E. of Petworth.

Nutbourne (2), vil. on Langston Harbour, pa. of Westbourne (q.v.), S.W. Sussex, 6 W. of Chichester.

Nutfield, pa. and vil., S.E. Surrey, 3½ E. of Reigate; ac. 3,401; soil loam, overlying fullers' earth, clay, and ironstone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1882) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; the chancel contains a piscina and a tomb bearing an inscription in Norm.-French; there is a fine oak Perp. screen, a pulpit of Late Tudor work, and a font dated 1665; and a window in the north aisle contains a few fragments of ancient glass; the church also contains some interesting brasses, one to Lady Elizabeth Tollemache Powerscourt (d. 1780), and another to Ellen (Power), widow of John Hume Purves, and second wife of Charles (Manners-Sutton), first Viscount Salisbury (d. 1845), and to her daughter Marguerite (Purves), wife of Captain William Augustus Tollemache. There is a charity of £33. Fullers' earth is largely produced here, and sulphate of barytes also occurs. N. Court (once the home of the Evelyn family), N. Priory, and Patteson Court are seats.

Nutford, ha., pa. of Pimperne (q.v.), N. Dors., about 2 N.E. of Blandford.

Nuthall, pa. and vil., S.W. Notts., 5 N.W. of Nottingham; ac. 1,716; soil good red land, overlying limestone. The Perp. church of St. Patrick (restored 1884) retains two piscinæ, and an ancient tomb with mailed effigy representing one of the Cokefelds, while in the east window is some old stained glass. N. Temple, a mansion in Italian style, stands in a park containing a lake of 14 ac.

Nuthampstead, tp., pa. of and 1½ E. from Barkway

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Nunny Kirk	Morpeth (9)	288	23
Nunriding	Morpeth (5)	288	22
Nunthorpe	Nunthorpe (1¼)	243	135
Nunton & Bodenham	Salisbury (3)	84	324
Nunwick-with-H.	Ripon (2)	214	22
Nurney (1), pa.	Milford (4)	61	342
Nurney (1), vil.	Milford (4)	61	95
Nurney (2)	Kildare (4)	31	416
Nurney (3)	Edenderry (3½)	39	284
Nursling	Nursling	82	938
Nursted	Sole Street (1)	27	56
Nutfield	Nutfield	23	1642
Nuthall	Bulwell (2)	129	1865
Nuthampstead	Royston (5)	45	207

(q.v.), N.E. Herts., on the Essex border; ac. 1,960.

Nuthurst (1), pa. and vil., Mid Sussex; 4 s. of Horsham; ac. 3,601; soil partly clay and partly sand, subsoil clay. The church of St. Andrew (enlarged 1856) is Dec.; the east window contains some old glass, and there is a piscina in the chancel. The chapel-of-ease of the Holy Nativity, at Copsale, is a plain brick structure; and the mission church of the Good Shepherd, on Manning's Heath Common, was erected in 1881. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Congregational mission room. Sedgwick Park and Swallowfield are seats.

Nuthurst (2), tp., eccl. pa. (Nuthurst cum Hockley Heath), and vil., pa. of Hampton-in-Arden (q.v.), N. Warws., 10 s. of Birmingham; ac. 668. The eccl. pa. extends into the pa. of Tamworth. On the site of an ancient chapel a modern one was built, which is now used as a mortuary chapel. The church of St. Thomas was built in 1880, in E. Eng. style. There is a Baptist chapel.

The Mull of Oa.

Nuthurst (3), ha., pa. of Astley (q.v.), N. Warws., 4 s.w. of Nuneaton.

Nuthurst cum Hockley Heath. [Nuthurst (2).]

Nutley (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Hants, about 5 s.w. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,523; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1846) is E. Eng.

Nutley (2), eccl. pa. and small vil., pa. of and about 3 N. from Maresfield (q.v.), Mid Sussex. The church of St. James the Less is in E. Eng. style. Here are steam saw-mills and timber-yards.

Nutshalling. [Nursling.]

Nutts, ha., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 4½ N.W. of Dewsbury.

Nutwalls, ha., pa. of and ½ s. from Aylesbeare (q.v.), E. Dev.

Nutwell, ha. on the Exe, pa. of Woodbury (q.v.), S. Dev., 2½ S.E. of Topsham. N. Court, a fine mansion, on the estuary of the Exe, and surrounded by a park, is a seat.

Nybster, ha. on the sea-coast, pa. of and 8 N. from Wick (q.v.), N.E. Caithn., Sc.

Nyland, ha., pa. of and 3 s.w. from Kington Magna (q.v.), N. Dors.

Nyland-with-Batcombe, pa., Mid Somerset, 5 S.E. of Axbridge; ac. 830; soil loam, resting on clay. There is a Bible Christian and a Wesleyan chapel. [Draycot.]

Nymet Rowland, pa. on the Taw and Yeo, Mid Dev., 10 N.W. of Crediton; ac. 581; soil loam, overlying shale. Of the E. Eng. church of St. Bartholomew the chancel was restored 1871. N. House is a handsome modern house on an elevated site; another seat is Barton.

Nymet Tracey. [Bow (1).]

Nymph Bank, fishing-bank off the south coast of Ireland, stretches E.N.E. from a point opposite Cape Clear to a point south-east of the harbour of Dungarvan, its mean distance from the mainland being about 21 miles. The surface, 45 to 60 fathoms below the level of the sea, consists chiefly of sand, but in the deepest places it is ooze. Codling, hake, and other fish are plentiful.

Nymphsfield, pa. and vil., Mid Gloucs., 12 s. of Gloucester; ac. 1,870; soil clayey, overlying stone beds. The church of St. Bartholomew was (with the exception of the tower) rebuilt in 1863, and is E. Eng. The pa. has some small charities. There is a Roman Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Joseph, and a Baptist chapel. In the pa. is an ancient British burial-place, opened in 1861. Woodchester Park, a seat, is partly in this pa.

Nympton. [Bishop's Nympton, King's Nympton.]

Nympton St. George. [George Nympton.]

Nynehead, pa. and vil. on the Tone, S.W. Somerset, 7 W.S.W. of Taunton; ac. 1,549; soil loam, overlying red marl and sandstone. The church of All Saints is a small Perp. building, containing some Italian monuments of the Sanford and Clarke families, a piscina and a monument to Richard Wike (d. 1590) in the chancel, a squint in the transept, and a carved oak rood-screen. There are small charities. N. Court is a seat.

Nythe, ha., pa. of Wanborough (q.v.), N. Wilts., 2 E. of Swindon.

Nytimber, vil., pa. of Pagham (q.v.), W. Sussex, 4 s. of Chichester. N. consists of a few cottages. Within living memory the sea has encroached on the land here to the extent of about 100 acres.

O.

Oa, q.s. pa., pa. of Kildalton (q.v.), Island of Islay, S.W. Args., Sc., 13 s. by E. of Bowmore. Port Ellen (q.v.) is in the pa. Beginning in its vicinity, a peninsula called the Oa or Ho extends about 6 s.w., terminating in the Mull of Oa or Ho, a lofty overhanging headland 750 ft. in height. The church dates from 1828. On a promontory near the Mull is a ruin called Dunaidh. In the north-west part of the Oa are some interesting caves, one of which—Slochd Mhad Doraidh—can be reached only by boat.

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Nuthurst (1)	Horsham (4)	38	853
Nuthurst (2), tp.	Hampton (2)	103	101
Nuthurst (2), ec. pa.	Hampton (2)	103	565
Nutley (1)	Basingstoke (5)	48	137
Nutley (2)	Forest Row (5)	34	990

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
N'land-w.-Batcombe	Axbridge (5)	136	51
Nymet Rowland	Lapford (1)	190	92
Nymphsfield	Stonehouse (4)	105	235
Nynehead	Wellington (1½)	166	321
Oa	Fairlie (46)	413	210

Oadby, pa. and large vil., Mid Leics., 3½ S.E. of Leicester; ac. 2,164; soil clay, resting on clay and sand. The Dec. church of St. Peter was renovated and enlarged 1887. The Baptists and Free Methodists have chapels. The majority of the inhabitants are engaged in framework knitting and the manufacture of boots and shoes. There is a Working Men's Club, and a United Club and Institute. The charities include the Wilkinson bequest of £1,330. The racecourse, formed 1883, comprises 196 ac., overlooking the valley of the Soar, and is distinguished by having a straight mile.

Oakamoor, eccl. pa. and vil. in the valley of the Churnet, pas. of Alton, Cheadle, and Kingsley (q.v.), N.E. Staffs., 3 E. by N. of Cheadle. The church of the Holy Trinity was built 1833. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The O. Mills chapel was built 1878, in Gothic style. There are extensive brass and copper works here.

Oakbank, vil., pa. of Kirknewton and East Calder (q.v.), N.W. Edins., Sc. Here is an Established mission church. The vil. contains oil works.

Oake, pa. and scattered vil., S.W. Somerset 4½ N.N.E. of Wellington; ac. 1,691; soil loam. The church of St. Bartholomew is an E. Eng. and Perp. building of sandstone, containing some remains of stained glass believed to be from Taunton Priory, and some good Flemish carving. In the churchyard are the remains of a cross and a stone on which doles were once distributed. There is a small charity.

Oaken, ha., pa. of Codsall and Oaken (q.v.), W. Staffs., 4½ N.W. of Wolverhampton. O. House is a seat.

Oakengates, eccl. pa. and mkt. to. (s.), pas. of Shifnal and Wombridge (q.v.), E. Salop, 3 E. of Wellington. The church of the Holy Trinity (1855) is in Gothic style. There are Congregational, Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Brethren chapels. The Market Hall was rebuilt 1869. Ironstone and coal are mined.

Oakenshaw (1). [WOODLANDS-CUM-OAKENSHAW.]

Oakenshaw (2), vil., pa. of Brancepeth (q.v.), Mid Dur., about 6 S.W. of Durham. There is a mission church, and the Primitive Methodists and Methodist New Connexion have chapels. O. has also a reading-room and small library.

Oaker End, ha., pa. of Darley (q.v.), N. Derbys., about 4 N.W. of Matlock.

Oaker Side, ha., pa. of Darley (q.v.), N. Derbys., about 4 N.W. of Matlock.

Oakerthorpe, ha., pa. of South Wingfield (q.v.), S. Derbys., 1½ W. of Alfreton.

Oakfield (1), eccl. pa., pa. of St. Helens (q.v.), I. of W., forming a fashionable suburb of Ryde. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. style. Appley Towers is a seat in Elizabethan style.

Oakfield (2), vil., pa. of Beath (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc., 5 N.N.E. of Dunfermline.

Oakford (1), pa. and vil. near the Exe, N.E. Dev., 4 S. of Dulverton; ac. 5,464; soil clayey, resting on rock. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt 1839, in E. Eng. style. The Bible Christians have a chapel. A reading-room was opened 1885. Hamslade, a seat, stands on an eminence overlooking the Exe valley.

Oakford (2), ha., pa. of Marshfield (q.v.), S. Glouc., 8 N. of Bath.

Oakham, pa. and mkt. to. (S. & M.), head of U. and Co. Co. dis., situated in a rich vale, W. Rutld., 11 E.S.E. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 2,047. The church of All Saints, on rising ground near the Castle, is chiefly Perp. There is a monument to Ann (d. 1642), daughter of Andrew Burton; various members of the Freer family are also commemorated, and there is a tablet to Lieutenant Bullivant, who served under General Sir John Moore at Corunna and elsewhere (d. 1825); in 1858–59 the church was thoroughly repaired. The church library contains 200 volumes in Greek and Latin, left by Lady Anne Harrington. The Catholic church (1883) is dedicated to SS. Joseph and MARKET PLACE AND BUTTER CROSS, OAKHAM.

(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Edith. There are also Congregational, Calvinistic, Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The O. Institute was established 1877; the Agricultural Hall is now used for entertainments, etc. The town has an extensive trade in coal, corn, and malt, and the knitting of fancy hosiery is carried on. There are also two shoe manufactories and a large patent steam brewery. The ancient market-shambles ceased to exist from 1880, when a tree was planted at each corner of the site, and a drinking-fountain erected in the centre. Three fairs are held in March, May, and September, and a pleasure fair in May. There are also monthly cattle fairs. Archdeacon Johnson's Rutland charity, which embraces the schools of O. and Uppingham, and a provision for poor pensioners known as the Bedehouse people, was founded 1584, and endowed with lands and impropriations now yielding about £4,000 per annum. The O. School was reconstructed 1875, so as to make it a first-class modern school, with exhibitions at the universities and other places of higher education. The school-house is a modern stone building; over the principal entrance, carved in relief, are the arms of the founder. The Bedehouse people, chiefly decayed

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oadby	Wigston (1)	95	1865
Oakamoor	Oakamoor	150	755
Oakbank	Midcalder (1)	390	979
Oake	Wellington (4½)	165	468

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oakengates	Oakengates	153	1694
Oakfield (1)	Ryde	79	2996
Oakford (1)	Morebath (3)	176	513
Oakham	Oakham	94	3566

housekeepers and other poor respectable people who have not received parish relief, now live at their own homes, the hospital having ceased to exist. Among the other charities are Forster's, for apprenticing orphan boys, and St. Anne's, which has an income of about £390, divided among about 20 beneficiaries. Of the ancient Norm. castle, the hall is the only portion in tolerable preservation, and is still used for holding assizes and sessions, and the public business of the to. and co.; it is stated to have been erected between 1165 and 1191 by Walkelin de Ferrars. A singular custom still prevails by which every peer of this realm, on first passing through the to., is compelled to give a shoe from the foot of one of his horses, or upon his refusal the bailiff of the lordship may take by force a shoe (or a sum of money for the purchase of one), to be placed on the walls of the hall. Among many of different sizes, in proportion to the sum paid for the purchase, is one given by Queen Elizabeth, curiously worked and gilt. There is also a splendid one from the late Duke of York; another from George IV. when Prince Regent, of bronze and ormolu; one given by Her Majesty when Princess Victoria (1835); and another by the Princess of Wales in 1881. O. Lodge is a mansion surrounded by extensive grounds, which contain some fine cedars of Lebanon. Catmose is another seat.

Oakham Deanshold with Barleythorpe, tp., pa. of Oakham (q.v.), W. Rutld.; ac. 1,235.

Oakham Lordshold, tp., pa. of Oakham (q.v.), W. Rutld.; ac. 2,010.

Oakhampton. [OKEHAMPTON.]

Oakhanger, vil., pa. of Selborne (q.v.), N. Hants, 1 S.E. of Alton.

Oakhill (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Shepton Mallet, Ashwick, and Stoke Lane (q.v.), E. Somerset, 3 N.E. of Shepton Mallet. The church of All Saints was built 1861, in E. Eng. style, and contains some stained glass and a handsome reredos. There are Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. O. has some small charities and a small endowment for the schools. Brewing is extensively carried on.

Oakhill (2), ha., pa. of Froxfield (q.v.), E. Wilts., 2 N. of Hungerford.

Oakington, pa., tp., and vil., W. Cambs., 5 N.W. of Cambridge; ac. of pa. 2,025, of tp. 1,692; soil stiff loam, overlying clay. The E. Eng. and Dec. church of St. Andrew (restored 1885) retains an ancient stone font consisting of a rudely-arcaded basin supported on five shafts, and there are three massive stone coffin-lids, supposed to date from about 1350, one bearing a floriated cross; both aisles originally had chantries at the east end, and the north aisle still retains two niches. The manor of Hockington, given in 946 to Crowland Abbey, remained in the possession of that house till the Dissolution in 1539. In a garden near the church are the graves of three Puritan ministers—Joseph Oddy (1687), Francis Holcroft (1692), and Henry Osland (1711). There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Oaklands, ha., pa. of Charlton Kings (q.v.), E. Gloucs., 2 S.E. of Cheltenham.

Oakleigh Park, residential dis., pa. of Friern Barnet (q.v.), N. Middx., 9 N.W. of St. Paul's. The church of All Saints' eccl. pa., Friern Barnet, was built 1882, in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. There is a Congregational lecture hall.

Oakley (1), pa. and vil., N. Beds., 4 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 1,740; soil clay, overlying clay and, in places, rock. The Midland Railway passes through the pa. on a viaduct of eleven arches; the Ouse bounds O. on the west, north, and south, and an ancient stone bridge connects it with Bromham and Stevington. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; under a canopy in the south wall is a mutilated recumbent figure; the chancel retains a piscina, and in the churchyard are some remains of a cross. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are small. The manufacture of pillow-lace and rush-plaiting are carried on. Portions of the pa. lie low, and are subject to flooding. O. House is a seat.

Oakley (2), pa. and vil., W. Bucks., near border of Oxon, 7 N.W. of Thame; ac. 2,250; soil deep tenacious dark clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary is Trans. Dec. and Perp.; in the north aisle are two tombs of the 13th cent., and the north wall of the chancel (rebuilt 1885) retains a Dec. piscina; the south transept has a squint and an ancient stone locker; on the wall in the north aisle are portions of an oil-painting or panel, formerly whitewashed over.

Oakley (3), pa. and vil. in the valley of the Waveney, N. Suff., 3½ N.E. of Eye; ac. 1,289; soil mixed, subsoil chiefly gravel. The church of St Nicholas is Perp.; the south porch has a parvise.

Oakley (4), ha., pa. of Canford Magna (q.v.) S.E. Dors., 1 S.E. of Wimborne Minster.

Oakley (5), ha., pa. of Chilthorne Domer (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 2½ N.W. of Yeovil.

Oakley (6), ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Chinnor (q.v.), S. Oxon.

Oakley Church. [CHURCH OAKLEY.]

Oakley, East, ti., pa. of and 2½ S. from Wootton St. Lawrence (q.v.), N. Hants. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Oakley, Great (1), pa. and vil. on Ramsey Creek N.E. Essex, 6 S.W. of Harwich; ac. 3,049 and 31 water; soil loam, clay, and gravel, overlying loam The church of All Saints (restored 1880) retains some Norm. work and a Norm. font. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Great O. Hall is a seat.

Oakley, Great (2), pa. and vil., N. Northants 6 N. of Kettering; ac. 2,147; soil stiff, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael contains memorials of various members of the Brooke or Broke family of O. Hall, including a brass dated 1557. In the vil. is a well called Monk's Well. O. Hall, a seat has been enlarged.

Oakley Green, vil., pa. of and 3 S. from Bray (q.v.), E. Berks.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Oakham D. with B.	Oakham	91	1146
Oakham Lordshold	Oakham	94	2396
Oakhill (1)	Shepton Mallet (3)	121	421
Oakington, pa.	Oakington	63	480
Oakington, tp.	Oakington	63	425

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Oakley (1)	Oakley	53	25
Oakley (2)	Brill (4)	62	44
Oakley (3)	Eye (3½)	94	26
Oakley, Great (1)	Wrabness (3)	65	84
Oakley, Great (2)	Rushton (2)	76	19

Oakley (Ironworks) and Comrie, vil., pas. of Carnock and Culross (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc., 4½ W. by N. of Dunfermline. The streets are remarkably wide, with low houses on either side. There is a Roman Catholic church, dedicated to St. Margaret. The ironworks are now discontinued.

Oakley, Little (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Essex, 4 S.W. of Harwich; ac. 1,218 land and 74 water; soil mixed, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Mary is a Dec. and Perp. building; the chancel contains a piscina and a priest's door pierced through a buttress. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Oakley, Little (2), pa. and vil., N. Northants, 6 N.E. of Kettering; ac. 723; soil clayey, resting on clay. The E. Eng. church of St. Peter (restored and re-roofed 1867) contains a monument to William Montagu (d. 1619).

Oakley, North, ha., pa. of Kingsclere (q.v.), N. Hants, 7 N.W. of Basingstoke.

Oakmere, tp. and vil., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Delamere (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 2,800. There is a mere here 36 ac. in extent.

Oakmoor. [OAKAMOOR.]

Oakridge, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Bisley (q.v.), S. Glouc., 5 E. of Stroud. The church of St. Bartholomew is in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Lilly Horn House is a seat.

Oaks (Charnwood Forest), eccl. pa., pas. of Whitwick, Sheepshead, Newton Linford, and Barrow-upon-Soar, N.W. Leics., 6 W. of Loughborough. The church of St. James (rebuilt 1883) is in E. Eng. style. The churchyard has a lich-gate.

Oaksey, pa. and vil., N. Wilts., 6 S.W. of Cirencester; ac. 1,758; soil clay, gravel, and flint. The land is chiefly in pasture. The church of All Saints is a handsome E. Eng. and Perp. building; the south porch has been closed up, and is now used as a baptistery. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel. There is a small charity of about £3 yearly.

Oaks, The, ha., pa. of Norton (q.v.), N. Derbys., 4 S. of Sheffield.

Oakthorpe and Donisthorpe, eccl. pa. (Donisthorpe) and tp., pas. of Seal, Church Gresley, Measham, and Stretton-en-le-Field, S.E. Derbys. and N.W. Leics., 3 S.W. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch; ac. 1,805. The church of St. John the Evangelist, at D. (restored 1889–91), is in Perp. style. At D. also are two Primitive Methodist chapels. There is a colliery and a brewery. At O. are Methodist and Wesleyan chapels.

Oakwood, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Abinger, Ockley, and Wotton (q.v.), S. Surrey, 9 S.W. of Dorking. The E. Eng. church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1879–80) was founded in the 12th cent. by Sir Edward de la Hall. There is a Congregational chapel. Redford is a seat.

Oakwood Tower, ruined fortress on the border of Selkirk and Kirkhope pas., E. Selks., Sc., 3½ S.W. by W. of Selkirk. The fortress crowns a steep bank rising above Ettrick Water. In the 13th cent. it was the abode of the celebrated magician Sir Michael Scott of Balwearie.

Oakworth, eccl. pa. and to. on the Worth, pas. of Haworth and Keighley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2½ S. of Keighley. Christ Church was erected 1846, in E. Eng. style. There is also a school church and a mission church. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Baptists have chapels. O. House, situated on the declivity of a hill, is a large and handsome building in the Italian style, with a large and lofty square tower over the principal entrance, serving as a landmark; the grounds are very extensive, with vineries, winter gardens, and grottoes, through which meander rills of water.

Oare (1), pa. and growing vil. on a creek of the Swale, N.W. Kent, 2 N.W. of Faversham; ac. 645 land and 276 water; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1867) is E. Eng. and Perp. The sill of the east window in the chancel forms a sedile, and near it is a piscina. The font is Norm. The Wesleyans have a chapel. In the pa. are brick-works and powder-mills.

Oare (2), pa. and vil., N.W. Somerset, 13 W. of Minehead; ac. 4,000; soil sandy, overlying sandstone and hard stone. The church of St. Mary is Perp. There is a small charity.

Oare (3), chap. and ha., pa. of Chieveley (q.v.), Mid Berks., 5 N.E. of Newbury. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored) is Perp.; the churchyard contains some fine yew-trees, and memorials to the Butt, Taylor, Tuckey, and Wallins families.

Oare (4), vil., pa. of Wilcot (q.v.), E. Wilts., 4 S.W. of Marlborough.

Oasby, ha., pa. of Haydor (q.v.), S.W. Lincs., 5½ N.E. of Grantham.

Oathlaw, pa., Mid Forfs., 3 N. of Forfar; ac. 5,274; soil clayey, mostly overlying Old Red Sandstone. The South Esk flows along the north border, and in the north-east traverses the interior. On the Aberlemno border is Finhaven Hill, on which is a vitrified fort. Battle Dykes (q.v.) is another interesting antiquity. The Established church was erected in 1815. Sandstone is quarried. Finhaven House and Newbarns are seats.

Oatlands, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Walton-on-Thames (q.v.), N. Surrey. The church of St. Mary (1862) is in E. Eng. style. The Working Men's Club dates from 1884. Oatlands (formerly the seat of the Duke of York, and afterwards of Lord Francis Egerton), standing in an exceedingly beautiful domain, commanding delightful views over the valley of the Thames, with Windsor Castle towering in the distance, has been converted into the Oatlands Park Hotel. In the grounds is a grotto, a magnificent structure of shell work, constructed about 1747 by Henry Pelham-Clinton, ninth Earl of Lincoln, at a cost of about £40,000, and consisting of three chambers of elaborate execution leading by passages into each other; the walls and vaulting are inlaid in various devices

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oakley (I'nw'rks) & C.	Oakley	428	369
Oakley, Little (1)	Wrabness (2¼)	65	305
Oakley, Little (2)	Geddington (1½)	77	108
Oakmere	Hartford (4)	170	387
Oakridge	Brinscombe (2¼)	99	818
Oaks (C. Forest)	Bardon Hill (2)	111	576
Oaksey	Minety (3)	85	374
Oakthorpe & D., ec. pa.	Moira (2)	120	2955
Oakthorpe & D., tp.	Moira (2)	120	1678
Oakwood	Ockley (3)	32	645
Oakworth, eccl. pa.	Oakworth	215	2681
Oakworth, to.	Oakworth	215	5880
Oare (1)	Faversham (2)	53	511
Oare (2)	Crewkerne (3)	132	80
Oathlaw	Forfar (3) [(1)	478	399
Oatlands	Walton-on-Thames	17	1349

with coloured spars, minerals, and shells. At the entrance, in a niche, is a marbie statue by Torregiano; at the foot of the terrace is Broadwater Lake, and on a grassy mound overhanging it stands a model of the Temple of Vesta at Tivoli. Foxholes is a seat.

Oaze Sand, sandbank in the Thames estuary, 5 E. of the Nore light. South of it is the channel known as Oaze Deep.

Oban, q.s. pa., modern town, seaport, and contributory burgh of the Ayr District, pa. of Kilmore and Kilbride (q.v.), W. Args., Sc., 32 W.N.W. of Inveraray. The town, the "Charing Cross of the Highlands," is situated at the head of a fine bay, protected by the Island of Kerrera in front, having an entrance at each end. This bay is from 12 to 20 fathoms deep, is well sheltered by beautiful hills, and large enough to anchor with convenience a good number of merchantmen. There are three quays, which have been enlarged and improved, so as to afford ample room to the various vessels frequenting the port. The imports of O. consist chiefly of merchandise from Glasgow, Liverpool, and Ireland, and its principal exports are whisky, wool, and sheep-dip. It is also a great centre for the steamer traffic through the Caledonian Canal, W. Args., and the Western Isles, and is the terminus of the Callander and Oban branch of the Caledonian Railway. On the east side of the town stands the pa. church; St. Columba Church (Established), George Street, is an elegant structure with a spire 120 ft. high, erected in 1875. In Tweeddale Street is a Congregational chapel; there are also Free and United Presbyterian and Episcopal churches. On the Corran Esplanade is the Roman Catholic Procathedral, and the residence of the Roman Catholic Bishop of Argyll and the Isles. To the south of the town a union poorhouse was opened in 1862. The sheriff court-house and police station were completed in 1889, in Classic style. The court-house, the main entrance to which is in Albany Street, contains the offices of the Procurator Fiscal, the Sheriff Clerk Deputy, etc. Farther along Albany Street are the police buildings, consisting of the police station and offices. There is a fine sandy beach about 1 N. of the town. The cemetery is about a mile and a half out, on the road to Dunstaffnage. Several fairs and markets for cattle, horses, sheep and wool, and hiring are held.

OBAN—GENERAL VIEW.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oban, q.s. pa.	Oban	504	3337
Oban, to.	Oban	504	4946
Oban, burgh	Oban	504	4377
Oborne	Sherborne (1½)	118	130

Obe, pl., with school, pa. of Harris (q.v.), N.W. Invs., Sc., 40 S.S.W. of Stornoway.

Obney Hills, hill range (1,323 ft.), pa. of Auchtergaven (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., 2¾ S. of Dunkeld.

Oborne, pa., N. Dors., on the Somerset border, 1½ W. of Milborne Port; ac. 607; soil and subsoil oolite. The pa. is referred to as "Wobourn" by Pope Eugenius (1145), and is given as "Woborne" in the Bull of Alexander III. (1303). The church of St. Cuthbert was rebuilt on a new site 1862, in E. Eng. style; the chancel of the old church is used as a mortuary chapel.

O'Brennan, pa., Trughanacmy bar., N. co. Kerry, Ir., 4 N.E. of Tralee; ac. 6,547.

O'Briensbridge, pa. and vil., Tulla Lower bar., E. co. Clare, Ir., 2 N. of Castle Connell; ac. 11,368. The bridge spanning the river, from which the place takes its name, had formerly fourteen arches, no two of which were turned alike; but the commissioners have rebuilt the greater part of it, and the arches are now reduced to twelve; below it is a canal, cut to avoid the rapids in the river. The Protestant church, a building of stone, was erected in 1822. Near the vil. is Montpelier, where is a mineral spring, formerly held in some estimation.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
O'Brennan	Tralee (4)	207	671
O'Briensbridge, pa.	Birdhill (2¾)	110	1590
O'Briensbridge, vil.	Birdhill (2¼)	110	139

Fairs are held on March 17, May 8, July 25, September 7, November 7, and December 8, for horses and cattle.

Oby, or Owby, pl. (formerly a pa.), pa. of Ashby-with-Oby (q.v.), E. Norf., 4 N.N.E. of Acle. The church has nearly disappeared; in 1882 the foundations of an old church and some remains of an encaustic-tiled floor were found in the churchyard.

O'Callaghans Mills, vil., pa. of Killinan (q.v.), E. co. Clare, Ir., 4 S.E. of Tulla.

Occlestone, tp. and vil. on the Wheelock, pa. of and 2¼ S.S.W. from Middlewich (q.v.), Mid Chesh. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Occold, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 2½ S. of Eye; ac. 1,568; soil good heavy land, overlying clay. The Norm. church of St. Michael was repaired 1854. There is a Baptist chapel.

Ochil Hills, hill-range, chiefly in S.E. Perths., but partly in N. Clacks., N.W. Kinrs., and W. Fifes., Sc. The range extends 25 N.E. and S.W. from the Tay in the vicinity of Perth to a point near Bridge of Allan, where the counties of Perths., Stirls., and Clacks. meet. Its mean breadth is 12 miles. The soil is chiefly loam, gravel, sand, and rock, overlying greenstone and basalt, with silver, copper, lead, and iron ores. The rounded and verdant hills, which afford abundant pasturage for sheep and cattle, are intersected by rich and well-cultivated valleys. The declivities on the south side are very abrupt, contrasting with the more gradual slope towards the north. The hills increase in altitude towards the south-west, reaching a height of 2,363 ft. in Ben Cleuch (q.v.). The views are extensive and beautiful.

Ochiltree (1), pa. and small but pleasant vil., Mid Ayrs., Sc., 16 S. of Kilmarnock; ac. 18,328. The country around is delightfully picturesque, and the pa. is well watered. The Scottish Reformer, John Knox, married his second wife at this vil.; she was the daughter of Lord Ochiltree, who at that period resided at O. House. O. formerly gave the title of Baron to a branch of the family of Stewart. There are Established and Free churches. Here is a subscription library.

Ochiltree (2), ha., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Linlithgow (q.v.), N. Linliths., Sc. There was formerly a castle on the north side of the ha. A Roman camp may be traced on a hill in its south vicinity.

Ochiltree (3), loch, pa. of Penninghame, N.E. Wigs., Sc., 8½ N.N.W. of Newton Stewart. The loch is nearly a mile long and more than ¼ mile wide.

Ock, river, Berks., rises near Kingston Lisle, in the White Horse, and runs 18 N.E. to the Thames at Abingdon.

Ockany. [WALKINGHAM HILL WITH OCKANY.]

Ockbrook, pa. and vil., S.E. Derbys., 5½ E. of Derby; ac. 1,619; soil sand and gravel, subsoil various. The tower of the church of All Saints is an interesting example of Trans. work; the spire is of later date, probably of the time of Edward III. A finely-carved oak screen of the 16th cent. separates the nave and chancel, and the choir-stalls are of the same period; the stained east window, brought from the Wigston Hospital, Leics., represents the four Evangelists. The church plate includes a small silver chalice temp. Edward VI. The fabric was enlarged and repaired 1835. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. An establishment for Moravians was founded here in 1750, and comprises boarding schools with a chapel. A monument has been erected in the hall to Lieutenant Charles Hearsey, a former pupil, who fell in the Cheardeh Valley, near Cabul, in 1879.

Ockendon, North, pa. and vil., S. Essex, 18½ W. of London; ac. 1,703; soil various, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1858) is of mixed periods; there is some old stained glass, and brasses to William Poyntz and Elizabeth his wife (d. 1502), John Poyntz (d. 1547), and some of a later date. There are some small charities. In 1858 an early Roman or British burial-ground was discovered here.

Ockendon Rokeby. [OCKENDON, SOUTH.]

Ockendon, South, or Ockendon Rokeby, pa. and vil., S. Essex, 20 W. of London; ac. 2,925; soil various, subsoil gravelly. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1866) is a Gothic building of flint and stone; it contains a fine Perp. font and an ornamental hourglass-stand; the north doorway is Norm. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The pa. contains several ancient mounds.

Ocker Hill, eccl. pa., pa. of Tipton (q.v.), S. Staffs., about 1 N. of Dudley. The church of St. Mark was built 1859, in E. Eng. style.

Ockham, pa. and vil. near the Wey, W. Surrey, 7 N.E. of Guildford; ac. 2,756; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (of various periods from Norm. to 15th cent.) was restored and enlarged 1875; in a mausoleum in the churchyard is a sitting statue in white marble of Peter King, Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and Lord Chancellor (d. 1743). Charcoal-burning is carried on here. O. Park is a seat of the Earls of Lovelace, who derive the title of Viscount from this place.

Ockley (1), pa. and vil., S. Surrey, 7 S. of Dorking; ac. 2,992; soil stiff clay, overlying Weald clay. The E. Dec. church of St. Margaret was restored in 1873. The church of St. John, a chapel-of-ease, was opened in 1872. There is a charity of £45. The pa. school has an endowment.

Ockley (2), ha., pa. of Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 5 E. of Chesterfield.

Ocle Pychard, pa., Mid Herefords., 8 N.E. of Hereford; ac. 1,905; soil clayey, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. James is in part E. Eng., the oldest portions dating from the 13th cent., and was restored 1869. There are some small charities. Cider is made here. O. Court is a well-built modern mansion.

Odagh, pa. on the Nore, Crannagh and Fassidir in bars., N. co. Kilk., Ir., 4½ N.W. of Kilkenny; ac. 4,542. There are Protestant and Catholic churches.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
O'Callaghans Mills	Six Mile Bridge (8)	142	139
Occold	Eye (2)	94	514
Ochiltree (1), pa.	Ochiltree	380	1910
Ochiltree (1), vil.	Ochiltree	380	499
Ockbrook	Borrowash (1¼)	125	2166
Ockendon, North	Ockendon	18	351
Ockendon, South	Ockendon	18	1071
Ocker Hill	Ocker Hill	122	3927
Ockham	Horsley and O.	22	600
Ockley (1)	Ockley (1)	32	615
Ocle Pychard	Dinmore (5)	151	289
Odagh	Kilkenny (4½)	81	557

Odcombe, pa. and vil., S. Somerset, 3 W. of Yeovil; ac. 1,100; soil light sand, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1875) is a Dec. and Perp. building of stone, containing an ancient font and a modern marble and mosaic reredos. The Primitive Methodists and Baptists have chapels. There is a small charity. Thomas Coryat, author of "Crudities," was born here 1577.

Oddendale, ha., pa. of Crosby Ravensworth (q.v.), Mid Westmd., 3 S.E. of Shap. On the moor are two ancient concentric circles of small stones; within the inner circle remains of burnt earth and charcoal have been found.

Oddingley, pa. and vil. on the Worcester and Birmingham Canal, Mid Worcs., 6 N.E. of Worcester; ac. 870; soil loamy, overlying marl and clay. The church of St. James (almost wholly rebuilt 1851), in the Perp. style, contains much old stained glass. The farm of Netherwood was the scene of a tragedy in 1806, when a carpenter named Hemming assassinated the then rector, and was himself murdered by the instigators of his crime, fearful of being implicated through him.

Oddington (1), pa. and vil., W. Gloucs., 2 E. of Stow-on-the-Wold; ac. 1,813; soil and subsoil stone-brash. The old pa. church of St. Nicholas, now used only for funerals, is chiefly E. Eng., with a Norm. doorway; in the south aisle are some remains of mural paintings and a piscina. The church of the Ascension was built 1852, in E. Eng. style. There are some small charities. O. House, a seat, is an ancient stone building.

Oddington (2), pa. and vil., Mid Oxon, 8 N.E. of Oxford; ac. 1,317; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1886) is chiefly Dec.; in the chancel is a piscina, and a brass to Ralph Hamsterley (d. 1518); there are memorials to Thomas Browne, D.D. (d. 1673), sometime chaplain to Charles I., Henry Brooker (d. 1679), and others. In the churchyard are the remains of a cross. There are two mineral springs. A Roman road formerly crossed Otmoor Common.

Odd Rode, tp., pa. of Astbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 3½ S.S.W. of Congleton; ac. 3,692; soil variable, but chiefly loam. The church of All Saints was built 1864, in E. Eng. style. The school has an endowment of £30. Old Moreton Hall dates from c. 1540, and is a picturesque building of timber, wicker-work, and plaster; the house surrounds a courtyard, and is surrounded by a moat, which is crossed by a stone bridge; in the dining-room are the arms of Queen Elizabeth, and on the windows those of Brereton and Moreton; the long gallery, 70 ft. in length, contains some good carved oak and stained glass; the oldest part of the house is the east side, where is situated the chapel. There are collieries in the neighbourhood. Rode Hall is a seat.

OLD MORETON HALL, ODD RODE.
(Photo. R. Keene, Limited, Derby.)

Odell (corrupted from "Woodhill"), pa. and vil. on the north bank of the Ouse, N. Beds., 9 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 2,711; soil cold and gravelly. The Perp. church of All Saints has a rood-screen in good preservation, a rood-loft, and a Jacobean pulpit with an hourglass-stand; at the restoration in 1867-68 some very fine old glass was cleaned and replaced; the chancel retains a piscina and graduated sedilia, and there is a piscina in each of the aisles; the font is octagonal and has traceried panels; in the north aisle are several floriated coffin-lids of the 14th cent. There are several monuments to the Alston family. Some pillow-lace is made, and rush-plaiting is carried on. O. Castle is a seat.

Odiham, pa. and mkt. to. (T.), N.E. Hants, 7 E. of Basingstoke; ac. 7,306 land and 39 water; soil various, subsoil clay and chalk. The town is pleasantly situate on the side of a chalky hill, and from the neighbouring chalk-pits the adjacent country is supplied with lime for manure, and a considerable trade is carried on here in timber and coal. The church of All Saints is E. Eng.; in the nave are some brasses bearing dates 1400 and 1498; the 14th-cent. pulpit is beautifully carved. The vicarage house is a fine specimen of Elizabethan domestic architecture. Here are Congregational, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The grammar school is endowed. There is a Literary Institute having upwards of 100 members, with a library of nearly 1,000 volumes. The old stocks are still standing in The Bury. Near the church are almshouses, founded by Sir Edward More in 1623; other charities, producing £320 yearly, are distributed in bread and clothing. William Lilly, the grammarian and first master of St. Paul's School, London, was born here about 1468.

Odin Mine, N.W. Derbys., about 2 N.W. of Castleton. It is said to have been worked for lead by the Saxons, who named it after one of their deities.

Odin Ness. [MILL BAY (2).]

Odin's Cave, or Lord Lovat's Cave, sea-cave near east side of entrance of Loch Buy, pa. of Torosay, south coast of Mull, N.W. Args., Sc. The cave is about 300 ft. in length; another cave diverging from it is about 150 ft. long.

O'Donoghue's Prison, rock in lower lake of Killarney, E. co. Kerry, Ir., 1¾ S.W. of Killarney. The rock rises precipitously from the lake to a height of 30 ft. According to the legend, The O'Donoghue (a chieftain of gigantic size, who still haunts the shores of the lake on May mornings) imprisoned his enemies here.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Odcombe	Montacute (2)	137	530
Oddingley	Droitwich (2½)	126	152
Oddington (1)	Adlestrop (1)	87	470
Oddington (2)	Islip (1¼)	22	161
Odd Rode	Mow Cop (1)	154	3121
Odell	Sharnbrook (2½)	57	388
Odiham	Hook (2½)	42	2667

O'Dorney, pa., Clanmaurice bar., N. co. Kerry, Ir., 7 N.E. of Tralee; ac. 7,227. It contains Abbeydorney (q.v.) and part of the Stacks Mountains.

Odsey, ha., pa. of and 4 s. from Guilden Morden (q.v.), W. Cambs.

Odstock, pa., S. Wilts., 2 s. of Salisbury; ac. 1,291; soil chalk and gravel, overlying chalk. The E. Eng. church of St. Mary contains an old stone tomb with a female figure and Latin inscription, and a fine carved oak pulpit bearing date 1580. In the churchyard is the tombstone of Joseph Scamp, who was executed here, having pleaded guilty of an offence in the stead of his brother in 1801.

Odstone (1), tp., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Shackerstone (q.v.), W. Leics.; ac. 1,134.

Odstone (2), ti., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Ashbury (q.v.), N. Berks.

Offaly, East, bar., W. co. Kildare, Ir.; ac. 47,028. It is bounded on the north by Carbury bar., on the east by Connell and Kilcullen bars., on the south and south-west by West Offaly, and on the north-west by K. Co. It contains the to. of Kildare.

Offaly, West, bar., W. co. Kildare, Ir.; ac. 40,608. It is bounded on the north by K. Co., on the east by East Offaly bar., on the south by Narragh and Reban East and West bars., and on the west by Q. Co. It contains the to. of Monasterevin.

Offa's Dyke, ancient rampart and fosse, which formed the boundary between Mercia and Wales, began near Prestatyn, N. Flints., and ran near Mold and past Minera, Ruabon, and Chirk, crossing the Vyrnwy at Llanymynech and the Severn near Buttington. The Dyke proceeded past Montgomery through Radnors., Herefords., and Gloucs. to Sedbury Park, on the estuary of the Severn, where it came to an end. The rampart was originally 50 or 60 ft. wide; the remains in some places rise to a considerable height, but elsewhere its site is occupied by cultivated fields. The Dyke was formerly supposed to be the work of Offa (d. 796), King of the Mercians, but it is now generally thought to be older, and some antiquaries assign it a Roman origin.

Offchurch, pa. and vil. on the Leam, Mid Warws., 3 E. of Leamington; ac. 2,273; soil mixed, overlying marl and clay. The Norm. church of St. Gregory, anciently appropriated to the monastery of Coventry, has memorials of the Knightleys, formerly lords of the manor. O. Bury is an ancient stone mansion on the banks of the Leam, in a park covering nearly 300 ac., and containing some fine elms and walnuts. In front of the house is one of the largest chestnut-trees in the country.

Offcote and Underwood, tp., pa. of Ashbourne (q.v.), W. Derbys., 6 S.W. of Wirksworth; ac. 1,545. Ashborne Green Hall, O. Hurst, and Sandybrook Hall are seats.

Offenham, pa. and vil. on the Avon, S. Worcs., 16 S.E. of Worcester; ac. 1,215; soil light sandy, overlying gravel and sand. The church of St. Mary and St. Milbury was entirely rebuilt, except the tower, 1861, in Dec. style. A Baptist chapel was erected 1871. A Working Men's Club was opened 1887. The Manor farmhouse is believed to stand on the site of an ancient mansion used as a retreat by the abbots of Evesham; extensive foundations and fragments of an old building were found in 1860, and the surrounding moat may still be traced. In 1887 twenty skeletons were dug up in a field adjoining the water-mill. A maypole stands at the end of the village.

Offerlane, pa., W. Q. Co., Ir., occupying the whole bar. of Upperwoods; ac. 48,924. It adjoins K. Co. on the west, and is bounded on the north by Tinnahinch bar., on the east by Maryborough West bar., and on the south by the bars. of Clandonagh and Clarmallagh. There are four Catholic churches, six public schools, and three constabulary barracks. The pa. includes portions of the Slieve Bloom Mountains, from which extensive views of mountain and lake scenery can be had. The Nore and some of its tributaries flow through the south portion of the pa. There are several good residences surrounded with plantations, but the inhabitants are principally small farmers.

Offerton (1), tp. and vil., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.; ac. 730. There is a mission room and a Wesleyan chapel.

Offerton (2), tp. on an eminence, pa. of Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur., 4 W. of Sunderland; ac. 931.

Offerton (3), tp., pa. of Hope (q.v.), N. Derbys.; ac. 658.

Offham (1), pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 7 N.W. of Maidstone; ac. 711; soil rich loam, overlying stone and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1873) is E. Eng. At the restoration some Norm. windows were discovered. There are two squints and a low side window. Over 200 ac. are occupied as hop-grounds. On the green stands a carefully-preserved quintain.

Offham (2), vil., pa. of Hamsey (q.v.), E. Sussex, 2 N.W. of Lewes.

Offley, pa. and vil. among the chalk hills, N.W. Herts., on the Beds. border, 6 N.E. of Luton; ac. 5,514; soil chalk and stiff clay, resting on clay. The Perp. church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored) contains a Perp. font, elaborately carved. In the chancel (rebuilt 1777) is a large monument by Nollekens to Sir Thomas Salusbury, and another to Sir Henry Penrice (d. 1752), both judges of the High Court of Admiralty. The south chancel has a monument to Sir John Spencer, Bart. (d. 1699). There are also some ancient brasses. O. is believed to be the burial-place of King Offa (d. 796). The Wesleyans have a chapel. O. Hall and Wellbury House are seats, the latter standing in a park and wood of 324 ac.

Offley Green, ha., pa. of Rushden (q.v.), N. Herts., 4 N. of Buntingford.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
O'Dorney	Abbeydorney	191	1358
Odstock	Salisbury (2)	84	177
Odstone (1)	Swannington (4½)	114	170
Offaly, East	.....	.....	11635
Offaly, West	.....	.....	6195
Offchurch	Leamington (3)	97	308
Offcote & Underwood	Ashbourne (1)	152	608

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Offenham	Evesham (2)	106	563
Offerlane	Mountrath	60	4239
Offerton (1)	Hazel Grove (1½)	179	372
Offerton (2)	Hylton (1½)	262	287
Offerton (3)	Miller's Dale (7)	159	27
Offham (1)	Malling (1)	36	397
Offley	Hitchin (4)	32	1268

Offley, High, pa. and scattered vil., W. Staffs., 6 N.E. of Newport; ac. 2,739; soil loam, overlying clay and red sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1887) is a Gothic building; there are several memorials of the Skrymsher and other families, and one to Henry Ryder, Bishop of Lichfield (1824–36). There are several charities. There are condensed milk, coffee, chocolate, cheese, and cocoa works. O. Grove is a seat.

Offley, Little, ha., pa. of Offley (q.v.), N.W. Herts., 2½ S.W. of Hitchen.

Offord Cluny, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, S. Hunts., 5 S. of Huntingdon; ac. 997; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1860) is E. Eng.

Offord D'Arcy, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, S. Hunts., 5½ S. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,827; soil gravel and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter, dating from about the 12th cent., contains a 16th-cent. mutilated brass, with kneeling effigy, to an ecclesiastic, with three others to Laurence Pabenham (d. 1400) and his two wives. The Baptists have a chapel. The Manor House is a seat.

Offton, pa. and vil., N. Suff., 7½ N.W. of Ipswich; ac. 1,526; soil principally heavy, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Mary (partially restored 1861) is E. Eng. O. Castle, of which a mound of earth surrounded by a moat is now the only trace, took its name from Offa, King of the Mercians, who is supposed to have resided here.

Offwell, pa. and vil., E. Dev., 12 S.E. of Cullompton; ac. 2,206; soil and subsoil sandy and stony The church of St. Mary is Perp. In this pa. is Honiton Hill, which is surmounted by a tower 80 ft. high, built on an Indian model by the late Dr. Copleston, Bishop of Llandaff, and commanding extensive views of the sea and the surrounding country. O. is a seat.

Ogbourne St. Andrew, pa. and vil., E. Wilts., 2 N. from Marlborough, on the road to Swindon; ac. 5,348; soil loam, overlying chalk. The vil. is situated in a valley, surrounded by extensive downs. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng.

Ogbourne St. George, pa. and vil., E. Wilts., 4 N. of Marlborough, on the road to Swindon; ac. 3,585; soil loam, overlying flint and chalk. The church of St. George is a stone building of the 13th cent., and contains two monumental brasses, one of the 16th cent. The Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have chapels. A Benedictine priory was founded here in 1149. In the neighbourhood of the vil. are several barrows. The surrounding downs, belonging to King's College, Cambridge, have been, to a great extent, brought under cultivation.

Ogbury Camp, S. Wilts., 2¼ S.W. of Amesbury, is a circular entrenchment of 62 ac., in perfect preservation, with a rampart upwards of 30 ft. high.

Ogden, ha., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 4 S.E. of Clitheroe.

Ogilface, ancient fortress, pa. of Torphichen (q.v.), S.W. Linliths., Sc., 3½ W. of Bathgate. Originally a stronghold of the De Boscos, to whom it gave the title of Baron, O. was afterwards held by the Earls of Linlithgow. Vestiges of the foundations alone remain.

Ogilvie Castle, ruined fortress, pa. of and ¾ S.E. from Blackford (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc. The castle, situated in a commanding position on the Ochil Hills, appears from the thickness of the walls to have been remarkably strong.

Ogle, tp., pa. of and 2 S. from Whalton (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 2,180.

Oglethorpe, ha., pa. of Bramham (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 W. of Tadcaster. O. Hall, now occupied as a farmhouse, was formerly the seat of the Oglethorpe family. [BRAHAM-CUM-OGLETHORPE.]

Ogley Hay, pa. and vil., S. Staffs., 5 N.E. of Walsall; ac. 1,060; soil light and sandy, resting on gravel. The church of St. James (1851) is in E. Dec. style; there is also a mission church. At Knave's Castle are traces of a Roman encampment. There are coal-mines in the vicinity. Brownhills (q.v.) is partly in this pa.

Ogmore Vale, valley of the river Ogwr (q.v.), S. Glamorgs. O. V. contains the large mining vils. of Nantymoels and Tynewydd. At the confluence of the rivers Ogwr and Ewenny stands O. Castle, consisting of a small square Norm. keep and part of the wall which surrounded the outer ward.

Ogonnelloe, pa. on Lough Derg, Lower Tulla bar., E. co. Clare, Ir., 5 N.W. of Killaloe; ac. 6,572. There are two Catholic churches, one at Ballybran and one at Aughnacarriga; the latter is picturesquely placed near the summit of the Gap of Ogonnelloe, from which is afforded one of the finest views of scenery in the whole of Ireland. The Protestant church is on the road to Scarriff. Tinerana House, in Elizabethan style, stands in large and well-wooded grounds, and commands fine views of Lough Derg and the Tipperary Hills on the opposite side of the lough.

O'Grady, lough, pas. of Tomgraney and Kilnoe, E. co. Clare, Ir., 2 W. by S. of Scarriff. The lough is nearly a mile long and about ¾ mile broad, and lies 122 ft. above the sea. The river Scarriff flows through it.

Ogstoun, ancient pa., now included in the pa. of Drainie (q.v.), N.E. Elgs., Sc.

Ogulla, pa., Roscommon bar., Mid co. Roscom., Ir., 8 N. of Roscommon; ac. 6,213. It contains Tulsk (q.v.).

Ogwell, East, pa. and small vil., S.E. Dev., 2 S.W. of Newton Abbot; ac. 1,360; soil chiefly light red loam, resting on limestone and dunstone. The church of St. Bartholomew, of various dates, has an unconsecrated south aisle or transept, built by the family of Reynell over their vault, and known as the "Golgotha." There are some ancient gravestones in the floor, and several monuments to the Reynells. The font is early; there are some remains of a screen, and on the piers are the arms of the Holbeames. The charities include

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Offley, High	Gnosall (3½)	140	787
Offord Cluny	Offord and Buckden	56	263
Offord D'Arcy	Offord and Buckden	56	373
Offton	Needham (4)	77	324
Offwell	Honiton (2½)	155	264
Ogbourne St. Andr'w	Marlborough (2)	76	386

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Ogbourne St. George	Ogbourne (1)	80	461
Ogle	Morpeth (6½)	288	87
Ogley Hay	Hammerwich (1)	121	2478
Ogonnelloe	Killaloe (5)	138	1061
Ogulla	Roscommon (8)	98	708
Ogwell, East	Newton Abbot (2)	209	271

the rent of 4 ac. of land left by Sir Richard Reynell in 1735, and devoted to school purposes. There is a quarry of madrepore marble. Bradley Vale, one side of which is in this pa., is a beautiful spot, often visited by lovers of fine scenery.

Ogwell, West, pa. and small vil., S.E. Dev., 3 w. of Newton Abbot; ac. 684; soil heavy clay and light red loam, overlying clay and limestone. The church (dedication unknown) is a very small Perp. structure; there are three sedilia, and an oak pulpit emblazoned with arms. O. House was originally erected by Sir Thomas Reynell (1589), but of this building only the offices remain. The present residence dates from 1790, and is a handsome building of stone.

Ogwen, river, N.E. Carnarvs., has its source in Llyn Ogwen, and flows 10 N.N.W. along Nant Ffrancon, and past Bethesda to the Menai Straits at Bangor. At the head of Nant Ffrancon are the Falls of Benglog (q.v.), which make in all a descent of 100 ft. Ogwen Bank is situated on the river.

Ogwr, river, S. Glamorgs., rises 6½ S.W. of Aberdare, and runs S. to Llangeinor, S.W. to St. Brides Minor, S.S.E. to Bridgend, and thence S.W. again to the Bristol Channel. Its length is 16 miles. The salmon-fishing is good.

Oich (1), loch, pa. of Kilmonivaig (q.v.), Mid Invs., Sc., 5 S.S.W. of Fort Augustus. The loch extends about 4 S.S.W. and N.N.E., and has an extreme breadth of about ½ mile. The loch forms the highest part in the course of the Caledonian Canal. The scenery on its banks is extremely picturesque, the castle of Invergarry forming a most romantic feature. The salmon-, trout-, and pike-fishing are good.

LOCH OICH, LOOKING TOWARDS GLENGARRY.

Oich (2), stream, Mid Invs., Sc., runs 7 N.N.E. from Loch Oich to Loch Ness at Fort Augustus. The stream abounds in salmon and trout.

Oikell. [OYKELL.]

Oilgate, or Oylgate, vil., pa. of Edermine (q.v.), Mid co. Wex., Ir., 6 S.S.E. of Enniscorthy, on the road to Wexford.

Oily, or Corker, stream, S.W. co. Don., Ir., rises in the mountains of Banagh bar., and flows impetuously S. by W. to MacSwine's Bay, on the north side of Donegal Bay, which it joins about 8 miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Oisinneach Mhor, loch, pa. of Dunkeld and Dowally (q.v.), N.E. Perths., Sc., 6 W.S.W. of Pitlochry. Dowally Burn runs through the loch, which is ½ mile long and about ¼ mile broad.

Okeford Child. [CHILD OKEFORD.]

Okeford Fitzpaine, pa. and vil., N. Dorset, 7 N.W. of Blandford; ac. 3,739; soil deep sandy loam, overlying chalk, sand, and clay. The church of St. Michael (restored 1866) is Dec. and Perp.; it contains an ancient stone pulpit, which was turned into a font about a hundred years ago by the then rector, but again replaced at the last restoration. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. There is a charity of about £15 derived from land, divided every two years in clothing amongst the poor. Bricks and tiles are made here.

Okehampton, mun. bor., mkt. to. (S.), pa., and head of U. and Co. Co. dis., on the East and West Okement, and on the north border of Dartmoor, Mid Dev., 16 N.N.E. of Tavistock; ac. 9,552. The to. was incorporated from 1623 till 1882, when it ceased to be a bor., a new charter, however, being granted 1885. The curfew bell is still tolled here. The church of All Saints (originally built 1261, and rebuilt in the 15th cent.) was destroyed by fire 1842, except the Trans. and Late Dec. tower, and again rebuilt 1844, in Perp. style. In 1892 it was altered and improved. In the churchyard, entered by lich-gates through avenues of elms, are gravestones with French inscriptions to prisoners of war who died here 1811–15. The south avenue is almost entirely paved with gravestones of the 17th cent. The ancient episcopal chapel of St. James (formerly belonging to the Corporation, but now in the hands of the Charity Trustees) consists of nave (rebuilt 1862, but embodying some E. Eng. windows) and an E. Perp. tower. The Congregational chapel dates from 1800, the Wesleyan chapel from 1841, the Bible Christian chapel from 1868, and the Baptist chapel from 1889. The town hall is an ancient building, with library and reading-rooms belonging to the Literary Institution on the ground floor. There is a Working Men's Club, and in 1890 a swimming-bath was built. The Market, at the back of the town hall, forms an extensive range of spacious buildings. There are cabinet-making works and flour mills here, but the to. is chiefly supported by its markets. In addition to the weekly market, a great cattle market is held on the first Saturday in the month, and a cattle fair in March. The gross annual income of the O. united charities, derived principally from land and houses, amounts to £718, chiefly applied to public uses. Of O. Park (1,050 ac.), 90 ac. have been acquired for the use of the Royal Horse and Field Artillery, who encamp and practise here for about three months annually. In the Meldon valley is a vein of granulite, which is utilised for glass-making. About ½ S.W. of the to. are the remains of the ancient castle of the Courtenays, once lords of O., standing on a rocky mound surrounded by trees, with the West Okement winding at the base; there are considerable portions of the chapel, still

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ogwell, West	Newton Abbot (3)	209	39
Oilgate	Edermine Ferry (2)	81	116
Okeford Fitzpaine	Shillingstone (1½)	123	687

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Okehampton, bor.	Okehampton	197	1879
Okehampton, pa.	Okehampton	197	2469

retaining a piscina, and of the banqueting-hall, with a huge chimney; and the heralds' tower and other parts still remain. The keep, a small quadrangular structure, is possibly Norm., but the lower portions of the castle belong to the transition period between Dec. and Perp. The fortress was traditionally built 1058 by Baldwin, a Norman Earl of Devon, and after being held by the Redvers and Courtenay families, was dismantled in 1539 by Henry VIII., and in the reign of Charles I. descended by marriage to the Mohuns, Barons Mohun of O. On the slope opposite the castle are the remains of an ancient British village, and the route of the old Roman road or King's way from Cornwall to Exeter can also be traced. Oaklands, ½ N. of the to., was erected 1820 in Greek Ionic style, and is surrounded by an extensive estate watered by the Okement.

Okement, river, Mid Dev., rises in Cranmere Pool, Dartmoor, in two streams known as the East and West O., which unite at Okehampton, whence it flows 13 N. to the Torridge, 2 N.E. of Hatherleigh.

Okeover, pa. and scattered vil. on the Dove, N.E. Staffs., 13 E.S.E. of Leek; ac. 882; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1858) is a Gothic building; it contains a fine monument to E. W. Okeover (1793): also a palimpsest brass to William Lord Zouche (d. 1463) and his wife Alice, altered afterwards to Humfrey Oker (d. 1538) and his wife Isabel. There is a charity of £60 per annum, and a hospital for two clergymen's widows, founded by Rowland Okeover. O. Hall, a seat, is a plain red-brick building, containing a holy family by Raffaelle and other examples of the old masters.

Olchard, ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Ideford (q.v.), S. Dev.

Olchon Brook, stream, S.W. Herefords., rises at the foot of the Black Mountains, and flows 7 S.E. to its confluence with the Eskley, between Longtown and Clodock.

Old, for places with this prefix, not found here, see the principal word. Thus OLD ALRESFORD will be found under ALRESFORD, OLD.

Old, or Wold, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, about 7 S.W. of Kettering; ac. 1,650; soil clay and marl, overlying stone. The church of St. Andrew is Perp. There is a Congregational chapel.

Old Aberdeen. [ABERDEEN.]

Old Accrington. [ACCRINGTON.]

Oldany. [OLDNEY.]

Old Artillery Ground, pa., bor. of Tower Hamlets (q.v.), S.E. Middx.; ac. 5. The pa. is named from the practice-ground of the City Trained Bands and of the gunners of the Tower of London, situate in Teasel Close, now Artillery Lane, Bishopsgate Street Without. Early in the 17th cent. the headquarters of the Trained Bands were removed to Finsbury.

VIEW AT OLDBURY, WORCESTERSHIRE.

Oldbarrow Down. [COUNTISBURY.]

Old Basing, vil., pa. of Basing (q.v.), N. Hants, 2 N.E. of Basingstoke.

Oldberrow, pa. and vil., E. Worcs., on the border of Warws., 8 N. of Alcester; ac. 1,185; soil loam and clay, overlying marl. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt 1875, in E. Eng. style; it contains some remains of heraldic glass from the old church, supposed to have been transferred from the abbey of Evesham.

Old Bolingbroke, vil., pa. of Bolingbroke (q.v.), Mid Lincs., 3½ W.S.W. of Spilsby.

Oldborough. [CHERHILL.]

Oldbridge, vil., pa. of St. Mary (q.v.), N. co. Waterf., Ir., forming a suburb of Clonmel.

Oldbury (1), pa. and vil., S.E. Salop, 1 S.W. of Bridgnorth; ac. 817; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1858) is E. Eng. There are some small charities.

Oldbury (2), tp. and to., pa. of and 5 N.E. from Halesowen (q.v.), N. Worcs.; ac. 1,597. Christ Church was built 1840, in E. Eng. style. St.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Okeover	Ashbourne (2)	152	81
Old	Lamport (2)	76	294
Old Artillery Ground	.....	.....	2138
Oldberrow	Redditch (4½)	146	73

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oldbridge	Clonmel (½)	135	484
Oldbury (1)	Bridgenorth (2)	149	272
Oldbury (2), tp.	Oldbury	135	20343
Oldbury (2), to.	Oldbury	135	20370

Matthew's mission church dates from 1893. The Roman Catholic chapel of St. Francis Xavier was built 1865. There are also Congregational, Baptist, Unitarian, Wesleyan, Primitive and New Connexion Methodist, and Evangelical chapels. The public buildings (1891), in Renaissance style, contain the offices of the District Council, the Free Library, a Reading Room, and a hall for entertainments and meetings. O. stands in the midst of a district abounding in iron, coal, and limestone, the working of which affords employment to large numbers of its inhabitants. There are iron foundries, edge-tool, alkali, chemical, aluminium, railway carriage, printing, and steel works, besides maltings, corn mills, barge yards, and brick and tile fields. Recreation grounds were formed 1885 and 1893. The endowed school was built 1851. Among the other schools are those built by Messrs. Chance Brothers, 1851, mainly for the children of the men employed in their works.

Oldbury (3), tp., pa. of and 7 s. from Mancetter (q.v.), N.E. Warws.; ac. 611. On the summit of an eminence are the remains of a quadrangular earthwork, which formed a summer camp for the Roman garrison at Manduessedum (Mancetter). Within this area stands O. Hall, a large Georgian house, so situated as to command views over a wide expanse of country from Rutld. to the Derbys. Peak; the gardens contain a well-preserved Roman bath. In the tp. is a beautiful sheet of water of 11 ac., surrounded by bold wooded hills. Mancetter Lodge and Purley Chase are seats.

Oldbury (4), ha., pa. of and ½ w. from Ightham (q.v.), W. Kent.

Oldbury Camp. [Codford St. Mary.]

Oldbury-on-Severn, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Thornbury (q.v.), W. Gloucs., 13½ N. of Bristol. The church, dedication unknown (restored 1886), which stands on the site of a Roman camp, is E. Eng.; the spire was blown down in 1702. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Two Roman camps are in the pa.

Oldbury-on-the-Hill, pl., pa. of Didmarton (q.v.), W. Gloucs., about 6 S.W. of Tetbury station. O. was formerly a pa., but is now amalgamated with Didmarton. The church of St. Arild is E. Eng.

Old Castle (1), pa. within the city of Canterbury (q.v.); ac. 8.

Old Castle (2). [Sabum, Old.]

Oldcastle (1), pa. on the Honddu and Monnow, N. Mon., 7 N. of Abergavenny; ac. 925; soil loamy, overlying loam. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt, in Gothic style, on the site of the ancient church. There are some Roman remains here and supposed entrenchments near the church. O is celebrated as the residence of Sir John Oldcastle, Lord Cobham, a zealous adherent of Wycliffe. After his escape from The Tower, in the time of Henry V., he was attainted of heresy, and burnt in St. Giles's Fields, December 25, 1417. A portion of the Black Mountains is within the pa.

Oldcastle (2), tp., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Malpas (q.v.), S. Chesh.; ac. 835. O. derives its name from the Roman fort which once existed here. In 1644, on O. Heath, the forces of the Parliament defeated the Royalists.

Oldcastle (3), vil., pa. of Coyty (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., about 2 N.E. of Bridgend Oldcastle (4), pa., U. and mkt. to. (M.), and head of petty sess. div., Fore bar., N.W. co. Meath, Ir., 14 N.W. of Kells; ac. of pa. 7,989. The town forms a square, in the centre of which is the market house, in which petty sessions are held. The Protestant church, a handsome structure, stands at the west side of the square. There is also a Catholic church and an endowed school. Monthly fairs are held. Newcastle is a seat.

Old Connaught, pa. and vil., Rathdown bar., S.E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 1,972. The pa. extends to the coast of the Irish Sea, and contains part of the town of Bray (q.v.). The small vil. of O., though nominally a mile from that town, may be regarded as a suburb, as it is connected with it by a chain of residences with ornamental grounds, among which is O. C. House, the country seat of the Archbishop of Dublin.

Oldconnel, pa. on the Liffey, Connell bar., Mid co. Kild., Ir., 4½ S.W. of Naas, containing part of Newbridge (q.v.); ac. 4,075.

Old Cotes, vil., pa. of Blyth (q.v.), N. Notts., 5 S.W. of Bawtry.

Old Dalby, vil. with railway station, pa. of Dalby-on-the-Wolds (q.v.), N. Leics., 6 N.W. of Melton Mowbray.

Olderfleet Castle. [Larne.]

Old Felton. [Acton and Old Felton.]

Oldfield (1), ha., pa. of Bowden (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 1 N. of Altrincham.

Oldfield (2). [Heswall-with-Oldfield.]

Oldfield Green, ha., pa. of Ombersley (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 4 S.W. of Droitwich.

Old Goole. [Goole.]

Old Hall Green (1), ha., pa. of Standon (q.v.), E. Herts., about 5 N.N.E. of Ware. There is a Working Men's Institute. The Roman Catholic college of St. Edmund includes a chapel, built about 1850 by the elder Pugin, refectory, and large library.

Old Hall Green (2), ha., pa. of and 1½ N. from Cockfield (q.v.), S. Suff.

Oldham, tp., parl., co., and mun. bor., mkt. to. (S.), head of U., Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 6½ N.E. of Manchester; ac. of tp., co. and mun. bor. 4,730, of parl. bor. (extending into pa. of Ashton-under-Lyne) 12,310. O. first returned members to Parliament in 1832, and one of the successful candidates in that year was William Cobbett. The church of St. Mary was built 1827, in Perp. style, to replace an ancient church. Among other churches are St. James's, St. Peter's, St. Andrew's, St. John's, and St. Paul's, the oldest of them being St. Peter's, near the centre of the to., built 1756, in Norm. style, and enlarged 1804. There are several Roman Catholic and a large number of

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oldbury (3)	Atherstone (2)	102	82
Oldbury-on-Severn	Thornbury (2)	136	672
Old Castle (1)	Canterbury	62	62
Oldcastle (1)	Pandy (1½)	159	57
Oldcastle (2)	Malpas (2)	177	87
Oldcastle (4), pa.	Oldcastle	72	2233

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oldcastle (4), to.	Oldcastle	72	820
Old Connaught	Bray	13	2905
Oldconnel [bor.	Newbridge	26	442
Oldham, mun. & co.	Oldham	188	131463
Oldham, parl. bor.	Oldham	188	183871

Nonconformist places of worship, including Greenacres Congregational Chapel (founded 1662 by the ejected incumbent of St. Mary's, and rebuilt 1854), and the Wesleyan Chapel in Manchester Street, of which the foundation stone was laid by John Wesley in 1790. The town hall, Yorkshire Street, with a frontage of stone with a tetrastyle portico, copied from the Ionic Temple of Ceres, on the Ilyssus, near Athens, includes, besides various offices, a large room for public meetings, concerts, etc. In 1880 a wing was added, of which the principal staircase is lighted by a large stained window, comprising 18 divisions, the lower row containing allegorical figures representing Art, Science, Industry, Commerce, Spinning and Mechanism, surmounted by shields bearing the arms of the principal manufacturing towns of Lancs., while the upper part is filled with figures of eminent men associated by birth or otherwise with the history of the town and its suburbs, chief among them being Hugh Oldham, Bishop of Exeter, and founder of Manchester Grammar School (1515), who was born in Goulburn Street. Near the town hall is a bronze statue of the late John Platt, member for the borough 1865–72, resting upon a pedestal of polished granite. The Free Reference Library, Art Gallery and Museum, in Union Street, in Gothic style, was opened for exhibition purposes in 1883, and as a reference library in 1885. A branch library was established at the North Moor end of the to. in 1883. The Old Post Office buildings, Greaves Street, were purchased by Mr. Alfred Butterworth and converted into a Free Library and Reading Room in 1880; the present Post Office, Union Street, dates from 1877. The Public Baths, Union Street, erected by the Corporation in Italian style, in 1854, for raising a memorial of the great Sir Robert Peel, and enlarged 1880, contain a marble bust of that statesman. The Waterhead Public Baths, Cedar Street, were built 1894 by the Corporation. The Co. Co. Offices, Church Lane, of red brick and buff terra-cotta, were opened in the same year. The Temperance Hall, Horsedge Street, built as a Hall of Science by the followers of Robert Owen, was purchased by the Temperance Society in 1852. The Theatre Royal, also in Horsedge Street (erected 1879 on the site of the Working Men's Hall, which had been destroyed by fire) is in Italian style. The Gaiety Theatre, Union Street, is used for variety entertainments. The Lyceum, Union and Clegg streets, opened 1856, in Italian style, is an educational institution, comprising an observatory, and with a School of Science and Art attached, the gift of the late Mr. James Platt, M.P. The Werneth Mechanics' Institute dates from 1867; the Hollinwood Working Men's Club and Institute, from 1868; and the Glodwick Mutual Improvement Society's Institution, from 1857. The Central Office of the O. Operative Cotton Spinners' Provincial Association is in Rock Street. The Victoria Market, Curzon Street, opened 1856, is a substantial structure of iron and glass, now the property of the Corporation, who have also acquired the gas and water works. The Fish Market, adjoining Victoria Market, and also the property of the Corporation, was completed 1873. Fairs are held in February, May, July, and October, and also on the second Monday in every month, except the months in which the quarterly fairs occur. The Workhouse, Rochdale Road, was built 1851, but has at various times been enlarged, and now comprises imbecile wards, a small-pox and fever hospital, tailors' and joiners' workshops, etc. The O. Infirmary, West Union Street, is in Gothic style. The Medical Mission Hall, St. Mary's Street, was opened 1876. The Blue Coat School was founded by Thomas Henshaw early in the 19th cent. On his death his representatives unsuccessfully disputed the bequest, which accumulated to upwards of £100,000. The school-house, finished 1834, and occupying one of the most elevated situations in the town, is of oblong form, with a front broken by three gables. The Alexandra Park, in Park Road, opened in 1865, covers an area of 72 ac. The land, naturally adapted for the purpose, is arranged in terraces and valleys, with a pretty lake well stocked with aquatic birds. An enormous boulder, found in a brickfield near the Ashton Road, and weighing 21 tons, was placed in the park in 1874. A fossil forest or Arctic peat bog was discovered in 1880 in a brickfield near O. Edge. O. is one of the great cotton-spinning centres, there being in the to. and immediate neighbourhood nearly 10½ million spinning spindles, and about half a million doubling spindles, employing some 35,000 hands and consuming about 7,000,000 lbs. of cotton per week, or nearly three-quarters of a million bales per annum, representing one-fourth of the whole quantity consumed in the United Kingdom. The goods produced are fustians, velveteens, velvets, cotton cords, shirtings, sheetings, drills, nankeens, and sateens. There are many large foundries and ironworks, where mill and all kinds of cotton machinery are manufactured. Gas meters are also extensively manufactured, and coal-mining on a large scale is carried on. The manufacture of hats, long an important branch of industry here, has declined since the introduction of silk hats.

The Town Hall, Oldham.

Oldham Canal, S. Lancs., constructed under an Act of 1792, commences on the south side of O., and is carried south-west to the Rochdale Canal.

Oldhams, vil., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 4 E. of Chorley.

Oldhamstock Burn, rises in the pa. of Innerwick (q.v.), S.E. Haddings., Sc., flows past the vil. of Oldhamstock, and falls into the Dunglass, about 4 miles from the sea.

Oldhamstocks, pa. and vil., S.E. Haddings., Sc., 7 S.E. of Dunbar; ac. 7,420, the detached portion in Berws. being now transferred to the pa. of

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Oldhamstocks	Innerwick (3½)	362	443

Coldingham; soil generally dry, fertile towards the seashore, but towards the higher parts heathy. Fairs are held in July and September.

Old Head (1), headland on south side of Clew Bay, Murrisk bar., S.W. co. Mayo, Ir., 2 N.E. of Louisburgh. Below the headland is a small cove with a quay and pier. Old H. House and Old H. Lodge are seats in the vicinity.

Old Head (2), headland forming the south-east termination of the island of South Ronaldshay (q.v.), S. Ork., Sc., 21 N. by E. of Wick.

Old Head of Kinsale. [KINSALE, OLD HEAD OF.]

Oldhill, eccl. pa., pa. of Rowley Regis (q.v.), S. Staffs., 3 S. of Dudley. The church of the Holy Trinity (1876) is in Dec. style. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Wesleyan Reform Union, Primitive Methodist, and Methodist New Connexion chapels. The Workmen's Club and Sunday School (1879), in Gothic style, comprises a large assembly-room. Haden Hall is a seat.

Oldhouse (1), ha., pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), W. Somerset, 2 S.W. of Watchet.

Oldhouse (2), ha., pa. of Worth (q.v.), E. Sussex, 4 S.W. of East Grinstead.

Old Hunstanton. [HUNSTANTON.]

Oldland, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Bitton (q.v.), S.W. Gloucs., 5½ E. of Bristol; ac. 2,615. The church of St. Anne is E. Eng., with an apsidal chapel. There are Congregational, Primitive Methodist, and Baptist chapels. There are collieries in the district.

Old Laund Booth. [LAUND BOOTH, OLD.]

Old Lizard Head, a name applied to the most westerly point of The Lizard (q.v.).

Old Llanberis. [LLANBERIS.]

Old Man of Coniston. [CONISTON (1).]

Old Man of Hoy. [HOY.]

Old Meldrum, pa. and small mkt. to. (S.), N.E. Abers., Sc., 2 N.N.E. of Inverurie; ac. 8,102; soil in the south rich loam, overlying clay, elsewhere mossy, shallow, and light. The surface slopes towards the north, reaching in the north-west an extreme height of 804 ft. The town (which became a burgh of barony by royal charter in 1672) contains a town hall with clock-tower, a public hall, and a Mechanics' Institute. The places of worship include an Established church (erected 1684 and several times repaired), Free and United Presbyterian churches, and an Episcopal church in Dec. style, dedicated to St. Matthew. Distilling and brewing are carried on. The antiquities consist of two ancient graveyards, near one of which a stone coffin containing an urn with human remains was discovered in 1837. The celebrated gardener William Forsyth (1737–1804) was born here. M. House (a spacious edifice in Classical style) and Tulloch Cottage are seats.

Oldmill (1), ha., pa. of Roystone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 1 W. of Monk Bretton.

Oldmill (2), ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Stoke Climsland (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Old Mills, vil., pa. of Carncastle (q.v.), E. co. Antr., Ir., about 4 N.W. of Larne.

Oldmixton, ha., pa. of Bleadon (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 4 S.E. of Weston-super-Mare.

Oldmoor. [MOOR, OLD.]

Oldney, or Oldany, island off north coast of pa. of Assynt, W. Suths., Sc., 7 N. of Lochinver. The island is 1¼ mile from north-west to south-east, with an extreme breadth (in the north-west part) of 1 mile. It reaches an altitude of 336 ft. above the sea, and affords excellent pasturage for sheep.

Old Park (1), tp., pa. of Whitworth (q.v.), Mid Dur., about 4 N.E. of Bishop Auckland; ac. 414.

Old Park (2), vil., pa. of Shankill (q.v.), S.E. co. Antr., Ir., within the parl. bor. of Belfast, from which city it is distant about 2 miles. There is a seat of the same name.

Oldpark, ha., pa. of Hatton (q.v.), Mid Warws., 3½ N.W. of Warwick.

Old Rattray. [RATTRAY.]

Old Rayne. [RAYNE.]

Oldridge, detached chap., pa. of St. Thomas, Exeter, N.E. Dev., about 6 W. of Exeter. The church (dedication unknown) was built 1789, in Dec. style, on the site of an ancient structure. There are wooden tablets emblazoned with the arms of the Buller and Yarde families. During the restoration of 1842 the basin of the ancient font was exhumed and replaced. For civil purposes O. was annexed in 1884 to the pa. of Whitestone.

Old Rome, vil., pa. of Dundonald (q.v.), N.W. Ayrs., Sc., 2½ W.S.W. of Kilmarnock. Here are important collieries.

Oldross, pa., Bantry bar., W. co. Wex., Ir., 5 E. of New Ross railway station; ac. 10,653. There is a parochial school.

Oldstead, tp., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Kilburn (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,397. The Wesleyans have a chapel. On an eminence in the grounds of O. Hall is a stone building known as The Observatory, built to commemorate the coronation of Queen Victoria in 1838.

Old Street Road, eccl. pa., pas. of Old Street, St. Luke, and Shoreditch (q.v.), S.E. Middx. The church of St. Mark is in Gothic style.

Old Street, St. Luke, pa. in parl. bor. of Finsbury (q.v.), S.E. Middx., 1 N.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 237. The church of St. Luke (1732) has a steeple terminating in a fluted obelisk. St. Luke's Hospital for the Insane was built towards the end of the 18th cent., when it was removed from Moorfields. It has accommodation for upwards of 200 patients.

Oldswinford. [SWINFORD, OLD.]

Old Tower Without, pa. on the Thames, in parl. bor. of Tower Hamlets (q.v.), S.E. Middx., 1 S.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 6.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oldhill	Old Hill	137	9126
Oldland, eccl. pa.	Bristol (5½)	118	1856
Oldland, tp.	Bristol (5½)	118	8837
Old Meldrum, pa.	Old Meldrum	550	2019
Old Meldrum, vil.	Old Meldrum	550	1321
Oldney	Lairg (58)	657	Nil
Old Park (1)	Byers Green (½)	247	902
Old Park (2)	Belfast (2)	113	196
Oldross	New Ross (5)	102	1279
Oldstead	Coxwold (2)	208	93
Old Street Road	.....	.....	3089
Old Street, St. Luke	.....	.....	42440
Old Tower Without	.....	.....	65

Old Town (1), ha., St. Mary's island, Scilly. It lies at the head of a bay of the same name. Part of the old church was restored in 1891. During the restoration traces of a Norm. arch and pillar were found, indicating the existence of a still older church.

Old Town (2), vil., pa. of Leck (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 8 S.W. of Dunfanaghy.

Oldtown, ha., pa. of Clonmethan (q.v.), N.W. co. Dub., Ir., about 7 N.W. of Swords.

Old Water of Cluden, stream, E. Kirkcuds., Sc., flows 5½ E.S.E. through the pas. of Kirkpatrick Durham and Kirkpatrick Irongray, and then 2½ N. through the latter pa., uniting with Cairn Water to form Cluden Water, 6½ W.N.W. of Dumfries.

Old Winchester Hill. [EXTON (2).]

Old Wood, eccl. pa., pas. of Tenbury, Laysters, and Middleton-on-the-Hill (q.v.), W. Worcs., 2 S.W. of Tenbury. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (1856), in Gothic style, is remarkable for its stained windows and for its fine organ, which was reconstructed in 1873. The chancel has a handsome baldachino. The suspended lamps are a reproduction of those in the church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem. The north transept is used as a baptistery, and contains a well 40 ft. deep and a richly-canopied font. Adjoining is St. Michael's College, which, with the church itself, was built by the late Rev. Sir Frederick A. Gore-Ouseley, Bart., to prepare the sons of gentlemen for the higher forms of the large public schools. Attached to it is a foundation for the choristers. The College Library comprises 8,000 vols., some of them of great value.

Olive Green, ha., pas. of Hamstall Ridware and Yoxall (q.v.), E. Staffs., 6½ N. of Lichfield.

Oliver Castle, ancient fortress, pa. of Tweedsmuir (q.v.), S.W. Peebs., Sc., 8½ S. by E. of Biggar. The castle stands above the left bank of the Tweed, on the opposite side of which is the pa. church. It was the most ancient abode of the Fraser family, and was afterwards occupied by the Tweedies. O. House is a seat in the neighbourhood.

Oliver's Mount. [SCARBOROUGH.]

Ollaberry, coast vil., pa. of Northmavine (q.v.), Shetland, Sc., 17 N.W. of Voe.

Ollersett, ha., pa. of Glossop (q.v.), N. Derbys., 2 W. of Hayfield. [BEARD, THORNSETT, OLLERSETT, AND WHITTLE.]

Ollerton (1), tp. and small mkt. to. (F.), pleasantly placed a little north of the point where Rainworth Water falls into the Maun, pa. of Edwinstowe (q.v.), Mid Notts., 9 S.S.E. of Worksop; ac. 1,708. The church of St. Giles is in Gothic style. The Church and Poor Estate (of 80 ac.) produces about £85 per annum for the repair of the church. There is a Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel. A cattle fair is held in May. O. Hall is a fine brick mansion, built by George Markham, standard-bearer to Queen Elizabeth.

Ollerton (2), tp., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Knutsford (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 1,215. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. O. Hall, a seat, was built 1728.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Old Town (2)	Letterkenny (1)	187	130
Old Wood	Tenbury (2)	152	487
Ollerton (1)	Farnsfield (5)	144	726

Ollerton (3), ha. on the Tern, pa. of Stoke Tern (q.v.), N. Salop, 6 S.W. of Market Dray

Olmstead Green, ha., pa. of Castle Camps S.E. Cambs., 9 N.E. of Saffron Walden.

Olna Firth, inlet of the sea, pa. of Delting N.W. coast of Mainland, Mid Shetland, Sc., 15 of Lerwick. The Firth forms the east term of St. Magnus Bay. It extends 3 miles inlan E.S.E. direction, terminating at the hamlet o

Olney (in Domesday "Olnei"), pa., tp., an to. (TH.), in the valley of the Ouse, N. 5 N. of Newport Pagnell; ac. 3,078. O. prin consists of one long street, with a few branching off from the Market Place, a space in the centre of the town. The ch SS. Peter and Paul is Dec. The chancel is p so as mystically to refer to the inclination Lord's head upon the cross, the deflection fr central axis being to the north, though generally it is towards the south. There ar sedilia and a piscina. In 1870 the chanc restored under the direction of Sir Gilbert the nave was restored 1876–77, and further tions have since been carried out. In 18 remains of the Rev. John Newton, Cowper's for many years curate here, were remove the church of St. Mary Woolnoth, London, interred in the churchyard. There is a chapel, founded 1694 and rebuilt 1893; th ticular Baptist chapel was erected 186 "Cowper Memorial" chapel (Congregational from 1879. The trade of the town chiefly d on the agricultural districts around, and manufacture of boots and shoes; there a large brewery. Fairs are held at Easter, end of June, and in October. There are almshouses for women, erected and endo 1835 by two benevolent ladies of the Soc Friends, who also left £45 yearly for clot poor Dissenters, and £45 to a school. The f charity, consisting of Peirson's charity a Causeway estate, amounts to about £2 annum, devoted to educational purposes, maintenance of the Causeway, and to th William Cowper, the poet, resided here fro

COWPER'S HOUSE, OLNEY.
(Photo. W. S. Wright, Olney.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Ollerton (2)	Chelford (2)	172
Olney, pa.	Olney	60
Olney, tp.	Olney	60

to 1786, occupying a large house in the Market Square with garden in the rear; the summer-house, in which, according to tradition, the poet composed his ballad of "John Gilpin," is situated midway between the house and the rectory, the residence of the Rev. John Newton. Some relics of the poet are preserved in the house, which, as well as the garden containing his favourite seat, is shown to visitors. The old bridge over the Ouse, of which Cowper writes, was rebuilt 1819, but, with the exception of part of its north end, was removed about 1830. Not far north of the town is the site of a Roman station, and in a field called "Ash Furlong" remains of Roman pottery, and coins from the reigns of Nerva (A.D. 96) to that of Constantine (A.D. 306) have been met with in considerable abundance, besides a small bronze figure of Mercury.

Olney Park Farm, pa. on the Ouse, W. Bucks., 12 S.E. of Northampton; ac. 206. It was formerly a royal property belonging to the Duchy of Lancaster.

Olrig, pa. on Dunnet Bay, N. Caiths., Sc., 4 E. of Thurso; ac. 10,015; soil near the shore and in the lower parts of the interior deep rich clay, with some sand and till, elsewhere lighter. The surface presents an alternation of hills and rich valleys, with a rugged coast of no great elevation. There are Established and Free churches, the former being situated at Castletown (q.v.). The antiquities include several Picts' houses. O. House is a seat.

Olrig Hill, eminence (463 ft.), pa. of Olrig (q.v.), N. Caiths., Sc., 5 E.S.E. of Thurso. On its summit are some remains of an old watch-tower. It commands a very fine view, extending to the Orkney Islands in the north and the mountains of Abers. in the south.

Olton, dis. with railway station, pa. of Bickenhill (q.v.), N. Warws., about 4½ S.E. of Birmingham. The church of St. Margaret is in Gothic style. The Roman Catholic monastery of St. Bernard (built 1873) is in Gothic style; in 1888 it passed into the hands of the Capuchins, and is now principally used as their study-house for the English province. The Congregationalists have a chapel. O. was formerly the chief seat of several ancient families, and some traces of a castle still remain.

Olveston, pa. and vil., W. Gloucs., 10 N. of Bristol; ac. 4,787; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1840 and 1888) is of mixed periods, part of the tower and the nave being Norm., and other portions of the building dating as late as Perp.; there is a brass to Morys Denys and his son Sir Walter (d. 1496); a tomb inscribed Ralph Greeve, vicar (1590–1639); the plate dates from 1634; in 1604 the tower and steeple were destroyed by lightning. There are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The charities are small.

Olwy, river, E. Mon., rises near Trelleck, and flows 12 miles in a south-westerly direction to the Usk below Llanllowell.

Omagh, co. and mkt. to. (s.), head of petty sess. div., pa. of Drumragh (q.v.), Mid co. Tyr., Ir., 34 S. of Londonderry. The site of the town is a declivity, and its plan may be figured by the letter Y, but the slope on which the town stands is so precipitous as to be inconvenient for the passage of vehicles. The Protestant church is a fine stone structure in Gothic style; the Catholic church is a fine edifice on the summit of a hill. The other places of worship are for Presbyterians and Methodists. Other public buildings are the county-court house, with Grecian front; Her Majesty's gaol, a large castellated building; the infantry and police barracks; the county infirmary and dispensary; the union workhouse; and the O. lunatic asylum. There are four convenient market-places and shambles. Monthly fairs are held.

Omagh, East, bar., S.W. co. Tyr., Ir.; ac. 132,539. It is bounded on the north by West Omagh and Upper and Lower Strabane bars., on the east by Upper, Middle, and Lower Dungannon bars., on the south by Clogher bar., and on the west by co. Fermanagh. It contains Omagh, the co. town, and Dromore, and is traversed by the Great Northern (Ireland) Railway.

Omagh, West, bar., W. co. Tyr., Ir.; ac. 93,321. It is bounded on the north by co. Don., on the south and west by co. Fermanagh, and on the east by Upper and Lower Strabane and East Omagh bars. It contains Castlederg and Drumquin.

Ombersley, pa. and vil. on the Severn, Mid Worcs., 6 N. of Worcester; ac. 6,813; soil chiefly rich loam. The church of St. Andrew, in Dec. style, erected 1825–29, near the site of an older structure, was restored 1888; the chancel of the old church, situated to the south of the present one, is used as the burial-place of the Sandys family. The vil. contains some curious old buildings in the half-timbered style. There is an annual pleasure fair on May 29. Fruit and potatoes are extensively grown. O. Court, a handsome modern edifice containing some fine pictures, including a portrait of Prince Rupert, stands in a beautifully-wooded park.

Omeath, vil. on Carlingford Lough and opposite Rosstrevor, pa. of and 4 N.W. from Carlingford (q.v.), N. co. Louth, Ir. The Protestant church is in E. Eng. style. There are also two schools and a Catholic church. Here are some good residences.

Omey, pa., Ballynahinch bar., W. co. Galway, Ir.; ac. 20,835. This pa. (the nearest point of land in Europe to the continent of America) is situated on the coast of Connemara, and is deeply indented with bays and creeks, forming excellent harbours. It includes the market town of Clifden (q.v.), and several islands off the coast, including the island of Omey. The surrounding country is extremely wild and remarkable for the grandeur of its scenery; in some parts it is boldly majestic, and in others beautifully picturesque. Some of the surrounding islands form good harbours for small vessels, but are difficult of access owing to the rocks. There are two coastguard stations in the pa.

Omey Island, pa. of Omey (q.v.), W. co. Galway,

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Olney Park Farm	Olney (1)	60	10
Olrig	Thurso (4)	744	1837
Olveston	Thornbury (3)	136	1427
Omagh	Omagh	143	4039
Omagh, East	.....	.....	29276
Omagh, West	.....	.....	13653
Ombersley	Droitwich (4)	126	2085
Omey	Clifden	176	4584
Omey Island	Clifden (6)	176	126

Ir., about 6 N.W. of Clifden; ac. 522. It lies very low, and is connected with the mainland at low water.

Ompton, or Almpton, tp. and vil., pa. of Kneesal (q.v.), Mid Notts., 10 N.W. of Newark-upon-Trent; ac. 614. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Onaght, vil., pa. of Inishmore (q.v.), S.W. co. Galway, Ir. O. lies on the north-west side of the island.

Onchan. [KIRK ONCHAN.]

Onecote, eccl. pa. (O.-with-Bradnop), tp., and vil. on the Hamps, pa. of Leek (q.v.), N. Staffs. The church of St. Luke (built 1755) is a small stone structure. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There are several charities.

Onehouse, pa. of scattered houses, Mid Suff., 2 W. of Stowmarket; ac. 898; soil clay and loam, with a heavy subsoil. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1887) is Dec., and retains an ancient font. Stow Union Workhouse (1778) is in this pa.; it is a building of red brick, occupying an elevated position between this vil. and Stowmarket. O. Hall is a seat.

Oneilland, East, bar., N. co. Armagh, Ir.; ac. 21,422. It is bounded on the north by Lough Neagh, on the east by cos. Antr. and Down, on the south by Lower Orior bar., and on the west by Oneilland West bar. It contains Lurgan, and is traversed by the Ulster Railway.

Oneilland, West, bar., N. co. Armagh, Ir.; ac. 57,512. It is bounded on the north by Lough Neagh, on the east by Oneilland East and Lower Orior bars., on the south by Lower Fews bar., and on the west by Armagh bar. and the Blackwater. It contains Portadown, and is traversed by the Ulster Railway.

One Man's Path, dangerous track near the summit of Slieve League (q.v.), Banagh bar., S.W. co. Don., Ir. The track runs along a ridge between a precipice of nearly 2,000 ft., descending to the sea on one side and an extremely steep slope on the other.

Ongar, Chipping, pa. and mkt. to. (S.), head of U. and petty sess. div., on the Roding, W. Essex, 11 S.W. by W. of Chelmsford; ac. 503. The to. is within the area of an old entrenchment, and consists chiefly of one street on the main road, situated on the rising bank of the river. The Trans. church of St. Martin (restored 1884, when a south aisle was added) contains a memorial slab of marble to Jane, daughter of Oliver Cromwell, who was buried here in 1637, and another to Horatio Pallavicini (d. 1648). Near the church, enclosed by a moat, is an artificial mound, on the top of which a castle was built temp. Henry I., but was pulled down in Elizabeth's reign and a strong brick building of three storeys erected, from which an extensive view can be had. Many Roman remains have also been found in the pa., and a silver penny of Edward I. has been dug up in the churchyard. The Roman Catholic church (1869) is dedicated to St. Helen. There is a Congregational chapel, in which is a memorial to the Rev. Isaac Taylor, a former minister and writer for the young (d. 1829), and to his daughter Jane Taylor, the authoress (d. 1824), who was buried here. Attached is Dr. Livingstone's room, in which the explorer lived when a student. The Budworth Hall, in Elizabethan style, erected as a memorial to Captain Budworth, consists of a room for public meetings, etc.; a clock-tower was added 1887. The Lecture Hall dates from 1870. The Volunteer Drill Hall (1873) is also used for concerts and meetings.

Ongar, High, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 12 W. of Chelmsford; ac. 4,505; soil and subsoil gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is in Norm. style. There are six almshouses, founded in the 16th cent., and some small charities. Forest Hall is a mansion picturesquely situated in a well-wooded park.

Onibury, pa. and vil., S. Salop, 5 N.W. of Ludlow; ac. 2,532; soil clayey, limy, and gravelly, overlying gravel. The church of St. Martin is E. Eng. There is a mission room in connection with it, and a lending library attached. The Wesleyans have a meeting-house. The national school is endowed. Stokesay Court is a seat.

Onich, ha., pa. of Kilmallie (q.v.), S.W. Invs., Sc., 10 S.S.W. of Fort William. O. is situated on the north side of the entrance to Loch Leven.

Onley, ha., pa. of Barby (q.v.), S. Northants, 3 N.W. of Daventry.

Onneley, vil., pa. of Madeley (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., 6 S.W. of Newcastle-under-Lyme.

Onny, river, S.W. Salop, rises under Stiperstones, and flows 16 S.E., past Mindtown, Wistanton, Onibury, Halford, Stokesay, and Bromfield, to the Teme.

Onston, formerly a tp., pa. of and 1½ W. from Weaverham (q.v.), N. Chesh. The Baptists have a chapel.

Oola, pa. and vil., Coonagh bar., E. co. Lim., Ir., 6½ N.W. of Tipperary; ac. 6,858.

Oolagh, stream, S.W. co. Lim., Ir., rises about 5 W. of Newcastle, and runs W.S.W. to the Feale, which it joins 7 miles (in a direct line) from its source, 1 N.W. of Abbeyfeale.

Oony (or Oonagh), Lough, pa. of and 3½ N.E. from Clones, W. co. Monaghan, Ir. The lough extends 3 furlongs N.N.E. and S.S.W., and is 1½ furlong wide. Lough Oony House is on its north side.

Oorid Lough, W. co. Galway, Ir., 12 W. of Oughterard. It lies at the foot of a hill (1,174 ft.) of the same name.

Openshaw, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and 3½ S.E. from Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 581. The church of St. Barnabas (1844), in E. Norm. style, contains a monument to the memory of Charles Brett, the police officer who was killed in the Fenian attack on a police-van in 1867.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ompton	Carlton-on-Trent (7)	126	55
Onaght	Galway (33)	128	105
Onecote, eccl. pa.	Leek (5)	157	851
Onecote, tp.	Leek (5)	157	401
Onehouse	Stowmarket (2)	81	318
Oneilland, East	.....	.....	24853
Oneilland, West	.....	.....	29392

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ongar, Chipping	Ongar	23	813
Ongar, High	Ongar (1)	23	1142
Onibury	Onibury	166	499
Oola, pa.	Oola	111	1468
Oola, vil.	Oola	111	394
Openshaw, eccl. pa.	Ashburys	184	11715
Openshaw, tp.	Ashburys	184	23927

Openshaw, Higher, eccl. pa., pa. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. The church of St. Clement is in Gothic style.

Oran, pa., Ballymoe bar., Mid co. Roscom., Ir., 5 N.W. of Roscommon town; ac. 5,181.

Oranmore, pa. and to. on Oranmore Bay, Dunkellin and Galway bars., S. co. Galway, Ir., about 5 E. of Galway; ac. 17,700. The castle of O. in 1641 was garrisoned by the Earl of Clanricarde, to whom it then belonged. Petty sessions are held every Thursday, and fairs on May 23 and October 20. Menlough Castle and Merlin Castle are seats. [MENLOUGH (1).]

Oranmore Bay, small inlet of the sea, on the north shore of Galway Bay, S. co. Galway, Ir.

Orby, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 6½ E. of Spilsby; ac. 2,088; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Perp.; the chancel retains a piscina, and there is another in the south aisle. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some small charities.

Orcades. [ORKNEY.]

Orchard, East, pa., N. Dorset, 3½ S.W. of Shaftesbury; ac. 839; soil clay and gravel, overlying blue clay. The land is heavy pasture. There are numerous apple orchards, and cider is manufactured. A stream flowing to the south-west forms the boundary between this pa. and West Orchard. The church of St. Thomas is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Orchardleigh, pa., E. Somerset, 2 N. of Frome; ac. 800; soil loam and marl, overlying marl. The E. Eng. church (dedication unknown) stands in O. Park, and contains monuments to the Champneys. O. Park is a seat, with an undulating park of about 800 ac.

Orchard Portman, pa., S. Somerset, 2 S. of Taunton, on the road to Chard; ac. 635; soil marl and clay, overlying New Red Sandstone and blue lias. The church of St. Michael, chiefly Perp., has a good Norm. doorway, and contains a curious illuminated brass of the 17th cent. The charities amount to about £10 a year.

Orchard, West, pa., N. Dorset, 5 S.W. of Shaftesbury; ac. 669; soil loam and sand, overlying gravel and clay. The church (dedication unknown) was rebuilt in 1878, in Gothic style.

Orcheston St. George, pa. and vil., Mid Wilts., 7 N.W. of Amesbury; ac. 2,198. The church of St. George (restored 1832) is E. Eng.

Orcheston St. Mary, pa. and vil., Mid Wilts., adjoining Orcheston St. George (q.v.); ac. 1,846. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. In these pas. the celebrated Orcheston grasses are grown.

Orchy, stream, N.E. Args., Sc., rises on the boundary of Perths., at an altitude of about 3,000 ft. For about ten miles of its course it is known as the Water of Tulla, and broadens into Loch Tulla. Issuing from this loch, it flows about 16 S.W. to Loch Awe at Kilchurn Castle.

Oroop, pa. and scattered vil., S. Herefords., 10 S. of Hereford; ac. 2,465; soil clay and loamy, overlying sandstone and limestone. The church of St. John (restored 1860) is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the churchyard remain the shaft and base of a cross. The Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels.

Ord (1), tp., pa. of Tweedmouth (q.v.), N. Northumb., 1 S.W. of Berwick-upon-Tweed; ac. 3,687. O. House is a seat.

Ord (2), q.s. pa., pas. of Alvah, Banff, Boyndie and Marnoch (q.v.), N.E. Banffs., Sc., about 3 W. of Banff railway station. O. shares with Marnoch the benefits of the Glasgow bequest.

Ord (3), or Ord of Caithness, headland, pa. of Latheron (q.v.), S.W. Caiths., Sc., 3 N.E. of Helmsdale. The Ord rises abruptly to a great height above the sea, terminating the chain of heights between Suths. and Caiths. The view over the sea towards the south is extremely fine. The old road, which was carried along the summit of its seaward face, has been replaced by one which, though extremely steep, is less alarming to the traveller. It is supposed to be unlucky for a Sinclair to cross the Ord on a Monday, a body of men belonging to that clan having passed over it on that day whilst marching to the battle of Flodden, in which they were nearly all slain. Below the Ord stands a ruined building, in which the Earl of Sutherland and his lady were poisoned (1567) by Isabel Sinclair.

Ord (4). [MUIR OF ORD.]

Ordbain, eminence (1,250 ft.) on north-west side of Loch-an-Eilein, pa. of Duthil (q.v.), N.E. Invs., Sc., 9½ E.N.E. of Kingussie. The hill is covered with verdure to the summit, which is accessible by means of a footpath, and commands a fine view.

Ord, East, small vil., pa. of and 1 W. from Tweedmouth (q.v.), N. Northumb.

Ord Fundie, eminence (800 ft.), pa. of and 1 E.N.E. from Kincardine O'Neil (q.v.), S. Abers., Sc.

Ordhead, pl., pa. of and about 3 N.W. of Monymusk (q.v.), Mid Abers., Sc.

Ord Hill (633 ft.), pa. of Knockbain (q.v.), S.E. Ross and Crom., Sc.

Ordie, loch, pa. of Dunkeld and Dowally (q.v.), N.E. Perths., Sc., 5 N. by E. of Dunkeld. The loch, situated 980 ft. above the sea, is upwards of ½ mile long and nearly ¼ mile in width. It is beautifully situated in the midst of pine woods. Dowally Burn flows from its west shore to the Tay.

Ordie Water, stream, E. Perths., Sc., rises in the pa. of Auchtergaven, about 2½ S.W. of Dunkeld, and flows 8½ S.E. to the Tay, which it joins near Luncarty. Ordie Water and Shochie Water unite a little above Luncarty. The stream abounds in excellent trout.

Ordiquhill, pa., N. Banffs., Sc., 7 S. of Portsoy; ac. 4,754. Fairs are held on the second Thursday in every month. The pa. contains several mineral springs.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Openshaw, Higher	Fairfield (1)	185	9885
Oran	Donamon (4)	104	548
Oranmore, pa.	Oranmore	123	2612
Oranmore, to.	Oranmore	123	233
Orby	Burgh (1)	124	304
Orchard, East	Sturminster Newton	120	166
Orchardleigh	Frome (2) [(2)	107	47
Orchard Portman	Taunton (2)	158	56
Orchard, West	Sturminster Newton	120	115
Orcheston St. George	Wylye (7)	115	181
Orcheston St. Mary	Wylye (8)	115	145
Oroop	St. Devereux (4½)	151	474
Ord (1)	Berwick (1)	338	552
Ord (2)	Banff (3)	592	783
Ordiquhill	Cornhill	584	684

Ordley, ha., pa. of and 3½ S.S.E. from Hexham (q.v.), S. Northumb. Newbiggin House is a seat.

Ord, Middle, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Tweedmouth (q.v.), N. Northumb.

Ordsall (1), pa. on the Idle and the Chesterfield Canal, bor. of and 1 S. from East Retford (q.v.), N. Notts.; ac. 2,050. The church of All Hallows (restored and enlarged 1878) is chiefly E. Eng., but the arcades separating the nave and aisles are Perp., to which date also belong the tower and the former chancel screen, now at the west end, and once forming part of the music gallery of Hayton Castle, which has been demolished. The chancel retains its piscina. Affixed to the wall of the tower is a mural tablet, bearing, without any inscription, the figure of a man kneeling before a desk, on which is an open book. The Rev. Marmaduke Moore, incumbent during the Protectorate, was deprived by the Rump Parliament in 1652, for "the damnable sin of playing cards with his wife."

Ordsall (2), or Ordsall-in-Salford, eccl. pa., pa. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., forming part of the bor. of Salford. The church of St. Clement was built 1878, in Perp. style.

Ord, The, headland (542 ft.) on south-east shore of Bressay Island, S. Shetld., Sc., 3 S.S.E. of Lerwick.

Ore (1), pa., S.E. Sussex, forming part of Hastings; ac. 2,149; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Helen is a Perp. building. Christ Church is an eccl. pa., and the church was built 1887, in Dec. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Congregational mission hall. The Hastings Union Workhouse and the Borough Sanatorium are in this pa. O. Place is a modern building standing on the site of an ancient house built in the 14th cent. by John of Gaunt. Coghurst Hall is also a seat.

Ore (2), river, S. Fifes., Sc., rises 4½ N. by W. of Dunfermline, and runs 17 miles to the Leven, which it joins 3¼ N. of Dysart. The general direction of its course is E.N.E. The stream winds slowly between low banks, which in some places are well wooded. Loch Ore, formed by an expansion of the stream, has been drained.

Orensay, island, pa. of Uig (q.v.), Ross and Crom., Sc.

Oreston, vil. on Plymouth Sound, pa. of and 1 N.W. from Plymstock (q.v.), S. Dev. There is a mission church and a Wesleyan chapel. O. has extensive quarries, which supplied the limestone for the Plymouth breakwater. During the excavation the bones of hyænas, elephants, rhinoceroses, wolves, deer, and other animals were found intermixed in some fissures.

Oreston Point. [HURTSTONE POINT.]

Orford (1), pa. and small to., S.E. Suff., 5 miles above the mouth of the river Alde, 20 E.N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 2,697; soil loam, sand, and clay, overlying sand and rock. The church of St. Bartholomew is E. Eng., with a western tower, a portion of which fell down in 1829. The chancel, which was of a much earlier date, has been in ruins for the last two centuries; in the north aisle is a marble kneeling figure of the Rev. Francis Mason, of "Vindiciæ Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ" (d. 1621) are several brasses of various dates, and an font with carved figures on its sides. Th small chapel belonging to the Primitive ists. The to. has a recreation ground o 5 ac. in extent. Large quantities of oys taken in the river. There is some trade and coal, also a coastguard station. A is held annually in August. Of Orford C Norman fortress, partly built of Caen st keep alone, which stands on the summit hill, commanding a fine view, and serves a mark, now remains; it is a polygon of e sides, described within a circle of 27 ft 90 ft. high, with three square embattled flanking it on the west, north-east, south-e rising above the parapet. The centre ap was restored, and furniture placed there convenience of visitors, in 1831, by th Marquis of Hertford. The to. was f much larger than it now is, with the castle centre, and three churches; foundations of have been frequently ploughed up in the bouring fields north and west of the cas formerly had a corporation, which ceased in 1886. About 1½ E. of the to. and 1 mi each other are two lighthouses, called th and Low Lights, on each side of the point Orfordness; there is also a floating light 4 s the fixed lights.

ORFORD CASTLE.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Orford (2), ha., pa. of and 1½ from Wa (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Orfordness, prom., S.E. Suff., forming th boundary of Hollesley Bay, about 3 E. of O

Organ Ford, ha., pa. of and about 1 S. Lytchett Minster (q.v.), S. Dors.

Orgarswick, pa., consisting of a farm an pasture land, S. Kent, 2 N.W. of Dymchu 386. The living is a sinecure rectory.

Orgreave (1), tp. on the Rother, pa. of a from Rotherham (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 49 is Rotherwood, the scene of incidents in "Iv In the Rotherwood plantation are some bell pits, from which the Danes are beli

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ordsall (1)	Retford (1)	139	3852
Ordsall (2)	Manchester	185	19679
Ore (1)	Ore (1)	62	5680

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub
Orford (1)	Melton (8)	80
Orgarswick	Ham Street (5)	60
Orgreave (1)	Rotherham (3¾)	163

have won ironstone; there are also traces of old furnaces.

Orgreave (2), small vil., E. Staffs., formerly a separate tp., but now united, for civil purposes, with Alrewas (q.v.), from which it is 1¼ N.W. O. Hall is approached by a fine avenue.

Orior, Lower, bar., E. co. Arm., Ir.; ac. 32,151. It is bounded on the east by co. Down, on the south by Upper Orior bar., on the west by Upper Fews, Lower Fews, and Oneilland West bars., and on the north by Oneilland East bar. It is traversed by the Belfast Junction Railway.

Orior, Upper, bar., S. co. Arm., Ir.; ac. 49,500. It is bounded on the east by co. Down, on the south by co. Louth, on the west by Upper and Lower Fews bars., and on the north by Lower Orior bar. It is traversed by the Belfast Junction Railway.

Oristown, ha., pa. of Teltown (q.v.), N. co. Meath, Ir., 4 E. of Kells.

Oritor, pl., pa. of Kildress (q.v.), E. co. Tyr., Ir., 3 N.W. of Cookstown.

Orkney, a north insular co. of Scotland, consisting of a group of islands, known to the ancients as "Orcades," and situated in the North Sea, separated from Caithness-shire by the Pentland Firth. The form of the islands is extremely irregular, and from these circumstances the dimensions of some of them are ascertained with difficulty. They are separated from one another by portions of the sea denominated "sounds," "firths," or "ferries," some of which are only a mile broad, whilst others are more than five miles. The whole area covered is of considerable extent, for from south-west to the north-east they extend about 55 miles, and upwards of 30 in another direction. The number of the islands amounts to sixty-seven, of which twenty-nine only are inhabited; the remaining thirty-eight—which, in the primitive language of the country, are termed "holms"—are much inferior in size, and solely appropriated to pasturage. The hills composing the ridge that skirts the Western Ocean, as well as those that intersect the mainland and occupy some of the other islands, for the most part are formed into ridges of some extent, with small intervening valleys; and their tops are generally either flat or rounded. Some few of them are almost entirely covered with verdure; at the base of many are cornfields, interspersed with patches of rich grass, affording excellent feeding for cattle; the soil is sandy or clay loam, and peat-moss is found over a considerable portion of these islands. Much of the land under tillage is not regularly fenced, nor divided into separate fields. Numbers of cattle and sheep are raised, for the pasture of which this county is peculiarly well suited. The chief crops are oats, turnips, hay, barley, potatoes, and green crops; total acreage of land and water, 249,565, of which 59,785 are mountain and heath land, and only 12 of woods and plantations. The herring fishery is considerable; the principal stations are Papa-Stronsay, Deer Sound, Holm, Burray, and South Ronaldshay. The markets are Ireland, Scotland, and England, a few only being sent abroad from Orkney, except the produce of the early fishery, which is carried on in the neighbourhood of Stromness, and from that place the herrings are despatched direct to Hamburg. The cod and ling fisheries are also prosecuted from almost all the islands, and in the curing of the fish many persons are engaged. Lobster-catching is pursued with fair success, as is also oyster-dredging. The manufacture of kelp was at one time the staple of Orkney. In consequence of the reduction of the duty on barilla, this trade suddenly collapsed, but latterly it has shown signs of reviving, as kelp is now used in the making of iodine and other chemical substances. The distillation of whisky has long been established, there being two distilleries—one near Kirkwall, and another at Stromness. The earliest inhabitants appear to have been Celts, who, at an unknown period before the Christian era, established themselves in Scotland. The origin of the name is believed to be Celtic, and may perhaps be derived from Orkin, a large marine animal—a term that has been applied to both whales and seals. Orkney, therefore, appears to mean "the land of whales" or "of seals." In the Middle Ages the sovereignty of the islands was held sometimes by Norway and sometimes by Scotland; but in the 16th cent. it was recognised as belonging to Scotland. From the middle of the 16th to the beginning of the 17th cent. the islands were possessed successively by Earls Robert and Patrick Stewart, Robert being a natural son of James V. and half-brother to Queen Mary. Subsequent to this period the islands passed into the possession of the English Crown, and were bestowed by Charles I. and afterwards by Charles II. on the Morton family. In 1776 Lord Morton sold them to Sir Lawrence Dundas, and they have since remained in the family of his descendants. Having been so long and so repeatedly in the possession of the Norwegians, many personal and place names are derived from the Scandinavian language. Orkney has given birth to some individuals who have attained to eminence in science, literature, and the arts. Among these are Malcolm Laing (1762–1818), author of a "History of Scotland"; Mrs. Brunton (1778–1818), authoress; Samuel Laing (b. 1810), author of "A Tour in Norway"; his son, Samuel Laing, Finance Minister of India (1860–65) and M.P. Orkney (1873–85); William Balfour Baikie, M.D., the African traveller (1820–64); Dr. Rae, the Arctic traveller; Thomas Stewart Traill (1781–1862), an eminent professor of medical jurisprudence in the University of Edinburgh; and Murdoch M'Kenzie, author of "A Survey of the Orkney and Lewis Islands." The co. comprises eighteen entire pas.; the only two towns are Kirkwall and Stromness. The isles of Orkney and Shetland form one parl. dis., under the title of the co. of Orkney and Shetland, which returns one member to Parliament.

Orkney and Shetland. [ORKNEY.]

Orlestone, pa. of the Weald, extending into Romney Marsh, S. Kent, 6 S. of Ashford; ac. 1,831; the subsoil is clay, and there are extensive woods on the uplands. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a small Dec. building; south of the chancel is a recess under a plain E. Eng. arch, and a similar recess in the north wall of the nave. The Manor House, adjoining the church, contains timber work

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Orior, Lower	.....	.....	10453
Orior, Upper	.....	.....	25703

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Orkney & Shetland	.....	.....	30453
Orlestone	Ham Street (1½)	60	458

of the 14th cent.; and the old parsonage, about 2 miles from the church, in Warehorne pa., is of the same period.

Orleton (1), pa. and vil., N. Herefords., 6 N. of Leominster; ac. 2,606; soil clay and sand, overlying rock and sand. The church of St. George (restored 1863–64) is of the Trans. period; the font is E. Norm.; in the chancel is a piscina, and some old stained glass remains. The pulpit, of Jacobean date, is finely carved. During the restoration some old frescoes were discovered, but they could not be preserved. In the churchyard is an ancient cross. There are Nonconformist places of worship, and the pa. has some small charities. O. Court, an old timbered mansion, is a seat, and in the vil. are some half-timbered houses.

Orleton (2), tp. on the Teme, pa. of and 3 E. from Eastham (q.v.), N.W. Worcs. The church of St. John the Baptist dates from about 1816.

Orlingbury, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 4 S. of Kettering; ac. 1,990; soil mixed, resting on great oolite limestone, white sand, ironstone, and Upper Lias clay. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt on a larger scale 1843, in Dec. style. In a recess on the north side of the chancel is a recumbent effigy in alabaster, with the inscription, "I.H.C. Nazareni:" from the arms on the surcoat it has been assigned to a 14th-cent. member of the family of De Orlingbury, but, according to local tradition, the figure represents "Jock of Batsaddle," who killed the last wolf in England. There are also mural tablets to the Young and other families, and in the south transept are four brasses to the Chybnales (1671–78). Two other brasses belong to the 15th and 16th cents. The Nonconformists have a chapel. O. House is a noble mansion, pleasantly placed not far from the church.

Ormes Bay, inlet on north-east shore of Cardigs., extends from Great Ormes Head (q.v.), on the west, to Little Ormes Head, on the east. It is nearly 2½ miles wide at its mouth, and extends less than one mile inland. Llandudno is on its west side.

Ormesby (1), pa., tp., and pleasant vil., N.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Middlesbrough; ac. of pa. 3,802, of tp. 2,282; soil loamy, resting on strong clay. The Norm. church of St. Cuthbert, of which the chancel was renovated 1871, contains several ancient monuments to the Pennymans. There is a pa. lending library. O. Hall is a handsome house standing in a pretty park.

Ormesby (2). [ORMESBY ST. MARGARET WITH SCRATBY.]

Ormesby Broad. [ORMESBY ST. MICHAEL.]

Ormesby, Great. [ORMESBY ST. MARGARET WITH SCRATBY.]

Ormesby, Little. [ORMESBY ST. MICHAEL.]

Ormesby St. Margaret with Scratby, pa. and vil. (Ormesby) and a polling-pl., E. Norf., about 1 mile from the sea and 5 N. by W. of Yarmouth; ac. 2,761; soil mixed, overlying sand and gravel. There were formerly five churches in the united parishes, three of which—All Saints at Scratby, Holy Trinity, and St. Peter's, between O. St. Margaret and O. St. Michael—have long been in ruins. The pa. church of Ormesby St. Margaret is a Dec. building of flint and stone, with a fine embattled western tower, surmounted by the figures of four monks in lieu of pinnacles; it contains brasses and memorials to the family of Clere, including Sir Robert Clere (d. 1529) and the Lady Alice Clere, aunt of Queen Anne Boleyn; there are others to the Symonds family and the Homes, Earls of Home. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, and the pa. has some charities. The Dowager Lady Lacon left a legacy of £1,000, the interest to be for benefit of the poor of Ormesby St. Margaret and Scratby for ever. O. House, O. Old Hall, and Scratby Hall are seats. The site of the family mansion of the Cleres is now occupied by a farmhouse, and only one arch of the ancient structure remains.

Ormesby St. Michael, pa., E. Norf., about 6 S.S.W. of Yarmouth; ac. about 1,000; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. Here is Ormesby Broad, about 100 ac. in extent; it adjoins Rollesby Broad. The church of St. Michael (restored 1886) is principally E. Eng.; there are several monuments to the Upcher and Manning families. An estate in this parish, yielding about £40 a year, is left for repairing the fabric of the church and for the benefit of the poor. O. House is a seat.

Ormiclate, pl. in South Uist Island, Outer Hebrides, N.W. Invs., Sc., 48 W.S.W. of Portree. Cattle-fairs take place here in July and September.

Ormidale, pl. on Loch Riddon, pa. of Kilmodan (q.v.), S.E. Args., Sc., 10 E.S.E. of Lochgilphead. Here is a pier from which pleasure steamers run to Rothesay. O. House is a seat in the vicinity.

Ormiston, pa. and vil. on the Tyne, W. Haddings., Sc., 2½ S.S.E. of Tranent; ac. 3,444; soil partly light loam with gravelly soil below, elsewhere stiff clay, mostly overlying coal and limestone. O. takes its name from the Ormes, the ancient proprietors. The surface is level but well wooded, with hedges and wayside trees, planted in the English fashion. The places of worship include an Established church (1856) in E. Eng. style and a Free church. At one end of the village street stands a granite obelisk commemorating the African missionary, Dr. Robert Moffat (1797–1883), who was a native. The pa. contains coal mines. The principal antiquities are an ancient cross in the middle of the village street and the remains of a circular camp on a hill near the south border; part of the old church also remains. O. Hall, the seat of the Earl of Hopetoun, was erected in 1745, and has since been enlarged; in the old mansion, part of which remains, the reformer George Wishart was residing when he was given up to Earl Bothwell, on the understanding that he should suffer no injury (1545); the grounds contain a magnificent yew 18 ft. in girth, which has been renowned for upwards of 400 years.

Ormond, Lower, bar., N. co. Tip., Ir.; ac. 127,222. It is bounded on the west by the Shannon and Lough Derg, on the north and east by King's Co.,

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Orleton (1)	Woofferton (1)	157	513
Orleton (2)	Newnham (4)	125	118
Orlingbury	Finedon (2)	68	288
Ormesby (1), pa.	Ormesby	241	8933
Ormesby (1), tp.	Ormesby	241	8757
Ormesby St. M. w. S.	Great Ormesby	133	1202
Ormesby St. Michael	Great Ormesby (1½)	133	336
Ormiston, pa.	Ormiston	395	1178
Ormiston, vil.	Ormiston	395	555
Ormond, Lower	.....	.....	17496

and on the south by Owney and Arra and Upper Ormond bars. A branch of the Great Southern and Western Railway passes through.

Ormond, Upper, bar., N. co. Tip., Ir.; ac. 79,741. It is bounded on the north by Lower Ormond bar., on the east by King's Co. and Ikerrin bar., on the south by Upper Kilnamanagh bar., and on the west by Owney and Arra bar. A branch of the Great Southern and Western Railway passes through.

Ormsby, North, or Nun Ormsby, pa. and vil., N.E. Lincs., 5½ N.W. of Louth; ac. 1,707; soil loam, overlying chalk. The E. Eng. church of St. Helen was rebuilt 1848. In 1863 six graves, cut out of the chalk, and enclosed by pieces of sandstone, and supposed to have been of Saxon origin, were found in the churchyard. The site may still be traced of a priory of Gilbertine nuns founded here in the reign of Stephen by William, Earl of Albemarle, and Gilbert, son of Robert de Ormsby, and granted by Henry VIII. at the Dissolution to Sir Robert Heneage.

Ormsby, South, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 8 N.N.W. of Spilsby; ac. 2,316; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk and sand. The partly Norm. church of St. Leonard was restored 1871. Near the chancel is a canopied brass with effigies and an inscription to Sir William Skypwyth, Knt. (d. 1482), and Agnes, his wife, and one son and two daughters; also a brass of a lady in a mantle (circa 1420); in the chantry are several monuments to the Massingberd family. On the brow of a steep hill close by are the remains of a Roman encampment, in and about which several Roman coins, chiefly of the Emperor Constantine (A.D. 306–337), have been found. O. Hall is a seat.

Ormside (formerly called "Ormeshead"), pa. and vil. on the Eden, E. Westmd., 3¼ S.S.E. of Appleby; ac. 2,687; soil red clay, resting on strong clay. The vil. is sometimes called Great Ormside, to distinguish it from Little Ormside, in the same pa. The Norm. church of St. James, dating from the 11th cent., and standing on an eminence, embodies the chantry of the Tuftons. In the south wall of the chancel is a double piscina, and in the opposite wall is a squint. Ormside Hall, a small mansion of the 16th cent., now a farmhouse, facing the church, and forming three sides of a quadrangle, contains a number of interesting arched stone passages. Another old mansion is Breaks Hall, also occupied as a farmhouse.

Ormside, Great. [ORMSIDE.]

Ormside, Little, small vil., pa. of and ¾ S.E. from Ormside (q.v.), E. Westmd.

Ormskirk, pa., tp., and mkt. to. (TH.), head of U., Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., S.W. Lancs., 12½ N. of Liverpool; ac. of pa. 31,009, of tp. 573; soil chiefly mossy and sandy, resting on sand and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a spacious building of various periods, chiefly Perp., consisting of chancel, nave, three aisles, south porch, several mortuary chapels, a massive embattled tower at the west end of the nave with eight small pinnacles, and a low octagonal tower rising from a square lower storey at the west end of the south aisle, with a spire reaching a height of about 25 ft. above the summit of the other tower, an arrangement which is paralleled in only two other places in England—viz. Wanborough and Purton, Wilts., where, however, the tower is at the west and the spire at the east end of the nave, instead of being side by side. In the chancel is an E. Norm. window, dated 1068. On the south-east side of the chancel is Derby chapel, restored by the 14th Earl; it covers a vault which was the burying-place of the Stanleys from the dissolution of Burscough Priory, whence many remains were removed hither, until 1851, when it was closed. Here are mutilated recumbent full-length figures in marble, supposed to represent Thomas Stanley, the first Earl of Derby (d. 1504), and the Lady Margaret Beaufort, his wife, widow of Edmund, Earl of Richmond, and mother of Henry VII.; there are also two similar effigies, removed from the Bickerstaffe chapel, of Thomas, second Earl, Lord of Man and the Isles (d. 1522), and Anne (Hastings) his wife. At the west end of the chapel is the Eccleston, or Scarisbrick chapel, partly restored by the late Lady Scarisbrick, and completed by her son-in-law and daughter, the Marquis and Marchioness de Casteja. It contains a mural brass with effigy of a knight in armour, said to represent James Scarisbrick (temp. Henry VII.), who is believed to have been the donor of the great bell of the church (A.D. 1497), brought, according to tradition, from Burscough Priory. On the north side of the nave is the Bickerstaffe chapel. There are several fine memorial windows. The church has been completely restored, and reseated with massive oak benches. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The Court Room and police offices are adjoined by the Savings Bank. The Working Men's Institute (1867) includes a library and reading-rooms, and a large concert hall, besides a bowling-green. The Public Library was founded 1854. The Dispensary is a small building in Doric style. At the end of Moor Street is a life-size statue of the late Earl of Beaconsfield in Portland stone, unveiled in 1884. In 1876 a clock, with bell-tower, was erected. The Grammar School was founded 1613, under the will of Henry Ascroft, and endowed with £75 a year. Cattle-fairs are held on Whit-Monday and Tuesday and in September. Rope and twine making is carried on, and there are a few breweries and an iron foundry.

Ormskirk Division, one of the twenty-three parl. divs. of Lancs. It lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Ornsay. [ISLE ORNSAY (1) and (2).]

Oronsay (1), island, pa. of Colonsay and Oronsay (q.v.), W. Args., Sc., 32 W. of Lochgilphead. The island is about 2½ miles long from east to west, and nearly 2 miles wide. The surface is rugged and broken, but not lofty. At low tide O. is united to the island of Colonsay on the north, the distance between them in the narrowest part being only 100 yards. O. takes its name from St. Oran, who visited the island with St. Columba in the course of their journey from Ireland to Iona. There are

PLACE	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ormond, Upper	.....	.....	9594
Ormsby, North	Louth (4)	141	183
Ormsby, South	Alford (5)	130	238
Ormside	Ormside	275	208

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ormskirk, pa.	Ormskirk	203	24138
Ormskirk, tp.	Ormskirk	203	6298
Ormskirk Division	.....	.....	64096
Oronsay (1)	Glasgow (90)	400	23

some very fine remains of an Augustinian priory, founded by the Lords of the Isles in the 14th cent. as a cell to Holyrood Abbey. The church, upwards of 70 ft. long, has a handsome window of three lights at the east end. Adjoining it is a cloister with triangular-headed arches resting on square piers. The churchyard retains a good sculptured cross, commemorating Colin (d. 1510), one of the priors, on the head of which is a carving of the Crucifixion. There are several cairns and tumuli on the island.

Oronsay (2), island in west part of Loch Sunart, pa. of Morvern (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., 6 E.N.E. of Tobermory. The island is about 2 miles long from east to west, with an extreme breadth of one mile.

Orphir, pa., comprising Cava island and part of Mainland island, Ork., Sc., about 9 W. of Kirkwall; ac. 12,762; soil in the valleys black loam, in other parts of inferior quality, in some a cold clay.

Orpington, pa. and vil., W. Kent, 8 S.W. of Dartford; ac. 3,510; soil sandy loam, subsoil chiefly chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1872) is E. Eng.; the west doorway is of the Trans. period and retains a stoup; in the porch is a fine Dec. altar-tomb; part of a mural staircase remains on the south side of the nave. In the chancel are sedilia and a piscina, and a slab inclosing a brass to Thomas Wilkinson (d. 1511); there is also one to William Gulby (d. 1439) and another to John Gover, vicar (d. 1522); the pulpit and lectern are of oak; the ancient rood-screen was removed at the restoration and replaced by one of oak and brass. Here is a Baptist chapel. Charities amounting to £130 are yearly distributed. Fruit of all kinds, for the London markets, and hops are extensively grown here. The Priory is a gabled mansion, with mullioned windows of the Tudor period, the oldest portion being a small stone buttressed annexe of three rooms on the east side, erected in 1393, and used by the priest who served the church; the hall, which is panelled with oak, and the principal rooms date from 1471; the dining room is panelled and the beams and cornice are covered with moulded plaster; the library is also panelled in oak and has a number of concealed cupboards; and in the head of the window are the arms of the University of Oxford, and those of Dr. John Bancroft, master of University College (d. 1649); there are also three chapel rooms and various dormitories; the crypt, reached by a flight of steps, now serves as an oratory, but was originally a kitchen, and the masonry of the fireplace and chimney are visible on the outside.

Orrell, tp. and large vil., pa. of and 4 W. from Wigan (q.v.), Mid Lancs.; ac. 1,618. The Roman Catholic chapel of St. James dates from 1805; there are also Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Nail-making is carried on here, and there is a cotton mill. O. Mount was formerly a French convent of the Benedictine order. O. Hall is a Tudor mansion, Orrell and Ford, tp., pa. of Sefton (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 5 N. of Liverpool; ac. 727. At Ford is a cemetery of 21 ac., laid out in 1855 as a burial-place for the Roman Catholics of Liverpool and the neighbourhood, and containing the church of the Holy Sepulchre. Adjoining is the convent of the Good Shepherd and an asylum for penitent women.

Orrery and Kilmore, bar., N. co. Cork, Ir.; ac. 69,346. It is bounded on the north by co. Lim., on the east by Fermoy bar., and on the west and south by Duhallow bar. The Great Southern and Western Railway runs through the bar., which contains Charleville.

Orrest Head, eminence (784 ft.), W. Westmd., near Windermere vil., commanding one of the widest views in the Lake District.

Orrin, stream, pa. of Urray (q.v.), E. Ross and Crom., Sc., runs 26 E.N.E., joining the Conon 4 S.S.W. of Dingwall. Descending as a rapid mountain torrent from the glen to which it gives its name, it afterwards flows through the level dis. of Strathconon, where the salmon-fishing is remarkably good. O. Falls are situated about 3 miles above its confluence with the Conon, at a point where its channel is extremely narrow.

Orrisdale Head, pa. of Ballaugh (q.v.), on the west coast of the I. of M., about 1 N. of Kirkmichael.

Orrock Hill, eminence, pa. of and 1¾ N.N.W. from Burntisland (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc. The hill is remarkable for some very fine basaltic columns.

Orsay. [Oversay.]

Orsett, pa. and vil., head of U. and petty sess. div., S. Essex, 10 S. of Brentwood; ac. 4,214; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Giles and All Saints was rebuilt in the 13th cent., and has since undergone alterations in Dec. and Perp. styles; on the south side is a fine Norm. doorway. The chancel retains sedilia with Purbeck shafts and a trefoil-headed piscina. Under the west window are five carvings in relief representing the five principal events of Our Lord's life. A 14th-cent. screen separates the north aisle from its chapel; there are a number of 15th- and 16th-cent. brasses. A large marble tomb with a recumbent figure commemorates John Hatt, attorney of the City of London. There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. There is an isolation hospital for the O. Union. A Literary Institute was erected 1860. The charities amount annually to about £150. O. Hall and O. House are seats.

Orslow, ha., pa. of Church Eaton (q.v.), W. Staffs., 7½ N.W. of Penkridge.

Orston, pa. and vil. on the Smite, S.E. Notts., on the Leics. border, 9 S. of Newark-upon-Trent; ac. 1,955; soil strong clay, resting on clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1889-90) is Norm. and Perp. There is a piscina, and a mural monument to the Kerchevalls (1695). The Wesleyans have a chapel. Gypsum stone abounds, and there are manufactories of plaster-of-Paris. Near the vil. is a mineral spring, said to be beneficial in scorbutic complaints.

Ortach, islet, Channel Islands, 3 N.W. of Alderney. The rock rises 60 ft. above the sea, and forms a conspicuous object in views from the south. On

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Orphir	Thurso (28)	744	1001
Orpington	Orpington	13	4099
Orrell	Orrell & Upholland	198	4914
Orrell and Ford	Aintree	206	1066

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Orrery and Kilmore	.....	.....	12325
Orsett	Stanford-le-Hope (4)	27	1379
Orston	Elton (1)	115	408

the south side the vertical wall of rock is continued some 60 ft. or 70 ft. below the sea-level. O. is a haunt of the razor-bill and guillemot, which build their nests here.

Orton (1), pa. and mkt. to. (w.), on the Lune, Mid Westmd., 9 s.w. of Appleby; ac. of pa., 24,513; subsoil limestone. The Gothic church of All Saints (restored 1877, when the chancel was rebuilt) has a piscina with trefoil-headed canopy; the font is dated 1662. In the chancel is a marble tablet to Richard Burn, LL.D. (d. 1785), historian of the county, author of "The Justice of the Peace" and "Ecclesiastical Law," and for forty-nine years vicar of the pa. The church also contains a fine oak chest made out of a single tree grown in Lowther Park. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Primitive Methodist mission-room. The Temperance Hall dates from 1858; there is also a reading-room. The fairs (held in May and August, etc.) include one for earthenware, known as the Pot Fair. Among the charities is an endowed school, founded 1730 and rebuilt 1809. O. Hall is pleasantly surrounded by pleasure-grounds and walks. O. Old Hall, now a farmhouse, known locally as Petty Hall, after the family which acquired it towards the end of the 17th cent., is a low two-storeyed building of Elizabethan date, comprising a dining-hall with mullioned windows, and a great fireplace. In the pa. are cairns and other antiquities.

Orton (2), pa. and vil., N.W. Cumb., 5 s.w. of Carlisle; ac. 4,287; soil black mould, overlying clay. The Trans. church of St. Kentigern (restored 1886) has walls over 3 ft. thick, partly composed of Roman materials. There is a piscina, and the Communion plate includes a silver chalice dated 1571. During the restoration fragments of an E. Eng. font and part of the shaft of a cross with nail-head moulding were discovered; the former is now outside the church door—the latter has been built into the churchyard wall. The vil., known as Great O., is surrounded by a ditch and rampart, and a Roman road and foundations of Roman buildings have been met with. An enclosed spot, called "Parson's Thorn," is noted for the extensive view it commands.

Orton (3), chap., tp., and vil., pa. of Rothwell (q.v.), Mid Northants., 5 w. of Kettering; ac. 941. The church of All Saints (restored 1887) is Perp., and contains an 18th-cent. slab to Thomas Dainty.

Orton Longueville. [Overton Longville.]

Orton-on-the-Hill, pa. and scattered vil., W. Leics., on the Warws. border, 7 N.W. of Tamworth; ac. 2,290; soil red marl, overlying a bed of sandstone. The church of St. Edith, formerly the church of Twycross and Gopsall, Leics., and Baxterley, Warws., dates from the 12th cent., but is chiefly Early Dec., the chancel, however, being of later date. In the south aisle is a stone coffin-lid of a priest, with carving of a cross and a chalice. There is also a stone coffin, supposed to be that of the founder of the church. The chancel retains a piscina and several tablets to the Perkins family, and there is a squint in one of the piers of the south aisle. O. Hall is a seat.

On the Orwell, Ipswich. (See page 78.)
(Photo. Payne Jennings, Ashtead.)

Orton Waterville. [Overton Waterville.]

Orwell (1), pa., S.W. Cambs., 8 s.w. of Cambridge; ac. 2,205; soil clayey and chalky, resting on clay, gault, and limestone. In the E. Eng. and Perp. church of St. Andrew is an effigy of Dr. Jeremiah Radcliffe, one of the forty-seven translators of the Bible in 1608–11, who was buried in the chancel March 4, 1625. The church was repaired 1883, when the roof was reinstated in oak, only a small portion of the old material being available for replacement. Part of the old oak ceiling with cusped and traceried ribs, which remained behind

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Orton (1)	Tebay (3)	262	1847
Orton (2)	Curthwaite (3)	306	477
Orton (3)	Desborough (3½)	78	73

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Orton-on-the-Hill	Polesworth (3)	106	238
Orwell (1)	Shepreth (3)	50	689

the later boarding, has been restored; at the intersections of the ribs was an interesting series of shields, bearing the almost obliterated arms of many of the principal county families, painted in distemper and now recoloured. The Wesleyans have a chapel; and there is a Reading Room. There is an extensive brewery, and malting is carried on here.

Orwell (2), river, S.E. Suff., is the continuation of the Gipping (q.v.), which begins to be known as the O. at Ipswich, whence it runs S.E. to the estuary of the Stour at Harwich. At Ipswich the banks are lined with ironworks, as well as with docks and wharves, where lie ocean-going vessels and fleets of "billy-boys" from Goole and elsewhere. The witty Earl of Rochester, visiting Ipswich when the tide was out, described it as a town without people on the banks of a river without water; and to this day, at low water, the shores present an expanse of muddy foreshore the reverse of pleasing. At other times, however, its noble breadth and its well-wooded slopes explain the charm which the stream had for Gainsborough, who, according to Constable, was attracted to it by "the beauty of the landscape, its extensiveness and richness in variety." There is a frequent service of steamboats to Harwich, and the trip up and down the river is much favoured by excursionists from London. The chief points of interest on the right hand, going down the stream, are Stoke Park, Wherstead, Freston with its ancient tower, and Woolverstone Hall with its obelisk; on the left bank are Orwell Park with its observatory, and Broke Hall, once the seat of the Sir Philip Broke who captured the Chesapeake in 1813.

Orwell (3), pa., N. Kinrs., Sc., on the Perths. border; ac. 13,133. The greater part is fine arable land, well inclosed and planted. The church is at Milnathort (q.v.). On the low ground, towards Loch Leven, stands the ruins of the ancient castle of Burleigh. Hattonburn is a seat.

Osbaldeston, tp. and small vil. near the Ribble, pa. of and 3½ N.W. from Blackburn (q.v.), E. Lancs.; ac. 1,084. There is a Roman Catholic chapel dedicated to St. Marie. The old manor house, surrounded by a moat, is now a farmhouse.

Osbaldwick, pa. and tp., N.R. Yorks., on the E.R. border, 2 E. of York; ac. of pa. 1,574, of tp. 730; soil loamy and clayey, resting on clay and gravel. The Norm. church of St. Thomas (restored 1878) retains a stoup. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Osbaston, tp., pa. of Cadeby (q.v.), W. Leics., 2¾ N.E. of Market Bosworth; ac. 1,325. O. Hall is a seat.

Osberton, ha., pa. of and 3 E. from Worksop (q.v.), N. Notts. O. Hall, a seat, contains a valuable museum of British birds, geological specimens, etc. [SCOFTON-WITH-OSBERTON.]

Osborne, the marine residence of Queen Victoria, pa. of Whippingham (q.v.), on the north shore of the I. of W. The manor was formerly styled Austerborne, either = East Bourne, or Oysterbourne, from the oyster-beds of the Medina. It was acquired by Her Majesty from Lady Isabella Blachford in 1840, and, the old house having been pulled down, the present one, in the Italian style, was built 1845–48 from designs by the Consort, who himself superintended the tion. Standing on an eminence, com extensive and beautiful views, with a law down to the sea, it rises into a flag-towe high, and a clock-tower of 90 ft. It is paintings and statuary, mostly modern. north-east front is a series of terraces with exotic plants, and with three or fountains. The north lawn has for its chief a gigantic vase of Swedish granite, over 20 from the Exhibition of 1851. Beside the a paved esplanade two-thirds of a mile in The estate, which now extends to about 5 includes the Prince Consort's model fa near to it Barton Court House, a mansi gables, much modernised since Osborne b royal demesne.

Osbournby, pa. and vil., S. Lincs., 6 s. ford; ac. 1,260; soil and subsoil clay, s gravel. The church of SS. Peter and E. Eng., Late Dec., and Perp.; there ar canopied sedilia, the ogee arches of w deeply moulded and crocketed in a free s style; the chancel also retains a pisc locker, and there are remains of a rood-s Perp. date, and a Late Norm. font with an of interlaced semicircular arches. There i leyan chapel. A cemetery of about hal was formed 1882. O. Hall is a seat.

Oscott, ha., pa. of Aston (q.v.), N. War of Birmingham. The Roman Catholic c St. Mary, on an eminence commanding view, is in Gothic style.

Oseby, ha., pa. of Haydor (q.v.), S.W 5½ N.W. of Falkingham.

Osengal Down, N.E. Kent, 1½ W. of R On the summit have been discovered mar of Romans and of the first Saxon settlers in In the Saxon graves personal ornaments, etc., were found, indicating that they belo heathen period.

Osgathorpe, pa. and vil. in a fertile val tributary of the Soar, N.W. Leics., 5 1 Ashby-de-la-Zouch; ac. 883; soil red clay on clay and limestone. The church of St an elegant specimen of Dec. work, but modern chancel (1860), the former chanc incorporated with the nave and retaining a piscina, and the outline of a squint; another piscina in the south wall of the nave with an inscription on brass, unda font is ancient; at the west end of the na alabaster tablet to Thomas Harley (d. 1670 is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities residences for seven clergymen's widows whom receive £70 yearly, left by the Harley mentioned above, and the seve bequeathed by John Allsop in 1683. T grammar school, founded by Thomas Ha an endowment of £140 per annum.

Osgodby (1), tp. and vil., pa. of and 1 N Hemingbrough (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 1, Hall is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Orwell (3)	Milnathort (1)	435	1852
Osbaldeston	Blackburn (4)	211	169
Osbaldwick, pa.	York (2)	188	379
Osbaldwick, tp.	York (2)	188	181

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dis fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Du
Osbaston	Bagworth (3)	10
Osbournby	Aswarby (2)	10
Osgathorpe	Worthington (1)	12
Osgodby (1)	Cliffe Common (1)	17

Osgodby (2), tp., pa. of and 1½ S. from Lenton, S. Lincs.; ac. 1,093. O. Hall, formerly a seat, is now occupied as farmhouses.

Osgodby (3), pl., formerly a separate tp., but now merged for civil purposes with Cayton (q.v.), from which it is 1 N., N.R. Yorks.

Osgodby (4), vil., pa. of Kirkby-with-Osgodby (q.v.), N. Lincs., 3½ N.W. of Market Rasen.

Osgoldcross Division, one of the 19 parl. divs. of the W.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Osgoodby, ha., pa. of Thirkleby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 E.S.E. of Thirsk.

Outer Islands. [AITS.]

Osleston and Thurvaston, tp., pa. of and 2 N. from Sutton-on-the-Hill (q.v.), S. Derbys.; ac. 1,745.

Osmaston (1), or Osmaston-near-Ashbourne, pa. and picturesque vil., W. Derbys., 10½ N.W. of Derby; ac. 1,267; soil mixed, resting on gravel and clay. The church of St. Martin (1845), a poor specimen of the Dec. style, was embellished 1887. The churchyard is planted with trees and shrubs, and contains several fine yew-trees, as well as the ancient font, now overgrown with evergreens. A reading-room with library was opened at the national school 1873. O. Manor House is a noble mansion situated on an eminence commanding extensive views of the picturesque scenery around, and enclosed in well-kept pleasure grounds, measuring about 35 ac.

Osmaston (2), or Osmaston-near-Derby, pa. and vil., S.E. Derbys., 1½ S.E. of Derby; ac. 844; soil light loam, resting on gravel and marl. The restored church of All Saints, mostly E. Eng., embodies some portions of an earlier Norm. church. In the chancel is a carved tablet of alabaster, inscribed in Latin to Sir Nicholas Wilmot (d. 1682), besides several others of later dates to the same family. There is also a modern monument of marble to the Eastwood family. The pulpit is of stone, finely carved. The church plate includes an Elizabethan chalice, a paten of Queen Anne's time, and a pewter flagon of 1629. O. Hall, formerly the residence of the Wilmots, dating from 1696, has, with its well-wooded grounds (250 ac.), been acquired by the Midland Railway Company. In the park are the links of the Derby Golf Club.

Osmerdike, ha., pa. of South Cave, E.R. Yorks., 7 E. of Howden.

Osmington, pa. and vil., on the English Channel, S. Dorset, 3½ N.E. of Weymouth; ac. 2,209; soil heavy clay, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Osmund (rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1846) is in the Perp. style; the chancel contains an ancient monument with the arms of Warham and a rudely-cut inscription. O. is much frequented by visitors from Weymouth for the lobsters and prawns caught in the bay. At O. Mills, about a mile from the vil., is a coastguard station. Cut in the chalk on a hill in this pa. is the figure of a horse and rider, representing George III. on horseback; it occupies nearly an acre, and is visible from a great distance at sea.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon or Dub.		POPULATION.
Osgodby (2)	Corby (2)	97	49
Osgoldcross Division	.....	.....	66794
Osleston and T.	Derby (6)	128	293
Osmaston (1)	Ashbourne (2)	152	264
Osmaston (2)	Derby (1½)	128	2067
Osmington	Weymouth (3½)	142	292
Osmotherley (1), pa.	Northallerton (7)	218	861

Osmondiston. [SCOLE.]

Osmondthorpe (1), ha., pa. of Whitkirk (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 S.E. of Leeds. O. Hall, a mansion in Classic style, is a seat.

Osmondthorpe (2), vil., pa. of Edingley (q.v.), S. Notts, 2½ N.W. of Southwell.

Osmotherley (1), pa., tp., and large vil., on the south-eastern declivity of a commanding eminence, in a cleft of the Hambleton Hills, N.R. Yorks., 7 N.E. of Northallerton; ac. of pa. 8,625, of tp. 3,196; soil and subsoil stiff clay. The church of St. Peter has an ancient tower, but the body of it is of more modern date. It was restored 1892, when a south aisle was added. There is a Catholic chapel dating from 1771, besides Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels and a Friends' meeting-house. In the centre of the vil. is an old stone cross, which has been restored. Bleaching and the spinning of flax are here carried on. The hills afford a plentiful supply of freestone of good quality, used for building purposes; alum rock is found. There are fairs for horned cattle and sheep in May and October. By Act of Parliament passed in 1755 part of the moor was enclosed and apportioned to forty-nine commoners in the tp.

Osmotherley (2), tp., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Ulverston (q.v.), N.W. Lancs.; ac. 1,929. The chapel of St. John the Evangelist (1874) is in E. Eng. style.

Osnaburgh. [DAIRSIE.]

Osney, island in the Isis, Oxon, 1½ W. of Oxford.

Osney Hill, or Horse-on-the-Hill, pa., W. Oxon, near Northleigh; ac. 208; soil gravel and clay, subsoil chiefly limestone.

Osney, New, eccl. pa., pa. of St. Thomas, Oxford (q.v.), Oxon. The church of St. Frideswide (built 1872, in E. French Gothic style) occupies part of the site of Osney Abbey, an Augustinian house founded 1074 by Robert d'Oyley and his wife Editha.

Ospringe, pa. and vil., N. Kent, 7 E. of Sittingbourne; ac. 2,872. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1866) is chiefly E. Eng. The tower was rebuilt in 1695; the north doorway is a good specimen of Norm. work; there is a piscina and several monuments, including one to James Master (1631); the font is E. Norm. Syndale Park is a seat.

Ossendyke. [RYTHER-WITH-OSSENDYKE.]

Ossett, mun. bor. on the Calder, pa. of and 2½ E.S.E. from Dewsbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 3,105. There are two eccl. pas.—that of Holy Trinity, with a church (rebuilt 1865) in E. Dec. style, and that of Christ Church, with a church dating from 1851. The Roman Catholic chapel (1878) is dedicated to St. Ignatius. There are also Congregational, Baptist, Particular Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Methodist New Connexion, and Free Methodist chapels, with a Salvation Army hall. The Mechanics' Institution and Technical School (1890) is in Eng. Renaissance style; the Temperance Hall dates from 1887. There is a

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Osmotherley (1), tp.	Northallerton (7)	218	637
Osmotherley (2)	Ulverston (3)	255	453
Osney Hill	Witney (4)	75	11
Osney, New	Oxford	63	2206
Ospringe	Faversham (1)	53	1123
Ossett	Ossett	179	10984

hospital for infectious diseases. The manufacture of plain and fancy woollen cloths, including army, navy, and police cloth, is carried on; and the to. is one of the main centres of the woollen-rag trade, artificial wools, especially the mungo, merino, and extract varieties, being extensively prepared for both home and Continental markets. There are also coal-mines, woollen- and rag-machine and flock factories, worsted-yarn spinning works, etc. Two spa baths, similar in their properties to the Cheltenham waters, are much used by scorbutic and rheumatic patients.

Ossett-with-Gawthorpe, tp. on the Calder, pa. of and 2½ E.S.E. from Dewsbury (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 3,105.

Ossian, Loch, pa. of Kilmonivaig (q.v.), S.W. Invs., Sc., about 15 E. of Ben Nevis. [GULBIN.]

Ossian's Grave. [CLACH-NA-OSSIAN.]

Ossington (anciently Oschington), pa. and vil., E. Notts., 10 N.W. of Newark-upon-Trent; ac. 2,268; soil strong clay, subsoil various. The church of the Holy Rood is in Classic style. O. Hall, formerly the seat of Speaker Evelyn Denison, created Viscount Ossington, is a mansion of brick, with lofty stone portico and two terraces, commanding extensive views; the entrance-gates open on a fine avenue leading to the Hall.

Ossory Division, one of the two parl. divs. of Q. Co., Ir. It lies in the west of the co., and returns one member.

Ossory, Ferns, and Leighlin. [FERNS.]

Ostend, ha., pa. of Burnham (q.v.), S.E. Essex, 6½ N.E. of Rochford.

O'Sullivan's Cascade, waterfall on west shore of Lower Lake of Killarney, E. co. Kerry, Ir., 3½ W.S.W. of Killarney. The cascade comprises three falls, the highest of which descends very abruptly for a distance of 20 ft. into a natural basin; issuing thence, the stream passes between two jutting crags, forming a second fall of similar character, and ending in another basin of the same kind, from which it descends a third time so as to form the last stage.

Oswaldkirk, pa., tp., and vil. on a south slope of the Hambleton Hills, N.R. Yorks., 3 S. of Helmsley; ac. of pa. 5,524, of tp. 2,166; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Oswald (restored 1886) is mainly E. Eng., but with Norm. features.

Oswaldtwistle, tp. and to. on the Leeds and Liverpool Canal, pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 1 S.W. of Accrington; ac. 4,883. Emmanuel Church, built 1837 in Gothic style, was enlarged 1867 by the addition of a chancel and transepts. Connected with it are five mission-rooms. The tp. comprises another eccl. pa., that of St. Paul, with a church (1885) in E. Eng. style. There are also several Nonconformist chapels. The town hall (1891) comprises a large assembly-room. There are extensive cotton factories, print works, potteries, and collieries, besides quarries. Peel Fold was the birthplace (April 25, 1750) of the first Sir Robert Peel, Bart., founder of the calico-printing industry, and father of the repealer of the Corn Laws. [STANHILL MOOR.]

Oswestry, mun. bor., pa., and mkt. to. (W. & S.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., N.W. Salop, 18 N.W. of Shrewsbury; ac. of bor. 1,888, of pa. 16,234. Seated on a gentle eminence amidst picturesque scenery, O. is one of the principal places on the Welsh border. It is of great antiquity, being named after St. Oswald, King of Northumberland, who was defeated and slain here (642) by Penda, King of Mercia. Its possession was frequently disputed, first between the Britons and the Saxons, afterwards between the Britons and the Normans. In 1212 it was taken and burnt by King John, and in 1233 it met the same fate at the hands of the Welsh prince Llewellyn. At this time it was defended by a strong wall, of which some traces may still be seen. Of the castle also, surmounting a hill west of the to., a few fragments remain; the site is now enclosed by a wall and planted with flowers and shrubs. The pa. church of St. Oswald, originally the church of a monastery, is a large structure (restored 1873), principally Trans., E. Eng., and Dec. It contains an elaborate canopied monument, with two kneeling effigies and an inscription to Alderman Hale (1616) and his wife. The communion-plate includes a 16th-cent. chalice. The "griddle" or lich-gate bears date 1631. The eccl. pa. church of the Holy Trinity (1837), in Dec. style, was renovated and considerably enlarged 1893-94. The chapel of St. Anne, Weston (1883), is used principally by the inmates of the Workhouse. To the Roman Catholic chapel of Our Lady the Help of Christians and St. Oswald (1890) there is attached a presbytery; a convent and an elementary school form a separate block. There are also many Nonconformist places of worship, some of them handsome examples of modern Gothic. The municipal records show an unbroken corporate existence of over 600 years. The Municipal Buildings (1893), occupying the site of the old town hall, comprise a library and reading-room, a science and art school. The Public Hall dates from 1863, the Victoria Rooms from 1864. The Corn Exchange and Wholesale Cheese and Butter Market, bounding on one side the area known as "Bailey Head," were rebuilt 1869; the Cross Market was enlarged 1883. There are monthly cheese and butter fairs and weekly cattle fairs, the latter held in Smithfield, an open area of 2½ ac. The charities, yielding about £300, include an almshouse for six men and as many women. The Provident Dispensary was established 1828, the O. and Ellesmere Cottage Hospital in 1866. Near the Workhouse (1790) is a modern hospital for infectious diseases. The Grammar School, rebuilt 1871 for 120 boys, was founded and endowed temp. Henry IV. by David Holbeche; the school chapel was erected 1863, in E. Eng. style. The chief industries are malting, tanning, currying, fellmongering, and woolstapling; there are also iron and brass foundries, agricultural implement and other machine works, and steam saw-mills. Here, too, are the engine and carriage works of the Cambrian Railway Company.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ossett-w.-G'thorpe	Ossett	179	10984
Ossington	Carlton-on-Trent(2½	126	211
Ossory Division	.....	.....	32823
Oswaldkirk, pa.	Gilling (2)	213	390
Oswaldkirk, tp.	Gilling (2)	213	182
Oswaldtwistle	Church (1)	209	13296
Oswestry, bor.	Oswestry	183	8496
Oswestry, pa.	Oswestry	183	12526

Oswestry (or Western) Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Salop. It returns one member.

Oswestry Rural, tp., pa. of Oswestry (q.v.), N.W. Salop, being that part of the pa. lying outside the bor.; ac. 14,346.

Oswestry Town, tp., pa. and bor. of Oswestry (q.v.), N.W. Salop, 18 N.W. of Shrewsbury; ac. 1,888.

Otby, ha., pa. of Walesby (q.v.), N. Lincs., 2 N.E. of Market Rasen.

Otford, pa. and vil. on the Darenth (here crossed by a stone bridge of one arch), N.W. Kent, 3 N. of Sevenoaks; ac. 2,806; soil chalky, overlying clay. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored) is Perp.; there are various monuments to the Polhill family; on the north side is a small vestry of Perp. character and a canopied tomb of the 14th cent., now defaced. There is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1800. The poor have about £100 yearly from an ancient charity. The kennels of the West Kent

OTFORD.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Hunt are situated here. O. was attached to the see of Canterbury as early as 1006, and the archbishops appear to have had a dwelling-place here from the time of Lanfranc, the first Norman archbishop (A.D. 1070), and to have made it a favourite place of residence; Archbishop Warham rebuilt the castle or palace in a magnificent style, at a cost of £33,000, and entertained Henry VIII. here with splendid hospitality; the existing remains furnish an admirable specimen of brickwork of the time of Henry VII., and include a roofless octagonal tower of three storeys, with double square-headed windows, and the cloistered side of a court, now formed into cottages. There is a spring of water in the castle grounds which flows into a chamber upwards of 30 ft. in length by about 15 ft. in breadth, known as St. Thomas à Beckett's Well.

Otham (1), pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 3 S.E. of Maidstone; ac. 955; soil mixed, sandy, and clayey, upon rock, which is well adapted for the growth of hops, which are largely grown here, also much fruit. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1865) is E. Eng. and later; there are some curious monuments to the Floods and Hendleys, or Henleys, and a tablet to Dr. George Horne, Bishop of Norwich (1790–92), who was born here (1730), his father being then rector of this pa. There are some charities, and a convalescent home for twelve patients. The Len, which forms the northern boundary of the pa., works a mill. Stone Acre, 1 S.E., is a very ancient farmhouse. Gore Court, a mansion of the date of Henry VII., standing in its own grounds, with a remarkably fine entrance-hall, is a seat.

Otham (2). [HAILSHAM.]

Otherton, ha., pa. of Cotheridge (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 3 W. of Worcester.

Othery, pa. and vil. on the Parret, Mid Somerset, 7 S.E. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,483; soil loamy and sandy, overlying limestone. The church of St. Michael is chiefly E. Eng., with details of the 13th and 14th cents. At the vicarage is preserved an embroidered cope of the 15th cent. There is a Congregational chapel.

Otley (1), pa., tp., and mkt. to. (F.), head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., pleasantly situated on the Wharfe, and in a valley at the foot of the Chevin range, W.R. Yorks., 10 N. of Bradford; ac. of pa. 23,759, of tp. 2,870; soil various, overlying clay and rock. The name is derived from Otho, a Saxon prince, whose principality lay betwixt the Humber and Tyne (A.D. 620), and in Domesday is given as Othelai. At an early period O. returned two members to Parliament, but ceased to do so as soon as members had to be paid for their services. The church of All Saints (restored) is Norm., and the north porch is an early specimen of this work. During the restoration a Saxon cross was discovered. There is a piscina, in good preservation, and there are mural monuments, with arms, to the Fawkeses (1620–26); a brass shield, with several quarterings, to the Lindley and Palmes families. In the south aisle are two recumbent stone figures, one of which represents Sir Thomas Fairfax, first Baron Fairfax of Cameron (d. 1649), and Helen (Aske) his wife, with a quaint inscription. Adjoining this is a curiously-carved monument, dated 1640, to Edward Fairfax, the translator of Tasso, and another (undated) to the Dyneleys of Bramhope. In the churchyard is a monument of Caen stone, beneath which lie the remains of more than thirty men who lost their lives during the cutting of Bramhope tunnel, through the Chevin hill, on the North Eastern Railway. The Roman Catholic church of Our Lady and All Saints was erected 1851, in Gothic style, and has since been enlarged. There are also Congregational, Wesleyan, Primitive and New Connexion Methodist chapels, and one for the Brethren. The Mechanics' Institution (1869), in Italian style, comprises a library and lecture hall with class-rooms; a concert hall seating some 800 persons; and on the ground floor a lecture-room capable of holding upwards of 250; science and art classes are held here on four nights each week. The Court-house dates from 1875. There are Liberal and Conservative club-houses. In 1888 a turret clock, with drinking-fountain, was erected in the market-place as a memorial of Her Majesty's Jubilee. The grammar school of Prince Henry

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oswestry Division	.....	.....	54192
Oswestry Rural	Oswestry	183	4030
Oswestry Town	Oswestry	183	8496
Otford	Otford	24	1480
Otham (1)	Bearsted (2)	43	361
Othery	Athelney (3)	150	575
Otley (1), pa.	Otley	208	20202
Otley (1), tp.	Otley	208	7838

was founded by Thomas Cave 1611, but the building has now been sold and the money invested, the total income, about £65, being applied to the maintenance of scholarships at grammar schools in the neighbourhood. The charities amount to about £120 per annum. Worsted-spinning and weaving, printing, tanning, and leather-dressing are carried on, together with printing-machine making, now one of the principal trades of the town. Fairs are held at Easter, Whitsuntide, and in August, and also (for the hiring of servants) at Old Martinmas.

Otley (2), pa. and large vil., Mid Suff., 8 N. of Ipswich; ac. 2,157; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1879) is Gothic, and retains an ancient carved font.

Otley Division, one of the 19 parl. divs. of the W.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Otmoor Common, plain, E. Oxon, on the Bucks. border, 8 N. of Oxford. It was once a public common, intersected by a Roman causeway, but has now been enclosed. Roman pottery has been excavated here.

Otter, river, E. Dev., rises near the Somerset border, close to the Black Down Hills, and flows 23 S.W. and S. past Honiton, Ottery St. Mary, and Colyton, to Otherton, where it enters the English Channel. The stream passes through pleasant scenery, and affords good trout-fishing.

Otterbourne, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Hants, situated 4 S. of Winchester, on the road to Southampton; ac. 1,498; soil gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Matthew is a modern cruciform building of blue brick, in E. Eng. style. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1859. A memorial of the Rev. John Keble, author of the "Christian Year" (rector 1836–66), has been erected here; it is a granite cross, 9 ft. high, standing upon three steps.

Otterburn (1), tp. and vil. on the Rede, pa. of and 3½ W. from Elsdon (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 8,536. The church of St. John the Evangelist, a chapel-of-ease to St. Cuthbert's, Elsdon, erected 1857, in Gothic style, has several memorial windows. The Presbyterian church, dating from 1834, was rebuilt 1885. There is a small woollen manufactory and a colliery. At a spot bounded on the east by the Otter and on the south by the Rede was fought (August 19, 1388) the famous battle of Otterburn, or "Chevy Chase," between an invading army of Scots under the Earls of Douglas, Moray, and Dunbar, and an English force led by Sir Henry Percy, the renowned "Hotspur," then Warden of the Marches, and his brother, Sir Ralph Percy. The Scots, having devastated Durham and failed to take Newcastle-upon-Tyne, began to retreat, and arriving in the afternoon of August 18 at Otterburn, took possession of an eminence in the north of the tp., and there formed an entrenched camp, which appears to have been nearly square, with rounded angles, and fortified with a double vallum, portions of which still remain on the north-west and south-east. Next day the position was further strengthened with outworks; and the Scots had hardly completed these, when the Percys, who had followed them from Newcastle, assaulted the camp on two sides. Earl Douglas was struck down with three mortal wounds, while on the other side both the Percys were taken prisoners. The victory of the Scots in the end was decisive. The ancient and modern ballads of "Chevy Chase" are both concerned with this encounter. O. Hall, situated in the centre of the Hotspur plantation, 1 N.W. of the vil., is a building of red brick with stone facings, in Gothic style, commanding an extensive view of the valley of the Rede. O. Tower is a fine modern building, incorporating remains of early work, and occupying the site of the ancient tower.

Otterburn (2), tp., pa. of and 3 S. from Kirkby-in-Malham-Dale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,126.

Otterden, pa. and vil., Mid Kent, 7 S.W. of Faversham; ac. 1,487; soil loam, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Lawrence stands on the site of an older building (pulled down in 1753), and is a plain structure; it contains altar tombs to William Lewin, his wife and children (1598), and to Justinian Lewin (1620), a monument to John Bunce (1611), and two memorials to the family of Wheler; a ledger-stone with a brass effigy was discovered in 1894, the figure representing a knight, Thomas St. Leger of Otterden (d. 1408). Bunce's benefaction is a charity for parochial purposes. O. Place, a seat, is a brick mansion of Tudor architecture; here Stephen Gray conducted his electrical experiments in 1725.

Otter Ferry, pl. on east shore of Loch Fyne, pa. of Kilfinan (q.v.), E. Args., Sc., 5 E. by S. of Lochgilphead. The loch is here crossed by means of a ferry of 1½ mile.

Otterford, pa. and vil. on the Otter, S. Somerset, on the Dev. border, 6 N.W. of Chard; ac. 2,343; soil clayey and stony, subsoil flinty. The vil. part of O. is known as Bishop's Wood. The E. Eng. church of St. Leonard (repaired and enlarged 1861) has a Norm. font, a piscina, a holy-water stoup, and several interesting brasses. There is a chapel for Plymouth Brethren. O. House, built on the site of an ancient farmhouse called "Week Farm," and afterwards acquired by the late Sir John Mellor, Justice of the Queen's Bench, is in the pa. of Church Staunton, Dev., but the grounds, measuring 1,200 ac., extend into the pa. of O.

Otterham, pa. and vil., N. Cornw., 6 N.N.E. of Camelford; ac. 3,262; soil loam, overlying clay and slate. The church of St. Denis (restored 1889) is an E. Eng. building; there is a slab to John Moyes and his family (1700–1721), to the Prest family (1710–1763), to Abel French (d. 1660), and others.

Otterhampton, pa. on the Parret, Mid Somerset, 6 N.W. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,982; soil clay, overlying limestone. The church of All Saints is E. Eng., with a modern chancel. Hill House is a seat.

Otterington, North, pa. and tp., N.R. Yorks.; ac. of pa. 4,039, of tp. 819; soil light, resting on sand and gravel. The church of St. Michael, now a

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Otley (2)	Westerfield (6)	72	525
Otley Division	.....	.....	61746
Otterbourne	Shawford (1½)	68	1092
Otterburn (1)	Woodburn (5)	308	260
Otterburn (2)	Bell Busk (2)	228	47
Otterden	Lenham (3)	49	199

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Otterford	Chard (6)	143	391
Otterham	Otterham	237	154
Otterhampton	Bridgwater (6)	152	478
Otterington, N., pa.	Otterington (1)	214	580
Otterington, N., tp.	Otterington (1)	214	86

chapel-of-ease to St. Barnabas', Thornton-le-Moor, is Norm. and E. Eng.

Otterington, South, pa. and vil. on the Wiske, N.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Thirsk; ac. 1,414; soil light, subsoil sandy. The church of St. Andrew (1846), in Norm. style, occupies the site of the old church. O. Hall is a modern mansion pleasantly situated on a slight eminence.

Ottershaw, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 S. by W. from Chertsey (q.v.), N.W. Surrey. Christ Church (1864), designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, is in E. Eng. style; the tower was added 1885. Here are extensive nursery grounds and potteries. There are two Homes of the Ministering Children's League, founded by the Countess of Meath for the rescue of destitute children by the children of the wealthy. There is also a private home for children, established in 1884. A working men's club, with lecture, reading and refreshment rooms, was established 1875. O. Park covers about 400 acres, and is beautifully wooded. Austenleyley Park is another seat.

Otterswick, bay on north coast of Sanday Island, N.E. Ork., Sc., 26 N.N.E. of Kirkwall. The bay is 4 miles wide at its mouth, and extends nearly 6 miles inland.

Otterton, pa. and vil. on the Otter, S. Dev., 12 S.E. of Exeter; ac. 3,434; soil loam, chiefly overlying red sand. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1871) is in Dec. style, and contains several brasses to the Duke family, including one to Richard Duke (d. 1641), and another to Sarah Duke (d. 1641); there is a fine carved reredos. The charities amount to about £30 yearly. There was a Benedictine priory here, which was originally a cell to the abbey of Mount St. Michael, in Normandy.

Ottery, ha., pa. of Lamerton (q.v.), S.W. Dev., 3 N.W. of Tavistock.

Ottery Hill, eminence, E. Dev., 3 S.W. of Ottery St. Mary.

Ottery Hill, East, eminence, E. Dev., about 2½ N. of Sidmouth. On one of its spurs is an ancient camp known as Sidbury-Castle, in which are two wells.

Ottery St. Mary, pa. and mkt. to. (TH.), and head of petty sess. div., in a fertile valley on the east bank of the Otter, E. Dev., 12 E. of Exeter; ac. 9,944; soil sandy, resting on gravel. Cromwell is said to have held a convention in a house (no longer standing) near the churchyard, for the purpose of raising men and money. Fairfax also had his headquarters here in 1645. In 1866 a disastrous fire destroyed 111 houses, rendering homeless about 500 persons. The church of St. Mary is the only church in England, except Exeter Cathedral, with transeptal towers, of which that on the north side is capped by a low octagonal spire. They are E. Eng., and date from about the middle of the 13th cent., when a church was consecrated here by Bishop Bronescombe. In 1337 Bishop Grandisson, having founded here a college of secular priests, began to enlarge the church; and to this period belong the graceful vaulting of the nave and choir, the clerestory, the reredos, and the altar-screen, the only important additions since made being the huge Dorset aisle, built early in the 16th cent. by Cicely, Marchioness of Dorset and Countess of Wiltshire, and remarkable for its fan tracery, and the south porch, dating from the latter part of the same cent., and built by John Haydon (d. 1587), first governor of the Corporation of O. St. M., whose altar-tomb is in the chancel. The nave, choir, and transept are alike provided with a clerestory; and behind the chancel is a lady-chapel, flanked on either side by a tiny chantry. In the nave are two corresponding altar-tombs, believed to be those of Sir Otho de Grandisson, a brother of the builder-Bishop (d. 1364) and his wife, both surmounted by an ambitious ogee canopy. There are also other ancient memorials. The greater part of the interior was restored 1849–50, under Butterfield's direction, mainly at the expense of Sir John Taylor Coleridge, father of the late Lord Chief Justice. The south transept was afterwards adorned with mosaics in memory of his parents, and contains the recumbent marble figure by Thrupp of the first Lady Coleridge (d. 1878). The beautiful stone reredos, which was long hidden out of sight, and has been drastically restored, extends right across the choir; across the summit is carried a line of shields, some of them emblazoned. Bishop Grandisson's large altar-screen has also been vigorously restored. The sedilia, unlike the west front, resemble those in Exeter Cathedral. The misereres also have been preserved. In the south transept is a curious old clock, made to indicate the phases of the moon as well as the time. The magnificent font, of Devon and Cornish marbles, supported by a central shaft, with four smaller ones at the corners, was designed by Butterfield. In the churchyard is a monument to Sir John Taylor Coleridge. The Baptists, Congregationalists, and Wesleyans have chapels. The Town Hall,

THE PARISH CHURCH, OTTERY ST. MARY, FROM THE SOUTH-WEST.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Otterington, South	Otterington	214	335
Ottershaw	Chertsey (2)	22	829

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Otterton	Sidmouth (3)	168	725
Ottery St. Mary	Ottery St. Mary	162	3858

which comprises a library and reading-room, dates from 1853. There is a provident dispensary, established 1860. Paxford House Hospital was established 1870, and rebuilt 1881. There are several almshouses, and the pa. is rich in other charities. Great markets are held in August and December, and there are three annual fairs. The King's Grammar School, founded by Henry VIII., when St. Mary's College was dissolved, was demolished 1884. It was at O. St. M. that Samuel Taylor Coleridge was born (1772), his father being master of the school and vicar of the pa.; and the excavation known as the "Pixies' Parlour" figures in his verse. The pa. also appears, under the name Clavering St. Mary, in "Pendennis," a reminiscence of the vacations which Thackeray spent here while a Charterhouse student. Sir Walter Raleigh once lived here; and among the names on the roll of the Grammar School appear those of S. T. Coleridge, Richard Hurrell Froude, and Bishop Patteson. Heath's Court, where the late Lord Chief Justice resided, and Salston are seats.

Ottery, Upper. [UP OTTERY.]

Ottery, Venn. [VENN OTTERY.]

Ottringham, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 12½ E. by S. of Hull; ac. 4,320; soil rich, overlying in parts blue clay. The church of St. Wilfrid (restored 1860) is an E. Eng. and Dec. building. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a small charity.

Oude, river, pa. of Kilninver and Kilmelford, Mid Args., Sc., runs 5 miles W. and S.S.W. to the head of Loch Melfort. It passes through some picturesque country, especially about a mile above its mouth, where the overhanging rocks on either side reach a height of several hundred feet.

Oughaval, pa. on Westport Bay, Murrisk bar., S.W. co. Mayo, Ir.; ac. 33,695. The pa. includes Westport (q.v.), and several islands off the coast. The principal seats are Murrisk Abbey, with some remains of an Augustinian abbey, and Westport House, on the margin of a small lake in a well-planted demesne.

Oughteragh, pa. on Yellow River, Carrigallen bar., S.E. co. Leit., Ir.; ac. 21,705, including several lakes. Limestone abounds here. The pa. includes the to. of Ballinamore (q.v.).

Oughterard (1), pa., South Salt bar., E. co. Kild., Ir., 4 W. of Rathcoole; ac. 2,886. The Protestant church is a ruin, and close to it is a round tower in a very imperfect state. Bishop's Court House is a seat, with a fine estate.

Oughterard (2), vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Kilcummin (q.v.), S.W. co. Galway, Ir., 13½ N. of Galway. O. is on the west bank of Lough Corrib, and is much frequented by invalids for its chalybeate spa, and the surrounding country is wild and romantic. There are Catholic and Protestant churches, and a parochial school. Black marble is quarried.

Oughterby, ha., pa. of Kirkbampton (q.v.), N. Cumb., 7 W. of Carlisle.

Oughterleague, pa., Clanwilliam and Lower Kilnamanagh bars., S.W. co. Tip., Ir., 4½ N.W. of Cashel; ac. 2,616.

Oughter, Lough, N. co. Cavan, Ir., about 2 E. from Killashandra. It is about 4 miles long by 3 miles wide, and contains several islands.

Oughterside and Allerby, tp., pa. of and 2 W. by S. from Aspatria (q.v.), W. Cumb.; ac. 2,311. At O. coal is found in abundance.

Oughtibridge, eccl. pa., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., forming a north-west suburb of Sheffield. The church (dedication unknown) is in Norm. style. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Reformed Methodist chapels. The industries include steel-works, spring-knife, file, and nail factories, and ganister grinding; there are also quarries, and paper and corn mills.

Oughtmama, pa., Burren bar., co. Clare, Ir., 10 N. of Corofin station; ac. 9,843. The pa. includes the harbour of Newquay on Galway Bay.

Oughtrington, eccl. pa., pa. of Lymm (q.v.), N. Chesh. The church of St. Peter is in Gothic style. O. Hall, formerly the seat of the Traffords, is a handsome mansion commanding a fine view.

Oulart, vil., pa. of Meeluagh (q.v.), E. co. Wex., Ir., about 8 E. of Enniscorthy. In 1798 about 100 of the North Cork Militia were here surrounded by a large body of rebels, and only five escaped.

Ouler, Lough, E. co. Wick., Ir., about 4 N.E. of Glendalough.

Oulston, tp., pa. of and 2 S. from Coxwold (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,466. There is a Wesleyan chapel. A Roman Catholic chapel, dating from 1795 has been converted into a cottage.

Oulton (1), pa., N.E. Suff., about 2 W. of Lowestoft; ac. 1,961; soil mixed, light and heavy, overlying clay, gravel, and sand. O. is bounded by the river Waveney and the south-western part of Lake Lothing, known as Oulton Broad, a fresh-water lake in which is some good fishing, and on which sailing and rowing matches take place during the summer. The church of St. Michael (restored 1862) is Norm. O. Hall is a seat.

OULTON BROAD.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ottringham	Ottringham	209	515
Oughaval	Westport	163	7216
Oughteragh	Ballinamore	104	5355
Oughterard (1)	Hazlehatch (6)	11	278
Oughterard (2)	Oughterard	143	810
Oughterleague	Goold's Cross (3)	96	314

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oughterside and A.	Aspatria (2)	319	572
Oughtibridge	Oughtibridge	167	2100
Oughtmama	Corofin (10)	163	505
Oughtrington	Lymm (1¼)	187	2040
Oulston	Coxwold (2)	208	168
Oulton (1)	Oulton Broad	118	1314

Oulton (2), pa. and vil., N. Norf., 11 W. of North Walsham; ac. 1,828; soil sandy, overlying sand and clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is E. Eng. There is a Congregational chapel of ancient date, with residence for the minister. O. Hall is an ancient mansion, pleasantly situated, and nearly surrounded by thriving plantations.

Oulton (3), tp. and vil., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Wigton (q.v.), W. Cumb.; ac. 2,878.

Oulton (4), eccl. pa. and small vil. on the side of a hill, pa. of and about 1 N. from Stone (q.v.), W. Staffs. The church of St. John the Evangelist (built 1874) is in Gothic style. St. Mary's Abbey, a modern foundation of the Benedictine order, is a large brick building with a beautiful chapel (1854) from designs by E. W. Pugin. O. House, on an eminence commanding fine views, is a seat.

Oulton (5). [OULTON-WITH-WOODLESFORD.]

Oulton (6), ha., pa. of Norbury (q.v.), W. Staffs., 3 N.E. of Newport.

Oulton Broad. [OULTON (1).]

Oulton, Low, formerly a separate tp., pa. of Over (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 4 N.E. of Tarporley. A farmhouse now occupies the site of Darley Hall.

Oulton-with-Woodlesford, tp. on the Aire, pa. of Rothwell (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 E.S.E. of Leeds; ac. 1,361. The church of St. John, Oulton, dates from 1827. There are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. Webster's charity, founded 1824, yields £220 per annum, two-thirds of which are for distribution, while the remainder is used for apprenticing children. O. stone, an excellent grit-stone, is extensively quarried here. O. Hall, an elegant mansion in Classic style, standing in an undulating and well-wooded park, was rebuilt 1851, after a fire. [WOODLESFORD.]

Oundle, pa., tp., and mkt. to. (TH.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., on the Nen, N. Northants, 13 S.W. of Peterborough; ac. of pa. 4,992, of tp. 3,144. The church of St. Peter is a large structure of the E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. periods, with panelled tower ending in an octagonal crocketed spire 208 ft. high. The chancel retains sedilia and a piscina, richly carved; the reredos, of alabaster, displays "The Last Supper;" the brass eagle-lectern dates from the middle of the 15th cent. Beneath the south transept (E. Dec.) is a crypt with groined roof; the south porch also (built about 1440 by John Wyatt and his wife, founders of the Guild of the Blessed Virgin) has a groined roof. The interior was restored by Sir Gilbert Scott, and, more recently, the exterior has been taken in hand. Jesus Church, at the west end of the to., was built 1879, in E. Eng. style. There are also Congregational, Wesleyan, and Baptist chapels. The town hall, in the Market Place, accommodates the Literary Institute, and the lower part serves as the butter market. A horse and cattle fair is held in February, and a pleasure fair in October and on Whit-Monday. The front of the Talbot Hotel, an ancient hostelry, was built with materials from Fotheringhay Castle, and also contains some of the Castle stairs. There are several charities, among them the Town Estates, which yield £120 a year for public uses. Lathom's Hospital, endowed with about £500 a year, was founded 1611 for 18 aged women by Nicholas Lathom, rector of Barnwell St. Andrew. In 1556 Sir William Laxton, Lord Mayor of London, left an estate in the City of London in trust to the Grocers' Company to support a school and almshouses. The foundation now supports two schools —O. School, of the first grade, and Laxton School, of the second—for both of which new buildings have been provided. The almshouses also have been rebuilt. There are, besides, four almshouses for Protestant Dissenters, founded 1801 by John Paine. Biggin Hall is an ancient seat.

Ouplaymoor, or Uplawmoor, vil., pa. of and 3 S.W. from Neilston (q.v.), S.E. Renfs., Sc.

Ourtnagapple, vil. on the south side of the island of Inishmore (q.v.), W. co. Galway, Ir.

Ousby (formerly "Ulfsby"), pa. and vil., E. Cumb., 9 E.N.E. of Penrith; ac. 7,457; soil chiefly red marl, overlying sand. The Roman road called "The Maiden Way" passes through the pa., and there are remains of an ancient pentagonal earthwork, defended by a double rampart and ditch. Within the area thus enclosed traces of buildings have been met with. The church of St. Luke, dating from the 13th cent., retains a piscina, and three sedilia with trefoiled heads, under plain angular canopies. Within the altar-rails is the recumbent wooden figure of a knight in mail-armour of the 13th cent., his feet resting on a dog. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Ousden, or Owsden, pa., E. Suff., 7 E. by S. of Newmarket; ac. 1,295; soil clay and loamy, overlying clay and chalk. The church of St. Peter is Norm. A Primitive Methodist chapel was erected in 1872. Here is a small charity for the maintenance of public worship, and another applied to educational purposes. O. Hall, in Grecian style, with extensive grounds, is a seat.

Ouse (1), river, Yorks., is formed by the confluence of the Ure and the Swale, 1 E. of Boroughbridge, and, constituting the boundary between the North and the West Ridings, flows about 15 S.E. past Newton-upon-Ouse, Beningbrough, Overton, and Skelton, to York. Thence it runs in a southerly direction by Bishopthorpe, Naburn, and Moreby Hall, to Cawood, where it again takes a predominantly south-east course, past Selby, Drax, and Goole, to Faxfleet, where it unites with the Trent to form the Humber. At Nun Monkton it is joined by the Nidd, at York by the Foss, at Nun Appleton by the Wharfe, at Barmby-on-the-Marsh by the Derwent, near Howden (3 miles to the north-east) by the Aire, and at Goole by the Don. With its tributaries, the O. drains a considerable part of the North of England, although its actual course is almost confined to the great plain of York. It traverses beautiful and fertile land, and all its affluents come to it over picturesque and classic ground. Its total length is about 45 miles.

Ouse (2), or Great Ouse, river, the ancient Trivona, rises at Ouse Well, Farthingoe, S.W. Northants, and

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oulton (2)	Bluestone (½)	136	372
Oulton (3)	Wigton (2)	310	317
Oulton (4)	Stone (1)	139	886
Oulton-with-W'ford	Woodlesford (1½)	190	2776
Oundle, pa.	Oundle	96	2886

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oundle, tp.	Oundle	96	2680
Oundle, to.	Oundle	96	2667
Ourtnagapple	Galway (30)	128	125
Ousby	Temple Sowerby (6)	289	271
Ousden	Higham (4)	77	277

winds, mainly in an easterly and north-easterly direction, through Bucks., Beds., Hunts., Cambs., and Norf., being carried into The Wash by the Eaubrink Cut at King's Lynn, after running a course of about 160 miles. For about two-thirds of this distance, from Bedford to its mouth, it is navigable. It flows by Buckingham, Stony Stratford, Newport Pagnell, Olney, Bedford, St. Neots, Huntingdon (where it is crossed by a picturesque old bridge), Junction of the Ouse with the Cam.

St. Ives (where it is spanned by another venerable bridge), Ely, and Market Downham. The country through which it passes is fertile, but marked by an increasing monotony which culminates in the featureless scenery of the Fen Country, where its course is largely artificial, forming part of a connected system of drainage. Among its tributaries are the Tare, the Ouzel, the Ivel, the Cam, the Lark, and the Little Ouse or Brandon River.

Ouse (3), river, rises at Slaugham, N. Sussex, 5 S.E. of Horsham, flows S.E. and then S. past Lindfield, Fletching, Irfield (where it receives a branch from Mayfield), Barcombe, and Lewes, where it is joined by the Glynde stream. Cutting for itself a course through the South Downs, it runs into the English Channel at Newhaven, 28 miles from its source. Formerly it entered the English Channel at Seaford, nearly 3 S.E. of its present mouth. It is navigable from Lindfield downwards.

Ouseburn, Great, pa., tp., and vil., and head of U., on the Ouse, W.R. Yorks., 8½ N.E. of Knaresborough; ac. of pa. 1,931, of tp. 1,789; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary has an E. Norm. pinnacled tower. The nave was rebuilt in Perp. style 1820, and the building was restored 1883, when a south chapel was added. The charities yield £26 a year.

Ouseburn, Little, pa., tp., and vil. on the Ouse, W.R. Yorks., 8½ N.E. of Knaresborough; ac. of pa. 4,167, of tp. 675; soil clay, overlying sand. The church of the Holy Trinity, mostly E. Norm. and Perp., has an embattled west tower, believed to be of Saxon date. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £17 per annum.

Ousefleet, tp. and vil. on the south bank of the Ouse, pa. of Whitgift (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 E. of Goole; ac. 2,139. O. Hall is a seat.

Ouse, Great. [Ouse (2).]

Ousel. [Ouzel.]

Ouse, Little (1), eccl. pa., pa. of Hilgay, Feltwell St. Mary and St. Nicholas, Feltwell Anchor and Redmore, W. Norf., and Littleport, N. Cambs. The church of St. John, situated on the south bank of the Little Ouse, about 2 miles above its confluence with the Great Ouse, is in E. Eng. style. Here are two Primitive Methodist chapels.

Ouse, Little (2), or Brandon River, S. Norf., rises in two headstreams, one in the Norf. fens at North Lopham, 4 N.W. of Diss, near the source of the Waveney, the other a few miles to the south, in Suffolk, and flows in a westerly direction, as the boundary between the two counties, past Thetford (where it is joined by the Thet) and Brandon to the Great Ouse (q.v.) at Brandon Bridge. Its total length is 34 miles.

Ouse Viaduct, The, N. Sussex, between Balcombe on the north and Cuckfield on the south, carries the London, Brighton and South Coast Railway across the Ouse. It rests on thirty-seven arches, is 1,475 ft. long, and 99 ft. high.

Ouston (1), tp., pa. of and 1 S. from Stamfordham (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 517.

Ouston (2), tp., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.; ac. 643. Here is a large colliery.

Outchester, tp., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Belford (q.v.), N. Northumb.; ac. 1,055.

Outeragh, pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 3½ N.E. of Caher; ac. 1,547.

Outer Dowsing. [Dowsing, Outer.]

Outer Hebrides. [Hebrides.]

Outgate (1), ha., pa. of and 1½ E. from Leverton (q.v.), S.E. Lincs.

Outgate (2), ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Hawkshead (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Outhgill, vil., pa. of and 5 S. from Kirkby Stephen (q.v.), N.E. Westmd.

Outlands, ha., pa. of Adbaston (q.v.), W. Staffs., 3 W. of Eccleshall.

Outlane, ha., pa. of and 4 N.W. from Huddersfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Out Newton, coast tp., pa. of and 2½ N. from Easington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 676. Near the cliff is a part of the gable end of an ancient chapel, forming a landmark.

Outrath, pa., Shillelogher bar., Mid co. Kilkenny, Ir., 1½ S. of Kilkenny; ac. 2,050.

Out Rawcliffe. [Rawcliffe, Out.]

Outseats (1), tp., pa. of Hathersage (q.v.), N. Derbys., 6½ N.E. of Tideswell; ac. 5,001.

Outseats (2), ha., pa. of and 1 E. from Alfreton (q.v.), S. Derbys.

Out Skerries. [Housie Skerries.]

Outwell (1) and (2), pa. and vil., principally in

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ouseburn, Great, pa.	Cattal (3½)	198	532
Ouseburn, Great, tp.	Cattal (3½)	198	481
Ouseburn, Little, pa.	Cattal (3)	198	379
Ouseburn, Little, tp.	Cattal (3)	198	218
Ousefleet	Goole (7)	173	243
Ouse, Little (1)	Littleport (4½) [(12)	76	924
Ouston (1)	Newcastle-u.-Tyne	271	16

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ouston (2)	Pelaw (2)	265	253
Outchester	Belford (2½)	323	90
Outeragh	Caher (3½)	124	161
Out Newton	Patrington (4)	212	42
Outrath	Kilkenny (1½)	81	291
Outseats (1)	Hassop (7)	154	186
Outwell	Wisbech (6)	94	1253

W. Norf., extending into Cambs., the Nen passing through it, dividing the counties, 6 S.E. of Wisbech; ac. of Norfolk part 2,512, of Cambs. part 552; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Clement is E. Eng. Here are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are considerable.

Outwick, ha., pa. of Breamore (q.v.), S. Hants, 3 N. of Fordingbridge.

Outwood (1), eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 N. from Wakefield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (1858), in Dec. style, was restored 1888, when a south aisle and side chapel were added.

Outwood (2), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Nutfield, Horley, Burstow, and Bletchingley (q.v.), S.E. Surrey, 5 S.E. of Redhill. The church of St. John the Baptist (1869) is in E. Eng. style. There is a Baptist chapel.

Ousel, or Ousel, river, E. Bucks., rises near Ivinghoe, and runs 30 miles N.N.W. beside the Grand Junction Canal, past Leighton Buzzard and Fenny Stratford, to Newport Pagnell, where it joins the Ouse (q.v.). For some miles during the lower part of its course it forms the boundary between Bucks. and Beds.

Ovenden, eccl. pa., tp., and large vil., pa. and bor. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 S.W. of Bradford; ac. 5,350. The church of St. George the Martyr, Lee Mount (1877), is in E. Eng. style. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Methodist New Connexion chapels. The charities yield about £55. There are many extensive woollen and cotton mills.

Ovens, vil., pa. of Athnowen (q.v.), Mid co. Cork., Ir., about 9 S.W. from Cork, on the main road to Killarney.

Over, for names to which this word is prefixed, not found here, see the principal word. Thus, OVER DARWEN will be found under DARWEN, OVER.

Over (1), pa., tp., and to. on the Weaver, Mid Chesh., 10 N. of Nantwich; ac. of pa. 4,700, of tp. 4,527. The to., called in ancient records "the borough of Over," used to be administered by a mayor, but no such official has been elected since the passing of the Unreformed Corporations Act of 1883, and the silver mace is now in private ownership. In former days O. was also a mkt. to., but the market-house (built 1840) has been converted into a national school. The Perp. church of St. Chad, standing in a valley, was rebuilt 1543 by Hugh Starkey, usher to Henry VIII., whose altar-tomb, with effigy in brass, is in the chancel. Christ Church, in High Street, originally erected 1844, was taken down in 1880, on account of the subsidence of the land, and a new church built on the same site two years later. St. John the Evangelist's is an eccl. pa., with the church (built 1863) in Gothic style, as a memorial to Lady Sarah (Hay), wife of the late Lord Delamere (d. 1859). There are Congregational, Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The salt trade forms the chief industry, but boat-building is also carried on. Cattle and sheep fairs are held in May and September. Woodford Hall is now a farmhouse. O. was one of the appanages of the Earldom of Chester till 1270, when it was transferred to the Abbey of Darnhall.

Over (2), pa. and vil., W. Cambs., on the Hunts. border, 5 E. of St. Ives; ac. 3,565; soil strong clay, resting on gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is principally Dec. The chancel is Perp., but retains an E. Eng. chancel arch, of which, however, the columns have been cut away in order to insert the rood-screen, a good Perp. work of seven divisions, with a groined loft above. Both nave and chancel have high-pitched Dec. roofs, and the nave and aisles are embattled. The south aisle exhibits on the exterior some exceedingly fine and bold gurgoyles. The south porch is a highly-enriched composition of the Dec. period. Over the west doorway of the tower is a rude carving of the "Assumption of the Virgin." The whole of the north aisle has been rebuilt, and the tower and spire and the chancel have been restored. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. Lady Kirby's charity of £22 is applied towards the education of poor children and in providing gifts for the poor. A sum of about £370 yearly, derived from the town lands, is, after payment of expenses, divided into thirds, one-third going to the churchwardens for church purposes, and another to the overseers for the poor-rate account; the remaining, called "the constables' third," is applied in various ways for the benefit of the parishioners. The manor was given to the convent of Ramsey by Ednothus, Bishop of Dorchester (1034–50), and in 1619 was granted by James I. to George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

Over (3), ha., pa. of Churcham (q.v.), W. Glouc., 2 W. of Gloucester. [HIGHNAM, OVER, AND LINTON.]

Over Beck, rivulet, S.W. Cumb., has a southerly course of about 3 miles, and falls into the northern end of Wast Water.

Overbrae, eminence (701 ft.), pa. of King Edward, N.E. Abers., Sc., 5 W.N.W. of New Pitsligo.

Overbury, pa., tp., and pretty vil. south of Bredon Hill, S. Worcs., on the Glouc. border, 5½ N.E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 2,031; soil light gravelly loam, etc., overlying gravel and stone. The church of St. Faith (of various periods, from E. Norm. to Perp.) was restored 1879–80, the old oak seats, with their beautiful Perp. tracery, being worked up into new benches. The choir-stalls are of walnut, resting on oak plinths; the pulpit was constructed at some previous restoration out of the rood-screen; the font (believed to be Saxon) is enriched with sculptured figures; the staircase to the rood-loft still exists, although the doorway has been blocked up. O. Court is a picturesque seat.

Overcester, ha., pa. of Monks Kirby (q.v.), E. Warws., 4 N. of Rugby.

Overchurch, another name for Upton (q.v.), pa. and vil., Chesh.

Overcoombe, ti., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Sherborne (q.v.), N. Dors.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Outwood (1)	Lofthouse & Outwo'd	178	4954
Outwood (2)	Nutfield (2¼)	23	571
Ovenden, eccl. pa.	Ovenden	196	5079
Ovenden, tp.	Ovenden	196	13458
Over (1), pa.	Over and Wharton	168	6033

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION
Over (1), tp.	Over and Wharton	168	6835
Over (2)	Swavesey (1)	67	1005
Overbury, pa.	Bredon	167	769
Overbury, tp.	Bredon	167	417

Over Norton, tp., pa. of and ¾ N. from Chipping Norton (q.v.), N.W. Oxon; ac. 2,227. A drinking-fountain with polished marble pillars commemorates Colonel Henry Dawkins, M.P. (d. 1864), and his wife. The poor's allotments of 50 ac., awarded 1770, produce about £50 per annum for distribution. Over N. House, standing in a well-wooded park of about 90 ac., was rebuilt in Tudor style (1879).

Overpool, tp. on the Manchester Ship Canal, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Eastham (q.v.), N.W. Chesh.; ac. 451.

Oversay Island, lies off the south-west extremity of Kilchoman pa., Islay, W. Arg., Sc.

Overseal. [SEAL, NETHER AND OVER.]

Oversley, tp., pa. of Arrow (q.v.), S.W. Warws., 14 S.W. of Warwick; ac. 1,478.

Overstone, pa., Mid Northants, 5 N.E. of Northampton; ac. 1,940; soil chiefly red loam, resting on ironstone and clay. The church of St. Nicholas, in O. Park, was built 1803, in Perp. style, when the old Dec. church was demolished. O. Park, built in 1861–64, is a mansion of stone, standing on a broad gravel terrace in an undulating park of about 900 ac., enclosed by a high wall six miles in circumference. From the north-west front of the house grassy slopes descend to an ornamental lake of 23 ac.

Overstrand, pa. and vil., E. Norf., 2 S.E. of Cromer; ac. 438; soil light heath, overlying gravel and brick-earth. One church was swallowed up by the sea in the reign of Richard II., and a new church, dedicated to St. Martin, was thereupon erected, but this is now in ruins; Christ Church (1867) is in E. Eng. style. The Cromer lighthouse is situated in this pa., as are the links of the Cromer Golf Club.

OVERSTRAND CHURCH.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Over Street, ha. on the Wiley, pa. of Stapleford (q.v.), S. Wilts., about 5 N.W. of Wilton.

Overthorpe, ha., pa. of Middleton Cheney (q.v.), S. Northants, about 2 E. of Banbury. O. House is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Over Norton	Chipping Norton (1)	89	342
Overpool	Ellesmere Port (2)	190	112
Oversay Island	Oban (48)	504	9
Oversley	Alcester (1)	121	319
Overstone	Billing (3)	71	239
Overstrand	Cromer (2)	138	443
Overton (1)	Overton	56	1496
Overton (2)	Marlborough (4)	76	784

Overton (1), large pa. and vil. (formerly a mkt. to.) on the Test, N. Hants, 8 W. of Basingstoke; ac. 6,736 land and 36 water; soil part light, the rest heavy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (restored 1853) is an ancient stone building; the arcade between the nave and aisle belongs to the E. Trans. period, and there is an inscribed stone to William Savage, rector in the early part of the 15th cent. The Wesleyans and Congregationalists have chapels. There are some small charities. Of the fairs formerly held, only the July fair for lambs and sheep is continued. Southington House is a seat.

Overton (2), pa. and vil. on the Kennet, Mid Wilts., 4 W. of Marlborough; ac. 6,157; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael, rebuilt 1878 in E. Dec. style (the ancient features being retained), stands on a slight acclivity.

Overton (3), pa. and tp. on the Ouse, N.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of York; ac. of pa. 3,321, of tp. 1,312; soil variable, overlying clay. The church of St. Cuthbert (rebuilt 1855) is Perp. There is a small charity.

Overton (4), eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on a peninsula formed by the Lune and Morecambe Bay, pa. of and 4 S.W. from Lancaster (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 1,052. The church (dedication unknown), restored, is E. Norm.; there is a well-preserved Norm. doorway of three orders, with zigzag moulding, and an ancient font.

Overton (5), tp., pa. of and 2 S. by W. from Malpas (q.v.), S.W. Chesh.; ac. 736. O. Hall is an ancient mansion, formerly moated.

Overton (6), parl. bor. and pa., S.E. Flints., 5 E. by S. of Ruabon; ac. of pa. 4,577. O. belongs to the Flint. District of bors. It is situated on high ground overlooking the Dee, which passes within a mile to the west, and commands very fine views. The church of St. Mary is an ancient Gothic edifice with a square tower surmounted by a round turret; the churchyard contains some very fine yew-trees. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Castle Field marked the site of a fortress erected by Madoc ab Meredydd, Prince of Wales. Bryn-y-Bys (where the Duke of Wellington lived during part of his childhood), Gwernhaelod (in the grounds of which are the remains of a large circular camp), and Knolton Hall are seats.

Overton (7), ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Frodsham (q.v.), W. Chesh.

Overton (8), vil., pa. of Porteynon (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 14 S.W. of Swansea.

Overton (9), ha., pa. of Thornhill (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.W. of Wakefield.

Overton (10), vil., pa. of Dreghorn (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc., about 3 N.E. of Irvine.

Overton, Cold. [COLD OVERTON.]

Overton Heath, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), Mid Wilts., 4½ S.W. of Marlborough; ac. 124.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Overton (3), pa.	Shipton (1½)	193	551
Overton (3), tp.	Shipton (1½)	193	49
Overton (4), eccl. pa.	Lancaster (4)	230	598
Overton (4), tp.	Lancaster (4)	230	321
Overton (5)	Malpas (2)	177	101
Overton (6)	Overton-on-Dee	179	1136
Overton (10)	Dreghorn (½)	395	381
Overton Heath	Marlborough (4½)	76	34

Overton (or Orton) Longville, pa. and vil. on the Nen, N. Hunts., on the Northants border, 2 S.W. of Peterborough; ac. 2,353; soil gravel, resting on strong clay. The church of Holy Trinity (restored 1840 and 1890) is chiefly E. Dec. The chancel has a low side window, now blocked, recesses with stone seats on both sides, and a trefoiled piscina. The adjoining chantry (restored 1861) retains a piscina and two niches; here also is the effigy of a knight, with the chain hauberk and gorget, of about 1330, besides numerous memorials, including an elaborate mural monument covered with shields and having a tablet beneath it inscribed to Elizabeth, Countess of Shrewsbury (1629), Mary, her daughter, wife of Sir William Armyne (1674), and to Talbot Armyne (1630). Another mural monument is to Sir Charles Cope, Bart. (1781). There is also a memorial of white marble, with a graceful female figure by Chantrey, to Lady Mary Seymour (1825), and a massive altar-tomb of black marble to Charles, tenth Marquess of Huntly (1863). On the south side of the chancel arch is a squint, and on the north the rood-loft door. In the north aisle is a fresco painting of St. Christopher, in good preservation. Orton Hall is a Tudor mansion.

Overton Market. [MARKET OVERTON.]

Overton (or Orton) Waterville, pa. and vil., N. Hunts., on the Northants border, 3 W. of Peterborough; ac. 1,364; soil various, resting on gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is E. Dec. The chancel is much debased, but has a fine low side window, and near it a semicircular recess with stone seat. At the east end of each aisle is a piscina, with brackets. The font consists of an octagonal basin on a cluster of five shafts, and the pulpit is a magnificent piece of 16th-cent. Renaissance oak carving, with richly-wrought panels, exhibiting figures and foliage in high relief. In the north aisle is a brass inscribed to John de Herlyngton (d. 1408). The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There are charities yielding about £13, and the proceeds of the town and church lands, let in allotments, are applied to church and educational uses, etc.

Overton, West, tp., pa. of Overton (q.v.), Mid Wilts., 4 W. of Marlborough; ac. 4,248.

Overtown (1), ti., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Wroughton (q.v.), N. Wilts.

Overtown (2), q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of Cambusnethan (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 2 S.E. of Wishaw. The church is in E. Eng. style, and there is a Roman Catholic church and school. The vil. is inhabited chiefly by persons employed in the neighbouring ironworks.

Over Water, lake, pa. of and about 3 S. from Ireby (q.v.), W. Cumb. It covers an area of about 65 ac.

Over Worton, pa. and small vil., N. Oxon, 9 N. of Woodstock; ac. 623; soil sandy loam, overlying limestone, clay, and sand. The church of the Holy Trinity, almost rebuilt 1844, is in Dec. style.

Overy, ha. on the eastern bank of the Thame, pa. of Dorchester (q.v.), S. Oxon, 4 N.W. of Wallingford.

Ovesham, ha., pa. of Matching (q.v.), W. Essex, about 4 E. of Harlow.

Oving (1), pa. and vil. on an eminence, Mid Bucks., 6 N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 971; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The church of All Saints, principally E. Eng. (restored 1867), has two piscinæ, and remains of the rood-stairs. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. O. House, standing in a commanding situation overlooking the Vale of Aylesbury, contains some beautiful wood-carving and richly-decorated ceilings designed by Inigo Jones.

Oving (2), pa. and vil., W. Sussex, 3 E. of Chichester; ac. 2,989; soil light, overlying clay and marl. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1881) is E. Eng. There are some small charities and six houses for the poor. O. Manor House is a seat.

Ovingdean, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 3½ E. of Brighton; ac. 1,618; soil chalky. The church, dedication unknown (restored 1867), is chiefly E. Eng.; the tower-arch is of chalk, and dates from about 1230; the stained windows are chiefly memorials to the Beard and Kemp families.

Ovingham, pa., tp., and vil. on the north bank of the Tyne and the Dur. border, S. Northumb., 11 W. of Newcastle-upon-Tyne; ac. of pa. 14,781, of tp. 555; soil sandy, resting on gravel. The church of St. Mary, chiefly E. Eng., has a low tower of massive masonry, possibly Saxon. The transepts, which have west aisles, exhibit some interesting corbels, carved with the nail-head ornament; and in the south transept is a piscina. The chancel retains two sedilia of early date, with trefoil heads; here also are two ancient altar-stones, and several inscribed floor-slabs. The church was restored 1857, when a destroyed north aisle was rebuilt and a blocked arcade reopened. In the churchyard are the graves of Thomas Bewick, the celebrated wood-engraver (d. 1828), his wife, and his brother John, also an engraver (d. 1795). The ancient rectory-house (once forming part of a convent of Austin Canons, founded by one of the Umphravilles of Prudhoe, as a cell to the priory of Hexham) still shows some remains of early date, including a Dec. window of two trefoiled lights. The kitchen retains a noble fireplace, and in one of the upper rooms is a richly-moulded cornice, while over the south door is the date 1692 and the letters "I. A." for one of the Addison family. Near the steps leading from the rectory garden to the river are inscribed stones, marking the height of the flood on November 17, 1771, and December 31, 1815. In the vil. is a modern cross, marking the site of the old toll-booth; the head is copied from a former cross.

Ovington (1), pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 8 S.E. of Swaffham; ac. 1,497; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Evangelist, mainly Dec., has a fine Norm. door, and in the chancel is a piscina; there are some traces remaining of the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Overton Longville	Peterborough (2)	76	266
Overton Waterville	Peterborough (3)	76	285
Overton, West	Marlborough (4)	76	606
Overtown (2), q.s. pa.	Overtown	384	2180
Overtown (2), vil.	Overtown	384	1385
Over Worton	Grateley (2)	73	89

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oving (1)	Winslow (4½)	54	364
Oving (2)	Drayton (1)	68	1973
Ovingdean	Brighton (4)	51	161
Ovingham, pa.	Prudhoe	279	9479
Ovingham, tp.	Prudhoe	279	328
Ovington (1)	Watton (1½)	103	280

old dedication crosses, in the shape of patches of plaster on the outer walls. The Primitive Methodists have a place of worship.

Ovington (2), pa. and vil. in a valley on the Itchen, S. Hants, 5½ N.E. of Winchester; ac. 1,300; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt on a new site (1866) adjoining the old one, is in Dec. style, and retains a Norm. font. O. Park is a seat.

Ovington (3), pa. on the Stour, N.W. Essex, 7 E. of Haverhill; ac. 671; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.

Ovington (4), tp. and vil. on the north bank of the Tyne, pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 8½ E. of Hexham; ac. 1,106.

Ovington (5), tp., pa. of Gilling, near Richmond (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., on the Dur. border, 12 N.W. of Richmond; ac. 540.

Ovoca (1), vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Castlemacadam (q.v.), S. co. Wick., Ir., 5 S.W. of Arklow. The places of worship are the Protestant church, a Catholic church, and one for Methodists. This place is within the Vale of O., famous for "the Meeting of the Waters," celebrated by Thomas Moore (1779) in his Irish Melodies. This valley is rich in natural beauty and sylvan scenery, the celebrated "meeting of waters" being the confluence of the rivers Avonbeg and the Avonmore, the combined stream thence, under the name of Ovoca, flowing for 4 miles of its course between densely-wooded banks, about a quarter of a mile apart, exhibiting masses of foliage, interspersed with seats and backed by mountains, covered with timber or heath, the whole combination of water, wood, hill and dale presenting scenery of exquisite beauty. The river Ovoca, 4 miles below this vil., receives the Aughrim, and this forms the "second" meeting of the waters at a point called Woodenbridge, and thence flowing to the sea. The romantic scenery around, especially during the summer months, attracts numerous visitors, for whom there are several good hotels. The neighbouring mountains abound with mineral ores, but are little worked.

VALE OF OVOCA.

Ovoca (2), river. [OVOCA (1).]

Owby. [OBY.]

Owey, stream, E. co. Kerry, Ir. It rises in Glanacmy bar., and, after a short north-east course, falls into the Feale about 2 S.W. of Abbeyfeale.

Owel, Lough, Cookaree bar., Mid co. Wstm., Ir., about 3 N.W. of Mullingar.

Owen, a prefix common in Irish place-names, signifying "running water." AWIN, AVEN, and AVON are other forms of the same word. [AWINBANNA.]

Owenarrea, small stream, rising in the hills in the north of Burrishoole bar., W. co. Mayo, Ir., falling into Clew Bay a little east of Molrenny.

Owenass, stream, N.W. Q. Co., Ir., rises in an eastern spur of the Slieve Bloom Mountains, and, after a north-east course of about 11 miles, falls into the Barrow, 1½ S. of Mountmellick.

Owenavarragh, another form of Awinbarra (q.v.).

Owenbeg (1), stream, Trughanacmy bar., N.E. co. Kerry, Ir., runs 7 E.N.E. and N.N.E., joining the Feale about 3 S.S.W. of Abbeyfeale.

Owenbeg (2), stream, Leyny bar., Mid co. Sligo, Ir., rises 2¼ E. by N. of the north extremity of Lough Easky, and runs 12 miles past Coolaney to the Owenmore, which it joins nearly 2 miles above Collooney. The general direction of its course is almost due east.

Owenbeg (3), stream, Mid co. Londy., Ir., rises in the south-west of the co., flows about 4 N.E., and falls into the Roe, near Dungiven.

Owencarrow, stream, Kilmacrenan bar., N. co. Don., Ir. It flows N.E. out of Lough Beagh, and falls into Glen Lough.

Owenduff (1), pa. on a stream of the same name, Shelburne bar., S.W. co. Wex., Ir., 6½ S.W. of Taghmon; ac. 7,980.

Owenduff (2), stream, S.W. co. Wex., Ir. It rises in Bantry bar., and has a south-east course of about 8 miles to Bannow Bay.

Owenduff (3), stream, N.W. co. Mayo, Ir. It rises in the mountains in the south-east of Erris bar., and flows about 12 N.W. to Tullaghan Bay.

Owenea, stream, W. co. Don., Ir. It rises in Boylagh bar., and, after a westerly course of about 14 miles, falls into Loughros More Bay, 1 N. of Ardara.

Owengarriff, stream, Magunihy bar., E. co. Kerry, Ir. It rises on Mangerton Mountain, and flows about 5 N. to the Middle Lake of Killarney.

Owenglen, stream, W. co. Galway, Ir. It rises at the foot of Twelve Pins, and flows 9 W. to Ardbear Bay, near Clifden.

Owen Hill (1,762 ft.), E. Carbery bar., S.W. co. Cork, Ir., about 4 W. of Dunmanway.

Owenkillew, river, N. co. Tyr., Ir. It rises in Upper Dungannon bar., and flows about 20 W., falling into the Strule at Newtonstewart.

Owenmore (1), stream, N.E. co. Leit., Ir., is formed by the junction of two headstreams, and flows W. by S. past Manor Hamilton, joining the

PLACE.	Nearest Railly. Stn., and dist. in (1) place, (2) to Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
[illegible]	Bubon Abbas (2½)	80
[illegible]	Clare (2)	82
[illegible]	Foulkes (1½)	279

PLACE.	Nearest Railly. Stn., and dist. in (1) place, (2) to Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Ovington (5)	Piercebridge (2½)	238
Owenduff (1)	New Ross (8)	102

		134
		133
		308

		131
		1302

Bonet about 2 miles (in a direct line) from the point of union.

Owenmore (2), headstream of the Shannon, Tullyhaw bar., N.W. co. Cav., Ir., rises in several sources about 7 W.S.W. of Swanlinbar, and runs N.W. between Cuilcagh and Slieve-na-Killa.

Owenmore (3), river, E. co. Sligo, Ir., rises about 5 N. of Ballaghaderreen, and winds 25 N. through or between the bars. of Coolavin, Corran, Leyny, and Tirerrill to the head of Ballysadare Bay.

Owenmore (4), stream, Murrisk bar., S.W. co. Mayo, Ir., runs 9 E.S.E., joining the Erriff 6½ miles from the head of Killary harbour.

Owenmore (5), stream, Erris bar., N.W. co. Mayo, Ir., runs 14 W. to the head of Tullaghan Bay.

Owennacurra, stream, S.E. co. Cork, Ir., rises in the north of Barrymore bar., through which it flows in a S.E. direction to the eastern branch of Cork Harbour.

Owenogarney, river, Lower Tulla and Lower Bunratty bars., S.E. co. Clare, Ir., runs about 12 S.S.W., passing Sixmilebridge. At Bunratty, where it enters the Shannon, it is crossed by a handsome bridge. Bunratty Castle stands beside the river.

Owenreagh, stream, N. co. Tyr., Ir. It rises in East Omagh bar., and, after a N.W. course of about 12 miles, falls into the Owenkillew 2 E. of Gortin.

Owenrigh, stream, Mid co. Londy., Ir. It rises in Keenagh bar., and flows about 5 N. to the Roe, near Dungiven.

Owentocker, stream, W. co. Don., Ir. It rises in Banagh bar., and flows about 8 N.W. to Loughros Beg Bay, near Ardara.

Owenwee, stream, Boylagh bar., W. co. Don., Ir., flows 4½ S.W. to the Gweebara river, which it joins 6½ E.S.E. of Dunglow. Its valley, which lies between the Derryveagh and Glendowan ranges, is extremely picturesque.

Ower (1), ha., pa. of Eling (q.v.), S. Hants, 3 S.W. of Romsey.

Ower (2), ti., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Fawley (q.v.), S. Hants.

Ower (3), pl., pa. of Killursa (q.v.), N. co. Galway, Ir., 3 miles from Headford.

Owermoigne, pa. and vil., S. Dors., 7 S.E. by E. of Dorchester; ac. 4,046; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael was rebuilt 1883 (except the tower), in Gothic style. Jones's charity yields about £40 per annum.

Owers, sandbank in the English Channel, off the Sussex coast, 6 E.S.E. of Selsey Bill. Its position is indicated by a revolving light, first put up 1788.

Ower Shoal, ridge, 5 miles long, in the North Sea, outside Leman Sand, off the Norfolk coast, 20 N.E. of Cromer.

Owersby, North, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 6 N.W. of Market Rasen; ac. 3,391; soil and subsoil clay and sand. The church of St. Martin is in Norm. style. On taking down the old pulpit in 1888, when the church was being partially restored, a paper was found in the sounding-board containing a record of the rebuilding of the church in 1763 by the Right Hon. Lord Monson, of Boston, near Lincoln. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Free Methodist chapel.

Owersby, South, pa., Mid Lincs., 5½ N.W. of Market Rasen; ac. 1,393; soil and subsoil clay.

Owey Island, pa. of Templecrone (q.v.), N.W. co. Don., Ir., about 10 S.W. of Bloody Foreland.

Owlerton, eccl. pa. in the valley of the Don, pa. of and 2 N.W. from Sheffield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. John the Baptist (1874) is in Gothic style. There are tilts, forges, and steel works, with a paper mill and stone quarries.

Owlpen, pa., Mid Gloucs., 15½ S. of Gloucester; ac. 720; soil sandy loam, overlying gravel. The church of the Holy Cross (rebuilt 1828) is in E. Eng. style. O. Park is a seat.

Owlshaw, ha., pa. of Gisburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 10 S. of Settle.

Owlsmoor, ha., pa. of Sandhurst (q.v.), E. Berks., 3 S.E. from Crowthorne.

Owlswick, ha., pa. of Monks Risborough (q.v.), Mid Bucks., 2 N.W. of Princes Risborough. A school chapel was erected in 1866.

Owmby (1), pa. and vil., N. Lincs., 11 N. of Lincoln; ac. 1,600; soil sand, loam, and clay, overlying clay and sandstone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Norm. The vil. is 2 E. of Ermine Street; many Roman coins have been found here, some being of the reign of Constantine (306–337).

Owmby (2), ha., pa. of Searby (q.v.), N. Lincs., 4 N.W. of Caistor.

Owney and Arra, bar., W. co. Tip., Ir.; ac. 85,494. It is bounded on the east by Lower and Upper Ormond and Upper Kilnamanagh bars., on the south by co. Limerick, on the west by the Shannon, and on the north by Lough Derg.

Owneybeg, bar., N.E. co. Lim., Ir.; ac. 27,211. It is bounded on the north by co. Tipperary, on the east by Coonagh bar., and on the west by Clanwilliam bar., these two bars. together forming its southern boundary.

Owning, pa., Iverk bar., S.W. co. Kilk., Ir., 4½ N. of Carrick-on-Suir; ac. 4,030. Here are the ruins of an old friary, but there is no record of it in history. In the townland of Skough in this pa. there is a burial-ground with three remarkable crosses.

Owsden. [OUSDEN.]

Owslebury, pa. and pleasant vil., S. Hants, 5 S. by E. of Winchester; ac. 5,391 land and 22 water; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Andrew is a small Trans. building of flint and rubble. The Primitive Methodists have a place of worship in the pa. Marwell Hall was erected about 1816, on the site of an ancient edifice, the residence of the Seymours and afterwards of the Dacre family. Connected with the old hall there is a tradition of the untimely death of a young

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Owermoigne	Dorchester (7)	136	386
Owersby, North	Holton (2)	150	390
Owersby, South	Holton (2)	150	71
Owey Island	Glenties (30)	186	139
Owlerton	Sheffield (2)	158	3740
Owlpen	Frocester	129	108

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Owmby (1)	Market Rasen (6)	145	231
Owney and Arra	.....	.....	11725
Owneybeg	.....	.....	4513
Owning	Carrick-on-Suir (4½)	149	591
Owslebury	Shawf'd&Twyf'd (3½	68	764

lady, who, having withdrawn herself from her companions in the course of some pastime or amusement, and to elude their search, took refuge in a retired part of the mansion, in an old oak chest, which closed upon her with a secret spring; although search was made, her remains were not discovered till many years afterwards. Longwood House is also a seat.

Owsthorpe, tp., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Pocklington (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 330. Traces exist of a moated mansion.

Owston (1), pa., tp., and pleasant vil. on the Trent, N.W. Lincs., 9 N. of Gainsborough; ac. of pa. 8,003, of tp. 5,126; soil clay and warp, overlying peat. The church of St. Martin is chiefly E. Eng., the oldest portion being 12th cent. In 1790 the nave roof was renewed, and shortly afterwards those of the aisles, the clerestory being, in the course of these alterations, destroyed. The church was the ancient burial-place of the Sheffield family, and there were here in 1530 five tombs, which John, Earl of Mulgrave, in the reign of Charles II., is said to have removed to the church of Burton-on-Stather. In the chancel, among other more modern inscribed slabs, is a large fractured one with a deeply-incised inscription in Old English characters to Richard Becbanke, vicar (d. 1458). The approach to the church is through a beautiful stone arch and an avenue of elms, sycamores, and chestnuts. There is a Wesleyan chapel. A cemetery of 1½ ac., with a mortuary chapel, was formed 1881. There are endowed almshouses for six poor women. The poor's land produces £42 yearly for fuel, and there are other charities. Various Roman remains have been found in the neighbourhood.

Owston (2), pa., tp., and vil., W.R. Yorks., 5 N. of Doncaster; ac. of pa. 3,509, of tp. 2,577; soil sand, clay, and limestone. The church of All Saints, E. Eng. and Perp., retains a pre-Reformation stone altar and some remains of a canopied tomb of the 14th cent., and there are handsome monuments, including one by Chantrey, besides an interesting brass; there is an Easter sepulchre and a carved oak screen; the chancel was restored 1872–73 by Sir Gilbert Scott. O. Park is a mansion of some antiquity, situated in a park of 200 ac.

Owston (3) (formerly Olveston, Osulveston, Wolveston, and Ouston), pa. and vil., E. Leics., 8 S. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 2,460; soil good loam, subsoil chiefly blue clay. The church of St. Andrew dates from the 11th cent. Nothing now remains of the priory of Austin canons founded here in the 12th cent. by Robert Grimbald, and dedicated to St. Andrew and All Saints.

Owston Ferry, or West Ferry, vil. pleasantly situated on the west bank of the Trent (here crossed by ferry-boats), pa. of Owston (q.v.), N.W. Lincs., about 7 N. of Gainsborough. The principal part of the land here has been reclaimed from the river. The tidal bore rises to a great height. In the market-place are the remains of an ancient stone cross. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel, and a public hall with reading-room was built 1852.

Owstwick, tp., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Roos (q.v.), E.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,336.

Owthorne, coast pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 18 E. of Hull; ac. of pa. 4,430, of tp. 1,740. The ancient church of St. Peter, with a portion of the churchyard, was destroyed on the night of February 16th, 1816, during a storm, a large portion of the church being washed down the cliffs and many coffins strewn upon the shore; and in 1844 the parsonage house and two cottages shared the same fate. The existing church of St. Peter, at Rimswell (q.v.), nearly 2 miles from the sea, was built 1802, and restored 1884.

Owthorpe, pa. and vil. on the Grantham Canal, S. Notts., 9 S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 1,602; soil strong clay, overlying clay and limestone. The church of St. Margaret (restored, occupying the site of a larger edifice, of which a part of the north wall alone remains) contains a monument to Col. John Hutchinson, one of the Regicides, brought hither for burial from Sandown Castle, Kent, where he died (1663), after eleven months' imprisonment.

Owyane, stream, S.W. co. Cork, Ir. It rises in the hills in the south of West Muskerry bar., and flows for about 11 S.W. through Bantry bar. to Bantry Bay.

Oxborough, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 7½ S.W. of Swaffham; ac. 2,518; soil loam and some clay, with fen land, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in Gothic style; in the church is an altar-tomb, under a marble Corinthian canopy, to Sir Henry Bedingfeld, knight-marshal and constable of the Tower under Queen Mary (d. 1583). The Catholic chapel of Our Lady and St. Margaret dates from 1835. There are charities to the amount of £130. O. was a Roman station, and is mentioned in Domesday survey. O. Hall is a castellated mansion of the 15th cent., entirely surrounded by a moat filled with water; there are a few good paintings and some curious tapestry.

Oxbridge, ha., pa. of Poorstock (q.v.), S.W. Dors., about 2 N. of Bridport.

Oxcar, rock in the Firth of Forth, 3½ S.W. of Burntisland. O. is situated about 1 E.S.E. of Inchcolm. It has a lighthouse (erected 1886), with a fixed light visible 13 miles.

Oxcliffe, ha., pa. of and about 2½ W.S.W. from Lancaster (q.v.), N. Lancs. [HEATON-WITH-OXCLIFFE.]

Oxcombe, pa., E. Lincs., 8 S. of Louth; ac. 1,021; soil chalk and gravel, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints is in E. Dec. style.

Oxcroft, ha., pa. of Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 4 E. of Chesterfield.

Oxenbourn, ti., pa. of and 1 S.E. from East Meon (q.v.), E. Hants.

Oxendale, valley, W. Wstmd., branching off from Great Langdale.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Owsthorpe	Pocklington (1½)	198	17
Owston (1), pa.	Haxey&Hepworth(3	153	1988
Owston (1), tp.	Haxey&Hepworth(3	153	1294
Owston (2), pa.	Carcroft (1)	160	461
Owston (2), tp.	Carcroft (1)	160	356
Owston (3)	Tilton (1)	97	136
Owstwick	Rye Hill (6)	206	89
Owthorne, pa.	Withernsea (½)	216	894
Owthorne, tp.	Withernsea (½)	216	82
Owthorpe	Widmerpool (2½)!	116	105
Oxborough	Stoke Ferry (3½)	92	222
Oxcombe	Horncastle (6)	130	33

Oxendon, Great, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 2½ S.E. of Market Harborough; ac. 1,300; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Helen, on the brow of a hill, is Dec. There is a Non-conformist chapel. O. Hall is a seat.

Oxendon, Little, ha., pa. of Great Oxendon (q.v.), S. Northants, 2 S.W. of Market Harborough. According to tradition, the vil. was burnt at the time of the battle of Naseby (1645). Ancient coins and pottery have been found.

Oxen End, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Little Bardfield (q.v.), N.W. Essex.

Oxenfell, eminence, N.W. Lancs., 4 N.E. of Coniston.

Oxenfoord Castle, seat near the Tyne, pa. of Cranston (q.v.), N.E. Edins., Sc., about 4 S.E. of Dalkeith. It belongs to the Earl of Stair, and contains a fine library and a good collection of pictures.

Oxenhall, pa. on a tributary of the Leadon, N.W. Gloucs., 9 N.W. of Gloucester; ac. 1,816; soil rich sandy loam, in some places inclining to clay; subsoil sand, rock, ironstone, and coal. The church of St. Anne was rebuilt (except the tower and spire) 1868, in Gothic style. The Furnace is a seat.

Oxenhope, eccl. pa. and to., pa. of and 10 W. by N. from Bradford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., extending to the Lancs. border. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (1849) is in E. Norm. style. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The worsted manufacture is carried on, and there are stone quarries.

Oxenton, pa. and vil., N. Gloucs., 4½ E. by S. of Tewkesbury; ac. 1,090; soil clay, subsoil clay and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist is E. Eng.

Oxenwood, ha., pa. of Shalbourn (q.v.), S. Berks., on the Wilts. border, about 4 S.S.W. of Hungerford.

Oxford, parl. (returning one member), mun., and co. bor., co. and mkt. to. (W. & S.), and head of U. and petty sess. div., at the confluence of and lying between the Isis and the Cherwell, Oxon, 27 N.W. of Reading; ac. 4,714. The foundation of the city has been assigned to the year 727, when St. Frideswide established a nunnery where Christ Church now stands; but its history may more properly be dated from 912, when Edward the Elder took possession of it, and made it a fortified city. In 1009 O. was burnt by the Danes, and in 1013 submitted to Sweyn. Edmund Ironside met his death here in 1017, owing to the treachery of Eadric; and in 1018, and on several subsequent occasions, it was the scene of a gemot summoned by Canute. In 1142 the Empress Maude was besieged in the castle by King Stephen, and had to flee to Wallingford Castle. Richard I. and John were both born in Beaumont Palace, and in the latter's reign (1213) Parliament assembled at O. The "Mad Parliament," in 1258, here framed the code called "The Provisions of Oxford." On October 16, 1555, Bishops Ridley and Latimer suffered martyrdom, and in the following year Archbishop Cranmer was burnt at the same stake. Parliament again sat here in 1625, in the reign of Charles I., whose cause the city espoused, only surrendering to the Parliamentary forces by the King's order (1646). In 1680–81 (temp. Charles II.) Parliament was once more convened at O. James II. visited the city in 1687 to make his abortive attempt to force a Roman Catholic president on Magdalen College. O. has suffered severely from plague and fire. In 1577, during "The Black Assize," over 300 persons, including the Lord Chief Baron and the High Sheriff, died of the pestilence; and in 1644 about 320 houses were burnt to the ground.

The see of Oxford was constituted, 1542, out of the diocese of Lincoln by Henry VIII. Christ Church Cathedral, the smallest in England, was originally the church of St. Frideswide's Priory, which was surrendered to Cardinal Wolsey in 1522 for the purposes of his new college, styled Cardinal College. Intending to build a new and larger chapel on the north side of the quadrangle, and to use the ancient church for minor services and divinity exercises, he destroyed the west front and four out of the eight bays of the nave, lowered the roofs, and made various other alterations. After his fall (1529) Henry VIII. refounded the college (1532), and gave it his own name, but a few years later suppressed it, and in 1546 reconstituted the whole foundation under its present title. He then removed the new see of O. from Osney Abbey, in the western suburbs of the present city, to St. Frideswide's, styling the latter the Cathedral Church of Christ in O. The church, however, continued to be, as it still is, the college chapel, and the foundation comprises, in addition to a dean and chapter, a large body of students. The architecture is predominantly Late Norm. and Trans. The east end was rebuilt by Sir Gilbert Scott (1871), who substituted for the window inserted in the Dec. period a large wheel window, with two round-headed ones below. Much, too, has been done at the west end, and one of the bays demolished by Wolsey has been replaced. The interior also has been extensively restored. The Jacobean organ-screen, now enclosing the greater part of the nave, is interesting from its curious mixture of Gothic and Italian detail; the organ is one of Father Schmidt's. The reredos was designed by Bodley (1881), and the carved throne of Italian walnut (1876) commemorates Bishop Samuel Wilberforce. Fragments of the so-called shrine of St. Frideswide —which is not, however, earlier than the 14th cent.—eked out with new stone have been pieced together, forming a small open shrine of three arches on a base surrounded with a band of quatrefoiled panelling; it is surmounted by a Late Perp. "watching gallery." The south choir aisle contains the altar-tomb and canopy of Robert King, last Abbot of Osney, and first Bishop of the diocese. Between the Lady Chapel and the Latin (or St. Frideswide's) Chapel, where service in Latin is read at the beginning of Term, are the tombs of Alexander de Sutton, Prior of St. Frideswide's (1294–1316); Lady Elizabeth Montacute (d. 1355), who gave Christ Church Meadow to the convent, and is believed to have built the Latin Chapel; and Sir George Nowers (d. 1425), one of the Black

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oxendon, Great	Clipston & Oxendon	80	213
Oxenhall	Newent (1)	124	218
Oxenhope, eccl. pa.	Oxenhope	217	2995
Oxenhope, to.	Oxenhope	217	2475

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oxenton	Ashchurch (2)	169	120
Oxford, parl. bor.	Oxford	63	45742
Oxford, mun. bor.	Oxford	63	45472
Oxford, co. bor.	Oxford	63	45472

Prince's companions. Among others buried in the cathedral are Dean Aldrich (1710), Bishop Berkeley (1753), and Dr. Pusey (1882). The bells, five of which were brought from Osney Abbey, were removed in 1870, on account of the unsafe condition of the belfry, and have been re-hung in the campanile built in 1876–78 over the staircase of the Hall. Osney Abbey (founded by Robert d'Oilly 1129 for Austin canons) was not the only monastery that flourished at O. Rewley Abbey was established 1281 by Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, for Cistercian monks; and several orders of friars had houses in the city.

Of the pa. churches of O., the most noteworthy is that of St. Mary the Virgin, of which the spire forms one of the principal ornaments of the High Street. The tower and spire are Dec., the body of the church Perp. The exterior was restored by Sir Gilbert Scott; the restoration of the pinnacles, canopies, and statues clustering around the base of the spire was begun in 1892. At the east end of the chancel is the grave of Amy Robsart, wife of Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester, who met her death at Cumnor Hall (September 8, 1560). Dr. Radcliffe also, founder of the Radcliffe Library, is buried in the church. In St. Mary's the University sermons are preached; here, too, the Bampton Lectures are delivered. All Saints' Church, High Street, a rectangular structure of the Corinthian order, was built on the site of the old church by Dean Aldrich (1706–8). St. Aldate's, or St. Old's—named after a 5th-cent. British saint, and facing Christ Church College—is an ancient structure embodying E. Norm. work. St. Giles's, at the north end of St. Ebbe's Street, is Trans. and E. Eng. St. John the Baptist's (Dec. and Perp.) originally belonged to Reading Abbey, the monks of which gave it (1265) to Walter de Merton, founder of Merton College, and it is still a collegiate as well as parochial church. In the ante-chapel are monuments to Sir Thomas Bodley (d. 1613), founder of the Bodleian Library, and Anthony à Wood, the antiquary (d. 1695). The church of St. Mary Magdalen, in the street of that name, is mostly Dec., and has been extensively restored. In the "Martyrs' Aisle" is preserved the door of the cell in which Ridley, Latimer, and Cranmer were imprisoned. With St. Peter's-in-the-East, in Queen's Lane, are incorporated portions of the original Norm. church, including a very ancient crypt. The church of St. Thomas the Martyr, at the west end of the city, a mixture of E. Eng., Dec., and Perp., was founded 1141 by the canons of Osney; the porch bears the arms of Robert Burton, author of the "Anatomy of Melancholy" and vicar of the pa. (d. 1639). There are besides several eccl. pa. churches, a large Roman Catholic church in Trans. style, and many Nonconformist places of worship.

Oxford.
(Photo. Charles Gillman and Co., Oxford.)

The foundation of the University is ascribed by tradition to Alfred the Great, but it cannot safely be assigned to a remoter date than 1267, when Walter de Merton purchased a site for the college named after him. The University was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth (1571), but its constitution has been greatly altered and its powers much extended by the Oxford University Act of 1854, and by further statutes of 1856, 1857, and 1877. It is represented in Parliament by two members. Of the University buildings, the first to be noticed is the Sheldonian Theatre, in Broad Street, erected by Sir Christopher Wren (1644–49) at the charges of Archbishop Sheldon. Here, in June, "Commemoration" is held, when prize compositions are recited and honorary degrees conferred on distinguished personages. The Examination Schools, at the east end of the High Street, designed by Mr. T. G. Jackson, A.R.A., in a kind of Italianised Gothic style, form three sides of a square; adjoining the east end is a building (1887–88) for the Delegacy of Unattached Students, and the Oxford Local Examination Board. The Bodleian Library (opened 1602) ranks in extent and importance next to the British Museum. Close by is the Divinity School, a magnificent Perp. chamber (1445–80) with a fine groined roof, where Parliament sat in 1625. In the Convocation House (1639), approached from the west end of the Divinity School, the meetings of Convocation are held, and degrees conferred. The Radcliffe Camera (1737–49), designed by James Gibbs, is a circular building in the Classical style, surmounted by a lofty dome with a cupola, and is now used as the general reading-room of the Bodleian; it formerly housed the library named after Dr. John Radcliffe (d. 1714), removed to the University Museum. This structure (1855–60), in the Venetian Gothic style, stands in "The Parks," on the north side of the city, and was designed to bring under one roof the various collections of objects illustrating the natural sciences, together with a library, laboratories, lecture-rooms, etc. The Clarendon Laboratory was added 1869–70, and a further addition was made 1891–92 for the departments of physiology and human anatomy. The Ashmolean Museum (1679–83), west of the Sheldonian Theatre, contains the MSS., antiquities, and curiosities presented to the University (1679) by Elias Ashmole, who inherited the nucleus of the collection from the younger Tradescant. To the University Observatory, in the New Parks, built 1873–74 for the Savilian Professor, a library and lecture-room have since been added. The Radcliffe Observatory, another of Dr. Radcliffe's gifts, situated in grounds north of the Radcliffe Infirmary, was opened 1775. At the junction of St. Giles' and Beaumont Streets are the Taylor Institution and University Galleries (1841–49), forming a stately pile of the Grecian Ionic order. The Taylor Institution, in the east wing, was founded by Sir Robert Taylor (d. 1788) to promote the teaching of European languages; the Galleries were enlarged 1888–89, and in 1894 new buildings were erected in the rear for the reception of objects from the Ashmolean Museum, etc. The Indian Institute (1882–83, enlarged 1892), at the corner of Holywell and Broad Streets, was established for the advancement of Indian studies. The University Printing Office, Walton Street, dates from 1830; the Clarendon Building, Broad Street (built 1711–13 out of the profits of Lord Clarendon's "History of the Rebellion"), served as the University Press until 1830, and now accommodates the University Registrar and University Chest, etc.

The colleges, twenty-one in number, and most of them quadrangular in form, are as follows: University, traditionally said to have been founded by Alfred the Great in 872, though the first statutes are dated 1280; Balliol, founded (by intention) between 1263 and 1269 by John de Balliol, of Barnard Castle, but actually by Devorgilla, his widow, in 1282; Merton, originally located at Malden, Surrey, in 1264, by Walter de Merton, Bishop of Rochester and Lord Chancellor of England, and transferred to Oxford ten years later; Exeter, founded as Stapledon Hall in 1314 by Walter de Stapledon, Bishop of Exeter, and erected into a college in 1566; Oriel, incorporated by Edward II. in 1326; Queen's (1340), named after Philippa, Queen of Edward III.; New, founded 1380 by William of Wykeham; Lincoln (1427), originated by Richard Flemyng, Bishop of Lincoln; All Souls', established by Henry VI. in 1438, with the co-operation of Archbishop Chichele; Magdalen, founded 1458 by Wm. of Waynflete, Bishop of Winchester; Brasenose (1509), named after Brasenose Hall, and due to Wm. Smyth, Bishop of Lincoln, and Sir Richard Sutton; Corpus Christi (1516–17), the foundation of Richard Fox, Bishop of Winchester and Lord Privy Seal; Christ Church, the largest in the University; Trinity, founded towards the close of the 13th cent. by the Benedictines of Durham, and re-founded after the Dissolution of the Monasteries by Sir Thomas Pope; St. John's, established 1557 by Sir Thomas White; Jesus, to which a charter was granted by Queen Elizabeth in 1571; Wadham (1610), named after Nicholas Wadham and Dorothy his widow; Pembroke (1624), which traces its origin to the Earl of Pembroke, at that time Chancellor of the University; Worcester (1714), named after the co. of the founder, Sir Thomas Cookes; Hertford, founded as Hart Hall 1282, and erected into a college under its present name 1740; and Keble (1868), a memorial of the Rev. John Keble. To these must be added St. Mary Hall (1333) and St. Edmund Hall (1269), which, though not incorporated, enjoy the same privileges as the colleges. There are also three private halls—Turrell's, Grindle's, and Marcon's. The public educational establishments of O. include Wycliffe Hall (1878), St. Stephen's House (1876), and St. John's Hall (1887), mainly for divinity students; Mansfield College (1866), for Nonconformist members of the University; Manchester New College (transferred to O. 1889), for theological students, chiefly Unitarian; Somerville College (1879), Lady Margaret Hall (1879), and St. Hugh Hall (1886), for women. Besides these there are the High School for Girls (1875); the Diocesan Female Training College (1873); the Convent of the Society of the Holy and Undivided Trinity (1849); Christ Church Cathedral School (1546); Magdalen College School (1480); the City High School for Boys (1878); St. Edward's School (1863); and the City Technical Schools (1894).

The Corporation of O. ranks among the most ancient in the kingdom, and is mentioned in the Saxon Chronicles (1013). In St. Aldate's Street are the new Town Hall and Municipal Buildings (began 1893), in Tudor style, and comprising the Free Public Library and Reading Room. The new Corn Exchange (commenced 1894) is situated between George Street and Gloucester Green. The County Hall and Assize Courts (1841), in the New Road, occupying part of the site of the old Castle, are castellated; the Probate Court (1864), in the same thoroughfare, is in Gothic style. Her Majesty's Prison (1805, enlarged 1858), incorporates portions of the old castle. The Post Office (1880), a specimen of modern Gothic, is in St. Aldate's Street. Westward of Balliol College is the Martyrs' Memorial (1841), designed by Sir Gilbert Scott and Mr. Moffat on the model of the Eleanor Cross at Waltham Cross, to commemorate the sufferings of Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer. The scene of their martyrdom is marked by an iron cross at the top of Broad Street. There are handsome club-houses and baths, and some picturesque old hostelries. Many of the private houses are of considerable antiquity; and the city walls are still in part extant. The market buildings, on the north side of High Street, date from 1774, but have been much improved during recent years. The historic fair of St. Giles is held in September, and there is another fair at Michaelmas. The most notable of the many charitable institutions is the Radcliffe Infirmary (1770), yet another of Dr. Radcliffe's foundations.

The High Street, one of the noblest thoroughfares in Europe, is admired not only for its extent, but for the graceful curvature of its course, and the fine buildings with which it is adorned. A still more notable feature of the city is its promenades and walks—among them the Broad Walk, lined with lofty elms, the "Water Walks" of Magdalen, and the gardens of others of the Colleges. The Botanic Garden, formerly called the Physic Garden, measuring about 5 ac., was laid out by Henry Danvers, Earl of Danby, in 1632-33. "The Parks," a magnificent stretch of sward, measuring 93 ac., extends on the west from the elm walk fronting Keble College to the Cherwell on the east. A bridge crossing a branch of the Cherwell leads from The Parks to a pleasant embanked walk, lined on either side with pollard willows, and known as "Mesopotamia."

Oxford Canal, made 1754-90, extends from the Coventry Canal (q.v.) to the Thames at Oxford, a distance of 91½ miles. Entering Oxon at the northern extremity of the county, it follows a southerly course nearly parallel with that of the Cherwell. It belongs to the canal system by which the Thames is connected with the Trent, the Mersey, and the Severn.

Oxfordshire, a South Midland co. of England, bounded on the north by Northants and Warws., on the west by Glouces., on the south by Berks., and on the east by Bucks. It is of very irregular outline, its breadth varying from 8 to 29 miles, while its greatest length is 53 miles. Its total area is 483,617 ac., of which 48 per cent. is arable land, 37 per cent. permanent pasture, and 5 per cent. woodland. There is a wide variety of soil, light chalky land predominating in the south-east, and marls, loams, and clays in the centre and north, the different varieties frequently running in strips from east to west, following the outcrop of the rocks. Agriculture is conducted with great skill and care, and is the chief industry of the co. On the arable land the main crops are wheat, barley, oats, beans, peas, and turnips. The extensive tracts of stiff clay are chiefly kept as grassland, and their excellent pastures are stocked with cattle of high quality, valuable both for fattening and for dairy purposes. The light chalky land of the Chiltern Hills is chiefly utilised for sheep-farming. The surface of the co. is pleasantly diversified, low hill-ranges alternating with broad well-wooded valleys. In the south the Chiltern Hills attain an elevation of about 700 ft., and in the north-west the highest ground rises to 836 ft. in Shenlow Hill. Nearly the whole of the co. lies within the drainage basin of the Thames, that river forming its southern boundary, while its tributaries the Windrush, Evenlode, Cherwell, and Thame are the other important streams. The Oxford Canal traverses the eastern side of the co. Numerous lines of railway under the control of the Great Western Railway Company, or of the London and North Western Railway Company, afford excellent facilities for intercommunication. In geological structure, the rocks seen at the surface in the co. comprise a wide variety of formations belonging to the Secondary era. In a deep boring at Burford, near however, carboniferous rocks were fou depth of 1,184 ft. The Secondary str a general inclination towards the south- their outcrops therefore tend to stretch a co. in bands from north-east to south-w lowest beds occurring in the north, w Lower Lias Clays occupy the valleys of t lode and Cherwell. A band of fossilifer stone in these clays, known as Banbury has been worked and polished as an or stone. The overlying Middle Lias or M yields an iron-ore, which was at one tim sively worked. Upper Lias Clays have sinuous outcrop above the Marlstone in t of the co., and are often very fossiliferous. south the various divisions of the Oolite posed in succession (in some beds of w bones of gigantic extinct reptiles, like Tel Megalosaurus, etc., occur), comprising the Oolite Sands and Sandstones, the Great Oolite Series, the Forest Marble, the C the Oxford Clay, Coralline Oolite, Kim Clay, and Portland Beds. The Great O cludes a thinly-bedded fissile sandst Stonesfield Slate, which has yielded small mammals, among the earliest kn other interesting fossils. This rock is for roofing-slabs; and a white limestone another division of the series, is qua building-stone. The Cornbrash is an imp stone, which weathers into an excellent c ing soil. The Oxford Clay has a wide o the low ground in the Thames Valley ar eastward of Oxford, and makes a cold more adapted for grazing land than for cu It is much used for brick-making, as is Kimmeridge Clay, while the Coralline O Portland Stone are quarried for buildi lower part of the Cretaceous formation sented by isolated patches of ferruginou the south-east of the co., overlaid by p clay, known as the Gault, about 200 ft. th Gault, in turn, dips beneath the Upper G a narrow belt of which crosses the sou the co. along the margin of the Chilte The overlying White Chalk forms this hi and extends up to the southern limits o In a few localities small patches of Eo (Reading Beds and London Clay) rest on t the remnants of a once continuous co these deposits which has been removed by tion. In the north and east of the co. s sheets of gravel and clay, accumulated d Great Ice Age, frequently conceal the so and partially fill the old valleys. Alluvial brought down by the streams in times form low-lying tracts of considerable wi the larger rivers. Flint and stone im used by prehistoric man are found scatt the surface of the co. There are numerou earthworks, etc., of the same period, Grimes Dyke, 2½ miles long, near Walling a cromlech near Chipping Norton. Of th occupation the chief relics are the gre Icknield Street and Akeman Street; the camps; and the coins, tessellated pavem discovered at Great Tew, Stonesfield, a places. In Saxon times it formed pa kingdom of Mercia, until the victory of Saxons at Burford in 752, after which th part became incorporated with Wessex. several times ravaged by the Danes, an

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Oxfordshire	.....	185669

the 11th cent. fell completely under their rule. Among later historic associations are the rallying of the Royalist forces at Oxford in 1644 during the Parliamentary war, and the siege of the town by Fairfax. The patriot Hampden was killed in a skirmish at Chalgrove in 1643, and at Islip Cromwell defeated the Royalists. Oxford (q.v.) is the co. town and the place of chief importance. Other towns are Banbury, Chipping Norton, Bicester, Witney, and Henley. Agriculture is the chief industry, and there is some manufacture of woollen goods, gloves, lace, paper, and agricultural implements. For parl. purposes the co. has three divs. (Banbury, Henley, and Woodstock), each returning one member.

Oxhey, eccl. pa., pas. of Bushey and Watford (q.v.), S.W. Herts., on the Middx. border, 1½ S.W. of Watford. The church of St. Matthew (1880) is in E. Eng. style. O. chapel, still used for Divine service, is a small rectangular building of brick, and contains a reredos, which occupies the whole of the east end and reaches to the ceiling. Of wood, elaborately carved in the upper part, it is divided into three compartments by two massive twisted columns, with Corinthian capitals, supporting a frieze, cornice and pediment, the whole being a good example of early 17th-cent. work; on the south wall is a large monument to Sir James Altham, a Baron of the Exchequer and founder of the chapel (d. 1617), and his wife; there are kneeling figures of both under a canopy of alabaster, bearing a shield of arms, the judge being habited in his judicial robes. At O. Hall, now a farmhouse, much modernised, is an ancient carved oak ceiling of great beauty, arranged in 16 panels, but somewhat roughly executed.

Oxhill (in Domesday "Oclseelve"), pa. and vil., S.E. Warws., 14 S.E. of Warwick; ac. 1,768; soil clay, overlying blue lias. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1877–78) is Norm., with a Perp. west tower. In the centre of the nave is an inscribed stone to Daniel Blackford, a Royalist officer who died 1681. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Oxley, ha., pa. of Bushbury (q.v.), W. Staffs., 2½ N. of Wolverhampton, on the road to Stafford. O. Manor, on an eminence, is a seat.

Oxlode, ha., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Downham (q.v.), Mid Cambs. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Ox Mountains, mountain range, Tireragh and Leyny bars., W. co. Sligo, Ir.; extends about 17 W.S.W. and S.W. from Ballysadare Bay, terminating in the Slieve Gamph range. The highest point is Knockalongy (1,778 ft.)

Oxna Island, pa. of Tingwall (q.v.), Shetland, Sc., about 4 S.W. of Scalloway.

Oxnam, pa. and vil., S.W. Roxbs., Sc., extending on the south to the borders of Northumberland; ac. 21,160; soil chiefly clay, loam, and gravel, with heath and peat-moss.

Oxnam Water, stream, S.E. Roxbs., Sc. It has its source in the Cheviots, and is a feeder of the Teviot. It runs through the centre of the pa. of Oxnam (q.v.).

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oxhey	Bushey (1½)	16	3344
Oxhill	Kineton (4)	92	209
Oxna Island	Thurso (180)	744	31
Oxnam	Jedburgh (4)	369	684
Oxnead	Aylsham (3)	132	70

Oxnead, pa. on the north bank of the Bure, over which there is a bridge of one arch, N. Norf., 10 N. of Norwich; ac. 644; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Michael, almost entirely hidden by trees, is E. Eng. and Dec.; it contains a marble tomb, with alabaster effigy to Clement Paston, a naval commander of the reign of Henry VIII. and subsequent monarchs, and a tomb to Lady Paston (née Lindsay); the communion plate, all silver-gilt, is remarkably large and valuable, resembling in size and shape the plate of Norwich Cathedral. O. Hall, erected by Clement Paston, mentioned above, is but a part of the mansion which formerly stood here; the existing portion is of red brick with stone dressings, in the Domestic style of the Tudor period.

Oxney, pa., E. Kent, 5 N. of Dover; ac. 313: the soil is chalky, and the land consists of unenclosed cornfields and meadows. There is no church here, but the ruins of an old church, supposed to be the church of the manor, are in the park attached to O. Court.

Oxney Field, or Oxen-le-Field, a detached part of the pa. of Darlington (q.v.), S.E. Dur.

Oxnop, ha., pa. of Grinton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2 S.E. of Muker.

Oxon and Shelton, eccl. pa., pa. of Shrewsbury St. Chad, Mid Salop, 2 W. of Shrewsbury (q.v.). Christ Church is in E. Eng. style. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel. The Salop and Montgomery Counties Lunatic Asylum, at Bicton Heath, was built in Elizabethan style 1845, and has since been enlarged to accommodate 800 patients; attached to it are 35 ac. of well-cultivated land. Oxon and Shelton Oak are seats, the latter named after an oak said to have been the highest tree in the neighbourhood at the time of the battle of Shrewsbury (1403).

Ox Rocks. [Aires.]

Oxshott, ha., pa. of Stoke D'Abernon (q.v.), N. Surrey, 4½ S.W. of Surbiton.

Oxspring, tp. and vil. on the Don, pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Penistone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,100.

Oxted, pa. and vil., E. Surrey, 3 E. of Godstone; ac. 3,659; soil chalk, sand, and clay. The church of the Virgin Mary, of which the interior was restored 1877, is Dec., with traces of E. Eng. work. The chancel contains three 15th-cent. brasses; in the vestry is preserved an ancient iron box with a curious lock, which entirely covers the lid, and has 13 bolts. The Baptists have a chapel. There is an Institute and Reading Room. The charities yield £52, of which the greatest part is derived from a bequest of Henry Smith, a City Alderman (d. 1628).

Oxton (1), pa. and vil., Mid Notts., 9 N.N.E. of Nottingham; ac. 3,618; soil sand and clay. The church of St. Peter contains a recumbent effigy of a woman, said to date from the 12th cent. There is a Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel. Near the vil. are three barrows. O. Hall stands in a park of 200 ac.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Oxney	Martin Mill (1)	80	31
Oxon and Shelton	Shrewsbury (2)	163	405
Oxspring	Penistone (1½)	174	322
Oxted	Oxted (1)	20	1499
Oxton (1)	Southwell (5)	139	439

Oxton (2), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Woodchurch (q.v.), N.W. Chesh., forming part of the bor. of Birkenhead (q.v.), from which it extends 2 S.W.; ac. 814. The church of St. Saviour (rebuilt 1891) is in Gothic style. There are many well-built residences occupied by Liverpool merchants.

Oxton (3), tp. on the Wharfe, pa. of and 1 E. from Tadcaster (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 658. O. Hall stands in a beautiful park.

Oxton (4), vil. on the Leader Water, pa. of Channelkirk (q.v.), W. Berws., Sc., about 5 N.W. of Lauder.

Oxwich, pa. on O. Bay, in Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 10 W.S.W. of Swansea; ac. 1,265, with 514 tidal water and foreshore. The church of St. Illtyd is E. Eng.; it contains the altar-tomb of Sir Richard Mansell, who belonged to the family by which the castle was founded. The latter, said to have been built in the reign of Henry VIII., is situated on the promontory which terminates in O. Point; the massive six-storeyed tower displays Perp. characteristics; part of the building is now used as a farmhouse.

Oxwich Bay, inlet of the sea, on south coast of Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 8 S.W. by W. of Swansea. The Bay, a very fine piece of water, is 4½ miles wide at its mouth between Pwlldu Head on the east, and O. Point on the west, and extends 2½ miles inland. On its east side the cliffs are high and precipitous, but on the west richly-wooded declivities rise gradually from the shore. In the inner part of the bay is a stretch of fine smooth sand, excellently adapted to bathing. Here are bone caves, in which remains of extinct animals have been found.

Oxwich Point, headland on south shore of Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 10½ W.S.W. of Swansea. O. Point forms the south termination of the promontory which encloses O. Bay on the west.

Oxwick and Pattesley, pa., N. Norf., 3½ S. of Fakenham; ac. 1,039; soil chiefly stiff loam, subsoil clay. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of flint. There is a list of rectors of the pa. from the year 1318. The church of St. John the Baptist at Pattesley has long disappeared; fragments of its walls may be seen at the west end of a farmhouse.

Oykell, or Oikell, river, S. Suths. and N.E. Ross and Crom., Sc. It rises in Loch Ailsh, and runs E. by S., dividing the pa. of Creich in Suths. from that of Kincardine in Ross and Crom., to the head of Dornoch Firth, which it enters at Bonar Bridge. The lowest part of its course is through the Kyle of Sutherland. A little above Oykell Bridge it forms a fine series of waterfalls. The lower part of the valley, called Strathoykell, is picturesquely wooded, especially in the neighbourhood of Tuiteam Tarbhach. The salmon and trout fishing are good.

Oykell Bridge, pl. with inn, pa. of Kincardine (q.v.), N. Ross and Crom., Sc., 17 S.W. of Lairg.

Oyne, pa. on the Don, Mid Abers., Sc., 14 S.E. of Huntly; ac. 10,131. In this pa. are the ruins of an old castle believed to have belonged to the family of Leith. Petmathen House and West Hall are seats.

Oyster Haven, creek, S. co. Cork., Ir., 3 E. of Kinsale.

Oysterhaven, or Pallas, vil. on Oyster Haven, pa. of Kilmonoge (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir.

Oyster Island, pa. of Killaspugbrone (q.v.), N. co. Sligo, Ir. It lies on the east side of Sligo Bay, a little south of Rosses, and has a lighthouse with two fixed lights visible for 11 miles.

Oystermouth, pa. on the sea-coast, in Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 4 S.S.W. of Swansea; ac. 2,996, with 971 foreshore. O. contains the vils. of Mumbles (q.v.), Newton (q.v.), and Norton (q.v.). All Saints' Church (partly rebuilt 1860) is a Gothic edifice, with some Perp. windows and a handsome embattled tower. There are Presbyterian, Baptist,

OYSTERMOUTH CASTLE.
(Photo. Harvey Barton, Bristol.)

Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. O. Castle occupies a height overlooking the sea, behind which rises a massive limestone cliff. In plan it resembles a rudely-formed triangle, the principal remnant being the E. Dec. three-storeyed quadrangular keep at the north-east angle. The highest storey is occupied by a chapel of the same period. The castle was partly restored by the Duke of Beaufort in 1843. Clyne Park and The Grange are seats.

Ozendike, ha., pa. of Ryther (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 N.W. of Selby.

Ozleworth (anciently "Wozelworth"), pa. and vil., S. Glouc., 5 S.E. of Dursley; ac. 1,114; soil clayey and loamy, resting on oolite. The Early Norm. church of St. Nicholas was restored 1874. Newark Park, formerly belonging to a monastery, and restored temp. Edward VI. with the materials of Kingswood Abbey, stands on an eminence in a park of 50 ac., and commands extensive views. O. Park, a modern mansion in a charming situation, is on an eminence in a small and finely-wooded park, commanding extensive views of hill and dale.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oxton (2), eccl. pa.	Birkenhead (2)	194	3866
Oxton (2), tp.	Birkenhead (2)	194	4429
Oxton (3)	Tadcaster (1)	189	51
Oxwich	Killay (11)	208	214

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Oxwick & Pattesley	Fakenham (3½)	134	86
Oyne	Oyne	552	883
Oystermouth	Oystermouth	203	4132
Ozleworth	Dursley (5)	129	121

P.

Pabay, or Pabaidh, island in Loch Roag, pa. of Uig (q.v.), Lewis Island, Outer Hebrides, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 22 W. by S. of Stornoway The island is 1 mile long, and exceeds ½ mile in breadth. The nearest part of the mainland of Lewis is ¼ mile to the south-west.

Pabbay (1), island at the north-west extremity of the Sound of Harris, pa. of Harris (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, N. Invs., Sc., 40 S.W. of Stornoway. The island approaches a circle in form, the greatest distance from shore to shore being 2½ miles; its shape is conical, reaching a height of 1,000 ft. above the sea. Much of the corn consumed in Harris was formerly grown here; but now the south-west portion alone is fertile, sand-drifts having accumulated in the south-east, whilst towards the north-west the island is exposed to the Atlantic gales.

Pabbay (2), island off east coast of I. of Skye, pa. of Strath (q.v.), Inner Hebrides, Sc., 3 N.N.E. of Broadford. P. is a verdant island about 1 mile long and ¾ mile broad, forming a table-land, which rises 90 ft. above the sea. It is composed of Upper Lias, and there is an abundance of fossils on the sea-shore. At the north end are traces of a small chapel.

Pabbay (3), island, pa. of Barra, Outer Hebrides, S.W. Invs., Sc., 7 S. by W. of Barra Island. The island is nearly 1½ mile long, with a maximum width of 1 mile. It consists mainly of a hill, composed of gneiss, 800 ft. in height.

Packington (1), pa. and large vil., N.W. Leics., 1½ S. of Ashby-de-la-Zouch; ac. 2,396; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of the Holy Rood is E. Eng. In 1894, during the alterations rendered necessary by the erection of a new organ and choir stalls, an alabaster slab of the 15th cent., commemorating members of the Leeson family, was discovered, and a mutilated brass, probably representing a priest; both are now fixed in the chancel wall. Land left for the purpose produces about £24 a year, divided among nine poor widows, and there is a bequest of about £34 a year for the repair of the highways.

Packington (2), ha., pa. of Weeford (q.v.), S.E. Staffs., 3 N.W. of Tamworth. P. Hall is a seat. [SWINFEN AND PACKINGTON.]

Packington, Great, pa. on the Blyth, N.W. Warws., 10 E. of Birmingham; ac. 2,326; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. James was built 1791, in the Italian style. The charities are small. P. Hall is an Italian mansion, built 1693, and subsequently enlarged.

Packington, Little, pa. on the Blyth, N.W. Warws., about 10 E. of Birmingham; ac. 1,110; soil fertile. The church of St. Bartholomew, of which the nave was rebuilt 1879, is principally Norm.

Packmoor, ha., pa. of Wolstanton (q.v.), N Staffs., about 2½ N. of Tunstall.

Packwood, pa. and vil., W. Warws., 8¾ N.W. of Warwick; ac. 1,634; soil clay and sand, overlying marl. The church of St. Giles (restored 1885) is chiefly Dec., with a Perp. tower; there are several monuments to the Aylesbury and Fetherston families. There are some small charities and a home for girls. P. Hall, surrounded by a moat, is now used as a farm. Aylesbury House and P. House, a 15th-cent. timbered house, are seats.

Padanaram, pl., pa. of Kirriemuir (q.v.), W. Forfs., Sc., about 3 N.W. of Forfar.

Padbury, pa. on a tributary of the Ouse, N. Bucks., 2¾ S.E. of Buckingham; ac. 2,000; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. Of the E. Eng. and Perp. church of St. Mary the Virgin or St. Matthew, the chancel was restored 1882 by Sir Gilbert Scott; the massive oak communion table is said to have been given to the church by the young men of the pa. in 1634; the communion plate includes a silver chalice, with cover, dated 1574, and a silver paten of the early part of the 17th cent. The Wesleyans have a chapel. In July, 1643, an engagement took place here between a detachment of Royalists, under Sir Charles Lucas, and some Parliamentary troops, commanded by Col. Middleton, in which the latter were defeated. Lace-making, formerly the occupation of the poorer female classes, is gradually dying out. P. Lodge is a stone structure surrounded by a lawn of 4 ac.

Paddington (1) (formerly "Padynton"), parl. bor. (with two divs., North and South) and pa., Middx., 4 W. by N. of St. Paul's; ac. 1,256. Anciently P. formed a part of the pa. of St. Mary's, Westminster. The old pa. church of St. Mary, at P. Green, which dates from the later years of the 18th cent., when it replaced an older one dedicated to St. James, is in the pseudo-classical style. It ceased to be the pa. church in 1845, when it was superseded by the church of St. James, at the west end of Oxford and Cambridge Terraces, designed by Cundy, in Perp. style, with a pinnacled tower and richly-crocketed spire. In St. Mary's burial-ground lie Mrs. Siddons (d. 1831), Haydon (d. 1846) and William Collins (d. 1847) the painters, Banks the sculptor (d. 1805), and George Bushnell (d. 1701), who executed the statues on old Temple Bar. There are many ecclesiastical pa. churches, besides Nonconformist places of worship. P. Green, skirted on one side by some interesting old houses, was waste ground until 1865, when it was enclosed and laid out as a public recreation ground. It contains a statue of Mrs. Siddons (erected 1896). Hard by is a hospital for children. The London Lock Hospital and Rescue Home, Harrow Road, is a branch for women of the similar institution for men in Dean Street, Soho. Named after The Loke or Lock, an ancient hospital for lepers at Southwark, it was founded 1746, and removed hither from Grosvenor Place 1842. St. Mary's Hospital, Cambridge Place, dates from 1850; the Provident Dispensary, in the same part of the pa., from 1833. P. Station, the terminus of the Great Western Railway, was completed 1856. The Vestry Hall and the Workhouse are in the

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pabbay (1)	Strome Ferry (70)	661	3
Pabbay (2)	Strome Ferry (25)	661	7
Pabbay (3)	Oban (112)	504	13
Packington (1)	Ashby-de-la-Z. (1)	118	489
Packington, Great	Hampton (2)	103	223
Packington, Little	Hampton (2)	103	105
Packwood	Knowle (1)	119	320
Padbury	Padbury	58	490
Paddington (1)	....	.....	117846

Harrow Road; the Public Baths and Wash-houses in Douglas Place, Westbourne Grove. In the middle of the 18th cent. P. consisted almost entirely of grazing-ground, and it was not until the construction of the P. Canal (q.v.) and of the Great Western Railway that it ceased to be a distinct vil., and was absorbed in the metropolis.

Paddington (2), eccl. pa., pa. of Eccles and Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., within the bor. of Salford. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style.

Paddington Canal, made 1795–1801, leaves the Grand Junction Canal near Cranford, and follows a winding course by way of Southall, Greenford Green, Twyford Abbey, and Kensal Green to Paddington (13½ miles), whence it is continued by the Regent's Canal to the Thames at Limehouse.

Paddington, North. [PADDINGTON (1).]

Paddington, South. [PADDINGTON (1).]

Paddlesworth (1), pa., S.E. Kent, 4 N.W. of Folkestone; ac. 561; soil light loam, sand, and clay, subsoil chalk. The church of St. Oswald (restored 1869), on a dreary site, 650 ft. above sea level, is E. Norm.; south of the chancel arch is an arched recess in the wall facing west, where was once probably an altar, and there is a squint; north of the chancel is an oblong recess, perhaps an aumbry, and on the south wall a piscina; near the north wall is a large circular block of Kentish rag of very great antiquity, upon which the modern font is now placed; the south door has fine Norm. shafts. This pa. is said to contain some of the highest ground in the county.

Paddlesworth (2), ha., pa. of and 1 w. from Snodland (q.v.), Mid Kent.

Paddock (1), eccl. pa. within the bor. of Huddersfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of All Saints (restored 1859) is modern Gothic. There is a Congregational chapel in Gothic style, a Methodist New Connexion chapel in Italian style, and the Friends have a meeting-house. There are Conservative and Liberal clubs. The Mortimer charity amounts to £20 a year.

Paddock (2), ha., pa. of Kirkburton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Huddersfield.

Paddock Wood, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Brenchley, Yalding, and Nettlestead (q.v.), S.W. Kent, 5 E. of Tonbridge. The church of St. Andrew is in E. Gothic style. Bricks and tiles are made here. Mascalls is a seat.

Padeswood, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 3 miles from Mold (q.v.), S. Flints.

Padfield, vil., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Glossop (q.v.), N. Derbys.

Padgate, eccl. pa., pa. of Warrington (q.v), S. Lancs., about 2 N.E. of Warrington. Christ Church is a brick building in E. Eng. style.

Padiham, eccl. pa., tp., and to. on the Calder, pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 3 W.N.W. of Burnley, on the road to Clitheroe; ac. 1,953. The church of St. Leonard, a large and handsome edifice of stone, was rebuilt in 1869 in Perp. style. It contains an ancient font, the gift of Abbot Paslew, the 17th and last abbot of Whalley (hanged March 12, 1537), to an older church. The church of SS. Anne and Elizabeth, on P. Green, is a chapel-of-ease. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Unitarian, and Primitive Methodist chapels. St. Leonard's cemetery, on the Blackburn Road, has an area of 2 ac. Hapton (Nonconformist) cemetery, on P. Green, has an area of 3 ac. Coal is plentiful and is worked; stone is also abundant. The cotton trade is carried on extensively here. A fair is held on the second Thursday in August yearly, for pedlery.

Padley, Nether, tp. and ha. on the Derwent, pa. of Hope (q.v.), N.W. Derbys., about 6 N.E. of Tideswell; ac. 296.

Padnoll, ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Blendworth (q.v.), N.E. Hants.

Padside, ha., pa. of Hampsthwaite (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S. of Pateley Bridge. [THORNSIDE-WITH-PADSIDE.]

Padstow (i.e. "Petrocstow" = the town of St. Petroc), pa., seaport, and mkt. to. (S.), on the estuaries of the Camel and Alan, W. Cornw., 16 W.N.W. of Bodmin; ac. 3,339, with 338 tidal water and 246 foreshore; soil and subsoil clay. In 1583 P. was incorporated by royal charter, but in what year it ceased to be a corporation is not known. The town furnished two vessels and men to Edward III. for the siege of Calais. The church of St. Petrock (restored 1888–89) is Late Dec.; there are two piscinæ, one of which bears a figure of St. Petroc, and the rood-stairs remain; the font has arcaded sides and sculptured effigies of the twelve apostles; there is a monument to Sir Nicholas Prideaux, Knt. (d. 1637), erected by his wife in West Putford church, and removed here about the year 1732, and a brass with Latin inscription to Laurence Merther, vicar of Padstow (d. 1421); at the west end, connected with the tower, is the vault of the Prideaux-Brune family, surrounded by an embattled wall of masonry, and over the entrance thereto is an old stone cross, discovered in the grounds of Prideaux Place. A cemetery of 2 ac. was formed in 1881. The public rooms are in Church Lane, and will hold 300 persons. P. Institute, a building of red brick in Dec. style, contains a concert-hall, recreation- and reading-rooms, and has a library. The P. Harbour Association was formed in 1829, for the purpose of saving life and property by rendering assistance to ships entering the port in distress; no salvage claims are made other than expenses out of pocket. A branch of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution is also located here. Stepper Point, a headland forming the western boundary of the harbour, 227 ft. in height, has a daymark; within the headland is an immense sandbank, rich in sand containing carbonate of lime, of which it is said to contain 80 per cent., and large quantities of the sand are sent inland. The town has a considerable import trade in general merchandise and in

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Paddington (2)	Manchester	183	10539
Paddington, North	.....	.....	64668
Paddington, South	.....	.....	53178
Paddlesworth (1)	Snodland (1)	36	46
Paddock (1)	Glenholt	203	5308
Paddock Wood	Paddock Wood	34	1759

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Padgate	Padgate	195	1984
Padiham, eccl. pa.	Padiham	214	11130
Padiham, tp.	Padiham	214	9923
Padley Nether	Chapel-en-le-Frith(S	167	42
Padstow, pa.	Padstow	260	1877
Padstow, mkt. to.	Padstow	260	1546

the exportation of corn; shipbuilding, which was formerly carried on here to a large extent, has much declined, repairs forming the principal operations. Two fairs for cattle, sheep, and horses are held, one on the first Tuesday in May, and the other on the third Tuesday in September. A festivity or pastime called "The Hobby Horse" is celebrated every May Day by the juveniles. A monastery was founded here A.D. 520 by St. Petroc; but in 997 the place was destroyed by the Danes, and the community was then transferred to Bodmin. Before the Reformation there were in existence here nine chapels or oratories, two of which were dedicated to St. Cadoc and St. Sampson; the site of the latter now forms part of the grounds of Prideaux Place, and some remains of St. Saviour's chapel also exist on the brow of the hill; attached to these chapels were cemeteries of considerable extent. There are almshouses in Middle Street for eight single women, each of whom receives in addition £10 a year. Prideaux Place, which occupies the site of the ancient monastery, is a noble edifice of the Elizabethan period, in grounds of about 4 ac., and affording an extensive diversified view overlooking the town and the serpentine harbour. Among the ancestral portraits in the house is that of the celebrated Humphrey Prideaux, D.D., Dean of Norwich (born here May 3, 1648, and died November 1, 1724).

Padworth, pa. and small vil. on the Kennet, S. Berks., 8½ S.W. of Reading; ac. 1,113; soil gravel, overlying clay. Of the church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1890) the walls are Norm., with inserted Perp. windows. The Norm. chancel-arch has sculptured capitals, and the north and south doorways are recessed, and have ornamented arches; three of the five bells are dated 1597, 1654, and 1660. Near the church is P. House, a handsome mansion standing on an eminence in park-like grounds.

Page Bank, ha., pa. of Brancepeth (q.v.), S. Dur., 4 N.W. of Ferryhill.

Pagefold, ha., pa. of Mitton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 N.W. of Clitheroe.

Page Street, ha., pa. of and 1½ E. from Edgware (q.v.), N. Middx.

Pagham, coast pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 6 S. of Chichester; ac. 3,886; soil loam, overlying clay and sand. P. Harbour is said to have been formed early in the 14th cent. by a sudden irruption of the sea, which devastated 2,700 ac.; this has now been recovered from the sea, three reclamations having been made at different periods. The cruciform church of St. Thomas à Becket is E. Eng. John Bowyer and Alice his wife founded a charity here in 1383, and endowed it with lands at Nytimber.

Paglesham, or Paklesham, pa. and vil. on a creek of the Roach, comprising part of Wallasea Island, S.E. Essex, 9 N.E. of Southend; ac. 2,334; soil loam, overlying gravel. The pa. was given by Abbot Ingulf, of Croyland, to Westminster Abbey in 1066. The Perp. church of St. Peter was restored 1883. The charities yield £27. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in the oyster fishery.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Padworth	Aldermaston (2)	45	277
Pagham	Bognor (3)	67	887
Paglesham	Rochford (5)	38½	491
Paignton	Paignton	217	6783

Paignton, pa. and coast to. on Tor Bay, S. Devon, about 3 S.S.W. of Torquay; ac. 5,092. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1864) is chiefly Perp., with remains of Norm. and E. Eng. work; the chancel has sedilia reconstructed from portions discovered during the restoration, and there is a stone pulpit, elaborately adorned with carved foliage and curious coloured devices; the font, an ancient work, is of Purbeck marble; the south transept, or Kirkham chapel, retains a very fine but mutilated stone screen of Perp. work. Near this chapel were interred the heart and viscera of John Snellin, Rear-Admiral of Holland and West Friesland (d. Aug. 23, 1691), and on the wall is an inscription recording the fact, and a shield of arms; in the church is a monument with a cadaver, apparently of the 14th cent., but without inscription; the churchyard contains the remains of a cross. Christ Church is an eccl. pa. with a church in E. Eng. style. The Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Baptists, and Brethren have places of worship. At St. Mary's Hill (late The Quarry) is the Novitiate of the Marist Fathers. The church of Our Lady of Immaculate Conception (1883–84) is in Dec. style. Other public buildings are the town hall, in New Street (1869–70), comprising a court-room and Local Board offices, adjoining the police station, with the Masonic Hall, the New Public Hall (1890), the School of Science and Art, the new offices of the Young Men's Christian Association, the P. and S. Devon Yacht Club, and the Cottage Hospital. The town has risen into notice as a place of resort for invalids on account of the salubrity of its air and its adaptability as a watering-place, the beach affording a fine expanse of firm sand 2 miles in extent, with an ample supply of bathing machines. There is a promenade pier, on which are billiard- and concert-rooms, and a pavilion and band-stand. The charities are considerable. P. was held at an early period by the Bishops of Exeter, who had a palace here, the remains of which are still standing near the church; the chief feature, however, is the south-east tower, a work of the 14th cent., restored and made habitable a few years ago, and commonly known as the "Bible Tower," from the tradition that Bishop Myles Coverdale, the first translator of the whole Bible into English, was the last person to occupy the tower as a residence previous to its being dismantled. In the neighbourhood are several seats.

Pailton, tp. and vil., pa. of Monks Kirby (q.v.), E. Warws., about 5 N.W. of Rugby; ac. 1,661. The chapel-of-ease of St. Denys is in Norm. style. Here is a Baptist chapel.

Painestown (1), pa., partly in Carlow bar., N. co. Carlow, and partly in Kilkea and Moone bars., co. Kildare, Ir., about 2 N. of Carlow; ac. 2,159. Oak Park is a seat in well-timbered grounds.

Painestown (2), pa., Lower Duleek bar., E. co. Meath, Ir., 2 S.W. of Slane; ac. 3,511. There are Protestant and Catholic churches.

Painley Hill, ha., pa. of Leigh (q.v.), N. Staffs., 3 S.W. of Cheadle.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pailton	Brinklow (2)	88	493
Painestown (1)	Carlow (2)	56	127
Painestown (2)	Beaupark	44	507

Painscastle, ha., pa. of Llanbedr-Painscastle (q.v.), S. Radnors., 5 N.W. of Hay.

Painsford, Pensford, or Pynesford, chap., pa. of and 1 W. from Ashprington (q.v.), S. Dev. The church of St. David is in ruins. P. House, an ancient mansion, is now a farmhouse.

Painshaw. [PENSHAW.]

Pains Lane, another name for Donnington Wood (q.v.).

Painsthorpe, ha., pa. of Kirby-under-Dale (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 7 N. of Pocklington.

Painswick, pa. and (formerly mkt.) to. on the southern slope of one of the Cotswold ridges, Mid Glouces., 6 S.E. of Gloucester; ac. 5,790; soil rubbly, and nearly all of them uniformly cut. Ther Congregational, Baptist, and Primitive Meth chapels, and a meeting-house for Brethren. Congregational church is one of the olde England, having been founded 1680. There convalescent and training home, and a tavern with reading-room. Markets and were formerly held, but all have now fallen disuse. P. House was built about 1720, an larged 1837; some of the parqueted floors constructed of wood grown on the estate chemically stained in the growing trees. Court House, near the church, is a good exa of the domestic architecture of the Tudor pe here Charles I. slept (August 9, 1643), and o following day held a court, then leading his t resting on oolite. The church of St. Mary is chiefly E. Perp., with some portions of semi-Classic character, erected in the Georgian period; it has a font dating from 1661; in the north chantry, beneath a groined canopy enriched with elaborate fan-tracery, is the altar tomb of Sir William Kingston, Constable of the Tower (d. 1540), and Elizabeth, his wife; on it are now placed alabaster effigies of John Seaman, LL.D., chancellor of the diocese (d. 1623), and his wife, which have been removed from their original site in the chancel; during the restoration brasses dated 1571 were found under the flooring of the nave; at the back of the pulpit is a double squint of unusual type, and in the belfry are tablets recording some of the peals rung at different times by the "Painswick Youths;" the work of restoration was begun 1878–79, and continued in 1883, after the church had been much damaged by lightning; the churchyard contains 116 yew-trees, all regularly planted, to besiege Gloucester. Baffled in this attem returned to the Court House on September 5.

TOWN HALL, PAISLEY

Pairney Burn, stream, pa. of Auchterarder Perths., Sc., runs about 6 N.N.W., joining Ru Water 1 E.N.E. of the town of Auchterarde is spanned by a viaduct consisting of two a —the upper arch supporting the railway, an lower the road.

Paisley, parl. and mun. burgh, pa., (with divisions, P. High Church, P. Low Church P. Middle Church), river port, and manufac to., Mid Renfs., Sc.; ac. 16,794; soil in the lands dry and light, in the lower parts s clay. The country around P. (except on the where a wide and fertile plain, known by the of the "Carse of Renfrewshire," extends) is ably diversified. The town, about 7 S. by W. Glasgow, occupies a healthy and picturesque ation on the banks of the White Cart, about

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Painswick	Stroud (4)	102	4134
Paisley, burgh	Paisley	407	66418
Paisley, to.	Paisley	407	66425

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Paisley High Church	Paisley	407
Paisley Low Church	Paisley	407
Paisley Middle Ch.	Paisley	407

miles above the confluence of that river with the Clyde, and consists of two portions—the burgh or Old Town (containing the chief warehouses) on the west side of the river, and the New Town on the east. Three bridges connect the Old Town with the New; the old stone bridge at the foot of High Street has been widened, and there is a single large arch carrying the railway across the river. The mitred Abbey of P. was founded in the year 1164, by Walter, Great Steward of Scotland, and son of Alan, the first of the Stewarts, who, for a long period, made this abbey their family mausoleum. It was originally a Cluniac priory, colonised from the abbey of Much or Great Wenlock, in Shropshire, and dedicated to SS. James, Milburga, and Mirinus, but was afterwards elevated to the rank of an abbey, and its lands erected into a regality by James II., the abbot being constituted lord thereof. Abbot George Schaw, in 1484, surrounded the abbey precincts with a lofty stone wall, of which only a portion remains; an inscription, commemorating the builder, once on a tablet in the wall, is now inserted in a house in Lawn Street; there were cloisters on the south side 60 ft. square, but the domestic buildings have almost entirely disappeared. In the 18th cent. the abbey lands were let on building leases; so that the park, orchard, and gardens of the abbey became the site of the new town of P., and the materials of the abbey and its dependences were used in the erection of the houses. The abbey church of SS. James, Milburga, and Mirinus consists of the nave with aisles, north transept, north porch with parvise, and a chapel on the south side of the original church, and is almost entirely E. Eng. The choir has almost entirely disappeared, only a few feet of the height of its walls remaining; within the choir lie the remains of Robert III. (d. 1406), and also of Margaret, his daughter, wife of Archibald, 4th Earl of Douglas, over which a slab of Sicilian marble has been placed by Her Majesty Queen Victoria in commemoration of her visit to Paisley in 1888. The nave, the only portion now in use, contains some curious monuments and sepulchral inscriptions, and on the south side are four Dec. sedilia and a piscina. Other churches are the High church, on a fine eminence, called Church Hill; St. George's church; the North church; the Middle Parish church, on Church Hill; and St. Columba's or the Gaelic church. The Coats Memorial Baptist church was erected in memory of Thomas Coats, Esq., a local philanthropist, and there are also places of worship for other Nonconformist bodies and for the Roman Catholics. The other public buildings are the town hall (1882); the Municipal Buildings, with the county gaol, now used as a bridewell, at the rear; the County Buildings (1890), in Classic style; the Sheriff Court House (1885), the Free Library and Museum, and the Coats Observatory; the Government School of Design (1847), the Infirmary, the Fever Hospital, the Lunatic Asylum, the Burgh or Riccartsbar Asylum, and the Workhouse. Prominent among the educational establishments are the John Neilson Institution (1852), richly endowed by the citizen whose name it bears; it was opened in 1852, and is a massive structure, occupying an elevated site, and surmounted by a lofty dome; the Technical School (commenced in 1896); and the Camphill Public School, which has accommodation for 1,900 scholars. Public reading-rooms for the working classes have been established by some of the principal manufacturers in different parts of the town. The Fountain Gardens, the gift of Thomas Coats, Esq., comprise 6 ac. of ground, tastefully laid out. Brodie Park, originally a farm of 26 ac., was bequeathed to the town of P. many years ago by the late Mr. Brodie. Races are held annually in August on a picturesque course near the Greenock road. This ground, comprising 40 ac., has become the property of the community, and is now named St. James's Park. As a manufacturing town, P. is chiefly distinguished for the beauty of its shawls and muslins, and its extensive production of thread. The earliest fabrics made here were coarse linen checks; to these succeeded textiles of a lighter kind, such as lawns, both figured and plain. About 1760 silk gauze took the lead. The demand for gauze subsequently decreased, and muslin, cambric, and cotton thread were made instead; the manufacture of silk and cotton shawls, scarfs, and plaids composed of silk and merino wool began in 1805. In P. and its neighbourhood there are also numerous thread and cotton spinning mills, bleaching and printing works, dyehouses, power-loom factories, iron and brass foundries, engineers' and millwrights' shops, timber yards, a brewery, a distillery, soap, starch, and corn-flour manufactories, and a very extensive tannery. Fairs are held on the third Thursday in February and May, and the second Thursdays in August and November respectively. February and August are the principal fairs for cattle. Those of May and November are mostly for hiring servants. Among the eminent natives of P. were Alexander Wilson, writer on American ornithology (1766–1813); Robert Tannahill, a weaver and lyric poet (1774–1810); and John Wilson, best known as "Christopher North," and famous both as a critic, essayist, and wit (1785–1854).

Pakefield, pa. on the sea-coast, E. Suff., joining Kirkley in the main street, forming a joint vil., 1½ S.W. of Lowestoft; ac. 686 and 85 water; soil light loamy, overlying sand. The church was originally divided in the centre, thus forming two churches, one named All Saints' and the other St. Margaret's; it is an ancient building of flint, with thatched roof, south porch, and a square embattled tower containing five bells; the interior has two naves and an elevated chancel with a handsome reredos, beneath which is a crypt; there are three piscinæ and brasses to the memory of the Bowf, Folkhard, and Manners-Sutton families, and a tablet to Mrs. Cunningham. There is an inscription in Anglo-Saxon characters on the brass of John Bowf, his wife, and eleven children, in the northern portion of the church. The Society of Friends have a meeting-house at this place. Here are two charities, and some allotments of land to the poor, which let for £20 yearly, which is distributed in coals annually. This being a very dangerous coast, the National Lifeboat Society have two lifeboats here. The sea has made considerable encroachments on this coast. A temporary lighthouse has been erected here until a permanent one can be built on the cliffs, as the sand is continually shifting. The Lowestoft South Roads are off here. P. Hall is now a farmhouse.

Pakenham, pa. and vil., N.W. Suff., 5 N.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 3,696; soil mixed, overlying clay

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pakefield	Lowestoft (1½)	118	1010
Pakenham	Thurston (2)	82	945

and chalk. The church of St. Mary, situated on an eminence, is a cruciform building of flint of mixed periods; the chancel arch and the west and south doorways are Norm.; the nave and chancel are E. Eng.; the tower and transepts Dec.; the nave is divided from the chancel by a carved oak screen; in the south wall of the sacrarium is a piscina; there are numerous memorials and mural tablets to the Spring, Osborne, Symonds, and Disciplin families. The Primitive Methodists have a small chapel. There are several charities (all administered under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners). Here is a Village Club and Reading Room, a Conservative club, and a free reading- and coffee-room. In 1764 a fine tessellated pavement was found on Red Castle Farm. Barton Mere, an old brick mansion; Nether Hall, a brick building, in Queen Anne style, standing in a noble and well-wooded park, with pleasure grounds attached; New House, a 17th-cent. mansion; and P. Lodge, at the east end of the vil., are seats.

Palace Brae. [BLAIRINGONE.]

Palacecraig. [FASKINE AND PALACECRAIG.]

Palatine, pl., pa. of Urglin (q.v.), N. co. Carlow, Ir., 4 N.E. of Carlow.

Paley Street, ha., pa. of White Waltham (q.v.), E. Berks., about 3 S. of Maidenhead. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Palgrave (1), pa. and pleasant vil., N. Suff., on the border of Norfolk, 1 S. of Diss; ac. 1,474; soil principally of a light, mixed character, overlying gravel, sand, and clay. The church of St. Peter is Perp., with north and south porches; the latter contains a memorial to Thomas Martin, the antiquary. In the church are several monuments to the Harrison family. The roof over the nave retains its ancient colouring, and is a good example of a single hammer-beam roof. Martyn's charity consists of £1,100, invested in stock, for school, coals, and clothing for the poor. There is also a farm producing about £65 yearly, used for church expenses. Near the vil. is St. John's, a seat with small park and shrubberies.

Palgrave (2). [SPORLE-WITH-PALGRAVE.]

Pallas (1), or Pallasmore, ha., pa. of Forgny (q.v.), S. co. Longf., Ir., 2½ S.E. of Ballymahon.

Pallas (2). [OYSTERHAVEN.]

Pallas Grean, vil., pa. of Grean (q.v.), E. co. Lim., Ir., about 2 S.W. of Pallas railway station.

Pallaskenry, vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Chapelrussell (q.v.), N. co. Lim., Ir., about 5 N.E. of Askeaton station.

Pallas Lough, Ballyboy bar., Mid K. Co., Ir., about 5 S.W. of Tullamore. Pallas House is a seat on the north shore.

Pallasmore. [PALLAS (1).]

Pallas, New, vil., pa. of Grean (q.v.), E. co. Lim., Ir., near Pallas railway station. There is a Protestant church, and a school on Erasmus Smith's foundation.

Palling, or Palling-next-the-Sea, pa. and fishing vil. on the coast, E. Norf., 18 N.E. of Norwich; ac. 830; soil mixed, resting on clay. The church of St. Margaret is a small but ancient building of flint and stone. The Primitive Methodist chapel dates from 1860. There is a coastguard station. The fuel allotment of 14 ac. produces about £26 a year.

Pallingham, ha., pa. of Wisborough Green (q.v.), W. Sussex, 4 N.E. of Petworth.

Palling-next-the-Sea. [PALLING.]

Pallington, ha., pa. of Aff-Puddle (q.v.), S. Dors., 7 E. of Dorchester.

Pallinsburn, ha., pa. of Norham (q.v.), N. Northumb., about 2 S.E. of Cornhill. P. House, a mansion in Tudor style, stands in a park containing a lake of about 7 ac., which in the summer is frequented by thousands of sea-birds from the Farne Islands.

Pallion, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Sunderland (q.v.), N.E. Dur. The church of St. Luke is a modern building in French Gothic style.

Palmer's Green, residential dis. with railway station, pa. of and 2½ S.W. from Enfield (q.v.), N.E. Middx.

Palmerston, pa. and vil. on the south bank of the Liffey, Upper Cross bar., Mid co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 1,517. The vil. lies about 4 W.S.W. of Dublin, on the road to Lucan, and the steam tramcars pass through several times in the day. Here is the Stewart Institution for imbecile children and asylum for lunatics. P. gives the title of Viscount to the Temple family. In the neighbourhood are many seats.

Palmerstown, pa., West Balrothery bar., N. co. Dub., Ir., 11 N.W. of Dublin; ac. 1,581.

Palmstead, ha., pa. of Upper Hardres (q.v.), E. Kent, 4 S. of Canterbury.

Palnackie, vil. at the mouth of Urr Water, pa. of Buittle (q.v.), S.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., about 4 S. of Dalbeattie.

Palnure, vil. with railway station and a small quay, near the confluence of the P. burn with the river Cree, pa. of Minnigaff (q.v.), W. Kirkcuds., Sc., 3 S.E. of Newton Stewart.

Palterton, vil., pa. of and 1½ S. from Bolsover (q.v.), N.E. Derbys.

Pamber, scattered pa., N. Hants, 6 N.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 2,814; soil clay and gravel. There is no parish church and no endowment for the maintenance of clergy or public worship. The chapel of the old Benedictine priory of Monk Sherborne (to which place this parish is annexed for ecclesiastical purposes) is, by permission of Queen's College, Oxford, used by the parishioners of P. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Pamington, vil., pa. of Ashchurch (q.v.), E. Gloucs., 2½ E. of Tewkesbury.

Pampisford, pa. and vil., S. Cambs., 8 S. of Cambridge; ac. 1,500; soil mixed, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1850), which is surrounded by fine elms, is an ancient structure; the arcades are Trans. Norm.; the font is Norm., and there is an E. Norm. south doorway; the rood-screen is in good preserva-

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Palgrave	Diss (1)	95	776
Pallas Grean	Pallas (1½)	115	136
Pallaskenry	Askeaton (6)	150	329
Palling	Stalham (4)	145	395
Pallion	Pallion	263	8446

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Palmerston, pa.	Clondalkin (5)	2½	1126
Palmerston, vil.	Clondalkin (5)	2½	220
Palmerstown	Malahide (9)	9	93
Pamber	Basingstoke (6)	48	709
Pampisford	Pampisford	54	329

tion; there are some memorial windows. P. Hall is a seat with a magnificent collection of conifers and an Italian flower garden; on the south side, running east and west for more than a mile, and in excellent preservation, is an ancient British dyke.

Pananich (or Pannanich) Hill, eminence (1,896 ft.), pas. of Glenmuick, Tullich, and Glengairn (q.v.), S.W. Abers., Sc., 1½ W. of Ballater. On its north side are four chalybeate springs, the principal ingredients in which are carbonates of iron and lime.

Panborough, ha., pa. of Wedmore (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 5½ N.W. of Wells.

Panbride, coast pa. and vil., S.E. Forfs., Sc., 5 S. of Arbroath; ac. 5,199; soil towards the coast light and sandy, in some places a rich loam, towards the centre clayey, and in other parts inclining to a sterile moor. The pa. contains part of the to. of Carnoustie (q.v.). The inhabitants are principally engaged in fishing and agricultural pursuits, and there are bleach-works. Panmure House, a seat of the Earl of Dalhousie, is a fine mansion, the prominent feature of which is a tower 80 ft. high; a large well-wooded park surrounds the house.

Pancras, ha., pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), W. Somerset, 2 S.W. of Watchet.

Pancrasweek, pa. and vil., W. Dev., 6 E. of Bude; ac. 3,782; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Pancras (partially restored 1891) is a Perp. building; there is a squint, and the roodloft stairs can still be seen. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel.

Pandy, vil., pa. of Llanuwchyllyn (q.v.), Mid Merions., 4 S.W. of Bala.

Pandy Mill, picturesque spot much frequented by artists on the Machno, E. Carnarvs., about 2 S.E. of Bettws-y-Coed.

Panfield, pa. and pleasant vil. on the Pant, Mid Essex, 3 N.W. of Braintree; ac. 1,475; soil loam, overlying clay. The Perp. church of St. Mary (restored 1858) contains the grave of John Cotton, of the Hall Manor, and his wife (d. 1525). Half a mile north of the church is the site of a priory of Benedictine monks, subordinate to the abbey of St. Stephen, at Caen, in Normandy, and founded by Waleran Fitz-Ralph in 1070. On the outbreak of hostilities between England and France in the 13th cent., it was seized by Edward II. in 1285 as an alien priory, but was restored on the establishment of peace. In 1414, however, when all alien priories were totally suppressed, the property was vested in the Crown. P. Hall, erected in the year 1546, and now occupied as a farmhouse, is a fine building, with a quadrangular tower and handsomely-clustered chimneys.

Pang, stream, Berks. It rises near Hampstead Norris, flows south past Frilsham, then in a north-easterly direction as far as Tidmarsh, whence it has a northerly course to the Thames at Pangbourne.

Pangbourne, pa. and large vil. beautifully situate on the banks of the Thames, Berks., on the border of Oxon, 5½ W.N.W. of Reading; ac. 1,940; soil gravel, subsoil gravel and chalk. The Dec. church of St. James the Great contains a curious monument with effigy to Sir John Davis (d. 1625), who was knighted at the taking of Cales, in Spain; the pulpit is a beautiful specimen of carved oak in the arabesque style. The Congregationalists have a chapel. Rude implements of flint, together with the bones of mammals, have been found in the gravel pits. During the summer months the place is much frequented by tourists and anglers. Bere Court, situated in a picturesque and retired spot, was given by Robert de Bingham, Bishop of Salisbury, to the abbot and monastery of Reading, in 1230. Other seats are Shooter's Hill and West End Grove.

Panhope, bay on east coast of Flotta Island, S.W. Ork., Sc., 12 S.S.W. of Kirkwall. It extends 1½ W.S.W., and has an extreme breadth of nearly a mile. The bay forms a good harbour.

Panmure House. [PANBRIDE.]

Pannal, pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Nidd, W.R. Yorks.; ac. 4,582; soil rich and productive, overlying rock. Part of the town of Harrogate is within the pa. The church of St. Robert of Knaresborough is an ancient stone building. There are Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to about £25 a year. On Harlow Hill is an observatory open to the public on payment of a small fee, a favourite resort of visitors to Harrogate.

Pan Rock, Pan Sand, shoal in the Thames, about 6 N.E. of Herne Bay. It is said to derive its name from the fact that broken pottery (from a ship wrecked here) has been often found.

Panshanger. [HERTINGFORDBURY.]

Panson, ha. near the Tamar, pa. of St. Giles on the Heath (q.v.), W. Dev., 5 N.E. of Launceston.

Pant (1), ha. with railway station, pa. of and 4½ S. from Oswestry (q.v.), W. Salop.

Pant (2), river, Essex. [BLACKWATER (6).]

Pantarfon, ha., pa. of Llanfynydd (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 7 N.W. of Llandilo.

Panteg, pa. on the Brecon and Monmouthshire Canal and a tributary of the Usk, Mid Mon., 3 S.E. of Pontypool; ac. 3,560; soil loam and clay, overlying marl. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt 1876 (except the tower, dating from about 1450) in E. Eng. style. There are coal- and iron-mines, and limestone and other quarries.

Panton, pa., N. Lincs., 3 E.N.E. of Wragby; ac. 1,996; soil light and heavy loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Andrew is a small building. P. Hall is a seat situated on a finely-wooded eminence and surrounded by a beautifully-undulating and park-like country.

Pantry Green, ha., pa. of Darfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 S. of Barnsley.

Pantyffrydlas, ha., pa. of Llanllechid (q.v.), N. Carnarvs., 3 S. of Bangor.

Pantygroes, ha., pa. of St. Dogmells (q.v.), N. Pembs., 2 W. of Cardigan.

Pantyrid, vil., pa. of Llandyfodog (q.v.), Mid Glamorgs., 6½ N.E. of Bridgend.

Panxworth, vil., pa. of Ranworth-with-Panxworth (q.v.), E. Norf., 9 N.E. of Norwich. For upwards of 200 years there was no church, a ruined tower

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Panbride	Carnoustie (1)	468	1741
Pancrasweek	Holsworthy (3)	218	362
Panfield	Braintree (3)	45	273
Pangbourne	Pangbourne	42	885

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pannal	Pannal	202	3759
Panteg	Panteg	159	3746
Panton	East Barkwith	138	150

a... marking the spot where the church of All ... and ... was erected. ... a ... ... Primitive Methodists have a ... chapel.

Papa, ... pa. of Bressay (q.v.), ... west coast of Mainland, ... Shetland, ... 2½ W.S.W. of ... by way. ... about ¾ mile long from east to west, and ... of a mile from the nearest part of Mainland.

Papal, Holm of. [HOLM OF PAPAL.]

Papa, Mull of, headland forming the north extremity of the island of Papa Westray (q.v.), N. Orkney, 2 miles N. of Kirkwall. It is pierced by a cave ... to 70 ft. high, with a width of 50 ft. at ... and ... which increases ... to 90 ft., but ... is 45 ft. in the narrowest part.

Papa Sound, ... channel between the islands of Stronsay and Papa Westray, N.E. Ork., Sc., 17 N.E. of Kirkwall. ... and varies ... miles from ... to ... mile. A portion of it ... the island of Stronsay, forming ... Harbour.

Papa Sound, channel between the islands of Westray and Papa Westray, N. Ork., Sc., 25 N. of Kirkwall. The channel is 3 miles long from north to south, and has an extreme breadth of about 2 miles.

Papa, Sound of, channel, S.W. Shetland, Sc., separating the island of Papa Stour from Mainland. It is about 2 miles long and 1 mile in width. The current is swift and dangerous.

Papa Stour, island, parish of Walls (q.v.), off west coast of Mainland, Mid Shetland, Sc., 21 N.W. of Lerwick. The island lies at the south-west side of St. Magnus Bay, and is separated from the main portion of the parish by the Sound of Papa. It is nearly 3 miles long, with an extreme breadth of about 2 miles, but the coast is extremely irregular, its total length being about 20 miles. The soil is sandy but productive. On the south coast are some interesting caves, the principal Christie's Hole and Frances's Hole being the most remarkable. Here was an early Culdee settlement. There is an interesting old church on the island. The Sword Dance mentioned in Scott's "Pirate," is (or recently was) performed by the islanders.

Papa Stronsay, island, N.E. Ork., Sc., 19 N.E. of Kirkwall. The island lies immediately N. of that of Stronsay, from which it is separated by Papa Sound. In form it resembles a rude circle, with a diameter of about ¾ mile. The surface is low and level, with a very productive soil. There are remains of two ancient chapels, dedicated to St. Nicholas and St. Bride; also traces of an old cemetery.

Papa Westray, island, N. Ork., Sc., 25 N. of Kirkwall. The island lies north-east of Westray, from which it is separated by Papa Sound. It is 4½ miles long from north to south, with an extreme breadth of somewhat over a mile. Northwards it terminates in the Mull of Papa (q.v.). For the most part the surface gradually ascends towards the centre of the island. The soil is very productive. The Loch of St. Tredwall, near the south end of the island, takes its name from a female saint, whose chapel, now a ruin, remains on an islet in its midst. The other antiquities include a Picts' House of great size and vitrified cairns. Holland is a seat on the island.

Papcastle, tp. and vil., pa. of Bridekirk (q.v.), W. Cumb., 1 W.N.W. of Cockermouth, and connected with that town by a stone bridge over the Derwent; ac. 1,283. P. was the site of a Roman station.

Paplay. [HOLM AND PAPLAY.]

Papplewick, pa. and vil., W. Notts., 7 S. of Mansfield; ac. 1,986; soil principally sandy, overlying rock. The E. Eng. church of St. James retains some old glass, and in the churchyard are tombstones with good floriated crosses. P. Grange and P. Hall are seats. The latter stands in a park and commands extensive views; near the lodge is a cave cut out of the solid rock, and called Robin Hood's Stable.

Paps of Jura. [JURA.]

Paps, The (2,269 ft. and 2,239 ft.), two conical mountains separated by a deep ravine, Magunihy bar., E. co. Kerry, Ir. They lie on the south of the railway line from Mallow to Killarney.

Papworth Everard, pa., W. Cambs., 6 S.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,091; soil heavy clay, overlying blue gault. The church of St. Peter (restored and nearly rebuilt 1870) dates from the Perp. period. P. Hall, on rising ground adjoining the Great North Road, is a seat.

Papworth St. Agnes, pa., W. Cambs., 5 S.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 1,302; soil heavy clay, overlying blue gault. The church of St. John the Baptist has been rebuilt in Dec. style.

Par, eccl. pa. and seaport, pas. of St. Blazey and Tywardreath (q.v.), E. Cornw., 4 E. of St. Austell. The church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. P. has been converted from an open bay into a thriving port, with breakwater and quays; it is now an important shipping-place for china-clay stone, and granite: the imports being coal, timber, and general merchandise. The Great Western Railway connects the harbour of Newquay on the north with those of Par and Fowey on the south coast, thus opening communication with the various china-clay and china-stone works, tin, copper, and iron mines, and the granite districts of the interior, a branch line being also extended to the extensive iron lodes in the Perran district. The extensive works and chief depôt of the Cornwall Minerals district branch of the Great Western Railway are situated here. The smelting works at P., part of which is used as a mill, have a chimney 280 ft. in height.

Paracombe, pa. and vil., N. Devon, 5 S.W. of Lynton, on the high road to Barnstaple; ac. 4,338; soil gravelly loam, overlying slate and sandstone. Christ Church (1878) is in E. Eng. style. The E. Eng. church of St. Helen still remains, and is now used as a mortuary chapel and for occasional services in the summer; it retains a chancel screen.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Papa	Aberdeen (124)	23
Papa Stour	Thurso (120)	214
Papa Stronsay	Thurso (48)	27
Papa Westray	Thurso (52)	337
Papcastle	Papcastle	633
Papplewick	Hucknall (1)	384
Papworth Everard	St. Neots (4)	134
Papworth St. Agnes	Offord (3)	139
Par	Par	1634
Paracombe	Barnstaple (11)	316

Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The common, which consisted of 900 ac., was enclosed in 1860. A fair is held each year on August 18 for cattle and sheep, also stock sales at irregular intervals. On an estate called Holwell is a circular mound known as The Castle.

Paracombe Mill, ha., pa. of Paracombe (q.v.), N. Dev., about 5 S.W. of Lynton.

Paradis, pl., pa. of Vale (q.v.), Guernsey, 3 N. of St. Peter Port. Here are some remains of a kistvaen, beneath which urns containing human bones and other ancient relics were discovered in 1837. In the immediate neighbourhood is a cromlech called L'Autel du Déhus.

Paradise, ha. on Bridgwater Bay, pa. of Burnham (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 8 N. of Bridgwater.

Parbold, tp. and vil., pa. of Eccleston (q.v.), N. Lancs., 6½ N.W. of Wigan; ac. 1,159. The Leeds and Liverpool Canal passes through the tp. Stone, suitable for building purposes, is quarried. P. Hill commands good views of the I. of M. and the mountains of Wales and Cumberland. P. Hall is a seat.

Parbrook, ha., pa. of West Bradley (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 5½ N.W. of Castle Carey.

Parcel Canol, tp., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N. Cardigs., near Aberystwith; ac. 2,855.

Parc Grace Dieu, pa., S. Mon., 3 W. of Monmouth; ac. 388; soil and subsoil clay. The Cistercian abbey of Parc Grace Dieu, which stood near the Trothy, was founded in the 13th cent. by John de Monmouth; its scanty remains now form part of a barn.

Pardenick Point, headland, S.W. Cornw., about 1½ S.S.E. of Lands End. It is of great grandeur and beauty, and the columnar arrangement of the granite is very fine.

Pardshaw, ha., pa. of Dean (q.v.), W. Cumb., 4 S.W. of Cockermouth.

Parham (1), pa., S. Sussex, 10 S.E. of Petworth; ac. 1,284; soil various, overlying sand, clay, rock, and chalk. The Perp. church of St. Peter contains a curious leaden font. P. House is an Elizabethan mansion, occupying a site of great beauty at the foot of the South Downs, in the midst of a picturesque park of 700 ac., well stocked with deer; it is believed to incorporate an older and smaller fortified house; the date 1583, with the arms of Queen Elizabeth and her motto Semper eadem, occur on the wall at the upper end of the hall, and suggest its construction or modification at that period. The collection of ancient armour here is almost unrivalled; there are also very fine examples of gold and silver plate, enamels, and ivory carvings; the library contains MSS. collected from the monasteries of the Levant, numerous printed volumes from the presses of Caxton and Wynkyn de Worde, first editions of Homer, Virgil, and Shakespeare, and other rarities. Queen Elizabeth is said to have visited P. in 1591. The deer-park contains a heronry; the birds migrated hither from near Penshurst, on being disturbed in 1826.

Parham (2), pa. and pleasant vil. with railway station, E. Suff., 8 N. of Woodbridge; ac. 2,212; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is Perp. The old Hall, formerly the seat of the first Earl of Orford, but now a farmhouse, contains many relics of antiquity; it is surrounded by a moat. P. Hall, surrounded by a small park, is a seat.

Park (1), ha., pa. of Tolpuddle (q.v.), Mid Dors., 7 N.E. of Dorchester.

Park (2), ha., pa. of Eglwysilan (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 4 S.W. of Llandaff.

Park (3), mountainous dis. forming a peninsula between Lochs Erisort and Seaforth, in the south-east part of the pa. of Lochs (q.v.), E. Isle of Lewis, Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc. It was once a deer forest, and presents some grand Highland scenery.

Park (4), pl., Tirkeeran bar., W. co. Londy., Ir., 13 S.E. of Londonderry.

Park Burn (1), stream, pa. of Durrisdeer (q.v.), N.W. Dumfs., Sc., flows about 5 S.E., and falls into the Nith 2 N.N.W. of Thornhill.

Park Burn (2). [LOCHAR WATER.]

Park Corner, ha., pa. of Swyncombe (q.v.), S.E. Oxon, 3½ S.E. of Watlington. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Parkend, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of West Dean (q.v.), W. Glouc., 4 S.E. of Coleford. The church of St. Paul is in mixed styles, and the Baptists have a chapel. Whitemead Park is a seat.

Parkers Green, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Ardeley (q.v.), N. Herts.

Parkfield, eccl. pa., pa. of Middleton (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. Holy Trinity church is in Gothic style.

Parkfoot and Longcroft, vil., pa. of Denny (q.v.), S. Stirls., Sc., about 5 W. of Falkirk.

Parkgate (1), eccl. pa. and large vil., pas. of Rawmarsh and Rotherham (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 7 N.E. of Sheffield. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style, and there are Wesleyan and Methodist chapels. P. contains extensive iron and steel works, large collieries, and several brick works.

Parkgate (2), watering-place with railway station on the estuary of the Dee, pa. of Great Neston (q.v.), N.W. Chesh., 13 N.W. of Chester. [NESTON (1).]

Parkgate (3), ha., pa. of Newdigate (q.v.), S. Surrey, 4 S.W. of Reigate.

Parkgate (4), ha., pa. of and 5½ S.W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Parkgate (5), ti., pa. of and about 1 S.W. from Haselbury Bryan (q.v.), N. Dors.

Parkgate (6), ha., pa. of Kirkmichael (q.v.), Mid Dumfs., Sc., about 8 N.E. of Dumfries.

Parkgate (7), ha. on the estuary of the Dee, pa. of and 2½ S. from Kirkcudbright (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc.

Parkgate (8), vil., pa. of Nilteen Grange (q.v.), S. co. Antr., Ir., about 3 N. of Templepatrick.

Park Grace Dieu. [PARC GRACE DIEU.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Parbold	Parbold	201	598
Parcel Canol	Aberystwith (1½)	243	366
Parc Grace Dieu	Monmouth (3)	144	16
Parham (1)	Pulborough (3)	50	58
Parham (2)	Parham	89	477

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Parkend	Parkend	130	2194
Parkfield	Heaton Norris (2)	178	3941
Parkfoot & Longcroft	Dennyloanhead	412	588
Parkgate (1)	Park Gate	166	7649

Parkham, pa. and vil. on the Yeo, W. Dev., 7 W. of Great Torrington; ac. 5,808; soil various, overlying clay. The church of St. James (restored 1875) is a 15th-cent. building; there is a Norm. door and font and some stained glass; the north aisle was built by the Risdons of Bableigh, and contains a slab to Giles Risdon (d. 1583), to Grace Risdon (d. 1676), and to Catherine Risdon (d. 1862); there are also several inscriptions to the Giffard family of Halsbury, one to Thomas Moncke of Pudderydge (d. 1595), and one to Richard ——— (d. 14–6). There are two Wesleyan chapels.

Parkham, Broad. [BROAD PARKHAM.]

Parkhead, q.s. pa., pa. of Barony (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., in the east of Glasgow.

Park Hill, steep and sharply-ridged hill, W. Derbys., about 4 S.S.E. of Buxton.

Parkhill (1), ha., pa. of Calverley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Bradford.

Parkhill (2), estate with modern seat, pa. of St. Vigeans (q.v.), S.E. Forfs., Sc., 3 N. of Arbroath.

Parkhill (3), estate with modern seat, pa. of Polmont (q.v.), S.E. Stirls., Sc., about ½ N. of Polmont railway station.

Parkhold, formerly a separate tp., but now for civil purposes annexed to Pixley (q.v.), S. Herefords., 2 N.E. of Ledbury.

Parkhurst Forest, pa. of Carisbrooke (q.v.), I. of W., about 1 N.W. of Newport. It occurs in Domesday book under the name of King's Park, and was afterwards called the King's Forest. [NEWPORT (2).]

Parklane, vil., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Aston-in-Makerfield (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Park Leys, pa., E. Notts., about 4 N.W. of Newark; ac. 310; soil loam and clay, overlying principally gravel.

Parkmill, ha., pa. of High Hoyland (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Penistone.

Parkminster, pl., pa. of Cowfold (q.v.), Mid Sussex. Here is St. Hugh's Carthusian monastery.

Parkmore, pl., pa. of Layd (q.v.), N.E. co. Antr., Ir., about 6 S.W. of Cushendall.

Parknook (1), ha., pa. of Ranton (q.v.), Staffs., 4 W. of Stafford.

Parknook (2). [MILESMARK.]

Parks, ha., pa. of Hatfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. 3 S.W. of Thorne.

Parkstone, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., on Poole Harbour, forming a suburb and 1½ N.E. of Poole, pa. of Canford Magna (q.v.), S.E. Dors.; ac. 2,858. The church of St. Peter has been to a great extent rebuilt (1876 and 1892) in E. Eng. style; the large and lofty chancel, surmounted by a vaulted roof of pitch pine, is surrounded by an ambulatory. Connected with St. Peter's are the chapels of the Holy Angels and of St. Osmund. There are also Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels. The views of the English Channel, Corfe Castle, Brownsea Castle, etc., bring many visitors to P. Canford Cliffs estate, facing the Channel 2 S.E., consists of an undercliff sea frontage, with excellent sands, backed by sloping heights clad with pines and Scotch firs. Victoria Park (5 ac.), in the centre of the vil., is well wooded and laid out in walks, with a fountain in the centre. There are two other recreation grounds. P. Park and the Constitution Hill grounds, at Sandbanks, is a coast-guard station. The subsoil is extensively used for terra-cotta articles and drain-pipes.

Park Street, ha. with railway station, pa. of and 2 S. from St. Albans (q.v.), S. Herts.

Park Terrace Rows, part of The Den, vil., pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Dalry (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc.

Parley, East, ha. on the Stour, pa. of and 3 N.W. from Christchurch (q.v.), S.W. Hants. There is a small school church and a Baptist chapel. Heron Court is the seat of the Earl of Malmesbury, and contains a valuable collection of paintings and books; amongst the latter is the books collected by James Harris, author of "Hermes." The house is situated among fine woods and plantations.

Parley, West, pa. on the Stour, E. Dors., on the Hants border, 8 N.E. of Poole; ac. 3,407; soil light loam, overlying gravel. A large portion of the pa. is heath land. The church of All Saints is Norm.; at the east end, under a circular stone, is buried a lady's heart.

Parliament Hill Fields. [HIGHGATE (1).]

Parlington, tp., pa. of Aberford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S.W. of Tadcaster; ac. 1,734. There are coal mines, and coal was worked here before and during the reign of Charles II. P. Hall, a stone mansion standing in a deer-park of about 200 ac., is a seat.

Parme. [MOORESBARROW-WITH-PARME.]

Parndon, Great, pa. and vil., E. Essex, 6 N. of Epping; ac. 2,221; soil various, overlying gravel and clay. The church (dedication unknown) is Late Perp. Here was formerly a house for Premonstratensian canons, which was removed in 1180.

Parndon, Little, pa. and vil., N. Essex, on the Stort, which separates it from Herts; ac. 534; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1869) was originally E. Eng.; it retains a piscina; among the mural tablets is one to Sir E. Turnour (d. 1676), Speaker in the reign of Charles II.; there is also a headstone, with a long and curious inscription to Hester Woodley, a slave (d. 1767). Parndon Hall, in well-wooded grounds, is a seat.

Parney Burn. [PAIRNEY BURN.]

Parnham House. [BEAMINSTER.]

Parr-, for places not found under this spelling, see also PAR-.

Parr, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., within the bor. of St. Helens; ac. 1,633. The church of St. Peter is in Gothic style.

Parret, river, Dors. and Somerset, rises at South Perrott, on the Dorset side of the border, and entering Somerset, flows N. and N.W. past Crewkerne, South Petherton, and Muchelney, above

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Parkham	Bideford (6)	220	843
Parkhead	Glasgow (2)	401	9839
Park Leys	Newark (4)	120	8
Parkstone, eccl. pa.	Parkstone	110	3167
Parkstone, tp.	Parkstone	110	4125
Park Terrace Rows	Kilbirnie (1¼)	404	72

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Parley, West	Herne (3)	105	334
Parlington	Micklefield (3)	185	192
Parndon, Great	Burnt Mill (2)	23	534
Parndon, Little	Burnt Mill (1)	23	99
Parr, eccl. pa.	St. Helens (1)	192	8630
Parr, tp.	St. Helens (1)	192	13203

which it receives the Isle, to Langport, where it is joined by the Yeo, and whence it is navigable for the remaining 20 miles of its course. It then runs through the Isle of Athelney, by Burrowbridge, where the Tone comes in, and Bridgwater, falling into the Bristol Channel at Stert Point. The stream is subject at spring tides to the bore.

Parr Mount, eccl. pa., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., within the bor. of St. Helens. The cruciform church of the Holy Trinity is in Gothic style.

Parsonage, pl., pa. of and about 4 N. from Thatcham (q.v.), S. Berks.

Parson and Clerk Rocks, two prominent stacks of New Red Sandstone, S. Dev., about 1½ S. of Dawlish. The Clerk is separated from the mainland, the Parson not quite.

Parson Drove, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Leverington (q.v.), N. Cambs., 6 S.W. of Wisbech; ac. 3,853. The church of St. John Baptist is in E. Eng. style.

Parson's Barn, large cave on the north side of Swanage Bay, S.E. Dorset. It is so called in allusion to its size; "as big as a parson's barn" being a Wessex proverb.

Parson's Green, ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Cockfield (q.v.), S. Suff.

Parsonstown (1), pa., Ferrard bar., S. co. Louth, Ir., 4 S.E. of Dunleer; ac. 529.

Parsonstown (2). [BIRR.]

Parteen, vil., pa. of St. Patrick's, Lower Bunratty bar., S.E. co. Clare, Ir., 2½ N. by E. from Limerick. The Protestant church of St. Patrick is a handsome stone building attached to St. Mary's Cathedral, Limerick. There is also a Catholic church and a school upon the national plan.

Partick, q.s. pa. and to. at the junction of the Kelvin with the Clyde, and on the road from Glasgow to Dumbarton, pa. of Govan (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., suburb and 2 W.N.W. of Glasgow.

ON THE CLYDE AT PARTICK.

The Established church dates from 1834, and there are Free, United Presbyterian, Wesleyan, and Congregational churches. Victoria Park, west of the town, has an area of 50 ac. It was laid out as a memorial of Queen Victoria's Jubilee, and contains an interesting group of fossil trees, discovered in an old quarry. P. has various industrial establishments, including extensive flour-mills, factories, and boatbuilding yards. The flour-mills known as the Bunhouse Mills, with their connected granaries, are of historic interest, having been originally presented to the "baxsters" of Glasgow by the Regent Murray after the battle of Langside, in recognition of their good service in supplying bread to his army. P. (formerly "Perdeyc" or "Perthick") is an ancient place. King Morden, the contemporary of St. Mungo, is supposed to have resided here, and in 1136 land was granted by David I. to the see of Glasgow. There is some evidence that in the following cent. it had a bishop's palace, although no remains exist. Early in the 17th cent. a castellated mansion was erected, probably on the site of the old episcopal palace for George Hutcheson, one of the founders of the Hutcheson Hospital at Glasgow. Ruins of this building remained till about 1836. P. continued a vil. till towards the middle of the 19th cent., since which time its growth has been very rapid.

Partick Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Lanarks., Sc. It returns one member.

Particles, pa., Coshlea bar., S.E. co. Lim., Ir., 5 S. of Kilmallock railway station; ac. 8,496. The principal seats are Castle Oliver and Sunville.

Partington, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., on the Mersey, pa. of Bowdon (q.v.), N. Chesh., 4 N.W. of Altrincham; ac. 754. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (built 1884) is in the Gothic style. The Wesleyans and Congregationalists have chapels. The Mersey is at this point diverted into the Manchester Ship Canal, and a large coal basin with ½ mile of quayage has been constructed.

Partney, pa. and vil., E. Lincs., 2 N.E. of Spilsby, on the road to Louth; ac. 920; soil various, overlying sand and chalk. The church of St. Nicholas is Dec., with later additions; the piers and arches of the arcades separating the nave from the aisles have delicate foliage on the capitals. A Perp. screen divides the north chapel and aisles. In the north aisle is a 17th-cent. brass. The churchyard contains an ancient oak, now decayed and covered with ivy. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there are some small charities. P. Hall is a seat.

Parton (1), tp. and fishing vil. on St. George's Channel, pa. of Moresby (q.v.), W. Cumb., 1½ N. of Whitehaven; ac. 52. Towards the end of the 18th cent. trade here was in a flourishing condition, and several vessels were employed in shipping coal; but in 1795 the pier was washed away, and has not been rebuilt. Here are extensive engineering works and a large brewery. The Congregationalists, Methodists, and Brethren have places of worship. There is an endowed school.

Parton (2), pa. and vil., Mid Kirkcuds., Sc.; ac. 15,481. The pa. is bounded on the west by the Dee, the river Urr forming its eastern boundary. A large portion is hilly, especially in the northern quarter, but towards the Dee the land is flat and arable, and under cultivation; the village, which

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Parr Mount	St. Helens (1)	192	7780
Parson Drove, ec. pa.	Murrow (1)	90	157
Parson Drove, tp.	Murrow (1)	90	716
Parsonstown (1)	Dunleer (4)	42	118
Partick, q.s. pa.	Glasgow (2)	400	11736
Partick, to.	Glasgow (2)	400	36538

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Partick Division	.....	.....	77136
Particles	Kilmallock (5)	125	827
Partington	Partington	188	576
Partney	Spilsby (2)	126	345
Parton (1)	Parton	304	1452
Parton (2)	Parton	359	692

contains only a few houses, has a railway station. The church was erected in 1834, and, with the manse belonging to it, is about 3 miles from Crossmichael. P. House is a seat.

Parton Cross, ha., pa. of Eardisley (q.v.), W. Herefords., 6 S.E. of Kington.

Partridge Green, ha. with railway station, pa. of West Grinstead (q.v.), W. Sussex, 5 N.E. of Steyning.

Partrishow. [PATRICIO.]

Parwich (in Domesday "Perewic"), pa. and vil., W. Derbys.; ac. 3,264; soil light, overlying chiefly limestone. The church of St. Peter is in Norm. style. The north doorway and chancel of the old church have been preserved. Over the doorway is a tympanum of early date, and carved with symbolic figures of animals, discovered in the walls of the old church. The charities amount to about £100 a year. Here are remains of a camp, within which many Roman antiquities have been found.

Parwyd, sea-cliffs (600 ft.), S.W. Carnarvs., 16 W.S.W. of Pwllheli, forming the south-west termination of the peninsula of Lleyn. The cliffs, situated opposite Bardsey Isle, rise abruptly from the sea.

Parys Mountain, eminence (480 ft.), pa. of and 2 S. from Amlwch, N. Anglesey. Rich copper mines, originally worked by the Romans, were reopened in 1761–68 by Sir Nicholas Bayley (grandfather of the first Marquis of Anglesey) and the Rev. E. Hughes. The ore consists mainly of a sulphate of copper. Lead is also found in small quantities. The mines are said to derive their name from Robert Parys, Chamberlain of N. Wales in the time of Henry IV.

Pasley. [PATTESLEY.]

Passaford, ha., pa. of Otterton (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 W. of Sidmouth.

Passage, or Passage East, fishing vil. on the estuary of the Suir, pa. of Kill St. Nicholas (q.v.), co. Waterf., Ir., 6 S.E. of Waterford. The scenery in the neighbourhood is very striking, splendid views being obtained of the river Suir and a large stretch of country. The places of worship consist of a Protestant church and one for Catholics; the former a small building, beautifully situated upon rising ground. There is also a good school.

Passage West, seaport and watering-place on the west shore of the Lee estuary, opposite Great Island, pas. of Marmullane and Monkstown (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 7 E.S.E. of Cork. The town comprises one principal street, extending along the shore for nearly a mile, with small streets and lanes diverging from it, to which there is a ferry to Queenstown, and the traffic during the summer months is very great. There are Catholic and Protestant churches and schools and a dispensary. The interesting character of the scenery, the varied and delightful views over the river and the islands, and its general salubrity, have combined to render Passage highly desirable as a place of permanent residence, and attractive during the summer for the fine air and sea-bathing.

Passenham, pa. and vil., S. Northants, 1 S. of Stony Stratford; ac. 3,126; soil loam and gravel, overlying stone and gravel. The Buckingham Canal runs through this pa., and the river Ouse divides it in some parts from Bucks. The church of St. Guthlac is Dec.; in the chancel are seven stalls on each side, richly carved, with niches supported by Ionic pillars at the back of each stall, each niche bearing the name of an apostle or saint in gilt letters. During some alterations at the rectory in 1873 a number of skeletons were found, and are now placed in the museum at Bristol. There are charities amounting to about £60 a year. King Edward the Elder, son of Alfred the Great, is recorded by the Venerable Bede to have encamped here with his army in A.D. 921. A portion of the forest of Whittlebury is in this pa. P. Manor is a seat. Adjoining the manor house are two huge barns—one erected in the reign of Henry VIII., the other in 1626.

Passfield, ha., pa. of Bramshott (q.v.), N.E. Hants, about 9 N.E. of Petersfield.

Passingford Bridge, ha. on the Roding, pa. of Stapleford Tawney (q.v.), W. Essex.

Pass of, for passes, generally, see principal name. Thus the PASS OF BRANDER will be found under BRANDER, PASS OF.

Pass of Awe, valley of the Awe (q.v.), N.E. Args., Sc., 10½ E. of Oban. The Awe enters the Pass (which is about 3 miles in length) after leaving the Pass of Brander on its way from Loch Awe to Loch Etive. The south declivity of Ben Cruachan ascends abruptly from its north bank. At the Bridge of Awe, about 2½ W. of Taynuilt, a severe conflict took place between Robert Bruce and a local chieftain.

Paston (1), coast pa., E. Norf., 9 S.E. of Cromer; ac. 1,390; soil mixed, resting on sand and gravel. In the E. Dec. church of St. Margaret (restored) is a fine monument with recumbent effigy, by Nathaniel Stone, to Catherine (Knevet), wife of Sir Edmund Paston (d. 1628); others of the Pastons are also buried in the church. The Paston Letters, written by or to members of this family during the reigns of Henry VI., Edward IV., Richard III., and Henry VII., were first published 1787–89, and have been edited by Mr. James Gairdner (1872–75) for the Arber series. P. Hall is a seat.

Paston (2), pa. and tp., N.E. Northants, about 2½ N. of Peterborough; ac. of pa. 3,464, of tp. 892; soil various, overlying silt and stone. The church of All Saints is chiefly Perp.; there is a screen of Perp. date remaining; the tower and the spire belong to the Trans. period from E. Eng. to Dec.; the chancel retains a piscina, sedilia, locker, and bracket, and there are mural tablets (one with effigy) and floor-stones. There are six small almshouses, and the church estate brings in about £26 a year. P. Hall is a seat.

Paston (3), tp., pa. of Kirknewton (q.v.), N. Northumb., 9 N.W. of Wooler; ac. 2,324 and 31 water. About ½ S. is P. Lake. On the hills are remains of entrenchments and ramparts, with fosses of considerable extent.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Parwich	Cromford (2)	143	498
Passage	Passage	172	623
Passage West	Waterford (6)	112	1765
Passenham	Wolverton (4)	52	1149

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Paston (1)	North Walsham (3)	130	278
Paston (2), pa.	Peterborough (2½)	76	1175
Paston (2), tp.	Peterborough (2½)	76	96
Paston (3)	Velvet Hall (4)	341	170

Pasture Beck, stream, N.W. Westmd., flows N.W. through Thresthwaite Glen, and falls into the Goldrill Beck, about 1 s. of Brothers' Water.

Pastures, ha., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 N. of Ripley.

Patcham, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 3 N. of Brighton; ac. 4,398; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1884) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the chancel contains a piscina, a monument to Richard Shelley (d. 1594), and a brass to Ann Stapley (d. 1637). During the restoration a painting of the "Doom" was laid bare.

Patchets Green, ha., pa. of Aldenham (q.v.), S.W. Herts., 2 N.E. of Watford.

Patching, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 6 N.W. of Worthing; ac. 1,767; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. John the Divine (restored 1889) is an E. Eng. flint building.

Patchole, ha., pa. of Kentisbury (q.v.), N. Dev., 9 N.E. of Barnstaple.

Patchway, tl. with railway station, pa. of Almondsbury (q.v.), W. Glouc., 6 N. of Bristol.

Pateley Bridge, eccl. pa., mkt. to. (s.), and head of a U., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 11 S.W. of Ripon. The to. is in a pleasant valley on the Nidd, and consists of one principal street on the hillside, declining steeply towards the river, over which is a stone bridge. The ancient church of St. Mary is now in ruins, a portion only being retained as a mortuary chapel. The church of St. Cuthbert (built 1827) is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan and Methodist chapels. The Mechanics' Institute comprises a reading-room and a good library. There are a few small charities. Flax-spinning and brewing are extensively carried on here. There are numerous lead mines in this locality, as well as quarries, from which large quantities of flag- and landing-stones are obtained. A fortnightly fair is held on Saturdays for sheep and cattle. In January, 1860, the Yorkshire Mining Company discovered, 2 miles from P. B., some very extensive caverns, known as Stump Cross Caverns, incrusted with stalactites and stalagmites of great brilliancy; these caverns extend about two hundred fathoms in length, forming a series of superincumbent chambers communicating with each other by small passages; some of these cavities are as large as good-sized rooms, and are described as having the appearance of a palace of jewels.

Pater or Pembroke Dock, eccl. pa. on inlet of Milford Haven, bor. and 2 N.W. of Pembroke (q.v.), S. Pembs. The church of St. John is a modern edifice of limestone. There are Methodist, Congregational, and Roman Catholic chapels. The principal feature of the place is the Royal Dockyard, established 1814, covering 80 ac., with every facility for the building and repairing of ironclads, and giving employment ordinarily to about 1,000 men. It is defended by a fort mounting twenty-four guns and two martello towers, while immediately behind and overlooking it is Barrack Hill, also strongly fortified. Within the dockyard is a military church, with memorial window to the officers and men of the Atlanta, lost 1813. Special objects of interest are the Nasmyth steam hammer and saw-mill. About ½ S.W. of Barrack Hill is the Government submarine depôt.

Paternosters. [PIERRES DE LECQ.]

Pathhead (1), q.s. pa., pa. of Dysart (q.v.), S.E. Fifes., Sc., lying within the burgh of Kirkcaldy.

Pathhead (2), vil., pa. of Crichton (q.v.), E. Edins., Sc., 11 S.S.E. of Edinburgh. The principal street is broad and straight, and the houses are well built. The surrounding country abounds in beautiful scenery.

Pathhead (3), ha., pa. of New Cumnock, E. Ayrs., Sc. It forms part of the vil. of New Cumnock (q.v.).

Path Hill, ha., pa. of Whitchurch (q.v.), S. Oxon, about 6 N.W. of Reading.

Pathlow, vil., pa. of Aston Cantlow (q.v.), S. Warws., 3 N.W. of Stratford-on-Avon.

Path of Condie, or Pathstruie, ha., pa. of Forgandenny (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc., about 5 S.E. of Forteviot railway station.

Pathstruie. [PATH OF CONDIE.]

Patiemuir. [PETTYMUIR.]

Patmore Heath, pl., pa. of and 1½ N. from Albury (q.v.), E. Herts. There is an unsectarian mission chapel.

Patna, q.s. pa. and vil., pas. of Straiton, Dalmellington, Dalrymple, and Kirkmichael (q.v.), Mid Ayrs., Sc. The vil. is about 10 S.E. of Ayr, and stands on the banks of the Doon, which abounds with trout. There are Established and United Presbyterian churches. Coal and ironstone are plentifully obtained in this neighbourhood, and the working of these minerals furnishes employment to many of the villagers.

Patney (Anglo-Saxon Paetenigge = "peaty island," for the river Avon divides above it and re-unites below it), pa. and vil., Mid Wilts., 6 S.E. of Devizes; ac. 830; soil and subsoil clay, chalk, and greensand, with some peat. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1877) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a canopied piscina, and there is a double sedile.

Patricio, or Partrishow, pa., S. Brecons., 5 N.E. of Crickhowell; ac. 1,479. The pa. is situated in a mountainous district, and the surrounding country presents some fine scenery. The church is dedicated to St. Ishow.

Patrick, coast pa., W. I. of M., 1 S. by E. of Peel; ac. 10,634. The surface is mountainous, with fertile valleys. Lead is mined and slate quarried in the pa. The church of St. Patrick dates from 1714; there is also a chapel-of-ease, and the Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The hill Slieauwhuaillan was, according to tradition, a place of punishment for witches, persons suspected of the evil art being rolled down

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Patcham	Preston Park (1½)	49	1064
Patching	Angmering (2½)	63	270
Pateley Bridge	Pateley Bridge	217	2910
Pater	New Milford (2)	73	10481
Pathhead (1)	Dysart (1)	416	4285
Pathhead (2)	Dalhousie (3)	388	545

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pathhead (3)	New Cumnock (1)	369	532
Patna, q.s. pa.	Patna	389	908
Patna, vil.	Patna	389	456
Patney	Woodborough (2)	79	106
Patricio	Abergavenny (5)	166	54
Patrick	Peel (1)	288	2228

the side in spiked casks. Glen Meay (q.v.) is in the pa. On the coast near Dalby are some curious caves. [CRONK-NY-ARREY-LHAA.]

Patrick Brompton, pa., tp., and vil., N.R. Yorks., 3½ W.N.W. of Bedale; ac. of pa. 4,173, of tp. 1,238; soil gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. Patrick is E. Eng. There is an endowed school.

Patrick's Island, or Saint Patrick's Island, island in the west vicinity of Peel (q.v.), pa. of German,

PATRICK'S ISLAND.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

W. I. of M. The island embraces 7½ ac., rises abruptly from the sea only a few yards from the shore, and is connected with Peel by a causeway.

Patrick's Well, vil. with railway station, pas. of Kilkeedy, Killonahan, and Mungret (q.v.), W. co. Lim., Ir., 7 S.W. of Limerick. Here is a Roman Catholic church and a national school.

Patricroft, eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of Eccles (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 5 W. of Manchester. Christ Church, built 1868, is in E. Eng. style; and there are Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan, and Free Methodist chapels. The large Volunteer Drill Hall dates from 1892. The Eccles and P. Hospital is a red-brick building with stone facings. There is a Home for Children in Green Lane; and the public baths form a square brick building. P. has large silk-throwing and weaving mills, extensive ironworks, cotton mills, and a quilting factory.

Patrington, pa. and small ancient to., E.R. Yorks., 15 S.E. of Hull; ac. 3,693; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Patrick (restored) is Dec. with Perp. insertions. The spacious chancel has a large Perp. east window, the jambs of which, on the exterior, are carried some distance below it, and the space thus inclosed is relieved with arcaded panelling. There are sedilia and a piscina, and on the north side an Easter sepulchre in unusually perfect condition, consisting of four horizontal stages, the lowermost inclosing figures of the three Roman guards under ogee crocketed arches, and the third exhibiting a representation of the "Resurrection"; the other divisions are vacant; the uppermost is finished with a depressed crocketed arch, flanked by pinnacles; the rood-screen belongs to the Tudor period, and there is a good Jacobean pulpit bearing the date 1612; the transepts are of two bays each, and have turret staircases at their western angles, and retain piscinæ; the eastern aisle of the south transept has in the centre a three-sided apse or Lady Chapel, at the entrance to which, and pendent from the groined ceiling, is an ancient stone lantern or, possibly, a reliquary, open on the side facing the east; the walls bear traces of fresco painting. The font, formed out of a single block of Tadcaster stone, is a twelve-sided cylinder, enriched on the outside with traceried arches divided by crocketed pinnacles, and having triangular crocketed canopies. During the restoration the recumbent effigy of a woman in religious habit was discovered beneath the pews, and two tombstones were recovered from the wall of the south aisle. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The Temperance Hall dates from 1870. There are some small charities, and Linsdall's Hospital is for four poor widows. The trade is chiefly in seed, corn, coal, and agricultural produce; and there are flour mills. P., anciently a Roman station, was granted to the Archbishops of York by King Cnut, and continued a distinct manor, and remained in their possession till the Reformation. In the reign of Edward II. a charter was granted to William, Archbishop of York, that he and his successors, archbishops of the same place, should for ever have a market here every week on Monday, and one fair every year of two days' duration. There was formerly a market for corn, but it has long since been discontinued. Ruston House is a seat.

Patrixbourne, pa. and vil. on the Lesser Stour, E. Kent, 8 S.E. of Canterbury; ac. 1,639; soil loam, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. Mary contains some very fine Norm. work, including the tower doorway, the north doorway, and some of the chancel windows; there are also some Perp. windows, and a Dec. niche in the chancel; there are two monuments of the Conyngham family. Bifrons is a seat.

Patshull, pa. and vil., S.W. Staffs., on the border of Salop, 9 N.W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 1,850; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary, beautifully situated in P. Park, is in the Italian style. It was restored and a north aisle added in 1874. It contains a marble monument of Sir Richard Astley (d. 1687) and his two wives, with standing effigies of all three, and an inscription; and another monument with recumbent effigies commemorating Sir John de Astley, a knight of great distinction in the reign of Henry VI., and his wife, with an inscription round the margin. P. Park is the seat of the Earl of Dartmouth.

Pattack (1), stream, pa. of Laggan, S.W. Invs., Sc., issues from Loch Pattack, and runs about 8 S. and then nearly 2½ W.S.W. to the head of Loch Laggan, 16 W.S.W. of Kingussie.

Pattack (2), loch, pa. of Laggan, S.E. Invs., Sc., 20 S.W. of Kingussie. The loch is 7½ miles long and about ½ mile wide, and lies 1,430 ft. above the sea.

Patterdale, eccl. pa., vil., and valley, pa. of Barton (q.v.), N.W. Westmd., 10 N. of Ambleside. The vale extends about 4 miles southward from

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
PatrickBrompt'n, pa.	Bedale (4)	226	856
PatrickBrompt'n, tp.	Bedale (4)	226	163
Patrick's Well	Patrick's Well	137	216
Patricroft	Patricroft	189	12902
Patrington	Patrington	212	1127
Patrixbourne	Bekesbourne (½)	65	264
Patshull	Albrighton (3)	149	234
Patterdale	Troutbeck (8)	291	836

Ullswater, alongside the Goldrill Beck. The vil., at the head of Ullswater, is beautifully situated, and is a centre for excursions by land and water. The church of St. Patrick is in E. Eng. style, with saddleback tower on the north side. The Wesleyan chapel is in Gothic style. Near the church is St. Patrick's Well, where, it is said, that saint baptised several of the inhabitants of this dale, the ancient name of which is Patrick's Dale, and is so entered in the bishop's register of 1581. There is a small charity, and the school is endowed. In the pa. are several lead mines and some quarries. P. Hall is a seat.

Patterdale and Hartsop, tp., pa. of Barton (q.v.), N. Westmd., at the head of Ullswater; ac. 16,104 and 631 water. Hartsop Hall, now occupied as a farm, is a 15th-cent. manor house, but much modernised, consisting of two blocks at right angles to each other; the house has long mullioned windows and a good oak staircase with baluster-rails and ball-capped posts. The basement has a stone-vaulted cellar, from which a newel stair leads to the upper floors. [PATTERDALE.]

Puttersham, ha., pa. of and about 1 N.W. from Leatherhead (q.v.), Mid Surrey.

Pattesley, or Pasley, pl. (formerly a pa.), pa. of Oxwick and Pattesley (q.v.), Mid Norf., 3½ S. of Fakenham. The church has disappeared, but there are portions of its walls at the end of a farmhouse.

Pattingham, pa. and vil., S.W. Staffs., on the borders of Salop, 6 W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 2,501; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Chad is Norm. and E. Eng., with a massive Dec. tower. Restorations and additions have been effected 1857, 1865, and 1890. In 1700 a gold torque weighing 3 lb. 2 oz. was found in the poor's land (which produces £39 annually), and another piece of gold in 1780. There is a brick kiln in the pa. A horticultural show is held annually in August, and a fair on the Thursday after Whit Sunday.

Pattishall, pa. and vil., S. Northants, 4 W. of Blisworth; ac. 2,663; soil various, overlying iron-stone and clay. The church of the Holy Cross (restored 1872) is Norm., with some remains of Saxon work. There are two Baptist chapels and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to nearly £400 yearly. Shoemaking is the staple trade.

Pattiswick, pa. and vil., N. Essex, 4 E. of Braintree; ac. 1,297; soil loam and clay, overlying the same. The church of St. Mary (restored 1882) dates from the 14th cent.

Patton, tp., pa. of and 4 N.E. from Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd.; ac. 637. Shaw End, in extensive grounds commanding fine views, is a seat.

Paul, pa. and vil., S.W. Cornw., about 2½ S. of Penzance; ac. 3,433; soil rich loam, overlying clay-slate and granite. The church of St. Paul (restored 1893) is Perp.: the register records that "the Spanyer burnt this church in the year 1595;" a small portion of the old church is still standing, and bears traces of the fire; between the nave and north aisle is a small arched opening, perhaps a squint. In the churchyard wall is a monument with inscriptions in English and Cornish to the memory of Dorothy Pentreath (d. 1778, aged 102) who was supposed to be the last person who spoke the ancient Cornish language. Affixed to the wall is also the quatrefoiled head of a cross, with a figure of the "Crucifixion." In the north aisle is the tomb of William Godolphin (d. 1689), and above it hangs some ancient armour. The charities amount to about £5 a year, and there is an almshouse for the maintenance of six old men and six old women born in the pa. At Trewoofe, a romantic valley, are the remains of a triple entrenchment, with subterranean chambers or caves connected by passages; one of these caves is said to have afforded concealment to a party of Royalists, who thus escaped the forces of Sir Thomas Fairfax. In the pa. is a fine chalybeate spring, and on Paul Down stands an ancient cross 6 ft. high.

Paulerspury, pa. and large vil., S. Northants, 3 S. of Towcester; ac. 2,900; soil strong clay, overlying clay. The church of St. James (E. Eng., with Dec. chancel and nave and Perp. tower) was renovated 1886. It contains alabaster figures of Sir Arthur Throckmorton and his wife (1603); an altar-tomb of stone, bearing two oak effigies of a knight in plain armour and a lady, supposed to represent Sir Robert de Pavely, Knight, and his wife (1329); a brass inscribed to Sir Henry Mylnar, parson (d. 1512). There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Charities amount to about £80 yearly. Pillow-lace is manufactured here to some extent. Edward Bernard, D.D., astronomer, linguist, and critic, was born here 1638, and William Carey, D.D., "the Patriarch of British Missions" and the first Oriental professor of languages in India, 1761.

Paull, pa., tp., and fishing vil. on the Humber, E.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Hull; ac. of pa. 6,911, tidal water and foreshore 6,893, of tp. 4,921, tidal water and foreshore 6,892; soil gravelly, in the lower parts warp and clay, overlying clay. The church of SS. Mary and Andrew (restored) is a Gothic building of hewn stone and cobbles; on the north side of the chancel is a broken stone lectern. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Near the river is a large battery, and a submarine mining establishment adjoins. A lighthouse was built here in 1836, but is now disused. P. was visited in 1642 by Charles I. for the purpose of reviewing his forces. P. Holme, now a farmhouse, was anciently the mansion of the Holme family; an old brick tower, which formed the north wing, is still standing; the remainder of the house was built in 1837 from the materials of the old Hall.

Paulton, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 10 S.W. of Bath; ac. 1,060; soil loamy, resting on clay and limestone rock. The church of the Holy Trinity was rebuilt (except the tower) 1839, in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Baptist chapels. The Cottage Hospital was opened 1872, but the present building dates from

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Patterdale & Hartsop	Troutbeck (8)	291	826
Pattingham, pa.	Wolverhampton (6)	125	984
Pattingham, tp.	Wolverhampton (6)	125	859
Pattishall	Blisworth (4)	63	890
Pattiswick	Braintree (4)	45	341
Patton	Kendal (4)	251	82
Paul	Penzance (2½)	320	5977
Paulerspury	Roade (4)	60	1065
Paull, pa.	Hedon (3)	204	822
Paull, tp.	Hedon (3)	204	531
Paulton	Hallatrow (1)	119	2301

1886. There is an iron foundry and a large shoe factory, and butter- and cheese-making is extensively carried on. A Working Men's Institute, with a large reading-room, was opened 1893 in connection with the shoe factory. P. House, in the centre of the vil., is a large Jacobean mansion.

Pauntley, pa., picturesquely situated on the Leadon, W. Gloucs., on the Worcs. border, 10 N.W. of Gloucester; ac. 1,461; soil sandy loam and clay, overlying rock. The Norm. church of St. John the Evangelist, believed to have been built soon after the Conquest by Walter de Pauntley, contains a mural brass to Elizabeth (Whittington), wife of Sir Giles Pole (d. 1546), and a handsome marble monument to Anne Somerset (d. 1764), to her sister Anna Carolina Brickendine (d. 1770), and to their nephew, Henry Blachford Scudamore (d. 1795). On the banks of the Leadon are springs of a saline character.

Pauperhaugh, formerly a separate tp., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Raw, pa. of Rothbury (q.v.), N. Northumb., 3½ S.E. of Rothbury, on the road to Morpeth. P. is on the Coquet, here crossed by a stone bridge of five arches.

Pavenham, pa. and pretty vil. on the Ouse, N. Beds., 6 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 1,320; soil and subsoil clay. The small church of St. Peter is E. Eng. and Dec.; its form is peculiar, widening towards the east and the transept also towards the south. Sir Thomas Hubrahum, Knight, was buried in it 1508. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a reading and coffee room. Pillow-lace is made here to a small extent; there is also mat-making and rush-plaiting. The mat-making business was brought from London at the time of the great plague. P. Bury is a seat.

Pavey Ark, cliffs on the north shore of Stickle Tarn (q.v.). W. Westmd., about 6 N.W. of Ambleside. They lie on the north-west side of Harrison Stickle (q.v.).

Paviland, pl. in Gower peninsula, pa. of Penmaen (q.v.). N.W. Glamorgs., 14½ W.S.W. of Swansea. On the cliffs here are two bone-caves, in which have been found remains of elephants, hyænas, and other quadrupeds, various birds, and the skeleton of a woman; also ornaments, pieces of ivory, and other relics. On a rock above is a large British encampment.

Pavilion, estate on the Tweed, pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Melrose (q.v.), N. Roxbs., Sc. There is a seat of the same name.

Pawle Island, islet in Lough Strangford, pa. of and 3 N. by E. from Killyleagh (q.v.), E. co. Down, Ir. The islet is ½ mile long from north to south, and lies ¾ mile from the west shore of the lough.

Pawlett, pa. and vil. on the Parret, N. Somerset, 4 N. of Bridgwater; ac. 3,033; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. John the Baptist is of various periods, the oldest portion being the south porch, which is Norm. There are extensive brick works. "P. Hams," about 2,000 ac., is said to be the richest pasture-land in England.

Paxford, ha., pa. of Blockley (q.v.), E. Worcs., 3½ N.W. of Moreton-in-the-Marsh.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Portions.
Pauntley	Gloucester (10)	114	155
Pavenham	Oakley (2½)	53	387
Pawlett	Highbridge (3)	143	483
Paxton, Great	Offord (2½)	56	262

Pax Hill Park. [LINDFIELD.]

Paxton, vil. on the west bank of the Tweed, pa. of Hutton (q.v.), E. Berws., Sc., 4½ W. of Berwick. P. House, a spacious mansion in Grecian style, is a seat.

Paxton, Great, pa. and vil., S. Hunts., 3 N. of St. Neots; ac. 1,425; soil and subsoil clay. The church of the Holy Trinity is Norm. and E. Eng., and there is a Gospel Hall in the vil. There are some small charities.

Paxton, Little, pa. and vil. pleasantly situated on the Ouse, S. Hunts., 2½ N. of St. Neots; ac. 1,445; soil and subsoil clay and gravel. The church of St. James is E. Eng. There are some small charities. Extensive paper mills by the Ouse are partly in the pa. P. Park, with a good collection of pictures, and P. Hall are seats.

Payhembury, pa. and vil., E. Dev., 14 N.E. of Exeter; ac. 2,698; soil sandy, overlying clay, sand, and stone-brash. The church of St. Mary, once attached to Ford Abbey, is a Perp. building containing a fine wooden screen; there are monuments to Mrs. Dorothy Goswill and Rev. Timothy Terry (1745). The churchyard contains a very old yew-tree. There are charities of £30 yearly. Hembury Fort (q.v.) commands a fine view.

Paythorne, tp. on the Ribble (here crossed by a bridge of four arches), pa. of Gisburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 9 S. of Settle; ac. 2,703. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Paytoe. [ADFORTON, STANWAY, PAYTOE, AND GRANGE.]

Peak Cavern, pa. of Castleton (q.v.), N. Derbys. It is close to the vil. of Castleton, and beneath the ruins of William Peveril's Castle.

Peak Forest, pa. and vil., N. Derbys., 5 N.E. of Buxton; ac. 5,299; soil brown loam, overlying limestone. The old church (erected 1657), partly in the Italian style, has been pulled down. The present church of King Charles the Martyr (1876) is in Late Perp. style; it contains some monuments brought from the old church; the centre light of the east window has been filled with stained glass to the memory of Lord Frederick Charles Cavendish, Chief Secretary for Ireland, assassinated in the Phœnix Park, Dublin, May 6, 1882. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are some charities. In the pa. are extensive limeworks. P. F. was originally a free chapelry in the king's forest, and was extra-episcopal and extra-parochial, and up to 1804, when it was abolished by Act of Parliament, there was an average of 80 weddings annually, which might fairly be termed "Gretna" marriages. The minister then held a court for the proving of wills and making of affidavits, etc. The ancient seal, now in the possession of the vicar, is dated 1661.

Peak Forest Canal extends from Ashton-under-Lyne, S.E. Lancs., southwards past Marple and Whalley Bridge, Cheshire, to Milton, Derbys. Its length is about 21 miles.

Peak Hill, ha., pa. of Cowbit (q.v.), S. Lincs., 4 S.E. of Spalding.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Portions.
Paxton, Little	St. Neots (2)	52	243
Payhembury	Sidmouth Junc. (2)	159	461
Paythorne	Long Preston (5)	232	105
Peak Forest	Peak Forest	164	502

Peak Hill (2), eminence (about 500 ft.) on the south coast of Dev., about 1 W.N.W. of Sidmouth. It commands an extensive view. Peak House is a seat.

Peakirk, pa., N. Northants, on the borders of Lincs., 5½ N.N.W. of Peterborough; ac. 630; soil rich and productive, overlying gravel and silt. The small church of St. Pega is a curious structure, chiefly Norm. and E. Eng.

Peak, The, hilly district, N.W. Derbys., about 9 S.E. of Glossop, having Castleton for its capital. It measures about 30 by 22 miles, and is watered by the Derwent, Dove, and Wye. The Peak forms part of the Pennine chain of hills, and culminates in Kinder Scout (1,981 ft.). The high flat moors are bordered by bold continuous escarpments, and broken by deep narrow valleys of great beauty—features which have rendered the Peak District renowned for its picturesque scenery.

Peartree Green, vil., pa. of St. Mary Extra (q.v.), S. Hants, about 1 E. of Southampton.

Peartree Hill, ha., pa. of Beckingham (q.v.), N. Notts., 4 N.W. of Gainsborough.

Pease Burn, stream, pa. of Cockburnspath, N.E. Berws., Sc., runs about 3 N. to the North Sea. The deep, narrow, wooded dell (called "Pease Deane") which forms the lower part of its valley is extremely picturesque. It is crossed by a four-arched viaduct, constructed in 1786, about 300 ft. long and 127 ft. in height. In ancient days the ravine formed an important defence against invasion from England.

Peasedown, eccl. pa., pas. of Camerton, Dunkerton, and Wellow (q.v.), E. Somerset, 6½ S.W. of Bath. The church of St. John the Baptist (built 1892–93) is in E. Eng. style, and there are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Peasemore, pa. and vil., S. Berks., 7 N.W. of Newbury; ac. 2,049; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Barnabas was rebuilt 1842, in Dec. style. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Peasenhall, pa. and large vil., E. Suff., 7 N.E. of Framlingham; ac. 2,318; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Michael (restored and partly rebuilt 1860–61) is a handsome Gothic building. The vicarage house, which stands on an eminence overlooking the village, was erected in 1873. Here is a Congregational chapel, also a Wesleyan chapel. The Brethren have a preaching-room. There are some charities. A Mechanics' Institute with reading-room, which is in connection with the County Society at Ipswich, has been established here. In the pa. are extensive agricultural implement works.

Peasmarsh, pa. and vil., E. Sussex, 4 N.W. of Winchelsea; ac. 3,718; soil loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1850 and 1864) is a small E. Eng. building; the chancel arch is Norm. The charities are small. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Woodside is a seat.

Peatling Magna, pa. and vil., S. Leics., 7 N.N.E. of Lutterworth; ac. 1,862; soil and subsoil various. The church of All Saints, originally Norm., has E. Eng. and Dec. work. In the churchyard is the base of the old village cross.

Peatling Parva, pa. and vil., S. Leics., 4½ N.E. of Lutterworth; ac. 964; soil clayey loam, overlying clay, and in some parts gravel. The church of St. Andrew dates from the 14th cent., and the tower and porch are of the 15th cent. Beneath the communion table is an alabaster slab with a carved effigy of the founder of the tower, William Bradgate (d. 1480). The poor's land produces £40 a year. Little P. Hall is a seat.

Pebble Ridge. [WESTWARD HO.]

Pebmarsh, pa. and ancient vil., traversed by a feeder of the Colne, N. Essex, 3½ N.E. of Halstead; ac. 2,062; soil chiefly heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1877) is Dec. In the chancel is an ancient brass of a knight in armour, cross-legged, beneath a large and fine but much-mutilated canopy, and with marginal inscription; the effigy is believed to represent a member of the Fitz Ralph family (c. 1370). Here is a Baptist chapel. The charities amount to about £7 a year. The Moat, pleasantly situated in a park, is a seat.

Pebsbury, ha., pa. of Huish Episcopi (q.v.), S. Somerset, about 1 S.E. of Langport.

Pebworth, pa. and vil., N.E. Glouc., on the Worcs. border, 7½ E. by N. of Evesham; ac. 2,956; soil rich loam and strong clay, overlying stiff clay. The church of St. Peter, of various periods, beginning with the 13th cent., contains a curious mural painting serving as a memorial to the Martin family, and dated 1629. In the churchyard is the stone effigy of a priest of the 14th cent. in eucharistic vestments, also portions of two ancient crosses. There is a Wesleyan and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities yield about £20.

Peckforton, tp., pa. of Bunbury (q.v.), S.W. Chesh., 3½ S.W. of Tarporley; ac. 1,741. P. Castle, the seat of Lord Tollemache, is situated on a wooded eminence; it is a building of red sandstone, and the circular keep forms a landmark for many miles.

Peckham, south-east suburb of London, in the pa. of Camberwell (q.v.), Surrey, about 3 S.E. of St. Paul's. It contains five eccl. pas.: St. Andrew, St. Chrysostom, St. Jude, St. Mark, and St. Mary Magdalene, with modern churches. There are also many Nonconformist places of worship. The High Street still contains some quaint houses. Near the High Street is P. House, formerly a private mansion, afterwards converted into a lunatic asylum. The police station forms part of what was once a fine mansion, subsequently used as a convent. The house in which Goldsmith was employed as a school tutor was pulled down in 1876. Branching out of the Peckham Road, a number of new thoroughfares sprang up during the last quarter of the 19th cent., the names of which impart a legal tone to the district, the roads being dedicated to Lords Lyndhurst, Denman, and Selborne, and to Mr. Justice Talfourd. Peckham

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peakirk	Peakirk	82	252
Peasedown	Radstock (3)	114	1385
Peasemore	Newbury (7)	53	263
Peasenhall	Darsham (3½)	95	801
Peasmarsh	Winchelsea (4)	70	809

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peatling Magna	Countesthorpe (2)	98	160
Peatling Parva	Countesthorpe (2)	98	117
Pebmarsh	Ford Gate (3)	54	491
Pebworth	Honeybourne (2)	101	641
Peckforton	Beeston Castle	169	193

Fair, with its wild-beast and other shows, was a famous resort in the 18th cent. for holiday-makers; but it grew to be a nuisance, and was abolished in 1827. Peckham Rye, a tract of common, has from time immemorial been used as a recreation ground.

Peckham Division, one of the three parl. divs. of the bor. of Camberwell (q.v.), Surrey. It returns one member.

Peckham, East, pa. and straggling vil., Mid Kent, 8 W.S.W. of Maidstone; ac. 3,403; soil clay and loamy, subsoil various. The navigable Medway passes through the pa. The church of St. Michael is Perp., and retains some ancient stained glass. The church of the eccl. pa. of Holy Trinity is in Perp. style; and the Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels. There are flour mills and a large tannery.

Peckham, West, pa., Mid Kent, 8 S.W. of Maidstone; ac. 1,577; soil and subsoil clay and stone-brash. The church of St. Dunstan, originally Norm., is now chiefly Perp.; the north chancel aisle, or chapel, encloses a large pew belonging to the Geary family, with much heavy wood-work of the 17th cent.; and there is also a sumptuous marble monument with male and female effigies under a rich canopy, and dated 1722; in the chancel is a brass, now incomplete, with an inscription to William Culpepper, Knight, and Elizabeth, his wife. The charities amount to £20 yearly for clothing. Hamptons and Oxon Hoath are seats.

Peckleton, pa. and pleasant vil., S.W. Leics., 8 S.W. of Leicester; ac. 2,180; soil mostly loam, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (restored 1869) is E. Eng. and Dec.; it contains a 15th-cent. monument to Sir Thomas Harvey and his wives, and a slab with a recumbent figure, supposed to represent the founder of the church; in the chancel is a piscina. The charities are small. Tooley Hall is a seat.

Pedden, ha., pa. of Staple (q.v.), E. Kent, 5 W. of Sandwich.

Pedders Way, an ancient road from Ixworth, in Suffolk, by Brettenham (Norfolk), Threxton, Swaffham, Castle Acre, Fring, to Hunstanton on The Wash.

Pedmore, pa. and vil., N. Worcs., 1½ S. of Stourbridge; ac. 1,474; soil rather light, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Peter, originally Norm., has been rebuilt in E. Eng. style; the Norm. doorway still stands in the south wall. P. Hall is a seat.

Pedn Mean-an-Mor, headland on the south-west coast of Cornw., about 4 S.E. of Lands End.

Pedn Mean Dhu, headland on the west coast of Cornw., about 1 N. of Lands End.

Pedwardine, ha., pa. of Brampton Bryan (q.v.), N. Herefords., 6 N.E. of Presteigne.

Pedwell, ha., pa. of Ashcott (q.v.), W. Somerset, 8 E. of Bridgwater.

Peebles, pa., royal burgh, co. and mkt. to. (T.), E. Peebs., Sc.; ac. 16,597; soil mostly light, but tolerably fertile, overlying Silurian rocks. The town, 22 S. of Edinburgh, is situated in the centre of the pa., on a beautiful plain, having the Tweed running along its southern side and the Peebles (or Eddleston) Water along its northern limit, surrounded by an amphitheatre of hills; the neighbourhood is adorned by numerous plantations and mansions. Among the latter Kingsmeadows, Kerfield, Venlaw, and Rosetta are the most conspicuous. For a long period P. has consisted of two towns, respectively called New and Old; the former occupies the ridge of a peninsula projecting westward, along the northern side of which flows the Eddleston, over which is a bridge forming a communication with the Old Town, which lies on the face of sloping ground. The Eddleston Water, by a bend round the head of the peninsula, falls into the Tweed, over which there is another bridge of five arches, which has been widened and improved. Numbers of visitors make this place

PEEBLES, FROM NEIDPATH CASTLE.
(Photo. James McKnaught and Son, Peebles.)

their residence in summer. There is a golf course near the town. The Established church (1887) is in the style of the 13th-cent. period of Gothic architecture of the Scottish type. There is also an Episcopal church, near which is the Leckie Memorial United Presbyterian church (1877). Other places of worship are the United Presbyterian church, the Baptist church, and the Roman Catholic church (1858). P. has Town and County Halls. The Hydropathic Establishment is of red sandstone, on the face of a hill overlooking the town. The Chambers' Institution is a fine building in High Street, containing a library of 16,000 volumes, a reading-room, museum, or gallery of art. Within the edifice is also a large hall for lectures and exhibitions, and a county museum. This valuable property was presented to the burgh by the late William Chambers, LL.D. (d. 1883), founder, with his brother Robert, of the publishing firm of W. & R. Chambers, Edinburgh. He was born here in 1800. The old Market Cross, which was in existence in 1320, was in 1807 ordered for sale as being ruinous. The shaft was secured and preserved by the late Sir John Hay till 1858, when he handed it over to the burgh, and this stands on its original site. The Unionist Club, in High Street, was opened in October, 1895. There are four woollen mills, which give employment to a large

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peckham Division	.....	.....	83483
Peckham, East	Yalding (2)	37	2002
Peckham, West	Wateringbury (3)	39	493
Peckleton	Desford (2½)	501	242

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pedmore	Stourbridge (1)	141	476
Peebles, pa.	Peebles	382	5361
Peebles, burgh	Peebles	382	3029
Peebles, to.	Peebles	382	4704

number of hands. Fairs are held on the first Tuesday in March (for hiring servants) and the second Tuesday in October. The Royal Company of Archers, or Queen's Body Guard for Scotland, come to P. from Edinburgh occasionally, attired in their ancient dress, to shoot for a silver arrow, given by the burgh. An Infectious Diseases Hospital was opened in 1895; the building is a wood and iron one, and has 12 beds. The ruins of the two ancient churches are still extant, one of which was dedicated to St. Andrew, the other built by Alexander III. in the middle of the 13th cent., and dedicated to the Holy Cross and St. Nicholas; the same monarch erected likewise a house contiguous for himself, which continued a royal residence until the accession of James VI. to the throne of England.

Peebles-shire (sometimes called Tweeddale), a southern co. of Scotland, is bounded on the north and north-east by Edins., on the east and south-east by Selks., on the south by Dumfs., and by the co. of Lanarks. for almost the whole extent of its west border. In length, from its southern border to its extreme northern apex, it measures fully 30 miles; from east to west its breadth varies from 20 to 10 miles. Its form is exceedingly irregular, and it comprehends an area of 354 square miles, or 226,899 ac. The co. derives its present name from the co. town, and Tweeddale from being the district in which the Tweed has its source, and the vale through which it pursues its course to the east. The Gadeni, a tribe of Britons who inhabited this territory, have left traces of their occupation in the names of places, warlike remains, and sepulchral tumuli. About 80 A.D. the Romans subdued the British aborigines in the district. After the abdication of the Roman power in 410, the Gadeni associated with the kindred Britons of Strathclyde, and the descendants of those early settlers continued here throughout the Pictish period. About 530 the Picts were defeated by King Arthur at Cademuir, near Peebles. Kenneth III., King of the Scots, obtained possession of the district about 974. The next and last class of intruders on the district were the Anglo-Saxons, from Lothian, who finally established a settlement in the shire. At different times the co. suffered in a small degree from the inroads of marauders from the English side of the border, but these generally passed to the east, up the coast, or through Dumfries and Lanark. At the defeat of Montrose (1645), at Philiphaugh, some of the heads of the best families fell or were taken prisoners, fighting on the side of royalty, and Montrose retired to Traquair, in this co.; but in the insurrection of 1679, in the West of Scotland, ended by the battle of Bothwell Bridge, there were few natives of Tweeddale; the troops in 1715 and 1745 also passed clear of this co. Since these stirring events the co. has not been prominent in the scenes of history. The co. is an uninterrupted series of hill and mountain ranges, so close upon each other that there is scarcely to be found a plain of moderate dimensions in the district, and not one of any kind unless upon the margin of the Tweed or its tributaries. The elevations are very numerous, and some of them of considerable altitude. The following are among the most conspicuous:—Hartfield (2,916 ft.); Broad Law (2,850 ft.); Dollar Law (2,840 ft.); Scrape (2,560 ft.); Gume Cleugh (2,200 ft.); Dundroich, Pykestane, and Hell's Cleugh (each 2,100 ft.); Cardon (2,000 ft.); Cairn Hill (1,800 ft.); Broughton Heights (1,483 ft.); and Meigle (1,480 ft.). Within the 19th century the management of arable farms was in a deplorably low condition; but, in later years particularly, draining, ploughing, and planting have been carried out effectually, and the general features of the country highly improved. The sides and summits of the hills are at the present time here and there clothed with plantations; and the great vale of the Tweed and its minor valleys are well cultivated, enclosed, and divided; arable fields have taken the place of unproductive swamps, and are advancing up the sides of the hills. Oats is the chief corn crop; turnips are also raised largely, the soil being admirably adapted for the growing of this root, upon which large numbers of sheep of the Cheviot and black-faced breeds are fed. At the extremity of the shire coal is found. Freestone is only found at one end of the co., and the houses are nearly all built of blue whinstone. At Stobo there is a valuable quarry of blue slate; limestone and marl are plentiful, and ironstone is found in some parts. The shire is almost devoid of manufactures, except at Peebles and Innerleithen, where there are several mills for the production of tweeds and shawls. The district possesses in the purity and fall of its waters a superiority which makes it altogether advantageous for the establishment of paper and spinning mills, as well as general factories. The principal river is the Tweed, distinguished as the fourth of Scottish streams. The other rivers are the Lyne, the Leithen, and the Manow, all of which are tributary to the Tweed, and the Leggett, which runs into St. Mary's Loch, in Selks. In the rivers and small lakes there are salmon and trout, and a lake, called the West Water Loch, is noted for the quantity of eels with which it swarms. The North British Railway enters the north of the co. at Leadburn, and a branch of the Caledonian Railway runs from Peebles westward, through the centre of the co. to Biggar. P., in conjunction with Selks., returns one member to Parliament.

Peel (1). [HULTON, LITTLE.]

Peel (2), mkt. to. (F.) on the sea-coast, pa. of German (q.v.), west I. of M., 8½ W.S.W. of Douglas. P. (formerly "Holme Town," "Holme Peel," or "Holme Pile") is an old-fashioned town with narrow irregular streets lined by houses of local red sandstone. It is now coming into favour as a seaside resort; handsome new houses are being erected, and the town is undergoing constant improvements. The old pa. church of St. Peter (a 16th-cent. building remarkable for its striking tower 70 ft. in height) has been replaced by a handsome new church in Gothic style. The grammar school (founded 1746) is now incorporated with the mathematical school (founded 1763). Christian's Endowed School dates from 1652. Among the other buildings is a new courthouse. The marine promenade, constructed on the north side of the bay, has done much to render the town more attractive to visitors. Fishing is carried on extensively, herring and cod being taken in large quantities. The fishing fleet finds shelter in a

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Peebles-shire	.....	14750

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Peel (2)	Peel	288	3631

large and commodious harbour. The pier was constructed in 1798; connected with it is a jetty (1830) and a lighthouse (1811). There is also a lighthouse (built 1865) at the end of the north breakwater, with a fixed light visible 5 miles. The interest of P. centres in the collection of ruins forming P. Castle, on Patrick's Isle (7½ ac.), on the west side of the town, with which it is connected by a causeway, now used as a landing-quay; the island may also be reached by ferry. A rudely-formed flight of steps ascends to a gateway of unknown antiquity, which leads through the outer wall constructed by the Earl of Derby in the 16th cent. Hard by is the guard-room, said to be haunted by a spectral hound called Moddy Dhod ("Black Dog"). Within the castle precincts is the roofless cathedral of St. German, which is E. Eng. and later, the choir having been erected by Bishop Simon in the reign of Henry III.; above it rises an embattled central tower, and there is a crypt with a barrel vault, which was formerly the prison of the island, and continued to be used as a place of confinement for ecclesiastical offenders till nearly the end of the 18th cent. Among those immured here was the celebrated Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester, who was accused of attempting to murder King Henry VI. by magical practices. The other antiquities on the island include a round tower of the same character as those which remain in Ireland; a pyramidal mound, perhaps erected for military purposes by the Norsemen; the ancient church of St. Patrick, with Norm. characteristics; the "Mooar's Tower" or "Warwick's Prison," where the Earl of Warwick is said to have been imprisoned (1397–99); and "Fenella's Tower," familiar to readers of Scott's "Peveril of the Peak."

St. German's Cathedral, Peel.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Peel Bog. [Lullphanan.]

Peele, ha., pa. of Tarvin (q.v.), W. Chesh., about 5 N.E. of Chester. [Horton-with-Peele.]

Peel Fell (1,964 ft.), summit in Cheviot Hills, on border of Northumb., pa. of Castleton (q.v.), S.E. Roxbs., Sc., 8 S. by W. of Old Jedburgh. The Pictish Ditch or Catrail, consisting of a double fosse and vallum, strengthened at intervals by forts, was carried from this Border eminence northwest to Borthwick Water, and thence north to the vicinity of Galashiels.

Peelhatch, ha., pa. of Hillingdon (q.v.), W. Middx., 1 S.E. of Uxbridge.

Peel Island. [Piel Island.]

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Peels	Rothbury	312	55
Pegswood	Morpeth (2)	288	1400

Peels, tp., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Alwin N. Northumb.; ac. 3,147.

Peffer, or Peffery, stream, E. Ross a Sc., rises in pa. of Fodderty (q.v.), flows E., and E., in its lower course through Str to the head of Cromarty Firth, which just below Dingwall after a course 9½ miles.

Peffer Burn, East, stream, N.E. Had rises in south of pa. of Athelstaneford (E. by N., mainly along the south border then N.E. through Preston and Whitek North Sea, which it enters about 1¾ Whitekirk, after a sluggish course of abo The strath through which it flows was morass. During ments made in th of the stream in part of the 19th ce stags' antlers w below the surface, oaks imbedded i the banks.

Peffer Burn, We N.W. Haddings., in north-east of pa staneford (q.v.), to border of Dir about 1¼ W. of it then flows W. its lower course a bend) along the so of Dirleton to Abe which it enters a l Luffness, after a about 7 miles.

Pegsdon, ha., pa ington (q.v.), S.E. N.W. of Hitchin. leyans have a c is picturesquely among the range separating Be Herts., and comm views.

Pegswood, tp. vil., pa. of Bothal Northumb., 2 E. by N. of Morpeth; There are collieries.

Pegwell, ha., pa. of St. Lawrence, Thane Kent, 1 S.W. of Ramsgate. It is famous fo which are largely potted here. [Ebbs F

Pelcomb, ha., pa. of Camrose (q.v.), W 2 N.W. of Haverfordwest.

Peldon, or Peltington, pa. and vil., 7½ S. of Colchester, on the road to Merse ac. 2,158 and 39 water; soil heavy loam, loam. The Perp. church of St. Mary t occupies the site of an ancient church, re Domesday. Traces of this (Norm.) buil discovered during the restoration (1856).

Pelham Brent, pa. and vil., E. Hert Essex border, 5 E. of Buntingford; ac. heavy, overlying clay. The place derive according to Chauncy, from a conflag

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or
Peldon	Wyvenhoe (4)
Pelham Brent	Braughing (5)

which church and village were burned, in the time of Henry I.; and Norden, the topographer, states that in his time (1598) traces remained of the destroyed buildings. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; in the north wall is a tomb reputed to be that of one Piers Shonks, a legendary dragon-slayer of the 11th cent., who is said to have died in 1086; it bears on the top a thick slab of Petworth marble, on which are emblematical carvings in relief; the tomb is no doubt old, but was evidently constructed many years after the period assigned to this hero; there is a brass in the nave to Mary, wife of Francis Floyer (d. 1625), and Anne, his second wife (d. 1627). The charities amount to about £20 a year.

Pelham Furneaux. [FURNEAUX PELHAM.]

Pelhams Lands, pa., S. Lincs., 10 N.W. of Boston; ac. 1,398; soil clayey and well suited for the growth of cereals. This tract, which lies along the west bank of the Witham, was formerly extra-parochial.

Pelham Stocking, pa. and vil., E. Herts., 8 N.W. of Bishop Stortford; ac. 647; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is E. Eng. On the floor of the nave is a small brass shield, bearing a merchant's mark, and believed to indicate the burial-place of one of the Huddleston family.

Pelsall, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Wolverhampton (q.v.), S. Staffs., 3 N. of Walsall; ac. 1,194. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (rebuilt 1843–44) is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and mission chapels. The charities amount annually to £30. There are coal mines and iron works.

Peltington. [PELDON.]

Pelton, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., on an eminence, pa. of and 2 N.W. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.; ac. 1,161. The church of the Holy Trinity (built 1842) is in Gothic style, and the Primitive Methodists have a chapel. Coal is largely worked, and gives employment to a number of the inhabitants.

Pelton, West, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and about 4 W. from Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur. The church of St. Paul (built 1880) is in Perp. style, and there are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Pelynt, pa. and vil., S.E. Cornw., 9 S.W. of Liskeard; ac. 4,683; soil mixed, overlying slate. The church of St. Nun or Norma (restored 1882) is chiefly Perp., and contains several monuments to the Trelawny family, with singular inscriptions; one to Francis Buller (d. 1615), with effigies and shields of arms; a tomb with effigy and inscription on brass to William Achim (d. 1589), and memorials to the Sawdy family, 1663–77; Sir Jonathan Trelawny, Bart., D.D. (d. 1721), is buried in this church, where a model of his pastoral staff of wood, gilt, with copper ornaments, is preserved; he was Bishop of Bristol 1685–89, and one of the seven bishops committed to the Tower by James II. There are Wesleyan and Methodist Association chapels. Fairs for cattle are held on the first Tuesday in February and June 24. The charities amount to £6 8s. yearly. On the western side of the beautiful valley, through which flows the Trelawny river, is St. Nun's Well, a small building with gabled front. In the pa. are several barrows and two earthworks; in one of the former, opened a few years since, a jar containing bones and the head of a spear was found. Trelawne, an ancient mansion with modern additions, is a seat.

Pemberton, eccl. pa., tp., and to., pa. of and 2½ W. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 2,894. The church of St. John (built 1832) is a large brick structure. The church of St. Mark, in Victoria Street, is in Dec. style; the Memorial church, Highfield, dedicated to St. Matthew, and built 1894, is in E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholic church is dedicated to St. Cuthbert, and there are many Nonconformist chapels. P. Hospital (built 1886) is a brick edifice. The charities amount to about £68 yearly, part of which is for educational purposes. There are collieries, stone quarries, boiler works, iron foundry, a cotton mill, and brick manufactories. Hawkley Hall, an ancient half-timbered building, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Pembrey, pa. and small seaport (also called Burry Port) on Burry Inlet, S.W. Carmarths., 4 S. by E. of Kidwelly; ac. 14,928 with 7,778 tidal water and foreshore. The church of St. Illtyd is an ancient Gothic edifice; in the churchyard is buried a niece of the Empress Josephine, who lost her life in the wreck of a French vessel on this coast in 1828. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. P. has a commodious harbour with three docks, from one of which are shipped the dynamite and other explosives manufactured here. There are also iron foundries. P. Mountain, in the north vicinity of the town, commands extensive views.

Pembridge, large pa. and vil. (formerly a mkt. to.) on the Arrow, N.W. Herefords., 7 W. of Leominster; ac. 7,074; soil stiff loam and gravel, overlying chiefly Old Red Sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1871) is Dec., and there is an iron church on the Moor Court estate. The Roman Catholic church of the Holy Family is E. Eng. The Congregationalists, Primitives, and Wesleyans have chapels. In the vil. is a reading and recreation room. There are two sets of almshouses for poor women; and, including these and an endowment for the school, the charities amount to about £180 a year. Brownood Court, Byletts, and Moor Court, with an avenue of elms ½ mile long, are seats.

Pembroke (1), parl. and mun. bor., co. and mkt. to. (S.), and head of U., S. Pembs., 6 E.S.E. of Milford; ac. of mun. bor. 4,618. The town is situated on a ridge which runs out into a creek of Milford Haven. It consists mainly of a single long street embracing the pas. of St. Michael,

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pelham Stocking	Braughing (5)	31	144
Pelhams Lands	Dogdyke (2)	118	180
Pelsall	Pelsall	124	3364
Pelton, eccl. pa.	Pelton	263	6034
Pelton, tp.	Pelton	263	4296
Pelton, West	Pelton (2)	263	3633
Pelynt	Looe (4)	266	662

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pemberton, eccl. pa.	Pemberton	196	19947
Pemberton, tp.	Pemberton	196	18400
Pembrey	Pembrey	217	6335
Pembridge	Pembridge	164	1129
Pembroke (1), p. bor.	Pembroke	272	17564
Pembroke (1), m. bor.	Pembroke	272	14978

St. Mary, and Monkton (q.v.). The church of St. Michael (restored 1887) is a plain modern edifice. St. Mary's Church (restored 1883) is Norm. and later. The to. contains Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The other public buildings include a town hall and Assembly Rooms (erected 1866). The principal object of interest is the Castle, situated at the seaward extremity of the peninsula on which the town stands. It is said to have been erected by Arnulf de Montgomery towards the close of the 11th cent. The fortress comprised two wards, the site of the outer ward being now occupied by a meadow. In the inner ward is the keep, a fivestoreyed circular tower 75 ft. in height, with a conical stone roof, and a chapel with Pointed arches. A room in the inner court is shown as that in which Henry VII. was born in 1456. A wooden staircase formerly led from the inner court to an immense underground cave below the ruins called The Wogan. The castle sustained great damage in 1648, when it was besieged for six weeks by Oliver Cromwell. At Monkton is the Norm. church which belonged to the ancient priory. The Dockyard (80 ac.), constructed in 1814, is situated at Pater (q.v.). The earliest charter which still remains was granted by Henry II. in 1168. P. belongs to the Pembroke dis. of parl. bors.

PEMBROKE CASTLE.
(Photo. Harvey Barton, Bristol.)

Pembroke (2), tp., pa. of Donnybrook (q.v.), E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 1,622. P. contains part of the south-east suburbs of Dublin.

Pembroke and Haverfordwest District of Boroughs consists of the bors. of Fishguard, Haverfordwest, Milford, Narberth, Pembroke, Tenby, and Wiston. It returns one member.

Pembroke Dock. [PATER.]

Pembroke St. Mary. [PEMBROKE (1).]

Pembroke St. Michael. [PEMBROKE (1).]

Pembrokeshire, a maritime co. forming the south-western termination of Wales. It is bounded on the east by Cardiganshire and Carmarthenshire, and on all other sides by the Atlantic. Its extreme length and breadth are about 36 miles. It has a greatly-indented coast-line, over 140 miles long (excluding Milford Haven), which is generally wild and rugged, though broken by many fine bays. Of these, the chief are Newport Bay and Fishguard Bay on the north, and St. Bride's Bay, Milford Haven, and Freshwater Bay on the west; the most prominent headlands are Strumble Head, St. David's Head, St. Ann's Head, and St. Gowan's Head. The deep inlet of Milford Haven (q.v.) is one of the finest natural harbours in the British Isles. Off the coast are numerous small islands, of which the largest are Ramsey Island, Caldy Island, and Skomer Island. The total area of the co. is 395,152 ac., of which 27 per cent. is arable land, 52 per cent. grass, 6 per cent. mountain, 2 per cent. woodland, and the remainder tidal waste, water, roads, etc. The climate is mild but moist, and subject to strong winds. The soil on the low ground is chiefly stony loam of considerable fertility, and agriculture is well advanced, the principal crops being oats, barley, turnips, and potatoes. There is also an increasing growth of early vegetables. The grassy uplands are devoted to the rearing of cattle and sheep, which forms, perhaps, the most important branch of agriculture. The chief physical characteristics of the co. are the bold and picturesque coast, much resorted to by tourists in the summer, and the rounded grassy hills which occupy the greater part of the interior, and rise to their maximum elevation of 1,754 ft. in the Preseley Mountains. The largest rivers are the Teifi, separating the co. from Cardiganshire; the East Cleddau and West Cleddau, which unite in Milford Haven; and the Nevern and Gwayne. The complicated geology of the co. has been the subject of much scientific discussion. To the northward of St. Bride's Bay there is a ridge of igneous, volcanic, and metamorphic rocks, which by some geologists are considered to be of Pre-Cambrian age. These are surrounded by much-disturbed Cambrian strata, consisting chiefly of sandstones and slates, in which the earliest recognisable fossils (Trilobites, Lingula, etc.) are sparingly found. The Lower Silurian (Ordovician) and Upper Silurian rocks, which succeed, occupy all the northern and western portions of the co. They comprise a great thickness of slates, grits, and flags, with some interbedded volcanic rocks, and are traversed by numerous igneous dykes. In a few localities these Silurian rocks yield Graptolites, Trilobites, and other characteristic fossils. They also contain mineral veins, the chief ore being silver-lead, which has been extensively mined at Llanfyrnach. These older strata are overlain in the south-eastern corner of the co. by the Old Red Sandstone, which, in turn, dips beneath Carboniferous rocks, but reappears farther west in the peninsula between Carmarthen Bay and St. Bride's Bay. The Carboniferous series lie chiefly in the trough thus formed by the Old Red Sandstone, but overlap and rest directly on Silurian rocks along part of their northern margin. They include the Carboniferous Limestone (which forms fine cliffs south of Pembroke) and Millstone Grit, overlain by valuable Coal Measures in the vicinity of Haverfordwest. The coal-bearing strata form the western termination of the South Wales coalfield; but, instead of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pembroke (2)	.....	.....	24269
Pembroke Boroughs	.....	.....	34869
Pembroke St. Mary	Pembroke	272	12558
PembrokeSt.Michael	Pembroke	272	1367
Pembrokeshire	.....	.....	89133

the bituminous coal yielded by the eastern portion of this field, the Pembrokeshire collieries win anthracite coal only, the annual output being about 89,000 tons. This change in the character of the coal is believed to be due to the great disturbances which this portion of the field has undergone, and to the proximity of igneous rocks. No newer solid rocks occur, but there are a few traces of the Great Ice Age in the northern part of the co. in the form of local deposits of gravel and clay and glacially-striated rock surfaces. The co. is rich in prehistoric remains. In caves in the limestone near Tenby traces of man were discovered along with the bones of Bos longifrons and other animals. Implements of flint and stone have been found in many localities, and there are numerous tumuli, cromlechs, stone-circles, and earthworks. A few indications of the Roman occupation have been unearthed, and the great road Via Julia extended to the sea at St. David's. Of the succeeding period the most interesting relics are the Ogam inscriptions which are found on Caldy Island and elsewhere. The co. was frequently ravaged by the Danes, but remained in the possession of Welsh princes until the close of the 11th cent. During its conquest by the English a colony of Flemish mercenaries was established at Haverfordwest and Tenby, with the effect of rendering the southern part of the co. less markedly Welsh than are the neighbouring portions of the Principality. In 1405 the co. was disturbed by the rebellion of Owen Glendower, whose French auxiliaries landed in Milford Haven. During the Parliamentary War, Pembroke held for the King, but was reduced by Cromwell in 1648. Among the numerous places of historic interest are the castles of Pembroke, Manorbier, Carew, Newport, etc. St. David's is the site of an ancient cathedral. At Milford are extensive docks. The Great Western Railway Company have numerous branches in the co., and there is also the Pembroke and Tenby Railway Company, etc. Pembroke is the co. town, and other towns are Milford, Haverfordwest, and Tenby. Besides agriculture the chief industries are coal-mining, fishing, shipbuilding, and the manufacture of flannel, rope, and sails. At Pater there is a naval dockyard. The co. returns one member to Parliament.

Pembury, pa. and vil., S.W. Kent, 3 N.E. of Tunbridge Wells; ac. 3,562; soil sand and loam, overlying sand, clay, and rock. The church of St. Peter (restored 1867–68), originally Norm., is now chiefly Dec. and Perp. It contains a brass to Elizabeth Rowe (d. 1607) and several ancient monuments; in the churchyard is the stone coffin of an abbot of Bayham. St. Peter's chapel-of-ease is in Perp. style. There is a Nonconformist Union chapel and a Wesleyan chapel in the Hastings Road. At one end of the vil. is a row of almshouses, built in 1716 for six aged persons. There are two working men's clubs and reading-rooms. Here is a reservoir, with pumping station, for supplying Tunbridge Wells with water. Grovehurst, Kenward, Knights Place, and Oakleigh are seats.

Penaingläs, headland on north side of Fishguard Bay, N. Pembs., 2¼ N.N.W. of Fishguard. On the south-east side of this headland is a curious ledge of rock, of which the seaward face is formed by the outcrop of nearly horizontal basaltic columns. It presents a honeycomb appearance, and is called by the natives "torthau ceiniogau," or "penny loaves."

Penallt, pa. on the west bank of the Wye, S. Mon., 2 S.S.E. of Monmouth; ac. 2,375; soil sandy, with some clay, overlying Old Red Sandstone. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient stone building; it has a squint and several mural tablets and floor-stones. The church of St. Mary (chapel-of-ease) was built 1869, in Gothic style; and the Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. On a road leading to the church is a large ancient oak; at its foot is a stone bench, on which it is the custom to place the corpse when a funeral passes that way; formerly a Psalm was sung. Cider is made.

Penally, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S. Pembs., 1½ S.W. of Tenby; ac. 2,465. Caldy Island, off the coast, belongs to this pa. The E. Eng. church of St. Nicholas (restored 1884) is a cruciform building with stone-vaulted roof, and contains a Norm. font, two squints, and a 13th-cent. altar-tomb to William de Haunton. In the churchyard is a well-preserved cross 6½ ft. high, ornamented with interlaced ribbon work, and there are one or two other crosses. The Congregationalists have a chapel. The vil. is picturesquely situated on a slope forming the east end of the Ridgeway. Trellwyn or Trefloyne, now a farm, was an ancient seat of the Owens family, and during the Civil War was garrisoned for the king by Richard, son of Lord Carbery. Near it, amongst trees, is Hoyle's Mouth, a large cavern leading into a series of chambers in the limestone, and by some supposed to be connected with the Wogan Cave under Pembroke Castle, and to have been the original of the cave in Shakespeare's Cymbeline. In the pa. is an ancient watch-tower. The Abbey is a Tudor mansion on the site of an ancient monastery, of which some remains, including the chapel of St. Teilo, still exist. P. is one of three places claiming to be the burial-place of this saint. P. House is a modern residence on a hill overlooking the sea.

Penance, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Gwennap (q.v.), N.W. Cornw.

Penare, ha., pa. of and 1½ S. from Gorran (q.v.), Mid Cornw.

Penarth, pa. and seaport to. on the west side of Cardiff harbour, S.E. Glamorgs., 2½ S. of Cardiff; ac. 1,879; soil principally clay, subsoil various. The old church, supposed to have been built by the Normans, stood on the headland adjoining the town, and served as a landmark to sailors. Formerly the beacon fire lighted on this headland gave the signal inland of the approach of an enemy. The church of St. Augustine (built 1865) is in E. Eng. style. Above the nave arches are eight circular panels, with paintings illustrative of the Beatitudes. There is a chapel-of-ease (St. Paul's) and a mission room. The church of All Saints, also in E. Eng. style, was erected 1891, and there is a Roman Catholic chapel. The ruin of an old chantry, probably connected with the

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pembury	Tunbridge (3)	28	1662
Penallt	Monmouth (2)	144	420
Penally	Penally	264	505

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Penarth, pa.	Penarth	166	9632
Penarth, to.	Penarth	166	12424

monastery of Llandough, has been converted into a barn. Turner House, a private art gallery, containing a collection of early water colours and some choice porcelain, is free to the public on certain days. An esplanade and pier were opened in 1895; there are fine salt-water baths, and along the top of the cliff the Windsor Gardens, a public pleasure ground, extend for about ¼ mile. There is a coastguard station. Until the latter half of the 19th cent. P. was only a small vil.; it owes its importance to its docks and its vicinity to Cardiff. The harbour was opened in 1859, and the dock in 1865. In 1884 a tidal dock and basin was opened. There are two wharves, provided with hydraulic cranes and other facilities for shipments. The growth of the port has been remarkably rapid, and nearly a quarter of a million tons of coal are now annually shipped. Other exports are iron ore and general merchandise. To the west of the town is a wide tract of country commanding a fine view of the Bristol Channel, and here numerous villa residences have been erected.

PENARTH BEACH.
(Photo. W. H. Burton, Bristol.)

Pen Beacon, tor (1,570 ft.) on south border of Dartmoor, S. Devon, 2 N. of Cornwood. On its south-west slope are hut-circles and one enclosed vil., the wall about which is nearly square, with rounded corners. (Murray.)

Penbedw Hall. [NANNERCH.]

Penberry, headland (nearly 600 ft.), pa. of St. David's (q.v.), N.W. Pembs., 3 E.N.E. of St. David's Head. It is a fine mass of pre-Cambrian rock, and forms the north-east termination of a miniature mountain range which stretches E.N.E. The summit commands a fine view. On the northern side a cromlech formerly stood.

Penberth, ha., pa. of and 2 s. from St. Buryan (q.v.), W. Cornw. P. is situated midst beautiful coast scenery. Crab and lobster fishing is carried on.

Penbiddle, ha., pa. of Llanvihangel Crucorney (q.v.), N. Mon., 7 N.E. of Abergavenny.

Penboyr, pa. and vil., N. Carmarths., 4½ S.E. of Newcastle Emlyn; ac. 6,936; soil light and slaty. The Teifi bounds the pa. on the north; the surface is hilly. The church of St. Lyawddog is a small edifice, rebuilt in 1809 on the site of an earlier church. There are Independent and Methodist chapels. In the pa. are several ancient burial-mounds.

Penbryn, coast pa. and vil. on Cardigan Bay, S.W. Cardigs., on the road to Aberystwith, 8 N.E. of Cardigan; ac. 8,535; soil slate, overlying gravel. The E. Eng. church of St. Michael (restored 1878) stands on an eminence rising abruptly from the sea. There is a mission church (St. John's), and the Independents and Baptists have chapels. At Castel Nodolig are the remains of a large British encampment with double entrenchments. Traces of other ancient fortifications exist, and there are several burial-mounds. Some Roman remains have also been discovered, including a well-preserved gold coin of Titus Vespasian.

Penbuallt, tp., pa. of Llangammarch (q.v.), N. Brecons., about 8 S.W. of Builth; ac. 11,152.

Pencader Fawr. [PEN-Y-CADER FAWR.]

Pencaer Helen. [PEN-Y-GAER.]

Pencaitland, pa. and vil., W. Haddings., Sc., 5¼ S.W. of Haddington; ac. 5,075; soil wet and clayey, overlying limestone. Coal and fine sandstone are worked. The Tyne flows through the vil. (dividing the latter into Easter P. and Wester P.). The pa. church, in Easter P. (restored 1882), dates from the early part of the 13th cent., when it was given by Edward de Pencaithland to the monks of Kelso Abbey. In the 14th cent. it became attached to Dryburgh Abbey. The aisle is considered to be part of the original structure, but the body of the church belongs to the end of the 16th cent., and the tower with small octagonal belfry to the 17th cent. In the church is a curious epitaph, dated 1639; and in the churchyard is a memorial to Lord Ruthven (d. 1853). There is a Free church and a public school. In Wester P. is a fine public hall, erected by Mrs. Trevelyan of Tyneholme as a memorial of her husband (d. 1880). P. House, now in ruins, was formerly the seat of the P. family. David Calderwood (1575–1650), the ecclesiastical historian, was minister of this pa. Winton Castle, in a well-wooded park on the left bank of the Tyne, is a handsome 17th-cent. mansion, partly in the Tudor style, with round tower and ornamental chimneys. Two of the ceilings are adorned with fretwork. The mansion was a residence of the Earls of Winton till the attainder of the sixth earl in 1716, after which it passed to Lord Pencaitland, by whose descendants it is still held. Fountainhall, on the south side of the Tyne, has been the seat of the Dick-Lauder family since the 17th cent.

Pencarreg, pa. and vil. on the Teifi, N. Carmarths., 3 W.S.W. of Lampeter; ac. 10,177; soil clay, overlying clay. The 15th-cent. church of St. Patrick (restored 1894) is a small Gothic edifice. A mission church (St. James's) was erected 1891. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels. In the pa. is an ancient British encampment.

Penclawdd, vil. with railway station, pa. of Llanrhidian (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 9 W.N.W. of Swansea. The church of Llanyrnewydd (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style, and there are Baptist, Congregational, and Methodist chapels.

Pencoed (1), tp. and scattered pa. of Coychurch (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 3½ E. of Bridgend; ac. 2,044.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penboyr	Llandyssil (4)	252	1428
Penbryn	Llandyssil (10)	252	1302
Penbuallt	Llanwrtyd Wells (1)	217	475

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pencaitland, pa.	Prestonpans (2½)	386	1125
Pencarreg	Llanbyther (1)	253	1096
Pencoed (1)	Pencoed	179	866

Pencoed (2), ha., pa. of Llanwyddelan (q.v.), Mid Montgoms., 6½ s. of Llanfair.

Pencombe, pa. and vil., N.E. Herefords., 6 w. of Bromyard; ac. 4,080; soil clayey, overlying stone. The church of St. John (rebuilt 1864–65) was originally Trans. There is a reading-room in the vil. By ancient custom the lord of the manor claims a pair of gilt spurs when a Mayor of Hereford dies in office.

Pencoyd, pa. and vil., S. Herefords., 6 N.W. of Ross; ac. 890; soil sandy loam, overlying sandstone and rock. The church of St. Dennis is Dec. In the churchyard is a very fine yew-tree.

Pencoys, eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of Wendron (q.v.), W. Cornw., 3 s. of Redruth. The church of St. Andrew (built 1880) is in Dec. style, and there is a Free Methodist chapel. In a field are nine upright granite stones, locally named the Nine Maidens. According to tradition, they were set up in memory of nine religious sisters who were interred here.

Pencraig, ha., pa. of Marstow (q.v.), S. Herefords., 3½ S.W. of Ross. P. Court is a seat.

Penddol, vil., pa. of Llandyfriog (q.v.), S.W. Cardigs., 2 N.E. of Newcastle-in-Emlyn.

Pendeen, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of St. Just (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 7 N.W. of Penzance. The modern church of St. John the Baptist is modelled on the plan of the ancient cathedral of Iona (q.v.). The greater part of the work was voluntarily executed by the villagers. Here are Wesleyan, Bible Christian, and Free Methodist chapels. The Rev. William Borlase, author of the "Natural History and Antiquities of Cornwall," was born at the old manor house of Pendeen, February 2, 1695; he was vicar of Ludgvan from 1732, and died there 1772.

Pendennis Point, the southern boundary of Falmouth, S. Cornw. Here is Pendennis Castle. [BUDOCK.]

Penderry, tp., pa. of Llangafelach (q.v.), N.W. Glamorgs., about 4 N. of Swansea; ac. 5,713.

Penderyn, pa. and vil., S. Brecons., 5½ N.W. of Aberdare; ac. 13,366; soil loamy, overlying limestone. Limestone and sandstone are quarried. The pa. is bounded on the south-east by the Taf, and west by the Hepste; the latter forms a fine waterfall of nearly 50 ft. The church of St. Cynog is E. Eng. There are Methodist, Independent, and Baptist chapels. Charities amount to about £10 yearly. Craig-y-Dinas (q.v.) is in the pa.

Pen Dinas, hill (350 ft.), W. Cardigs., 1 S. of Aberystwith. On its summit is a memorial column to the Duke of Wellington. Remains of an ancient camp are found on the north side of the hill. According to local tradition, Cromwell when besieging Aberystwith bombarded the town from this hill.

Pendine, coast pa. and vil., S.W. Carmarths., 5 W.S.W. of Laugharne; ac. 971; soil sandy, overlying red rock and limestone. The church (dedication unknown) is a Norm. structure (repaired 1879); the tower has saddle-back roof. The church contains a credence niche, two squints, and a stoup in the porch; there are various 17th-cent. monuments to members of the Price family, and others to the Saunders and Saer families dating from the 18th cent. onwards. In the churchyard are the remains of an ancient cross. The Methodists have a chapel here. P. is a pretty watering-place, with a fine stretch of sandy beach and caves in the limestone cliffs. Westmead, a ruined ivy-covered mansion, about ¼ mile from P., is surrounded by gardens noted for their fine fruit.

Pendlebury, tp., pa. of Eccles (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., partly within the bor. of Salford; ac. 1,031, of which 23 are water. There are three eccl. pas. (Christ Church, St. Augustine's, and St. John's), with modern churches. The Public Hall and Institute (1870) is a brick building in Veneto-Gothic style. The Hospital for Sick Children dates from 1878.

Pendle Hill (1,831 ft.), pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., on the Yorks. border. On a clear day it commands extensive views of the beautiful scenery on the banks of the Ribble, the ruins of Whalley Abbey (4 miles distant), York Minster, and the Irish Channel. On the opposite side of the hill is a ravine, called "Brast Clough," said to have been formed by the inundations to which the numerous springs occasionally give rise; the site has been associated from time immemorial with the watch-fires of the Middle Ages and the witchcraft of later days, for which during the reign of James I. many unfortunate women were tried and burnt.

Pendleton (1), tp., pa. of Eccles (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 2,453, of which 37 are water. P. lies wholly within the bor. of Salford.

Pendleton (2), tp., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 1½ S.S.E. of Clitheroe; ac. 2,826.

Pendleton-in-Whalley, eccl. pa., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., about 2 S.S.E. of Clitheroe. The church of All Saints (1847) is in Dec. style.

Pendock, pa. and vil., S. Worcs., on the border of Gloucs., 6 W. of Tewkesbury; ac. 1,163; soil mixed, overlying red marl. The church is Norm. and Dec.; the north and south doorways and the jambs of the chancel arch and the font are Norm., and there is also an early piscina; most of the old benches remain, and some are carved with the linen pattern; the chancel rails are of Laudian date. The churchyard is very well kept, and has some good modern monuments. There is a chapel-of-ease and a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £5 a year.

Pendomer, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 4½ S.W. of Yeovil; ac. 1,083; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The Perp. church (dedication unknown) was restored 1870; in the north wall is an arched recess containing a low plain altar-tomb, on which lies the effigy of a knight clad in ring mail, with knee-plates, and over all a flowing surcoat; the left arm bears a shield, which, as well as the

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pencombe	Bromyard (6)	135	268
Pencoyd	Ross (5)	132	173
Pencoys	Redruth (3)	304	705
Pendeen	Penzance (7)	320	2281
Penderry	Gorseinon (1½)	213	4077
Penderyn	Hirwain (2)	181	1433
Pendine	St. Clears (7)	241	165

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pendlebury	Pendlebury	190	6388
Pendleton (1)	Pendleton	188	50543
Pendleton (2)	Clitheroe (2)	221	1129
Pendleton-in-W.	Clitheroe (2)	221	216
Pendock	Tewkesbury (6)	171	221
Pendomer	Sutton Bingham (2)	125	72

surcoat, bears the arms of Dunmere, Domare, or Dummer, and the figure is believed to be that of Sir John de Dummer, representative of the county in Parliament, 34 Edward I. (1306) and 7 Edward II. (1313); on each side of the recess are plain chamfered brackets, from the outside edge of which rise tall crocketed pinnacles; on the inside stand two grotesque male figures, in flowing garments, supporting an embattled cornice, which stretches across each pinnacle; on the merlons of the cornice remain small prickets of iron, probably for wax candles; in one of the windows are the arms of John Stourton, of Preston Plucknett, an owner of the manor, who died before 1455. The ancient manor house, now a farmhouse, and situated near the church, probably dates from the 16th cent.

Pendoylan, pa. and vil. on the Ely, S. Glamorgs., 4 E.N.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 3,579; soil clay and loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Cattwg or Cadocus (restored 1893) is a small edifice in the Norm. style. The Methodists have a chapel. P. has medicinal springs. Hensol (q.v.) is in the pa.

Pendreve, or Pendrift, ha., pa. of and ½ N. from Blisland (q.v.), W. Cornw.

Penegoes, pa. and vil. on the Dovey, S.W. Montgoms., 1½ E. of Machynlleth; ac. 13,057. The surface is mountainous, and a large part is under pasture. The E. Eng. church of St. Cadfarch is a small edifice nearly covered with ivy. There are Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels. The Well of St. Cadfarch, near the church, is reputed to be efficacious in rheumatic affections. Richard Wilson, painter (born 1714), was a native.

Penerley, ha., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Beaulieu (q.v.), S. Hants.

Penfro, ha., pa. of Caerhun (q.v.), N.E. Carnarvs., 4 S. of Carnarvon.

Pengarn, ha., pa. of Llanfihangel Geneu'r Glyn (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 3 N.E. of Aberystwith.

Penge, tp. and residential dis., pa. of Battersea (q.v.), Surrey, about 6 S. of London Bridge; ac. 770. P. has four eccl. pas. (Christ Church, Holy Trinity, St. John the Evangelist, and St. Paul), all with modern churches; and there are many Nonconformist places of worship. A few years ago P. was an unimportant country vil., but now long streets exist. The Vestry Hall, in Anerley Road, is a large white-brick building; the Watermen's and Lightermen's Asylum, in the Beckenham Road, was built in 1839 to furnish homes for poor and aged members of the Watermen's and Lightermen's Company, or their widows. There are 41 residences. [SYDENHAM.]

Pengegon, or Pengigan, vil., pa. of and ½ S.E. from Camborne (q.v.), N.W. Cornw. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Penge Lane, eccl. pa., pa. of Beckenham (q.v.) W. Kent, about 7 S.E. of London. The church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

Pengelly, vil., pa. of St. Teath (q.v.), N. Cornw., 2 W. of Camelford. The Free Methodists have a chapel.

Pengersick, pl., pa. of and about 3 W. from Breage (q.v.), S. Cornw. This is the site of a castle built in the 16th cent., and formerly the residence of the Millytons. Most of the structure is now ruinous, but a battlemented tower of the time of Henry VIII. still remains.

Pengigan. [PENGEGON.]

Pengrugla, ha., pa. of St. Ewe (q.v.), E. Cornw., 3 S.W. of St. Austell.

Penhallow, ha., pa. of Perranzabuloe (q.v.), W. Cornw., 5 N.W. of Truro. There is a Bible Christian chapel.

Penhalvean, ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Stithians (q.v.), W. Cornw. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Penhelig, narrow mountain ridge, N.E. Carnarvs., 3½ N.N.E. of Capel Curig. It connects Carnedd Llewelyn with Pen-llithrig, a mountain 2½ S.E., near which a gap occurs in the ridge. The descent on both sides is rocky and precipitous.

Penhill Beacon (1,685 ft.), bold eminence in Wensleydale, N.R. Yorks., about 5 W. of Middleham. The summit commands an exceedingly fine and extensive prospect.

Penhow, pa. and vil., S.E. Mon., 7½ N.E. of Newport; ac. 1,784; soil tolerably good, but in some places shallow, subsoil stony and sandy. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1851) is E. Eng. Penhow Castle is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Penhurst, pa., S. Sussex, 4 N.W. of Battle; ac. 1,405; soil loam, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is chiefly Perp. It was restored in 1880, and has a chapel belonging to the Ashburnhams. There is an oak chancel-screen.

Penicuik, pa. and to., S. Edins., Sc.; ac. of pa. 18,880. Along its northern border the pa. includes a considerable part of the Pentland Hills, on which are pastured numerous flocks of sheep. The southern portion is more level, and the soil is various, but dairy-farming is carried on to a considerable extent. The town, seated on high land on the north bank of the North Esk, and on the road from Edinburgh to Peebles, is about 9 S. of the former and 13 N. of the latter. Besides the pa. church, there are Episcopal, Free, United Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic churches. The Cowan Institute (1894), in the High Street, is a handsome building containing a library of 2,500 volumes, reading- and billiard-rooms, a public hall, and a gymnasium. The principal industry is the manufacture of paper, carried on at Valleyfield Mills and at Esk Mills. At Valleyfield Mills, the largest in this part of the country, printing and writing papers are manufactured. In the beginning of the 19th cent. these mills were acquired by Government for the reception of 5,000 French prisoners of war, of whom 300 died here and were buried in the grounds, and in 1860 a handsome monument was erected to their memory, near the spot, by some of the inhabitants. The Esk Mills, the first mills in Scotland devoted to the manufacture of cottons, were afterwards used as cotton and paper mills, but are now paper mills only. There is abundance of coal and limestone, the

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pendoylan	Carmarthen (3)	233	352
Penegoes	Machynlleth (2)	223	720
Penge	Penge	7	20375
Penge Lane	Beckenham	9	6971
Penhow	Magor (3)	144	242
Penhurst	Battle (4)	54	120
Penicuik, pa.	Penicuik	396	4914
Penicuik, to.	Penicuik	396	3606

latter occasionally so hard as to admit of a fine polish and containing a variety of petrifications. Whinstone and freestone are also plentiful, and in Carlope Hill lead and iron ore have been discovered. Ironstone mining has also become an important industry. There are several chalybeate and petrifying springs in this district. In the locality are several ruined castles and vestiges of encampments. P. House, built about 1761, contains a good collection of paintings and a considerable number of Roman antiquities. South of the house is an obelisk erected to Allan Ramsay, the poet (d. 1758), who frequently resided here, and the grounds of New Hall, another seat in the pa., are supposed to be the scene of his "Gentle Shepherd."

Peniel Heugh, eminence (774 ft.), pa. of Crailing (q.v.), N. Roxbs., Sc., 3½ N. of Jedburgh. On the hill is the Waterloo Column, 150 ft. high, in memory of the Duke of Wellington and the British army at Waterloo. The column is of whinstone, rising from a massive pedestal, on which, in addition to the memorial inscription, is marked the latitude, longitude, and altitude of the base. The summit, reached by a spiral staircase in the interior, commands an extensive view. On the hill are remains of two ancient camps.

Peninnis Head, headland and group of rocks, St. Mary's Island, Scilly, about ¼ mile from Hugh Town. Here is some of the most interesting scenery in the island. The Pulpit Rock and the Tooth Rock are especially remarkable.

Penisarwain, vil., pa. of Llanddeiniolen (q.v.), W. Carnarvs., 4 S. of Bangor.

Penistone, pa., tp., and U. and mkt. to. (TH.), W.R. Yorks., 12½ N.W. of Sheffield; ac. of pa. 22,776 (the greater part of which is wild moorland), of tp. 1,133; soil principally clay. The town occupies a site 747 ft. above sea level, on the south bank of the river Don. The church of St. John the Baptist is chiefly Dec., but retains some portions of Norm. and E. Eng. date; the nave has a panelled oak roof of Perp. date, with brackets and bosses elaborately carved; the aisles have triangular-headed windows, and the east end of each aisle anciently formed a chapel or chantry, one being dedicated to Our Lady, and the other to St. Erasmus; the latter belonged for some time to the Wordsworths, ancestors of the poet, who resided here from an early period; in the church are monuments to the Bosviles of Gunthwaite, and several to the Fenton family. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The grammar school, founded in 1392, is endowed; the present school buildings were erected about 1720. The girls' school is also endowed. Here are Conservative and Liberal clubs with reading-rooms. There is a Ploughing Association, which holds an exhibition in November, when prizes are given for ploughing and for agricultural and dairy produce. Here are large steel works, a brewery, and steam saw mills. The woollen trade, formerly carried on here to a considerable extent, is now entirely gone, and the old Cloth Hall has been converted into shops. Here are the kennels of the P. Harriers. Fairs are held on the Thursday before February 28, the last Thursday in March, the Thursday before May 12, and the Thursday after October 11 (celebrated for its horned sheep), and the Tuesday after the first Saturday in November for the hiring of servants. A religious house, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, formerly occupied the site of a residence known still as "Old Chapel," and records show that it was an old edifice in 1393; it was demolished in 1670, and the stones used for the repairing of the present churchyard wall.

Penk, river, rises in the south of Staffs., flows about 20 N. past Brewood, Penkridge, Acton Trussell, and Baswich, near which it falls into the Sow.

Penkelly, ha., pa. of Llanfigan (q.v.), S.E. Brecons., 4 S.E. of Brecon.

Penkenna (or Penkinna) Head, west coast of Cornwall, about 7 S.W. of Bude Haven.

Penketh, tp. on the Mersey, pa. of and 3 W. from Warrington (q.v.), S. Lancs.; ac. 1,059 land and 59 water. Here is a Wesleyan chapel and a meeting-house for Friends. There is a recreation ground of about 6 ac., appropriated for this purpose when the common-land was enclosed in 1884.

Penkhull, eccl. pa., pa. of Stoke-upon-Trent (q.v.), N.W. Staffs., 1½ S.S.W. of Newcastle-under-Lyme. The church of St. Thomas was built 1843, in E. Eng. style, from designs by Sir Gilbert Scott, R.A.

Penkill Burn, stream, pa. of Minnigaff (q.v.), S.W. Kirkcuds., Sc. It is formed near the centre of the pa. by the union of several streamlets draining the south slopes of Lamachan Hill and neighbouring hills. It flows S. by W. and S. by E. for about 4 miles, then S.W. to the Cree, which it joins above Newton Stewart, after a course of about 8½ miles.

Penkinna Head. [PENKENNA HEAD.]

Penkridge, pa., tp., and small to., on the Penk, W. Staffs., 6 S. of Stafford; ac. of pa. 14,780, of tp. 10,783; soil and subsoil various. The Staffordshire and Worcestershire Canal passes through the pa. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (alluded to in the Close Rolls of Henry III. as the church of St. Mary) is chiefly Perp., with a Dec. east window; the chancel-gates and screen of wrought iron are of Dutch workmanship. There are several memorials of the Littleton family, one of which, of variegated marble, is of 17th-cent. date, with the recumbent effigies of two knights and their ladies, beneath arched canopies, one above the other, and on the panels of the monument are figures of their children. In the chancel are two 16th-cent. marble altar-tombs with effigies. In the south aisle under a canopy is a 15th-cent. memorial with incised effigies to the founder of the Littleton family and his wife and children. The font bears the date 1668. There are Nonconformist chapels in the pa. The almshouses, erected in 1866 by the Dowager Lady Hatherton, as a memorial to the first Lord Hatherton, form a building in the Elizabethan cottage style, consisting of five tenements, and are intended for superannuated labourers on the Teddesley estate. St. Margaret's Home, an orphanage for girls, was opened in 1885. The national school has an

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penistone, pa.	Penistone	174	9568
Penistone, tp.	Penistone	174	2553
Penketh	Fiddlers Ferry & P.(½)	185	1673

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penkridge, pa.	Penkridge	134	2973
Penkridge, tp.	Penkridge	134	2383

endowment. In the neighbourhood are stone quarries. Fairs are held in April, September, and October, and there is a cattle sale every alternate Monday. Pillaton Hall prior to 1740 had been the seat of the Littletons for over 300 years; attached is a 15th-cent. chapel dedicated to St. Modwena, and retaining piscina, squint, and holy-water stoup.

Penkuke, ha., pa. of and 2 S.E. from St. Gennys (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Penlean, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Poundstock (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Penlee Point, the southern boundary of Mounts Bay, S.W. Cornw., about 2 S. of Penzance.

Penley, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Ellesmere (q.v.), S.E. Flints., 2½ E.S.E. of Overton, on the road to Llangollen; ac. 2,124. The church of St. Mary, formerly a chapel-of-ease to Ellesmere, dates from 1796. Llanerch Panna is a seat.

Penllech, pa., S.W. Carnarvs., 8 S.W. of Nevin; ac. 2,182. The pa. is almost wholly agricultural. The church of St. Mary is a plain edifice. The Methodists have a chapel. Mynydd-Cefn-Amlwch (q.v.) is in the pa.

Penlline, pa. and vil. on the road from Cardiff to Swansea, S. Glamorgs., 2 N.W. of Cowbridge; ac. 1,962; soil loam, overlying gravel. The small E. Eng. church of St. Brynach is now used only for funerals. There is a Welsh Methodist chapel. P. Castle and P. Court are seats. The former is an ancient massive pile of buildings surrounding a large court-yard, with embattled tower showing Norm. herring-bone work. The top of the keep affords an extensive view. The residential part, of later date, has battlemented parapets. The castle was partly destroyed by Owen Glendower, and has since been twice burnt.

Pen-llithrig, mountain (2,623 ft.) near the Bangor road, N.E. Carnarvs., 2¾ N. of Capel Curig. The summit commands a magnificent view.

Penmachno, pa. and vil. on the Machno (here crossed by a six-arched bridge), S.E. Carnarvs., 3¾ S. of Bettws-y-Coed; ac. 13,291. The surface is mountainous. The church of St. Tyddud (built 1860) is in Gothic style, and contains four inscribed stones. The Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodists and Baptists have chapels. The vil. is a resort for anglers. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the slate quarries.

Penmaen (1), pa. on Oxwich Bay, S.W. Glamorgs., 5¼ W. of Mumbles; ac. 994; soil sandy, overlying limestone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1855) is an ancient Gothic structure. A stone bearing the date 1623 was found during repairs. An earlier building that had long been buried in the sands was uncovered in 1861. It contains some interesting relics, including an altar-stone and piscina. The workhouse for Gower Union occupies a commanding site overlooking the bay. The coast presents some fine rock scenery, and there is a fine stretch of sandy beach.

Penmaen (2), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Mynydd-y-Slwyn (q.v.), S.W. Mon., 3 N.W. of Tredegar Junction. The church of SS. Philip and James is in Gothic style.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Penley	Welshampton (2)	179	321
Penllech	Pwllheli (10)	270	252
Penlline	Cowbridge (3)	180	275

Penmaenan. [Penmaenmawr.]

Penmaenbach, headland (nearly 800 ft.), pa. of Dwygyfylchi (q.v.), N.E. Carnarvs., 2¼ W. by S. of Conway. The old carriage-road from Chester to Holyhead, carried round the mountain above the sea, was impassable during winter on account of the heavy gales to which it was exposed, and travellers were consequently obliged to follow the older road through the pass of Sychnant. The headland is now pierced by a railway tunnel.

Penmaenmawr, vil. and mountain (1,553 ft.), pa. of Dwygyfylchi (q.v.), S.E. Carnarvs., 4 W. of Conway. The vil., situated in a recess of the coast, and now a favourite watering-place, was until recent years a very insignificant place. It sprang into notice through being chosen by Mr. Gladstone as his seaside residence during several summers. The church of St. Seiriol, built in 1860 (of which the foundation stone was laid by Mr. Gladstone), occupies the centre of the vil. There are also English and Welsh Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist and Congregational chapels, and an English Presbyterian church. There are numerous villa residences. The railway follows the coast between the houses and the sea; the latter is now faced by an esplanade. The older part of the vil., called Penmaenan, lies about ¾ mile from the newer part. The air is dry and bracing, and very salubrious; good sea-bathing can be had at all states of the tide. The mountain forms the west termination of the Snowdon range, and on account of its bold and comparatively isolated position is a very conspicuous landmark. The summit, crowned by three cairns, commands a wide view, embracing the I. of M. and part of Cumberland. Here also are remains of the ancient British fort of Dinas Penmaen (q.v.). The scenery is described in Lord Lytton's "Harold," where it figures as the meeting-place between the Welsh prince and the representatives of Harold. The headland presents a steep face to the sea. Green porphyry is extensively quarried at Craig Llwyd. Graiglwyd, Plas Mawr, and Rhiogfryn are seats.

Penmaenmawr.

Penmaen Rhôs, promontory and ha., pa. of Llysfaen (q.v.), N.W. Denbighs., 4 W. of Abergele. It was crossed by the old high-road to Conway,

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Penmachno	Bettws-y-Coed (3)	239	1574
Penmaen (1)	Gowerton (4)	208	138
Penmaen (2)	Abercarn (1½)	161	4299

and was considered a very difficult and dangerous pass. It is now pierced by a tunnel, 1,630 ft. long, on the Holyhead and Chester Railway. The ha. of P. is situated about midway between Llandulas and Old Conway. There is a Welsh Independent chapel.

Penmark, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S.E. Glamorgs., 5 S.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 3,360; soil clay, overlying limestone. Hydraulic lime is made in the pa. The church of St. Mary is a small Gothic edifice with embattled tower. There are Methodist, Congregational, and Baptist chapels. Near the church are the remains of the Norm. P. Castle destroyed by Owen Glendower in the time of Henry IV. Fonmon Castle is in the pa. [FONMON.]

Penmon, coast pa., N.E. Anglesey, partly within the bor. of Beaumaris; ac. 1,028 and 304 tidal water and foreshore, comprising about equal portions of arable and pasture land. The church of St. Seiriol, originally Norm., was the conventual church of P. Priory; but the nave and choir are all that remain. The priory is said to have been founded in the 6th cent. In 1220 Llewelyn ab Iorwerth made considerable additions to its revenue, and placed in it monks of the Benedictine order, in whose possession it remained till the Dissolution, at which time its revenue was estimated at £49 12s. 2d. The principal remains of this ancient establishment are, besides the present church, the refectory, and part of the prior's house (now occupied as a farmhouse) and dovecote, exhibiting massive pillars and semicircular arches, richly ornamented with zigzag and other mouldings. On a hill near is a very ancient stone cross, 10 ft. high, the shaft of which is curiously sculptured with knots and other ornaments. The pa. abounds with beautiful grey marble. It was used in the construction of the piers and buttresses of the Menai suspension bridge. The pier and quays of Holyhead, the piers of Aberconway bridge, Penrhyn Castle, and many other public and private buildings, have also been constructed of marble from the quarries here.

Penmorfa, vil., formerly a separate pa., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Dolbenmaen (q.v.), S.E. Carnarvs., 1 W. of Tremadoc. The church of St. Beuno is a small neat edifice.

Penmynydd, pa. and vil., S.E. Anglesey, 6 W. of Beaumaris; ac. 3,237; soil various, but tolerably productive. The church of St. Credivael is a very ancient structure. It contains a white alabaster tomb without arms or inscriptions, said to have been brought from the abbey of Llanvaes; on it are two recumbent effigies of a mailed warrior and a lady, supposed to represent some of the Tudor family. Owen Meredith ab Tudyr, the grandfather of Henry VII., was born at Plas Penmynydd, the ancient mansion of the Tudyrs, now occupied as a farmhouse, but still preserving some remains of its former grandeur.

Penn (1), pa. and vil., S. Bucks., 3½ N. of Beaconsfield; ac. 3,991; soil heavy, overlying chalk and flint. The vil., which is very picturesque, stands on an eminence, and is remarkably healthy. The church of the Holy Trinity is E. Eng., with a low but massive Perp. tower. There is a grand old yew-tree in the churchyard. P. has Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and a small Reading Room and Institute.

Penn (2), pa. and vil., S.W. Staffs., 3 S.W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 3,500. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored) is E. Eng. and Dec. There are five almshouses and a convalescent home for children. The proceeds of the selling of the poor's land yield an income of £63, distributed in money. The national school has an endowment of £70 yearly.

Pennal, pa. and vil. on the Dovey, S.W. Merions., 3 W. of Machynlleth, on the road to Aberdovey; ac. 8,814; soil thin and poor. The church is dedicated to St. Peter. Roman coins have been found.

Pennan, fishing vil., pa. of Aberdour (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., about 3 N.W. of New Aberdour.

Pennant (1), pa. and vil., N. Montgoms. and S. Denbighs., about 10 N.W. of Llanfyllin; ac. 2,193. The pa. comprises some rich arable and pasture land. The church is dedicated to St. Thomas.

Pennant (2), ha., pa. of Eglwys Bach (q.v.), N.W. Denbighs., 4 N. of Llanrwst.

Pennant (3), ha., pa. of Llanymowddwy (q.v.), S.E. Merions., 4 N.E. of Dinas Mowddwy.

Pennant (4), ha., pa. of Llanbrynmair (q.v.), W. Montgoms., 9½ N.W. of Llanidloes.

Pennant (5), ha. on the Teme, pa. of Llanfihangel Beguildy (q.v.), N.E. Radnors., 4 N.W. of Knighton.

Pennard, pa., Gower peninsula, W. Glamorgs., about 7 W.S.W. of Swansea; ac. 2,855; soil sandy. The church is dedicated to St. Mary. There are some remains of P. Castle, consisting principally of an ancient gateway. In the limestone rocks along the southern boundary of the pa. are two remarkable bone-caves. Kilvrough Hall is a seat.

Pennard, East, pa., E. Somerset, on the road from Bath to Exeter, 5 S. of Shepton Mallet; ac. 2,829; soil loamy, overlying chiefly marl, stone, and clay. The church of All Saints is Late Perp., and has a Norm. font. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are charities of £34 yearly value, including the poor's land, which yields £23, and Cooper and Martin's bequests; these are chiefly distributed in money.

Pennard, West, pa. and pleasantly-situated vil. with railway station on the Glastonbury and Shepton Mallet Road, 3 E. of Glastonbury; ac. 3,201; soil sandy loam, subsoil clay. The church of St. Nicholas is Perp.; the chancel and nave have elegant parapets, pierced with quatrefoils, and relieved at intervals by crocketed pinnacles, those of the chancel springing from the buttresses; there are also enriched pinnacles on the eastern gable of both nave and chancel; the parapet of the south aisle and porch exhibits a pierced trefoil-headed arcading; the latter has a parvise, lighted by a single window, on either side of the head of which are four crosses; in the churchyard, opposite

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penmark	Cowbridge (5)	180	503
Penmon	Bangor (9)	239	231
Penmynydd	Holland Arms (3)	248	399
Penn (1)	Loudwater (2)	32	1021
Penn (2)	Wolverhampton (3)	125	2941

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pennal	Machynlleth (3)	223	610
Pennant (1)	Llanrwst&Trefriw(4	235	366
Pennard	Swansea (7)	204	240
Pennard, East	West Pennard (2)	128	553
Pennard, West	West Pennard (2)	128	762

the porch, stands a tall cross, rising from an octagonal base of four steps; the lower portion is moulded and panelled, and from this rises a circular shaft; the head is lost.

Pennenden Heath, common (now formed into a public recreation ground). Mid Kent, 1 N. of Maidstone. County meetings have been held on this open space for centuries; the chief historical event occurred in 1076, when Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, pleaded here the cause of his church against Odo, Earl of Kent, brother of the Conqueror, in consequence of the appropriation by the earl of various lands and privileges enjoyed by the Primate, which this assembly decided should be restored.

Penn Fields, eccl. pa., pa. of Penn (q.v.), S. Staffs., adjoining Wolverhampton. The church of St. Philip is in E. Eng. style.

Penn Hill (930 ft.), pa. of Bradford Peverell (q.v.), S. Dors., about 3 N.W. of Dorchester. It has some barrows.

Pennick, ha., pa. of Auldearn (q.v.), N.W. Nairns., Sc., about 4 E. of Nairn.

Penninghame, pa., N.E. Wigs., Sc.; ac. 33,448; soil usually dry and fertile on the higher lands, and on the lower lands in the south a rich loam; in the north the land is generally of inferior quality. The pa. extends along the right bank of the Cree for about 15 miles, by a breadth of from 3 to 5 miles, and contains Newton Stewart (q.v.). Corsbie House, Merton Hall, and P. House are seats.

Pennington (1), pa., N. Lancs., 2 W. of Ulverston; ac. 2,845; soil sandy and marly, overlying gravel. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1826) is a plain stone edifice, and the Bible Christians and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. The school has an endowment. In this pa. stands the house in which George Fox, founder of the Society of Friends, lived, and the window is shown from which he preached. P. contains some large iron ore mines.

Pennington (2), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. and in the to. of Leigh (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.; ac. 1,482. Christ Church (built 1854) is in Perp. style.

Pennington (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Milford (q.v.), S. Hants, about 1 W. of Lymington. The church of St. Mark, in E. Dec. style, stands on the common. P. House is a seat.

Pennington Green, vil., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Penn Inn, ha., pa. of Haccombe-with-Combe (q.v.), S.E. Dev., 2 W. of Combe-in-Teignhead, on the road to Newton Abbot.

Penn, Lower, tp., pa. of Penn (q.v.), S.W. Staffs., 4 S.W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 2,005.

Pennon, ha., pa. of Llancarvan (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 6 S.E. of Cowbridge.

Penn Street, eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Little Missenden) and vil., pa. of Penn (q.v.), S.E. Bucks., about 3 N.E. of High Wycombe. The church of the Holy Trinity is in Gothic style. Penn House, an ancient brick mansion in a small park, is a seat.

Pennsylvania Castle. [PORTLAND.]

Penn, Upper, tp., pa. of Penn, S.W. Staffs., 3 S.W. of Wolverhampton; ac. 1,998.

Pennybridge, vil. on the Crake, pa. of and 4 N.E. from Ulverston (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Pennycross, or Weston Peverel, chap. and tp. on the road from Devonport to Tavistock, pa. of St. Andrew, Plymouth (q.v.), S. Dev., about 2 N. of Plymouth; ac. 1,208. The church of St. Pancras (restored 1870, enlarged 1820) is Perp., and contains monuments to the Collins, Parlby, and Trelawny families. The Roman Catholic college of Mary Immaculate, Beaconfield, is a large mansion in Classic style with ornamental grounds; the college, situated on an eminence, commands fine views. St. Joseph's House of the Little Sisters of the Poor (erected 1885) is a fine stone building. There are numerous seats in the neighbourhood.

Pennycuick, an old form of Penicuik (q.v.).

Pennygown and Torosay. [TOROSAY.]

Pennymoor, ha., pa. of Cruwys Morchard (q.v.), N. Dev., 6 W. of Tiverton. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Penolver, headland, S. Cornw., about 2 E. of The Lizard. It forms the east bonndary of Housel Bay.

Pen Pits. [PENSELWOOD.]

Penpoll, ha., pa. of Feock (q.v.), S. Cornw., about 3½ S. of Truro. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Penponds, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 1 W. from Camborne (q.v.), W. Cornw. The church of the Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style, and there is a Wesleyan chapel. Near the railway viaduct is a circular fortified encampment, in which a stone axe was found; and in 1880 some celts and bronze spearheads were discovered.

Penpont (1), tp., pa. of Llanspydidd (q.v.), Mid Brecons., about 4 W. of Brecknock; ac. 2,005.

Penpont (2), pa. and vil., N.W. Dumfs., Sc.; ac. 21,961. The pa. is of irregular form and uneven surface, the only low land being found chiefly upon the verge of the rivers which flow through. The vil. is about 2 S.W. of Thornhill. The church (rebuilt 1872) is a handsome edifice, and has tower with spire and clock. Tibber's Castle, the ruins of which stand within a mile of Drumlanrig Castle, have been excavated; this fortress, referred to in Blind Harry's metrical history of Sir William Wallace, appears to have been destroyed during the reign of King Robert the Bruce (1306–29). The Glenquhargen Craig, which rises to a great height, is in this pa., and there are likewise remains of Roman encampments, causeways, etc.

Penpont (3), ha., pa. of and about 2 S. from St. Breward (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

Penpoul, ha., pa. of St. Veep (q.v.), Mid Cornw., 4 S.E. of Lostwithiel.

Penquite, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from St. Breward (q.v.), N.E. Cornw.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penn Fields	Penn Fields	125	1759
Penninghame	Newton Stewart	382	3593
Pennington (1)	Lindal (1)	258	1650
Pennington (2), ec. pa.	Pennington (½)	192	4449
Pennington (2), tp.	Pennington (½)	192	8325
Pennington (3)	Lymington (1)	96	908
Penn, Lower	Wolverhampton (4)	125	274
Penn Street	High Wycombe (3)	34	671
Penn, Upper	Wolverhampton (3)	125	2667
Pennycross	Plymouth (2)	229	811
Penponds	Camborne (1)	307	1688
Penpont (1)	Aberbran (½)	189	105
Penpont (2), pa.	Thornhill (2)	346	1063
Penpont (2), vil.	Thornhill (2)	346	407

Penrhôs (1), pa. on the north shore of Cardigan Bay, S.W. Carnarvs., 2 W.S.W. of Pwllheli; ac. 508; soil in many places poor and sandy. The church is dedicated to St. Cynwyl.

Penrhôs (2), eccl. pa., pas. of Guilsfield, Llandrillo, Llansaintffraid, and Meifod (q.v.), N. Montgoms., 6½ S.E. of Llanfyllin. The church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

Penrhôs (3), ha., pa. of Llanfynydd (q.v.), Mid Carmarths., 5½ N.W. of Llandilo.

Penrhôs (4). [PENROSE (1).]

Penrhôs (5), bay, headland, and ha., pa. of and 1 E. by S. from Holyhead (q.v.), Anglesey. The bay, about ½ mile wide, is bounded on the south-east by P. Headland. P. ha. is about 1½ E.S.E. of Holyhead.

Penrhôs Garnedd, ha., pa. of and about a mile from Bangor (q.v.), N. Carnarvs.

Penrhôslligwy, coast pa., N.E. Anglesey, 4 E.N.E. of Llanerchymedd; ac. 2,825. The church is dedicated to St. Michael. In the churchyard are two ancient sepulchral stones with rude inscriptions. Here are buried the passengers who perished in the wreck of the Royal Charter (Oct. 26, 1859).

Penrhylog, vil., pa. of Llanfihangel-Geneu'r-Glyna (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 6 N.E. of Aberystwith.

Penrhyn, vil. with railway station, pa. of Llanfihangel-y-Traethau (q.v.), N.W. Merions., 3 E. of Portmadoc.

Penrhyn Castle. [LLANDEGAI.]

Penrhyn Coch, vil., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 4 N.E. of Aberystwith.

Penrhyn Deudraeth, eccl. pa. and small to., pas. of Llandecwyn, Llanfihangel-y-Traethau, and Llanfrothen (q.v.), N.W. Merions., 4½ S.W. of Festiniog. The church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity. There are Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist, Independent, and Baptist chapels. The Festiniog workhouse is situated near the town. Fairs are held five times yearly.

Penrhyn Slate Quarries. [BETHESDA; LLANDEGAI.]

Penrice, pa. and vil. on Oxwich Bay, Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 12 W.S.W. of Swansea; ac. 2,112. The pa. comprises arable and pasture land, the latter for the most part recovered from the sea. The church is dedicated to St. Mary. The vil. has remains of an ancient market-place. The ruins of P. Castle stand on a high rock, overlooking Oxwich Bay. There is a modern seat of the same name.

Penrith (1), pa., U. and mkt. to. (T.), and head of Co. Co. dis., situated in a valley near the Eamont, Mid Cumb., 18 S.E. of Carlisle; ac. 7,559 and 28 water. The great military Roman road from York to Carlisle passes through the town, but no Roman remains have been found here. The church of St. Andrew, rebuilt with the exception of the tower (1720-22), is in Classic style. The chancel wall bears a brass recording the visitation of the plague in 1598, when upwards of 2,000 lives were lost. The north aisle contains some 17th- and 18th-cent. brasses and monuments; in the vestry are 15th-, 16th-, and 17th-cent. monuments with shields bearing arms. The shafts of two ancient crosses in the churchyard are said to mark the grave of a giant; they stand 15 ft. apart, and are connected by four huge hog-backed stones; the cross-shafts bear traces of carving and inscriptions believed to be Runic. There is also a fragment of a smaller cross. The eccl. pa. of Christ Church has a church in Perp. style. The Roman Catholics, Congregationalists, Baptists, Wesleyans, Presbyterians, Primitive Methodists, and Society of Friends have places of worship. The Public Library and Museum were opened in 1883; the Agricultural Hall (built 1870) is a freestone structure; large sheep and cattle sales take place in it on Mondays. There are several breweries, iron foundries, and saw-mills. The chief trade of the town, however, arises from its market, held on Tuesday, which is largely attended. The opening of the railway to P. gave a great impetus to the market. Many of the large commons in the neighbourhood have been brought into cultivation, and great quantities of potatoes are grown. There are numerous charities, and the grammar school, founded in the 14th cent. and re-founded by Queen Elizabeth in 1564, is endowed. The buildings date from the 16th cent., and bear an inscription over the entrance; above the fireplace are the royal arms of the Tudors. A monastery of Austin Friars was founded in or before the reign of Edward I., but was dissolved in the reign of Henry VIII. The "Two Lions" inn, at a corner of the open space called Great Dockwray, is an Elizabethan building, and, though a good deal altered from its original plan, still retains many interesting features. Another ancient mansion, formerly called Dockwray Hall, but now the "Gloucester Arms" inn, contains some fine oak panelling and carved work; over the entrance is a tablet displaying a shield of arms and the date 1580. The Beacon Tower (built 1719), on the summit of Beacon Hill, about ¾ N.E. of the town, is a rectangular structure of red freestone with a pyramidal roof, and commands a splendid view of the mountain scenery of Cumberland and Westmorland. P. Castle, now in ruins, is supposed to have been erected about 1389 by Ralph (Neville), first Earl of Westmorland. The remains stand on a level platform, and consist chiefly of walls faced with squared ashlar and red sandstone about 5 ft. thick, rising in places to a considerable height. During the Civil War it was occupied by the Parliamentary forces under Major-General John Lambert, but was subsequently dismantled. The bronze matrix of the common seal of P. was found about 1824 at Brampton, having, it is supposed, been carried off in an incursion of the Scots, who frequently harried the town in ancient times. There are numerous antiquarian objects of interest and seats in the neighbourhood.

Penrith (2). [PENRHYDD.]

Penrith (or Mid) Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Cumberland. It returns one member.

Penrith, Old. [PLUMPTON WALL.]

Penrose (1), or Penrhôs, pa. and vil., E. Mon., 9 W.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penrhôs (1)	Pwllheli (2)	270	100
Penrhôs (2)	Four Crosses (2)	185	763
Penrhôslligwy	Llanerchymedd (4)	256	376
Penrhyn Deudraeth	Penrhyndeudraeth	257	2260
Penrice	Swansea (12)	204	242
Penrith (1)	Penrith	281	8981
Penrith Division	....	.....	45643
Penrose (1)	Raglan (3)	151	276

of Monmouth; ac. 2,690; soil clay, overlying marl. The church of St. Cadoo is Perp. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. Here is a camp, probably British, and a fortification called P. Castle, consisting of a tumulus with two moats.

Penrose (2), ha., pa. of and 1 w. from St. Ervan (q.v.), Mid Cornw.

Penruddock, vil. with railway station, pa. of Greystoke (q.v.), E. Cumb., 7½ S.W. of Penrith.

Penrydd, or Penrith, pa., tp., and vil., N.E. Pembs., 7 S.S.E. of Cardigan; ac. of pa. 3,095, of tp. 921. There is a considerable quantity of moorland. The church is dedicated to St. Christiolus. [CASTELLAN.]

Penryn, mun. bor., tp., and mkt. to. (s.), pa. of St. Gluvias (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 2 S.W. of Falmouth, with which bor. and parts of the pas. of Budock and Mylor it forms the parl. bor. of P. and Falmouth, which returned two members till 1885, when one was taken away. P. became a mun. bor. in the 13th cent., and was incorporated by James I. in 1619. There was anciently a chapel here, dedicated to St. Margaret. The Congregationalists, Bible Christians, and Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The town hall dates from 1835. There is a reading-room and a temperance hall. The chief industry is the dressing and polishing of granite. P. has also a large chemical manure factory, a mill for the manufacture of straw paper, two flour mills, a tannery, a brewery, large engineering works, an iron foundry, and a timber yard, with steam sawing, planing, and moulding mills. Several cattle fairs are held. The bor. charities are of considerable value, and consist of landed and funded property.

Penryn and Falmouth, parl. bor., S.W. Cornw.; ac. 1,909. [PENRYN.]

Pensarn (1), ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Abergele (q.v.), N. Denbighs.

Pensarn (2), small vil., pa. of and about 2 S.E. from Amlwch (q.v.), N. Anglesey.

Pensax, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Lindridge (q.v.), N.W. Worcs., 14 N. by W. of Worcester; ac. 1,155. The church of St. James (1832) is in Perp. style. The Norm. chapel of St. James was pulled down in 1831. Coal pits have existed in the pa. for over 300 years. The scenery surrounding the church and P. Court is very picturesque, consisting of wooded ravines and rugged elevations.

Pensby, tp., pa. of Woodchurch (q.v.), N.W. Chesh., 4 N.W. of Neston; ac. 353.

Penselwood, pa. and vil. on the Stour, E. Somerset, 4 N.E. of Wincanton; ac. 1,155; soil sandy and loamy, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Michael is Perp., with some portions of Norm. date. The chancel contains several monuments. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Pen Pits, south-east of the vil., consist of a large number of hollows of varying dimensions, now extending over 200 ac., but once of much greater extent. Various opinions have been entertained by antiquaries as to the object of these excavations, some regarding them as quarries only, and others as the remains of pit-dwellings formed by prehistoric settlers. A field called "Ballands" (a corruption of "Barrowlands") is said to have been the site of a Saxon church, and contains a barrow.

Pensford (1), vil. with railway station, pa. of St. Thomas in Pensford (q.v.), N. Somerset, 6 S.E. of Bristol.

Pensford (2). [PAINSFORD.]

Pensham, ha. on the Avon, pa. of Pershore St. Andrew (q.v.), S. Worcs., 1½ S.W. of Pershore.

Penshaw, or Painshaw, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur., 9 N.E. of Durham; ac. 1,085. The church of All Saints is a plain stone building. There is also a Wesleyan chapel and a parish hall. In the tp. are collieries, stone quarries, and an iron foundry. On P. Hill, near the vil., is a monument, erected in 1844, to John, first Earl of Durham. P. House is a seat.

Penshiel, former chap., pa. of Whittinghame (q.v.), S. Haddings., on the Berws. border, Sc. Here is P. Hill (1,395 ft.).

Penshurst, pa. and vil. at the confluence of the Eden and the Medway, W. Kent, about 6 N.W. of Tunbridge Wells; ac. 4,435; soil light loam, overlying clay, sand, and rock. The church of St. John the Baptist, situated in a sequestered spot, is chiefly Late Perp.; the north arcade of the nave is E. Eng.; the chancel and north aisle (the latter the mortuary chapel of the Sidneys) was restored 1856; under the chapel are interred the remains of Algernon Sidney, who was beheaded on Tower Hill, December 7, 1683, for his participation in the Rye House Plot; here are also several monuments and brasses to the Sidney family, including a Late Perp. altar-tomb to Sir William Sidney (d. 1553). There are inscriptions to Margaret (d. 1558), daughter of Sir Henry Sidney and Mary, his wife, and to Bridget and Alice (both d. 1599), daughters of Sir Robert and Barbara Sidney; a brass tablet to Viscount Hardinge (d. 1856), and a cruciform brass to Thomas Bwlloyen, son of Sir Thomas Bwlloyen, Knight; another, with effigies of a knight and lady, is inscribed to Pawle Yden, gent. (d. 1514), and Agnes, his wife. In the chancel is a portion of the effigy of Sir Stephen de Penchester, Warden of the Cinque Ports temp. Edward I. There are also brass inscriptions to Walter Darnowll (1507), his wives Joan and Agnes, and seven children; to William Darkenoll, parson (1596), with verses in English; and to John Paswater, steward to Sir Thomas and Sir Henry Cheyney (1577), and his wife Elizabeth. The font, which is octagonal and panelled with quatrefoils, bears the arms of the see of Canterbury and various symbolical devices; and there are several memorial windows. In the churchyard is an ancient tomb, and one of modern date to Francis and Susannah Allnutt, with a long poetical inscription. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. Here is an extensive cricket ball and bat manufactory. The pa. has six almshouses and some small charities, principally distributed in bread, and also for the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penrydd, pa.	Crymmych Arms (5)	263	348
Penrydd, tp.	Crymmych Arms (5)	263	181
Penryn	Penryn	303	3256
Penryn & Falmouth	.....	.....	17454
Pensax, eccl. pa.	CleoburyMortimer(4	143	547
Pensax, tp.	CleoburyMortimer(4	143	440

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pensby	Heswall (1½)	194	51
Penselwood	Wincanton (3)	116	353
Penshaw, eccl. pa.	Penshaw	259	3210
Penshaw, tp.	Penshaw	259	2918
Penshurst	Penshurst	32	1647

ringing of the curfew bell. P. Place, an ancient and noble quadrangular structure, with a spacious court, chapel, and hall, has been in the possession of the Sidney family since the time of Edward VI.; the hall has a fine open roof and a screen of Gothic wood-work; there is also a splendid collection of paintings and old armour, with relics of Sir Philip Sidney, the distinguished soldier and author, who was born here November 29, 1554; the public are permitted to view these collections on certain days; the gardens are beautifully laid out, and the park comprises about 350 ac. Red Leaf, South Park, a beautiful mansion, and Swaylands are seats.

Pensilva, large vil., pa. of St. Ive (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., 5½ N.E. of Liskeard. There are Bible Christian, Wesleyan, and Methodist United Free Church places of worship.

Pensnett, eccl. pa. and small to., pa. of and 1 E. from Kingswinford (q.v.), S.W. Staffs., on the road to Dudley, in which parl. bor. it is included. The church of St. Mark is in Gothic style. P. has collieries, ironworks, and manufactures of glass and hardware.

Pensthorpe, pa. on the Wensum, N. Norf., 2 E.S.E. of Fakenham; ac. 754; soil mixed, resting on gravel and clay. The church has long since fallen into ruins, which now form a part of some farm buildings. Several Roman urns and other relics have been dug up here.

Penston, colliery vil., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Gladsmuir (q.v.), N.W. Haddings., Sc. Here are several coal pits.

Penstrowed, pa. on the Severn, S. Montgoms., 3 W. of Newtown; ac. 1,250. The surface is boldly undulated; the soil, which is in general fertile, is in the lower grounds rich and productive. The church is dedicated to St. George. A Roman road passes through.

Pensylvania, ha., pa. of Cold Ashton (q.v.), W. Glouc., 2 S.W. of Marshfield.

Pentargain Cove, W. Cornw., a little north of Boscastle.

Penterry, pa. a little north of the Wye, S.E. Mon., 3½ N. by W. of Chepstow; ac. 479; soil sandy loam. The church of St. Mary was repaired and thoroughly modernised in 1863. There are some remains of an old churchyard cross.

Pentewan, or Pentowan, seaport vil. on Mevagissey Bay, pa. of and 4 S. from St. Austell (q.v.), Mid Cornw. The church of All Saints (chapel-of-ease) is a modern building, and there are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. P. has a good harbour and quay, and large vessels are loaded with clay and ores from the surrounding district. In the neighbourhood are tin works, and the well-known Pentewan stone is quarried. Various bones of animals, especially of the deer family have been found.

Pentillie Castle. [PILLATON.]

Pentire Head, headland, west coast of Cornw., forming the north boundary of Padstow Bay. It lies about 3 N. of Padstow.

Pentland Firth, strait between Caithness. and Ork., Sc., about 14 miles long and from 6 to 8 miles in breadth. At the east mouth of the Firth are the P. Skerries (q.v.); near the centre, the island of Stroma (q.v.); and on the north Swona, one of the Orkney Islands. The tidal phenomena of the Firth are remarkable and very complex. The tidal wave flowing north along the west coasts of the British Islands here meets the feebler wave coming through the North Sea. These primary conditions are further complicated by the configuration of the coasts and of the bed of the channel. During the flow of the tide a current rushes through the strait from west to east, while during the ebb it sets from east to west. The velocity of the current varies from 6 to 10 miles (and even more) an hour, probably the most rapid in British seas. The flow is, however, by no means uniform, but is split up into a number of intricate Races, with many dangerous eddies. Off Duncansby Head are sunken reefs, causing the breakers known as "the Bores of Duncansby," and off St. John's Point are the "Merry Men of Mey." North of Stroma is the "Swelkie" whirlpool, and near Swona "the Wells of Swona," where the tide forms a vortex, in which sailing vessels, once caught, often find it difficult to extricate themselves. Every day, at certain states of the tide,

PENSHURST PLACE.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pennett	Dudley (2)	122	4997
Pensthorpe	Fakenham (2)	119	47

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penstrowed	Seafell (1)	197	97
Penterry	Chepstow (3)	141	17

the Firth is a seething mass, and in stormy weather the waves are very rough. Sir A. Geikie, in his "Scenery of Scotland," describes the effects of a great storm in 1862, when waves rushed up the vertical cliffs of Stroma 200 ft. high, and swept across the island. The Firth, although an extremely dangerous passage, is traversed annually by about 5,000 vessels, being the most direct route from the Northern seas to the Atlantic Ocean.

Pentland Hills, a broken hill-range, Sc., extending from about 4 s. by w. of Edinburgh Castle, s.w. for about 16 miles through Edins., Peebs., and Lanarks. to near Carnwath. The highest point is Scald Law (1,898 ft.). The hills are generally rounded, in many parts affording good pasturage, while others are heath-covered. Many streams (with which are connected several reservoirs) have their source here. The water-supply of Edinburgh is derived from the streams at the north end. Numerous glens intersect the hills, and a pretty stretch of country borders the range on each side. In geological structure, rocks of the Carboniferous system predominate in the north-west, and Old Red Sandstone in the south-east, with interbedded porphyrites to the north. There are several outcrops of Silurian rocks. Many erratic boulders are found, giving evidence of former glacial action. The hills are crossed by several roads or paths, of which the principal are those by the Glencorse Burn and the Cauld Stane Slap; the latter is a very ancient drove road between the Midcalder and West Linton districts. Turnhouse Hill was the scene of the famous battle of Rullion Green; and the original Habbie's Howe of Ramsay's "Gentle Shepherd" is found about 2 miles from Carlops. On the north border of Peeblesshire is a cairn called the "Boar Stane."

Pentland Rows, mining vil., pa. of Lasswade (q.v.). N. Edins., Sc., 1 N. of Loanhead.

Pentland Skerries, a group of islets, Pentland Firth, Sc., 4½ N.E. of Duncansby Head. The group, which lies in the centre of the east entrance to the Firth, comprises Muckle Skerry, Clettack, Louther, and Little Skerry. Muckle Skerry has a length east and west of a little over ½ mile, and a breadth north and south of not quite ½ mile. On its east side it runs out in the little peninsula of Scartan Point. A lighthouse was erected on the island as early as 1794. There are now twin lighthouses near the north coast, consisting of two towers, 100 ft. apart, 170 and 140 ft. high, with powerful fixed lights, visible respectively 19 and 18 nautical miles. The only inhabitants of the island are the lighthouse-keepers and their families.

Pentlow, pa. and vil. on the Stour, N. Essex, 4 E. of Clare; ac. 1,801; soil clay, loam, and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. George (restored 1887) is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the north chapel is a very fine monument, with recumbent figures, to George Kempe (d. 1606), John Kempe, Esq., his son, and Ellinor his wife, together with the kneeling figures of their fourteen children; the chancel contains a fine altar-tomb with arms to the Felton family (1542), but without inscription, and memorial tablets to the families of Matthew and Bull; the font is a fine example of E. Norm. date, and has a beautiful though mutilated 15th-cent. canopy. The charities consist of the rent arising from a small farm in Pentlow.

Pentney, pa. and vil. on the Nar, W. Norf., 8½ S.E. by E. of Lynn; ac. 2,567; soil chiefly sand and gravel, with heavy land. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (enlarged from a small Norm. chapel with an apse) is of various periods. There are Wesleyan and General Baptist chapels. The town estate, of 50 ac. (including the fuel allotment), and other charities, produce about £75 yearly. About 2 w. of the church formerly stood the priory of the Holy Trinity and SS. Mary the Virgin and Mary Magdalene, founded by R. de Vaux for canons of the order of St. Augustine; the fine gateway is still standing, and between it and the church is the shaft of an elegant wayside cross.

Penton, vil. with railway station, pa. of Kirkandrews-upon-Esk (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., 7 N.E. of Longtown.

Penton Grafton, pa., N. Hants, 3 w. of Andover, on the road to Amesbury; ac. 1,885; soil light gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Michael (restored 1865) is E. Eng. A charity of £6 6s. yearly is distributed in bread. [WEYHILL.]

Penton Mewsey, pa. and vil., N. Hants, 3 N.W. of Andover; ac. 1,059; soil light, overlying chalk. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1888) is Dec. The Christian Lecture Hall is endowed. P. Lodge is pleasantly situated in a well-wooded park, and notable features are the number and variety of the conifers.

Pentonville, eccl. pa., pa. of Clerkenwell (q.v.), Middx., in the North of London. The church of St. James is modern. The dis. owes its name to Henry Penton (d. 1812), a lord of the Admiralty, on whose estate the first buildings in Penton Street were erected about the end of the 18th cent. The Model Prison (completed in 1842), although bearing the name of this district, is really in the pa. of Islington.

Pentowan. [PENTEWAN.]

Pentraeth, pa. and vil. on Red Wharf Bay, E. Anglesey, 5 N.W. of Beaumaris; ac. 3,354. The church is dedicated to St. Mary. The vil. stands on the banks of a small stream, which flows into Red Wharf Bay. Limestone is quarried here. Plas Gwyn is a seat.

Pentre (1), vil., pa. of Llanfihangel Abercowin (q.v.), S.W. Carmarths., 2 N. of Laugharne.

Pentre (2), ha., pa. of and 2 E. from Hawarden (q.v.), S.E. Flints.

Pentre (3), vil., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), Mid Glamorgs., 8 N.W. of Pontypridd. There is a school church and several Nonconformist chapels. P. has collieries and engineering works.

Pentrebach, eccl. pa., pa. of Merthyr Tydfil (q.v.), N.E. Glamorgs. The church of St. John the Baptist, in Gothic style, is about 3 S.E. of Merthyr.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pentland Rows	Loanhead (1)	395	894
Pentland Skerries	Wick (18)	751	14
Pentlow	Long Melford (4)	62	316
Pentney	Narborough (1)	105	498
Penton Grafton	Weyhill (2)	70	430
Penton Mewsey	Weyhill (2)	70	274
Pentonville	.....	.....	10000
Pentraeth	Llanfair (6)	242	812
Pentrebach	Pentrebach	175	8525

Pentre Brunant, vil. on the Ystwyth, pa. of Llanfihangel-y-Croyddyn (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 15 S.E. of Aberystwith.

Pentrefelin, vil., pa. of Llywell (q.v.), W. Brecons., 12 W.N.W. of Brecknock.

Pentrevoelas, pa. and vil., S.W. Denbighs., 14 S.W. of Denbigh; ac. 10,747, a great portion of which is moorland. The dedication of the church is unknown.

Pentrich, pa., tp., and vil., E. Derbys., 5 N.E. of Belper; ac. of pa. 4,071, of tp. 1,229 and 27 water. The church of St. Matthew (restored 1859) was originally Norm., but seems to have been enlarged and renovated in the Perp. period; the nave arcades are Late Norm. (about 1150); the circular font, excluding the base, dated 1662, is also Norm., to which period the lower part of the tower probably belongs, its wall at this point being about 4 ft. in thickness; the sills of several windows are composed of sepulchral slabs with rudely-incised crosses. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. In the pa. are corn and cotton mills and a large colliery. The charities amount to about £7 a year.

Pentridge, pa. and vil., N.E. Dors., 14 N. of Wimborne, on the Wilts. border; ac. 1,774; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Rumbald (enlarged and partly rebuilt 1857) was originally E. Eng.

Pentych, vil., pa. of Cilrhedyn (q.v.), S. Carmarths., 4 S.W. of Newcastle Emlyn.

Pentyrch, pa. and vil., S.E. Glamorgs., 7 W.N.W. of Cardiff; ac. 3,939. In one part of the pa. iron ore is found in parallel strata; in another, in patches blended with limestone. The church is dedicated to St. Cadoc. Here are large ironworks and collieries.

Penwarne, ha., pa. of Mevagissey (q.v.), E. Cornw., 4½ S. of St. Austell.

Penwerris, eccl. pa., pa. of Budock (q.v.), W. Cornw., adjoining Falmouth on the north. The church, a plain stone building, was opened in 1828.

Penwortham, pa., tp., and large vil. on the south bank of the Ribble, N. Lancs., 2 S.W. of Preston, within which co. bor. a portion of the tp. lies; ac. of pa. 11,288, of tp. 2,270, of which 52 are water; soil marsh, marl, and red loam; subsoil, marl on one side of the tp., the other of a mixed nature. The land is chiefly pasture. The church of St. Mary (restored at various times) dates from the Perp. period; windows in the chancel retain fragments of ancient stained glass, one having the armorial bearings of Richard Fleetwood and Margery his wife, dated 1595; and suspended from the wall are two ancient helmets. The "Dole Charity," value about £70 yearly, is distributed annually on St. Thomas' Day to the poor of the tps. of P. and Howick. P. is known as having contained one of the ancient castles of Lancashire, erected by the Earls of Chester, to guard the estuary of the Ribble, when the channel of that river was much broader than it now is; the castle has long since disappeared, but its site, near the church, still retains the name of "Castle Hill." P. Priory, formerly a Benedictine house, founded in 1087, was thoroughly restored and enlarged in 1832; many of the old rooms, with timbered ceilings, timber and plaster walls, and ancient fire-places, are still in existence and in use; the house stands in its own grounds of 50 ac. P. House, Swallow House, The Hall, and The Oaks are other seats.

Penybont (1), vil., pa. of Llandisilio-Gogo (q.v.), S.W. Cardigs., 7½ S.W. of Aberayron.

Penybont (2), vil. with railway station, pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), Mid Radnors.

Penybont Fawr, ha. on the Vyrnwy, pa. of Pennant (q.v.), Mid Montgoms., 8 S.W. of Llanfyllin.

Pen-y-Bryn, grass-covered hill, E. Carnarvs., 1 S.W. of Penmachno.

Pen-y-Cader Fawr, or Pencader Fawr, summit (2,630 ft.) in the Black Forest, E. Brecons., 6½ N. of Crickhowell. It is the culminating point of the terrace-like ridges which border the Grwynefawr valley on the left.

Pen y Cae, eccl. pa., pa. of Ruabon (q.v.), E. Denbighs. The church, dedicated to St. Thomas, is about 2 miles from Ruabon railway station.

Pen-y-Clawdd, pa., E. Mon., 5½ S.W. of Monmouth, on the old road to Usk; ac. 796; soil clay, overlying strong clay. The church of St. Martin is E. Eng. There is a charity of £2 a year.

Penycoed Castle. [LLANMARTIN.]

Pen-y-Craig, or Pen-y-Crug, the Welsh name of Old Radnor (q.v.), from the position of the church on a rock.

Penydarren, eccl. pa., pa. of and about 1 N.E. from Merthyr Tydfil (q.v.), N.E. Glamorgs. The church is dedicated to St. John.

Pen-y-Ddinas, mountain, pa. of and ¼ N. of Llandudno (q.v.), N.E. Carnarvs. On the summit are the remains of an ancient British fortress; portions of the wall and dwellings may be traced. A large stone is known as Tudno's Cradle. Quarrying has greatly spoiled the hill.

Pen-y-Gader, summit, N.E. Carnarvs., 1¾ W. of Llanbedr. It is nearly in the centre of a mountain ridge.

Pen-y-Gaer, or Pencaer Helen, rounded eminence (1,250 ft.), N.E. Carnarvs., ¾ W.S.W. of Llanbedr. On the summit, which commands a wide view, is one of the most perfect British forts in Wales. The only practicable approach is on the west side, and this was defended by numerous upright stones. According to tradition, it was a stronghold of Caractacus, who after his defeat by the Romans withdrew here, but was betrayed by Queen Cartismandua.

Penyghent, mount (2,273 ft.), W.R. Yorks., about 7 N. of Settle. The ascent is by no means difficult, and the summit, surrounded with a craggy cresting of millstone grit, affords interesting and extensive views.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pentrevoelas	Bettws-y-Coed (4½)	239	413
Pentrich, pa.	Butterley (1)	136	9077
Pentrich, tp.	Butterley (1)	136	303
Pentridge	Dinton (9)	92	196
Pentyrch	Walnut Tree Bridge	167	1693
Penwerris	Falmouth [(1)]	306	1017

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Penwortham, pa.	Preston (1¾)	209	5646
Penwortham, tp.	Preston (1¾)	209	1684
Pen y Cae	Ruabon (2)	196	2873
Pen-y-Clawdd	Dingestow (1½)	148	66
Penydarren	Merthyr (1)	176	5294

Pen-y-Graig, ha., pas. of Ystradyfodwg and Llantrisant (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 5 N.W. of Pontypridd. There are many collieries.

Penygroes, large modern vil., pa. of Llanllyfni (q.v.), W. Carnarvs., 7 S. of Carnarvon. There are Nonconformist places of worship. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the slate trade.

Pen-y-Gwryd, hill (950 ft.), pa. of Beddgelert (q.v.), Mid Carnarvs., 4 W. by S. of Capel Curig. It is situated about a mile from the foot of Llanberis Pass, at the point where the road from Capel Curig forks, the north-west branch leading through the pass to Llanberis, the south-west to Beddgelert. An Inn here is a resort for anglers; the neighbouring lakes afford good trout and other fishing.

Penyphot, mountain (1,772 ft.), pa. of Braddan (q.v.), I. of M., 4 W.N.W. of Laxey. From the summit a wide view is obtained.

Penyvae, vil., pa. of Newcastle (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 2 N. of Bridgend.

Penzance, mun. bor., tp., U., seaport, and mkt. to. (T., TH., & S.), head of Co. Co. dis., on the north-west side of Mounts Bay, pa. of Madron (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 27 S.W. of Truro; ac. of bor. 855, of tp. 401 and 850 water. The to., the most westerly in England, extends about a mile east and west, and nearly the same distance north and south. It has three eccl. pas.; that of St. Mary has a church in Perp. style, and the churchyard contains a mutilated head of an ancient cross; those of St. John the Baptist and St. Paul have churches in E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholic church is in Dec. style, and there are many Nonconformist chapels. The Public Buildings, in Alverton Street, are in Italian style; the east wing is occupied by the Corporation offices; the centre block comprises a large concert hall, known as "St. John's Hall" (which contains a fine organ), and a smaller or lecture hall; the west wing is devoted to the purposes of the Royal Geological Society of Cornwall, founded in February, 1814, which has a museum containing an extensive collection of geological and mineralogical treasures and a good library. The Natural History and Antiquarian Society, founded in 1839, occupies rooms in the east wing of the Public Buildings; the collection is chiefly of local interest, being especially rich in ancient querns and funereal urns. The Institute, established in 1848, has also reading- and lecture-rooms in the Public Buildings on the right-hand side of the principal entrance, and on the opposite side is the Penzance Newsroom; in the courtyard in front is a fountain, the basin of which, nearly 12 ft. in diameter, is cut out of one block of granite. The market house or old town-hall (built 1837) is a building of granite in a quasi-Doric style, standing at the top of Market Jew Street, and has a central dome, from which very fine views of the country around Penzance may be obtained; immediately beneath the dome, on the ground floor, is a spacious Meat Market, and above is a large chamber used as a corn market. In the Market Place is the upper portion of a round-headed cross, 5 ft. high and about 2 ft. wide, with inscription. The P. School of Art, at the top of Morrab Road, is a granite building with highly ornamental frontage; a wing is occupied by the Free Library. The public baths, on the western esplanade, include a large swimming bath. The West Cornwall Infirmary and the Dispensary are in Clare Street; the Infectious Diseases Hospital, in Rosevean Road, was established in 1879. The principal trade consists in the importation of coals, timber, tallow, hemp, iron, corn, flour, bale goods, and groceries; and the exports are tin, copper, fish, serpentine, granite, and leather. The pilchard fishery is also carried on to a considerable extent in the adjoining vils. of Mousehole and Newlyn, where the fish are cured and exported in shiploads, chiefly to Italy; large quantities of fruit, flowers, potatoes, and other vegetables, and the produce of the mackerel fishery are dispatched hence by rail, amounting in the course of a year to upwards of 10,000 tons of potatoes, about 11,000 tons of broccoli, and 3,000 to 5,000 tons of mackerel and other fish. The shipping trade and the fishing industry are the main supports of Penzance. Shipbuilding is carried on on a limited scale. A new dock has been completed since 1887, which greatly increases the facilities for discharging and shipping cargo. There are large tin-smelting works near Penzance, and large flour-mills at P. and Gulval. The Gulval Ice Company has a factory at Newlyn; and there are several foundries and saw-mills. There are numerous delightful walks around P.; and the locality is generally recommended as a place of residence for invalids suffering from pulmonary complaints. The western arm of the pier, built in 1772, and extended in 1812, is constructed upon a vein of felspar porphyry; a roadway, viaduct, and swing-bridge, connecting the southern and northern portions of the harbour, were completed

PENZANCE, FROM NEWLYN.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Penzance, bor.	Penzance	320	12432

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Penzance, tp.	Penzance	320	12382

in 1881, and a floating space of 3½ ac. in extent, with a depth of water over the dock-sill of 21 ft., was completed in 1884. A lighthouse stands at the extremity of the southern extension. In 1889 Morrab House, with its grounds, was purchased by the town council; the house contains the P. library (comprising nearly 20,000 volumes), removed from the Public Buildings. P. has been constituted a meteorological station, and a rain-gauge, etc., are placed in the Morrab gardens, barometers on the public buildings, and sunshine recorders on the dome of the market-house. Sir Humphry Davy was born in this town on December 17, 1778; a fine marble statue of the great philosopher, chemist, and author was erected, in 1872, in front of the old town hall, not far from the site of his birthplace. The statue, which is 8 ft. 8 in. high from the pedestal, is designed after Sir Thomas Lawrence's portrait, painted for the Royal Society; the pedestal, about 10 ft. high, is formed of the finest blue Lamorna granite. The name of the town, Pen-sans, is said to signify the "Holy Headland," a chapel having formerly stood on the point which now forms the base of the Old Pier. In later days this place was denominated "Buriton," or Castle Town. The Barbican cellars, near the quay, indicate the site of the former castle. In July, 1595, a party of Spaniards landed and attacked P., and ravaged it by fire and pillage; in 1646 the town was sacked by Fairfax. P. was first incorporated May 9, 1615, which charter was confirmed in 1663 by Charles II., who constituted it an assaying or "coinage" town for tin, a position which it continued to hold till 1838; other charters have since been granted.

Peopleton, pa. and vil., S. Worcs., 4 N.W. of Pershore; ac. 1,474; soil chiefly clay, loam, gravel, and sand. The church of St. Michael is a small building in Gothic style.

Peover (1). [PEOVER, OVER.]

Peover (2), stream, Chesh. It rises in the east of the co., near Gawsworth, and flows in a general N.W. direction for about 20 miles to the Weaver, near Northwich.

Peover Inferior, tp., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 2 s. of Knutsford; ac. 278. The houses of this place are so incorporated with Nether Peover as practically to form one vil.

Peover, Lower, eccl. pa., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 3 s. of Knutsford. The church of St. Oswald, originally a chapel, built in the 13th cent., of timber, clay, and reeds, was restored in 1852, and now consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower, erected in 1582. The eastern portions of the aisles form chapels, known as the Hulme and Holford chancels, which are separated from the chancel proper and the remaining part of the aisles by massive screens with gates, and are appropriated respectively to the families of Shakerley of Hulme, and Brooke of Mere, the Hulme chapel containing a number of handsome marble monuments and mural tablets to the Shakerleys. There are brasses and inscribed stones with arms to the Hollands and Cholmondeleys. In the vestry is an ancient oak chest. There are charities of about £5 yearly value for distribution in bread, £5 from Shakerley's benefaction for apprenticing, and £10 for the poor.

ST. OSWALD'S CHURCH, LOWER PEOVER.

Peover, Nether, tp., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 2 s. of Knutsford. [PEOVER, INFERIOR.]

Peover, Over, or Peover, eccl. pa., pa. of Rostherne (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 3½ s. of Knutsford. The church of St. Lawrence, in the grounds of P. Hall, was originally built in the 14th cent., but the whole fabric, except the chapels, was rebuilt in 1811. The south chapel (1454) is a distinct building, and the private property of the Mainwaring family; it contains a canopied tomb, decorated in gold and colour, with recumbent alabaster effigies of Ranulph or Randle Mainwaring (d. 1446) and Margery (Buckley), his wife—the former in plate armour and wearing the collar of SS. The chapel still has remains of a small altar, and retains a piscina and credence, and in the windows are fragments of old glass; the north chapel was built in 1650 by Ellen (Minshull), widow of Philip Mainwaring, Esq. (d. December 10, 1647), both of whom are here buried under an altar-tomb of white marble, beautifully carved and in good preservation. Against the wall of this chapel are two other monuments of alabaster—one with full-length effigies to Sir John Mainwaring, Knight (d. 1515), and Catherine (Honford), his wife, with their fifteen children; and the other to Philip Mainwaring, Esq. (d. 1573), and Anne (Leycester), his wife. In the chancel, on the north side, is a tomb. with effigies in alabaster, to Sir John Mainwaring, Knight (d. 1480), and Joan, his second wife; the figure of the knight is in combined chain and plate armour, and both wear the SS collar. The pulpit is E. Jacobean, and there is an ancient font. There is a charity of about £7 yearly value for apprenticing poor children. P. Hall, an extensive park, was originally built in the 12th cent., and rebuilt in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; but half of this structure was taken down during the 18th cent. by Sir Henry Mainwaring, Bart., and replaced by a square building; the family archives include many valuable MSS.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peopleton	Pershore (2)	112	266
Peover Inferior	Knutsford (2)	178	132
Peover, Lower	Knutsford (3)	178	1234
Peover, Nether	Knutsford (2)	178	220
Peover, Over	Knutsford (3½)	178	592

Peover Superior, tp., pa. of Rostherne (q.v.), Mid Chesh., about 3½ S. of Knutsford; ac. 2,929.

Peper Harow, or Pepper Harrow, pa. on the Wey, W. Surrey, about 3 W. of Godalming; ac. 1,293; soil light, overlying sand and gravel. The church of St. Nicholas, situated in the park, is E. Eng., with additions by Pugin. It contains a brass effigy (1487), 17th- and 18th-cent. brasses, and a recumbent marble figure of George, fourth Viscount Midleton (d. 1836). The charities amount to about £4 a year. P. H. is a seat; the Gothic farm buildings in the park were designed by Pugin.

Peplow, ha. with railway station, pa. of Hodnet (q.v.), N.E. Salop, 7 S.W. of Market Drayton.

Peppard. [ROTHERFIELD PEPPARD.]

Peppardstown, pa., Middlethird bar., S.E. co. Tipp., Ir., about 3 N.E. of Fethard; ac. 4,779.

Peppercombe, ha., pa. of Parkham (q.v.), N. Dev., 7 S.W. of Bideford.

Pepper Gowt, or Rowlands Marsh, pa. (formerly extra-parochial), E. Lincs., about 2½ N. of Boston, close to the Witham; ac. 102; soil loam and strong clay, overlying clay.

Pepper Harrow. [PEPER HAROW.]

Pepperstock, ha., pa. of Flamstead (q.v.), W. Herts., on the Beds. border, 2 S. of Luton.

Pepper Street, ha., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 2½ S.E. of Warrington.

Perborough Castle, pa. of Compton (q.v.), S. Berks., a little south of the vil. of Compton. Near the down remains of burnt dwellings and pit dwellings have been met with, as well as Roman pottery and coins.

Percy, or Percy Main, eccl. pa. and vil. with railway station, within the bor. of Tynemouth (q.v.), S.E. Northumb. The church of St. John is in E. Eng. style. Here are the fitting shops of the North Eastern Railway.

Percy's Cross, monument, N. Northumb., 6 S.E. of Wooler. It is a pillar, about 20 ft. high, on a round pediment, and, though named Percy's Cross, marks the spot where Douglas is said to have fallen. [OTTERBURN (1).]

Perelle Bay, small inlet, N.W. Guernsey, Channel Islands, 4 W. of St. Peter Port.

Pergwm Brook, small stream, rises in N. Glamorgs., flows S. by E. through a picturesque glen to the Neath, which it joins near Blaengwrach. Its length is about 1½ miles.

Periton, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Minehead (q.v.), W. Somerset.

Perivale, pa., S. Middx., intersected by the Paddington Canal and the Brent, 4 N. of Brentford; ac. 631; soil clay, overlying gravel. This place was formerly known as "Greenford Parva" (to distinguish it from Greenford, formerly called Great Greenford), and has only borne its present name, which Lysons regards as a corruption of Parva, since the 16th cent.; in the reign of Edward III. it was called "Cornhill." The church (name unknown) is E. Norm.; in the chancel is a brass with effigies to Henry Myllet, his two wives, and fifteen children, dated 1500.

Perlethorpe, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Edwinstowe (q.v.), N. Notts., 8 S. of Worksop; ac. 1,767. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in E. Eng. style.

Perranarworthal, pa. and vil., S. Cornw., 5 S.W. of Truro, on the road to Falmouth; ac. 1,862 and 71 water and foreshore; soil loamy, overlying spar.

PERRANARWORTHAL.

The church of St. Piran (restored 1885) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the communion plate dates from 1576. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. Mellingey and Tullimaar are seats.

Perran-Combe, ha., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Perranzabuloe (q.v.), S. Cornw.

Perran Porth, coast vil., pa. of Perranzabuloe (q.v.), S. Cornw., 8 N.W. of Truro. There is a chapel-of-ease in E. Eng. style. The vil. is much frequented during the summer season on account of its excellent bathing. Pilchard-fishing is carried on.

Perranuthnoe, pa. on the coast of Mounts Bay, S. Cornw., 5 E. of Penzance; ac. 1,127 and 55 water; soil loamy, overlying clay-slate. The church of SS. Piran and Nicholas, first erected about the middle of the 13th cent., was rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1883. The rood-stairs still remain in the north wall; the granite font is probably coëval with the first church. There are Wesleyan and Methodist Association chapels. Acton Castle, a fine square castellated mansion, situated on an eminence, is a seat.

Perranwell, large vil. with railway station, pa. of Perranarworthal (q.v.), S. Cornw., 4 S.W. of Truro. It derives its name from a chalybeate stream which rises here.

Perranzabuloe, coast pa. and vil., W. Cornw., 7 N.W. of Truro; ac. 11,340; soil various, overlying shelf and spar. The pa. is greatly overblown with sea-sand, and in the adjoining hills are rabbit warrens. Navigation is rendered perilous along this coast on account of the rocks by which it is skirted. The present church is the third which has been erected in this pa.; the earliest was the

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Peover Superior	Chelford (2)	172	541
Peper Harow	Godalming (2)	34	159
Peppardstown	Fethard (3)	104	433
Pepper Gowt	Boston (2)	107	11
Percy St. John	Percy Main	277	7051

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Perivale	Castle Hill (1½)	7	35
Perlethorpe	Checker House (4)	143	139
Perranarworthal	Perranwell (½)	299	392
Perranuthnoe	Marazion Road (3)	319	819
Perranzabuloe	Truro (5)	295	2374

church or "oratory" of St. Piran, an early British saint who came from Ireland in the 5th cent., having been consecrated by St. Patrick for a mission to Cornwall. This building has been considered by competent authorities to date from the 6th cent., and is supposed to have been erected over the tomb of St. Piran; and a headless skeleton, conjectured to be that of the saint, was found buried beneath the altar when the oratory was discovered in 1835. It is supposed that this oratory was first overwhelmed with sand in the 9th cent., when another church was erected on the further side of a stream which kept back the shifting sands; this was rebuilt in 1420, but the sand encroached still further, and in 1803 it was resolved to remove and rebuild the church. Accordingly the tower, windows, arches, pillars, and porch were removed some two miles distant, and are now incorporated in the church of St. Piran, a cruciform building in Perp. style. On the site of the second church stands a tall round-headed cross. The inhabitants of this pa. are chiefly employed in mining and agriculture. Cleather's charity of £2 yearly is distributed, £1 being for poor widows and £1 for a sermon. St. Piran's Well, a small baptistery, was ½ N.E. of the church. North of the site of the well is St. Piran's Round, a turfed amphitheatre and one of the most interesting specimens of the old open-air Cornish theatre now remaining; the whole area will hold about 2,000 persons, and in mediæval times exhibitions of miracle plays were held here; within the round is a trenched passage communicating with an ovoid-shaped recess. Near the manor house of Tywarnhayle is a small island, on which formerly stood a chapel. Chyverton is a seat.

Perrot, North, pa. and vil. on the Parret, S. Somerset, 2 N.E. of Crewkerne; ac. 1,233; soil sand and clay, overlying clay. The cruciform church of St. Martin is Perp. There is a charity of about £8 yearly. The district is noted for its fine breed of horned sheep.

Perrot, South, pa. and vil. on the Parret, N.W. Dorset, 3 S.E. of Crewkerne; ac. 1,438; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary is an ancient Gothic building. Hard by is the site of Mohun Castle, destroyed in the Monmouth insurrection.

Perry (1), ha., pas. of Great Staughton and Graffham (q.v.), S. Hunts., 7 N.W. of St. Neots. The Baptists have a chapel. The portion of P. in Graffham is known as East Perry, that in Great Staughton as West Perry.

Perry (2), river, Salop, rises in the north-west of the co., and flows by Hordley, Ruyton-of-the-Eleven-Towns, and Fitz, and falls into the Severn near Mytton.

Perry Bar, eccl. pa., pa. of Handsworth (q.v.), S. Staffs., about 3 N. of Birmingham. The church of St. John is in Gothic style, and has a chapel-of-ease. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there is a Roman Catholic convent. P. Hall, the ancient mansion of the Goughs, is a seat.

Perry, East. [PERRY (1).]

Perry Green (1), ha., pa. of Great Hadham (q.v.), E. Herts., 4 S.W. of Bishop Stortford. The church of St. Thomas (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style, and the school has an endowment.

Perry Green (2), ha., pa. of Widford (q.v.), E. Herts., 5½ N.E. of Ware.

Perry Green (3), pl., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Hadham, Much (q.v.), E. Herts.

Perry Hill, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Lewisham (q.v.), N.W. Kent. The church is dedicated to St. George.

Perry Street (1), vil., pa. of Northfleet (q.v.), N.W. Kent, 1 S.W. of Gravesend.

Perry Street (2), ha., pa. of Crayford (q.v.), W. Kent, 1½ N.W. of Dartford.

Perry, West. [PERRY (1).]

Pershore (anciently "Persere" and "Pearsore"), U., mkt. to. (T.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., on the Avon, S. Worcs., 9 S.E. of Worcester. The town returned members to Parliament as early as 1295 (Edward I.); it is clean, and consists principally of one long street. The foundation of the monastery has been attributed by some to Ethelbert, King of Mercia, in 689; it is said to have become Benedictine in 984, and was several times severely injured by fire, particularly in 1223 and 1288, and in 1269 was much damaged by storms. The king's supremacy was acknowledged by the community in 1534. The revenues were estimated at from £643 to £666 yearly, and the parishioners bought the church for £400. The town suffered much from the destruction of the abbey, and did not fully recover till the middle of the 18th cent. P. has two pas., Holy Cross and St. Andrew's, the churches of which are only separated by a roadway. The existing church of the Holy Cross—a term originally applied only to the nave, as the parochial church—consists of the clerestoried choir, with two lateral chapels, south transept, and the superb central tower of the abbey church, erected in 1331; the choir of four bays is pure E. Eng., the lateral square-headed chapels forming a kind of Eastern transept; the triforium of the choir is merged into the clerestory; the vaulted roofs are enriched with bosses of delicate foliage, all of the Dec. period, and also bear the rebus of Abbot Newton (1413–56) and the arms of Boteler; the nave of ten bays, now destroyed, was 180 ft. in length by 60 ft. wide. The church was completely restored in 1864 under the superintendence of the late Sir G. G. Scott, R.A. There is a lich-gate of oak at the entrance to the churchyard, in which all the neighbouring pas. within 8 miles were wont to bury their dead. St. Andrew's church (restored 1887), formerly in the patronage of Malvern Abbey, is Norm.; the church was originally erected by Edward the Confessor for the use of the tenants of the abbey of Westminster, and was rebuilt and dedicated by Simon, Bishop of Worcester, in 1147. There is a Baptist chapel and a Wesleyan mission room. The cemetery was opened 1875. The P. Working Men's Club occupies commodious premises in High Street, formerly the town hall. The P. Music Hall, in High Street, is let for entertainments, concerts, etc. There is a cottage hospital (1895). The charities are considerable. The chief trade of this place consisted at one time in wool-stapling, which

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Perrot, North	Crewkerne (1½)	132	291
Perrot, South	Crewkerne (1½)	132	250

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Perry Bar	Perry Bar	114	3377
Perry Hill	Forest Hill (¼)	6	4920

has now much declined; there is an agricultural machine manufactory, which gives employment to upwards of one hundred persons. Market-gardening and fruit-growing are largely carried on in the neighbourhood, and form the staple industry, giving employment to a large number of people, especially in the summer months. Fat stock sales are held monthly. Horse and cattle fairs are held on June 26, and a statute for hiring servants the Wednesdays before and after October 11.

Pershore Holy Cross, pa., S. Worcs., containing part of the to. of Pershore (q.v.); ac. 4,341; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel.

Pershore St. Andrew, pa. and tp., S. Worcs., containing part of the town of Pershore (q.v.); ac. of pa. 9,950, of tp. 1,581; soil clay, over clay and gravel.

both are ornamented with noble trees, and watered by the Tay, which occasionally overflows them. The city itself is large and well built, and the principal streets are long and well paved. The river Tay, on which the city stands, is crossed by a fine bridge, from the designs of John Smeaton, F.R.S., the eminent engineer. Vessels of 200 tons burthen can deliver and receive cargoes at the harbour; and steamers ply between Perth and Dundee. The Episcopal Cathedral of St. Ninian (1850), in Atholl Street, is a large and lofty structure in Dec. style. St. John's Episcopal church, Princes Street, in E. Eng. style, has a school-church in connection with it. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient edifice of stone, originally cruciform; it is now divided by screens, the divisions being known as the East, Middle, and

PERTH.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

Persie, q.v. pa., pas. of Alyth, Bendochy, Caputh, Kirkmichael, Lethendy and Kinloch, and Rattray, N.E. Perths., Sc. The church stands near the Blackwater, about 9 N.W. of Blairgowrie.

Perth, city, parl. and royal burgh, pa., port on the Tay, and co. to., S.E. Perths., Sc., 22 S.W. of Dundee; ac. of pa. (divided into P. East, P. Middle, P. St. Paul, and P. West) 3,658. P. was a burgh as early as 1106, but in 1210 was fortified and constituted a royal burgh, with confirmation of all its former privileges, by William the Lion. Until 1482 it ranked as the capital of Scotland, although Edinburgh became the seat of government in 1437. The city is situated at the opening of an extensive plain, nearly surrounded by picturesque hills, with the Grampians in the distance; it is bounded on the north and south by two fine meadows, known as the North Inch (where is a statue of Prince Albert, erected 1864) and the South Inch, used as public recreation grounds, the former covering 100 ac., and the latter 72 ac.; West churches. St. Paul's church and St. Leonard's church are modern buildings. The Free Church and the different bodies of Presbyterian Dissenters have numerous chapels. There is a Baptist chapel in South Street, and a Roman Catholic chapel in Melville Street. The Municipal Buildings (1881) are in the Tudor style, and have a frontage to the river. The County Buildings are in Tay Street. The City Hall is open for public meetings. The Marshall Memorial, in Classic style, contains the public library and the museum of the P. Literary and Antiquarian Society. The Perthshire Natural History Museum, one of the best equipped in Scotland, is in the Scottish baronial style. The Royal Infirmary (1838), in York Road, in plain Italian style, has been repeatedly added to since its foundation. The Perth Academy (1805) is worked, on the modern side, as an organised science school. Sharp's Educational Institute dates from 1860. The barracks, originally intended for cavalry, were

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pershore Holy Cross	Pershore	112	2631
P. St. Andrew, pa.	Pershore	112	2244
P. St. Andrew, tp.	Pershore	112	781
Persie	Blairgowrie	466	596

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Perth, parl. burgh	Perth	446	29899
Perth, roy. burgh	Perth	446	30110
Perth, pa.	Perth	446	36744
Perth, to.	Perth	446	29919

built in 1795. The general prison for Scotland, near the South Inch, built in 1812 for prisoners of war, is now occupied as a convict prison. King James the Sixth's Hospital was founded by King James VI. in 1569 "to provide by all honest ways and means an hospital for the poor, maimed, distressed persons, orphans, and fatherless bairns within our burgh of Perth." The pensioners now live out, and receive an equivalent of £6 and £12 a year; the hospital building is for the most part converted into dwelling-houses for the working classes. P. has long been noted for its dye works and for the manufacture of inks, but it is also famous for the manufacture of gauge glasses, which are sent to all parts of the world. There are also extensive works for the manufacture of linen and jute, winceys, woollens, etc.; brewing, iron-founding, and rope and sail making are also carried on, and the coal, corn, and timber trades employ in the aggregate a large number of hands. Fairs are now held on the first Friday in March, April, July, and September, on the third Friday in October, the second Friday in December, and a sheep and wool fair the first Tuesday after Inverness wool fair; and a horse market takes place on the first Friday in May. There are now two great cattle and sheep markets in P., on Monday and Friday.

Perth, East. [PERTH.]

Perth, Middle. [PERTH.]

Pertholey (1), ha., pa. of Llantrissent (q.v.), Mid Mon., 3 S.E. of Usk.

Pertholey (2). [LLANTILIO PERTHOLEY.]

Perth St. Paul. [PERTH.]

Perthshire, one of the most extensive cos. in Scotland, lying nearly in the centre of the country, and forming the south-east district of the Highlands. It is bounded on the east by Forfs. and on the south-east by Kinrs. and Fifes. (from the latter co. it is separated for a considerable distance by the Firth of Tay); further south its boundaries are Stirls. and Clacks., which latter it embraces on both sides; on the south-west Dumbarts. touches it for a short distance; on the west it is bounded by Args., and on the north-west and north by Invs. and Abers. Its contour is very irregular. The area of P. is estimated at 1,617,808 ac., or 2,527 square miles. In size it ranks as the fourth co., the three larger being Args., Invs., and Ross and Crom. The Romans extended their conquests into this co.; they are recorded to have settled a colony on the site where Perth now stands. One of their roads, passing along the district of Strathearn towards Perth, may still be traced, and also from Perth along Strathmore, to the extremity of the co.; the remains of several encampments likewise are observable, particularly one at Ardoch (q.v.). From 446, some 30 years after the Romans retired, until 843, when P. fell under the Dalriadan rule, this portion of Britain was ruled by Pictish kings; in the next cent. the Danes penetrated here, and were defeated at Forteviot early in the cent., and again in 961 at Luncarty. In the 11th cent. the Northumbrians who were established in the Lothians penetrated into this county and defeated Macbeth, in 1056, at Dunsinnane; and until the middle of the 17th cent. the clan feuds kept the country in a restless state. In August, 1650, Cromwell, after his victory at Dunbar, took Perth; and on July 26, 1689, Viscount Dundee defeated General Mackay (William III.'s general) at Killiecrankie, and in August William's forces gained a victory at Dunkeld. In 1715 Mar gained a doubtful victory at Sherriffmuir, and in 1745 Perth was occupied by Prince Charles Edward. The soil of P. comprehends all the varieties known in Scotland—the carse and loamy being prevalent on the banks of the rivers, and the sandy and tillable classes on the sides of the hills; in many places are extensive mosses, particularly in Menteith district, but with the progress of agriculture some of these have been partially reclaimed. Five-eighths of the area of the co. consist of heath land and woods. The climate on the whole is mild and salubrious, especially in the south, but in the north and west the cold is more general, in consequence of the elevated nature of the country; these districts are, nevertheless, dry and healthy, being screened by the Grampians from the northern blasts. The mountains of greatest altitude are: Ben Lawers (3,984 ft.), Ben More (3,843 ft.), Schiehallion (3,547 ft.), Ben Dearg (3,304 ft.), Ben Vorlich (3,224 ft.), Ben Ledi (2,875 ft.), Ben Venue (2,395 ft.), Ben Chonzi (3,048 ft.), Farragon (2,559 ft.), and Ben Tulachan (3,099 ft.). P. is famous for its extensive deer forests, and abounds with game of nearly every description, though the large species is now considerably diminished in numbers; the red deer inhabit the forest and mountain glades, and are very wild; but the roe appears, even in the summer, in the woodlands and plantations of the valleys, down to the habitable places. The extent of deer forests in this co. is about 100,000 ac. Other game besides deer comprise grouse, pheasants, woodcock, ptarmigan, capercailzie, hares, etc. The lochs and rivers also provide good fishing for salmon, trout, and pike. Within the last cent. there has been a great deal of tree-planting, and considerable improvement has been effected in the roads. During the 19th cent. a great change has taken place in the agriculture of P., the low parts of which now vie in cultivation, wealth, and beauty with any district in Scotland; the upper portion of the co. is still devoted to the pasturage of sheep and cattle, which are mostly driven southwards for sale and consumption. Wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and turnips are all cultivated. The minerals are not of sufficient importance to be worked as a commercial venture. Limestone rocks are found in the high and low country; but the use of lime is greatly impeded from the want of proper fuel for burning it. Marble of a superior quality is worked near Glentilt; beds of fire-clay have been discovered near Culross, and in that neighbourhood, on the Devon, there is abundance of ironstone. About Callander breccia, or "plum-pudding stone," is not uncommon; and here also, as in other parts, are various kinds of slate. A chain of sandstone runs from Gartree to the vicinity of Crieff; upon the Tay is one of the most celebrated stone quarries in Scotland; the principal stone of which the Grampians consist is granite. The principal industry in the tos. and vils. is the weaving of linen goods; in connection with this branch of manufacture, flax spinning mills and a considerable number of bleach fields have been established, and tweeds, winceys, blankets, and other woollen goods are produced. Cotton spinning works are in operation at Stanley and Doune; and considerable dye works,

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Perthshire	.....	 122185

distilleries, breweries, and tanneries, together with iron foundries, engineering works, etc., are found in several tos. and vils. The chief rivers are the Tay, the Earn, the Garry, the Bran, the Almond, the Teath, the Allan, the Dochart, the Tummel, the Bruar, the Ericht, the Ardle, the Shee, and the Isla, besides innumerable small streams. The chief lakes are Loch Katrine, Loch Achray, Loch Ard, Loch Voil, Loch Lubnaig, Loch Dochart, and Loch Earn in the south-west; Loch Tay in the centre of the mountainous district; and Loch Rannoch, Loch Ericht, and Loch Lydoch (the two latter in part only) in the north-west quarter. In the lower division there are some less important lakes. The most remarkable mineral waters in this co. are those of Pitcaithly, near the Bridge of Earn, which have long been famed for their efficacy in curing scrofula and complaints of the stomach. The railway system comprises lines belonging to the Caledonian, the North British, and the Highland railways, which all centre in the city of Perth. The co. for parl. purposes is now separated into two divs. (East and West), and sends one member for each.

Perthshire, East. [PERTHSHIRE.]

Perthshire, West. [PERTHSHIRE.]

Perth, West. [PERTH.]

Pertinney (or Bartine) Hill (about 800 ft.), S.W. Cornw., 3 N.E. of Lands End.

Perton End, ha., pa. of and 1 N. from Debden (q.v.), W. Essex.

Pertonhall, pa. and vil., N. Beds., 11 N. of Bedford; ac. 1,514; soil and subsoil clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter is of mixed periods, being chiefly E. Eng., with a Perp. west tower with a fine broach spire; the chancel is Dec., with a good painted and gilt Perp. screen; in the aisle is an E. Eng. recess containing the figure of a knight; in the nave is a table to the Rolt family, including Mary Rolt (1632), youngest daughter of Oliver Cromwell; in the vestry, which stands on the site of the Lady Chapel, is a monument to Susan Gray (1685), and in the floor is the original altar-slab, removed in 1643. There is a Moravian chapel, founded in 1827 by the Rev. J. K. Martyn. The charities are small. The manor house, on the site of a house belonging to the Knights Templars, is an Elizabethan building, formerly the property of Bishop Fox, containing some fine wood-work; during some restorations twenty-three human skeletons were discovered. Wood End is a seat.

Pertwood, or Pertwood, Upper, formerly a separate pa., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with the pas. of East Knowle and Sutton Verney (q.v.), S.W. Wilts., 8 N. of Shaftesbury. The church of St. Peter is a small Norm. building.

Perwick Bay, small arm of Poolvash Bay, pa. of Rushen (q.v.), S. I. of M., ½ S. of Port St. Mary. The coast is very wild and rocky, with several small caves, formerly the resort of smugglers. Some old walls are supposed to mark the ruins of a castle. At the entrance to the bay is a detached mass of limestone, on which are lime-kilns.

Peterborough, ancient city and seat of a diocese, parl. and mun. bor., head of U. and Co. Co. dis., on the Nen, N.E. Northants, extending into Hunts., 18 N. of Huntingdon. P. sent two members to Parliament till 1885, but now is represented by one member. According to the Saxon Chronicle, in 655 a Benedictine house was founded here by King Oswy of Northumbria and Peada, son of Penda, King of Mercia, at Medeshamstede (= "the Home in the Meadows"), which name the place bore till the 10th cent., when the monastery, after having been destroyed by the Danes, was rebuilt and enclosed, and called by its present name (= "the City of St. Peter"). At the Dissolution the monastic church was made the cathedral of a new diocese, of which John Chambers, the forty-fifth and last abbot, became the first bishop. The cathedral consists of a Galilee porch, extending across the entire west front, and flanked by spired turrets, western transepts with towers (one of which is unfinished), nave of eleven bays with aisles, great transept of three bays in each arm with eastern chapels, apsidal choir of four bays with aisles, and a retro-choir or eastern transept. The foundation of the choir was laid on March 7, 1118, by Abbot John of Seez, and it was consecrated in 1143 by Robert de Chesney, Bishop of Lincoln; the eastern chapels of the transepts were built in the same style by Abbot Martin of Bec, 1133–35; the remaining portion of the transepts and tower (Late Norm.) by William de Waterville, abbot, 1155–77, who also erected two bays of the nave and the cloisters. Benedict, abbot, 1177–93, completed the nave (Late Norm.), and added the painted wood roof; the western transept (Trans.) was also probably his work; only one of the transeptal towers, that on the north-west, is complete; its upper stage (E. Eng.) was added by Richard the Sacristan, before 1274, and till the close of the 18th cent. it had a wooden spire; in this tower hang 5 bells (including the great bell presented by Bishop Cumberland about 1700); the west front, a magnificent and unrivalled work of the purest E. Eng. period, with its original wooden doors, was probably the work of Abbot Zachary (1200–10); the spire on the south-west tower (E. Dec.) was built about 1320; that on the north-west tower (Perp.) about 1470; and the church was consecrated October 4, 1237; the central tower, bound together with wood and iron in 1593, and reconstructed for the third time in 1885–86, was originally built by Abbot de Waterville, but three of its four stages were removed and the design remodelled about 1370; the retro-choir, or "new work," now forming the eastern end of the cathedral, was begun by Abbot Ashton in 1438, and completed by Abbot Kirton about 1496. The west front consists of three majestic arches enriched with arcading and niches, and each pierced by a circular or rose window. The whole is flanked on each side by square arcaded stair towers; an E. Eng. vaulted roof connects the front screen with the actual west wall of the cathedral; the whole width of the west front is 156 ft., and this also is the exact height of the spires which terminate the western turrets. The choir, after being closed for six years for thorough restoration,

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Perthshire, East	.....	.....	43645
Perthshire, West	.....	.....	47916
Pertonhall	Kimbolton (2)	87	276
Pertwood	Warminster (1¼)	106	36

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peterborough, p. bor.	Peterborough	76	26463
Peterborough, m. bor.	Peterborough	76	25171
P. Minster Close Prec.	Peterborough	76	109
P. St. John Baptist	Peterborough	76	23502

was reopened on July 11, 1889. Great care has been taken to preserve the many discoveries which have been made during the progress of the work, one of the most interesting of these being the site of the cruciform Saxon church, which is enclosed within a crypt, under the south transept. The principal monuments consist of the effigies of abbots of early date, and of John Chambers, last abbot and first Bishop of P. (1541–47). Some portions of the shrine of St. Ebba, the instructress of St. Etheldreda of Ely, still remain. In the choir a slab of black marble marks the spot where the remains of Mary Queen of Scots rested from July 30, 1587, until their removal and re-interment in Westminster Abbey, October 11, 1612. Immediately opposite still rest the remains of Queen Catherine of Arragon, who died at Kimbolton

PETERBOROUGH CATHEDRAL.
(Photo. G. W. Wilson and Co., Aberdeen.)

Castle, Hunts, January 8, 1535–36, and was interred here with much state. On the north of the west door hangs a portrait of "Old Scarlett," the sexton, who buried both queens, and died in 1594, aged 98; it has annexed twelve rhyming couplets, and above are the arms of the see. The close, which surrounds the cathedral on the west and north, is approached from the west through a Norm. gateway. Near this is the Trans. Dec. almonry chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, formerly used as a grammar school, and now the museum of the Natural History Society. The Bishop's Palace is Dec., of two stages. South of the nave of the cathedral is the cloister garth; some of the arches of the original Norm. cloister remain; at a short distance south-east of the cloister are still standing the arcades of the hall of the infirmary, and some other offices. P. comprises two pas.—P. Minster Close Precincts (ac. 47) and P. St. John the Baptist (ac. 6,203). The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1883) is Perp.; this church previous to 1402 stood some distance south of the cathedral, but, owing to frequent inundations, was rebuilt on its present site and the building finished in 1407. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches; and places of worship for the Reformed Episcopalians, Roman Catholics, and various Nonconformist bodies. Among the other principal public buildings is the Guildhall (1671); the upper portion, which rests on an arcade of round arches, is used by the Corporation, and the open space serves as a poultry and butter market. The Post Office (1874) is in Gothic style; the Corn Exchange (1848), in Italian style; and the Sessions House (1842), in Norm. style. The Law Courts (1873) form a plain brick block. The Theatre and Fitzwilliam Hall (1877) is a fine brick building with stone facings; in it is the public library. The school of science and art dates from 1882. The King's (Grammar) School, founded by Henry VIII., was reconstituted (1882) under the Endowed Schools Act as a first-grade public school, and new buildings were erected in Park Road in 1885. Deacon's School, founded by Thomas Deacon in 1719, has also been reconstituted, but as a middle-class school. St. Peter's Training College for Schoolmasters (1864) is from the designs of the late Sir G. G. Scott. The Public Dispensary, Infirmary, and Fever Hospital, in Priestgate, was established in 1815. The almshouses for the poor comprise 44 in Cumbergate, called the "town estates," with an income of about £500 a year; and 26 in Westgate, known as "Wortley's," the income of which is £40 yearly. These, as well as the general charities, which amount to about £800, are under the management of feoffees. The inmates of the almshouses are admitted irrespective of sex, and receive 30s. each yearly from the charities. There are also eight almshouses in the Minster precincts, occupied by eight aged women, each of whom receives £6 yearly. The trade of P. chiefly consists of corn, malt, coal, and timber; the manufacture of agricultural implements, elastic web, and boots and shoes, and the transit of live and dead stock and agricultural produce to London and elsewhere by the various railways. Here also are brick-works employing about 1,000 men. The market days are

Wednesday for live stock, of which there is always an extensive supply, and Saturday for live and dead stock and general produce. The cattle market (1867), which occupies an area of 5 ac., has market-house and the necessary offices for salesmen. The fairs are St. Peter's, on the second Tuesday and Wednesday in July, for wool, cattle, and horses, held in the town; and Bridge fair, the first Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in October, held in fields on the south side of the river, for wool, beasts, sheep, horses, stock, and general purposes.

Peterchurch, pa. and vil. on the Dore, in the Golden Valley, W. Herefords., 12 W. of Hereford; ac. 5,164; soil rich loam, overlying clay and sandstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1869) is Norm. It contains a rude sculptured stone, representing a trout with a chain round its neck, said to have been taken in the Dore. Here are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Several fairs are held. St. Peter's Wells are reputed to have healing powers. There are almshouses for six poor women, an endowment for the national school, and charities amounting to about £9 a year. Urishay Castle, 1½ S.W., with a disused chapel, is now a farmhouse.

Peterculter, pa. on the Dee, S.E. Abers., Sc., 7½ S.W. of Aberdeen; ac. 10,547. The surface is rugged and uneven, with hills and valleys, rocky eminences, and marshy flats interspersed. On the banks of the Dee and its tributary streams, however, the soil is tolerably fertile. On the summit of the hills of Oldtown are Normandykes, the remains of a rectangular encampment said to have been Roman. Here are also the mills of the Culter Mills Paper Company, employing about 350 hands.

Peterhead, parl. burgh, pa., and seaport to. on the north side of a bay of the same name, 32 N.E. of Aberdeen, N.E. Abers., Sc.; ac. 9,170; soil in the low lands near the sea light and sandy, but on the higher lands rich black loam. P. was founded and erected into a burgh of barony by George, Earl Marischal, in the year 1593; but in 1715 it was forfeited by this family in consequence of their adherence to the house of Stuart. It is situated upon a peninsula (the most easterly point of Scotland), about 1 the mouth of the river Ugie, the isthmus bet the peninsula and the mainland being only 800 wide. The town is built in the form of a c and is divided into four districts—called the town, Ronheads, Keith Inch, and Peterhead pr The Established church (founded in 1804, op in 1806), at the junction of the south and roads, is a plain stone structure; the front eleva and spire are from plans by Sir Christopher W The East Church, in Queen Street, is in Gc style, as is the Episcopal church (1814). Court House, a handsome building of granit which the sheriff's court is held, is in Queen St Town House, the head of the principal street, i elegant edifice, with a spire and a fine illumin clock; the town hall, one of the apartment a spacious room. The Music Hall buildings f a large pile, comprising upper and lower h small halls and convenient ante-rooms, with s on the ground floor. In front of the Town H and facing the main street, on a pedestal of gra stands a statue in bronze of Field-Marshal J. K (born at Inverugie, 1696; killed at the battl Hochkirchen, October 14, 1758), presented William I., King of Prussia, to the town of 1868. Among the literary institutions of the t may be mentioned the Reading Society (1808) a Mechanics' Institution (1836). There is al solicitors' library. The Public Libraries Act adopted in 1890, and a building erected in 189 St. Peter Street, in which is contained Arbuthnot Museum and Art Gallery, reading-ro lending library, reference library, and recrea room. In 1884 P. was selected as the site a national harbour of refuge for the Scotch co to be constructed by convict labour, and a l convict prison has since been erected, to which Scotch convicts are now drafted. The South H which is the site of the projected harbour refuge, has good anchorage. P. possesses grand advantage of north and south harbo communicating by means of a canal, over whic an iron swing bridge. In the north harbour are graving or dry docks, and at the entrance to b harbours are good lighthouses. At one time community were deeply interested in the wh and seal fisheries, many having their capital larg invested. Within the last twenty years the num of vessels sent out has considerably declined, at present, owing to the exhaustion of the Arc fishing grounds, the industry is threatened w extinction. The herring fishery, commenced h in 1818 by a joint stock company, has beco important, P. having now attained the first ra in this branch of maritime industry. Independ of the fishing and shipping trades, the town enj a good local trade. There are also two la granite-polishing establishments, employing wards of one hundred men; and P. granite, wh is quarried in the neighbourhood, is largely ported.

PETERHEAD.
(Photo. James Shivas, Peterhead.)

Petersfield, pa., tp., U. and mkt. to. (alternate w head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., E. Ha 17 N.E. of Portsmouth; ac. of pa. 1,820, of tp. 2 P. returned one member to Parliament until 18

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Peterchurch	Peterchurch	162	637
Peterculter	Culter	534	3629
Peterhead, burgh	Peterhead	572	12195
Peterhead, pa.	Peterhead	572	15830

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Po LA
Peterhead, to.	Peterhead	572	1
Petersfield, pa.	Petersfield	54
Petersfield, tp.	Petersfield	54

The church of St. Peter (restored 1874) is Norm.; the fine chancel-arch belongs to the best part of the period. It is supposed that the west tower and nave, with perhaps the north aisle, formed the old church (built about 1100), and that the south aisle was added and the whole building completed about 1500; it was thoroughly repaired and restored in 1874, and now presents, with the exception of three E. Eng. windows, all the original features of the Norm. edifice. There are several monuments of the Joliffe family, now re-erected in the tower; the western entrance is through a Norm. doorway in the tower; there are memorial windows to Bishop Wilberforce and the wife of a former rector. A new north porch and a new window and pulpit in memory of Mr. Cross, for forty years surgeon of this town, the latter being a most beautiful piece of workmanship, have been added. Here is a Roman Catholic mission church, and the Wesleyans and Congregationalists have places of worship. [For Churcher's College, see SHEET.] The town hall is a small plain building (1824) on the site of the old market-house. Castle House was once the "Castle" inn, where Charles II. and his queen-mother slept, on the way to France. The Corn Exchange (1866), fronting The Square and High Street, is in Italian style. The fairs are held July 10, October 6 (on the Heath), and December 11. That on July 10 is held in The Square, and is solely a pleasure fair; the one on October 6 is for both business and pleasure, a large amount of stock of every description being brought into it; the third fair is for sheep only. In the centre of the large market square is an equestrian statue of William III. on a lofty pedestal. There are several small charities, amounting together to £76 a year, the most important being The Willow Almshouses. The cottage hospital dates from 1871. The Heath was enclosed in 1867, when a recreation ground was awarded. It forms an agreeable promenade, much frequented during the summer months, and being encircled by the chain of the South Downs, the Steep Hills, and the heath-clad high grounds of Hindhead, it presents landscape scenery of great beauty; within is the cricket-ground of the P. Club. Heath House is a seat.

Petersfield (or Eastern) Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Hampshire. It returns one member.

Petersfinger, ha., pa. of and about 1 s. from Laverstoke (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Peters Green, ha., pa. of Kimpton (q.v.), N. Herts., 5 s.E. of Luton. The national school is used as a chapel, and there is also a Union chapel.

Petersham (1), pa. and vil. on the Thames, N. Surrey, adjoining Richmond; ac. 671; soil gravel and sand, overlying sand. The church of St. Peter, in Italian style, is of Georgian date, and contains monuments to George Vancouver (d. 1798), after whom Vancouver's Island was named, George Cole (d. 1624) and his wife (d. 1633), Sir Thomas Jenner (d. 1706), and others. There are several curious epitaphs in the churchyard, where among others are buried Elizabeth, Duchess of Lauderdale (d. 1697); Sir Charles Stuart, Governor of Minorca (d. 1801); Theodora Jane Cowper, Cowper's "Delia" (d. 1839); and Mortimer Collins, poet and novelist (d. 1876). The almshouses here were rebuilt in 1867. The vil. consists chiefly of fine old houses. [HAM-WITH-HATCH.]

Petersham (2), ha., pa. of Wimborne Minster (q.v.), E. Dorset, 3 N.E. of Wimborne.

Peters Marland, pa. and vil., N.W. Dev., 12½ s. of Bideford; ac. 2,539; soil various, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt in 1865, in E. Eng. style; it contains some old brasses. The Bible Christians have a chapel. There are brick and tile works. Winscott, a fine mansion, is a seat.

Peterstone (1), pa. on the Bristol Channel, S. Mon., 6½ S.S.W. of Newport; ac. 4,123 land and 1,100 water; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1889–91) is Dec. and Perp. The Baptists have a chapel. Near the pa. church are the traces of an old floating dock and a market-house with storehouses, etc., showing that an extensive trade must have once been carried on here. Many of the old inhabitants of the pa. remember that the foundations of various old houses were used to make the present roads with. The ancient town, with many of its inhabitants, was destroyed by marine floods, which broke through and destroyed the badly-kept embankments.

Peterstone (2), tp., pa. of Coychurch (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., about 3 N.E. of Bridgend; ac. 2,106.

Peterstone-super-Ely, pa. and vil., S.E. Glamorgs., 7 W. of Cardiff; ac. 2,171. The church is dedicated to St. Peter. There are ruins of an ancient castle, but nothing is known of its history.

Peterstow, pa. and vil., S. Herefords., 9 N. of Monmouth; ac. 1,274; soil red loam, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Peter is principally Norm. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Petham, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 5 s. of Canterbury; ac. 3,339; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints is E. Eng. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. In the pa. are remains of entrenchments supposed to mark the spot to which the Britons retreated when driven by the Romans from their holds in the woods. Kenfield Hall and P. House are seats.

Petherick, Little, pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Camel, N.W. Cornw., 11 W.N.W. of Bodmin; ac. 1,224; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Petrock (restored 1858) is a Dec. building, and contains brasses to the Rev. Richard Lyme (d. 1834) and his wife, and a monument to John Bettye (d. 1634). There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel and a small charity.

Petherton, North, pa. and large vil., W. Somerset, 3 s. of Bridgwater; ac. 10,269; soil red marl, loam, and sandy, subsoil various. The vil. consists of one main street, on the highroad from Bridgwater to Taunton, and a few smaller ones on either side. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng. The Congregationalists have a chapel. A cemetery with two

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Petersfield Division	.....	.....	47180
Petersham	Richmond (1½)	10	629
Peters Marland	Torrington (2)	225	291
Peterstone (1)	Marshfield (1)	157	135
Peterstone (2)	Pencoed (2½)	179	301
Peterst'ne-super-Ely	Peterston	170	285
Peterstow	Ross (2½)	132	304
Petham	Canterbury (4)	62	622
Petherick, Little	Wadebridge (5)	279	178
Petherton, North	Bridgwater (3)	152	3552

mortuary chapels was formed in 1856. Fairs are held on May 1 and November 8. The charities are devoted to educational purposes. Ashfield is a seat.

Petherton, South, pa. and to. on the Parret, E. Somerset, 5 N. of Crewkerne; ac. 3,310; soil clay and loam, overlying marlstone, sand, and lias clay. The cruciform church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1861) is of mixed periods; the nave, aisles, south transept, and upper part of the tower are Perp., and the chancel, south porch, and lower part of the tower E. Eng., with more recent insertions; the north transept is Dec. In the south transept is a tomb of Purbeck marble to Lord Daubeney (d. 1507), father of the first Earl of Bridgwater of this family. There are Wesleyan, Congregational, and Bible Christian chapels. The boys' school has a small endowment. A cemetery was formed in 1868. The charities are of £64 10s. yearly value. The market is obsolete, but a sheep fair is held annually on July 6. There is a Literary Institute and Reading Room. Many interesting relics have been met with, including a bronze palstave or axe-shaped celt, three bronze celts, and an oval bronze seal of the 14th cent., with a figure of St. Michael treading on the dragon. The palace of Ina, King of the West Saxons (A.D. 690–725), an interesting building, after having been allowed for many years to crumble and decay, has been restored and is occupied as a seat. Bridge House, in large well-timbered grounds, is also a seat.

Petherwin, North, pa. and vil., S. Dev., 5 N.W. of Launceston; ac. 7,500; soil clayey, overlying clay and slate-rock. The church of St. Paternus (restored 1876) is Norm. and later. The three piers of the north aisle are Norm. work, with Pointed arches, over which are E. Eng. clerestory windows; the chancel is E. Eng. with inserted Perp. windows; the tower and north porch are of the 14th cent.; the chancel aisle, the south aisle of the nave, and the south porch with its original iron scroll-work hinges are early 16th-cent. work. In the pa. are Wesleyan, Bible Christian, and Free Methodist chapels.

Petherwin, South, pa. and vil., E. Cornw., 2 S. of Launceston; ac. 4,959; soil light, overlying slaty rock. The church of St. Paternus (restored 1889) is a Perp. building; in the south aisle are the roodloft stairs and a piscina, and the doorway of the north porch is Norm.; the woodwork of the screen has been used for the pulpit and desk; two of the south windows retain some old glass, chiefly heraldic, and there are memorials to Ambrose Manaton (d. 1651), Katherine Killion (d. 1606), and several members of the Couch family. There are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. Treburs'ye is a seat.

Pethybridge, ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Lustleigh (q.v.), S. Dev.

Petit Bot Bay and Glen, S. Guernsey, Channel Islands, nearly 3 S.S.W. of St. Peter Port. The bay has a fine sandy beach and is a favourite bathing resort. At the north extremity is a rocky cavern. From the head of the bay, where stands an old mill, the narrow picturesque glen extends inland.

Petit Iham, detached part of the pa. of Leonards, S. Sussex, and non-corporate membe the Cinque Port of Hastings; ac. 50. It is Winchelsea, and there is only a windmill a stable on the site of the former vil.

Petit Port. [ICART BAY.]

Petit Tor, eminence on the east coast of De about 1 N. of Babbacombe. Marble is la quarried here.

Petrockstow, pa. and vil., N. Devon, 4 N.N.W Hatherleigh; ac. 4,030, including 210 ac. of w land, 136 ac. of open marsh, and the deer par Heanton Sackville, 136 ac. (the house stand Huish pa.); soil dunland, overlying clay. church of St. Petrock, rebuilt (with the excep of the tower) in 1879, is Perp. There are sev monuments to the Rolle and other families, cluding a brass to Henry, fourth son of Ge Rolle, Esq., of Stevenstone, and his wife Marg (d. 1591), with kneeling effigies of both and their ten sons and nine daughters, shields of a and inscriptions. The Wesleyans have a chape Petsoe Manor, pa., N. Bucks., 2 E. of Ember ac. 411. The charities amount to nearly yearly.

Pett, coast pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 3½ S.W Winchelsea; ac. 1,928; soil stiff loam, overly rock and gravel. The Royal Military Canal pa through. The church of SS. Mary and P (rebuilt 1864) is in Dec. style. In many p various ancient trees, still in a sound condit have been dug up; these are supposed to h been buried since October, 1250, when the overwhelmed and destroyed a large tract of l A charity provides medical aid for the poor.

Pettaugh, pa., Mid Suff., 10 N. of Ipswich; 788; soil and subsoil clay. The church of Catherine is Perp. It contains an ancient octag stone font (restored 1861) with carved emblem the Evangelists, much defaced by the followers Cromwell. Here is a large steam corn-mill.

Petteril (1), ha. on the Petteril, pa. of Hesket the-Forest (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., 9 N.W. of Penrith Petteril (2), river, Cumb., rises near Penrudd in the south of the co., flows first N.E., then N.W and falls into the Eden, after a course of ab 21 miles, near Carlisle.

Pettigoe, small mkt. to. (M.) and head of p sess. div., pa. of Drumkeeran and Templec (q.v.), N. co. Ferm. and S. co. Don., Ir., 16 of Ballyshannon and about 1 N. of the nea part of Lower Lough Erne. Its surroundings romantic and picturesque, and from the n elevated lands a fine panoramic view is obtai of Lough Erne and a more distant one of Don Bay. The scenery around is wild and desol There is little trade belonging to the town bes that connected with the markets and fairs. Th are two Protestant churches, a Catholic chu one for Presbyterians, and a chapel for Wesley A monthly fair is held.

Pettinain, pa. and vil., E. Lanarks., Sc. The is bounded on the west, north, and east by

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu-lation.
Petherton, South	Martock (2½)	140	2250
Petherwin, North	Launceston (4½)	223	726
Petherwin, South	Launceston (2½)	223	815
Petrockstow	Okehampton (12)	197	463
Petsoe Manor	Olney (4)	60	10

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Po-lat
Pett	Ore (3)	62
Pettaugh	Needham (5½)	77
Pettigoe	Pettigoe	140
Pettinain	Carstairs (2)	373

Clyde; ac. 3,900; soil various, in the low grounds much recent alluvium, and on the higher grounds moorish. The vil. is 3 s. of Carstairs. The pa. church dates from the 17th cent.

Pettistree, pa. and vil., E. Suff., 4 N. by E. of Woodbridge; ac. 1,729; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1884) is Perp.; there is a piscina, and a brass to Francis Bacon (1580). Loudham Hall, a handsome brick mansion, pleasantly situated, overlooking the valley of the Deben, is a seat.

Petton (1), pa., N.W. Salop, 6 s. of Ellesmere; ac. 829; soil loam and clay, overlying sand and clay. The church, dedication unknown (restored 1871), was rebuilt in 1727, and contains a carved oak altar-piece dated 1635, and an oak pulpit of the same date. P. Park is a seat.

Petton (2), chap. and ha.; pa. of and 4 N.E. from Bampton (q.v.), N.E. Devon. The church (rebuilt 1848) is in E. Eng. style.

Pettridge, vil., pa. of Brenchley (q.v.), S.W. Kent, 7 S.E. of Tunbridge.

Petty, pa. and vil., N.E. Invs., Sc., on the south-east shore of the inner part of Moray Firth; ac. 9,776; soil generally light and sandy near the sea, but on the higher lands rich black loam. The vil. of P. is 5 N.E. of Inverness. A part of the pa. was formerly in Nairns., but was transferred to Invs. by the Boundary Commissioners.

Pettycur. [KINGHORN.]

Pettymuir, vil., pa. of Dunfermline (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc., about 3 s. of Dunfermline town.

Petworth (in Domesday "Peteorde"), pa., U. and mkt. to. (s.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., W. Sussex, 14 N.E. of Chichester, on the highroad to London; ac. 6,082 and 47 water; soil in the north part clay, elsewhere rich loam; the subsoil is sandy. The church of St. Mary (materially altered in 1827) is Dec. In the north chapel or chantry of St. Thomas, adjoining, many of the Percys are interred. Here are Catholic and Congregational churches. The town hall, market-house, and court-room form a block of buildings in the centre of the town. On the north side is a bust of William III. In the court-room lectures and entertainments are given. The P. Institute consists of reading-room, with lending and reference libraries. The town is rich in examples of the domestic architecture of the 16th and 17th cents., some of the houses bearing the Percy badge, a crescent; one of the most interesting of these is a Tudor building, with a timber-framed gable and herring-bone work of brick; the ceiling of the principal room is beautifully decorated with festoons in stucco. There are various charities, amongst which are the almshouses called the Somerset Hospital (1746), and others dating from 1624 and 1836 respectively. Money payments are made to two clergymen's widows and two deserving tradesmen. Exhibitions provide for the higher education of boys and girls, and money and bread are distributed to the poor. There are three annual fairs. "Petworth marble," a limestone of Wealden age, occurs near here. Moore, near P., the ancient home of the Dawtreys, is now a farmhouse; in 1763 much of the structure was taken down, but the present house still preserves some of its original features, and contains one spacious oak-panelled apartment with a fine mantelpiece, with the date 1580. P. House is the seat of Lord Leconfield, and contains picture and sculpture galleries, and a collection of wood-carving by Grinling Gibbons. The chapel, belonging to an older mansion, is ornamented with the arms and badges of the Percys and others. The park wall, 12 miles in circumference, encloses a beautiful undulating and well-wooded space.

Pevensey, coast pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 13 W. of Hastings; ac. 4,350 land and 163 water. Nearly the whole of the land is pasture, and large numbers of fine cattle are reared here; there are nursery and fruit gardens. P. has been considered as best agreeing with the description given by Gildas of the Roman station Anderida. The first historically authentic mention of the place is in 792, when it was given by Berodalbus (or Bervald), a general of Offa, to the abbey of St. Denis at Paris; in the reign of Edward the Confessor it had twenty-four burgesses, and was ravaged by Earl Godwin. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1879–89) is E. Eng. P. Court Hall, which stands in the vil., is a room about 12 ft. square, approached by a flight of stone steps; the basement was formerly used as a lock-up. A cattle market is held here every alternate Thursday from the latter end of June to the beginning of November, and is noted for its supply of fine Southdown sheep. Andrew Borde, M.D., a witty writer and physician to Henry VIII., is stated by some to have been born at this place, but other accounts fix his birthplace at Boond's Hill, in Holmesdale; the house he is said to have occupied, and at which he was visited by Edward VI., still remains, but is now divided into three tenements. The endowment of the ancient hospital of St. John the Baptist, amounting to £100 yearly, is now applied to the maintenance of almshouses; and there is a further sum of £10 a year for the poor. P. Castle, the property of the Duke of Devonshire, K.G., who permits free access to these ruins daily, except Sundays, was a fortress of Roman origin and is largely constructed of Roman materials; the outer walls (entirely Roman)

PEVENSEY CASTLE.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Pettistree	Melton (3)	80	250
Petton	Baschurch (3)	178	45
Petty	Dalcross (2)	583	1298
Petworth	Petworth	55	2867
Pevensey	Pevensey	60	437

enclose an area of about 8 ac. and are about 20 ft. in height; within are remains of a similar fortification of quadrangular form, with round towers, moated on the north and west and formerly entered by a drawbridge; the eastern wall of both is the same, and stands upon a kind of cliff, the circumference of the inner castle being about 25 rods and of the outer walls 250 rods; the whole structure, considering its age, through careful preservation, is in good condition, and when entire must have been of great strength. The castle was attacked by William Rufus and again by young Simon de Montfort in 1265, but soon after the reign of Henry III. it fell into decay; in 1339 it held out against the partisans of Richard II., when it was bravely defended by the Lady Jane Pelham.

Pevensey Bay, ha. (named from the bay on the shore of which it is built), pa. of and about 1 s. from Pevensey (q.v.), S. Sussex. Here is a mission church. The bay affords a shelter for shipping, and is defended by a number of martello towers.

Pevensey, Lowey of, lib., S. Sussex. It consists of the pas. of Pevensey and Westham and 1,500 ac. in Hailsham; as a member of the Cinque Port of Hastings it had been for several hundred years a borough by prescription, governed by a bailiff and jurats, who held courts of session and gaol delivery four times a year, and formerly had jurisdiction in capital felonies; but under the provisions of the "Municipal Corporations Act, 1882," it has ceased to exist as a borough.

Pevensey Point, the eastern boundary of Pevensey Bay, S. Sussex. Off this point lies Pevensey Shoal.

Pevensey Shoal. [PEVENSEY POINT.]

Peverel Point, headland, S. Dorset, forming the southern boundary of Swanage Bay. It lies about 1 E. of Swanage.

Peveril Castle, or Castle of the Peak. [CASTLETON (1).]

Pevington, ha., pa. of and about 1 N.W. from Pluckley (q.v.), Mid Kent. The church, dedicated to St. Mary, was desecrated in 1583.

Pewit Island, in Portsmouth Harbour, S. Hants, near Porchester.

Pewitt Island (1), in the mouth of the Colne, between Mersea Island and the mainland, pa. of Langenhoe (q.v.), E. Essex, about 1 S.W. of Brightlingsea. The island has an area of about 50 ac.

Pewitt Island (2), forming a large marsh, pa. of Kirby-le-Soken (q.v.), N.E. Essex, about 4 S.W. of Harwich.

Pewsey, pa. and small to., head of a U. and petty sess. div., on the Avon, E. Wilts., 7 S. by W. of Marlborough, on the road to Salisbury; ac. 4,596; soil greensand and clay, overlying chalk. The Kennet and Avon Canal is near the town. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1889-90) is E. Eng. and Perp., and retains piscina and sedilia. During the restoration the following ancient features were discovered: a stone rood staircase on the north side of the chancel-arch, a squint on the south, a piscina (much defaced) in the south aisle, and an aumbry in the west wall. The font is ancient; the carved communion rails are made of the wood of the Spanish battleship San Josef, boarded by Nelson off Cape St. Vincent, 1797. The timbers of the roof of the organ-chamber and vestry formed part of the original roof of the refectory of the monastery of Ivychurch, near Salisbury. There are several Nonconformist chapels. The Foresters' Hall was built 1886. The cemetery, on the Woodborough road, has an area of about 3 ac., and contains a mortuary chapel. There are some small charities. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture, and there are brick-works and a foundry. On P. Hill, about 1 S.E. of the to., are some ancient earthworks.

Pewsham, pa., N. Wilts., 3 S.W. of Chippenham; ac. 2,215; soil sand and clay, overlying clay. P House is a seat.

Pexhall. [HENBURY-WITH-PEXHALL.]

Ph-, for places not found under this spelling, see also F.

Phantassie, pa. of Prestonkirk (q.v.), E. Haddingtons., Sc., a little E. of East Linton. There is a seat of the same name. Here were born George Rennie (1749-1828), celebrated as an agriculturist, and his brother John Rennie (1761-1821), still more celebrated as an engineer.

Pharay (1), or North Pharay, island, pa. of Stronsay and Eday (q.v.), Orkney, Sc., about 2 W. of Eday, from which it is separated by Pharay Sound. It is a little over 1 mile long by about ½ mile wide.

Pharay (2), or South Pharay, island, pa. of Walls and Flotta (q.v.), Orkney, Sc., about ½ E. of Hoy. It is about 1½ miles long and nearly 1 mile wide.

Pharay, Holm of, small island, pa. of Stronsay and Eday (q.v.), Orkney, Sc. It lies a little N. of Pharay (or North Pharay) island, and is used for pasturage.

Pharay, North. [PHARAY (1).]

Pharay, Sound of, channel separating Pharay (or North Pharay) from the island of Eday, Orkney, Sc.

Pharis, vil., pa. of Loughguile (q.v.), N. co. Antr., Ir., 7 E. of Ballymoney.

Pheasants Hill, ha., pa. of and ½ N. from Hambleden (q.v.), S. Bucks. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Phepson, ha., pa. of Himbleton (q.v.), Mid Worcs., 5 S.E. of Droitwich.

Phibsborough, a north-west suburb of Dublin, pa. of Grangegorman (q.v.), S. co. Dub., Ir. It includes part of the Phœnix Park, with the constabulary barracks and the zoological gardens.

Philadelphia, ha., pa. of and 1½ N. from Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur.

Philham, or Pilham, ha., pa. of and about 1½ S. from Hartland (q.v.), N. Dev.

Philiphaugh, estate on the north bank of the Yarrow, pa. of Selkirk (q.v.), N.E. Selks., Sc. The estate is very ancient, and its charter dates from the time of Robert the Bruce. It was the scene of the defeat of Montrose in 1645. There is a castellated mansion on the estate.

Philip Norton. [NORTON ST. PHILIP.]

Philipstown (1), or Philpstoun, vil., pa. of and

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pewsey	Pewsey	75	1781
Pewsham	Chippenham (1½)	94	385
Pharay (1)	Thurso (18)	744	58
Pharay (2)	Thurso (20)	744	76
Philipstown (1)	Philpstoun (½)	406	569

4 E. from Linlithgow (q.v.), N. Linliths., Sc. Here is a large shale mine for the extraction of oil and other products, which gives employment to most of the inhabitants.

Philipstown (2), small to. (formerly with a mkt. on TH.) and head of petty sess. div., on the P. river and the south bank of the Grand Canal, pa. of Killaderry (q.v.), E. K. Co., Ir., 9 N.E. of Tullamore. This town was named in honour of Philip II., King of Spain, and consort of Mary, Queen of England. At its east extremity is Forth Castle, where King Philip lodged during his tour through this part of the country. P. consists of only one street, the houses being built in uniform order. It was incorporated in the time of Elizabeth, and previous to the Union returned two members to the Irish Parliament. There are Catholic and Protestant churches and a national school. St. Conleth's Reformatory, for juvenile Catholic male offenders, is under the superintendence of the Oblates. The court-house is the only public building. Six fairs are held annually.

Philipstown (3), pa. on the Lagan, Ardee bar., Mid co. Louth, Ir., 4 N. of Ardee; ac. 3,659. Ashville House and Rathescar House are seats.

Philipstown (4), pa., Ferrard bar., S. co. Louth, Ir., 1½ N. of Drogheda; ac. 268.

Philipstown (5), pa., Upper Dundalk bar., N. co. Louth, Ir., about 3 N.W. of Dundalk station; ac. 1,035.

Philipstown, Lower, bar., N.E. K. Co., Ir.; ac. 30,691. It is bounded on the north by co. Meath, on the east by Warrenstown and Coolestown bars., on the south by Upper Philipstown bar., and on the west by Ballycowan and Geashill bars. It contains Philipstown, and is traversed by the Grand Canal.

Philipstown, Upper, S.E. K. Co., Ir.; ac. 37,096. It is bounded on the north by Lower Philipstown bar., on the east by Coolestown bar., on the south by Q. Co., and on the west by Geashill bar. The Great Southern and Western Railway passes through.

Phill-, for places not found under this spelling, see also PHIL-.

Phillack, or St. Felack, pa. on St. Ives Bay, S. Cornw., 9 W.S.W. of Redruth; ac. 2,907; soil sand and clay slate, overlying sand and in parts granite. The pa. contains a large portion of the to. of Hayle (q.v.). The church of St. Felicitas, rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) 1856–57, is in Dec. style; the tower is Perp. The credence attached to the north wall is formed from a stone altar discovered in the rebuilding of the church. The south wall retains sedilia and piscina; the pulpit is constructed of fragments of the ancient screen. In the vestry is a priest's tomb of granite of early date, and in the walls forming the lich-gate are various sculptured fragments. Near the vestry is an inscribed stone, found in 1856 beneath the eastern foundations of the church; and over the south porch is an example of the XR monogram.

Philleigh, or Filley, pa. and vil., S. Cornw., 6 S.W of Tregony; ac. 2,392; soil light loam, overlying clay, and a light friable slaty loam on slate. The church of St. Felix was rebuilt, in Perp. style, in 1867. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Phillyholme, vil., pa. of Hawkchurch (q.v.), W. Dors., 5 N.E. of Axminster.

Philorth, estate, pa. of and 2 S.S.E. from Fraserburgh (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc. There is a seat of the same name.

Philpstoun. [PHILIPSTOWN (1).]

Phœnix Park. [DUBLIN.]

Phoside, ha., pa. of Glossop (q.v.), N. Derbys., 5 N.W. of Chapel-en-le-Frith.

Phoul-a-Phouca. [POUL-A-PHOOKA.]

Picardy, vil., pa. of Erith (q.v.), W. Kent, 7 E. of Woolwich.

Pickburn, vil., pa. of Brodsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Doncaster.

Pickenham, North, pa. and vil. in a valley, Mid Norf., 3½ S.E. of Swaffham; ac. 1,615; soil light loam, resting on chalk. The Dec. church of St. Andrew was rebuilt (except the tower and porch) 1863. The Primitive Methodists and Wesleyans have chapels. There are two ancient barrows.

Pickenham, South, pa., Mid Norf., 4 S.S.E. of Swaffham; ac. 1,870; soil sandy and light loam, resting on chalk. The E. Eng. church of All Saints contains several monuments to the Chutes and others. P. Hall is a handsome mansion, beautifully situated in an extensive park.

Pickering (in Domesday "Pickeringa"), pa., tp., vil. and mkt. to. (M.), N.R. Yorks., 9 N. of Malton; ac. of pa. 31,010, of tp. 16,037; soil limy and sandy, overlying limestone, rock, and freestone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1879) is Norm., Trans., and later; the Dec. chancel retains piscina and canopied sedilia, the capitals of the shafts bearing figures of fighting dragons; on the south side of the chancel-arch is the recumbent effigy of a cross-legged knight in ringed and plate armour and surcoat, and bearing on the left arm a shield with the arms of Bruys or Bruce; in the north transept is the upper part of the effigy of a knight. On a modern stone plinth in the vestry are two recumbent effigies in white marble of a knight and lady; the former wears a collar of SS and a surcoat with the arms of the Rockliffe family. On the floor of the chancel are marble slabs with shields of arms and inscriptions. By the chancel-arch is a mural monument with an early 18th-cent. brass. The nave arcades are Norm., and have cylindrical columns on the north side and clustered piers on the south; the whole space on both sides, between the arcading and the clerestory windows, is covered with a most interesting and remarkable series of frescoes dating from about 1450, which, after having been whitewashed over, have been uncovered and renovated with great care. In the tower are placed a number of modern inscribed brasses removed from stones, and in the south aisle is a portion of a flat tombstone with a floriated

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Philipstown (2)	Geashill (6)	51	836
Philipstown (3)	Castlebellingham (6)	48	696
Philipstown (4)	Drogheda (1½)	32	18
Philipstown (5)	Dundalk (3)	55	204
Philipstown, Lower	.....	.....	3519
Philipstown, Upper	.....	.....	3877

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Phillack	Hayle (1)	313	4673
Philleigh	Truro (13)	295	244
Pickenham, North	Holme Hale (½)	109	238
Pickenham, South	Holme Hale (½)	109	169
Pickering, pa.	Pickering	220	4711
Pickering, tp.	Pickering	220	3676 cross. In the church is buried William Marshall (1745–1818), a noted agriculturist and author of "A Survey of the Rural Economy of England." The Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Society of Friends have places of worship. This district is purely agricultural; there are manufactories of agricultural implements, and several lime and freestone quarries and brickyards, and one foundry. Fairs are held on the Monday before February 14, the Monday before May 13, September 25, the Monday before November 23, and every alternate Monday throughout the year. These are principally for beasts and sheep, and are well supplied. About ½ N.W. of the to. is Keldhead Spring; the water rises here in a great volume, and is computed to throw up 500 gallons per minute. P. Castle, on a rocky eminence to the north-west of the to., occupies an irregular triangular area, the apex being toward the south; the whole area is surrounded by a massive wall, increased in height and strength on the side toward the to., where also it is defended by a wide and deep but dry moat; the western side is protected by the lofty cliff and by a stream which flows near its base; nearly in the centre of this area, but rather to the north-east, is a great conical and artificial mound. On the flat top was the keep, some fragments of the walls of which, 6 or 7 ft. in thickness and 18 ft. high, still remain; curtain walls 7 ft. thick extend from the keep north-east and south-west to the exterior walls, thus dividing the whole area into outer and inner wards, and the south-western portion has a gate-tower of two storeys. The main entrance is by a bridge crossing the ditch on the east side and leading up to the outer gateway. To the left of this entrance, at the south-west angle of the outer ward, is the Mill Tower, with walls 10 ft. thick; it has a basement and two storeys above, and on the east side a spiral stair leading through a small turret to the battlements, which afford a fine view. At the north-eastern extremity of this ward is Rosamund's Tower, a square mass with basement and two floors above. On the north wall, at the point where the wall from the keep joins it, is the Devil's (or Postern) Tower, entered by a Dec. doorway in the basement, through which there is a mural passage communicating with the floor above and thence to the parapet of the curtain wall. The fortress was no doubt originally a Norm. structure reared on English earthworks, and probably some portions of the existing ruins are Norm., although the greater part belongs to the Dec. period. In the west wall of the inner ward, but concealed by a plantation, is a Norm. doorway of very elegant design; the capitals support a beaded arch overlaid with pointed arcading in a series of 15 cusps and semi-cusps at each end; close by this doorway is a small building with lancet windows, said to have been a chapel. Near the castle is a circular hill crowned by an earthwork. King John several times visited here, and Richard II. was a prisoner in the castle before his removal to Pontefract. During the Civil War it was held for the king, and was besieged and greatly damaged.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pickering Marishes	Marishes	217	225
Pickhill (1), pa.	Sinderby (1¾)	219	569
Pickhill (1), tp.	Sinderby (1¾)	219	252
Pickhill (2)	Wrexham (4)	196	190
Pickmere	Northwich (2¾)	172	224

Pickering Marishes, or Marishes, chap. and t pa. of Pickering (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 N. of Malt on the road to Whitby; ac. 2,335. The chapel- ease is in E. Eng. style, and the Wesleyans hav place of worship.

Pickhill (1), or Pickhill-with-Roxby, pa., tp., a vil. on the Swale, N.R. Yorks., 7 S.E. of Bedale; of pa. 5,107, of tp. 2,184; soil clay and gravel, ov lying clay. The church of All Saints (restor 1877) possesses two notable Norm. arches. Th is a Wesleyan chapel.

Pickhill (2), tp. on the Dee, pa. of Bangor (q.v E. Denbighs., 4 E.S.E. of Wrexham; ac. 1,220.

Pickhill (3), ha., pa. of Coverham (q.v.), N. Yorks., 7½ S.W. of Middleham.

Pickmere, tp. and vil., pa. of Great Budwor (q.v.), Mid Chesh.; ac. 1,876. There is a Wesley chapel. P. Mere is 53 ac. in extent.

Pickton (1), or Picton, tp., pa. of Kirk Leavingt (q.v.), N.R. Yorks, 4 S. of Yarm; ac. 990. There a Wesleyan chapel.

Pickton (2), tp., pa. of Plemonstall (q.v.), Chesh., 4¾ N.E. of Chester; ac. 844.

Picktree, vil., pa. of and 1½ N. from Chester-Street (q.v.), N. Dur.

Pickup Bank. [Yate and Pickup Bank.]

Pickwell, pa. and vil., E. Leics., about 6 N.W. Oakham; ac. 2,378; soil light and clay, overlyi clay and limestone. The church of All Saints a Gothic building. Dr. Cave, the ecclesiasti historian, was born here in 1637, his father be then rector. Leesthorpe Hall is a seat.

Pickwick, ti., pa. of and ½ W. from Corsh (q.v.), N.W. Wilts.

Pickworth (1), pa., S.W. Lincs., 9 E. of Grantha ac. 1,473; soil chiefly loam, on a subsoil of c and stone. The church of St. Andrew is E. E Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amo to a little over £2 a year.

Pickworth (2), pa. and vil., E. Rutld., on Lincs. border, about 5 N.N.W. of Stamford; 2,486; the land is generally of indifferent quali The old pa. church of All Saints has disappeare the steeple was taken down early in the 18th cen and the materials utilised for bridge-building. porch, the sole relic, stands about 50 yds. from t present church, which dates from 1820. Here is Wesleyan chapel.

Picton. [Pickton (1).]

Picton Castle, on an eminence at the junction the East and the West Cleddau, pa. of Slebe (q.v.), Mid Pembs., 4½ S. by E. of Haverfordwes It is one of the most ancient residences in th country, and one of the few distinguished having been "never forfeited, never deserted, neve burnt." It dates from the reign of William Rufu when it was erected by William de Picton, and has ever since been occupied. During the Civ War it was garrisoned for the king, but ha ultimately to surrender to the Parliament. Th building is oblong, with three large bastions pr jecting on each side; at the east end two small

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop LATIO
Pickton (1)	Picton	228	1
Pickton (2)	Chester (3)	179	1
Pickwell	John o' Gaunt (3)	100	1
Pickworth (1)	Grantham (5)	105	1
Pickworth (2)	Essendine (3½)	89

bastions commanded the gateway with double portcullis. The main part is the original structure, but some modern additions have been made on the west side. The castle, surrounded by beautiful and extensive grounds, is approached by a drive 2 miles long.

Picts' Work Ditch. [CATBAIL.]

Piddinghoe, pa. on the Ouse, S. Sussex, 6 S. of Lewes; ac. 2,339; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. John (restored 1882) is E. Eng.

Piddington (1), pa. and vil., E. Oxon, 12 N.E. of Oxford; ac. 2,322; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Nicholas is a Dec. building; there are two fine sedilia and some other good work in the chancel; the tower is Perp.; there is a brass to Catherine Hussey (1613), and some 17th-cent. church plate.

Piddington (2), pa., tp., and vil., S.E. Northants, 5¾ S.S.E. of Northampton; ac. of pa. 2,779, of tp. 1,693; soil marl and clay, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary (partly restored 1878) is a Perp. building. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. P. has several small charities.

Piddle-, for names with this prefix, not found here, see also PUDDLE-. Thus PIDDLETOWN will be found under PUDDLETOWN.

Piddle (1), Puddle, or Trent, stream, rises near Puddletrenthide, Mid Dorset, flows about 20 S.E., past Puddletown and Turners Puddle, and falls into Poole Harbour below Wareham.

Piddle (2), stream, rises near the east border of Worcs., flows about 12 S.W., past North Piddle, and falls into the Avon below Wyre Piddle.

Piddle Burleston, another name for Burlestone (q.v.). Dors.

Piddle, North, pa. and small vil. on the Piddle, E. Worcs., 7 W. of Worcester; ac. 771; soil heavy, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1884) was rebuilt, on the site of the old church, in 1876, in Perp. style; the chancel has a Norm. piscina.

Piddleswood, richly-wooded hill on the Stour, N. Dorset, a little S.E. of Sturminster Newton.

Pidley-cum-Fenton, pa. and vil., E. Hunts, 4½ N. of St. Ives; ac. 3,738; soil clay, overlying blue gault. The church of All Saints was built 1864–65, in E. Eng. style. There is a Baptist chapel, and several small charities.

Piecombe. [PYECOMBE.]

Piel, or Peel, island, pa. of Dalton-in-Furness (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., 3½ S.E. of Barrow-in-Furness. P. Castle, known also as the Pile of Fouldry, was originally erected in the 12th cent., and rebuilt about 1350. The massive remains of the two encircling walls, with their towers and two moats, show it to have been a place of great strength. In the north part of the enclosure stands the ruined chapel. In the time of Henry VII. a body of Lambert Simnel's supporters, led by the Earl of Lincoln and Lord Lovel, landed here.

Field Hill, ha., pa. of Hillingdon (q.v.), W. Middx., about 1½ S.E. of Uxbridge.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Piddinghoe	Newhaven (1½)	56	241
Piddington (1)	Brill (4)	62	280
Piddington (2), pa.	Piddington	65	904
Piddington (2), tp.	Piddington	65	523
Piddle, North	Pershore (5)	112	118

Pierce Bridge, tp., pa. of Gainford (q.v.), S. Dur., 5½ N.W. of Darlington; ac. 920. The church, a chapel-of-ease to the church at Gainford, is in E. Eng. style, with a turret containing one bell of a very early date, formerly in Gainford church. There is a Wesleyan chapel. A brass coin of the Empress Julia Augusta (158–217) was found here in 1854, and a copper coin of Antoninus Pius (136–161), silver coins of Trajan (98–117), a silver coin of Geta (209–212), some pottery, and human remains in 1856.

Piercetown (1), pa., Upper and Lower Duleek bars., E. co. Meath, Ir., 4 S. of Duleek; ac. 2,536.

Piercetown (2), pa. on the Inny, Rathconrath bar., W. co. Wstm., Ir., 7 N.W. of Castletown; ac. 4,230.

Pierowall, vil. on a bay of the same name, Westray island, pa. of Westray and Papa Westray (q.v.), Orkney, Sc.

Pierres de Lecq, or Paternosters, a group of rocks off the north-west coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, a little N. of Grève de Lecq (q.v.).

Piers Gill, deep and narrow ravine on the north-east side of Lingmell, S.W. Cumb., 9 S. by W. of Keswick. P. G. was explored as far as its upper extremity for the first time in 1893. The scenery is very romantic.

Piershill Barracks. [JOCK'S LODGE.]

Pierson's Green, ha., pa. of Brenchley (q.v.), S.W. Kent, 6 S.E. of Tunbridge.

Pigdon, tp., pa. of Mitford (q.v.), Mid Northumb., about 3 W.N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 1,021.

Pigeon Hugo, large cave on the south-west coast of Cornw., about 3 N.W. of Lizard Head. It is only accessible by boat.

Pightlesthorne. [PITSTONE.]

Pike Fell, mountain (1,637 ft.), pa. of Ewes (q.v.), E. Dumfs., Sc., about 7 N.E. of Langholm.

Pike o' Blisco, mountain (2,304 ft.), W. Westmd., near the Cumb. and Lancs. borders. 6½ W. of Ambleside. The mountain commands some fine views—Windermere, Esthwaite Water, Little Langdale, the valley of the Brathay, Red Tarn, Bow Fell, and Langdale Pikes being among the more conspicuous features.

Pike o' Stickle, mountain crag (2,323 ft.), W. Westmd., about 7 W.N.W. of Ambleside. It is one of the Langdale Pikes, and commands a fine view.

Pike Pool, pool in the Dove, on the borders of Staffs. and Derbys., 1 S. of Hartington. The pool takes its name from the Pike Rock, a remarkable rock of grey stone rising in its midst, mentioned in Walton and Cotton's "Angler."

Pike's Hill, ha., pa. of Lyndhurst (q.v.), S. Hants, about 7 N. of Lymington.

Pilcot, vil., pa. of Dogmersfield (q.v.), N. Hants, about 2½ N.E. of Odiham.

Pilford, ha., pa. of Hampreston (q.v.), E. Dorset, 4 N.E. of Wimborne.

Pilgrim's Hatch, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from South Weald (q.v.), Mid Essex.

Pilgrims' Way, ancient road, Hants, Surrey, and

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pidley-cum-Fenton	Somersham (1½)	70	388
Pierce Bridge	Piercebridge	238	219
Piercetown (1)	Duleek (4)	37	235
Piercetown (2)	Castletown (7)	69	376
Pigdon	Morpeth (3¾)	288	37

Kent, was probably constructed by the Britons, the present name being due to the fact that it was followed by pilgrims journeying to the shrine of St. Thomas at Canterbury. Vestiges of the track remain at various spots between Alton and Canterbury, the most perfect remains being those between Guildford and Chevening. Near Reigate the line of the road is marked by lofty avenues of yews.

Pilham (1), pa. and vil., N. Lincs., 5 N.E. of Gainsborough; ac. 637; soil clay, peat, and sand, overlying clay The church is dedicated to All Saints. P. Hall is a seat.

Pilham (2). [PHILHAM.]

Pilkington, tp. and vil., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S. Lancs., about 4 S.E. of Bury; ac. 5,469. Cotton-spinning, coal-mining, weaving, bleaching, and dyeing are carried on.

Pill (1), eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Portbury) and vil. on the Avon, pa. of Easton-in-Gordano (q.v.), N. Somerset, about 5 W.N.W. of Bristol. Christ Church is a modern building in Dec. style. The vil. is a pilot station for the Bristol Channel.

Pill (2), stream, S. co. Kilk., Ir., rises in the east of Iverk bar., and, after a westerly course of about 8 miles, falls into the Suir at Fiddown.

Pill (3), stream, rises in Mid co. Wex., Ir., and, after a southerly course of about 10 miles, flows into the head of Bannow Bay.

Pillar, mountain (2,927 ft.), S.W. Cumb., 9 S.S.W. of Keswick. The view of the crags extending from it and abutting on Ennerdale is extremely fine. The Pillar Rock, which projects from the north side of the mountain about 500 ft. from the summit, was ascended for the first time in 1826; it is now often scaled, but the ascent is dangerous, and a climber lost his life here in 1878. The mountain itself is easily climbed, and commands fine views.

Pillaton, pa. and vil. on the Lynher, E. Cornw., 5 N. of St. Germans; ac. 2,478; soil clay and slate, overlying slate and freestone. The church of St. Odulph (restored 1878) is Perp.; there is an aumbry in the transept and a curious stone recess in the north aisle. The Wesleyans have a chapel. A fair for pleasure and cattle-dealing is held on Whitsun Tuesday. Pentillie Castle is a seat. Near it is a wooded hill called "Mount Ararat," on which Sir James Tillie, Knight, the original builder of the castle, erected in 1712 a small tower, within which, by his own desire, he was buried, his effigy in marble being placed in the upper room.

Pill Creek, on the west side of Falmouth Harbour, S.W. Cornw. It penetrates about a mile inland in a north-west direction.

Pillerton Hersey, pa. and small vil., S. Warws., 8 S.E. of Stratford-upon-Avon: ac. 1,366; soil clay, overlying white and blue lias. The church of St. Mary (partially restored 1873) is a Perp. building, with a fine carved oak roof of the 15th cent., containing several tablets to the Horseman family. There is a small charity.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Pilham (1)	Blyton (½)	152	60
Pilkington	Radcliffe Bridge (½)	194	14472
Pill (1)	Pill	126	1725
Pillaton	Saltash (6)	245	416
Pillerton Hersey	Kineton (3)	92	123
Pillerton Priors	Kineton (4)	92	100

Pillerton Priors, pa. and small vil., S. Warws., 7½ S.E. of Stratford-upon-Avon; ac. 1,514; soil clay, overlying white and blue lias. The church of St. Mary Magdalen was destroyed by fire about 1666, but the graveyard is still used, and contains some tombs of the Gardner family. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a small charity.

Pillesdon. [PILSDON.]

Pilleth, pa. on the Lugg, E. Radnors., 3½ S.S.W. of Knighton; ac. 1,887. The church of St. Mary (mainly Dec.) was reduced to ruins by a fire in 1894. The churchyard contains a well, the water of which was formerly believed to cure diseases of the eye. Near it is a brick mansion of Elizabethan date, now a farmhouse. P. was the scene of a battle between Owen Glendower and Sir Edmund Mortimer (1402), in which the English leader was captured; it is described by Shakespeare in the first part of Henry IV., the engagement being there supposed to have taken place near the Severn.

Pilley (1), ha., pa. of Boldre (q.v.), S. Hants, 2 S. of Lymington. The Congregationalists have a chapel. The endowed school founded here in the 18th cent. no longer exists, but the endowment is applied in aid of the schools at Pilley, Sway, and East Boldre.

Pilley (2), ha., pa. of Tankersley (q.v.), W.R Yorks., 4 S. of Barnsley.

Pillgwenlly, eccl. pa., pa. of Newport St. Woollos (q.v.), S. Mon. The church of Holy Trinity was built 1848, in E. Eng. style. St. Stephen's Church was built 1884, in the same style, as a chapel-of-ease.

Pilling, tp. and vil. on Morecambe Bay, pa. of and about 7 W. from Garstang (q.v.), N.W. Lancs.; ac. 6,060. The chapel of St. John the Baptist was erected in 1717 and added to in 1812–13; it contains an ancient font. The new church was built in 1886–87, in 14th-cent. Gothic style. There is a Roman Catholic church (1891) and a small Wesleyan chapel. The house named P. Hall was anciently a grange belonging to Cockersand Abbey.

Pilltown, vil. on the Pill stream, pa. of Fiddown (q.v.), S. co. Kilk., Ir., 4 E. of Carrick-on-Suir. P. is a pretty village, a prize being given annually, for the best-kept cottage and garden, by the Earl of Bessborough, whose seat adjoins. [PILL (2).]

Pilning, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Almondbury and Henbury (q.v.), Mid Gloucs., 9½ N.W. of Bristol. The Gothic church of St. Peter was built 1855. There is a mission hall, and Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels.

Pilsbury, ha. on the Dove, pa. of Hartington (q.v.), W. Derbys., 8 S.W. of Bakewell.

Pilsdon, pa., W. Dors., 7 N. of Bridport; ac. 627; soil various, sandy, and strong. The E. Eng. church of St. Mary was almost entirely rebuilt 1830, and was restored 1875; there is a very ancient piscina, and the original holy-water stoup still remains in the porch. P. (or Pillesdon) Pen (about 900 ft.) has an old Roman encampment, and is a landmark. The ancient manor house, the

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Pilleth	Knighton (3)	181	77
Pillgwenlly	Newport (1)	151	14968
Pilling	Pilling	226	1480
Pilltown	Carrick-on-Suir (2)	149	384
Pilning	Pilning	127	829
Pilsdon	Crewkerne (6)	132	83

residence of the Wyndham family in the time of Charles I., is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Pilsgate, formerly a separate tp., pa. of Barnack (q.v.), N. Northants, 3 S.E. of Stamford.

Pilsley (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of North Wingfield (q.v.), E. Derbys., 5 N.E. of Alfreton; ac. 1,594. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was built 1875, in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Methodist New Connexion, Primitive Methodist, and Free Methodist chapels. Coal-mining is carried on.

Pilsley (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Edensor (q.v.), N. Derbys., about 3 N.E. of Bakewell; ac. 465.

Pilsworth, tp., pa. of Middleton (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 4 N.W. of Middleton; ac. 1,483.

Piltanton Burn, stream, W. Wigs., Sc. It rises in a small lake about 3½ W.N.W. of Stranraer, flows S.E. through Leswalt and between the pas. of Port Patrick and Stoney Kirk, then bends E. through Old Luce pa. to the head of Luce Bay, which it enters ½ S. of Whitecrook after a course of about 14 miles.

Pilt Down, ha., pa. of Maresfield (q.v.), E. Sussex, 2 S.W. of Uckfield.

Pilton (1), pa. and vil. on the Yeo, N.W. Dev., partly included in the mun. bor. of Barnstaple; ac. 1,611; soil very rich on the hill slopes, and gravel with clay in the valleys. The church of St. Margaret was anciently the church of a Benedictine priory, which in 1261 and previously had been a cell to the abbey of Malmesbury. According to an inscription over the porch, a large portion of the tower was pulled down during the Civil War of 1646, and restored 1696. The church contains a handsomely-carved stone pulpit, with an arm attached to it holding a stand for an hour-glass. There is a finely-carved chancel-screen and an elaborate oak screen between the chancel and south chapel. The ancient octagonal font has a canopied cover of carved oak. The chancel retains a piscina, and in the west wall of the nave is an aumbry. The porch has an ancient stoup. The church contains a number of 16th-cent. monuments and inscriptions. There are several almshouses, and charities produce about £160 yearly. There is a glove manufactory, employing about 150 hands. P. House and Upcot are seats.

Pilton (2), pa., E. Somerset, 5 S.E. of Wells; ac. 4,687; the land is chiefly in pasture. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1879) is of various periods. The chancel and aisle are of the time of Edward III., the nave probably dates from 1180, and a Norm. arch in good preservation still exists on the south side. On the south side of the sacrarium is a piscina under a highly-ornamented arch, and in the chancel hangs a brass chandelier dated 1749. In the church are preserved the remains of an ancient embroidered cope of the 16th cent., for some time used as a cover for the communion table. In the churchyard is a large yew-tree, supposed to be 800 years old. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. A Working Men's Club with reading-rooms stands on the site of an ancient hostelry (of which externally it is an exact reproduction) belonging to the Abbots of Glastonbury. Near the church is an ancient barn, formerly belonging to the Abbots of Glastonbury; it has a well-designed open timbered roof, and on the four sides are the emblems of the Evangelists. There are a number of small charities Burford, Perridge House, and Westholme are seats.

Pilton (3), pa. on the Nen, N.E. Northants, 3½ E. of Barnwell; ac. 1,358; soil clayey, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Mary (restored 1875) is E. Eng. There are several charities. The old manor house was the home of the Treshams.

Pilton (4), pa. on the south bank of the Chater, S. Rutld., about 4½ N.E. of Uppingham; ac. 347; soil clay and (in parts) sand, overlying stone and clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1870) is Gothic.

Pilton (5), ha., pa. of Penrice (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 7 S.E. of Loughor.

Pimlico, dis. in S.W. London, E. Middx., 2½ S.W. of St. Paul's. P. anciently embraced the whole of Belgravia as well as the locality extending from Buckingham Palace Road to the Thames and stretching westward to Chelsea, but now it is generally regarded as only containing the portion lying near the Thames and Victoria railway station. The name, which occurs first in a document of 1626, is said to have been derived from a tavern once situated here. The dis. comprises the eccl. pas. of St. Barnabas and St. Gabriel, with churches in E. Eng. style. St. Saviour's Church (1865) is in Dec. style. In 1687 P. appears to have had but four residents, one of whom, the Duke of Grafton, was the owner of Arlington House. This mansion was in 1698 purchased by the Marquis of Normanby (afterwards Duke of Buckingham), by whom it was rebuilt and called Buckingham House, the name being changed to Buckingham Palace (see page 152) when it was again rebuilt (1825) by George IV. Owing to its vicinity to the royal abode, many of the nobility and courtiers now resorted to P. and especially to Belgravia, where some of the most magnificent mansions are those erected by Thomas Cubitt. It is connected with Battersea and Vauxhall by the Chelsea Suspension Bridge. A broad roadway and promenade called Grosvenor Road, resembling the Victoria Embankment, skirts the river from Vauxhall Bridge to Chelsea Bridge. Victoria Railway Station—a terminus of the London, Brighton, and South Coast and London, Chatham, and Dover railways—is situated at the north extremity of Vauxhall Bridge Road.

Pimperne, pa. and vil., Mid Dors., 2¼ N.E. of Blandford; ac. 2,914; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The Gothic church of St. Peter was rebuilt 1874; over the porch, which has a fine Norm. arch, is a statue of St. Peter holding a bunch of keys. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a reading-room. In the centre of the vil. are the remains of an old cross.

Pinchaford, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Ilsington (q.v.), S. Dev.

Pinchbeck, pa. and vil. on the Glen, S. Lincs., 2 N. of Spalding; ac. 13,401; soil good rich loam,

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pilsley (1)	Pilsley	136	2328
Pilsley (2)	Hassop (2)	154	226
Pilsworth	Heywood (1½)	194	867
Pilton (1)	Barnstaple (½)	203	2172
Pilton (2)	Pennard (2)	128	899
Pilton (3)	Thorpe (1½)	90	108
Pilton (4)	Manton (1½)	90	45
Pimperne	Blandford (2½)	121	420
Pinchbeck	Pinchbeck	95	2822

overlying clay. The pa. forms a portion of the Fen drainage; and the land is generally in a high state of cultivation, and yields abundant crops. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is a spacious edifice of the Dec. and Perp. periods, with a large Dec. chapel on the north side; there are some fine stained windows in the chancel, and at the west end a brass to Margaret (Carr), wife of John Lambert (d. 1600), with 27 shields genealogically arranged, besides monuments to the Cust family, Wimberley family (1656), and a tomb without inscription to the De Pinchbecks; the original roof of carved oak, supported by angels carrying escutcheons, still remains, and the font is a very fine example of Dec. work. Part of the rood-screen still exists. At the entrance to the churchyard is a good lich-gate. The charities for the poor amount to £54 a year.

Buckingham Palace. (See page 151.)

Pinchbeck, West, eccl. pa., pa. of Pinchbeck (q.v.), S. Lincs., 4½ N.W. of Spalding. The church of St. Bartholomew is in Gothic style.

Pinchingthorpe, tp., pa. of Guisborough (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 880. P. House is a seat.

Pinden, ha., pa. of Horton Kirby (q.v.), W. Kent, 3 S. of Dartford.

Pineham, ha., pa. of Whitfield (q.v.), E. Kent, 3 N. of Dover.

Pinford, ti., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Sherborne (q.v.), N. Dors.

Pinge Wood, ha., pa. of Burghfield (q.v.), S. Berks., about 5 S.W. of Reading.

Pinhoe, pa. and pleasant vil., Mid Devon, 2½ N.E. of Exeter; ac. 1,735; soil various, overlying red sandstone and clay. The E. Perp. church of St. Michael was restored 1880. In the churchyard, opposite the porch, is a large stone cross on a pedestal. P. has a mission church in connection with the pa. church, and a Baptist chapel. There are a number of small charities. John Reynolds (or Rainolds), D.D., a learned divine and eminent controversial writer, was born here about 1550. In 1001 King Ethelred was defeated here with great slaughter by the Danes, who burnt the neighbouring villages. In remembrance of this event a pension of a mark (13s. 4d.) is still received by the vicar of the pa.

Pinkie, estate, pa. of Inveresk (q.v.), N.E. Edins. Sc., near the east end of Musselburgh. P. House, anciently the country residence of the Abbots of Dunfermline, was enlarged or improved by Lord Seton in 1613. Its oldest portion is a massive square tower with corner turrets and very thick walls. The mansion is spacious, and contains many splendid apartments; the painted gallery, about 100 ft. long, has a richly-decorated ceiling, and was used as a hospital after the battle of Pinkie (1547). Prince Charles Edward is said to have slept in the apartment on the night after the battle of Prestonpans.

Pinkneys Green, picturesque ha., pa. of Cookham (q.v.), S.E. Berks., 3 S.S.E. of Great Marlow. There is a mission church.

Pinkney Sherston. [Sherston Pinkney.]

Pinkwell, ha., pa. of Harlington (q.v.), S. Middx., 7 N.W. of Brentford.

Pinley, formerly a separate tp., pa. of Rowington (q.v.), Mid Warws.

Pin Mill. [Chelmondiston.]

Pinmore, pl. on the Stinchar, with railway station, pa. of Colmonell (q.v.), S. Ayrs., Sc., about 5 S. of Girvan. There is a seat of the same name.

Pinn, ha., pa. of Otterton (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 W. of Sidmouth.

Pinnacle Rock, isolated granite mass (about 200 ft.), W. Jersey, Channel Islands, 5½ N.W. of St. Aubyn. It forms one of the most remarkable objects on the west coast.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pinchbeck, West	Pinchbeck (2½)	95	1464
Pinchingthorpe	Pinchingthorpe	246	83

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pinhoe	Pinhoe	169	761

Pinner, pa. and vil., N. Middx., on the Herts. border, 2¾ N.W. of Harrow, on the road to Rickmansworth; ac. 3,772; soil clay, overlying clay, sand, limestone, and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1880) is an edifice of flint and stone, the earliest portions of which date from the 13th cent., many additions having been made in the 15th cent., including the tower and porch. There are also monuments and a tablet with kneeling effigy to Mr. John Day, sometime minister of the church (1622), to Thomas Hutchinson (1656), and to Christopher Clitherow (1685). In the vestry is a brass to Eustace Bedingfeld, "a chrysom child" (1580). In the south transept is a piscina. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The Commercial Travellers' Schools (1855) are about 1½ E. of the vil. Here are limekilns, and bricks are made. A small pleasure fair is held on Whit-Wednesday. P. Hill, P. Place, and P. Wood (where Lord Lytton is said to have written "Eugene Aram") are seats.

Pinnock and Hyde, tp., pa. of Didbrook (q.v.), N. Glouc., 4 E. of Winchcomb; ac. 2,263. St. Michael's chapel-of-ease is a small building of stone.

Pinnys. [TOLLER WHELME.]

Pinsley, stream, rises near Shobdon, N.W. Herefords., flows S.E. through Kingsland, and falls into the Lugg at Leominster.

Pinvin, chap., tp., and vil., pa. of Pershore (q.v.) S. Worcs., 8 S.E. of Worcester; ac. 1,031. The church (restored 1885) is E. Norm., and contains some interesting mural paintings.

Pinwell, ha. on the Anker, pa. of Sheepy Magna (q.v.), W. Leics., 2 N. of Atherstone.

Pinwherry, pl. with railway station, pa. of and 4½ E. by N. from Colmonell (q.v.), S. Ayrs., Sc.

Pinxton, pa. (extending into Notts.) and vil., E. Derbys., 3¾ E. of Alfreton; ac. 1,253; soil clay and loam, chiefly overlying clay. The church of St. Helena was rebuilt from the materials of the old church; there are some 13th-cent. incised slabs in the aisle, and in the chancel a memorial to Mary Kelsal (1674); the transept has a small E. Eng. window. The Primitive Methodists and Free Methodists have chapels. There is a small charity. Coal-mining is carried on. Brookhill Hall, an interesting Elizabethan mansion, and Longwood Hall are seats.

Pioda, ha., pa. of Llandebie (q.v.), S.E. Carmarths., 4 S. of Llandilo.

Pipacott, ha., pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Braunton (q.v.), N. Dev.

Pipe and Lyde, pa. and vil., Mid Herefords., 3 N. of Hereford; ac. 1,640; soil clay and loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter dates from Norm. times; the chancel, built in the 14th cent., was restored 1874; there is a fine rood-screen; the tower was restored and a shingle spire added in 1816. The pa. has some small charities. An old yew- and ash-tree near the vicarage and a stone tablet are believed to commemorate a meeting of the judges of Hereford and Shrewsbury at this spot. Good building-stone is obtained.

Pipe Hill, tp., pa. of Lichfield St. Michael (q.v.), S.E. Staffs.; ac. 576.

Pipe Ridware, pa., Mid Staffs., 6½ N. of Lichfield; ac. 824; soil loamy, overlying strong clay. The church of St. James, rebuilt 1842, is in Norm. and later styles, and contains an E. Norm. font. There are some small charities.

Pipers End, ha., pa. of Wheathampstead (q.v.), Mid Herts., 4 N.E. of St. Albans.

Pipers Hole. [TRESCO.]

Pippacott, ha., pa. of Braunton (q.v.), N. Dev., 5 N.W. of Barnstaple.

Pipton, tp., pa. of Glasbury (q.v.), E. Brecons., about 4 S.W. of Hay; ac. 1,378.

Pirbright, pa. and vil., W. Surrey, 5½ N.W. of Guildford; ac. 10,569; soil sand, overlying loam and sand. The church of St. Michael and All Angels, built on the site of an old church burnt down in 1784, is in Perp. style. There is a Congregational chapel and some small charities.

Pirford. [PYRFORD.]

Pirn, estate with seat of the same name, on Gala Water, pa. of and about 3 N.W. from Stow (q.v.), S.E. Edins., Sc.

Pirnie Lodge, vil., pa. of and adjoining Slamannan (q.v.), S.E. Stirls., Sc. The population is included with that of Balquhatson Row (q.v.).

Pirton (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Herts., 5½ S.W. of Shefford; ac. 2,757; soil and subsoil chalk. A church was founded here in the 11th cent. by Ralph de Limesie, but the present church of St. Mary (restored 1883) dates from the 12th cent.; remains of Norm. work are visible in the tower arches, and in the south wall of the chancel is a 14th-cent. piscina; there are memorials to Jane Docwra (d. 1645) and James Hanscombe (d. 1731). Hammond's Trust consists of two almshouses, built 1607 and rebuilt 1877, and there is another small charity. Toot Hill, where are the remains of a moat, is perhaps the site of the castle of the De Limesies. High Down (built 1612) is a fine example of Elizabethan work, and on one of the outbuildings, beneath the arms of Docwra, is inscribed "Thomas Docwra, miles: 1504." P. Hall is a seat.

Pirton (2), pa. and small vil., S. Worcs., 5 S.E. of Worcester; ac. 1,669; soil marl and limestone, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1883) is partly Norm., with a 14th-cent. chancel, the nave and timber-framed tower belonging to the 15th cent. P. Pool, a sheet of water, is 36 ac. in extent. P. Court, now a farm, is a timbered building with a highly-ornamented gable at one end, and a hall with some old panelling.

Pirton (3). [PYRTON.]

Pishill, pa. and vil., S.E. Oxon, 5½ N.W. of Henley; ac. 785; soil chalk, loam, and gravel, overlying chalk. The church, dedication unknown, has been

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pinner	Pinner	13	2727
Pinnock and Hyde	Stow-on-the-Wold(6	89	106
Pinvin	Pershore (½)	112	417
Pinxton	Pinxton	135	2390
Pipe and Lyde	Hereford (2¼)	144	231
Pipe Hill	Armitage (1½)	121	139

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pipe Ridware	Lichfield (2)	116	84
Pipton	Three Cocks (½)	172	90
Pirbright	Brookwood (1)	28	889
Pirton (1)	Henlow (2)	36	1016
Pirton (2)	Wadborough (1)	159	177
Pishill	Henley (5)	36	195

rebuilt, but the walls and the chancel-arch are Norm.; in the chancel is a piscina. There are some small charities. Near the church are the remains of an old chapel.

Pislake, vil., pa. of Shere (q.v.), S.W. Surrey, 4½ S.E. of Guildford.

Pistill (1), pa. and vil. on Carnarvon Bay, S.W. Carnarvs., about 6 N.W. of Pwllheli; ac. 3,860; the surface is dreary, rugged, and barren, and P. derives the little interest it possesses from the vicinity of the bay. To the east of the church is a small vale, called Nant Gwrtheirn, or the "Vale of Vortigern," to which that prince is said to have retreated for shelter from his infuriated subjects, and where he built a castle, which is supposed to have been destroyed by lightning. This narrow vale is accessible only by sea; the sides are bounded by barren and rugged rocks, on which not a blade of vegetation is seen. At one extremity rises the loftiest peak of The Rivals, and the only opening is towards the sea, by which it is bounded on the north. Near the shore is a small verdant mound, said to have been the site of Vortigern's castle; and near it was formerly a tumulus, called Bedd Gwrtheirn, or "Vortigern's Grave," in which was found a stone coffin containing human bones. No traces of these relics are now visible, but the spot is still pointed out where that unfortunate prince, who met his death in this retired spot, in 464, was interred.

Pistill (2), ha., pa. of Llandebie (q.v.), S.E. Carmarths., 4 S. of Llandilo.

Pistog's Castle, tumulus, S. Cardigs., 4¼ E. of Newcastle-Emlyn. It consists of a circular mound surrounded by a moat, overlooking the Teify, and is said to have been the burial-place of the slain in a battle fought in the vicinity.

Pistyll Cain Falls, waterfall on the Mawddach, Mid Merions., 6 N. of Dolgelly. The stream, at this point confined in a narrow gorge, bends abruptly and descends nearly 150 ft. over a cliff.

Pistyll Rhaiadr, picturesque waterfall on the Rhaiadr, pa. of and 4 W.N.W. from Llanrhaiadr-yn-Mochnant (q.v.), S. Denbighs. The height of the fall is about 240 ft.; the water first precipitates itself with great impetuosity down a steep descent of about 180 ft., forms a second fall through a natural arch, and drops into a basin.

Pit-, for names not found under this spelling, see also PITT-.

Pitbladdo, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Cupar (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc.

Pitcairlie, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Newburgh (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc., about 2 N. of Auchtermuchty.

Pitcairn Green, or Pitcairn, vil., pa. of Redgorton (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc., 4½ N.W. of Perth. It has a Free church and a public school.

Pitcairns, Newton of. [NEWTON OF PITCAIRNS.]

Pitcaithly. [PITKEATHLY.]

Pitcaple, vil. on the Ury, with railway station, pa. of Chapel-of-Garioch (q.v.), Mid Abers., Sc., 4 N.W. of Inverurie. P. Castle is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pistill (1)	Pwllheli (5)	270	716
Pitchcombe	Stroud (2)	102	250
Pitchcott	Quainton Road (2)	55	41
Pitchford	Berrington (2)	168	182

Pitchcombe, pa. and vil., Mid Glouces., 7 S. of Gloucester; ac. 485; soil loamy, overlying clay and stony subsoil. The Gothic church (dedication unknown) was rebuilt 1819, and restored and enlarged 1870. There is a Congregational chapel. An ancient castle is supposed to have stood on the north-east side of the church. "Ragged Castle" is an old building, probably constructed out of the ruins of the original fortress.

Pitchcott, pa., Mid Bucks., 7 N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 919; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Giles (restored 1864) is E. Eng.

Pitchford, pa. and vil., N. Salop, 6¼ S.E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 1,644; soil light loam and various, overlying red loam and sand. The church of St. Michael is E. Eng. On a stone altar-tomb is a cross-legged effigy, carved in oak, of a knight in chain mail, the sides of the tomb being relieved by shields of arms. P. Hall is a seat.

Pitch Green, pl., pa. of and ½ N. from Bledlow (q.v.), S. Bucks.

Pitcombe, pa., E. Somerset, 1½ S. of Bruton; ac. 2,330; soil stonebrash, overlying white rock on the high grounds, and sand in the valley. The church of St. Leonard was rebuilt 1858, in E. Eng. style. Hadspen House is a seat.

Pitcox, vil., pa. of Stenton (q.v.), N.E. Haddings., Sc., about 2 W. of Spott.

Pitcullo, estate, pa. of Leuchars (q.v.), N.E. Fifes., Sc., about 4 N.E. of Cupar. There is a seat of the same name.

Pitcur, vil., pa. of Kettins (q.v.), S.W. Forfs., Sc., 3 S.E. of Coupar Angus. There is an estate of the same name, and a ruined castle, the seat of the former holders of the barony.

Pitfirrane Park, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Dunfermline (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., 2¼ W.S.W. of Dunfermline town.

Pitfold, ha., pa. of Frensham (q.v.), S.W. Surrey, 4 N.W. of Haslemere.

Pitfour House. [OLD DEER.]

Pithead, ha., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Rockbeare (q.v.), E. Dev.

Pitkeathly, or Pitcaithly, pl. with mineral springs, pa. of Dunbarny (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc., 4½ S. of Perth and 1 W. of Bridge of Earn. The wells, five in number, are known as the East, West, Spout, Dunbarny, and Southpark. The waters are valuable in the treatment of scrofulous and scorbutic diseases, dyspepsia, and other complaints. The wells were known and held in repute from very early times.

Pitlessie, vil., pa. of Cults (q.v.), Mid Fifes., Sc., 4 S.W. of Cupar.

Pitlochry, vil., pa. of Moulin (q.v.), N. Perths., Sc., 28 N. of Perth. P. is situated on the banks of the Tummel, and surrounded by some of the most beautiful and varied scenery in the Highlands of Perthshire, and is the resort of numerous persons to visit places of interest, also for fishing in the river and Loch Tummel. There are two excellent hydropathic establishments. The Established church (1884) is in Gothic style. The Free church

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pitcombe	Bruton (1¼)	117	388
Pitlessie	Kings Kettle (2)	426	335
Pitlochry	Pitlochry	474	1136

lsome edifice, and for the convenience of here is Holy Trinity Episcopal church, c style, about ½ E. There is also a church. P. has a manufactory of Highds and plaids, and whisky is extensively in this place and neighbourhood. Fairs annually on the Saturday before Amulree, on the Friday after Falkirk tryst, in (or lambs), and on the third Wednesday in old style). Clachnafaire is a seat.

den, ha., pa. of and about 2 N.N.W. from v.), E. Abers., Sc. P. House is a seat.

dle, vil., pa. of about 3 W.N.W. from Kin-v.), E. Perths., Sc.

y, estate with seat of same name, pa. of ns (q.v.), E. Fifes., Sc., about 4 N.N.W. of ster, large pa. and vil., S. Somerset, 4½ S. on; ac. 5,072; soil clay, overlying clay The Perp. f St. An-l St. Mary some anhly-carved a finely-one pulpit edos, and y interest-and 17th-ar-tombs. Congrega-apel, and he Breth-e charities t to £40 B. Grange, the sum-idence of s of Taun-seat.

es, estate t. of same . of Kirk-), S. Forfs., Sc., ¼ S. of Guthrie railway ree, estate with seat of same name, pa. nit (q.v.), Mid Perths., Sc., about 4 N.E. of y.

, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 2½ N.E. of ; ac. 1,250; soil clayey, overlying limehe church of St. John the Baptist (restored Perp.; it contains a holy-water stoup, and pulpit is the stand for the hour-glass used n times. Remains of a Roman villa have nd here.

rie, estate with seat of same name, pa. of line (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., about 3 S.E. of line town.

e, vil., pa. of and 2 W. by N. from Errol Perths., Sc. It contains a United Presbyurch.

idly, estate with seat of same name, pa. of (q.v.), Mid Forfs., Sc., 2 N.E. of Forfar.

ACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
	Taunton (4½)	158	1262
	Langport (2½)	145	306
	Pitsea	27	235
	Pitsford	70	508

Pitscottie, ha., pa. of Ceres (q.v.), Mid Fifes., Sc., 3 S.E. of Cupar. P. Moor, formerly a meeting-place for Covenanters, is in the neighbourhood.

Pitsea, pa. and vil., S. Essex, about 10 N.W. of Southend; ac. 1,747; soil stiff clay, overlying almost yellow clay. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, 1877) was originally Perp.

Pitsford, pa. and vil., Mid Northants, 5 N. of Northampton; ac. 1,413; soil marl and clay, overlying stone. The church of All Saints (restored 1866) is a building of mixed periods; the south porch and west tower are E. Eng., the doorway of the porch Norm., and the font Dec.; the north chantry contains a sepulchral arch and a piscina. There are Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and a small charity.

Pitshill. [TILLINGTON.]

Pitsligo, coast pa., N. Abers., Sc.; ac. 4,641; the land is generally fertile, and the face of the country level. The pa. church is about 1 S. of Rosehearty; it was originally built in 1632, and rebuilt in 1890, and is a plain granite building in Gothic style. There is a beautiful carved oak screen in the Pitsligo aisle, removed from the old church. This aisle and the pulpit are panelled with carved woodwork, also taken from the old church. The labouring portion of the population are principally employed in fishing. P. Castle, formerly the seat of Lord Pitsligo (a title in the Forbes family), is an ancient structure, now in ruins, surrounded with extensive gardens.

PITLOCHRY, FROM THE WEST.

Pitsligo, New, q.s. pa., pas. of Aberdour, New Deer, Strichen, and Tyrie, and to. (wholly in Tyrie pa.), N. Abers., Sc. The to., about 4 W. of Strichen railway station, was founded in 1787 by Sir William Forbes. The weaving of linen was introduced here; but since power-loom weaving began, it gradually decreased, and at the present time there is nothing but the weaving of pillow lace. Near the vil. are several good quarries of granite, largely used for building purposes in Buchan district. The pa. church, on the hill of Terlundle, is a plain stone structure, as is the Free church, built shortly after the Disruption (1846). The Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist was erected in 1871, from designs by Mr. George Street, and is in E. Eng. style. There is also a Congregational church.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pitsligo	Fraserburgh (4)	575	2290
Pitsligo, New, q.s. pa.	Brucklay (4)	561	2436
Pitsligo, New, to.	Brucklay (4)	561	1686

Pitsmoor, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1 N. from Sheffield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. Christ Church was built 1850, in E. Eng. style.

Pitson, ha., pa. of Otterton (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 W. of Sidmouth.

Pitstone, pa., tp., and vil., E. Bucks., 9 E. of Aylesbury; ac. of pa. 2,448, of tp. 1,644; soil variable, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (restored 1893) is Dec. and Perp.; the font is Norm.; the north chapel contains aumbry and piscina and the stairs to the roodloft; there are some tiles, possibly Norm. Ashridge House, the seat of Earl Brownlow, occupies the site of a priory of Bonhommes founded in the 13th cent.

Pitt-, for names not found under this spelling, see also PIT-.

Pitt, ha., pa. of Hursley (q.v.), S. Hants, about 2 S.W. of Winchester. The school-chapel, a flint and brick structure, was built about 1858 by Miss Charlotte M. Yonge.

Pitteadie Castle. [KINGHORN.]

Pittencrieff, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Dunfermline (q.v.), S.W. Fifes., Sc., near Dunfermline town. It was built early in the 17th cent., and about the middle of the 18th cent. was enlarged, materials being taken from the ruins of Dunfermline Palace for that purpose.

Pittenweem, pa., parl. and royal burgh, and seaport, E. Fifes., Sc., on the north shore of the Firth of Forth, 10 S.E. of St. Andrews; ac. of pa. 633. P. is one of the St. Andrews dis. of burghs. The burgh, originally attached to a priory, the remains (chiefly the domestic offices) of which stand on a hill above the harbour, consists of three good streets, with a few bye-thoroughfares, the houses generally bearing an ancient aspect. Adjacent to the monastic ruins stands the pa. church, an old edifice with a turreted spire. There are also Episcopal, United Presbyterian, and Baptist churches. From the time of being erected into a royal burgh in 1537 until 1639 P. was a place of considerable note and trade; but from that period to the year 1645 it suffered severely, no fewer than thirteen large vessels belonging to this port having been taken by the enemy or wrecked. It was here that the robbery was committed upon the collector of the excise by Wilson and Robertson, which led to the outrages of the Porteous mob and the consequent catastrophe; the house in which this transaction took place is still standing on the north side of the street, north of the church. P. is a fishing station of some importance, and fish-curing is carried on extensively, in addition to which the trade in grain and potatoes is of some consequence; there are also two large cooperages, with sail-making. A survey of the district has been made recently, with the view of reopening the coalfields (flooded about 100 years ago) in this pa. and that of St. Monance. Balcaskie Castle, in extensive and well-wooded grounds, is a seat.

Pittheavlis, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of and about 1 S.W. from Perth (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pitsmoor	Sheffield (1)	158	14869
Pitstone, pa.	Tring (1¼)	32	574
Pitstone, tp.	Tring (1½)	32	459
Pittenweem, pa.	Pittenweem	436	1991
Pittenweem, parl. bur	Pittenweem	436	1962
Pittington, pa.	Pittington	253	6504

Pittington, pa., tp., and vil., Mid Dur., 4 N.E. of Durham; ac. of pa. 6,710, of tp. 2,494; soil light and loamy, and in some parts clay, overlying sandstone, part clay, and limestone. The church of St. Lawrence is Norm. and E. Eng. The tower staircase projects in an octagonal form from the centre of the wall on the north side. On the north side of the nave was formerly a chapel, the arcade of which, consisting of two arches, is now built into the wall; the north arcade of the nave has four arches enriched with zigzag work. The font of white marble was formerly in Durham Cathedral. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a Literary Institute and Reading Room.

Pitton, chap. and vil., pa. of Alderbury (q.v.), S. Wilts., 6 N.E. of Salisbury. The church of St. Peter is a flint building with stone dressings, and there is a Wesleyan chapel. [PITTON AND FARLEY.]

Pitton and Farley, tp., pa. of Alderbury (q.v.), S. Wilts., 6 E.N.E. of Salisbury; ac. 2,221. [FARLEY (3).]

Pitts, ha., pa. of Bishopstone near Salisbury (q.v.), S. Wilts., 4 S.W. of Salisbury.

Pitt's Head, rock, Mid Carnarvs., 3 N. of Beddgelert. P. H. is a large boulder, deriving its popular name from a fancied resemblance to the profile of the celebrated statesman.

Pitt's Parlour. [ELEPHANT'S TUSK.]

Pittville, eccl. pa., pa. of Cheltenham (q.v.), N. Gloucs. The church of All Saints is in E. French Gothic style.

Pitullie and Sandhaven, conjoint vil., pa. of Pitsligo (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., between Kinnaird's Head and Rosehearty. It is inhabited chiefly by fishermen. There is a good harbour at Sandhaven, which has been considerably enlarged and improved.

Pixley, pa., E. Herefords., 4 N.W. of Ledbury; ac. 1,086; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew is E. Eng. The chancel and nave are separated by a remarkable E. Eng. oak screen. There are some ancient wrought-iron hinges on the south door.

Place Fell, mountain (2,154 ft.) on the west border of Westmd., overlooking Ullswater, 1 E. by N. of Patterdale. The ascent is easy, and may be begun from either Patterdale or Howtown. A fine view is obtained from the summit.

Place House (1), seat, pa. of Fowey (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. It was originally built in the 11th cent., rebuilt in the reign of Henry VII., and restored and enlarged in the former half of the 19th cent. It retains some interesting work of the Tudor period, including bay windows with rich panelling, and shields of arms and an old hall and porch.

Place House (2), or Prideaux Place. [PADSTOW.]

Pladda (1), or Fladda, islet at mouth of Firth of Lorne, pa. of Jura (q.v.), W. Args., Sc., ¼ N. by E. of Lunga Island. It has a lighthouse, with light visible about 11 miles.

Pladda (2), island, pa. of Kilmorie (q.v.), S. Butes., Sc., 2½ E. by S. of Bennan Head. The island is

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pittington, tp.	Pittington	253	2092
Pitton and Farley	Dean (4)	83	489
Pittville	Cheltenham	109	3491
Pitullie & Sandhaven	Fraserburgh (3)	573	526
Pixley	Ashperton (1)	137	144

pear-shaped, terminating northward in a point. Near its north end is a lighthouse with two fixed lights, visible respectively 14 and 17 miles. The Sound of P., which separates the island from Arran, is unnavigable for vessels of any size, owing to a chain of submerged reefs.

Plainmeller. [PLENMELLER.]

Plains, vil., pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N.E. Lanarks., Sc., 2½ E. by N. of Airdrie.

Plaistow (1), residential dis. for artisans, in the southern div. of West Ham (q.v.), S.W. Essex, about 5 E.N.E. of St. Paul's. It is bounded on the west by the river Lea, over which is an iron bridge of three arches. P. has two eccl. pas. (St. Mary's and St. Andrew's), with modern churches; and there are many Nonconformist places of worship. The West Ham Smallpox and Fever Hospital, built 1880, is a brick structure. The East London Cemetery, opened 1872, has an area of about 43 ac., and contains two mortuary chapels. P. is now a densely-populated place, but at the beginning of the 19th cent. was only a small vil.

Plaistow (2), eccl. pa., pa. of and ½ N. from Bromley (q.v.), W. Kent. The church of St. Mary was built 1863, in Dec. style.

Plaistow (3), ha., pa. of Kirdford (q.v.), W. Sussex, 6 N. of Petworth.

Plaistow Street, ha., pa. of Lingfield (q.v.), S.E. Surrey, 4 N. of East Grinstead.

Plaitford, pa. and scattered vil., S. Wilts., on the border of Hants, 11 S.E. of Salisbury; ac. 1,213; soil sand and gravel. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng. There is a handsome tiled reredos. The font is believed to be Norm.

Plantation, q.s. pa. and south-west suburb of Glasgow, on the Clyde, pa. of Govan (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks. and E. Renfs., Sc. Here are new docks.

Plardiwick, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Gnosall (q.v.), W. Staffs.

Plas Crug, mound with ruins, near the Rheidol, W. Cardigs., about ½ S.E. of Aberystwith. The ruins are supposed to be the remains of the "Palace of Rheidol," mentioned by some British bards, in early times the residence of British princes, and later of Owen Glendower. It is said formerly to have had subterranean communication with Aberystwith Castle and with the sanctuary of Llanbadarn.

Plas Newydd. [LLANEDWEN.]

Plashetts (formerly Plashetts and Tynehead), tp., pa. of Falstone (q.v.), W. Northumb., 13½ W. by N. of Bellingham; ac. 29,230. The Free Methodists and Presbyterians have chapels. Here are collieries producing excellent coal.

Plat Saline, bay and bathing-place on the north coast of Alderney, Channel Islands, about 1 N. of St. Anne. At its east extremity is Doyle Fort. South-west the promontory of Tourgos Rock, with fort and barracks, separates it from Clonque Bay. Off the bay to the north-west are the Jumelles and Robin Rocks.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Plains	Plains	401	818
Plaistow (1)	Plaistow	5	36518
Plaistow (2)	Plaistow	9	4186
Plaitford	Romsey (5)	79	164
Plantation	Glasgow	400	13615
Plashetts	Plashetts	319	340
Platt	Wrotham (1)	31	955

Platt, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Wrotham (q.v.), Mid Kent, 7½ E. of Sevenoaks. The church of St. Mary (1843) is a plain stone building.

Platt Bridge, ha. with railway station, pa. of and 2 S.E. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Platte Rocque. [LA PLATTE ROCQUE.]

Platt Green, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Caterham (q.v.), E. Surrey.

Plawsworth, tp. and vil., pa. of Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur., 3½ N. of Durham; ac. 1,266. There is a mission chapel here. South Hill is a seat. The vil. is sometimes called Tanhills.

Plaxtol, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Wrotham (q.v.), Mid Kent, 7 S.E. of Sevenoaks. The church (dedication unknown), originally a chapel to Wrotham, is Late Perp. The Wesleyans have a chapel, and there is a village library. There are annual charities of about £4. Fairlawn, a large mansion pleasantly situated in a park on the borders of the pa., is a seat.

Playden, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, about 1 N. of Rye, on the road to Tenterden; ac. 1,308 and 32 water; soil loam, overlying clay. The Rother and the Royal Military Canal pass through the pa. The church of St. Michael is E. Eng. There is an endowment of £10 yearly for the parish clerk.

Playford, pa. and vil., E. Suff., pleasantly situated 5 N.E. of Ipswich; ac. 1,296; soil very fertile, subsoil of a sandy nature. The meadow-land is extensive, and affords good pasturage for the young stock of the famous Suffolk breed of horses, for which this locality is noted. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; the chancel was rebuilt in 1874; in the church is a brass memorial of Sir George Felbrigge (1400). In the churchyard stands a plain granite obelisk, erected to the memory of Thomas Clarkson (d. 1846), the friend of slaves. A marble medallion to his memory was placed in the chancel in 1878. P. Hall, a fine old brick residence surrounded by a moat, and P. Mount, in Gothic style, are seats.

Plean, q.s. pa. and vil. (East Plean), pa. of St. Ninians, E. Stirls., Sc. The vil. is about 5 N. of Falkirk, on the road to Stirling. Here is a hospital for old and indigent men, especially soldiers and sailors, founded by Col. F. Simpson (d. 1831), who bequeathed upwards of £30,000 and an estate for the purpose.

Pleasance, vil., pa. of and about 1 N.W. from Auchtermuchty (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc.

Pleasington, tp. and vil., pa. of and 3 W.S.W. from Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs.; ac. 1,923. There is a Roman Catholic church (1819), built in Gothic style. P. Old Hall, built 1587, is now used as a farm-house. P. Hall is a modern house in Classic style.

Pleaskin, cliff (nearly 400 ft.) near Giant's Causeway, pa. of Billy (q.v.), N. co. Antr., Ir., 3½ N.N.E. of Bushmills. Here is some of the finest coast scenery in the North of Ireland. Near its north-east extremity is a red scar, known as Hamilton's Seat, after the Rev. Dr. Hamilton, of

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Plawsworth	Plawsworth	258	1055
Plaxtol	Wrotham (3)	31	986
Playden	Rye (1)	70	282
Playford	Bealings (1)	76	241
Plean	Bannockburn (3)	415	845
Pleasington	Pleasington	211	436

Derry, one of the first, in the 18th cent., to describe the beauties of the coast. From this point a fine view is had of the face of the cliff. The view from the summit of the cliff embraces various points along the north coast, Rathlin Island, and the coast of Scotland.

Pleaskin Head.

Pleasley, pa. and vil., W. Derbys., 3 N.W. of Mansfield; ac. 3,275; soil limestone and clay, overlying rock and clay. The church of St. Michael varies from E. Eng. to Perp., while the chancel-arch is Norm. P. has some small charities. There are cotton-, silk-, and merino-spinning mills. P. valley, through which the river Meden winds, is noted for its beauty.

Pleasley Hill, ha. on the Meden, pa. of Mansfield (q.v.), W. Notts.

Pleberstown, pa. on the Nore, Gowran bar., Mid co. Kilk., Ir., 2 S.E. of Thomastown; ac. 898.

Pleck and Bescot, eccl. pa., pa. of Walsall (q.v.), S. Staffs. St. John's Church was erected 1858, in E. Dec. style.

Pledgden, ha., pa. of Henham (q.v.), W. Essex, 6 N.E. of Bishop Stortford.

Pleinmont Point, promontory, S.W. Guernsey, Channel Islands, 6½ W.S.W. of St. Peter Port. It is surrounded by magnificent cliff scenery. On a stormy day the sea view is very grand; the coast (one of the most dangerous in the world) is exposed to the full fury of the Atlantic. Off the Point are the Gull Rock (frequented by numerous sea-fowl) and the Hanois rocks (q.v.).

Plemonstall, or Plemstall, pa., N.W. Chesh., 4 N.E. of Chester; ac. 2,296; soil clay, overlying marl. The church of St. Peter is Dec.; the nave has four bays, and there is a chapel on the north-east side. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Plémont Point, promontory, N.W. Jersey, Channel Islands, nearly 6 N.N.W. of St. Aubyn. It has precipitous rocky walls, and runs far out to sea, the extreme point being almost detached from the mainland. Here is a ledge, about 100 ft. above the sea, known as the "Devil's Chair." The summit of the headland commands a fine view. Around the cliffs are several caves. Near P. is the landing-place of the telegraph cable from England.

Plenmeller, or Plainmeller, tp., pa. from Haltwhistle, W. Northumb.; ac. thank Hall occupies the site of an a tower, which is supposed to have bee place of Bishop Ridley. There is a her estate.

Pleshey, pa. and vil. on a branch of t Mid Essex, 8 N.W. of Chelmsford; a chalky clay, overlying loam. P. was centuries the seat of the High Co England. The first pa. church was about 1250, and there were also two dedicated to St. Nicholas and attac church, the other in the castle. The transepts of the present church of Trinity (restored 1868) are the remai Dec. building which belonged jointly and a college of priests, founded in 1393 de Woodstock, sixth son of Edward I monuments of the founder's family onl remain. Henry Compton, Bishop of Lo a nave in 1708, and later on the c erected by Samuel Tufnell. There are of a Norm. fortress; the keep is elliptic circumference of 890 ft.; the vallum and parts in good preservation. Thomas de Duke of Gloucester, lived here until and murder by Richard II. Here, in Holland, Duke of Exeter, was behea mob. About 1600 the materials of the used to build a lodge which was destro Plessey, ha. with railway station, pa. ton (q.v.), S. Northumb., 6 S.S.E. of Mor situated on an eminence on the bank o and is mentioned in many ancient records. P. Hall, formerly the seat o family, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

Plinlimmon. [Plynlimmon.]

Plockton, vil. on Loch Caron, pa. (q.v.), S.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 4 S.W Ferry. It ranks as a burgh of regality Free church.

Plompton, tp., pa. of Spofforth (q.v.), 3 S.E. of Knaresborough; ac. 2,134. tains a large lake, and P. Rocks are much by visitors.

Plotcock, vil., pa. of and 5 S.E. fro (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc.

Plowden, vil. with railway station, p Lydbury (q.v.), S.W. Salop, 5½ S.E. Castle.

Plowland, ha., pa. of Welwick (q.v.), 2 S.E. of Patrington.

Pluck, pl. with railway station, p (q.v.), E. co. Don., Ir., 5 E. of Letterken Pluckley (formerly Pluckley-with-Pev and vil., S. Kent, 6 W. of Ashford; ac mostly loam, overlying clay. The ch Michael is Dec. and Perp. The De contains several monuments of memb family, who lie buried in the vault b has a stained window of foreign The chapel is separated from the chanc

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pleasley	Pleasley (½)	144	1499
Pleberstown	Thomastown (2)	92	127
Pleck and Bescot	Pleck	120	7020
Plemonstall	Chester (4)	179	1409
Plenmeller	Haltwhistle (½)	305	196

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or
Pleshey	Chelmsford (8)
Plockton	Strome Ferry (4)
Plompton	Knaresborough (3)
Pluckley	Pluckley

beautiful oak screen of the 15th cent., and from the aisle by a screen in a mixed style of the 17th cent. There are brasses with effigies to Richard Malemayns (d. 1440), John Dering (d. 1425), Richard Dering (d. 1544–5), under a trefoil arch, Juiyen Deryng, gentylwoman (d. 1526), and two figures of knights. St. Mary's chapel-of-ease, near the railway station, is in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. A fair is held on November 4 for toys and pedlery. There are large brick and tile works. Surrenden Dering is a seat.

Plumb Bridge, vil., pa. of Upper Bodoney (q.v.), N. co. Tyr., Ir., 6 S.E. of Newtown Stewart. A market is held on Thursdays for butter and eggs, and monthly fairs for horses, cattle, and sheep.

Plumbland, pa. and vil. on the Ellen, W. Cumb., 6 S.E. of Cockermouth; ac. 2,564; soil partly gravel, overlying red sandstone and limestone. The church of St. Cuthbert (rebuilt 1870–71, in E. Eng. style) probably dates from pre-Norm. times, being rebuilt in 1170; and in 1220 an E. Eng. chancel was added, subsequent additions being made at various dates; remains of the Norm. south doorway can be seen, also three E. Eng. piscinæ. There is a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to £80 per annum. Coal has been worked here, and lime is shipped. There is a free grammar school, founded 1759, with an endowment of about £75 per annum. Near the church are the remains of the manorial pigeon-house, dating from the 14th cent.

Plumbley, or Plumley, tp. and vil., pa. of Great Budworth (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 1 W. of Lower Peover; ac. 1,622. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Plummer's Plain, ha., pa. of Lower Beeding (q.v.), N.W. Sussex, 5 S.E. of Horsham.

Plumpton (1), pa. and vil., Mid Sussex, 4 N.W. of Lewes; ac. 2,450; soil mixed, subsoil chalky. The church (dedication unknown) is chiefly E. Eng. All Saints' chapel-of-ease was erected 1893. There is a Congregational chapel, also a small convalescent home. The P. race-ground is near the station, and various meetings are held yearly from September to May.

Plumpton (2), pa. and small vil., S. Northants, 7 W. of Towcester; ac. 878; soil clay, subsoil various. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt 1822, in Perp. style. There are some small charities.

Plumpton, Great, ha., pa. of and about 3 W. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Plumpton Green, ha., pa. of Plumpton (q.v.), Mid Sussex, 5 N.W. of Lewes.

Plumpton, Little, ha., pa. of and about 3 W. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs. [WESTBY-WITH-PLUMPTON.]

Plumpton Street, ha., pa. of Hesket-in-the-Forest (q.v.), N.E. Cumb., 7 N.W. of Penrith.

Plumpton Wall, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Petteril, pa. of Lazonby (q.v.), E. Cumb., 5 N. of Penrith; ac. 3,040. The church of St. John was built in 1767. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are remains of a Roman camp, known as Old Penrith; the ramparts are well defined, and east of the camp extensive remains have been found, including a well, a gold fibula, and five altars; numerous coins, too, have been discovered dating 125–307 A.D.

Plumstead (1), pa. and south-east suburb of London, on the Thames, N.W. Kent; ac. 3,388. St. Margaret's, now the pa. church, was built in 1858, in Gothic style. The former pa. church of St. Nicholas is an ancient E. Eng. building, once much larger; the north aisle was rebuilt in 1820, and in 1870 the interior of the church was restored; there are monuments to Dr. Benjamin Barnett, vicar (d. 1707), and to John Lidgbird (d. 1771), and in the central aisle a slab to John Gossage (d. 1672), a benefactor of the church. There are several curious epitaphs in the churchyard, including one to James Darling, aged ten. The eccl. pa. of St. James was formed in 1878, that of St. John in 1885, the church of the latter being in Gothic style, with a mission hall (1887) adjoining. The Presbyterian church of St. Andrew was built 1871; and there are Baptist, Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan, and other Nonconformist chapels. Scott's charity amounts to £37 yearly. P. Cemetery is close to Bostall Heath, and Woolwich Cemetery is in the pa. On P. Marshes, which lie along the Thames, market-gardening is largely carried on; and there are several powder magazines in the same vicinity. A mile and a half east can still be seen a few fragments of the ruins of Lesnes Abbey. [LESNES.] Bostall Heath, about a mile from P. Station, pretty in itself, commands a splendid view over the river valley, with London to the west, and is a favourite resort of holiday-makers from the metropolis; Dick Turpin is reputed to have had a hiding-place among the chalk caves here. Bostall Wood was purchased by Sir Julian Goldsmid, and opened to the public in 1893.

Plumstead (2), or Plumstead-by-Holt, pa., N. Norf., 9½ S.W. of Cromer; ac. 1,279; soil light, resting on marl, sand, and gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1873) is of various periods.

Plumstead, Great, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 5 E. of Norwich; ac. 1,434; soil mixed, overlying loam. The Perp. church of St. Mary (restored 1876) was burnt down 1891, and rebuilt 1892, chiefly in Perp. style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There is a fuel allotment of 29 ac., let at £40 yearly. P. Hall is a seat.

Plumstead, Little, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 5 E. of Norwich; ac. 1,399; soil mixed, overlying clay. The Perp. church of St. Protasius and St. Gervase contains several modern memorials; the chancel rails were erected by the pa. in thanksgiving for the recovery from illness of the Prince of Wales in 1872. The poor have the rent (£45) of allotments of 36 ac. Brick- and tile-making is carried on. P. Hall stands in a park of 160 ac.

Plumtree (1), pa., tp., and vil., S. Notts., 5½ S.E. of Nottingham; ac. of pa. 3,590, of tp. 1,859; soil and

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population
Plumb Bridge	NewtownStewart(6)	153	140
Plumbland	Aspatria (2)	319	670
Plumbley	Plumbley	175	381
Plumpton (1)	Plumpton	45	468
Plumpton (2)	Brackley (5)	68	18
Plumpton Wall, ec. pa.	Plumpton (1½)	286	609
Plumpton Wall, tp.	Plumpton (1½)	286	317

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Plumstead (1)	Plumstead	9	52436
Plumstead (2)	Corpusty (4)	133	177
Plumstead, Great	Norwich (5)	114	352
Plumstead, Little	Norwich (5)	114	355
Plumtree (1), pa.	P'tree & Keyworth	118	549
Plumtree (1), tp.	P'tree & Keyworth	118	279

subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1875) contains some oak stalls, a rood-screen, a piscina, and sedilia. There is a small charity.

Plumtree (2), vil., pa. of Harworth (q.v.), N.W. Notts., 1 S.W. of Bawtry.

Plungar, pa. and vil., N. Leics., on the Notts. border, about 10 N. by E. from Melton Mowbray; ac. 979; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The church of St. Helen (restored 1876) is E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Pluscardine Abbey, ruins in valley of same name, pa. of and 6 S.W. from Elgin (q.v.), E. Elgs., Sc. It was founded in 1230 as a Cistercian monastery by Alexander II. The ruins are well preserved, and show traces of a cruciform church with a square central tower, a narrow chapel dedicated to St. Mary, a chapter-house and calefactory, and a prior's house. "The Book of Pluscarden," an early history of Scotland, is said to have been written by a monk of the priory about 1461.

Plush, chap. and ha., pa. of Buckland Newton (q.v.), Mid Dorset, 3 S.E. of Cerne Abbas. The church of St. John the Baptist is in Perp. style.

Plusha Bridge, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Linkinhorne (q.v.), N.E. Cornw. The Baptists have a chapel.

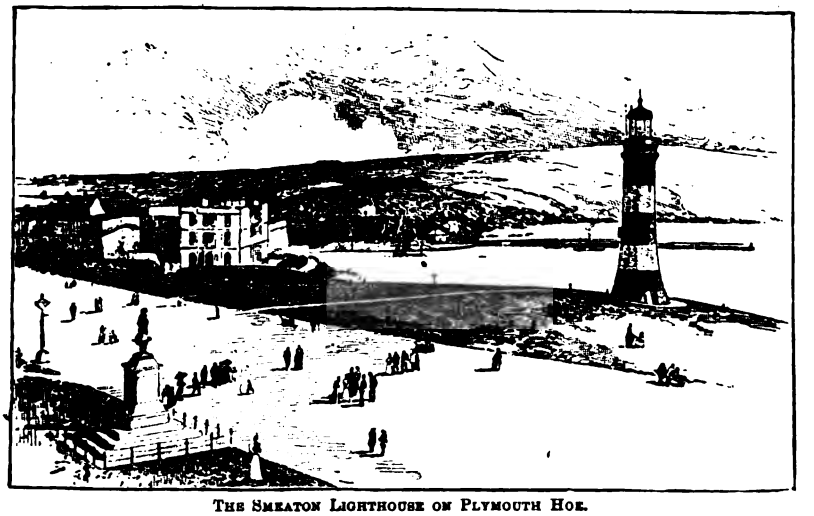
Plym, river, S.W. Dev., rises on Dartmoor, 4 S.E. of Princetown, and runs S.W. to Bickleigh, and then S. by W. to Plymouth Sound. At Shaugh Bridge, a romantic spot a little above Bickleigh, its waters unite with those of the Meavy. Before entering Plymouth Sound it forms the estuary of the Catwater, a name also applied to the whole stream. Its length is about 16 miles.

Plymouth, mun., co., and parl. bor. (with two members), seaport and mkt. to. (M., TH., & S.), and naval station, between the estuaries of the Tamar and Plym, S. Devon, 44 S.W. of Exeter; ac. of mun. and co. bor. 1,540, of parl. bor. 2,001. P. in the wide sense includes not only P. proper, but also Stonehouse and Devonport, which together constitute the bor. of Devonport (q.v.). P. was called by the Saxons Tamarworth, and appears in Domesday as Sutton (i.e. the South Town). It formerly belonged to the priory of Plympton, but was incorporated in 1439–40, and thereupon assumed the name of "the Kinge's towne of Plymothe." It was several times attacked by the French, and in the 15th cent. the townsmen obtained, among other privileges, the grant of a toll on all merchandise to enable them to build walls and towers and fortify the town. In 1512 an Act was passed for fortifying P. and other towns in the West. It was from P. Hoe that Drake sailed in 1572, and again in 1595 with Hawkins, on the disastrous expedition which caused his death. From P. also Sir Humphrey Gilbert embarked in 1583, on his ill-fated voyage to Newfoundland. The Spanish Armada appeared off P. about noon on July 20, 1588, under the command of the Duke of Medina Sidona, who, confident of victory, is said to have selected Mount Edgcumbe for his future residence. The port equipped seven ships and a fly-boat, and a fleet of 190 ships was collected here to oppose the invader. From P. the expedition to Cadiz set sail on June 3, 1596; and on September 6, 1620, the Pilgrim Fathers set sail in the Mayflower from P. Sound. Charles I. visited the town in 1625, and during the whole period of the Civil War it was in the hands of the Parliament. P. contains two pas.: P. Charles and P. St. Andrew. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1874–75) is a fine Perp. building; the aisles are separated from the nave and chancel by a series of lofty Pointed arches springing from clustered shafts with curiously-carved foliated capitals; the eastern portions of the aisles form chapels, and under the chancel is a crypt said to communicate with an ancient building in the south-west of the church called "The Abbey." Among the many interesting monuments is one to Charles Mathews the elder, the comedian, who died in P. June 28, 1835, and one to Sir John Skelton, Knight, Governor of P. (d. 1672). Here also was interred the heart of Admiral Robert Blake, who died as he was entering P. Sound, August 17, 1657. During the restoration two effigies were discovered under the floor of the south aisle: one of these, on a slab of Purbeck marble, is a male figure in high relief wearing a long gown with straight folds; the other, which is much mutilated, appears to be a knight in armour, and exhibits traces of a camail and jupon. The church of King Charles the Martyr, commonly called "Charles's Church," is in Gothic style; the church was erected at various times between 1640 and 1657, the work, owing to civil commotions, being several times interrupted. There are many interesting monuments, including one to Robert Hawker, D.D., author of some religious biographies and works on divinity, and forty-three years vicar here (d. April 6, 1827). There are several ecclesiastical pas., with modern churches. The Roman Catholic diocese of P. comprises Devon, Cornwall and Dorset, with the Scilly Islands. The cathedral, dedicated to St. Mary and St. Boniface, was opened in March, 1858; it is a cruciform building in E. Eng. style; the sacristy forms a part of a separate building, which leads to the bishop's residence. The church of the Holy Cross (1882), in Gothic style, has attached to it a house of Sisters of Charity; and the Sisters of Notre Dame have a convent. The various Nonconformist bodies are well represented in P., and there is a Jewish synagogue. The Guildhall, Law Courts, and Municipal Offices occupy two sides of a large open space, about 100 ft. wide, leading from Catherine Street to Westwell Street, the Municipal Offices being on the north and the Guildhall and Law Courts on the south, the east side of the square being closed by the church of St. Andrew. Both blocks are in the Gothic style of the 13th cent. The Post Office (1884), in Guildhall Square, is also in Gothic style; Her Majesty's Prison (1849) is in Italian style. The General Market occupies an area of about 3 ac. in the centre of the town; it contains covered vegetable, fish, poultry and butter markets, long ranges of butchers' stalls, stalls for general merchandise, a Corn Exchange, and a considerable area of uncovered ground for sale of general produce. There is also a fish market, and a wholesale market is maintained for the sale of fish by trawlers. The Athenæum, George Street, the property of the P. Institution and Devon and Cornwall Natural History Society (1818–19) is in Classic style; it contains

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Plungar	Elton (5)	115	224
Plymouth, parl. bor.	Plymouth	229	87480

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Plymouth, mun. bor.	Plymouth	229	84248

a lecture-hall, a valuable scientific library, a spacious museum and art gallery, and a laboratory. The Free Public Library, in Whimple Street, occupies the building formerly used as a Guildhall, erected in 1800. The P. Proprietary and Cottonian Library, Cornwall Street (1811), contains the collections presented to the town by William Cotton, Esq., of Ivybridge; it has also a newsroom. The P. Law Society has a law library. The Theatre, in George Street, is a large and well-arranged house, with a lofty pedimented portico. The Laboratory of the Marine Biological Association (1888), situated immediately under the south wall of The Citadel, is a handsome building, and consists of an aquarium on the ground floor (open to the public for a small charge) and on the upper floors laboratories, dissecting-rooms, a library, and everything to complete it for scientific research; in the eastern wing is the director's residence.



The Smeaton Lighthouse on Plymouth Hoe.

The ancient portion of the town, near the waterside, is rapidly disappearing in consequence of the demand for improved dwellings and wide thoroughfares, but a few fine old houses remain. There is still a fragment of the ancient castle to be seen, but the Barbican exists only as a name for one of the quays. The South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital, in Greenbank Road, was established in 1840; one wing is reserved for cases of accident, and there is an annexe for infectious cases. On the north side is the institute for trained nurses. There are also several dispensaries, an eye hospital, and a dental hospital. The most important charity is Kelway's, amounting to some £6,000; about one-eleventh is distributed among the donor's relations, and the remainder applied in bringing up and apprenticing the children of such relations, or in default children of P. and Saltash. Other charities, producing about £160 a year, are distributed in clothing. Over £500 a year is devoted to the support of almshouses and their inmates. In addition there is about £30 for distribution in bread in the pa. of St. Andrew, and about £60 for distribution in money and kind in the pa. of Charles. P. is well supplied with schools and educational establishments. The Corporation Grammar School was founded in 1561, Hele and Lanyon's School in 1632, and the Grey School in 1714—all with endowments. The Jewish Endowed School dates from 1860. The Science, Art, and Technical Schools occupy a fine building in Renaissance style (1887); and at the Western College (1752) young men are trained for the Congregational ministry. Among the many distinguished natives of P. may be mentioned Sir C. L. Eastlake, P.R.A. (1793–1865); Joseph Glanvil, F.R.S., rector of Bath Abbey and chaplain to Charles II. (1636–80); Sir William Snow Harris, surgeon, physicist, and electrician (1792–1867); Sir John Hawkins, Knight, naval commander, rear-admiral in the fleet against the Armada (1520–95); Sir Richard Hawkins, Knight, son of preceding, naval commander (1560–1622); Benjamin Robert Haydon, historical painter (1786–1846); John Kitto, D.D., Biblical writer (1804–54); and W. E. Leach, naturalist, and curator at the British Museum (1790–1836). The general trade of P. is now chiefly concerned with imports for the supply of the population of the western peninsula; the exports, however, include Dartmoor wool, china-clay, and tin and copper ore. There are important manufactures of chemicals; soap, starch, and candle factories; extensive saw-mills, large tanneries, flour-mills, breweries, and distilleries. Biscuit-baking is an important industry, and there are large engineering and shipbuilding works. Here are large docks capable of affording accommodation to the largest vessels, and there are several piers and jetties. The wharves and warehouses are of a very commodious kind, and the quays are all connected by rail with the line of the Great Western Railway Company, to whom the docks belong. Passengers, mails, and specie from the West Indies, the United States, and the Cape of Good Hope are landed here and forwarded by rail to London and all parts of the kingdom. A very considerable trade is carried on with America, Australia and New Zealand, the West Indies, the Mauritius, Africa, and the Baltic, besides which there is an extensive coasting trade. A number of emigrant passenger ships sail from P. for Australia, New Zealand, and British North America. The Citadel, a fortification on the South Headland, was erected on the site of an older fort by order of

Charles II. In the centre is a spacious esplanade for the exercise of the troops, and around it are the officers' houses, a chapel, magazine, and barracks; on the esplanade is a statue of George II. Fortifications covering 14 miles of ground have been constructed around P., Stonehouse, and Devonport, with a view to secure the Government arsenals from attacks by land or sea. Immediately opposite the end of the Breakwater is Bovisand Fort, which, with one somewhat similar on the other side of the Sound, form the two outer extremities of the line of defence for the protection of the port, the Breakwater Fort lying midway between. P. Hoe, on the south or seaward side of the town, west of The Citadel, is an elevated expanse of more than 18 ac., formed in 1817. The Hoe proper consists of a series of grassy slopes surrounded by a spacious promenade and intersected by numerous paths leading to the lower grounds. At the foot of this eminence is a drive, and connected with it are paths leading to the rocks and the landing-steps. Here are two piers—one used as a promenade and as a landing-place for passenger steamers. On the Hoe are the Armada Memorial (1890), a statue of Sir Francis Drake (1884), and Smeaton's lighthouse. [EDDYSTONE LIGHTHOUSE.] P. Breakwater, about 2½ s. of the Hoe, was commenced on April 12, 1812, from plans by Messrs. Rennie and Whidbey, and is mainly constructed of native limestone, the cost up to the present time being variously estimated at from £1,500,000 to £2,000,000. There is a lighthouse at the south-west entrance; its light can be seen seawards on most occasions for about 10 miles; the entrance from the Channel is 3 miles wide. The centre line of the Breakwater is 3,000 ft. long, from either extremity of which an arm or cant, 1,050 ft. in length, runs off towards the shore at an angle of 120 degrees. Being placed in the centre of the passage, it admits of two entrances for vessels, from the east as well as the south, and the total length is about a mile; above 200 sail have taken refuge under its lee in the Sound at one time.

Plymouth Charles. [PLYMOUTH.]

Plymouth St. Andrew. [PLYMOUTH.]

Plymouth Sound, inlet of the sea, on the border of S.E. Cornw. and S.W. Dev. The Sound extends upwards of 3 miles inland, and has a breadth ranging from 1¾ miles to 3½ miles, the widest part being that where Cawsand Bay indents the coast on the west. Its entrance lies between Wembury Point on the east and Penlee Point on the west. On its north side are the towns of Plymouth, Stonehouse, and Devonport. At its north-east extremity it meets the Catwater, the estuary of the Plym, and at its north-west extremity the Hamoaze that of the Tamar. Drake's Island (q.v.) is in the north part of the Sound. This magnificent bay is said to be the finest roadstead in England. Its shores are extremely picturesque, the most noteworthy feature being the grounds of Mount Edgcumbe.

Plympton Maurice, or Plympton Earl's, pa. and small mkt. to., S.W. Dev., 5 N.E. of Plymouth; ac. 206; soil clay and shale, overlying principally clay. P. derives its name from the Plym, the estuary of which is now 2 miles distant, but was in ancient times much nearer. It was one of the ancient stannary towns, and was made a borough in 1241, but the charter was allowed to lapse in 1859. P. returned two members to Parliament from 23 Edw. I. (1294–95) up to the passing of the Reform Act of 1832, and among these are found the names of Sergeant Hele; William Strode, one of the famous "five members" in the reign of Charles I.; Sir Nicholas Slanning, Knight (1639); Sir John Maynard, Knight; Sir Christopher Wren (1685); and Lord Castlereagh. The church, anciently a chapel appendant to the Priory of Plympton St. Mary, and dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, was rebuilt in 1440, and rededicated to St. Maurice in the reign of Henry VIII.; it is of the Perp. period, and was restored in 1879. There are Wesleyan and Calvinistic chapels, and charities amounting to about £18 a year. The ancient town hall is now leased by the representatives of the old Corporation, and is used for lectures and concerts; it formerly contained a portrait of Sir Joshua Reynolds, painted by himself, but this was sold by the Corporation in 1832 for £150. The grammar school (restored 1870) was founded in 1658 by Eliza Hele; a portrait of Sir Joshua Reynolds, P.R.A., born at P. and educated at this school, has been presented to it; here also were educated James Northcote, R.A., Sir Charles L. Eastlake, P.R.A., and Benjamin R. Haydon, the historical painter. A cattle market is held the first Monday in each month. Here is a private lunatic asylum. P. Castle, north of the town, was built in the reign of Henry I. In the reign of Stephen, Baldwin de Redvers, second Earl of Devon, fortified the castle against the king, but was compelled to surrender without any active resistance. During the Civil War it served as the headquarters of Prince Maurice during the siege of Plymouth in 1643, but in 1644 was captured by the Earl of Essex. The remains consist chiefly of a mound, on which are some fragments of the keep. The earthworks preserve, if not the actual vallum, at least the outline of the Roman camp which preceded the later fortifications.

Plympton St. Mary, pa. and vil., S.W. Dev., 5 E.N.E. of Plymouth; ac. 10,290; soil loam and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1860) is chiefly Dec. and Perp., and contains sedilia, a piscina, and side altar; among the monuments are the recumbent figures of Richard Strode (1464) and William Courtenay, a mural monument to Sir William Strode (d. 1637) and his two wives, and some others. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Free Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £97 yearly; a Convalescent Hospital for Women was founded in 1883. There was formerly an Augustine priory here, founded in 1121, of which the E. Eng. refectory, over a Norm. undercroft, and the 15th-cent. kitchen remain. Boringdon House possesses a fine hall with a minstrels' gallery, but is now used as a farmhouse, as also is Old Newnham. Saltram House, the seat of the Earl of Morley, stands on the Plym, and is surrounded by fine gardens; and Chaddlewood, Elfordleigh House, and Newnham Park are other seats.

Plymstock, pa., tp., and vil., on the Catwater and

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Plymouth Charles	Plymouth	229	36569
PlymouthSt. Andrew	Plymouth	229	47679
Plympton Maurice	Plympton (¾)	237	1159
Plympton St. Mary	Plympton (¾)	237¼	3587
Plymstock, pa.	Plymstock	235	3162
Plymstock, tp.	Plymstock	235	3158

Plymouth Sound, S.W. Dev., 3 S.E. of Plymouth; ac. of pa. 3,735, of tp. 3,559. The church of St. Mary and All Saints (restored 1866) is chiefly Perp., and contains a very fine 15th-cent. rood-screen, a Norm. font, and some monuments of the Harris family. The Plymouth Brethren have a chapel. Sir Christopher Harris founded and endowed in 1617 an almshouse for five poor people, and there are some other charities. Limestone and marble are found here, and the fortifications are extensive.

Plymtree, pa. and small vil., E. Dev., 8 N.W. of Honiton; ac. 2,185; soil loamy. The Clyst has its source in this pa. The Perp. church of St. John the Baptist contains an ancient and handsome panelled screen, with fine paintings of saints and historical personages, the latter including Henry VII., his eldest son Prince Arthur, and Cardinal Morton. On the screen the Bourchier and Stafford knots also occur; on the west front of the tower is a group of the Virgin and Child within a canopied niche; and the piers of the arcades have similar niches. One of the bench-ends in the aisle exhibits a shield bearing a merchant's mark intertwined with the letter G., probably referring to Thomas Goodwyn, a former landowner here. The charities amount to £59 yearly.

General View of Plympton Maurice (see p. 162).

Plynlimmon, or Plinlimmon, mountain mass (2,469 ft.) on the border of Montgoms., N.E. Cardigs., 10½ W. of Llanidloes. The group comprises a central chain stretching north-east and south for about 3 miles, and giving off several secondary chains. From the main line rise three principal summits, respectively 2,469 ft., 2,430 ft., and 2,244 ft. The central and highest summit has two peaks; and on each of these, as well as on another prominent point, and on each of the two secondary summits, is a heap of stones. These heaps probably served as landmarks or beacons. The summit commands a wide view. The mountain itself (formed chiefly of clay-slate and containing veins of lead) is much less grand than other lofty Welsh mountains, the approaches being chiefly moorland, though some picturesque glens occur. It is chiefly of interest as being the source of several rivers. On the east the Severn and the Wye rise within about two miles of each other, and on the west the Rheidol issues from a small lake; other streams are the Llyffnant and the Ystwith. The district around P. was in early times the scene of many struggles, and Owen Glendower here began the struggle for Welsh independence.

Pocket, mountain recess, E. co. Kerry, Ir., 7½ E. by S. of Castleisland. Here, in a deep amphitheatre of the mountains and surrounded by most picturesque scenery, is the source of the Blackwater.

Pockley, tp. and vil., pa. of Helmsley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 W. of Kirkby Moorside; ac. 3,440. The church of St. John the Baptist (chapel-of-ease) is modern. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Pocklington, pa., tp., U. and mkt. to. (S.), and head of Co. Co. dis., E.R. Yorks., 16 E.S.E. of York; ac. of pa. 4,521, of tp. 2,373; soil loam, gravel, and sand, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored) is E. Eng. and Perp.; the chancel, which is the most ancient portion of the edifice, has several finely-carved stalls; the font is a square basin on a circular pedestal; there are several memorials to the Dolman and other families, including an elegant mural monument to Thomas Dolman, Esq. (d. 1589); another to Robert Southbee or Sotherby (d. 1594); and a third to Robert Denison, Esq. (d. 1829), and his wife (d. 1837); at the west end of the church is a beautifully-carved cross (about 1350), discovered in the churchyard; in the chancel is a large monument of the Denison family, formerly lords of the manor, over which is a carving in oak of "The Crucifixion," supposed to have been executed by Albert Dürer or one of his pupils. The Roman Catholics, Congregationalists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The Oddfellows' Hall, in Union Street, dates from 1839; the P. Library occupies the building of the former Wilson Memorial Hospital, erected in 1880. The cemetery (opened 1857) has two chapels. The local trade includes brewing, malting, and rope, twine, and brick making; there are agricultural implement manufactories, and

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Plymtree	Collumpton (3)	177	418
Pockley	Helmsley (3)	220	209

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pocklington, pa.	Pocklington	198	2785
Pocklington, tp.	Pocklington	198	2577

in the neighbourhood several corn mills. Four fairs are held here annually for cattle—on March 7, May 6, August 5, and November 8; and on November 9 is a statute fair for hiring servants. The Free Grammar School was originally connected with a guild in the pa. church, called "the Society of Brethren of the Name of Jesus, the Blessed Virgin, and St. Nicholas of Pocklington," the seal of which, together with deeds and documents belonging to the school, is still preserved. The guild was founded by John Dolman, LL.D., Archdeacon of Suffolk (1515–16); and when subsequently all such guilds were destroyed, the property originally left to the guild was preserved by the exertions of the founder's family for the benefit of the school. The revenues arise mainly from land, and amount to about £1,000 a year. There are several scholarships and exhibitions.

Pockthorpe (1), former tp. within the co. bor. of Norwich (q.v.), Mid Norf. The cavalry barracks here were built 1791 on the site of the old manor-house.

Pockthorpe (2), ha., pa. of Nafferton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Driffield.

Pode Hole, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Spalding (q.v.), S. Lincs.

Poden, ha., pa. of Church Honeybourne (q.v.), E. Worcs., about 4 E. of Evesham.

Podington, or Poddington, pa. and small vil., N.W. Beds., 14 N.W. of Bedford; ac. 2,770; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of the Virgin Mary is of Trans., E. Eng., and later periods; the chancel retains an E. Eng. piscina. The carving of the Perp. porch door is unusually rich; the font is Norm., and its exterior surface exhibits three designs representing the Trinity. There is a black-letter Bible. In the nave is a brass effigy with inscription to John Howard (1518), and there are a number of memorials to the Orlebar and other families. Hinwick House is the seat of the Orlebar family. The staircase is hung with tapestry, and there is a collection of coins found in the neighbourhood. About 1850 a small bronze figure was found in a field called "Belham," and a Roman funeral urn and graves have been discovered in "Great Close." Pillow-lace and boot making is carried on, and bricks are manufactured. There are some small charities.

Podymore (or Pudymore) Milton, pa. and vil., S.E. Somerset, 7 N. of Yeovil; ac. 947; soil clayey, overlying clay. The Perp. and Dec. church of St. Peter was restored 1872.

...r Fairy Water, small river, rises in the pa. ... Longfield (q.v.), W. co. Tyr., Ir., and flows ... N., then S.E. by a very winding course to ... rule, which it joins at Poe Bridge, about 2 N. ... ugh, after a total course of about 15 miles.

...ley End, ha., pa. of and 2½ N. from Witney Mid Oxon. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

...ate du Château, rocky promontory, Sark, ...nel Islands, 1 S. of the landing-place on La ...ve de la Ville.

...nton. [POYNTINGTON.]

...d vil., pa. of and about 1 S.E. from Sempringham (q.v.), S. Lincs.; ac. 1,776. Th... is a Wesleyan chapel. A noted herd of sheep co... from this neighbourhood. P. Fen extends 4 E. ... the vil.

Points Castle, mound, W. Pembs., 5 E. by S. St. David's, near the road to Haverfordwest. T... place (also known as Punch Castle, and called early deeds Castrum Pontii) was once a gran... belonging to the Bishop of St. David's. On t... mound, perhaps an ancient burial-place, a wood... turret formerly stood, affording shelter to a sm... guard.

Points Pass, vil. and head of petty sess. d... with railway station, pa. of Ballymore (q.v.), E. Armagh, Ir., extending into the pa. of Aghad... (q.v.), W. co. Down, 4 S. of Tanderagee. T... Newry Mountains are conspicuous in the distan... and the surrounding country is very fertile. T... Protestant church is in Gothic style. There ... Presbyterian and Catholic churches, and t... National schools. A fair is held on the fi... Saturday after the first Friday in each month, a... a market on Friday.

Pokesdown, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 W. from Chr... church (q.v.), S. Hants. The church of St. Jam... (built 1858) is in Gothic style; and there are N... conformist chapels, and a Roman Catholic conv...

Poland, pl., pa. of and 1 N. from Odiham (q.... N. Hants.

Polbathic, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from St. Germ... (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. P. has agricultural engineeri... works.

Polders, ha., pa. of Woodnesborough (q.v.), Kent, about 1 S.W. of Sandwich.

Polebrook, pa., tp., and vil., N.E. Northant... 2½ S.E. of Oundle; ac. of pa. 2,690, of tp. 1,83... soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saint... (restored 1863) is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the nort... transept are some fine stone stalls, and the eas... window is good; there is a piscina in the chancel. P. has a Wesleyan chapel (1863) and some smal... charities.

Polegate, vil. with railway station, pa. of Hailsham (q.v.), E. Sussex, 12 S.E. of Lewes.

Polesworth, pa. and small but ancient town, N. Warws., about 5 E.S.E. of Tamworth; ac. 6,310; soil light, overlying gravel. The pa. is intersected by the Anker and the Coventry Canal. The church of St. Edith (restored 1869), which formed part of the ancient abbey, ranges from Norm. to Perp. In the church is a very curious and perhaps unique stone effigy of an abbess of P., habited in a coif and wimple, and a long straight gown with hanging sleeves: the head is sunk within a trefoil, the feet rest on a hart or stag; the right hand grasps a pastoral staff with floriated crook, and the left a book; the figure dates from the 14th cent., and is painted and gilt. The chancel retains sedilia and a piscina. The Benedictine abbey of St. Edith, once existing here, is stated by Dugdale to have been the first religious house established in this co., its founder being King Egbert, then Bretwalda, or supreme chieftain of the Saxons; and his daughter, St. Edith, is reputed to have been th...

...rest Rly. Stn., and dist. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
...ton (2)	63	504
...ck (6)	140	103
...more (1)	104	404
...Pass	77	334

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist., (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pokesdown	Pokesdown	104	49...
Polebrook, pa.	Barnwell (1½)	94	4...
Polebrook, tp.	Barnwell (1½)	94	3...
Polesworth	Polesworth	106	3...

first abbess. In the time of Stephen it was refounded by Robert Marmion, of Tamworth Castle, to whom P. had been granted by the Conqueror. At the Dissolution in 1539 there were twelve nuns, and the revenues were estimated at £87 yearly. The site of the abbey has been transferred to the vicar of P.; and the refectory, a large room 34 ft. by 24 ft., containing a fine old mantelpiece and an open timber roof, has been incorporated into the new vicarage-house. There are Congregational, Baptist, and Wesleyan chapels. Here are extensive coal-mines and clay-works. A charter for a weekly market and an annual fair was granted by Henry III., but the market has fallen into disuse; the fair is held on the Monday following the first Sunday after September 19. There is an ambulance society in connection with the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Pooley Hall, now occupied as a farm, was erected by Sir Thomas Cokam in 1509. It is an embattled structure of red brick, with stone quoins and dressings, and consists now of the principal front overlooking the canal, and two wings, with modern farm-buildings; it appears, however, to have been once much more extensive; to the south is a small chapel, separated from the house itself by about 10 ft. The Hall is well seen by passengers on the main line of the London and North-Western Railway.

Polgooth, ha., pa. of St. Mewan (q.v.), Mid Cornw., 2 S.W. of St. Austell. There is a mission church dedicated to St. Mark.

Polgrain, ha., pa. of St. Michael Carhayes (q.v.), S. Cornw., 3 S.E. of Tregony.

Poling, pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 4½ N.E. of Littlehampton; ac. 910; soil gravel and clay, overlying stiff clay. The Perp. church of St. Nicholas was restored 1875. On the chancel floor is a brass effigy of Walter Davey, a priest of P., without date, but believed to be of the 14th cent. St. John's Priory (formerly a commandery of the Knights Templar and afterwards transferred to the Knights Hospitaller) was erected in the early part of the 13th cent., and so late as 1783 had a chapel and residence for three knights; in 1830 it was converted into a dwelling-house. On Packham's Farm is a building, now occupied as a farmhouse, supposed to have formed a portion of the stabling and dwelling of the officials and other attendants upon the knights. In the pa. is a large decoy for wild fowl, supplied by a tributary of the Arun.

Poljew Cove, S.W. Cornw., 1 S. of Gunwalloe. Frequent shipwrecks occur here.

Polkemmet, estate with seat of same name, pa. of Whitburn (q.v.), S.W. Linliths., Sc., about 1 W. of Whitburn town.

Polkerris, fishing ha., pa. of Tywardreath (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. Here is a lifeboat station.

Polla, stream, N. Suths., Sc., rises in the south-east portion of the pa. of Durness (q.v.), flows N.W. to Loch Stuniahad, issues from the north-west corner, and flows N.N.W., then N.E. and N., entering the head of Loch Erriboll, 8 S. of Durness, after a course of about 7½ miles.

Pollacappul Lough, pa. of Ballynakill (q.v.), W. co. Galway, Ir., 7½ N.E. of Clifden. It is about a mile in length, and its greatest breadth about ¼ mile. On the north shore rocky cliffs rise steeply to over 1,700 ft. high.

Pollanass. [LUGDUFF (1).]

Pollards Lands, formerly a separate tp., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Bishop Auckland, pa. of Auckland St. Andrew, Durham.

Pollardstown, pa., East Offaly bar., Mid co. Kildare, Ir., 3 N.E. of Kildare; ac. 1,249.

Pollathomas. [PULATHOMAS.]

Pollicott, ha., pa. of Ashendon (q.v.), W. Bucks., 4 N. of Thame. It is divided into Upper and Lower.

Pollington, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Snaith (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2½ S.W. of Snaith; ac. 1,836. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Pollock, ti., pa. of South Stoneham (q.v.), S. Hants, about 6 N.E. of Southampton.

Pollokshaws, q.s. pa. and burgh on the White Cart, pa. of Eastwood (q.v.), E. Renfs., Sc., 2½ S. by W. of Glasgow. The town (locally designated "The Shaws") stands in a rich fertile district. The Established church dates from 1840. The other places of worship include Free churches, a United Presbyterian church, a Roman Catholic church, and a Primitive Methodist chapel. Of the other public buildings, the most important are the town house, trades hall, and public library. Dyeing, printing, and weaving are carried on, and there are iron foundries, paper-mills, and bleachfields.

Pollokshields, q.s. pa. and burgh, pa. of Govan (q.v.), in S.W. Glasgow, E. Renfs., Sc. P. was reckoned a suburb prior to 1891, when it was incorporated in the city. It is mainly composed of detached villas, and contains Established, Free, and United Presbyterian churches.

Pollokshields, East, q.s. pa. and burgh, pa. of Govan (q.v.), in S. Glasgow, E. Renfs., Sc. East P. was incorporated in Glasgow in 1891. It consists of good substantial houses of the residential class.

Pollrone, pa., Iverk bar., S.W. co. Kilk., Ir., 6 N.W. of Waterford; ac. 3,596. The Suir bounds the pa. on the south. It contains the vil. of Grange (q.v.).

Polmaddie, hill (1,802 ft.), pa. of and 2 S.E. from Barr (q.v.), S. Ayrs., Sc.

Polmadie, south-west suburb of Glasgow, pa. of Govan (q.v.), E. Renfs., Sc.

Polmassick, ha., pa. of St. Ewe (q.v.), Mid Cornw., 2½ N.W. of Mevagissey. The Bible Christians have a chapel.

Polmont, pa. and vil., S. Stirls., Sc.; ac. 5,512. The pa. extends 5 miles inland from the Forth, and has the river Avon on its eastern boundary. It has several coal mines, and abounds in iron and freestone. The vil. lies on the road from Linlithgow to Falkirk, from which it is 3½ E. Park Hall, Park Hill, and P. Park are seats.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Poling	Angmering (2½)	63	178
Pollardstown	Kildare (3)	31	152
Pollington, eccl. pa.	Snaith (2½)	180	724
Pollington, tp.	Snaith (2½)	180	387
Pollokshaws, q.s. pa.	Pollokshaws (1)	402	7172
Pollokshaws, to.	Pollokshaws (1)	402	10405
Pollokshields, q.s. pa.	Pollokshields	402	8516
Pollokshields, burgh	Pollokshields	402	3028
Pollokshields, East	East Pollokshields	401	6681
Pollrone	Grange	156	1137
Polmont, pa.	Polmont	411	1949
Polmont, vil.	Polmont	411	485

Polmood Burn, S.W. Peebs., Sc., rises on Broad Law, flows N.W. and W., then S.W. to the Tweed, which it enters 1¾ N. by E. of Tweedsmuir, after a course of about 3 miles. On the north side of the burn is P. Hill (1,548 ft.).

Polpeer, fishing vil., pa. of Uny Lelant (q.v.), W. Cornw., about 6 N.E. of Penzance. At P. Cove, where there is a lifeboat station, a remarkable cave that runs through the western boundary of the cove can be visited at low water.

Polperro, small fishing to., S. Cornw. It is situated in a hollow between two rocky hills, in the pas. of Lansallos and Talland (a small stream which runs through the centre of the town dividing the pas.), 11 S. of Liskeard. The haven, running up into the land for about a furlong, is not at present safe for vessels of more than 100 tons, but is susceptible of great improvement. It is well suited for fishing boats, and is protected by three piers, the latest of which was constructed in 1861; a new road was cut to the port in 1849, the expense being defrayed by public subscription. Here is a small chapel-of-ease to the pa. church of Talland. There are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Bible Christian chapels. The Foresters' Hall dates from 1889.

POLPERRO.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Polruan, small to. on east side of Fowey harbour, pa. of Lanteglos-by-Fowey (q.v.), S.E. Cornw., 1 S. of Fowey. The church is a chapel-of-ease to the pa. church at Lanteglos, and other places of worship are the Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The inhabitants are mostly engaged in fishing. A ruined castle and chapel and an ancient cross are among the antiquities of the district.

Polscoe, small vil., pa. of St. Winnow (q.v.), S.E. Cornw., 1 N. of Lostwithiel.

Polsham (1), ha., pa. of Paignton (q.v.), S. Devon, 5 E. of Totnes.

Polsham (2), ha. with railway station, pa. of and 3 S.W. from Wells (q.v.), Mid Somerset.

Polstead, pa. and scattered vil. in a picturesque valley, on a tributary of the Stour, S. Suff., 3 N.N.E. of Nayland; ac. 3,044; soil chiefly mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary, in P. Park, is E. Norm.; it contains monuments to the Brand, Cooke, and Vincent families (1630), also two brasses; a fine Norm. arch leads to the belfry. There are Primitive Methodist and Baptist chapels, and some small charities. Here is a tree called "t Gospel Oak," situated near the church, suppos to date from the Norman Conquest; the trun which is decayed, is 37 ft. in circumference; the is also an elm 21 ft. round. P. Hall, in a dee park of 90 ac., is a seat.

Poltimore, pa. and vil. on the Clyst, Mid Devo 4½ N.E. of Exeter; ac. 1,681; soil variable, ove lying gravel. The Dec. and Perp. church of S Mary was restored 1878–82, when the west galle was taken down and other alterations made; retains a fine carved oak 15th-cent. screen (recent restored) and a curious Norm. font, and also number of monuments and memorials, of dat varying from 1390 to 1641, to the Bampfyl family. The chancel-arch, on the east side which are two squints, is believed to have form part of a much older building than the prese church.

Polton, vil. near the North Esk, pa. of and abo 1½ S.W. from Lasswade (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc. House is a seat.

Poltonhall and Dalhousie Colliery, vil., pa. Cockpen (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc., about 2 S.W. Dalkeith.

Polwarth, pa. and vil., Mid Berws., Sc., ab 3½ N.E. of Greenlaw, on the road to Edinburg ac. 3,000. On the green of P., in the centre of vil., it was an ancient custom for every new married pair, with their company, to dance ro an old thorn. This place now gives the title Baron to the Hepburne-Scott family. The church, an ancient building, stands about 1 S.E the vil., and on the front is a Latin inscript affirming that it was erected anterior to the 900. In a vault below the church Sir Pat Hume (or Home) of P. (created in 1697 Ear Marchmont, and sometime Chancellor of Scotla found an asylum from the fury of his persecut when a price was set upon his head, till arra ments were made for his escape to Holland.

Polwharval, ha. on the Helford, pa. of C stantine (q.v.), W. Cornw., 7½ S.E. of Falmouth.

Polyphant, ha., pa. of Lewannick (q.v.), N. Cornw., 4 S.W. of Launceston. Here are t ancient quarries of P. stone, which has been large used in building churches, etc. Bowden Derra a seat.

Pomeroy, pa. and vil., Middle Dungannon bar., Mid co. Tyr., Ir., 8 N.W. of Dungannon; ac. of pa. 15,951. A weekly market is held on Tuesday, and a cattle fair on the second Tuesday of each month. P. House is a seat.

Pomfret. [PONTEFRACT.]

Pomona. [MAINLAND (1).]

Pomphlett, ha., pa. of Plymstock (q.v.), S. Devon. 3½ S.E. of Plymouth. There is a Methodist Free church.

Ponders End, vil. with railway station, pa. o Enfield (q.v.), E. Middx., 3 S. of Waltham Cross The vil. is on Ermine Street and the modern roa known as the Lower North Road. The church o St. Matthew (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style and there are Roman Catholic, Baptist, Congre gational, and Wesleyan chapels. On the banks o

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Polstead	Hadleigh (4)	71	745
Poltimore	Stoke Canon (1½)	185	361
Poltonhall and D. C.	Polton (¼)	391	923

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPU LATIO
Polwarth	Greenlaw (3½)	356	2
Pomeroy, pa.	Pomeroy	129	43
Pomeroy, vil.	Pomeroy	129	3

the Lea are the works of an electric light company employing upwards of 1,200 men.

Ponds, pl., pa. of Rathfarnham (q.v.), S. co. Dub., Ir., about 4 s. of Dublin.

Ponds Bridge, eccl. pa., pas. of Stanground, Ramsey, and Whittlesea (q.v.), N.E. Hunts. and partly in Cambs., 6 S.E. of Peterborough. The church of St. Thomas was built 1866, in Dec. style; in the chancel are sedilia and a piscina.

Pond Street, ha., pa. of Wendon Lofts (q.v.), W. Essex, 5 W. of Saffron Walden.

Pondsworthy, ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Widecombe-in-the-Moor (q.v.), Mid Dev.

Ponfeigh, vil., pa. of Carmichael (q.v.), Mid co. Lanarks., Sc., about 4 S. of Lanark.

Poniel Water, stream, W. Lanarks., Sc. It rises about ¾ N.W. of Hagshaw Hill, flows generally E. (with many bends) for about 4 miles 1½ N. by W. of Douglas; it then flows N. by E. N.E., and E. to the Douglas Water, which it joins 4 N.E. of Douglas, after a course of about 8 miles.

Ponsanooth, large vil., pas. of St. Gluvias and St. Stithians (q.v.), W. Cornw., about 7 S.W. of Truro. There is a chapel-of-ease in Gothic style, and a Wesleyan chapel. Tape and small ware are manufactured here. The railway crosses a viaduct about 140 ft. high.

Ponsonby, pa. and small vil. on the Calder, S.W. Cumb., 9 S.E. of Whitehaven; ac. 2,426; soil loamy. The church (restored 1874), dedication unknown, is situated in the park, and is E. Eng.; the stained east window is dated 1592; in the nave is a brass to Frances Whyet (d. 1578), wife of Thomas Lighe of Calder and of William Patryckson; there are monuments to George Edward Stanley (d. 1806), his wife Dorothy (d. 1786), to Edward Stanley (d. 1786) and William Stanley (d. 1881), and a memorial to Thomas Curwen (d. 1653). In the churchyard are the remains of a cross, and a tomb to John Fletcher of Strudabank (d. 1716) and his wife Anne. P. Hall, a seat, built in 1780 in Classic style, contains some paintings by Holbein, Romney, Opie, and others, and is surrounded by a fine park.

Pont, river, S.E. Northumb., runs 16 miles to the Blyth, which it joins 2 miles above Stannington. Its course is E. by N. as far as Ponteland, and thence N. to the Blyth. On its way to Ponteland it passes Little and Great Whittington, Matfen, Stamfordham, and Dalton.

Pont Aberglaslyn, bridge over the river Glaslyn, in the Pass of Aberglaslyn, between Carnarvs. and Merions., 8 S. of Snowdon.

Pontac, vil. on St. Clement's Bay, pa. of St. Clement, S.E. Jersey, Channel Islands, 2½ E.S.E. of St. Helier. The vil. is very picturesque.

Pontardawe, large vil. with railway station, pa. of Killybebill (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 8½ N.E. of Swansea. The church of St. Peter (chapel-of-ease) is in Gothic style; and there are Nonconformist chapels. Here are large tin works.

Pontardulais, vil. with railway station, pa. of Llandilo Talybont (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 12 N.W. of Swansea. There are iron foundries and several collieries. P. is a favourite resort for anglers on account of the fishing in the Loughor and its affluents.

Pont Bleiddyn, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 4 S.E. from Mold (q.v.), S.E. Flints. Christ Church is a modern building.

Pont Cysylltau, the aqueduct across the Dee and Llangollen valley of the Ellesmere Canal (q.v.).

Pont Dolanog, eccl. pa. and ha., pas. of Llanfihangel, Llanerfyl, Llanfair Caereinion, and Llangyniew (q.v.), N. Montgoms., 4½ N.N.W. of Llanfair Caereinion. The ha., situated on the Vyrnwy, is in the pa. of Llanfair Caereinion.

Pontefract (in Domesday "Tateshale"), parl. and mun. bor., pa. and tp., U. and mkt. to. (S.), W.R. Yorks., 13 S. of Leeds; ac. of pa. 6,796, of tp. 2,381. P. returned two members to Parliament from 1297 until 1885, when the representation was reduced to one member. The town is situated on a beautiful eminence, not far from the confluence of the Aire and Calder, approached on every side by a somewhat considerable ascent. The streets are spacious and clean, and the houses neat and well built. The church of St. Giles is an ancient edifice, the chancel of which was rebuilt in 1869. All Saints' is an eccl. pa. with a Dec. and Perp. church, partially destroyed during the siege of the Castle by the Parliamentary forces, and still to some extent ruinous. The church lay in ruins until 1838, when the transept was restored, and further restorations were effected in 1866. Archbishop Lee was dragged from his throne in this church during the Pilgrimage of Grace in 1536. There are various Nonconformist chapels. The King's School, founded by Edward VI., was reopened in 1890 with new buildings and under a new scheme. The town hall, a handsome structure, was erected in 1785, and the market hall in 1859. There are Conservative and Liberal clubs, infantry and cavalry barracks, and a dispensary and cottage hospital. There are fairs on the Saturday before Palm Sunday and on the first Saturday in December; the statute hiring fair is

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, PONTEFRACT.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ponds Bridge	St. Marys (3)	73	623
Ponsonby	Sellafield (2½)	293	169
Pont Bleiddyn	Coed Talon (1)	193	1673
Pont Dolanog	Llanfyllin (7)	195	293

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pontefract, parl. bor.	Pontefract	173	16407
Pontefract, mun. bor.	Pontefract	173	9702
Pontefract, pa.	Pontefract	173	15905
Pontefract, tp.	Pontefract	173	6871

held on the first Thursday in November. Races are held in April and July. The town is noted for its extensive gardens and nurseries for the growth of liquorice, largely used in the manufacture of P. liquorice cake. Great quantities of vegetables are also sent to the markets of Leeds and Wakefield. Malting is extensively carried on. Here are maintained an iron foundry, a brewery, a sack and matting manufactory, tannery, machine works, and corn mills; bricks, terra-cotta, and sanitary tubes are also made. The Castle, on an elevated rock, commanding extensive and picturesque views, was founded soon after the Conquest, and was demolished after its capture by the Parliamentarians in the Civil War. The area was surrounded by a ditch and a curtain wall, defended by towers and with a barbican and drawbridge at the south-west angle; within, on the west side, was the keep, and on the north-east a chapel, the foundations of which may be traced. Two large circular towers (once forming part of the keep), the well (now only 60 ft. deep), and a long subterranean passage leading to several rock-hewn chambers, still remain. The Corporation have acquired the lease of the Castle ruins and grounds for the purposes of a museum and recreation ground. Here was anciently a Cluniac priory, founded 1090; here Thurstan, Archbishop of York (1119–40), became a monk while still holding his see, and dying shortly after his admission, was buried before the high altar in the priory church; here also, after his execution in 1322, was interred Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, afterwards regarded as a saint. Near the dispensary is an ancient oratory or hermit's chantry, founded in 1386, with a flight of 65 winding steps cut in the rock and leading down to a well or spring. In the grounds of The Grove is a monument erected to commemorate the victory of Waterloo, June 18, 1815.

Pontefract Park, tp., pa. of Pontefract (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,395. A portion (336 ac.) is now used as a public park for Pontefract and Tanshelf, containing a racecourse, etc. There are several coal-mines in the neighbourhood.

Ponteland, pa., tp., and vil., S. Northumb., 7 N.W. of Newcastle; ac. of pa. [illegible] p. 1,889; soil loamy, overlying strong clay. The church of St. Mary is Norm. and E. Eng.; the west doorway is a fine example of Late Norm., much enriched with zigzag moulding, and the transepts are E. Eng. About 1244 a meeting is said to have been held in the church of the representatives of the English and Scottish forces, when by the intervention of Walter Gray, Archbishop of York, a peace was concluded. The church is believed to have been partially destroyed by fire in 1388, when Lord Douglas and his army, on their return from Newcastle, destroyed P. and its castle; it narrowly escaped a second destruction by fire in 1841. Over the south porch is a sun-dial, dated 1686; the carved oak choir-stalls, etc., were presented by Merton College; in the chancel (restored 1861) is a piscina, and a large floor-slab incised with the figure of a mitred ecclesiastic; there are mural monuments to the Ogles of Kirkley. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. The old manor-house of the Erringtons, now an inn, retains the initials "M.E." both inside and on the outer walls; a vaulted chamber attached to this building is said to have been part of the ancient castle. Other portions of the castle remain in good condition, and there are underground passages said to be connected with the church.

Pontesbury, extensive pa. and vil., N. Salop, 7½ W. of Shrewsbury; ac. 11,010; soil chiefly clay, overlying gravel, lime, and shale. The church of St. George or St. Bartholomew was rebuilt 1829, in E. Eng. and Dec. styles; the chancel, which retains a piscina and aumbry, is the only remaining part of the old church; the font is Norm. There are Congregational and Baptist chapels, both with minister's house and graveyard, and also Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to about £31 yearly. Pontesford and P. Hills are objects of great interest; an encampment has been traced on the former, and on the latter are remains of a similar character. Roman remains have been found here. Collieries are worked in the pa., and there are manufactories of bricks and drainpipes.

Pontesford, ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Pontesbury (q.v.), W. Salop.

Pontewan, another form of Pentewan (q.v.).

Pontfadog, eccl. pa., pa. of Llangollen (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs., 3½ W. by N. of Chirk. The church is dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

Pontfaen, or Pontvaen, pa. on the Gwaen, N. Pembs., 4 S.W. of Newport; ac. 686; soil mostly fertile, overlying slate. The church of St. Brynach is a small plain structure. P. House is a handsome edifice.

Pontfathew, ha., pa. of and about 2 miles from Towyn (q.v.), S.W. Merions.

Pont Glyn Diffwys, bridge over the Geirw, S. Denbighs., 6 W. of Corwen. A deep chasm is crossed by the bridge, which has only one arch of 50 ft. span.

Ponthir, vil. with railway station, pa. of Llanfrechfa Lower (q.v.), S. Mon., 4 N. of Newport.

Pontisbright, or Chapel, pa. and vil. on the Colne, N.E. Essex, 8 S. of Sudbury; ac. 1,114; soil loam and clay, overlying gravel. The chapel was originally built in 1352, and contains a piscina. There is a small charity.

Pontlanfraith, ha., pa. of Mynydd-y-Slwyn (q.v.), S.W. Mon., 13½ N.W. of Newport. There is a chapel-of-ease, and the Roman Catholics, Congregationalists, and Welsh Methodists have places of worship.

Pont Llanychaiarn, vil., pa. of Llanbadarnfawr (q.v.), N.W. Cardigs., 1 S. of Aberystwith.

Pontlottyn, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Rhymney, pa. of Gelligaer (q.v.), N.E. Glamorgs., 4½ E. of Merthyr Tydfil. The church of St. Tyfaelog dates from 1864. The Baptists, Primitive Methodists, Calvinistic Methodists, and Congregationalists have chapels. The inhabitants are mostly occupied in the neighbouring coal-mines and ironworks.

Pontneddfychan, vil., pa. of Penderyn (q.v.), S.W. Brecons., about 8 N.W. of Aberdare. The vil. is

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pontefract Park	Pontefract (1½)	173	161
Ponteland, pa.	Newcastle-on-T. (7)	271	901
Ponteland, tp.	Newcastle-on-T. (7)	271	405
Pontesbury	Pontesbury (¾)	171	2682

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pontfadog	Pontfadog	195	935
Pontfaen	Rosebush (5)	261	44
Pontisbright	Chappel	50	369
Pontlottyn	Pontlottyn	173	6735

situated at the confluence of the Mellte and the Neath, and is a centre for tourists.

Pontnewydd, vil., pa. of Llanfrechfa (q.v.), W. Mon., about 3 s. of Pontypool.

Pontnewynydd, eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of Trevethin-with-Pontypool (q.v.), W. Mon., 1 N.W. of Pontypool. The church of St. Luke is in Dec. style. Here are Calvinistic Methodist, Wesleyan, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Coal and minerals are worked on a somewhat extensive scale. There is a steam brewery, a steam bakery, and a flannel manufactory.

Ponton, Great (supposed to be the Ad Pontem of the Romans), pa. on the Witham, S.W. Lincs., 4 s. of Grantham; ac. 2,624; soil various, overlying magnesian limestone. The church of the Holy Cross is in the best and purest form of the Perp. period. The oldest feature is part of a finely-proportioned and lofty arcade, of early 14th-cent. work, on the north side of the chancel; but the easternmost arch is closed with masonry, so as to form a vestry. A newel staircase to the rood-loft remains on the south side of the chancel arch, and the chancel contains a shelved aumbry and a sedile. The massive tower, though so late as 1519, is a good example of Perp. work. The builder was one Anthony Ellys, merchant of the staple at Calais, who purchased lands here and built himself a house near the church; the remains of his tomb, on which his armorial bearings are carved, still exist in the north-east corner of the chapel adjoining the chancel; his arms appear also, supported by angels, on the spandrels of the tower doorway. The schools have an endowment of about £90 a year. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Both here and at Little P. many Roman coins and urns have been found.

Ponton, Little, pa. and vil. on the Witham, S. Lincs., 2½ s. of Grantham; ac. 1,936; soil various, overlying gravel and sand. The church of St. Guthlac was originally Norm., but of that period only the chancel arch and some fragments of carving remain. In the chancel is an aumbry and a piscina, and the church has some good carved oak work, originally belonging to Ripon Cathedral.

Pontoon, The, bridge connecting Loughs Conn and Cullen, Mid co. Mayo, Ir. A curious phenomenon may be witnessed from this bridge in the alternate ebbing and flowing of the lakes; at one time the water rushes with great force into Lough Cullen, while at another it flows with equal force into Lough Conn.

Pontop Pike (1,018 ft.), N. Dur., about 10 S.W. of Gateshead.

Pontrhydfendigaid, vil., pa. of Caron (q.v.), E. Cardigs., about 6 N.N.E. of Tregaron.

Pontrhydyrun, ha. with railway station on the Avon, pa. of Llanfrechfa (q.v.), W. Mon., about 3 S.E. of Pontypool.

Pontrilas, ha. with railway station, pa. of Kentchurch (q.v.), S.W. Herefords., about 12 S.W. of Hereford. P. Court is a seat.

Pont Robert, eccl. pa. and ha., pas. of Meifod, Llanfihangel, and Llangyniew (q.v.). N. Montgoms., 4 S. of Llanfair Caereinion. The ha., situated on the Vyrnwy, is in the pa. of Meifod. The church is dedicated to St. John the Evangelist.

Pontshill, ha., pa. of Weston-under-Penyard (q.v.), S. Herefords., about 16 S.E. of Hereford.

Pontymister, vil., pa. of and ½ s. from Risca (q.v.), S. Mon.

Pontymoile. [LLANVIHANGEL PONTYMOILE.]

Pont-y-Pair. [BETTWS-Y-COED.]

Pont-y-Pant, bridge over the Lledr, E. Carnarvs., 1½ N.E. of Dolwyddelan. There is a railway station and a small inn. P. is much frequented by artists.

Pontypool (corrupted from "Pont-ap-Howell" = "Howell's Bridge"), mkt. to. (W. & S.) and polling-place for the co., pa. of Trevethin-with-Ponty pool (q.v.), W. Mon., 8 N. of Newport. It is situated on the acclivities of a hill rising from the river Avon, over which is a stone bridge of three arches, and is on the edge of the great basin of coal and ironstone which stretches west into Pembs. The church of St. James (restored 1877) is in Gothic style; there is also a chapel-of-ease. St. Alban's Catholic church (1838) has a monastery attached. There are also various Nonconformist places of worship. The town hall (1850), in Hanbury Road, is a well-built and convenient building of stone, in Italian style. The Market House (1846) was rebuilt 1893–94, in Tudor style. Other public buildings are the Hanbury Assembly Rooms (1893) and the Constitutional Club (1894). The recreation ground is available for sports of all kinds, and has an excellent cycle track. Fairs are held April 2 and 22, July 5 and October 10, for pleasure, horses, cattle, sheep, and cheese. There are numerous forges and iron mills within a short distance of the town, for the manufacture of the heaviest iron work and for the making of tin plates. The chief articles of trade are coal and iron of every quality and description, with which the neighbouring hills abound; ample facility of conveyance is afforded both by the numerous railways and by the Monmouthshire Canal to the docks at Newport. P. Park is a seat.

Pontypridd (formerly Newbridge), eccl. pa. and to., pas. of Eglwysilan, Llanwonno, and Lantwitfardre (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 11 N.W. of Cardiff. The to. is situated on the Taff, at its confluence with the Rhondda; it communicates with Cardiff both by canal and railway. The growth of the to., which in 1816 was a small vil., has been due to the abundant supplies of coal and iron in the neighbourhood. The church of St. Catherine (1868), enlarged 1885, is in E. Dec. style. The other places of worship include Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The principal public buildings are the new town hall (1893), below which is a market; the court-house; and the Public Free Library (1890), containing a museum. Both the old and the new names of the to. are derived from the famous bridge constructed in 1755 by William Edwards, a self-taught architect, born in the pa. of Eglwysilan. After two unsuccessful attempts Edwards succeeded in erecting the present structure, the span of which far exceeded that of any bridge previously built in

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pontnewynydd	Pontnewynydd	162	3409
Ponton, Great	Great Ponton	102	456
Ponton, Little	Great Ponton (1½)	102	216
Pont Robert	Llanfyllin (7)	195	318
Pontypool	Pontypool	161	5842
Pontypridd	Pontypridd	170	19969

England or Wales. It has a single arch, and forms a segment of a circle 170 ft. in diameter, the length of the chord being 140 ft.; its height above the water is about 35 ft., and it is 15 ft. wide. Three cylindrical tunnels, carried along the arch, relieve it from the pressure of the heavy abutments. This picturesque bridge being too steep and narrow for carriage traffic, a three-arched bridge was built near it in 1857. On a height overlooking the river stands the Maen Chwyf, a logan-stone where the bards formerly assembled for conferring poetical degrees. P. contains large anchor, chain, and cable works, at which the chain-work of the old suspension-bridge at Hammersmith and Brighton chain-pier were manufactured; also tinplate works, and iron and brass foundries, and there are many collieries in the neighbourhood.

Pontywain, vil., pa. of Risca (q.v.), S.W. Mon., 6½ N.W. of Newport.

Pool (1), large vil. on the road from Redruth to Camborne, pa. of and 2 s. from Illogan (q.v.), N.W. Cornw. There is a chapel-of-ease in Perp. style, also Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The Literary Institute was built in 1878. P. has a mine and an iron foundry.

Pool (2), vil., pa. of Muckhart (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc., about 3 N.E. of Dollar.

Poolbeg Lighthouse. [RINGSEND.]

Pooldoody Creek, N. co. Clare, Ir., forms the central part of an arm of Ballyvaghan Bay, running S. by E., and of which the outer part is known as Poulnaclogh Bay (a name also applied to the whole arm), and the inner part as Bell Harbour. On its east side is the small islet (or bank) of P., and on the west shore the ruins of Mackinish Castle.

Poole (1), pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt to. (M. & TH.), head of Co. Co. dis., and co. in itself, S.E. Dorset, 6 S. of Wimborne; ac. of pa. (P. St. James) 153 and 327 foreshore, of bor. (including the pa. of Hamworthy, and Longfleet and Parkstone, both in the pa. of Canford Magna) 5,333. P. is a very ancient borough, possessing immunities before 1248, in which year William Longespee, lord of the manor, granted it a charter. It formerly returned two members to Parliament, but in 1867 one was taken away, and in 1885 the representation was merged in the Eastern division of the county. P. stands on the north side of P. harbour, which, especially when the tide is in, presents much scenic beauty. It is remarkable in having two tides: after flowing for six hours the water ebbs for an hour and a half and flows again for the same period, making a second high water, and ebbing again for the remaining three hours. This feature occurs along the south coast to Bournemouth, and is probably due to its position at the back of the Isle of Wight. The harbour has long been famous for its oyster beds, which, however, from want of regulation, became exhausted some years ago. In 1885 the Corporation acquired regulating power, and in 1887 some 200 acres in the Wareham Channel were granted to a local company, and the beds are again productive. The church of St. James is a modern building, in Late Perp. style, on the site of an older structure. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. Paul is in Grecian style. There is a small Roman Catholic church, and the principal Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. The Guildhall (1761), in the market-place, is a spacious and convenient structure of red brick with stone dressings, having on the basement a series of open arcades, occupied only on market day (Thursday). To the Public Free Library and School of Art wings were added in 1889 and 1891. One wing contains a local museum and a loan collection from South Kensington. P. has a cottage hospital and three blocks of almshouses. Shipbuilding is carried on, one yard having a patent slip capable of hauling up vessels of 200 tons. Some very fast yachts have been built here. Ships of considerable tonnage can lie afloat at low water close to the quay. Cordage, netting, sail-cloth, and other articles requisite for the fitting-out of shipping are largely made. The Poole Oyster Co. have beds in Poole harbour. Clay has for a long period been shipped hence for the Staffordshire potteries, and potteries have also sprung up. The corn, flour, and timber trades are largely carried on, and there is an extensive corn mill in operation. Two fairs are held; commencing on May 1 and Nov. 2, each continues eight days. There are three public parks or pleasure grounds within the borough of Poole, viz., one adjoining the town and called the town park, the other two locally in Parkstone. The Poole Park consists of 40 acres of land, a salt-water lake of 60 acres, and a fresh-water lake of 2 acres. The neighbourhood of P. abounds in remains of British antiquities. Early earthworks and sepulchral barrows are found on the hills.

Poole (2), eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Wharfe, pa. of and 3 E. from Otley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 885. The church of St. Wilfrid, in E. Eng. style, was enlarged in 1840 and 1891. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Paper-making and stone-quarrying are carried on. Caley Hall and P. Hall are seats.

Poole (3), tp. and scattered vil., pa. of Acton (q.v.), S. Chesh., 2¼ N. of Nantwich; ac. 720. The Shropshire Union Canal passes through. The Wesleyans have a chapel. P. Hall, an ancient brick mansion, is a seat.

Poole Keynes, pa. and small vil., N. Wilts., 4½ S. of Cirencester; ac. 1,128; soil clay and gravel, overlying stone and gravel. The church of St. Michael (rebuilt 1770, on the site of an old church) is a Gothic building; some of the monuments built into the walls date from the 16th cent.

Pool End, ha., pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Leek (q.v.), N. Staffs.

Poole St. James. [POOLE (1).]

Poole's Hole. [BUXTON.]

Poolewe, q.s. pa. and fishing vil. at the head of Loch Ewe, pa. of Gairloch (q.v.), W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 64 W. of Dingwall. There is regular communication by coach with Achnasheen station. P. has Established and Free churches; and a public hall (1896) is used for meetings, assemblies, etc. The curing of salmon, grilse, and trout is carried on. P. is a good centre for tourists visiting Loch Maree, and an excellent view of the lake is obtained about a mile from the vil. Inverewe is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Poole (1), pa.	Poole	112	7890
Poole (1), bor.	Poole	112	15438
Poole (2)	Pool	205	554

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Poole (3)	Nantwich (2¼)	162	150
Poole Keynes	Tetbury Road (4)	92	129
Poolewe	Achnasheen (40)	636	2110

Pooley Bridge, vil. on the Eamont, pa. of Barton (q.v.), N. Westmd., 5¼ S.W. of Penrith.

Pooley Hall. [POLESWORTH.]

Pool, Lower, tp. within the bor. of Welshpool (q.v.), E. Montgoms.; ac. 2,786.

Pool Meadow, pa. within the co. bor. of Gloucester (q.v.), N. Glouc.; ac. 10.

Poolmerick (1), vil. on the Poolmerick, pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Chepstow (q.v.), S.E. Mon.

Poolmerick (2), stream, S. Mon., rises near Newchurch, flows about 7 S.E., and falls into the Severn about 1 S. of Mathern.

Pool, Middle, tp. within the bor. of Welshpool (q.v.), E. Montgoms.; ac. 51.

Poolnasherry, creek in the mouth of the Shannon, S.W. co. Clare, Ir., about 5 W. of Kilrush. The mouth is narrow, but it widens inland in the centre to about 3 miles, running N.W. for 7 miles. The railway from Kilrush to Kilkee skirts its east and north shores.

Pool, Nether. [NETHERPOOL.]

Pool, North, ha., pa. of South Pool (q.v.), S. Dev., 3½ S.E. of Kingsbridge.

Pool, Over. [OVERPOOL.]

Pool Quay, eccl. pa. (extending into the bor. of Welshpool) and vil., pa. of Guilsfield (q.v.), E. Montgoms. The vil. is about 4 N.E. of Welshpool. The church is dedicated to St. John.

Pool, South, pa. and vil., S. Dev., 5 S.E. of Kingsbridge; ac. 1,937; soil fertile, overlying schist for the most part. The Gothic church of St. Nicholas and St. Cyriac dates from 1318; there are remains of a fine screen, half of which has been carefully restored; in the chancel, within a canopied arched recess, is an altar-tomb, formerly serving as an Easter sepulchre, and still adorned with a carving of the Resurrection; on the tomb is placed the recumbent effigy of a priest in a surplice. Under a window in the south transept is the recumbent effigy of a lady in a long close-fitting dress and mantle, conjectured to represent Muriel (de Mules), wife of Sir Thomas de Courtenay, lord of South P. in 1340. There are monuments dating from 1588. The original stone steps leading to the rood-loft remain, and the church retains piscinæ and stoups, and has a fine Norm. font. The charities amount to over £80 annually.

THE UPPER POOL.

Pool, The, the name given to the wide stretch of the Thames extending from just above the Tower to Wapping. This is, however, strictly speaking, the Upper Pool only, the Lower Pool extending from Wapping to the Regent's Canal Docks, just above Limehouse Pier. The Pool is one of the busiest parts of the river, and has also formed the subject of many pictures by celebrated painters. From St. Katharine's Wharf, in the Upper Pool, many large sea-going steamers start.

Pooltiel, Loch, sea-loch on west coast of the island of Skye, Invs., Sc., about 2 S.W. of Loch Dunvegan. It is about 3 miles wide at the entrance, and runs inland for a distance of 2 miles.

Pool, Upper, tp. within the bor. of Welshpool (q.v.), E. Montgoms.; ac. 4,257.

Poolvash Bay, S. I. of M., 2 W. of Castleton. The bay, a mile wide at the mouth, runs inland for 1 mile. In the middle of the bay is The Carrick, a rock more than ¼ mile in length, dry at low water, but at high spring tide 6 ft. under, with a smaller sunken rock off its east end. On its west shore is Port St. Mary.

Poor-, for places not found under this spelling, see also POWER-.

Poorstock, pa. and vil., W. Dors., 4 N.E. of Bridport; ac. 4,123; soil varied, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary (restored) was originally Norm., the chancel-arch being a good specimen of E. Norm. work. There was formerly a market.

Poorton, North, pa. and small vil., W. Dors., 4 S.W. of Beaminster; ac. 664; soil clay and sand, overlying rock. The church of St. Mary Magdalene has been entirely rebuilt in E. Eng. style.

Poorton, South, ti., pa. of and 1 N. from Poorstock (q.v.), W. Dors.

Popeley Gate, ha., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.W. of Dewsbury.

Popham, pa., Mid Hants, 7½ S.W. of Basingstoke; ac. 440; soil clay and chalk, overlying chalk. The church of St. Catharine (1879) is in Gothic style.

Poplar, pa. of E. London, on the Thames, E. Middx., 3½ E. of St. Paul's; ac. 1,158. P. includes Blackwall (q.v.) and the Isle of Dogs (q.v.). It comprises the eccl. pas. of All Saints; Christ Church, Isle of Dogs; St. John, Cubitt Town; St. Luke, Millwall; St. Matthias; St. Saviour; St. Stephen, and part of St. Peter, Limehouse. All Saints' Church (1823) is in Classical style, with a striking tower of 160 ft. St. Matthias' Church (built 1654, enlarged 1875) was formerly the chapel of the East India Almshouses; it contains a statue of the shipowner and philanthropist Richard Green (d. 1863), a native of Blackwall and a great benefactor to P., and a memorial of George Steevens (d. 1800), the annotator of Shakespeare, who is buried here, as is also the lexicographer Robert Ainsworth (d. 1743). The cemetery and grounds of the East India Almshouses now form a public

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pool, Lower	Welshpool (2)	182	1561
Pool Meadow	Gloucester	114	194
Pool, Middle	Welshpool (2)	182	2291
Pool Quay	Welshpool (4)	182	365
Pool, South	Kingsbridge (5)	242	346
Pool, Upper	Welshpool (2)	182	658
Poorstock	Powerstock	151	776
Poorton, North	Powerstock (1½)	151	63
Popham	Micheldever (3½)	58	114
Poplar	.....	.....	56383

recreation ground. P. contains a substantial town hall, a Sailors' Home (established by Richard Green), and a hospital. The East and West India

MILLWALL DOCKS.

Docks and Millwall Docks are situated in the pa. The industries include shipbuilding, wire-rope making, and the manufacture of chain cables.

Poplar Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of the Tower Hamlets (q.v.). It returns one member.

Poppleton, Nether, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, W.R. Yorks., 4 N.W. of York; ac. 1,205; soil sand and clay. The church of St. Everilda, a small Norm. building, contains monuments to Dame Hannah Hutton (1651) and Matthew Hutton (1620). There is a Free Methodist chapel (1868), and some small charities.

Poppleton, Upper, chap., tp., and vil., pa. of St. Mary, Bishophill, Junior (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 3 N.W. of York; ac. 1,313. The church of All Saints (built 1891, in E. Eng. style) replaced a Norm. building, of which the only portions retained were a doorway and a window in the vestry; the font is Norm. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Poppylot, ha., pa. of Methwold (q.v.), S.W. Norf., about 4 N.W. of Brandon.

Porchester, or Portchester, pa. and vil. on Portsmouth Harbour, S.E. Hants, 7¼ N.W. of Portsmouth; ac. 1,378; soil loam, subsoil clay, and chalk on the hills. P. is the site of a Roman station. The views from the Portsdown Hills are extensive and picturesque. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) was originally cruciform, but the south transept is now closed, having fallen into ruin. The nave, chancel, north transept, and western door are good specimens of Norm. work, dating from about 1133, and some of the mouldings are very fine. There is a squint. Sir Thomas Cornwallis, groom porter to Queen Elizabeth and James I. (d. 1618), is commemorated by a monument. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. P. Castle is an extensive ruin, washed on the east side by the waters of Portsmouth Harbour. The outer walls, of immense thickness, are of Roman construction, courses of thin red brick and other typical marks abounding in them; they enclose an area of upwards of 8 ac., and form a square. Within the enclosure are the ruins of several buildings, for defence or habitation, of varying date, probably down to the time of Henry VII.; these comprise the Landport, the Waterport, the Citad Norman Court, the Banqueting Hall, and Elizabeth's Tower. The chief feature of th is the Great Tower, at the north-east corne ably founded in the 12th cent.; in the ba are two dungeons, each measuring about 4 17 ft. After the time of Elizabeth the castle to be a fortress, and became a depôt for t keeping of prisoners of war, of whom, dur French Revolution, nearly 8,000 were c here. In 1814 it was vacated, and, being no required by the Government, it reverted lord of the manor, and is now much visite pleasure resort. The charities are £15 year

Poringland, or Great and Little Poringla S. Norf., 4½ S.E. of Norwich; ac. 1,559; soi gravel, and clay, overlying gravel and clay Dec. and Perp. church of All Saints ha renovated and enlarged, the old oak b carved with poppy heads, being restored.

Porkellis, large vil., pa. of Wendron (q. Cornw., 5 N.E. of Helston. There is a church, dedicated to St. Christopher; m Wesleyans have a chapel.

Porkington, ha., pa. of Selattyn (q.v.), W 1½ N.W. of Oswestry.

Porlock, coast pa. and vil., W. Somerset, Minehead, on the highroad to Lynton; ac soil red loam, overlying ironstone. The ch St. Dubricius (restored 1891) is E. Eng., D Perp.; the roofs are coved and ribbed, the sections being relieved with bosses of foliage, roses, and heraldic shields. At t end of the chancel, against the north wall altar-tomb, richly panelled; there is no t any inscription. In the wall of the south a two recesses of unequal size, with plainly-m round-headed arches; in the larger is the r ent, cross-legged effigy of a knight in chai conjectured to represent Sir Simon Fit temp. Richard I. At the east end of the beneath the easternmost arch of the arca partly incorporated with its western pier, is and fine canopied altar-tomb with rec effigies of a knight in plate armour, and of in a close-fitting dress, covered by a mantle are believed to represent Sir John, fourth Harington (d. 1417–18), and Elizabeth (Cou his wife (d. 1471); the canopy consists of a lofty four-centred arch, elaborately feather supported on moulded piers at the angles. churchyard, near the north side of the towe altar-tomb similar to the first mentioned but of plainer character, and believed to be stone. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. A ce was laid out in 1889. The charities con about 18s. per month each to twelve poor who do not receive parish relief, and the W land, value about £55 yearly, distribu ted in to poor persons not in receipt of parish Ashley Combe is situated on the hillside, centre of fine grounds, and commands view Welsh coast, of the P. and North Hills, and valley in which the vil. of P. lies.

Pornanyon Cove, west coast of Cornw., Cape Cornwall.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Poplar Division	.....	.....	78330
Poppleton, Nether	Poppleton	191	290
Poppleton, Upper	Poppleton	191	302

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub
Porchester	Porchester (1)	73
Poringland	Norwich (4)	114
Porlock	Minehead (6)	183

Port (1), pa., Ferrard bar., S. co. Louth, Ir., 6 E. of Dunleer; ac. 1,800. Here is a graveyard containing old tombs, some dating as far back as 1643.

Port (2), ha. on the west side of Inver Bay, Banagh bar., S. co. Don., Ir., about 10 W. of Donegal.

Portacloy, creek, pa. of Kilcommon (q.v.), N. co. Mayo, Ir., 11 N.E. of Belmullet. At its head is a coastguard station.

Portadown, mkt. to. (W. & S.), tp., and head of petty sess. div., pas. of Seagoe and Drumcree (q.v.), N. co. Armagh, Ir., 26 S.W. of Belfast; ac. of tp. 764. P. is situated on the Bann, here spanned by a stone bridge of five arches, connecting P. with the suburb of Edenderry (q.v.). The Newry Canal joins the river about a mile above the town, on its course to Lough Neagh, giving water communication between this place and Newry and Belfast. P. consists of a well-built principal street, and several smaller streets branching from it. St. Mark's Church, a neat structure with a square tower, stands in the town, as do also two Presbyterian churches, and chapels for Primitive and Wesleyan Methodists. The Catholic church is in William Street. The charitable institutions comprise dispensaries for the sick poor, and a fever hospital. The town hall, in Edward Street (1891), is a handsome structure. A good market-place and shambles have been erected by subscription. In 1780 a general grain market was established, and of late years the weekly sales of corn have much increased. The trade in other agricultural produce is also great, and is promoted by the situation of the town in the centre of an extensive and fertile district and the means the town has of transmission. The manufacture of linen, cambric, and sheeting is carried on extensively in the town and neighbourhood, and affords employment to a considerable number of persons. Petty sessions are held fortnightly, and there are monthly fairs. The Protestant pa. church of Drumcree is about a mile from the town, and the pa. church of Seagoe about a mile north.

Portaferry, seaport and mkt. to. (S.), pa. of Ballyphilip (q.v.), E. co. Down, Ir., 29 S.E. of Belfast. P. is situated on the east shore of the strait to the sea that forms the entrance to Strangford Lough. The town consists of a small square, three streets, and a range of houses along the quay. The market-house, in the square, is a very commodious building; in the upper portion an apartment is for the use of the magistrates. The places of worship are the Protestant church of Ballyphilip; a Catholic church, a very large building; and those respectively for Presbyterians and Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists. At P. is a good quay, where vessels of light burthen can discharge their cargoes; a considerable trade in corn and agricultural produce is carried on, and that in coal and timber is of great importance. Along the adjacent coast and in the lough a productive herring fishery is carried on, which in the season—June to September inclusive—gives employment to numerous smacks and a great number of men. From the quay an entrance is gained by a delightful walk or mall, open at all times to the inhabitants and visitors. Monthly fairs are held.

Port Appin, vil. on Loch Linnhe, pa. of Lismore and Appin (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., about 3 S.W. of Appin vil.

Portarlington, mkt. to. (W. & S.) and head of petty sess. div., on the Barrow, partly in the pa. of Clonyhurk, E. K. Co., but chiefly in the pa. of Lea (q.v.), N. Q. Co., Ir., 11 N. of Maryborough. P. was incorporated in 1667, and returned members to the Irish Parliament, and since the Union one member to the Imperial Parliament until 1885, when it was merged in the co. The English church of St. Michael is a neat edifice with a lofty spire. The French church, or St. Paul's, is a very handsome edifice re-erected in 1857; service was formerly held in the French language, but for many years the English has been adopted. This church was founded by Lord Galway for his French Protestant followers, William III. having granted him the lands which Lord Arlington had forfeited. The Catholic church, at the west end of the town, is a modern building. There is also a place of worship for Wesleyans. At Arlington House School the Duke of Wellington received his early education. There is a charity amounting to £105 yearly, of which £50 is divided among poor Protestants of good character, £40 applied to apprentice one boy to a trade, and £15 to the parochial schools. Monthly fairs are held. There are many handsome private residences in the town, and the neighbourhood is studded with seats of the nobility and gentry.

Port Askaig. [ASKAIG, PORT.]

Portavaud. [PORTEVAD.]

Port Ballintrae, vil. and bathing-place near the mouth of the Bush river, pa. of Dunluce (q.v.), N. co. Antr., Ir., 1 N. of Bushmills.

Port Bannatyne, or Kamesburgh, vil. on Kames Bay, pa. of North Bute (q.v.), Butes., Sc., about 2 N.W. of Rothesay. There is a Free church; and the place maintains a herring fishery. Kames Castle (q.v.) is in the immediate vicinity.

Portbridge, ha., pa. of and ¾ S. from Stoke Gabriel (q.v.), S. Dev.

Portbury, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 8 N.W. of Bristol; ac. 2,878; soil clay, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Mary (partially restored 1871 and 1875) is a building of mixed periods; the doorway of the south porch is Norm.; in the north aisle is a brass to Sara Kemish and her children (1621); there are two fine yew-trees in the churchyard. P. has some small charities. Remains of Roman buildings, coins, etc., have been discovered here. The school occupies a building once the property of the Augustinian abbey of Bristol.

Port Carlisle, vil., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Bowness (q.v.), N.W. Cumb. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The trade of this port, which once promised to become a place of importance, has from various causes been transferred to Silloth. The locality is traversed by the Roman Wall, the course of which, however, is at this point scarcely traceable. There are two barrows, and in the vil. is the fragment of a Roman altar.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Port (1)	Dunleer (6)	42	359
Portadown	Portadown	88	8430
Portaferry	Downpatrick (9)	140	1624

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portarlington	Portarlington	42	2021
Port Bannatyne	Wemyss Bay (12)	431	753
Portbury	Portbury	128	439

Portcarren, vil., pa. of Lismore and Appin (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., about 5 N.W. of Oban.

Portcasseg, ha., pa. of St. Arvans (q.v.), S.E. Mon., 3 N.W. of Chepstow.

Port Charlotte, vil. on Loch Indal, pa. of Kilchoman (q.v.), Islay Island, Args., Sc., about 7 S.W. of Bridgend.

Portchester. [PORCHESTER.]

Port Clarence, small port with railway station, on the north side of the mouth of the Tees, pa. of Billingham (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 4 N.E. of Stockton. The Roman Catholic church, dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, is in Gothic style; and the Wesleyans, Free Methodists, and Methodist New Connexion have places of worship. P. C. is rapidly becoming of importance as a shipping place; there are large blast-furnaces, iron and steel works, a large foundry and engineering establishment, and extensive salt and alkali works.

Portcoon, cavern, Giant's Causeway (q.v.), N.W. co. Antr., Ir., 2 N. of Bushmills. It is the finest of the caverns at the Giant's Causeway; the total length is about 350 ft. and the height 40 to 45 ft. The walls are partly covered with a pinkish lichen; the roof of the cavern is traversed by a fault.

Port Crinan. [CRINAN (1).]

Port Dinorwic. [DINORWIC.]

Port du Moulin, bay, N.W. coast of Sark, Channel Islands. The coast scenery here is very fine, the Autelet Rocks forming a conspicuous feature in the view.

Port Dundas, q.s. pa. and north suburb of Glasgow, at the junction of the Firth and Clyde and the Monkland Canal, pa. of Barony (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc. Here are distilleries, foundries, oil works, and flour, grain, and saw mills.

Port Edgar. [QUEENSFERRY.]

Portelet Bay, S. Jersey, Channel Islands, 1¼ S. of St. Aubyn's. The bay is surrounded by steep cliffs, and is very picturesque. In the bay is a large rock, crowned with a martello tower.

Port Ellen, seaport vil., pa. of Kildalton (q.v.), Islay Island, W. Args., Sc., about 12 S.E. of Bowmore. It possesses a good quay, safe anchorage ground, and a lighthouse, and carries on a considerable amount of fishing. There is also a distillery.

HARBOUR AND LIGHTHOUSE, PORT ELLEN.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Port Charlotte	Oban (48)	504	570
Port Dundas	Glasgow	400	4843
Port Ellen	Fairlie (46)	413	893

Port Elphinstone, part of the town of (q.v.), on the Don, pa. of Kintore, E. A It derives its name from the fact tha situated at the north-west end of the forn deen Canal. There are grain, paper, and s

Portencross Castle, pa. of and about 3 West Kilbride (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc., stan base of a cliff, and is said to have residence of the Stuart kings. It dates 13th cent., and its walls are still fairly en

Port Erin, vil. and watering-place at Port Erin Bay, pa. of Rushen, S.W. 3¾ W. by N. of Castletown. The vil. is de situated in a sheltered and quiet nook wi access of the mountains in the south pa island. It is developing into a fashionable place, but many old-fashioned fishermen's remain, showing that it has not entirely ancient character. A promenade has bee along the cliffs, terraces and villas line t and excellent hotels and boarding-hous abundant accommodation for visitors. Th of St. Catherine (1879) is in Gothic st Primitive Methodists have a chapel. The Station, opened 1892, is connected with t pool Marine Biological Society; it cou Laboratory and an Aquarium. The san is well known to bathers, and there is goo in and near the bay. On the sands at the the bay, near the site of a religious hou Catherine's Well, much visited in old account of its medicinal properties.

Port Erin Bay, inlet of the sea, west Rushen pa., S.W. I. of M., 4 W. by N. o town. The bay sweeps round about t from a projection of Mull Hill (known Castle) to Bradda Head. At its mouth, The Castle, it is about ½ mile wide. The of this landlocked bay is extremely pic A breakwater 910 ft. in length, built out Castle in order to convert the bay into a of refuge, and a concrete low-water lan have been almost totally destroyed by the Port Errol, or Ward of Cruden, coast railway station, pa. of Cruden (q.v.), E. A about 11 N.E. of Ellon. It has a good herring fishing is carried on.

Portesham. [PORTISHAM.]

Port-es-Seez, cove in Grande Grève, S. Channel Islands.

Portessie, small coast vil. with railway pa. of Rathven (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., 1 E. o It is of some consequence as a boat-buil fishing station.

Portevad, or Portavaud, creek, pa. of (q.v.), N.W. co. Sligo, Ir., 5¼ N. by W. of It opens on the west side and near the Ballysadare Bay. The north-east bou formed by a low peninsula terminating in Port-e-Vadda, small creek on the nort Douglas Bay, E. I. of M., 1½ N.E. of Doug a pretty and secluded little bay. On the of the entrance is a small pier.

Port-e-Vullin, coast vil., pa. of Maugh E. I. of M., about halfway between

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and di fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or D
Port Elphinstone	Inverurie	5
Port Errol	Errol (2½)	4
Portessie	Portessie	5

Head and Ramsey. Here is a stone with five balls upon it, supposed to have been a woman who, carrying five balls of wool, cursed the wind and was immediately turned into stone.

Port Eynon, pa. and vil. on the south shore of Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 13 W.S.W. of Swansea; ac. 1,139. The vil. is situated on a bay, which makes a sweep of about 2½ miles. The church of St. Cattwg (restored 1861) is an ancient edifice with a north doorway. The Wesleyans have a chapel. Oyster-dredging was formerly carried on extensively here, and the villagers were also known to engage largely in smuggling.

Portfield (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Oving (q.v.), S.W. Sussex, adjoining Chichester. The church of All Saints (1871) is in E. Eng. style.

Portfield (2). [FURZY CASTLE AND PORTFIELD.]

Portfield (3), ha., pa. of Curry Rivell (q.v.), S. Somerset, 2 S.W. of Langport.

Portgate, tp., pa. of Lee St. John (q.v.), Mid Northumb., 10 N. of Hexham; ac. 1,703.

Port Gaverne, vil., pa. of Endellion (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., adjoining Port Isaac. It is a shipping-place for slate, and coal and grain are imported and warehoused.

Port Glasgow, parl. burgh (forming one of the Kilmarnock district of burghs), pa., and seaport to., N. Renfs., Sc., on the south bank of the Clyde; ac. of pa. 944. The town, 20 N.W. of Glasgow, is neatly and regularly built; the streets run at right angles to each other. It is protected on the south by a range of high hills, and the lower grounds in the vicinity of the town have many good houses. The Town House, erected in 1815, is a structure in the Classic style, and has a tower with spire 150 ft. in height and containing a clock; the interior includes a council chamber, court-hall, police station, and offices for the town clerk and other public officers. The Town Hall, in Princes Street, is a large stone building, used for public meetings, etc. The Moffat Library is an elegant building at the north end of King Street, erected in 1887 from part of a bequest left by the late James Moffat, merchant, Port Glasgow, and comprises (besides the library) reading, billiard, and smoking rooms. The Carnegie Park Orphan Homes, at the east end of the town, were erected from the same bequest. The harbours are remarkable for their facility of entry and egress, and are accessible to vessels at all times of the tide. Contiguous to the harbours is a large graving dock, which has been extended and improved at a very considerable cost; and there is also a wet dock. Connected with the town are seven shipbuilding establishments, some of which are upon an extensive scale and employ many hands. There are also saw mills, roperies, sail-cloth factories, and engineering and sail-making works.

Port Glenone, pa. and mkt. to. (T.), Lower Toome bar., W. co. Antr., Ir.; ac. of pa. 10,751. The town, which extends into the adjoining pa. of Tamlaght O'Crilly, is on the Bann (here crossed by a bridge), 9 W. of Ballymena. The chief portion of the town consists of a street which leads to the bridge, and contains several well-built houses, the principal shops and places of business. Linen-weaving is carried on in the town and neighbourhood, and there is a trade in grain, slates, timber, and other articles. Monthly fairs are held. P. House is a seat.

Port Gordon, coast vil. with railway station, pa. of Rathven (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., about 2 W. of Buckie. The harbour is commodious, and the inhabitants are exclusively occupied in fishing and the ship coasting trade; they employ stake and bag nets for the capture of salmon, which are here abundant.

Port Gorey or Gouray, small harbour on west coast of Little Sark, near southern extremity of Sark, Channel Islands, 7½ E. by S. of St. Peter Port. When the adjoining mines were worked, there was some traffic between P. G. and Cornwall.

Port Gower, a fishing vil., pa. of Loth (q.v.), E. Suths., Sc., 2 S.W. of Helmsdale.

Port Grenaugh. [GREENWICK.]

Porthamel, pl. with ferry on Menai Strait, pa. of Llanedwen (q.v.), S.E. Anglesey, 3 S.W. of Llanfair. Here, in A.D. 60, Suetonius Paulinus crossed the strait and defeated the Druids with terrible slaughter; a neighbouring spot still bears the name Bryn Beddau, or "the Hill of Graves." A field called Maes Mawr Gâd, "the Plain of the Great Army," is supposed to have been the place where, later, the Roman forces under Julius Agricola encamped, after they had crossed at the same ferry, to effect the reconquest of Anglesey. [MOEL-Y-DON.]

Porthcawl, small seaport and watering-place, pa. of Newton-Nottage (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 6 W. by S. of Bridgend. P. ships large quantities of coal and coke, importing iron-ore, pig-iron, and pitwood. A floating dock of 7½ ac., opened in 1867, is protected by a breakwater, on the end of which stands a small lighthouse. The town contains a chapel-of-ease to Newton-Nottage church, and Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The bathing is excellent, and there are golf-links stretching about a mile along the coast.

Porthcleriad, inlet on west side of Tremadoc Bay, near Abersoch, in Lleyn peninsula, S.W. Carnarvs., 6 S.S.W. of Pwllheli. The bay is square and surrounded by abrupt rocks, beneath which stretches a tract of sand.

Porthcothan Bay, west coast of Cornw., 2 N.W. of St. Ervan.

Porthcurnow, pl. with cove, pa. of St. Levan (q.v.), W. Cornw., about 7½ S.W. of Penzance. The Eastern Telegraph Company have a station here with direct submarine communication with Spain, Egypt, India, Australia, etc. The French-American Company have cables sunk in this bay. On the west rise grand lofty granitic rocks, forming bold and romantic scenery.

Porthdinlleyn, ha. on a bay of the same name, pa. of Edeyrn (q.v.), S.W. Carnarvs., about 2 W. of Nevin. The bay affords good anchorage and shelter for small vessels.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Port Eynon	Swansea (13)	204	202
Portfield (1)	Chichester (1)	69	1576
Portgate	Wall (4)	292	57
Port Glasgow, burgh	Port Glasgow	420	14626

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Port Glasgow, pa.	Port Glasgow	420	11973
Port Glenone, pa.	Ballymena (9)	138	5094
Port Glenone, to.	Ballymena (9)	138	676
Port Gordon	Portgordon	590	1254

Porthellick, small bay, St. Mary's, Scilly Islands. Here the body of Sir Cloudesley Shovel was washed ashore. [GILSTONE.]

Porth Enys. [MOUSEHOLE.]

Porthglaze Cove, on west coast of Cornw., 4 S.W. of St. Ives.

Porthgwarrah, coast ha. in a sheltered cove with lofty granite cliffs, pa. of St. Levan (q.v.), W. Cornw., 9 S.W. of Penzance. There are several lodging-houses, and crab- and lobster-fishing is carried on.

Porthilly, ha., pa. of St. Minver (q.v.), N.W. Cornw., 3½ N.E. of Padstow.

Porthjoke Bay, west coast of Cornw., 2 W. of Crantock.

Porthkea, ha., pa. of and 1½ E.S.E. from Kea (q.v.). W. Cornw. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Porthkerry, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S.E. Glamorgs., 7 S.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 967; soil tenacious, partly overlying lias. P. overlooks a picturesque valley leading down to the sea. The church is E. Eng. P. House is a seat.

Porthleven, eccl. pa. and small seaport on Mounts Bay, pa. of Sithney (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 3 S.W. of Helston. Its situation being exceedingly healthy, with a very pleasant beach, P. is developing into a watering-place, though fishing forms the chief support of the inhabitants. The church of St. Bartholomew (1842) is in Norm. style; and there are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. P. has a library and reading-room, a pier, a coastguard station, and a lifeboat station. The principal exports are granite and fire-brick, china clay, china stone, and fish; the imports are coal, timber, iron, brick, slate, artificial manures, and limestone. Penrose, delightfully situated on the banks of the Looe, is a seat.

Porth Llong Ddu, small seaport on west shore of Red Wharf Bay (q.v.), E. Anglesey, 5½ W.N.W. of Beaumaris. The produce of the neighbouring limestone quarries is shipped here.

Porthloe, coast vil., pa. of Veryan (q.v.), Mid Cornw., 9 S.E. of Truro. The Bible Christians have a chapel; and there is a coastguard station.

Porthlwyd, stream, N.E. Carnarvs., rises in a small lake at the foot of Carnedd Llewelyn, and flows to the Conway, which it joins 1½ S.E. of Llanbedr, about 6 miles (in a direct line) from its source. The beautiful Falls of P., near its confluence with the Conway, consist of a series of cascades, one of which descends 50 ft.

Porthmear Cove, on west coast of Cornw., 6 N.W. of Penzance.

Porthmellen. [MULLION COVE.]

Porthnavis Cove, ha., pa. of and 2 S.E. from Constantine (q.v.), W. Cornw.

Porth Nigel, or Hell's Mouth, bay, S.W. Carnarvs., 8 S.W. of Pwllheli. The width at entrance is a little over 5 miles; more inland it decreases to about 3½ miles. The bay is much dreaded by sailors on account of certain dangerous currents, and during a south-west wind it is almost impossible for vessels to work out. Here the Transit was wrecked in 1839.

Porthoustock Cove, on south coast of Cornw., about 3 S.E. of Manaccan.

Porthpean, vil. on St. Austell Bay, pa. of and 2 S.E. from St. Austell (q.v.), S. Cornw. P. is a seaside resort, much frequented during the summer on account of its excellent boating and bathing; and the climate is very mild in winter. The church of St. Levan (chapel-of-ease) is a small modern building. P. House is a seat.

Porthqueen Bay, on the west coast of Cornw., about 5 N.E. of Padstow. It is sheltered on the north by Kellan Head (q.v.).

Porthscatho, or Portscatho, large vil., pa. of Gerrans (q.v.), S. Cornw., about 9 S. of Truro. There is a Congregational chapel.

Porthtowan, ha., pa. of Illogan (q.v.), N.W. Cornw., about 2 S. of St. Agnes Head. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Porth-yr-Ogof, or Cwm Porth, limestone cave, S.W. Brecons., ¾ S. of Ystradvelltey. The cave is about 1,800 ft. in length, 40 ft. high, and 20 ft. broad. It is traversed by the Mellte, which near the centre becomes reunited to a branch diverging near the church. Llyn y Baban (= "Pool of the Child"), within the cave, owes its name to the remarkable appearance of the calcareous spar. The scene at the mouth of the cave when the stream is in flood is very wild and picturesque.

Porthyryd, vil., pa. of Llanybyther (q.v.), N. Carmarths., 4 S.W. of Lampeter.

Portington and Cavil, tp., pa. of Eastringham (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 N.E. of Howden; ac. 1,211. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Portinscale, vil. at the foot of Derwentwater, pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), S. Cumb., 1 W. of Keswick.

Port Isaac, large vil. on the south side of P. I. Bay, pa. of Endellion (q.v.), N.W. Cornw., 6½ N.E. of Padstow. It has a harbour, and fishing is carried on. The church of St. Peter (chapel-of-ease) is in E. Eng. style.

Port Isaac Bay, on the west coast of Cornw., about 3 W. of St. Teath.

Portisham, or Portesham, pa. and vil., S. Dors., 8 S.W. of Dorchester; ac. 4,540; soil heavy clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1874) is Gothic. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The school has a small endowment. Portland and Purbeck stone are quarried, and there are extensive beds of shale. The pa. contains remains of so-called Druidical temples, and a cromlech called Hellstone (q.v.).

Portishead, pa. and watering-place, N. Somerset, 12 N.W. of Bristol, very pleasantly situated on the north side of a finely-wooded ridge of hills, rising boldly from the coast of the Bristol Channel; ac. 2,032 and 295 water; soil clayey and sand, overlying limestone. Charming woods, traversed by convenient paths and provided with seats, reach down to the water's edge, and ocean-going steamers are constantly passing and repassing quite close to the shore, producing a scene always full of life and interest. The church of St. Peter (restored 1879-80) is Perp.; a wrought-iron screen separates the chancel and nave; a chapel, used as a burying-place by the Mohuns, and afterwards by the

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Porthkerry	St. Fagan's (1)	167	145
Porthleven	Helston (3)	319	1996
Portington and Cavil	Eastrington (½)	191	108

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Portisham	Portesham	144	634
Portishead	Portishead	130	2787

Jenner-Fust family, formerly existed on the north side of the chancel. The church of St. Barnabas is an iron structure. There is a Roman Catholic church and a Franciscan monastery; and the Wesleyans, Congregationalists, Baptists, Brethren, and Friends have places of worship. The Seamen's Institute contains a reading-room for pilots and officers, and another for men. The training-ship Formidable, for homeless and destitute boys, lent by the Admiralty in 1869, lies off here. Chappell's charity, amounting to £50, is distributed yearly. The village cross, about 20 ft. in height, south of the church, is in good preservation. P. Dock, which has been transferred to the Corporation of Bristol, was opened for traffic in June, 1879. The imports chiefly consist of grain and American produce, though there are facilities for the reception of timber, oil, sugar, and other cargoes. The depth of the water on the sill at the ordinary spring tides is 33 ft. and in the dock 27 ft. The Great Western and the Midland railway companies have offices on the dock, which by these railways is put in direct communication with all parts of the country.

Portishead Point, promontory, N. Somerset, about 2 N. of Portishead. Here formerly was a fort, which was besieged and taken by Sir Thomas Fairfax in 1645.

Portkinnegoe or Kinnagoe Bay, small inlet, north-east coast of East Inishowen bar., N.E. co. Don., Ir., 4½ N. by E. of Moville.

Portknockie. [PORTNOCKIE.]

Portland, peninsula (generally called an island), S. Dorset, united to the mainland by the Chesil Bank (q.v.), 4 S. of Weymouth. P. is 4½ miles in length, 1¾ in width, and 9 in circumference, and the boundary is formed by a ridge of lofty rocks, inaccessible on all sides except towards the south, where the land slopes away to the shore; the highest ground is 496 ft. above the sea; ac. 2,894. P. is a liberty of itself. The custom of gavelkind prevails. The whole of the upper part is a complete bed of stone, first brought into use in the reign of James I. St. Paul's Cathedral and many public buildings have been built with it. The stone is quarried in blocks from 2 to 14 tons each, which are conveyed to the ships by means of a railway. The whole stratum rests upon a bed of bluish clay; in the quarries are found many petrified shells and fossils. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the quarries and fishing, and are a hardy race of people. The soil is shallow but fruitful, and the sheep fed on the short grass produce the celebrated Portland mutton. The pa. church of St. George (1706) is in Classic style. The churches of the eccl. pas. of St. John the Baptist and St. Peter are respectively in Gothic and Byzantine styles; St. Andrew's chapel-of-ease is in E. Eng. style. Near the prison is a Catholic chapel, and the Congregationalists, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Bible Christians have places of worship. Here is a Seamen's Mission and Reading Room, also a Soldiers' Institute. A Dispensary was established in 1840 for the benefit of the labouring population. There are two lighthouses. One is built in the form of a cone, the diameter at the base being 50 ft.; from the gallery is seen that dangerous sea called The Race, so named from the tides meeting at this part of the island; also The Shambles, a shoal some 2 miles long, lying about 3 E. of P., and marked by a lightship. The upper lighthouse (1817) was rebuilt in 1867, when the lower one was also erected, both being on the fixed principle and worked with revolving lenses. P. Castle, at the foot of the loftiest part of the island, was erected by Henry VIII. in 1520 as a place of defence. From 1558 to 1646 it suffered many disasters, being constantly taken and retaken by the King and the Parliament. It is now appropriated to the Commander of the Engineers stationed here. One of the most prominent objects on this island is the Convict Prison on the top of the hill, in a locality called Grove, commanding a bold and magnificent view of the Channel. The building is chiefly constructed of wood and iron, so that it may be taken down and removed; it now contains about 900 convicts, who are chiefly employed in the stone quarries in getting stone and loading the waggons with the same, for export. The Portland Harbour torpedo works are in the pa. of Wyke Regis (q.v.). Pennsylvania Castle, commanding magnificent views of the Channel, is a seat. Bow-and-Arrow Castle (q.v.) is in the grounds. The breakwater extends from the north-east point to a distance of 2¼ miles into the sea, and forms a roadstead 4 miles in extent, within which a fleet of 200 sail can lie at anchor in complete safety, sheltered from all winds in the Channel, and be ready for sea at a moment's notice in case of emergency. It is 1¾ miles long, 120 ft. wide at low-water level, and upwards of 300 ft. at the base. There is a small fortification at the land end mounting a few guns, and at the extremity a large circular fort capable of mounting twenty-one heavy rifled guns. The harbour of refuge thus formed is now almost entirely enclosed by this stupendous sea-wall, covering an extent of no less than 2,107 acres. Near the breakwater is a hospital, the Royal Naval Sick Quarters, and another near the naval drill-ground. To protect the harbour and roadstead extensive fortifications have been erected on the top and sides of the hill called The Verne, on the northern side of the peninsula. Here a battery has been constructed and an artificial ravine formed, 100 ft. wide and from 70 to 120 ft. deep, to prevent access to The Verne from the land side; and batteries command this ravine. On the east side are other batteries at different altitudes.

THE BREAKWATER, PORTLAND.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

Portland Bill, a rocky projection jutting out into the English Channel from the south end of Portland (q.v.).

Portland, Isle of. [PORTLAND.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portland	Portland	146	9443

Portlaw, small to. on the Clodiagh, pa. of Clonagam (q.v.), N. co. Waterf., Ir., 11 W. of Waterford. The places of worship are the Protestant church and the Catholic church, the Presbyterian church being unused. The place owes its rise to the establishment of a cotton factory here in 1818, and about 150 hands are employed in the works. A canal was cut by the former proprietors from P. to the Suir.

Portlemouth, East, pa. and picturesque vil. standing on an elevated point of the eastern side of Salcombe Bay, with a fine view of sea and shore, S. Dev., 6 S. of Kingsbridge; ac. 2,900; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Onolaus, which contains a fine 13th-cent. screen and an ancient stone font, was restored 1881.

Portlethen, q.s. pa. and vil. on the sea-coast, pa. of Banchory Devenick (q.v.), N.E. Kincs., Sc., 7 S. of Aberdeen. The inhabitants are mainly engaged in fishing.

Port Lewaigue, ha., pa. of Maughold (q.v.), on the east coast of I. of M., about 2 S.E. of Ramsey.

Portlick Bay, small inlet on east shore of Lough Ree, S.W. co. Wstm., Ir., 5½ N. of Athlone. P. Castle, beautifully situated on its banks, is a mediæval fortress in good repair, now occupied as a seat.

Port Logan, coast vil., pa. of Kirkmaiden (q.v.), S.W. Wigs., Sc., at head of bay of same name, 14 S.E. of Stranraer.

Portloman, pa., Corkaree bar., N. co. Wstm., Ir., about 4 N.W. of Mullingar; ac. 1,907.

Portmadoc, small seaport on Tremadoc Bay, pa. of Ynyscynhaiarn (q.v.), S. Carnarvs., 1 S.E. of Tremadoc. As a place of trade P. has to a large extent taken the place formerly held by Tremadoc (q.v.). It has a harbour admitting vessels of 300 tons burthen, and carries on a large trade in the exportation of slates from the Festiniog quarries, the principal commodity imported being timber. There is an Anglican church, dedicated to St. John; also Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The town hall is a handsome edifice, containing assembly rooms. Near P. is the celebrated embankment constructed by Madocks to protect the reclaimed tract called Traeth Mawr. The scenery in the neighbourhood is picturesque, one of the most conspicuous features being the hill of Moel-y-Gest (q.v.). At its foot, in the midst of the town, is the seat of Morfa Lodge.

Portmagee, fishing vil., pa. of Killemlagh (q.v.), S.W. co. Kerry, Ir., 8 S.W. of Cahersiveen.

Portmahomack, small seaport and fishing vil. on the Moray Firth, pa. of Tarbat (q.v.), E. Ross and Crom., Sc., 10 E. of Tain.

Portmarnock, coast pa. at the head of a creek of the Irish Sea, Coolock bar., E. co. Dub., Ir., 7½ N.E. of Dublin; ac. 2,090. The church of St. Marnock was built in 1791. P. House is a seat

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Portlaw	Fiddown (3)	153	1394
Portlemouth, East	Kingsbridge (6)	242	310
Portlethen, q.s. pa.	Portlethen (1)	520	1481
Portlethen, vil.	Portlethen (1)	520	355
Portloman	Mullingar (4)	52	180
Portmagee	Cahersiveen (8)	232	189
Portmarnock	Portmarnock	7	459

Port Mary, estate with seat of same nam pa. of Rerrick (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc., abc 7 S.E. of Kirkcudbright. Here Mary Queen Scots is said to have embarked on her flight England.

Portmoak, pa., N. Kinrs., Sc., between Lc Leven and Fifes.; ac. 9,957. There are Establish Free, and United Presbyterian churches. Andr Winton, the chronicler of Scotland (c. 1400). a Michael Bruce the poet (1746–67) were native and the pa. was long under the charge of the Re Ebenezer Erskine, one of the founders of th Secession Church.

Port Menteith. [Menteith, Port of.]

Portmore (1), estate with seat of same nam pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Eddlestone (q.v.), N Peebs., Sc.

Portmore (2), fishing harbour, pa. of Clonc (q.v.), north coast of East Inishowen bar., N.E. co Don., Ir., 6 N.N.W. of Malin. Here is a pier, buil about 1842.

Portmore (3), lough, Upper Massereene bar., S co. Antr., Ir., 4½ S.S.W. of Cremlin. It is oval i form, 1¼ mile long from north to south, and 1 mil in extreme breadth.

Portmuck, small harbour on Island Magee opposite the Isle of Muck, 4 E. of Larne. A pie has been built here for shipping limestone.

Port Mulgrave, vil., pa. of Hinderwell (q.v.) N.R. Yorks., 12 N.W. of Whitby.

Portnacraig, vil. on the Tummel, pa. of Logiera (q.v.), N. Perths., Sc., opposite Pitlochry.

Portnacroish, vil., pa. of Lismore and Appi (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., 14 N.E. of Oban. It contair an Episcopalian church.

Portnafrankagh, inlet of the sea on west coas of the Mullet, N.W. co. Mayo, Ir., 3 W. by N. c Belmullet. The inlet is long and narrow, extend ing about 3 miles inland.

Portnahaven, q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of Kilchoma (q.v.), Islay island, S.W. Args., Sc., 10 W.S.W. c Bowmore. P. is situated at the south extremit of the Rhinns, opposite the island of Oversay. Th vil. presents a very picturesque appearance. I contains Established and Free churches.

Portnahinch, bar., N.E. Q. Co., Ir.; ac. 35,83 It is bounded on the north by K. Co., on the ea by co. Kildare, on the south by Maryborough Ea and Stradbally bars., and on the west by Mary borough West and Tinnahinch bars. It contair Portarlington, and is traversed by the Gre Southern and Western Railway, and the Gran Canal.

Portnascully, pa. on the Suir, Iverk bar., S. c Kilk., Ir., 3 S.E. from Grange railway station; a 2,452. The pa. contains the vils. of Ballygore and Licketstown.

Portnashangan, pa., Corkaree bar., N. co. Wstm Ir., 1 S. of Clonhugh railway station; ac. 2,72 Ballinagall and Mount Murray are seats. Th latter is situated near Lough Owel.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Pop LATIO
Portmoak	Milnathort (5)	435	S
Portnahaven, q.s. pa.	Oban (48)	504	N
Portnahaven, vil.	Oban (48)	504	3
Portnahinch	.....	.....	75
Portnascully	Grange (3)	156	8
Portnashangan	Clonhugh (1)	58	2

Portnaspagna, or Portnaspania, inlet of the sea, north coast of Cary bar., N. co. Antr., Ir., 3 N.N.E. of Bushmills. The bay is said to take its name from a vessel belonging to the Spanish Armada, which was driven on a rock in its midst after the captain had kept up a prolonged fire on some stacks in the neighbourhood, believing them to be the chimneys of Dunluce Castle.

Portnatruin, small bay, north coast of Cary bar., N. co. Antr., Ir., 4 N.E. of Bushmills. The creek extends about 200 yds. inland between Benbane Head and Bengore Head; it is about 200 yds. wide at its entrance, narrowing to a point at the south extremity.

Portnessock Bay, inlet of the sea, S.W. Wigs., Sc., 10 S.E. of Port Patrick. The bay has a width of a little over a mile at its entrance, and penetrates rather less than a mile inland.

Portnockie, fishing vil. with railway station, on Moray Frith, pa. of Rathven (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., 2 W.N.W. of Cullen. A deep-water harbour was completed in 1891.

Portnoffer, small bay on east side of the Giant's Causeway, north coast of Cary bar., N. co. Antr., Ir., 3 N.N.E. of Bushmills. Extending about 200 ft. along the cliff on the east side of the bay is a row of basaltic columns of singular beauty, known as the Giant's Organ.

Portobello (1), ha., pa. of Wolverhampton (q.v.), S. Staffs., 1 N.E. of Willenhall.

Portobello (2), parl. and mun. burgh, q.s. pa., and fashionable watering-place, on the south side of the Firth of Forth, pas. of Duddingston and South Leith (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., 3 E. of Edinburgh by road. It is said to have taken its name from a sailor who built a cottage here and called it P. to commemorate the fact that he was present at the capture of Porto Bello in South America by Vernon's fleet. As a town P. (which is one of the Leith district of burghs) has risen to its present importance with singular rapidity. Towards the close of the 18th cent. the ground which it occupies was an unproductive waste along the shore, overspread with whins and bent, the only dwellings here consisting of a thatched hut of two rooms, which stood until 1862, when it was pulled down to make room for the town hall, and one or two shepherds' shealings, the hut being used as a hostelry or half-way house for travellers taking the shore road from Musselburgh to Edinburgh. P., which continues to increase in size and importance, now consists principally of one main street, the High Street, ¼ mile in length, which forms a part of the highway from Edinburgh to London; branching off right and left are other streets with terraces, squares, etc., affording ample residential accommodation. The beach, a noble expanse of smooth sand, affords safe and convenient bathing at all times of the tide, and there are warm salt-water baths. The church was formerly a chapel-of-ease to Duddingston. The Marine Promenade is a broad thoroughfare stretching along the sea beach, and in the centre stands the Prince of Wales's Fountain. The pier has seats and a spacious saloon with pavilion above. The scenery in the neighbourhood of the town is varied and extensive. Considerable trade is done in the manufacture of paper, bottles, pottery, earthenware, bricks, and tiles; and at Joppa there are salt works.

Porton, chap. and vil. with railway station, pa. of Idmiston (q.v.), S.E. Wilts., 5 N.E. of Salisbury. The church of St. Nicholas was rebuilt in 1877 on a new site.

Portpatrick, pa., burgh of barony, and seaport to. with terminal station on the North Channel, W. Wigs., Sc.; ac. of pa. 9,094; soil in parts hazel mould, in others deep black loam, resting on clay and gravel. The to. lies about 7 S.W. of Stranraer, and was for some 200 years the great thoroughfare from the North of Ireland, being the nearest port of Great Britain to that country, and the best place of crossing from one country to the other, being only 21 miles from Donaghadee and 36 miles from Belfast. The town is small, but its situation is delightful, having a fine southern exposure backed by a ridge of small hills, and is a great resort for visitors during the summer months on account of the salubrity of its climate. The pa. church is a neat edifice with an embattled tower; the Free church (1888) is a handsome building in Gothic style. The quay, on which is a lighthouse, is now almost in ruins. Many years ago extensive and important improvements were made at the harbour for the accommodation of Her Majesty's packets, and a new basin of about 200 ft. square, connected with the harbour by a channel containing 10 ft. of water at low tides, was constructed. The mail communication between this place and Ireland, however, ceased in 1849, and since that date the business of this locality has diminished to a great extent. Here is a lifeboat and rocket apparatus station.

Port Penrhyn, seaport, ½ E. of and included in bor. of Bangor (q.v.), N. Carnarvs. The port was founded about 1790 by Lord Penrhyn, who selected it for the shipment of slate from the Penrhyn quarries. Additions and improvements have been made, and the port has now large quays, accessible at all times to vessels of considerable tonnage, and affords every facility for the shipment of slate, large quantities of which are annually exported.

Portquin, vil. on bay of same name, pa. of Endellion (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., 5 N. of Wadebridge. The Bible Christians have a chapel. On a high cliff near is a square monolith about 4 ft. high; it was originally the shaft of a cross, and bears on one face a portion of an inscription.

Portrack, estate with seat of same name, pa. of Holywood (q.v.), W. Dumfs., Sc., about 3 S. of Auldgirth.

Portraine, coast pa., Nethercross bar., E. co. Dub., Ir., 4½ N.E. of Swords; ac. 2,210. The pa. contains Ballisk and part of Donabate (q.v.). P. is a seat in an extensive park, commanding fine views, including Howth and Ireland's Eye.

Portramsay, vil., pa. of Lismore and Appin (q.v.), N. Args., Sc., about 10 N. of Oban.

Portreath, seaport vil., pa. of Illogan (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., 4 N.W. of Redruth. The church of St. Mary

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Portnockie	Portknockie	596	1301
Portobello (2), burgh	Portobello	393	8182
Portobello (2), q.s. pa.	Portobello	393	5594
Portobello (2), to.	Portobello	393	8684

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Port Patrick, pa.	Portpatrick	413	1219
Port Patrick, to.	Portpatrick	413	520
Portraine	Donabate (1)	12	486

(chapel-of-ease) is in the E. Eng. style; and the Wesleyans and Free Methodists have chapels. P. has docks, and a pier about ¼ mile long; there is a railway (for minerals only) from the open port. Copper ore is exported, and coal, iron, and lime are imported.

Portree, pa. and seaport vil. on P. Bay, Skye, Inner Hebrides, Invs., Sc.; ac. 56,909; soil between the hills chiefly peat-moss, but that most general is a gravelly earth, abounding in springs. P. is the capital of the island, and lies (viâ Invermoriston) about 109 W. of Inverness; it is reached by steamer from Oban (from which it is distant 110 N. by W.), or from Strome Ferry by railway steamer. The vil. is seated a little above the shore, at the summit of a somewhat steep acclivity thickly planted with trees. The Episcopal church of St. Columba (erected 1884 as a memorial to the late Bishop Mackarness) is in E. Eng. and Dec. style. The Ross Memorial Cottage Hospital was erected in 1893 in memory of a local surgeon. There is a woollen factory, in which are manufactured tweeds, plaids, yarns, and carpets. The quay, erected in 1819, has been much improved, and is available for trading steamers and ships at all states of the tide. The bay is safe and spacious, having a depth of from 5 to 12 fathoms, and the anchorage is excellent. The exports are sheep, black cattle, wool, salt herrings, salmon (chiefly for London), and cod and ling, both salt and dry, principally for Glasgow and Liverpool. On a high rocky promontory, projecting some distance into the bay, stands an octagonal tower, from which there is a splendid view of the surrounding scenery. On the west of the vil., amidst some thriving plantations, is P. House, a seat.

Portroe, vil. near Lough Derg, pa. of Castletownarra (q.v.), N. co. Tip., Ir., about 7 W. by N. of Nenagh.

Portrush, seaport and fashionable watering-place, pa. of Ballywillan (q.v.), N. co. Antr., Ir., about 7 N.E. of Coleraine. An electric tramway, 8 miles in length, the first in Ireland, opened in September, 1883, runs from P. to Bushmills and Giant's Causeway. This place is rapidly rising into notice, in consequence of its temperate atmosphere and its great facilities for bathing, and being the nearest approach to the Giant's Causeway. The places of worship include a Protestant church (Holy Trinity), dating from 1842 and since enlarged; and Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist churches. An active intercourse exists between this port and Glasgow, Liverpool, and Londonderry, and large quantities of salmon are shipped here. There are several hotels and many comfortable lodging-houses. The town hall (1872) is an ornamental brick building, and contains a spacious assembly room, reading room, and board room. Here is a monument (1859) to Dr. Adam Clarke, the author of "Clarke's Commentary," who was born in this locality. P. has a station of the coastguard and a lifeboat.

Port St. Mary, vil. on west side of Poolvash Bay, pa. of Rushen (q.v.), S. I. of M., 3½ W. of Castletown. The church of St. Mary is a handsome modern (1881) edifice in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The harbour small, but well sheltered with two piers and breakwater, with a lighthouse at the end. a hill north of the town is another lighthou The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in the herri fishery and in boat-building. A chapel dedicat to the Virgin formerly stood on an eminence ab ½ N. The foundations were discovered a destroyed during the construction of the railw though some of the stones may still be seen. the vicinity are traces of a Danish bur place. Near the road leading from the vil. Port Erin are the Giant's Quoiting Stones (q. P. St. M. is a favourite resort, and a convent centre to explore the southern part of the island

Portsallagh, fishing harbour, pa. of Lo Moville (q.v.), N.E. co. Don., Ir., 5 N.E. by E. Moville. P. is 1 S. by W. of Inishowen Head.

Portsbridge Creek. [PORTSEA ISLAND.]

Portscatho. [PORTHSCATHO.]

Portsdown, eccl. pa., pas. of Farlington, Widley, and Wymering (q.v.), S. Hants, 4 N. by E. of Portsmouth. Christ Church is in Trans. style. Here are Fort Purbrook and Fort Widley, forming part of the defences of Portsmouth. P. Industrial School (for destitute boys from London, Hants, Sussex, Surrey, and Wilts.) was certified in 1858, and has since been enlarged.

Portsdown Hill, a lofty ridge extending about 7 E. and W. between Fareham and Havant, S. Hants. There are six forts, designed for the defence of Portsmouth Harbour, built at intervals of 1 mile to 2 miles along this ridge. Near one of the forts is a pillar to Nelson (120 ft. in height). An annual fair is held at the foot of P. Hill.

Portsea, pa. and to., Portsea Island, S. Hants, within the bor. of Portsmouth (q.v.); ac. 4,168 and 764 water and foreshore. The to. owes its origin to the rapid increase of the Government establishments; it was formerly called "Portsmouth Common," but assumed its present name by Act of Parliament in 1792. The Portsmouth railway stations are on the borders. The Albert Pier, on The Hard, extending into Portsmouth Harbour, is 1,200 ft. long, and is a great convenience to the inhabitants, steam launches running at frequent intervals to and from Gosport. The 12th-cent. church of St. Mary has been pulled down, and a new church in Perp. style has been erected; the font of the old church, in which Isambard Brunel, the engineer, was baptised in 1805, and Charles Dickens in 1812, is still preserved. In the churchyard is a monument to Admiral Kempenfelt and his crew, who perished by the sinking of the Royal George at Spithead, August 29, 1782. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches, and the chief Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. There is a Jewish synagogue, and at the Aria College (1874) young men are prepared to become rabbis. Charities producing about £20 a year are distributed in bread.

Portsea Island, separated from the mainland of Hants by an arm of the sea called Portsbridge Creek, is situate between two natural harbours—Langston on the east and Portsmouth on the west

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portree, pa.	Strome Ferry (40)	661	3176
Portree, vil.	Strome Ferry (40)	661	1003
Portroe	Nenagh (7)	97	177

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portrush	Portrush	171	1655
Portsdown	Cosham (½)	70	191
Portsea	Portsmouth (½)	73	151590

—and comprises Portsea, Landport, and Southsea, with Fratton, Buckland, Copnor, and Kingston. The island is 3 miles long and 2½ miles wide, and contains 4,832 ac.

Port Seton. [COCKENZIE.]

Portskerra, vil. on the coast, pa. of Reay (q.v.), N.E. Suths., Sc., about 16 S.W. of Thurso.

Portskewett, pa. and vil. on the Severn, S.E. Mon., 5 S.W. of Chepstow; ac. 1,111; soil loam, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary is chiefly Norm. and E. Eng., possessing a curiously-carved E. Norm. doorway; there are the remains of a fine cross in the churchyard. King Harold built a palace here, where he entertained Edward the Confessor in 1065; the palace was destroyed by Caradoc ap Griffith; its site can still be traced near the west end of the church. The west entrance of the Severn Tunnel is in this pa.

Port Skillion, cove at foot of Douglas Head, pa. of Braddan (q.v.), E. I. of M., ¾ S.E. of Douglas. The cove affords excellent sea-bathing, and concrete platforms have been erected for the use of bathers. At the back of the little bay the cliffs rise steeply to over 300 ft., and on a platform near the top is the new Douglas lighthouse, with light visible 20 miles. In the face of the cliffs are two small chair-like recesses, and it is said that formerly nuns from the neighbouring convent of St. Bridget were compelled as a punishment to climb to one of these recesses and there spend twenty-four hours.

PORTSMOUTH TOWN HALL.

Portslade, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 4 N.W. of Brighton; ac. 2,036. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1860) is chiefly E. Eng., but portions remain of the Norm. church built about 1150; there is a mortuary chapel over the Brackenbury vault. The Baptists and Primitive Methodists have chapels. Ale is brewed in large quantities. East Hill, P. House, and The Manor House are seats.

Portsmouth (1), pa., parl., co., and mun. bor., arsenal and naval station, seaport and mkt. to. (T., TH., & S.), S.E. Hants, 26 S.E. of Southampton; ac. of pa. 123 and 117 water. P., the largest royal naval establishment and strongest fortress in England, probably owes its origin to the retreat of the sea from Porchester (q.v.); it was of importance in the time of Henry I., a naval station in the reign of King John, and was fortified by Edward IV., Richard III., and Henry VII.; and subsequently became the principal, if not the only, station for the Royal Navy in the reign of Henry VIII. In the time of the Civil War it was garrisoned for the Parliament. P. Harbour is admirably secure, and sufficiently capacious to contain the whole navy of England; its entrance has sufficient depth of water for a battleship to enter at any time of tide. The interior expands into a spacious lake having good anchorage, and the depth of water, even at the lowest ebb, will float the largest ship in the British navy; it has also a low-water anchorage for large vessels. A sandbank, called The Spit, projects towards the south-east from the western side of the harbour's mouth for about 3 miles; beyond it, indicated by buoys, and under shelter of the Isle of Wight, lies the roadstead of Spithead. The jurisdiction of the port extends from Emsworth on the east to the entrance of the Southampton Water on the west, and the roadstead of Spithead and the Bay of St. Helen's, between P. and the Isle of Wight. There is steam communication with Southampton several times during the day, and boats leave every hour for Ryde, Isle of Wight. In the harbour is moored H.M.ship Victory, on which Lord Nelson was killed at the battle of Trafalgar (October 21, 1805); it now serves as flagship of the admiral of the station. There is a steam-launch ferry across the harbour between Gosport and Portsea pier for passengers, and a powerful floating bridge, available at any period of the tide, every ten minutes, for vehicles as well as passengers, from the point at end of Broad Street, Portsmouth. P. was incorporated and made a borough by Henry I. The Reform Act enlarged its boundaries, and P. and Portsea, Southsea and Landport, with Kingston and other outlying hamlets, are now included within the borough of P., which returns two members. The town of P. is built in the form of a quadrangle; the streets are mostly narrow, but it is well paved. The principal streets and the sea-front are lighted by electricity, and there are some substantial houses in the High Street and on the Grand Parade. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a cruciform building, founded by

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portskerra	Thurso (19)	744	332
Portskewett	Portskewet	145	1190
Portslade	Portslade	52	4240

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portsmouth (1), pa.	Portsmouth	73	7661
Portsmouth (1), bor.	Portsmouth	73	159251

Richard Toclive, Bishop of Winchester (1173–80); the chancel and transepts are good specimens of the Trans. period; the nave and aisles were rebuilt in 1691 after the debased style then in vogue; in the chancel is a monument to George Villiers, K.G., Duke of Buckingham and Lord High Admiral, assassinated in the High Street by Lieutenant John Felton, August 23, 1628. The organ, said to be one of Father Smith's, has been rebuilt. The register dates from the year 1660, and contains the entry of the marriage of King Charles II. St. Mary's Church, in St. Mary Street, is a chapel-of-ease. The Roman Catholic Cathedral is locally in Landport (q.v.), and the diocese of P. comprises Hants, Berks., and the Channel Islands. The various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship; and in the burial-ground of the Unitarian chapel, in High Street, is the grave of John Pounds, the founder of ragged schools. The Grammar School, in Cambridge Road, dates from 1878, and is a building of red brick with stone dressings. The town hall is in the centre of the town, opposite the chief railway station, whence tramcars and other public vehicles run to every part of the borough. It is encircled by a fine carriage drive and broad pavement; on the north is the Victoria Park, and on the west the grounds have been laid out as an ornamental garden by the Corporation. Beyond these gardens are the United Service and Military recreation grounds. The building is in Classic style: the east or principal front is approached by a grand flight of granite steps leading to a portico of six columns; in the centre of the tympanum stands Britannia, with symbolic figures of Peace and Plenty; each angle of the building is adorned with a cupola, and on each flank of the portico is a turret; in the centre of this façade rises the noble clock-tower. Internally the building is divided into three floors, except that the large kitchen and other apartments occupy a fourth storey partly in the roof. The vestibule leads directly into the great hall, in the centre of the building All the doors, dados, and finishings to this room are in dark walnut, as also are the doors to all rooms opening from the corridors. On the ground floor are the public library and reading-rooms; on the west are the police quarters and courts. Surrounding the court on two floors are various rooms allotted to magistrates and their clerks, the Clerk of the Peace, barristers, solicitors, and others. On the first floor and in connection with the upper galleries of the court is the grand jury room, which can also be used as a second court. On the upper floor is the Council chamber; the fittings in this room are all in walnut wood. The Royal Naval Club buildings are in Italian style. The P. and South Hants Eye and Ear Hospital (1884) is in the Pembroke Road. P. Dockyard (locally in the pa. of Portsea) is entered through three gateways, one at the end of The Hard, and others called Union Gate and Marlborough Gate; the dockyard comprises about 300 ac. of basins, docks, slips, factories, workshops, and storehouses. Here are also tidal and steam basins, besides first-class docks and slips in which the largest vessels can be constructed. The Gun Wharf, between P. and Portsea, is the grand depôt for ordnance and ammunition for land and sea service, a reserve being also maintained for the troops generally quartered in the southern district. The two armouries contain in the aggregate about 4,000 stand of arms. The Royal Powder Magazine at Tipnor, at the northern extremity of Portsea pa., contains the store of gunpowder for the naval and military forces. A detachment of a regiment of the line guards the magazine and premises. The fortifications constructed in the 18th cent. have been razed, and works of a far more extensive character, with numerous detached forts, now form a circle round the town, the forts being placed at various distances, up to four miles, from a centre situate in the dockyard. There are six barracks within the bor. of P.—the Cambridge, the Clarence, the Victoria, between P. and Southsea, and the Anglesey barracks, near the east end of Queen Street, Portsea, for regiments of the line; the Colewort barracks, occupied by the Army Service Corps, and the Broad Street and Gun Wharf barracks, near the Custom House, by the Royal Artillery. [EASTNEY.]

Portsmouth (2), vil. with railway station, pa. of Whalley (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 3 N.W. of Todmorden.

Portsmouth Harbour. [PORTSMOUTH (1).]

Port Soderick, ha. with railway station, pa. of St. Anne (q.v.), S.E. I. of M., about 3 S.W. of Douglas. It stands on the shores of a small bay, to which it gives its name.

Port Soif, bay, N.W. Guernsey, Channel Islands, 3 N.W. of St. Peter Port.

Port Sonachan, ha. on south side of Loch Awe, pa. of Kilchrenan and Dalavich (q.v.), Mid Args., Sc., 13 S.E. of Oban.

Portsoy, q.s. pa., burgh of barony, and seaport to, pa. of Fordyce (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., 8 W. by N. of Banff. P. is situated on a tongue of land projecting into the North Sea, at the head of one of those little bays by which this part of the coast is in many places indented. The town is small and irregularly built, but, as a port, is in a thriving condition. There is a safe harbour, sufficiently deep for vessels of upwards of 100 tons burthen. The places of worship are a church of the Establishment (1816), a Free church (1844), an Episcopal church (1840), a United Presbyterian church (1866), and a church for Roman Catholics (1828). There is a Christian Institute, with a library. The port has a considerable trade in the exportation of grain and the importation of coal. Fish-curing and distilling are prominent industries. The stone known as Portsoy marble is raised from the quarries of this district. The most remarkable mineral production is a granite of a buff or flesh colour, and the district also abounds with excellent limestone. The extensive ruins of the old castles of Boyne and Findlater lie to the east and west of P.

Port Stewart, watering-place, pa. of Ballyaghran or Agherton (q.v.), N. co. Londy., Ir., 4 N. of Coleraine and 10 W. of Giant's Causeway. P. S. is situated at the foot of a branch of the great basaltic range of mountains, and commands an extensive view of the estuary of the Bann, the entrance into Lough Foyle, and, in the distance, the highlands of Donegal. In appearance it resembles an English watering-place, and is a

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portsoy, q.s. pa.	Portsoy	589	2274
Portsoy, to.	Portsoy	589	2051

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Port Stewart	Portstewart	169	639

favourite resort during the summer and even in the winter months, having a dry sandy soil and being sheltered from easterly winds. P. S. has a Protestant church, and chapels for Presbyterians and Wesleyans.

Portswood, residential dis. within the bor. of Southampton (q.v.), S. Hants. There are two eccl. pas.—Christ Church and St. Denys—both with modern churches. The Cobden Free Bridge over the Itchen was opened in 1883.

Port Talbot, small seaport, pa. of and 1¼ S.S.E. from Aberavon (q.v.), N.E. Glamorgs. Here are coal-mines, copper works and rolling mills, tinplate works, and a foundry. The harbour is about 250 ac. in extent, with two excellent docks.

Port Tennant, an east suburb of Swansea (q.v.), W. Glamorgs. It lies on the east side of Swansea Harbour, and has smelting works.

Portumna, U. and mkt. to. (S.) on the Shannon, pa. of Lickmolassy (q.v.), S.E. co. Galway, Ir., about 13 W. of Parsonstown. P., which consists of two spacious streets, has a good corn market, and carries on a tolerable inland trade. The Protestant church (rebuilt 1832) is a handsome structure of stone, with a spire. The Catholic church (1826) is an elegant cruciform edifice in an enclosed square. A dispensary and a parochial school comprise the charitable institutions. There is a Convent of Mercy, with a school for 250 pupils. Fairs are held on February 15, May 6, July 1, August 15, October 17, and November 15. Close to the town stands the ruin of P. Castle, the property of the Marquess of Clanricarde, which was destroyed by fire in 1826, and only a portion of the building is now habitable. The remains of the Dominican friary are beautiful and interesting. There are several handsome mansions in the neighbourhood, especially on the eastern side of the town.

Portway (1), ha., pa. of Burghill (q.v.), Mid Herefords., about 4 N.N.W. of Hereford.

Portway (2), ha., pa. of Staunton-on-Wye (q.v.), W. Herefords., about 9 N.W. of Hereford.

Portways, ha. on the Chiltern Hills, pa. of Pyrton (q.v.), S. Oxon, about 2 S.E. of Watlington.

Port Wemyss, coast vil., pa. of Kilchoman (q.v.), Islay island, S. Args., Sc., about 15 S.W. of Bridgend.

Port William, seaside vil. on the east shore of Luce Bay, pa. of Mochrum (q.v.), S. Wigs., Sc., 24 S.E. of Stranraer. The harbour, though not of great extent, is commodious and safe, and from it large quantities of grain and potatoes are exported to Glasgow, Liverpool, and other ports on the west coast. The houses in general are well built, and afford excellent accommodation for families and tourists during the bathing season.

Portwood, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh. The church of St. Paul is in E. Eng. style.

Portwrinkle, pl., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Sheviock (q.v.), S.E. Cornw. It is a little fishing cove, and there is a coastguard station. The ancient pier was destroyed by a storm in 1822.

Portyarrock, or Portyerrock, inlet of the sea on the east coast of pa. of Whithorn, S.E. Wigs., Sc., 2½ E. by S. of Whithorn burgh.

Posbury, ha., pa. of and 2 S.W. from Crediton (q.v.), N. Dev.

Posenhall, pa., Mid Salop, 1 N. of Barrow; ac. 294; soil various.

Poslingford, pa. and vil., S.W. Suff., 9 E. by N. of Haverhill; ac. 2,381; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1882) is a small flint structure with Norm. door; there is a tablet to Thomas Golding, Esq., and his wife (1641), and various other monuments connected with the same family. In this pa. are the remains of Chipley Abbey, occupied as a farmhouse. P. Hall is a seat.

Posso Craigs, eminence (1,817 ft.), pa. of Manor, Mid Peebs., Sc., 6 S.S.W. of Peebles.

Post Bridge, ha. on the East Dart (here crossed by a very ancient bridge of two arches), pa. of Lydford (q.v.), W. Dev., 6 N.E. of Princetown. There is a mission chapel, dedicated to St. Gabriel.

Postcombe, ha., pa. of Lewknor (q.v.), S.E. Oxon, 5 S. of Thame.

Postern. [SHOTTLE AND POSTERN.]

Postling, small pa. at the foot of the chalk hills, S. Kent, 3 N.W. of Hythe; ac. 1,563; soil chalk and clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1885) is a small structure of flint, almost wholly E. Eng. In the wall near the chancel-arch are stone brackets, which probably once supported the rood-loft: the south wall retains a piscina. There are a few remnants of ancient benches, but the most interesting object in the church is an inscribed stone tablet in the north wall of the chancel recording the dedication; the date of the year, unfortunately, does not appear.

Postlip, ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Winchcomb (q.v.), N. Gloucs. Here are extensive paper mills. In the ha. stand the interesting remains of a small Norm. chapel built by William de Solers at the request of his tenants, and dedicated to St. James; it is now quite a ruin. P. and P. Hall are seats.

Postwick, pa. and vil. in a pretty vale, S. Norf., 4 S.E. by E. of Norwich; ac. 1,813; soil mixed. The navigable river Yare flows to the south. The Dec. and Perp. church of All Saints (restored 1866 and 1868) contains a handsome mural brass and a memorial window to Archibald John, fourth Earl of Rosebery (d. 1868). There is a modern lich-gate.

Potarch, Bridge of, vil. on the Dee, pa. of Birse (q.v.), S. Abers., Sc., about 2 S.E. of Kincardine O'Neil. Fairs are held three times a year.

Potcote, ha., pas. of Green's Norton and Cold Higham (q.v.), S. Northants, 3 N.W. of Towcester.

Potheridge, ha. on the Torridge, pa. of Merton (q.v.), N. Dev., 4 S.E. of Torrington. General Monk, afterwards Duke of Albemarle (1608–70), was born here.

Potrail (or Powtrail) Water, headstream of the Clyde, pa. of Crawford (q.v.), S.E. Lanarks., Sc., rises near the Dumfs. border, 7 S. by E. of Leadhills,

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Portumna	Portumna Bridge	102	1070
Port William	Whaup Hill (5½)	393	679
Portwood	Stockport	178	7061
Posenhall	Ironbridge (1)	158	12
Poslingford	Clare (2)	62	341
Postling	Sandling Junc. (1½)	64	125
Postwick	Norwich (4)	114	301

and runs about 7 N.N.E., joining Daer Water 4½ E. by S. of Leadhills.

Potsgrove, or Pottesgrove, pa. and small vil., S.W. Beds., 6½ N.E. of Leighton Buzzard; ac. 1,385; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1881) is Dec.; the chancel has a Dec. rood-screen, and there are two good windows in the nave; the east window and north doorway are Perp. There is a Congregational chapel.

Pott. [ILTON-WITH-POTT.]

Potten End, ha., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Great Berkhampstead (q.v.), W. Herts. The church of the Holy Trinity (built 1860), chapel-of-ease, is in Grecian style.

Potter Brompton. [BROMPTON POTTER.]

Potter Hanworth, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 6 S.E. of Lincoln; ac. 4,150; soil gravel, fen-land, and heath, overlying limestone. The church of St. Andrew, rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1857, was originally Dec.; in the chancel is a memorial window to Lord Chancellor Campbell (d. 1861). Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Four exhibitions of the annual value of £25, tenable at the Lincoln Middle School, are open to scholars at P. H. elementary school. Great quantities of Roman pottery were found on the site of the present schoolhouse at the time of its erection.

Potter Heigham, pa. and vil., E. Norf., 11 N.W. of Yarmouth; ac. 2,558; soil mixed, resting on sand and clay. The Gothic church of St. Nicholas was partly restored 1875. The rent of about 100 ac. of land is assigned to the poor. Of the area of the pa., about 193 ac. are represented by broads on the north side of the Bure vale.

Potteries, The, a comprehensive name for a district in N. Staffs., the chief seat of the manufacture of china and earthenware in England. The principal towns in the P. district are Stoke-on-Trent, Hanley, Longton, and Burslem. These give extensive employment to many thousand persons in the manufacture of china, porcelain, majolica, granite ware and ironstone china, parian and porcelain statuary, and encaustic tiles; all these articles are brought to great perfection. Earthenware and sanitary ware, and stoneware articles used by druggists, are also made in large quantities.

Potterne, pa., tp., and vil. in a small and sheltered valley, Mid Wilts., 2 S. of Devizes; ac. of pa. 5,444, of tp. 3,186; soil greensand, overlying chalk and in part clay. The vil. consists chiefly of two streets, the principal of which runs north and south, on the road from Devizes to Market Lavington and Salisbury. The church of St. Mary, a 13th-cent. cruciform structure of Bath stone (restored 1872), is a fine specimen of the E. Eng. period; an ancient font, probably dating from Saxon or pre-Norman times, was found buried under the present font, bearing a Latin inscription. The north transept contains many brasses and tablets to the Hunt-Grubbe family, and a small brass to Hugh Rook (d. 1686). A burial-ground adjoining the churchyard was formed in 1872. Here are two Wesleyan chapels. There is a Temperance Hall (1876) and also a Working Men's Social Club and Institute. P. has charities of the yearly value of about £100. Blounts Court, a modern castellated building, on an eminence commanding a fine view of the surrounding country, is a seat. Here is an antique timber-and-plaster house, denominated "The Porch House," formerly a roadside inn called the "White Horse." From the style and magnitude of the building, it is supposed that it was originally the Church House.

Potter Newton, tp., pa. of Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,657. The church of St. Martin was built 1879–81, in Dec. style. The Newton Park Union chapel, a Gothic building (1887), is used jointly by the Baptists and Congregationalists. Stone is quarried here. Roman pottery, etc., has been found in the neighbourhood.

Potters Bar, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of South Mimms (q.v.), N. Middx., 3 N. of Barnet. The church of St. John was built in 1835, in Norm. style. There are Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. A cottage hospital was opened in 1884. The name is derived from an ancient bar on Enfield Chase.

Potters Green, ha., pa. of Little Munden (q.v.), N. Herts., 5½ N. of Hertford.

Potters Hill, vil., pa. of Ecclesfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Sheffield.

Potters Marston, chap. and tp., pa. of Barwell (q.v.), S. Leics., 4½ N.E. of Hinckley; ac. 674. The church of St. Mary, a small plain building, contains memorial tablets to the Boothbys, whose seat was "The Hall," an early 17th-cent. building, now a farmhouse.

Potterspury, pa., tp., and vil., S.E. Northants., 5½ S.E. of Towcester; ac. of pa. 2,364, of tp. 1,281; soil drift, overlying limestone. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1848) is Dec.; in the south aisle is a brass to Agnes Ogle (d. 1616), and a monument to Cuthbert Ogle (d. 1633), and in the north aisle a monument to Gabriel Clarke (d. 1264). There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are small. Wakefield Lodge is a seat.

Potter's Street (1), vil. on the road from Harlow to Epping, pa. of and about 2 S. from Harlow (q.v.), W. Essex.

Potter's Street (2), ha., pa. of Theberton (q.v.), N.E. Suff., about 4 N.E. of Saxmundham.

Potterton, ha., pa. of Barwick-in-Elmet (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8 N.E. of Leeds.

Pottesgrove. [POTSGROVE.]

Potto, tp. and vil., pa. of Whorlton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5 S.W. of Stokesley; ac. 1,532. P. Hall is a seat.

Potton, pa. and ancient mkt. to. (S.), E. Beds., 4 N.E. of Biggleswade; ac. 2,526, of which 209 are woodland; soil chiefly gravel. The town is

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Potsgrove	Woburn Sands (4)	51	157
Potter Hanworth	Potter Hanworth (½)	125	430
Potter Heigham	Potter Heigham	141	475
Potterne, pa.	Devizes (2)	86	1661
Potterne, tp.	Devizes (2)	86	1185
Potter Newton	Leeds (2)	185	9269
Potters Bar	Potters Bar	13	1509
Potters Marston	Elmesthorpe (1½)	104	19
Potterspury, pa.	Castlethorpe (3½)	55	1588
Potterspury, tp.	Castlethorpe (3½)	55	1037
Potto	Potto	232	189
Potton	Potton	75	1907

pleasantly situated on the borders of Cambs., in a remarkably picturesque and healthy neighbourhood. The church of St. Mary (restored 1889) is Norm.; there is a Norm. font and remains of the stairs to the rood-loft; on the west wall of the porch are traces of an ancient brass, with a chalice in the centre. The Congregationalists, Baptists, and Wesleyans have places of worship. The cemetery has a mortuary chapel, used in common by all denominations. The market-house, situated in a large open square, has a small turret with a clock and two dials. The fairs are held in the market-place on the third Tuesday after January 12, and Easter Monday and Tuesday; there is also a statute fair for hiring servants about three weeks previous to Old Michaelmas Day (October 11). Market-gardening has developed to a great extent in this neighbourhood, which now supplies the London, Birmingham, and other large markets. Coprolites are found in the pa. in considerable quantities, and the workings form a useful source of employment, many thousands of tons being sent away yearly. There is a manufactory of shoes and leather leggings, and a large business is done in wool-stapling, parchment-making, and fellmongery. There are agricultural machine and engineering works (which also employ a numerous body of artisans) and a large steam corn-mill. The charities for distribution amount to over £200 yearly. The old Manor House, on the north side of the town, was demolished in 1870, and replaced by a fine mansion of stone.

POUL-A-PHOOKA.
(Photo. J. F. Church, Curragh Camp.)

Potton, Great, island, pa. of Great Wakering (q.v.), S. Essex, in the estuary of the river Roach.

Potton, Little, island, pa. of Little Wakering (q.v.), S. Essex. It lies a little to the south of Great Potton.

Pott Row, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Grimston (q.v.), N.W. Norf.

Pott Shrigley, tp. and vil., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 4½ N.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 1,706. The chapel was built 1491. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel (1861). The charities are small. Coal-mining and firebrick-making are carried on. Pott Hall and Shrigley Hall are seats.

Potwell, ha., pas. of Widley and Wymering (q.v.), S.E. Hants, 4 N.E. of Portsmouth.

Poughill (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Cornw., 1 N.E. of Bude; ac. 1,700. The church of St. Olave was originally Dec. and Perp., but was partly rebuilt in the beginning of the 16th cent.; the chancel retains a piscina and an aumbry, and there are good carved oak benches dating from about 1500. In the south aisle is a copy of the letter of thanks sent by Charles I. to his Cornish subjects, dated from Sudley Castle, February 10, 1643; there is also an emblazoned shield of the royal arms dated 1655. The font dates from the 12th cent. There are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. A house and land were granted to the church in 1525 by William Derrill, last abbot of Cleeve, Somerset. On Stamford Hill, in the south-east of the pa., the Parliamentary forces, commanded by Sir George Chudleigh, were signally defeated by the Royalists under Sir Ralph Hopton and Sir Beville Grenville, May 16, 1643; a cannon placed on the summit commemorates the event.

Poughill (2), pa. and vil., Mid Dev., 9 W.S.W. of Tiverton; ac. 1,663; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The Perp. church of St. Mary was repaired 1855–56. Charities amount to about £40 yearly.

Poulacurry, vil., pa. of Rathcooney (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 5 N.E. of Cork.

Poul-a-Phooka, falls on the Liffey, on the borders of cos. Wick. and Kildare, Ir., 4 S.W. of Blessington. The pool of the middle fall is that in which the "Phooka," or fairy horse of Irish folk-tale, is supposed to dwell. According to Hall, "his great object is to obtain a rider, and then he is in all his most malignant glory. Headlong he dashes through brier and brake, through flood and fell, over mountain, valley, moor, or river indiscriminately; up or down precipice is alike to him, provided he gratifies the malevolence that seems to inspire him." A charming view is obtained from the bridge.

Poulner, ha., pa. of and about 1 N.E. from Ringwood (q.v.), S.W. Hants, on the road to Southampton. The Baptists have a chapel.

Poulshot, pa. and vil., Mid Wilts., 6 S.E. of Melksham; ac. 1,589; soil rich loam, overlying clay and gravel. The houses composing the vil. stand in irregular detached groups, interspersed with trees, on the edge of an extensive green of an oblong form. The church of St. Peter, 1 S. of the vil., dates from the 13th cent.; the chancel (restored 1889) is the earliest portion, but the east window was removed in the 15th cent. and the present square-headed one inserted; the rood staircase is open to the north aisle, but the upper part is blocked and the screen is gone; the porch is Perp. and retains its original timber roof, and the stoup remains; the piscina and priest's door are coëval with the walls in which they occur, and the pulpit is Jacobean and of oak.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pott Shrigley	Adlington (2)	170	354
Poughill (1)	Holsworthy (9)	218	364
Poughill (2)	Crediton (7)	179	248

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Poulacurry	Cork (5)	166	140
Poulshot	Devizes (7)	86	315

Poultney, vil., pa. of Misterton (q.v.), S. Leics., 2 E. of Lutterworth.

Poulton (1), pa. and vil. among the hills, E. Kent, 3 W. of Dover; ac. 830; soil loamy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary has long since disappeared, and a stone with an inscription has been erected on its site. Bradsole Abbey, a religious house of the order of White Canons, dedicated to SS. Mary and Rhadegund, stood in a retired situation on a hill about 3 W. of Dover. It was founded about 1193 by one of the Boswells, and was at one time a monastery of great extent and importance, and its abbots were summoned to Parliament at the latter end of the reign of Edward I. The ruins —consisting of the western part of the church, the abbot's house, and the gatehouse—have been converted into farm-buildings.

Poulton (2), pa. and vil., S.E. Glouces., 5 N. of Cricklade; ac. 1,600; soil stonebrash, overlying limestone. The old church of St. Michael was pulled down in 1875, and a new church built on the same site in E. Eng. style. There are stone and slate quarries in the neighbourhood.

Poulton (3), tp. on the Dee, pa. of Pulford (q.v.), from which place it is ¾ E., S.W. Chesh.; ac. 1,391. The Cistercian monastery founded here in 1158 was removed in 1214 to Leek.

Poulton (4), ha., pa. of Mildenhall (q.v.), E. Wilts., 10 W. of Hungerford.

Poulton, Bare, and Torrisholme, tp., pa. of and about 4 N.W. from Lancaster (q.v.), W. Lancs.; ac. 1,725 and 4,363 tidal water and foreshore. It contains Morecambe (q.v.).

Poulton-cum-Spittle, tp., pa. of Bebington (q.v.), W. Chesh., 5 S. of Birkenhead; ac. 1,136.

Poulton-le-Fylde, pa., tp., and town, near the estuary of the Wyre, W. Lancs., 5 S.E. of Fleetwood; ac. of pa. 16,691, of tp. 914; soil clayey, overlying stiff clay. The to. was formerly a port in connection with the river Wyre. About a mile distant is an iron bridge, called "Shard Bridge," supported by pillars and crossing the river to Hambleton. The church of St. Chad is in Norm. style, and stands on the site of an ancient chapel erected at the close of the 11th cent., and taken down in 1751, with the exception of the tower (rebuilt in the time of Charles I.). In the baptistery is a very handsome screen of carved oak, dated 1636; and at the back of the vicarial pew is an oak panel with symbolical carving, probably dating from about 1500. The ancient font, removed in 1871, is now in the vicar's garden; in the north aisle is a coat-of-arms of the Brockholes, and in the chancel are slabs in memory of the Fleetwood and Hesketh families, dating from 1697. The Catholic chapel of St. John the Evangelist is an edifice of brick, with priest's residence attached. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels, and Catholic and Congregational burial-grounds attached to their respective places of worship. The cemetery dates from 1883. The Market Cross, raised on steps, in the market-place, with the stocks and rogues' post, still remain and are in good preservation. Fairs are held on February 3, April 13, and November 3; the latter for sheep and cattle.

Whipping-Post, Stocks, and Market Cross, Poulton-le-Fylde.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Poulton-le-Sands. [Morecambe.]

Poulton-with-Fearnhead, tp., pa. of Warrington (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 2½ E. by N. of Warrington, on the road to Bolton; ac. 1,296 and 24 water. Here is a Wesleyan chapel.

Poulton-with-Seacombe, tp. on Wallasey Pool, pa. of Wallasey (q.v.), W. Chesh., 3½ N. of Birkenhead; ac. 3,466. St. Luke's mission church is attached to St. Hilary's, Wallasey.

Poundbury Hill, an ancient encampment, ½ W. of Dorchester, S. Dors., with immense earthworks thrown up, nearly square, the top of which comprises nearly 20 acres. Several stone coffins and other antiquities have been found at different times.

Pounden, tp. and ha., pa. of Twyford (q.v.), N. Bucks., about 8 S.W. of Buckingham; ac. 950.

Pound Hill, ha., pa. of Worth (q.v.), N. Sussex, about 2 E.N.E. of Crawley.

Poundland, vil. on the Stinchar, pa. of Colmonell (q.v.), S. Ayrs., Sc., 8 S. of Girvan.

Poundsford, ha., pa. of Pitminster (q.v.), S. Somerset, 3 S. of Taunton.

Poundsgate, ha., pa. of Widdecombe-in-the-Moor (q.v.), S. Dev., 2 N.W. of Ashburton.

Poundstock, pa. and vil. on Bude Bay, N. Cornw., 5 S.W. of Stratton; ac. 4,814; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Neot is chiefly Norm.; there are remains of a rood-screen with painted figures, some carved bench ends, a Norm. font, and some brasses, one being to the Trebarfoote family (1616–30). There are Free Methodist and Bible Christian chapels.

Povington, ha., pa. of Tyneham (q.v.), S.E. Dors., 5 S.W. of Wareham.

Pow, any one of numerous sluggish rivulets or stagnant burns in marshy or alluvial districts of Scotland. The name is an Anglicised or softened form of the Gaelic Poll and the Cymric Pwl, signi-

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Poulton (1)	Dover (3)	57	27
Poulton (2)	Fairford (3)	89	406
Poulton (3)	Rossett (3)	206	170
Poulton, Bare, and T.	Morecambe	234	6476
Poulton-cum-Spittle	Bromborough (1)	189	489
Poulton-le-Fylde, pa.	Poulton	224	15605

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Poulton-le-Fylde, tp.	Poulton	224	1412
Poulton-w.-Fearnh'd.	Warrington (2½)	182	1083
Poulton-w.-Se'combe	Birkenhead (3½)	194	14839
Pounden	Pounden	61	74
Poundstock	Holsworthy (11½)	218	491

pool, a ditch, a stagnating stream, or place;" and it correctly describes nearly reams to which it is applied. (Groome.) rham, pa. and vil. on the Exe, S.W. Dev., keter; ac. 1,947; soil loam and red sand. ch of St. Clement is a Perp. building 1861); in the south aisle there is a re- effigy, by some said to be Isabella de Countess of Devon (d. 1292), but more Elizabeth, fifth daughter of Edward I., of Humphrey de Bohun (d. 1316); there al other monuments, some stained glass, k screen. P. Castle, the seat of the Earl , was built by Sir Philip Courtenay in the t.; during the Civil War it was held for , but was captured in 1646 by Colonel d; during late years ngs have been much ed; it contains some pictures; in the park ng, The Belvedere 1777), commands a view of the sur- country and the Channel.

Head, cape, S. co. about 3 E. of Cork court, pa. on the Rathdown bar., N. Ir., about 3 S.W. of 18,938. Amid the nery of the Wicklow s is P. Castle, the iscount Powerscourt, of the representa- s of Ireland; it is a structure of granite, the 18th cent., with s, and with towers at s. It stands on an with a background tains, and is sur- by a deer-park of ural beauty and great The estate is enriched me venerable oak- d contains the cele- aterfall of P., within a kind of amphi- f hills wooded to their summits. This has a fall of nearly 300 ft.; ordinarily thin stream of water flows, but after ins it is grandly beautiful. During the of 1798 the house was guarded by the town, pa. on the Barrow, Gowran bar., lk., Ir., 3½ S.E. of Gowran station; ac. Mount Loftus, on an elevated position com- fine views, is a seat.

POWERSCOURT WATERFALL.
(Photo. Payne Jennings, Ashtead.)

tock. [POORSTOCK.]

t, or Queensberry, ha. on Solway Firth, ummertrees (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc., about Annan.

, pa. and vil. on the Teme, W. Worcs., 6 N.E. of Malvern; ac. 5,194; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of SS. Peter and Lawrence is E. Eng. and later work, the chancel being E. Eng., the aisle walls Dec., and the tower Perp. There are several charities, amounting to about £90 per annum. Slaughter's Court is a college for the blind sons of gentlemen, removed here from the Commandery, Worcester; there are several scholarships, and the library contains a valuable collection of books for the blind. At Callow End there is a chapel-of-ease; and the Congregationalists have a chapel. At Stanbrook is a convent of nuns of the order of St. Benedict. At P. in 1642 the Royalists met the Parliamentary troops, and again in 1651 there was a fight at P. Bridge.

Powis Castle. [WELSHPOOL.]

Powkesley, another form of Puxley (q.v.).

Powmillion Burn, stream, pas. of East Kilbride, Glassford, and Avondale (q.v.), N.W. Lanarks., Sc., runs 7 miles, chiefly in a S.E. direction, flowing through Strathaven, 1 E. by S. of which it enters Avon Water.

Pownall Fee, tp. occupying the north-west part of the pa. of Wilmslow (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.; ac. 3,557.

Powrie, estate with ruined castle, pa. of Murroes (q.v.), S. Forfs., Sc., 3 N.E. of Dundee.

Powtrail Water. [POTRAIL WATER.]

Powys Castle. [WELSHPOOL.]

Poxwell, pa., S. Dors., 6 S.E. of Dorchester; ac. 834; soil variable. The former church of St. John was pulled down, and the present erected in 1868. in E. Eng. style. There is a prehistoric circle of stones on the downs.

Poyle, ha., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Stanwell (q.v.), W. Middx. The Congregationalists have a chapel. Here are asbestos works.

Poynings, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 7 N.W. of Brighton; ac. 1,643; soil chalky, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1890) is chiefly Perp. There is a Baptist chapel. Brewing is carried on. [DEVIL'S DYKE (1).]

Poyntington, or Pointington, pa., S.E. Somerset, at the source of the Yeo, 8 N.E. of Yeovil; ac. 1,020; soil rich loam, overlying marl and rock. The church of All Saints is Dec., with some remains of Norm. work and some Perp. additions. It stands on an eminence. Near the chancel-arch

ACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
m	Starcross (1¼)	198	203
rt	Bray (4)	13	1811
rn	Gowran (3½)	75	722
	Worcester (3)	120	2793

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pownall Fee	Wilmslow (2)	177	3061
Poxwell	Moreton (5)	129	82
Poynings	The Dyke (1)	55	305
Poyntington	Sherborne (2½)	118	135

is a small squint; the north door and the font are Norm.; some of the windows in the nave and those at the east end of the aisle are Perp. The nave has a wagon roof, divided into panels by moulded ribs, with carved bosses at the intersections. In the south wall of the aisle is a piscina, with trefoil head and hood-moulding, and there is a smaller one in the face of the eastern respond of the arcade; both these are Dec.; in the south aisle is an arched recess, with cinquefoil head and hood-moulding, and probably at some time containing the mutilated recumbent figure of a knight in armour, now placed under the nave arch nearest the chancel, and conjectured to represent a member of the Cheney family; in the aisle is also a mural monument of alabaster, with kneeling effigies of a knight in armour and lady; behind the lady is the figure of a daughter; below is an inscription to George Tilly, Esq., and Mary his wife; above are three shields of arms; there are also two memorials in panels to Thomas Mallet (d. 1665), and to Baldwin Malet (d. 1646), who is believed to have been killed in an engagement near this place during the Civil War. The old Manor House, formerly the residence of the Malets, has some interesting remains of the 15th cent., and is a fine specimen of domestic architecture; it is now a farmhouse. There is another ancient building near the churchyard affording a good example of 14th-cent. domestic architecture. The charities amount to £15.

Poynton, eccl. pa., tp. (Poynton-with-Worth), and vil., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 4½ S.S.E. of Stockport; ac. 2,966. The church of St. George, in place of the old chapel of St. Mary, was built in 1787, and rebuilt in 1859; it is in E. Eng. style, with a tower and spire added in 1885; it contains a marble reredos and some stained glass. There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to £50 a year. Coal-mining is carried on.

Poynton-with-Worth. [POYNTON.]

Poyntzfield, ha., pa. of Resolis (q.v.), S.E. Ross and Crom., Sc., about 3 S. of Invergordon. P. House is a seat.

Poyston, ha., pa. of Rudbaxton (q.v.), Mid Pembs., 3 N. of Haverfordwest. General Picton (1758–1815) was a native.

Poystreet Green, ha., pa. of and ½ S. from Rattlesden (q.v.), N.W. Suff.

Pradannack. [PREDANNACK.]

Prawle, fishing vil., pa. of Chivelstone (q.v.), S. Dev., 7 S.E. of Kingsbridge. The Bible Christians have a chapel. There is a coastguard station. P. Point, a headland, bounding on the east the entrance to the Salcombe estuary, is the most southerly part of Devon. It is composed of gneiss rock broken into crags, and pierced at its extremity by a single archway, through which a boat can sail in calm weather.

Praze, or Praze-an-Beeble, vil., pa. of Crowan (q.v.), N.W. Cornw., 3 S.W. of Camborne. The Wesleyans have a chapel. A yearly cattle and pleasure fair is held in July, and a feast on the nearest Sunday to Candlemas.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Poynton	Poynton	172	2274
Preban	Tinahely (4)	57	405
Prees	Prees	176	2841
Preesall-with-H.	Fleetwood (2)	230	896

Preban, pa. on the Derry, South Ballinac S. co. Wick., Ir., 4 N.W. of Tinahely; ac There are Protestant and Catholic churcl a parochial school.

Precelly Mountains. [PRESELEY MOUNT

Precipice Walk. [MOEL CYNWCH.]

Predannack, ha., pa. of and 2 S. from (q.v.), W. Cornw. Here, near the site of an chapel, is a round-headed monolith, about 5 f with a plain carved Latin cross on each sid P. Downs are some small encampments, named "robins," and some barrows. P. Po about 4 N.W. of The Lizard.

PREDANNACK POINT.

Preen Church. [CHURCH PREEN.]

Prees, pa. and vil., N. Salop, 5 S. of White ac. 13,743; soil lias, limestone, marl, and stone. The church of St. Chad (restore and 1884) is a 14th-cent. building whic partly rebuilt in the 17th cent.; in the c is a monument to Sir John Hill (1824). are Congregational and Primitive Me chapels. The charities amount to near per annum. At P. Hall General Hill wa in 1772.

Preesall-with-Hackinsall, tp. on the Wy of Lancaster (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., 7 N. of P le-Fylde; ac. 3,393. There is a Congreg chapel here and a cemetery.

Preese, ha., pa. of and 4 N.W. from Ki (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Preeshenlle, vil., pa. of Whittington (q.v.) Salop, 2 N.E. of Oswestry.

Premnay, pa., E. Abers., Sc.; ac. 5,431; soil ally dry and productive, on a gravelly subsoil pa. church is situated about 2 S.E. of Insch r station.

Prendergast, pa. on the north bank Cleddau, Mid Pembs., principally within t of Haverfordwest (q.v.); ac. 1,104; soil overlying rock. The church of St. Davi rebuilt 1868, in E. Eng. style. The pa. its name from the family to which it fo belonged.

Prendwick, tp., pa. of Alnham (q.v.), from it lies 1 N., Mid Northumb.; ac. 1,414.

Prenton, tp., pa. of Woodchurch (q.v.), Chesh., 3 W. of Birkenhead railway st ac. 640.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.
Premnay	Insch (2)	555
Prendergast	Haverfordwest (1)	264
Prendwick	Rothbury (8½)	312
Prenton	Birkenhead (3)	194

Prescot, pa., tp., U. and mkt. to. (T. & S.), and head of petty sess. div., S.W. Lancs., 8 E. of Liverpool; ac. of pa. 34,299, of tp. 270. The church of St. Mary, occupying the site of the ancient church, is a spacious stone edifice of various periods, and was enlarged in 1610; the black oak benches of the chancel date from 1636; the communion rails are also of black oak and of the same date. Against the north wall there is a quaint upright effigy of Sir John Ogle, one of the captains who defended Lathom House in 1644 against the Parliamentary forces under Sir Thomas Fairfax, and there is a fine mural monument by R. Westmacott, Jun., to William Atherton, Esq. (d. 1803). The Catholic chapel of Our Lady Immaculate and St. Joseph is a fine Gothic stone building, that of St. Mary Help of Christians is a plain brick building. There are also Wesleyan, Congregational, and Free Gospel chapels. The grammar school has an income of about £180 a year. There is a public library incorporated with the reading and recreation rooms. The charities are considerable, and include several almshouses. From the time of the first introduction of watches into England this town and its neighbourhood have been famous for the manufacture of watch movements, hour and minute hands, and every description of watch-making tools, and it still supplies all the watch-making centres in England with these specialities; watch and clock files of excellent quality are made here. There is also a large factory for the manufacture of watches. A fair is held on the festival of Corpus Christi, continuing until the following Saturday; fairs for cattle are also held on Shrove Tuesday and continued fortnightly until the first Tuesday in May.

Prescott (1), pa., Mid Gloucs., 5 N.E. of Cheltenham; ac. 482; soil clay and stonebrash, overlying clay. P. House is a seat.

Prescott (2), tp., pa. of Cropredy (q.v.), N. Oxon, on the border of Northants, 4½ N.E. of Banbury; ac. 555.

Prescott (3), ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Culmstock (q.v.), N.E. Dev.

Preseley (or Precelly) Mountains, or Mynydd Preseley, mountain range, N.E. Pembs., 5 S. of Newport. The range extends about 10 E. by N. and W. by S., consisting mainly of a continuous chain with some outlying members. The principal summit, Cwm Cerwyn (q.v.), 1,754 ft., is situated near its central point. Of the other heights, the most noteworthy are Moel Trigarn and Carn Menyn on the east, and Bwlch Gwynt and Foel Eryr on the west, all of which command magnificent views, including Pembs., parts of Cardigs. and Carmarths., and the Irish Sea, with the west coast of Ireland on the horizon. The character of the scenery is very desolate. The road from Haverfordwest to Cardigan crosses the ridge.

Preshome, pl., pa. of Rathven (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., 3 S.S.E. of Portgordon. There is a Catholic church.

Preshute, pa., E. Wilts., adjoining Marlborough on the west; ac. 4,479; soil clayey loam, overlying chalk. There is no vil. of P.; the pa. is simply a wide district surrounding Marlborough. The church of St. George (rebuilt 1854) is in E. Eng. style, and stands in a field about 1 mile from the Market Place, Marlborough. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel, built in 1860.

Pressmenan Loch, lake, pa. of Stenton (q.v.), E. Haddings., Sc., 4½ S.W. by S. of Dunbar. The lake winds for about 2 miles between undulating wooded hills, which descend abruptly to the water-side; it continually widens and contracts, the mean distance from bank to bank being less than ¼ mile. It was formed about 1819 by constructing a dam over the deep ravine in which it is situated. The scenery on its banks is very attractive. It is well stocked with trout.

Presson, ha., pa. of Carham (q.v.), N.W. Northumb., 12 N.W. of Wooler.

Prestacott, ha., pa. of Launcells (q.v.), N.E. Cornw., 7 N.W. of Holsworthy.

Prestatyn, eccl. pa. and small mkt. to. (S.), pa. of Meliden (q.v.), N.W. Flints., 4 E. by N. of Rhyl. Being situated within a mile of the coast, along which stretches a fine sandy beach, P. is a favourite summer resort. It is an ancient place containing some vestiges of a castle said to have been built by the Welsh before the time of Henry II., in whose reign it was captured by the English. It stood on high ground bearing the name of Plas Prestatyn, and was surrounded by a moat, of which there are also traces. The castle was held successively by the Banasters, the Crevecœurs, and the Conways of Bodrhyddan. P. contains Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. Many of the inhabitants are engaged in the Talar Goch leadmine.

Prestbury (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the Bollin, E. Chesh., 9½ S. of Stockport; ac. of pa. 68,412, of tp. 746; soil sandy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1879–86) is of E. Eng. and later architecture; it contains several stained windows, a brass to Edward Newton of Butley (d. 1589), father of Thomas Newton the schoolmaster and physician, and some mural monuments; during the restoration fragments of a Saxon cross were uncovered; on the south side of the churchyard is an interesting Norm. chapel. There are some small charities. Fairs are held on April 28 and October 22 for cattle.

Prestbury (2), pa. and vil., Mid Gloucs., 8 S.E. of Tewkesbury; ac. 3,022; soil variable, subsoil chiefly gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is E. Eng. and Perp.; all the windows are stained, and there are memorials to William Baghot (d. 1725), Christopher Capel (d. 1740), and others. There is a Congregational chapel, a Working Men's Institute, and a cottage almshouse. The pa. has several charities.

Prestecott, ha., pa. of Belstone (q.v.), W. Dev., 2 S.E. of Okehampton.

Presteigne, pa., tp., co. and mkt. to. (S.), head of Co. Co. dis. and petty sess. div., E. Radnors., 5 N.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Prescot, pa.	Prescot	195	128025
Prescot, tp.	Prescot	195	5839
Prescot, to.	Prescot	195	6745
Prescott (1)	Cleeve (3)	172	60
Prescott (2)	Banbury (4)	77	25
Preshute	Marlborough	76	1311

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Prestatyn	Prestatyn	205	647
Prestbury (1), pa.	Prestbury	168	54185
Prestbury (1), tp.	Prestbury	168	311
Prestbury (2)	Gloucester (2)	114	1430
Presteigne, pa.	Presteigne	173	1658
Presteigne, tp.	Presteigne	173	1360

by E. of Kington; ac. 2,994. P. is pleasantly situated in the west part of a rich vale enclosed by hills, some of which are well wooded. The pa. extends into Herefords., which is here separated from Radnors. by the river Lugg, crossed at P. by a three-arched bridge. P. is a picturesque little town, displaying a wonderful variety of architecture in its small quaint houses. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1890) is Perp.; it has a low side window, and contains some tapestry depicting Christ's entry into Jerusalem, presented by Richard Owen in 1737; there are several memorials of the Owens, Prices, and other families. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The Shire Hall (1829) comprises a centre with a façade of the Tuscan order and two wings ornamented with Tuscan columns. The Market Hall (1865) has assembly and reading rooms on its upper floor. The grammar school was founded and endowed in 1525. The "Radnorshire Arms" was erected in 1616, but recent additions have greatly altered its character. On the west side of the town is a low hill called The Warden, planted and laid out in trees, which commands fine views. Offa's Dyke passes near the town on the west, and Wapley Hill (q.v.) is in its south-east vicinity. The Lugg here abounds in trout and grayling. Malting and brewing are carried on, and there is a trade in timber. P. does not figure conspicuously in history, but Charles I. is said to have spent two nights in the town whilst retreating into Montgoms. There are many pleasant seats in the neighbourhood. Prior to 1885 P. was one of the Radnor dis. of parl. bors., returning between them a single member.

PRESTON, LOOKING EAST.
(Photo. Arthur Winter, Preston.)

Presthope, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 3 S.W. from Much Wenlock (q.v.), Mid Salop.

Prestleigh, ha., pa. of Doulting (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 2 S.E. of Shepton Mallet.

Preston (1), parl., mun., and co. bor., pa. and tp., U. and mkt. to. (W. & S.), and head of Co. Co. dis., on the north bank of the Ribble, W. Lancs., 11 W. of Blackburn; ac. of pa. 15,997, of tp. 2,127. No less than fifteen royal charters have been conferred on P., the first being granted by Henry II. and the last by George IV. The town and neighbourhood, situated on an eminence of tableland, with a gentle declivity on every side from the centre, are considered particularly healthy. The streets are well paved, and the more important are lighted by electricity, and the town is well s with good water. In the immediate local many beautiful walks and some romantic s The name, said to be "Priests' Town," of Preston is a corruption, is believed to hav taken from its having been the residence of Saxon priests. In the reign of Edward I town was partly burnt by the Scots. King Ja was entertained by the Corporation in the Hall when on his way to Hoghton Towers. the Civil War P. favoured the Parliamentary by whom it was taken in 1643, when many Ro were slain. In 1715 the adherents of th Pretender marched hither from Lancaster, his standard at the Market Cross, and ther claimed him King of England; but the Sc army was betrayed by the treachery of G Forster, and 1,400 men surrendered at disc In 1745 the Young Pretender marched throu town at the head of his army, and was als claimed ki the market on Nov. 25 the follo Dec. 12 he passed throu his retreat wards. A the celebr natives of P may be ment Lady Ha (notorious f connection Lord Nelson Sir Richard wright, th ventor of the ning machin was origina barber (born Dec. 23, also Mme. mens - She ton, the known vo One of the most ancient and splendid fes in the kingdom is held here every twenty under the designation of "The Preston G The first recorded celebration was that of the festival being held on a day after the of the Decollation of St. John the Baptist 29). The church of St. John (rebuilt in on the site of the old church) is in Dec. the nave and clerestory windows contain medi representing subjects from Scripture, togethe the armorial shields of sovereigns who have Preston, mayors, ecclesiastical functionaries There are several eccl. pas. with modern chu for the most part in Gothic style. The bor. large Roman Catholic population; there are Roman churches, several convents with schc connection therewith, and many charitable in tions. The various Nonconformist bodies places of worship, and there is a meeting-hou the Friends. The General Cemetery was o in 1855, and has chapels in E. Eng. sty the Established Church, Roman Catholic

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Preston (1), parl. bor.	Preston	209	111685
Preston (1), c. & m. bor.	Preston	209	107573
Preston (1), pa.	Preston	209
Preston (1), tp.	Preston	209

Protestant Dissenters. The Public Hall, formerly known as the Corn Exchange and the Market House, is a substantial rectangular brick building; it comprises a large crush-room and a great hall 145 ft. by 95 ft., including the orchestra. In the basement are large storage-rooms. The corn market is held here weekly on Saturday, and the hall is used for lectures, public meetings, balls, and concerts; the front of the building is devoted on market-days to the sale of eggs, poultry, etc. The Town Hall (1867), from designs by the late Sir George Gilbert Scott, R.A., is in the Gothic style of the 14th cent., with octagonal turrets at the angles and a tower and spire. It includes a great hall or concert-room, 82 ft. by 54 ft.; on the south side is a gallery containing the pictures left by the late R. Newsham, Esq., who bequeathed to the Corporation in 1883 a large part of his picture gallery and china, worth £60,000, in trust for the new Art Gallery. The County Offices and County Police Buildings (1878), in Fishergate, are in Elizabethan style. In this building is the County Hall, where meetings of the Lancashire County Council are held. The Court House, in Stanley Street, where quarter sessions are held, dates from 1829; the Borough Magistrates' Court and Police Station, in Italian style, from 1858; and the Prison from 1789. The Harris Free Public Library and Museum (1893) is a stone building of the Ionic order; it also contains the library founded by Dr. Shepherd in the 18th cent. The Harris Institute occupies a spacious building in Classic style; science, art, and technical classes are held in connection with the Science and Art Department and the City and Guilds of London Institute. The grammar school, Cross Street (1841), originally erected in 1666 at Syke Hill, now occupies a range of buildings in Tudor style; the Mayor and Corporation are the governors, and there are several scholarships. P. has a Conservative Club and a Reform Club, and working men's clubs. There are two theatres—one built in 1802, the other in 1882. The Public Baths and Washhouses (1850) are of brick with stone dressings. The Royal Infirmary (1869) is in Italian style. There is also an institution for deaf and dumb children, and an industrial institution for the blind. The charities amount to £15 a year, distributed in bread and money. In 1894 a sum of £40,000 was left to local charities. P. is the depôt of the 47th Regimental District (47th and 81st regiments of foot). Few towns in England are better provided with public parks and recreation-grounds. The Avenham and Miller parks are situated on a sloping ground south of the town, on the north bank of the Ribble. In the latter is a marble statue of the 14th Earl of Derby (1799–1869). Moor Park (110 ac.) is on the north of the town; The Marsh (22 ac.) on the west. The Deepdale Inclosure is open to the public as a promenade. Here is an observatory. The importance of the town as a port is not great, although it has a considerable coasting trade, and the navigation of the Ribble has been much improved. The construction of spacious new docks, together with the deepening of the channel of the Ribble from the quays to its outlet into the Irish Sea, a distance of about 12 miles, was begun in 1884. Vessels of 17 ft. draught can now come up to the dock, to which there are sidings from the Lancashire and Yorkshire and London and North Western railways, with facilities for loading coal. During the earliest years of the cotton trade P. was one of the principal seats of its manufacture, and is remarkable as the birthplace, in 1732, of Richard Arkwright, the inventor of spinning by rollers. It has rapidly progressed as a manufacturing town, and is at the present time one of the principal seats of cotton-spinning in the shire. There are several iron and brass foundries, biscuit bakeries, and engine and steam boiler, roller, mule and spindle works, and a shipbuilding yard.

Preston (2), pa. and pretty vil. on Weymouth Bay, S. Dors., 2½ w. from Broadway, the nearest railway station, and 2½ N.E. of Weymouth, on the road to Wareham; ac. 2,609 and 70 water; soil heavy clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is Perp., and has an antique font. The Wesleyans have a chapel. In a meadow by the stream below the church are the remains of a Roman villa, consisting of the foundations of the walls of two small rooms, and of a well-preserved tessellated pavement, which originally occupied an area 18 ft. square. The materials used are small cubes of hard chalk, burnt earth or brick, and umber. The pattern consists of a central ornament, slightly resembling a Tudor rose, in a square, on each side of which run two guilloches or cables, with a rectilinear figure between them; and on the south side there is, besides, a row of heart-shaped figures. It was discovered in 1842, and permanently uncovered for inspection at the congress at Weymouth of the British Archæological Association in 1871.

Preston (3), pa. and vil., S. Rutld., 4 S. of Oakham; ac. 1,207; soil and subsoil variable. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is of mixed architecture; in the chancel are a sedile and piscina, several tablets to the Belgrave and Shield families, some stained glass, and a handsome reredos. In the pa. chest are some interesting papers of the time of the Civil War and Commonwealth. There are some small charities, and a Congregational chapel. P. Hall is an Elizabethan building.

Preston (4), pa., W. Gloucs., 3 S.W. of Ledbury; ac. 884; soil loam, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1849 and 1885) is chiefly Norm. Over the Norm. doorway, within the porch, is a relief of the Agnus Dei; in the south aisle are the remains of some old stained glass depicting the Crucifixion. P. Court is a 17th-cent. building.

Preston (5), pa. and vil., S.E. Gloucs., 6 N.W. of Cricklade; ac. 2,042; soil chiefly stone-brash, oolite, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (partially restored 1862) is chiefly E. Eng. In the chancel are sedilia, a piscina, and squints; the church plate principally dates from 1690, and there is a fine chalice dated 1717. P. House is a seat.

Preston (6), pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 6 N.E. of Hull; ac. of pa. 5,809, of tp. 5,004; soil warp, clay, marl, and gravel, overlying clay. The church of All Saints was rebuilt in 1870, in mixed style,

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Preston (2)	Weymouth (3)	140	678
Preston (3)	Manton (2)	90	286
Preston (4)	Ledbury	133	76

Place.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Preston (5)	Cirencester (1½)	93	191
Preston (6), pa.	Hedon (1)	204	1064
Preston (6), tp.	Hedon (1)	204	948

and restored in 1882. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are several charities.

Preston (7), pa. and vil. on the Brett, S.W. Suff., 9 N.E. of Sudbury; ac. 1,931; soil principally clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1868) is of the Trans. period; there is an altar-tomb in the north porch. The yearly value of the charities is £8 10s.

Preston (8). pa. forming part of the bor. of Brighton (q.v.), S. Sussex; ac. 1,248. The church of St. Peter is principally E. Eng. There is a Congregational chapel (1878). The Brighton Cavalry Barracks and the Brighton Waterworks are here.

Preston (9). [PRESTON-NEXT-FAVERSHAM; PRESTON-NEXT-WINGHAM.]

Preston (10). [PRESTON-PLUCKNETT.]

Preston (11). tp. and vil., pa. of Tynemouth (q.v.), S.E. Northumb., 1 N. of North Shields; ac. 777.

Preston (12), tp., pa. of Ellingham (q.v.), N. Northumb., 8 N. of Alnwick; ac. 454. P. Tower, on a hill commanding fine prospects, is a seat.

Preston (13). or Preston-under-Scar, tp. and vil., pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Wensley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 2,658. Lead and coal are obtained.

Preston (14), ha.. pa. of Kingsteignton (q.v.), S. Dev., 3 N.N.E. of Newton Abbot.

Preston (15), ha.. pa. of Paignton (q.v.), S. Dev., 5 E. of Totnes.

Preston (16). ha.. pa. of and 3 S. from Hitchin (q.v.), N. Herts. The site of P. Castle is occupied by Castle Farm; there is a very large ancient well.

Preston (17). ha., pa. of and 2 E.N.E. from Harrow (q.v.), N.W. Middx. John Lyon (d. 1592), the founder of the Harrow school, resided here; his house, though a great deal altered by repairs, still exists.

Preston (18). ha.. pa. of Stogumber (q.v.), W. Somerset, 4 S.E. of Watchet.

Preston (19). ti., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Lyneham (q.v.), N. Wilts.

Preston (20), vil., pa. of Prestonpans (q.v.), N. Haddings., Sc.; 1½ N.W. of Tranent. At the end of the vil. is the ancient cross, and near are the ruins of a tower, once the residence of the Hamiltons.

Preston (21), or Preston Mill, vil., pa. of Kirkbean (q.v.), S.E. Kirkcuds., Sc., 14 S. of Dumfries. The ancient market cross remains.

Preston (22), ha., pa. of Cranston (q.v.), E. Edins., Sc., about 4 E. of Dalkeith. P. Hall is a seat.

Preston (23). [BUNKLE AND PRESTON.]

Preston Bagot (in Domesday "Prestetone"), pa. and vil., S. Warws., 7 N. of Stratford-on-Avon; ac. 1,302; soil loamy, overlying sand, marl, and gravel. The Birmingham Canal runs through the pa. The church of All Saints, originally Norm. (restored 1878–79), was enlarged in the 14th cent., when many of the windows were inserted; in the chancel are monuments to successive rectors from 1639 to 1839.

Preston Bisset, pa. and vil., N.W. Bucks., 8½ N.E. of Bicester; ac. 1,484; soil clay and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1863–73) was built about 1340, and is an interesting example of Dec. work, the windows being especially fine; there are sedilia and a piscina in the chancel, and piscinæ in the aisles; the clerestory windows are unusual in shape; in the chancel are brasses to Ann Major and her children (1613), and memorials to Edmund Major (1685), Richard Banks (1679), and John Ford (1684), and an ancient slab probably of the time of Edward I. In the churchyard is an altar-tomb to Daniel Whitby (1674). During the restoration remains of a previous Norm. church were discovered. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel (1853). The charities are small.

Preston Brockhurst, ha., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Moreton Corbet (q.v.), N. Salop.

Preston Brook, vil. with railway station, pa. of Runcorn (q.v.), N.W. Chesh., 6 S.W. of Warrington.

Preston Candover, pa. and vil., N. Hants, 8 S. of Basingstoke; ac. 3,413; soil chalky loam and gravel, overlying chalk and gravel. The old church of St. Mary has been pulled down with the exception of the chancel, which is used as a mortuary chapel, and contains a brass (with a figure of a lady in the fashion of Queen Elizabeth) to Catherine Dabrigecourt, and a marble tablet to the Hall family. The present church is in Trans. style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. The school has a small endowment. P. House and North Hall are seats.

Preston Capes, pa. and vil., S.W. Northants, 5½ S. of Daventry; ac. 2,701; soil variable, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Peter (restored 1853) is chiefly Perp.; in the porch is a holy-water stoup. There are several charities, and the school has a small endowment. The moat and portions of an entrenchment belonging to the castle can still be seen. Fawsley Park is a seat.

Preston Crawford. [TARBANT CRAWFORD.]

Preston Crowmarsh, ha., pa. of Benson (q.v.), S. Oxon, about 2 N.E. of Wallingford.

Preston Deanery, pa., S.E. Northants, 3½ S.E. of Northampton; ac. 1,470; soil marl and clay, overlying stone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Dec.

Preston, East, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 5 W. of Worthing; ac. 612; soil loam, overlying marl. The church of St. Mary is a Perp. building. There is a small charity.

Prestongrange, estate with seat of same name, pa. of and about 1 S.W. from Prestonpans (q.v.), W. Haddings., Sc. The estate was bequeathed to Newbattle Abbey in the 12th cent. Part of the mansion dates from the 16th cent.

Preston, Great and Little, tp., pa. of Kippax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Pontefract; ac. 996. There is a mission-room here.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Preston (7)	Lavenham (2)	67	318
Preston (8)	Preston Park	49	13316
Preston (11)	North Shields (1)	279	2178
Preston (12)	Chathill (1)	317	62
Preston (13)	Layburn (2)	236	298
Preston Bagot	Claverdon (2)	114	176

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Preston Bisset	Buckingham (4)	60	311
Preston Candover	Micheldever (3)	58	435
Preston Capes	Weedon (5)	70	205
Preston Deanery	Northampton (3½)	66	107
Preston, East	Angmering (½)	63	414
Preston, Gt. & Little	Woodlesford (2)	190	1551

Preston Gubbals, pa. and vil., Mid Salop, 4½ N. of Shrewsbury; ac. 2,344; soil mixed, overlying stone. The church of St. Martin (rebuilt 1866) is in Dec. and Perp. style. There are some small charities, and the school has a small endowment. Lea Hall is now a farmhouse.

Prestonholm, vil. on the South Esk, pa. of Cockpen (q.v.), E. Edins., Sc., about 3 S.E. of Lasswade.

Prestonkirk, pa., Mid Haddings., Sc.; ac. 7,058; soil generally good, and in some parts rich. It measures about 4 miles each way, and is near the centre of the county, north-east of the pa. of Haddington, and is traversed by the Tyne. The Established church was built in 1770. Near the south side of the road to Haddington are the ruins of Hailes Castle. In the southern part of the pa. rises the hill of Traprain Law (724 ft.). Smeaton is a seat.

Preston-le-Skerne, tp. and vil., pa. of Aycliffe (q.v.), S. Dur., 7 N.E. of Darlington; ac. 2,681. There are brickfields, tile works, and limestone quarries here.

Preston, Little. [PRESTON PARVA.]

Preston Long, pa., tp., and small to., W.R. Yorks., 11½ N.W. of Skipton; ac. of pa. 13,557, of tp. 3,578; soil variable, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary, of which the chancel was rebuilt 1868, is E. Eng. and Dec.; it contains an altar-tomb to the Hamerton family and a Norm. font. The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels. There is a hospital here for old people, founded in 1613 by James Knowles, and rebuilt in 1859. There are several charities, and the schools are endowed. In September and March are fairs for cattle, in October for sheep, every second Monday for fat stock, and every Thursday for cattle.

Preston Mill. [PRESTON (20).]

Preston-next-Faversham, pa., N.E. Kent, forming a south-west suburb of Faversham (q.v.); ac. 1,571. The church of St. Catherine, by the railway station, is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. On the south side of the chancel are three stone sedilia of extreme richness and a piscina. On the north side is a sumptuous altar-tomb of black and white marble to Roger Boyle and Joan his wife, erected by their son, Sir Richard Boyle, Kt., 1st Earl of Cork, born here in 1566; there are recumbent effigies of both, and in front are kneeling figures, representing members of their family. At the east end of the nave is a quaint monument to Thomas Finch and his wife (1612). There are also brasses to Valentine Baret (d. 1440) and Cicely his wife (d. 1442), with effigies in very perfect condition; to William Mareys, esquire to Henry V. and Cardinal Beaufort (1459), with a figure in armour in fine preservation; and to Thomas Finch (d. 1615) and Bennet (Maycott) his wife (d. 1612). There is a good deal of wood screen-work and some finely-carved desks. Perry Court is an estate ½ S.W., given in 1721 by Lady Capell, with lands belonging to it, for the benefit of twelve charity schools.

Preston-next-Wingham, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 6 N.W. of Sandwich; ac. 1,445; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mildred is chiefly E. Eng. There are mutilated piscinæ of the 13th cent. in the chancel and its aisles, and a perfect one of the 14th cent. in the south aisle of the nave. The chancel is fitted with stalls, and separated from the nave by a wood screen. Here is a Congregational chapel. The charities are of about £40 yearly value.

Preston, North. [THE BRENTS.]

Preston-on-Stour, pa. and vil. on the Stour, N. Glouc., 3½ S. of Stratford-on-Avon, on the Warws. border; ac. 1,990; soil loam, overlying stiff clay. The church of St. Mary is a plain building of stone. There are some small charities. Alscot Park House, in a well-wooded deer-park of 200 ac., is a seat.

Preston-on-Tees, tp. and small vil., pa. of and 3 S.W. from Stockton-on-Tees (q.v.), S.E. Dur.; ac. 1,064. P. Hall is a seat.

Preston-on-the-Hill, tp. and vil., pa. of and 5 S.E. from Runcorn (q.v.), N. Chesh.; ac. 1,154. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Preston on the Weald Moors, or Preston upon the Wild Moors, pa. and vil. near the Shrewsbury Canal, Mid Salop, 13 E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 982. The church of St. Lawrence was erected 1739. There is a hospital for widows and children.

Preston-on-Wye, pa. and vil. on the Wye, Mid Herefords., 10 N. of Hereford; ac. 1,380; soil sandy and loamy, overlying clay and sandstone. The church of St. Lawrence is Norm., E. Eng., and later, and was restored 1883, except for the Huntley chapel, a fine example of 14th-cent. work, which was restored 1887. There are Primitive Methodist and Baptist chapels.

Prestonpans, pa., burgh of barony, and to. (formerly with mkt. and fairs), on the Firth of Forth, E. Haddings., Sc., 9 E. of Edinburgh; ac. 1,294; soil fertile loam, overlying clay and gravel. The town consists principally of one long street running parallel with the Forth, and is much frequented during the bathing season by visitors from Edinburgh and different parts of the country. The harbour, situated a little west of the town, and called Morison's Haven, has a quay. The Established church dates from 1774, and there is also a Free church. In the main street is a monument to Thomas Alexander, C.B., late Director-General of the Army Medical Department. Schaw's Hospital is an extensive building (1831), originally intended for the education and maintenance of children of poor parents; but the trust has been modified, and the bequest is now devoted to giving free education and to providing bursaries. The house is occupied as a training home for servants. The manufactures comprise earthenware, fire-bricks and other articles made from fireclay, common bricks, tiles, and salt; the latter originated here

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Preston Gubbals	Leaton (1½)	175	416
Prestonkirk	East Linton (1)	372	1802
Preston-le-Skerne	Aycliffe (2)	237	102
Preston, Long, pa.	Long Preston	232	1674
Preston, Long, tp.	Long Preston	232	734
Preston-next-F.	Faversham	53	2374
Preston-next-W.	Grove Ferry (2)	76	494
Preston-on-Stour	Milcote (3)	107	276
Preston-on-Tees	Eaglescliffe	232	156
Preston-on-the-Hill	Preston Brook (1)	177	493
Preston on the W. M.	Donnington (2)	149	229
Preston-on-Wye	Moorhampton (3)	154	212
Prestonpans, pa.	Prestonpans	386	2659
Prestonpans, to.	Prestonpans	386	2224

at an early date, having been made by the monks in 1189. There is also an extensive brewery and large soap works. Oysters are taken in the Forth, near the town, and considerable quantities are sent to the markets of Edinburgh, Newcastle, and even to London. The mines of coal in the neighbourhood are very rich. About 1½ miles to the eastward is the site of the battle commonly known as Prestonpans, fought in 1745, between Prince Charles Edward and General John Cope, who commanded the English troops which had been collected to oppose the Pretender's advance south; these, having failed to meet him in the Highlands, had returned by sea to Dunbar, and, advancing from that town by the coast road, were encamped between the vil. of Cockenzie and the high ground about Tranent, their left flank covered by a morass below that vil. The Highland army, marching from Duddingston, bivouacked at Tranent on the night of September 20, 1745, and in the early morning of the 21st were conducted in a mist by a path from Tranent to Cockenzie, which avoided the morass and enabled them to surprise the English, whose cavalry fled from either flank, leaving their infantry to be cut up by the Highlanders, who drove the survivors in a confused rout to the gates of Berwick, capturing guns, military chest, baggage, etc. Colonel James Gardiner, whose house (Bunkton House) stands close to the battlefield, was killed on the field, and a monument has been erected to his memory. Drummore, Northfield, and Preston Grange are seats.

Preston Park. [BRIGHTON.]

Preston Parva, or Preston, Little, ha., pa. of Preston Capes (q.v.), S. Northants, 5½ S. of Daventry.

Preston Patrick, eccl. pa. (extending into the pa. of Heversham), tp., and vil., pa. of Burton-in-Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd., 6 S. by E. of Kendal; ac. 5,000. The church, believed to have been dedicated originally to St. Gregory, was rebuilt 1852, in Late Perp. style. There are two corn-mills.

Preston Plucknett, pa. and vil., S.E. Somerset, 1½ W. of Yeovil; ac. 735; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. James is E. Eng. There are some small charities.

Preston Quarter, tp., pa. of and adjoining St. Bees (q.v.), W. Cumb.; ac. 3,152. There are extensive collieries.

Preston Richard, tp. on the Kendal and Lancaster Canal, pa. of Heversham (q.v.), S. Westmd., 6½ N.W. of Kirkby Lonsdale; ac. 2,134. There are powder-mills and a bobbin factory. The kennels of the Oxenholme Harriers are in this tp. Old Hall and Summerlands are seats.

Preston-under-Scar. [PRESTON (13).]

Preston upon the Wild Moors. [PRESTON ON THE WEALD MOORS.]

Prestonville, eccl. pa., pa. of Preston (q.v.), S. Sussex. The church of St. Luke (1875) is in Gothic style.

Preston Wynne, tp. and vil., pa. of Withington (q.v.), Mid Herefords., 6¼ N.E. of Hereford; ac. The church of the Holy Trinity is modern.

Prestwich, pa., tp., and to., and head of U. Lancs., 4 N.W. of Manchester, on the road to I ac. of pa. 22,020, of tp. 1,917. The pa. co the mun. bor. of Oldham (q.v.). The chur St. Mary, surrounded by fine old beech-tree situated on an eminence overlooking the wooded valley of the Irwell, is Gothic. I restored 1861; the Wilton chapel on the containing several monuments to the W family, was rebuilt 1886; the Lever chapel rebuilt 1875, and the south chapel restored The eccl. pa. of St. Margaret, Holyrood. ch Gothic style. There are Roman Cat Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Meth chapels. Here are the Union Workhouse an County Lunatic Asylum. P. has manufact chiefly for the Manchester houses, giving oc tion to many operatives. P. has many hand reside owned by Manchester merchants.

Prestwich Division, one of the 23 parl. di Lancs. It lies in the south-east of the co., returns one member.

Prestwick (1), tp., pa. of Dinnington (q.v Northumb., 6½ N.W. of Newcastle; ac. 853. is a Wesleyan chapel.

Prestwick (2), small to., pa. of Monkton Prestwick (q.v.), W. Ayrs., Sc., about 3 S. of Its charter as a burgh of barony dates from and states that it had already been a burg 617 years. It is now a much-frequented wat place and the headquarters of golfing in the of Scotland.

Prestwick, New, vil., pas. of Monkton and wick and Newton-upon-Ayr (q.v.), W. Ayrs. about 1 S. of Prestwick.

Prestwold, pa. and tp. on a tributary of the N. Leics., 2 N.E. of Loughborough; ac. of pa. of tp. 915; soil loam, overlying clay. The c of St. Andrew (restored 1890) is chiefly Perp contains some interesting monuments, incl one to Sir Christopher Packe (d. 1682), kni by Cromwell in 1655, his three wives an children; a handsome alabaster and marble ment to Sir William Skipworth (d. 1610); ar to Robert Christopher Packe, killed at Wat and some others by Westmacott, Theed, and Thorneycroft. There are several charities. P. a seat, is in Classic style.

Prestwood (1), eccl. pa. (extending into th of Great Missenden and Stoke Mandeville vil., pa. of Hughenden (q.v.), Mid Bucks., of Aylesbury. The church of Holy Trinity erected in 1849, in Dec. style. There are 13 Primitive Methodist, and Wesleyan chapels. Hampden memorial, a plain stone surmounted Maltese cross, was erected in 1863 near Hom Farm, with an inscription beginning "For lands, in Stoke Mandeville, John Hampde assessed 20s. ship-money." The inhabitant chiefly engaged in lace-making and chair-tur

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Preston Patrick	Milnthorpe (2)	244	782
Preston Plucknett	Yeovil (1½)	123	289
Preston Quarter	St. Bees	299	7551
Preston Richard	Milnthorpe (3)	244	718
Prestonville	Preston Park	49	2629
Preston Wynne	Moreton-on-Lugg (3)	147	118
Prestwich, pa.	Prestwich (1)	191	213790
Prestwich, tp.	Prestwich (1½)	191
Prestwich Division	.....	.....
Prestwick (1)	Newcastle-on-T. (6½)	271
Prestwick (2)	Prestwick	394
Prestwold, pa.	Loughborough (2)	112
Prestwold, tp.	Loughborough (2)	112
Prestwood (1)	High Wycombe (2)	34

Prestwood (2), tp., pa. of and 1¼ S.W. from Ellastone (q.v.), N. Staffs. ; ac. 447.

Prestwood House. [KINGSWINFORD.]

Prickwillow, eccl. pa., formed from the pas. of Ely Holy Trinity and E. St. Mary and Littleport, E. Cambs., and Lakenheath and Mildenhall, N.W. Suff., 4 S.E. of Littleport. The church of St. Peter is a building of brick and flint, consisting of nave with transepts, south porch, and a light central spire containing one bell, formerly in Ely Cathedral; the font (brought from Ely Cathedral and said to have been designed by Sir Christopher Wren) is dated 1693, and has a cover of wood curiously carved. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. A pa. room was erected in 1888. Here are three steam pumping engines for draining the fens.

Priddbwll, ha., pa. of Llansillin (q.v.), S. Denbighs., about 6 S.W. of Oswestry.

Priddy, pa. and vil. on the Mendip Hills, Mid Somerset, 5 N.W. of Wells; ac. 1,361; soil marly, overlying limestone. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1883) is E. Eng. An arcade of three clustered piers with Pointed arches divides the nave and north aisle; on the south there are two arches and one pier only. The screen is a good example of Jacobean work; the font is E. Norm. There are monuments to the Hopkins family. An old building known as "The Round House" was built in the 17th cent. Eight Barrows and Nine Barrows are two hills; adjacent to the latter is a Roman road, and some remains of a camp are still visible.

Prideaux. [LUXULION.]

Pridhamsleigh Cave, a large and curious limestone cavern, pa. of Staverton (q.v.), S. Devon, about 4 N. of Totnes.

Priestacott, ha., pa. of Ashwater (q.v.), W. Dev., about 7 S.E. of Holsworthy.

Priestcliffe, ha., pa. of Bakewell (q.v.), N. Derbys., 3 S. of Tideswell.

Priesthaggard, pl., pa. of Kilmokea (q.v.), S.W. co. Wex., Ir., 8 S. of New Ross.

Priestholm. [PUFFIN ISLAND (1).]

Priest Hutton, tp., pa. of Warton (q.v.), N. Lancs., 9 N. by E. of Lancaster; ac. 1,085.

Priest Island, islet, pa. of Lochbroom (q.v.), off the north-west coast of Ross and Crom., Sc., near the entrance of Gruinard Bay and Loch Broom, 13 W.N.W. of Ullapool. The island measures about a mile from north to south and also from east to west. It is said to take its name from a Roman Catholic priest who lived here, continually moving from one part of the island to another, according to the state of the weather.

Priestman, south spur of Saddleback (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 3½ N.E. of Keswick.

Priest's Leap, mountain (1,898 ft.) on border of Glanarought bar., S.E. co. Kerry, and Bantry bar., S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 8 S.S.E. of Kenmare.

Priest Weston, ha., pa. of Chirbury (q.v.), S. Salop, 7 N.W. of Bishops Castle.

Priglis Bay, on coast of St. Agnes, Scilly Islands.

Primethorpe, ha., pa. of Broughton Astley (q.v.), S. Leics., 7 N.W. of Loughborough.

Primrose Hill (1), eccl. pa. in N.W. London, pa. of Hampstead (q.v.), E. Middx., 3½ N.W. of St. Paul's. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (1872) is in Gothic style. P. Hill is an eminence (219 ft.) on the north-west side of Regent's Park, of which it forms a kind of extension. South-west of P. Hill is Barrow Hill (formerly Greenberry Hill), a name which may perhaps denote that here was a burial mound raised over some warriors slain in battle. On Barrow Hill has been formed the reservoir of the West Middlesex Waterworks. In the time of Charles II. the meadows which spread over the hill were intermixed with copses, and primroses grew in abundance. The body of Sir Edmund Berry Godfrey (murdered 1638), an eminent Justice of the Peace, was found in a ditch on the south side of the hill. P. Hill is pierced by a tunnel of the London and North Western Railway, constructed in 1834, and about 3,500 ft. long.

PRIMROSE HILL.

Primrose Hill (2), picturesque eminence, pa. of Lezayre (q.v.), N. I. of M., 3½ W. of Ramsey.

Primside Loch. [YETHOLM.]

Princelett, ha., pa. of and 2 S. from Newchurch (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants.

Prince's Channel, navigable channel at mouth of the Thames estuary, between Tongue Sand and Girdler Sand, 6 N.W. of Margate. The channel is about 5 miles long and 1 mile wide. The light-vessel on its north side has a revolving light visible 10 miles.

Prince's End, a division of the north part of the to. of Tipton (q.v.), W. Staffs., about 2 S. of Bilston.

Princes Risborough, pa. and mkt. to. (TH.), W. Bucks., 8 S. of Aylesbury; ac. 1,484; soil very variable, but generally light and chalky on the hills, on the lowlands loamy, some parts strong clay, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Mary, built in the reign of Henry VII., is an edifice of stone and flint (restored 1867–68); in the south aisle are the carved canopies of four recessed tombs, an old aumbry, piscina niche, and recess, and an ancient window consisting of three lancet lights, with elegant columns of Purbeck marble. There are Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels.

PLACE	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Prestwood (2)	Norbury (2)	147	46
Prickwillow	Ely (4)	70	1266
Priddy	Wells (5)	126	199

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Priest Hutton	Borwick (1)	239	242
Primrose Hill (1)	.....	.....	2327
Princes Risborough	Princes Risboro'	42	2318

The P. R. Agricultural Association has an annual show of roots and vegetables. The Literary Institute and Reading Room, in High Street, the gift of Lord Rothschild, was opened in 1891. The Market House has a clock erected by subscription. Fairs are held annually on May 6 and on Oct. 21. The charities amount to about £36 yearly. On the west side of the churchyard are several trenches and banks, called "The Mount," enclosed with a moat, popularly supposed to be the site of a palace of Edward the Black Prince (whence the pa. derives its distinctive epithet), but called by Mr. Wise a Saxon camp.

Princes Shoal, on the east coast of I. of W., S. Hants, near Bembridge. It is a chalky ledge nearly a mile long.

Princes Tower. [HOUGUE BIE.]

Princethorpe (anciently "Prenesthorpe"), tp. and vil., pa. of Stretton-on-Dunsmore (q.v.), E. Warws., 4 S.W. of Rugby; ac. 1,070. The Benedictine priory of St. Mary was erected in the year 1833, and young ladies are educated here; the buildings comprise an area of 2 ac., with a similar extent of garden.

Princetown, small to. on Dartmoor, pa. of Lydford (q.v.), W. Dev., about 7 E. of Tavistock. The church of St. Michael and All Angels (chapel-of-ease) is a plain granite building, and was built with the parsonage house by French prisoners. The Wesleyans have a chapel. P. was formed about 1808, soon after Dartmoor prison was built for prisoners of war, and was named after George IV. when Prince of Wales. In 1811 there were about 9,000 prisoners of war, besides the guard of soldiery. The prison consists of an extensive series of buildings, constructed principally of granite; the outer wall encloses an area of about 30 ac. After the peace P. declined until its revival between 1831 and 1841 from the working of the granite quarries on Dartmoor (q.v.).

Prinknash Park, pa., Mid Glouces., 4½ S.E. of Gloucester; ac. 227; soil and subsoil mainly oolite. The mansion, which is on a slope of the Hills and dates from 1520, was a country s Abbots of Gloucester; and here Parker, the received Henry VIII. The ancient chapel portions of the house were restored in 1 scenery round P. Park is remarkably pict Prinlaws, part of to. of Leslie (q.v.), pa. Mid Fifes., Sc.

Prinsted, ha., pa. of Westbourne (Sussex, 6 W. of Chichester.

Prion, eccl. pa., pa. of Llanrhaiadr-in- (q.v.), S. Denbighs. The church is de St. James.

Prior, pa. on Ballinskelligs Bay, S.W. Ir., 7 S. of Cahirsiveen; ac. 11,795. Th of the pa. is wild and mountainous. The Catholic churches.

Prior Hill, vil., pa. of Canonbie (c Dumfs., Sc., close to Canonbie station.

PRINCETOWN.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Princethorpe	Marton (2)	91	279
Prinknash Park	Gloucester (5)	114	14
Prinlaws	Leslie (½)	425	997
Prion	Denbigh (3)	209	556
Prior	Cahirsiveen (7)	232	2500

Priors Dean, pa., Mid Hants., 5 N.W. field; ac. 1,596; soil very light in places, stiff, overlying chalk. The church (unknown), restored, is Norm. and E. E is a Norm. doorway. On the north si chancel is a tomb of marble and alab kneeling effigies.

Priors Hardwick, pa. and vil. to the e Oxford Canal, E. Warws., 6 S.S.E. of ac. 1,600; soil and subsoil clay. The E Dec. church of St. Mary formerly belon monks of Coventry; the nave was re There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Priors Lee, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Shi Mid Salop, 4 S.E. of Wellington. The St. Peter was rebuilt 1836, in Dec. style. Wesleyan and Primitive and Unionist chapels.

Priors Marston, pa. and very pleasant east of the Oxford Canal, E. Warws Northants border, 6 S.E. of Southam; soil clay and sand, overlying clay and

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or
Priors Dean	Petersfield (4)
Priors Hardwick	Fenny Compton (4)
Priors Lee	Oaken Gate (1½)
Priors Marston	Fenny Compton (5)

church of St. Leonard (formerly belonging to the monks of Coventry) was rebuilt 1863, in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan, Moravian, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Priors Portion, one of the five parts into which the pa. of Tiverton (q.v.), N.E. Dev., was divided in the 13th cent.

Prisk and Carfan. [PRYSK AND CARVAN.]

Pristacott, ha., pa. of Tawstock (q.v.), N. Dev., 3 S. of Barnstaple.

Priston, pa. and vil., N.E. Somerset, 5½ S.W. of Bath; ac. 1,850; soil clay and stone-brash, overlying stone. The church of St. Luke is Dec., with a fine Norm. doorway.

Prittlewell, pa. and vil., S.E. Essex, 13 S. of Rochford; ac. 6,720; soil loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1872) is very interesting; the south porch and west tower are fine Perp. work; in the nave there are remains of Norm. work, and in the chancel traces of an archway built of Roman bricks; there is a memorial window to Sir Arundell Neave, of 15th-cent. Flemish and Italian glass, from a church in Rouen, and attributed to Dürer. All Saints' eccl. pa. was formed in 1877, and the church built in French Gothic style. There is a small charity, a Sick-Nurse Fund, and an endowed school. Of the priory belonging to the Cluniac monks, founded here in the reign of Henry II., remains can still be seen.

Privett, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 13 E. of Winchester; ac. 1,279; soil loam and stiff clay, overlying chalk. The church of the Holy Trinity was built 1878, in E. Eng. style. The exterior is enriched with carving, including a statue of Bishop Browne.

Prixford, vil., pa. of Marwood (q.v.), N. Dev., 3 N.W. of Barnstaple. P. House is a seat.

Proaig Bay, inlet of the sea, east coast of Islay Island, S.W. Args., Sc., 29 S.W. of Ardrishaig.

Probus, pa., tp., and vil., Mid Cornw., 5½ N.E. of Truro, on the road to St. Austell; ac. of pa. 8,112, of tp. 8,096; soil clay-slate, overlying clay and slate. The church of SS. Probus and Grace (made collegiate by King Athelstan in 926 for a dean and four prebendaries, but dissolved at the Reformation) is Perp. In the Golden aisle is a brass with effigies to John Wulvedon (d. Nov. 6, 1514) and Cecilia, his wife (d. April 20, 1512), and on the floor is a stone inscribed to the Rev. William Cornish (1789) and Jane, his wife. The chancel-screen, formed of portions of the ancient screen and bench-ends, is dated 1691. In the north wall remain the rood-stairs, open and in good condition; and in a reliquary in the north wall of the chancel are preserved two skulls, supposed to be those of the patron saints of the church, which were discovered under the altar during a restoration. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. There is a reading-room and library. A college for boys was founded here in 1853. P. has some small charities. Within the pa. are ancient entrenchments and earthworks. Golden was formerly the seat of the Tregians, but is now occupied as a farmhouse. Nearly the whole of the house has been destroyed, and what is supposed to have been the chapel is now used as a stable; the detached buildings exhibit several stone effigies, and some cells still exist. Cuthbert Mayne, a Roman Catholic priest captured in this house, where he was lying concealed, and afterwards executed, in the time of Queen Elizabeth, was beatified by Pope Leo XIII. in 1888 as the first martyr of the Elizabethan persecution. Trehane and Trewithen are seats.

Prosen Water, stream, N.W. Forfs., Sc., runs 18 S.E. through the pa. of Kirriemuir, and then between that of Cortachy and Clova on the left, and those of Kingoldrum and Kirriemuir on the right, joining the South Esk 3 N.N.E. of the town of Kirriemuir. The stream abounds in trout.

Prospect, ha., pa. of and 2 S. from Monxton (q.v.), W. Hants.

Prosperous, vil., pa. of Killybegs (q.v.), N. co. Kildare, Ir., about 5 N.W. of Sallins.

Prospidnick, ha., pa. of and 1½ N.N.E. from Sithney (q.v.), W. Cornw. Here is a logan stone (about 11 ft. long, 6 ft. broad, and 4 ft. thick), and on P. Hill is a fallen cromlech (about 18 ft. long, 12 ft. broad, and 2 ft. thick) named the Giant's Quoit.

Protstownhill, ha., pa. of Gamrie (q.v.), N.E. Banffs., Sc., about 1½ E. by S. of Gardenstown.

Provanhall, vil., pa. of Shettlestone (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., about 3 E. of Glasgow.

Providence Place, ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Throwleigh (q.v.), W. Dev.

Prudhoe, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Tyne, pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 10½ E. of Hexham; ac. 1,457. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans and Free Methodists have chapels. There are extensive collieries, and fire-bricks are made. A farmhouse in the tp. has a Norm. arch, and appears to have been originally a chapel. Attached to P. Hall is a Roman Catholic chapel.

Prudhoe Castle, tp. and vil. on the Tyne, pa. of Ovingham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 10 E. of Hexham; ac. 796. P. Castle was built during the early part of the reign of Henry II. The castle occupies an elevated site above the south bank of the Tyne, and is protected on other sides by a deep fosse, once crossed by a drawbridge. The keep, a massive oblong structure standing in the centre of the inner ward, with various chambers, and a well staircase on the east side, is now ruinous, but retains one square embattled turret; on the south side of the outer ward is the gatehouse, a square embattled structure 40 ft. in height, with circular-headed entrances and a vaulted passage-way; about 1300 the chamber over the gateway was converted into a chapel, dedicated to St. Mary. A large part of the massive walls connecting the gatehouse with the barbican erected at the end of the reign of Edward I. by Gilbert, second Earl of Angus, is still standing, with some of the arches uniting them. To the south-west, outside the walls, but within the site, there once stood a chapel dedicated to the Blessed Virgin; the mill, still standing on the

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Priston	Bath (5½)	107	213
Prittlewell	Prittlewell	40	12333
Privett	Ropley (5)	54	227
Probus, pa.	Grampound Rd. (2½)	287	1308
Probus, tp.	Grampound Rd. (2½)	287	1225

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Prosperous	Sallins (5)	18	127
Prudhoe, eccl. pa.	Prudhoe	279	4530
Prudhoe, tp.	Prudhoe	279	3391
Prudhoe Castle	Prudhoe (½)	279	929

outer fosse, occupies the site of the original castle mill.

Prussia Cove, small watering-place, pa. of and about 2 S.S.E. from St. Hilary (q.v.), S.W. Cornw. The cove on which the place stands derived its name from the fact that in the 18th cent. the landlord of the "King of Prussia" inn was a noted smuggler. He was so bold as to erect a battery here, and fired upon an armed sloop, which returned the fire and destroyed the battery.

Pryor's Hayes, pa., W. Chesh., 1½ S.E. of Tarvin; ac. 106. There is a Methodist New Connexion chapel.

Prysk and Carvan, tp., pa. of Llanddewi Brefi (q.v.), S.E. Cardigs., about 3 S.W. of Tregaron; ac. 3,419.

Prysor Valley, or Cwm Prysor, mountain pass, pa. of Trawsfynydd (q.v.), N. Merions., 5 S.E. of Festiniog. The valley is traversed by a small stream called Afon Prysor. There are some remains of a stronghold called Castell Prysor, which seems to have been erected or held by the Romans, as Roman coins and urns have been found in the neighbourhood.

Pubblebrien, bar., N. co. Lim., Ir.; ac. 30,138. It is bounded on the east by Clanwilliam and Small County bars., on the south by Coshma bar., and it is separated from Kenry bar. on the west by the Maigue. It is traversed by the line to Ennis and by that to Foynes.

Publow, pa. and vil., N. Somerset, 6½ S.E. of Bristol; ac. 1,311; soil good, overlying red sandstone and white lias. The church of All Saints (restored 1860 and 1866) is Perp., and has a chancel screen of wrought brass. The old stone round house formerly used as a lock-up is still standing near the post office. There are some small charities.

Puckaster, cove, south coast of I. of W., about 3½ S.W. of Ventnor. Here Charles II. landed in 1675.

Puckaun, or Puckane, vil. near Lough Derg, pa. of Killodiernan (q.v.), N.W. co. Tip., Ir., 6 N.W. of Nenagh.

Puckeridge, vil., pas. of Standon and Braughing (q.v.), E. Herts., 6 N.E. of Ware.

Puckington, pa. and vil. on the Isle, Mid Somerset, 7 S.W. of Langport; ac. 748; soil partly clay and partly sand and clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1857) is mainly Perp. It retains a Norm. font and E. Eng. sedilia. An interesting marble slab covering an ancient tomb was discovered in 1894.

Pucklechurch, pa. and vil., S. Glouc., 8 N.E. of Bristol; ac. 2,428; soil loam, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Thomas the Martyr (restored 1889) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the north door is Norm. There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. In a field at the back of the "Star" inn formerly stood the palace of the Saxon kings, where Edmund I. was slain by Liofa or Leolf, a robber, at a banquet A.D. 946. A sum of £12 is applied yearly in apprenticing two boys.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Pryor's Hayes	Mouldsworth (1½)	180	25
Prysk and Carvan	Tregaron (3)	262	113
Publebrien	.....	.....	5243
Publow	Pensford (½)	124	492
Puckington	Ilminster (3)	165	178
Pucklechurch	Mangotsfield (8)	117	1335
Pudding Norton	Fakenham (1½)	119	30

Pudding Norton, pa., N. Norf., 1½ S. of Fakenham ac. 844; soil chiefly rich loam, resting on clay. The church of St. Margaret fell into ruin many years ago, but parts of the fabric still remain.

Puddington (1), pa. and vil., N. Dev., 9 W. of Tiverton; ac. 1,361; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Thomas à Becket was rebuilt 1838 in Perp. style, but has a west tower of Norm. date. There is a Congregational chapel. The p. has two small charities and a small endowment for the school.

Puddington (2), tp. and vil. on the Dee, pa. of Burton (q.v.), W. Chesh., 7½ N.W. of Chester; ac. 1,359. The Roman Catholic chapel of St. Mary was built 1757. P. Hall, an old house, is now used as a farm.

Puddington (3). [Podington.]

Puddle. [Piddle.]

Puddlehill. [Chalk Hill.]

Puddlehinton, pa. and compact vil. on the Piddle, Mid Dors., 5½ N. by E. of Dorchester; ac. 2,872; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The Perp. church of St. Mary was restored and enlarged 1868. There are some early 17th-cent. brasses.

Puddlemill, vil., pa. of Church Knowle (q.v.), S.E. Dors., 4 S. of Wareham.

Puddlestone, pa. and vil., E. Herefords., on the border of Worcs., 6 E. of Leominster; ac. 1,779; soil clay and loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt 1813, in Norm. and E. Eng. styles. In the floor of the chancel are some very old and beautiful encaustic tiles. P. Court, a modern mansion in the castellated style, standing on an eminence in an undulating park of over 200 ac., is a seat.

Puddletown, extensive pa. and vil. on the Piddle, Mid Dors., 5 N.E. of Dorchester; ac. 7,653; soil sandy, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary is chiefly Perp.; it contains a Norm. font wrought with trellis-work and foliage, and has a splendid chestnut roof, which is, however, much decayed. The pa. has a Congregational chapel, and reading and recreation rooms. The fair is held on Oct. 29. The pa. has several small charities. There are some remains of a cross. Islington House is a seat.

Puddletrenthide, pa. and vil. on the Piddle, Mid Dors., 16 S.W. of Blandford; ac. 4,487; soil gravelly, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints (restored 1853) dates probably from the 13th cent. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels, and the school have a small endowment. In the neighbourhood are several barrows. The Manor House is a seat.

Pudlicott, ha., pa. of Charbury (q.v.), N.W. Oxon, 4 S. of Chipping Norton. P. House, standing in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Pudsey, tp. and to., pa. of Calverley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 S.W. of Leeds; ac. 2,546. There are two eccl. pas. with modern churches, and several Nonconformist places of worship. The cemetery, of about 12 ac., contains two chapels, joined by a fine tower. The charities are small. There is a

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Puddington (1)	Crediton (7)	179	206
Puddington (2)	Ledsham (3)	186	150
Puddlehinton	Dorchester (5½)	135	388
Puddlestone	Steens Bridge (2)	160	252
Puddletown	Dorchester (5)	135	1028
Puddletrenthide	Dorchester (8)	135	673
Pudsey	Pudsey	189	17037

Mechanics' Institute, in Gothic style, with a fine tower and a large public hall. The manufacture of woollen goods is largely carried on.

Pudsey Division, one of the 19 parl. divs. of the West Riding, Yorks. It lies in the east of the Riding, and returns one member.

Pudymore Milton. [PODYMORE MILTON.]

Puffin Island (1), or Priestholme (anciently called "Ynys Seiriol"), lies off the east coast of Anglesey. The island is about a mile in length, of great elevation, and forming on all sides abrupt precipices, except towards Penmon, where the ascent, though not precipitous, is very steep. The surface affords only scanty pasturage for a few sheep and rabbits; but the island is the resort of various sea fowl during the breeding season, more particularly of puffins, which congregate here in such numbers as to have given name to the island. It was originally occupied as a place of devoti onal retirement; and St. Seiriol, to whom the priory church is dedicated, is said to have built a hermitage here, which afterwards became a cell to that establishment. The remains of a square tower and the foundations of three others, between which there appears not the slightest connection, have been supposed to be the ruins of the ancient conventual buildings. South of the island lies the Dutchman's Bank, where the Rothsay Castle, steam vessel between Liverpool and Bangor, was wrecked in August, 1831, when more than a hundred passengers perished. Since then a lighthouse has been erected to warn mariners of the danger.

PUFFIN ISLAND.

Puffin Island (2), Iveragh bar., W. co. Kerry, Ir. It lies about 3 s. of Bray Head, the westernmost point of Valencia Island.

Pulathomas, ha., pa. of Kilcommon (q.v.), N.W. co. Mayo, Ir., 12 miles from Belmullet.

Pulborough, extensive pa. and vil. on the Arundel road, near the confluence of the Arun and West Rother, N.W. Sussex, 6 S.E. of Petworth; ac. 6,354 and 57 water; soil various, the north part of the pa. being strong clay, while the south is loamy, but a considerable portion of the pa. is marsh or meadow-land. The Roman road from Regnum to Londinium passed through this pa. in a direct line for 3½ miles, and near it many indications of Roman occupation have been found. The antiquity of P. is unquestionable, and in earlier times it was a place of some importance, containing the seats of several old Sussex families. The church of St. Mary (restored 1859) is E. Eng., with Perp. insertions and additions. The chancel contains various memorial slabs and two ancient brasses, and in the north wall of the nave is a brass inscribed to Sir Thomas Harlyng, Canon of Chichester and formerly rector of Ringwood and Pulborough; there are also many inscriptions to the Apsley, Coles, Legg, Spragg, Marriott, Cobb, and Tredcroft families. An ancient window in the south wall of the chancel, previously blocked up, was accurately rebuilt. The entrance to the churchyard is by an ancient and picturesque lich-gate of oak. Here are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. A market for corn is held every Friday, and a fair on Easter Tuesday for toys and pedlery; a stock market is held every alternate Monday. There are almshouses (built in 1862), with an income of £12 yearly. A sum producing about £80 yearly is applied to educational purposes. Old Place, of which some remains are still standing, was formerly one of the seats of the Apsley family, and is believed to have been built in the reign of Henry VI.; but a farmhouse is now erected on the site, and such portions of the former residence as still exist are now used as storehouses.

Pulford, pa., tp., and vil., S.W. Chesh., 6 N. of Wrexham; ac. of pa. 2,565, of tp. 1,174; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was rebuilt in 1884, in Dec. style. An ancient ampulla was discovered in Castle Hill field.

Pulham, pa. and small vil. on the Lidden, N. Dors., 8 S.E. of Sherborne; ac. 2,370; soil clay and sandy loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (restored 1870) is Gothic. There are some small charities.

Pulham, St. Mary Magdalen (commonly called Pulham Market, from the ancient mkt., now removed to Harleston), pa. and small to., S. Norf., 15 S. of Norwich; ac. 2,985; soil heavy, resting on clay. The E. Eng. and Perp. church of St. Mary Magdalen (restored 1873 and later) has piscinæ in the chancel and south aisle, and near the south door is a holy-water stoup. Part of the roof at the east end of the nave is decorated with paintings of angels, sacred monograms, and other devices. There are several mural tablets. In the floor of the church are some ancient stones. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel. A vil. reading-room, with small library attached, was opened in 1882. The workhouse of the Depwade U. (1836) is here. A small estate here used to be held by cornage service, or the blowing of a horn, at the opening of the Manor Court. Leather gloves are made here. P. Hall was formerly the residence of a younger branch of the Percies.

Pulham, St. Mary the Virgin, pa. and pleasant vil. on a small tributary of the Waveney, S. Norf., 3 N.W. of Harleston; ac. 3,029; soil mixed, resting on gravel and clay. The Perp. church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1886–87) retains some ancient stained glass, one of the windows dating from 1380, and another (the Apostles' Window) from 1420. The chancel screen is adorned with paintings

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pudsey Division	.....	.....	49252
Pulborough	Pulborough	50	1787
Pulford, pa.	Rossett (½)	206	468
Pulford, tp.	Rossett (½)	206	298
Pulham	Sherborne (8)	118	266
Pulham, S. Mary Mag	Pulham Market	103	1082
P'ham, S. Mary the V.	Pulham St. Mary	104	831

of saints. In the chancel are double piscinæ and sedilia, and there is a piscina in the south aisle. The list of rectors includes Henry de Wengham, Bishop of London and Chancellor of England (temp. Henry III.); Richard de Northbrook, appointed Bishop of London in 1355; Sir Thomas Howes, chaplain to Sir John Falstaff (1465); and William May (1557), Chancellor of Ely, afterwards Dean of St. Paul's. Another rector, Sir Simon de Walpole (1301), brother of the Bishop of Norwich, lies buried in the chancel. There is a Baptist and a Primitive Methodist chapel. The rent of the town lands, which are let in allotments, is applied to the maintenance of Pennoyer's Free School, founded 1760, and to other parochial purposes. There are extensive maltings.

Pullagheeny, or Pollacheeny, fishing harbour on the east side of Killala Bay, N.W. co. Sligo, Ir., 4 w. by s. of Easky.

Pullinashantina, remarkable cavern in The Mullet, near Binghamstown, pa. of Kilmore (q.v.), N.W. co. Mayo, Ir. The sea dashes violently into the cavern for a distance of nearly ¼ mile.

Pullins, valley of the Ballintra, S.W. co. Don., Ir., 1½ E. of Ballintra. P. presents some fine scenery, and contains numerous caves and subterraneous passages.

Pulloxhill, pa. and vil., Mid Beds., 11 S. of Bedford; ac. 1,583; soil strong clay, overlying clay. The church of St. James consists of chancel, nave, and an embattled tower; in the chancel is a stained window and an altar-tomb to Sir William Briers, Knight (1653).

Pull Wyke Bay, inlet on the west shore of Windermere (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., 1½ S.S.W. of Ambleside. The bay extends nearly ½ mile from the main portion of the lake; on its north side are the grounds of Brathay Hall.

Pulpit Rock (1). [PENINNIS HEAD.]

Pulpit Rock (2). [BONCHURCH.]

Pulteneytown, part of the parl. burgh of Wick (q.v.), E. Caiths., Sc. It contains the harbours, and may be reckoned the seat of the manufactures, commerce, and fisheries of Wick; it was purchased when a mere waste by the society in London formed for extending British fisheries, and various means were adopted to carry out the great and beneficial objects of the society. P. has been from the first laid out on a settled plan. Here most of the work of the town is done. Its cooperages, net, rope, and woollen manufactories, saw-mills, and distillery employ two-thirds of the whole population. There are also public schools. The Wick Free Library and Reading Room is in Union Street, Pulteneytown.

Pulverbatch, vil., pa. of Church Pulverbatch (q.v.), S. Salop, 7½ S.W. of Shrewsbury.

Pumpherston, vil. on the Almond, pa. of and 1½ N. from Mid Calder, W. Edins., Sc.

Punchbowl Rock, on coast of St. Agnes, Scilly Islands, noted for its rock basin.

Puncheston, pa. and vil., N. Pembs., about 7 S.E. of Fishguard; ac. 1,788. The church is dedicated to St. Mary.

Punchestown. [RATHMORE (1).]

Puncknoll, pa. and vil. on the English Channel, S.W. Dors., 6½ S.E. of Bridport; ac. 2,160; soil clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Mary, originally E. Eng., has been rebuilt at various times; the tower is probably Norm., as is the font: there is a mural monument of the Napper family. The Wesleyans have a chapel. P. Knoll, a steep rocky hill, forms a landmark for seamen.

Punnett's Town, vil., pa. of and 2 E. from Heathfield (q.v.), S.E. Sussex.

Purbeck, Isle of, peninsula, S.E. Dorset. It is bounded on the north by the Frome and Poole Harbour, on the south and east by the English Channel, and on the west by a tributary of the Frome. It contains the pas. of Corfe Castle, Church Knowle, Langton Matravers, Steeple, Studland, Swanage, and Worth Matravers. It is about 12 miles long by 7 miles broad, and crossed from east to west by a range of chalk hills. The soil is altogether calcareous, and, for the most part, a continued mass of either white or brownish limestone, the latter having a mixture of sea-shells. The quarries on the south side yield valuable building-stone. The limestones from the upper beds were formerly polished and used, under the name of "Purbeck Marble," to make the slender shafts in Gothic churches. In 1854 Mr. W. B. Brodie found remains of small mammals in the Middle Purbecks at Durlston Bay, and in 1856 the energetic researches of Mr. S. H. Beckles exhumed fragments (chiefly lower jaws) of 25 species from the same bed. These were described by Professor Owen as marsupials of small size.

Purbrook, eccl. pa., pa. of Farlington (q.v.), S.E. Hants, 5½ N. of Portsmouth. The church of St. John the Baptist is in Dec. style. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Purdis Farm, pa., S.E. Suff., 4 S.E. of Ipswich; ac. 596.

Purfleet, vil. with railway station, pa. of West Thurrock (q.v.), S. Essex, 7 N.W. of Tilbury.

Puriton, pa. and vil. on the Parret, Mid Somerset, 3 N.N.E. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,577; soil red sand, marl, and heavy clay, subsoil various. The church of St. Michael (restored 1882) is E. Eng. There is a Congregational chapel.

Purlbridge, ha., pa. of Colyton (q.v.), E. Dev., 5 S.W. of Axminster.

Purleigh, pa. and vil., E. Essex, 4 S. of Maldon; ac. 5,713; soil and subsoil loam. The church of All Saints (restored 1892) is Dec. There are some small charities, and the school has an endowment of £30. A fair is held on June 15.

Purley (1), pa. and vil. on the Thames, E. Berks., 3 W.N.W. of Reading; ac. 874; soil loam and gravel, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary, rebuilt 1870 (with the exception of the tower), was E. Eng.; the Norm. chancel-arch now forms the entrance to the organ chamber, and there is a

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pulloxhill	Flitwick (2)	40	492
Pulteneytown	Wick	751	5550
Pumpherston	Uphall (1)	396	1305
Puncheston	Puncheston	277	215
Puncknoll	Abbotsbury (3½)	146	427

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Purbrook	Cosham (2)	70	259
Purdis Farm	Ipswich (4)	69	29
Puriton	Bridgwater (3)	152	744
Purleigh	Maldon (4)	44	858
Purley (1)	Tilehurst (¾)	39	180

Norm. font. P. Hall, in park-like grounds, and P. Park are seats.

Purley (2), eccl. pa., pas. of Coulsdon, Croydon, and Beddington (q.v.), Mid Surrey, about 2 s. of Croydon. Christ Church is in E. Dec. style. Here are the Warehousemen's, Clerks', and Drapers' Schools; the buildings are in E. Gothic style.

Purple Mountain (2,739 ft.), mountain overhanging Lough Leane, S. co. Kerry, Ir., about 6 s.w. of Killarney. It is separated from MacGillicuddy's Reeks by the Gap of Dunloe (q.v.). [KILLARNEY (1).]

Purse Caundle. [CAUNDLE PURSE.]

Purston, ha., pa. of Kings Sutton and Newbottle (q.v.), S. Northants, 5½ N.W. of Brackley. It is divided into Great P. and Little P.

Purston cum South Featherstone, eccl. pa., pa. of Featherstone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Thomas is in E. Eng. style.

Purston Jaglin, tp. and vil., pa. of Featherstone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 s.w. of Pontefract; ac. 1,021. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels here. P. Hall is a seat.

Purthen, or Pyrddin, rivulet, S.W. Brecons., rises near Capel Colbren, under Mount Capellante, and flows about 8 s. to the Neath, joining that river about a mile above Pontneddfychan.

Purton (1), pa., tp., and vil., N. Wilts., 4 s. of Cricklade; ac. of pa. 7,949, of tp. 6,465; soil oolite brash, overlying clay. The vil. is pleasantly situated upon a rising ground commanding beautiful and extensive views of the surrounding country. The Wilts and Berks Canal passes through the pa., The church of St. Mary (restored 1872) is Perp., with two embattled towers, the eastern one rising from the intersection of the nave and chancel, and the other in the usual position at the west end. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The pa. has a reading-room, Workmen's Institute, and a convalescent home for children. There are some charities. The famous Lord Clarendon resided here in what is now the College Farm.

Purton (2), ha., pa. of and 3 w. from Berkeley (q.v.), W. Gloucs.

Purton (3), ha., pa. of and 2½ N.E. from Lydney (q.v.), W. Gloucs.

Purton Stoke, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Purton (q.v.), N. Wilts. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. The waters of a mineral spring here are extensively used for medicinal purposes.

Pusey, pa. and vil. in the Vale of White Horse, N. Berks., 9 w. of Abingdon; ac. 1,040; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of All Saints (rebuilt 1753) is in Renaissance style; in the north transept is a slab to Henry Doggett and his wife, dated 1490, a monument (with effigies by Scheemaker) to Jane Pusey (d. 1742), and other memorials. In the churchyard there is a tomb with a brass to Richard Pusey or Pesey (d. 1655); on the exterior wall of the chancel is an inscription to William White (d. 1655). Tradition asserts that Cherbury Camp is the site of a palace of Canute; there remains an oval earthwork 310 yds. long, with three mounds and three moats. P. House is a plain stone building, erected in 1753; the manor of P. is said to have been held by the P. family from before the Conquest, by tenure called "cornage," or horn service, and an ancient horn with a quaint inscription is preserved at P. House.

Putford, East, pa. and vil. on the Torridge, N. Dev., 9 s.w. of Bideford; ac. 2,380; soil loam, overlying clay. The church, dedication unknown (restored 1882), is of various periods; the chancel has sedilia, and there is an ancient chest.

Putford, West, pa. and small vil. on the Torridge, N. Dev., 8 N.E. of Holsworthy; ac. 2,620; soil clay and loam, subsoil chiefly clay. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng.; the sedilia remain in the chancel. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels.

Putley, pa. and vil., Mid Herefords., 5 w. of Ledbury; ac. 1,100; soil heavy, but very productive, overlying clay. The E. Eng. church (dedication unknown) was reopened after restoration in 1876; the pulpit and low chancel-screen were made from a 17th-cent. oak pew belonging to P. Court. In the churchyard is an ancient stone cross with carvings of the Crucifixion, the Virgin and Child, St. Andrew, and on the fourth side of an archbishop. There are some small charities. P. Court is a seat. In excavating near it, in 1878, the workmen found fragments of the ruins of Roman buildings, including a quantity of tiles.

Putney, pa. and dis. on the south bank of the Thames, N.E. Surrey, forming a south-west suburb of London, 6½ s.w. of St. Paul's; ac. 2,235. P. is mentioned in Domesday in connection with its fishery and ferry, the latter of which was replaced in 1729 by a wooden bridge, uniting the town to

PUTNEY BRIDGE.

Fulham; this was removed about 1880, and in 1884–86 a handsome stone bridge was erected. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a Gothic edifice, mostly rebuilt 1836, in Perp. style; the chantry chapel, erected by Bishop West in the reign of Henry VIII., containing a good fan-tracery vault, has been transferred from the south to the north side of the chancel; among those buried in

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Purley (2)	Purley	13	1279
Purton cum S. F	Featherstone	175	3764
Purston Jaglin	Featherstone	175	1212
Purton (1), pa.	Purton	81	2495
Purton (1), tp.	Purton	81	2432

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pusey	Faringdon (5)	70	127
Putford, East	Bideford (9)	220	139
Putford, West	Bideford (10)	220	233
Putley	Ashperton (2)	137	217
Putney	.....	.....	17771

the churchyard is the deistical writer John Toland (d. 1722). St. Stephen's is an eccl. pa. with a modern church in E. Eng. style. There are Presbyterian, Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The almshouses founded by Sir Abraham Dawes in 1639 are now appropriated to women only. The Watermen's School arose out of a bequest of Thomas Martyn in 1684. P. is celebrated for its boating, and several well-known rowing-clubs are located here. The course of the Oxford and Cambridge Boatrace extends from P. to Mortlake; of late years P. has always been the starting-point. P. Heath, on the south side of the town, was formerly infested by highwaymen; it was also the scene of many notable duels, such as those between William Pitt and George Tierney (1798), and between George Canning and Lord Castlereagh (1809). An obelisk on the heath commemorates David Hartley's invention for securing houses against fire (1776). Among eminent natives of P. were Thomas Cromwell (b. 1490), Earl of Essex, and the historian Edward Gibbon (1737–94). William Pitt (1759–1806) died at Bowling Green House, the name of which recalls a form of recreation very popular here in the days of the Stuarts. Grantham House, Kenry House, P. Park, and The Croft are seats.

Puttenham (1), pa. and vil., W. Herts., 4 N.W. of Tring; ac. 744; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1851 and 1889) is of various periods, chiefly Dec.; the nave roof is interesting; the benches and pews are of oak, and date possibly from the time of Henry VI.

Puttenham (2), pa. and vil., S.W. Surrey, about 6 E. of Farnham; ac. 1,289; soil chalk and gravel. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1861) is partly E. Eng., partly Perp., and has a Norm. south porch. There is a small charity. The Priory, in Classic style, is a seat.

Putton, ha., pa. of West Chickerell (q.v.), S. Dors., 4 N.W. of Weymouth.

Puttsborough, coast ha. on Morte Bay, pa. of Georgeham (q.v.), N. Dev., 9 N.W. of Barnstaple.

Puxley, or Powkesley, ha., pas. of Cosgrove and Passenham (q.v.), S. Northants, 1½ N. of Passenham.

Puxton, pa. and small vil., N. Somerset, 7 N.E. of Weston-super-Mare; ac. 995; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Saviour, dating from the 13th cent., is of various periods, and contains E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. windows; the porch bears the date 1555; the west tower is more than 3 ft. out of the perpendicular; attached to the pulpit is the iron framework for an hourglass.

Pwll Caradoc, waterfall on the Ystwith, Mid Cardigs. It derives its name from the legend that Prince Caradoc leaped into the pool below the falls when defeated in battle by an inferior force.

Pwllcrochan, pa. on the south side of Milford Haven, S. Pembs., 4 W.N.W. of Pembroke; ac. 1,709 and tidal water and foreshore 731; soil fertile. The church of St. Mary is Dec. In the churchyard a skirmish took place in 1648 between the Royalist and Parliamentary forces.

Pwlldu, ha., pa. of Llanwenarth (q.v.), N.W. Mon., 5 N.W. of Abergavenny. The inhabitants are chiefly miners. The Baptists, Congregationalists, and Wesleyans have chapels.

Pwlldu Bay, an alternative name of Caswell Bay (q.v.).

Pwlldu Head, headland on south coast of Gower peninsula, between Oxwich Bay and Caswell Bay, N.E. Glamorgs., 5½ W.S.W. of Swansea. P. Head is the principal headland in Gower, and forms a conspicuous object in views from the sea. It commands very fine prospects.

Pwll Elech, ha., pa. of Llantwit Major (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 4 S. of Cowbridge.

Pwllheli (= "Salt Pool"), mun. and parl. bor., seaport, watering-place, and mkt. to. (W. & S.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., on south shore of Lleyn peninsula, pas. of Denio, Abererch, and Llannor (q.v.), N.W. Carnarvs., 19 S. by W. of Carnarvon; ac. of mun. bor. 1,373. P. takes its name from a small inlet of Tremadoc Bay, beside which it is situated. It is an ancient town, having received a charter of incorporation from Edward the Black Prince, which was subsequently continued by several kings. It belongs to the Carnarvon dis. of parl. bors. [CARNARVON.] St. Peter's Church was rebuilt in 1887. There is a Roman Catholic church and Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The town hall dates from 1818. P. carries on a brisk trade both inland and along the coast, the harbour admitting vessels of considerable burden. There are also important lobster and oyster fisheries, and shipbuilding is carried on. Its recommendations as a watering-place are the fine sandy beach (stretching upwards of 4 miles from Gimlet Rock to Llanbedrog, which forms an excellent bathing-ground) and the beautiful views of Cardigan Bay, Snowdon, and the Merioneths. mountains. In 1890 a Marine Parade was constructed along the South Beach. the part of the town frequented by visitors, and new hotels and rows of houses are springing up rapidly. Between South Beach and Gimlet Rock, on the south side of the harbour, is an excellent golf-ground.

Pye Bridge, ha. with railway station, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Alfreton (q.v.), S. Derbys. There is a Church of England mission-room.

Pyecombe, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 6 N. of Brighton; ac. 2,249; soil chalk, subsoil chalky. The church (dedication unknown) is chiefly Perp., but has traces of presumed Saxon and Norm. work. The chancel and nave are separated by a triple Norm. arch, and the leaden font dates from 1180. There is a Congregational chapel, in connection with which is a small library. A parochial library of 150 volumes is maintained at the schoolhouse. Here are the kennels of the Brighton Harriers. The Queen is lady of the manor.

Pyemoor, ha., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Downham (q.v.), Mid Cambs. There is a mission church and school; the latter is partly supported from the funds of a feoffee charity.

Pyle, pa. and vil., S. Glamorgs., about 11 S.S.E. of Neath; ac. 1,637. The church is dedicated to

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Puttenham (1)	Marston Gate (1½)	39	105
Puttenham (2)	Godalming (3½)	34	441
Puxton	Puxton	134	203
Pwllcrochan	Pembroke (3)	272	259

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pwllheli	Pwllheli	270	3231
Pyecombe	Hassocks (3)	44	373
Pyle	Pyle (1)	189	884

St. James. The churchyard contains a fine cross. Excellent building-stone is quarried, and coal is mined.

Pylle, pa. and vil., E. Somerset, 7 S.E. of Wells; ac. 1,072; soil clay, overlying blue lias. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (rebuilt, all but the tower, in 1868) is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The manufacture of cement is carried on.

Pymore, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Loders (q.v.), S.W. Dors.

Pynesford. [PAINSFORD.]

Pyrddin. [PURTHEN.]

Pyrford, pa. and vil. on the Wey, Mid Surrey, 7 N.E. of Guildford; ac. 1,860; soil and subsoil sand. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1869) is Norm. There is a small charity. A mansion built here by Sir John Woolley was inhabited by Dr. John Donne for many years.

Pyrgo. [HAVERING-ATTE-BOWER.]

Pyrieston, another name for Billingford (q.v.), S. Norf.

Pyrton, pa. and vil., S. Oxon, 1 N. from Watlington; ac. 4,847; soil light loam, overlying chalk on hills, on lower grounds rich loam, with marl and greensand subsoil. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt in E. Eng. style) retains some Norm. remains and ancient monuments. There is a small charity. The Manor House, a seat, was built in the reign of Elizabeth, and is the house from which John Hampden, on June 24, 1619, married in the church Elizabeth, daughter of Edward Simeon, Esq., the lord of the manor.

Pytchley, pa. and vil., E. Northants, 3 S.W. of Kettering; ac. 2,788; soil rich arable, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Norm. and E. Eng.; the communion plate includes a chalice dated 1570. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a Working Men's Institute, and an Allotment Association. This place was formerly the headquarters of, and gave its name to, the Pytchley Hunt, now removed to Brixworth; and the fine old mansion where the masters of this noted pack of hounds once lived has been razed to the ground. P. House, an old and substantial mansion in grounds of about 14 ac., is a seat.

Pyworthy, pa. and vil., W. Dev., about 8 W. of Bude; ac. 5,021; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The church of St. Swithin (partly restored 1885) is a Perp. building. There are Wesleyan Methodist and Bible Christian chapels, and a small charity.

Q.

Quadring, pa., S. Lincs., 2 S. of Donington, on the road to Spalding; ac. 4,210; soil clay and silt, overlying clay. The Dec. church of St. Margaret (restored 1868) has in the north aisle a tablet with the figure of an ecclesiastic holding a chalice, and an inscription to Richard Peresone, vicar (1472). There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The rent of about 100 ac. of land is devoted to various charities.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Pylle	Pylle	125	243
Pyrford	Woking (2½)	24	431
Pyrton	Watlington (2) [(2½)]	51	557
Pytchley	Isham & B. Latimer	69	528
Pyworthy	Holsworthy (2½)	218	495

Quaich, stream, Perths., Sc., rises in pa. of Kenmore (q.v.), and flows 7 E. to Loch Freuchie.

Quainton, pa. and vil., Mid Bucks., 4 N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 5,346; soil clay, overlying loam and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is of mixed periods, and contains monuments to Richard Brett (d. 1637), one of the translators of the Bible in 1604; to Robert Dormer (d. 1726); a brass to Johane Plessi (1360); to Richard Winwood (1689), with recumbent effigies; and to Sir Richard Pigott (d. 1685). There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. In 1687 eight almshouses were founded by Richard Winwood, Secretary of State to James I., and have an income of £220; there is a charity of £366 per annum for educational purposes, and another of £60. In the vil. are the remains of an old stone cross. Doddershall House, a seat, is an ancient building.

Quair, rivulet, Peebs., Sc., rises in pa. of Traquair (q.v.), and flows 7 N.E. to the Tweed, joining that river a little below Inverleithen. It affords good trout-fishing.

Quaker's Island, or Inchcleraun, island in Lough Ree, pa. of Cashel, S.W. co. Longf., Ir., 4 E. of Knockcroghery. The island is a mile long from north to south, with a maximum breadth of three furlongs. Here was an Augustinian abbey, originally founded in 540 by St. Diarmuit Naoimh. In the south part of the island there are remains of seven churches.

Quanterness, pl. with Pict's House, pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Kirkwall (q.v.), Mainland, Orkney, Sc. The Pict's House has a central chamber approached by a passage; the entire structure is 140 ft. in circuit and 12 ft. high.

Quantock Hills, hill range (highest point 1,270 ft.), N.W. Somerset, running 8 S.E. towards Taunton. "Willsneck" is the highest point. The hills are a series of irregular ridges, extending from Quantoxhead on the north to West Bagborough on the south. Red deer are found wild in some parts of the range. Extensive views may be obtained from the heights, the outlook including the Welsh hills. Q. Hills consist mainly of greywacke, with layers of limestone in places. There are quarries of limestone on the east side.

Quantoxhead, East, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, N.W. Somerset, 13½ N.W. of Bridgwater; ac. 2,302; soil stone-brash, overlying marl and gravel. The church of St. Mary was restored and partly rebuilt in 1860. The charities amount to about £35 per annum. Court House, some parts of which are very ancient, is a seat.

Quantoxhead, West, pa. and small vil. on the Bristol Channel, N.W. Somerset, 15½ N.W. of Bridgwater; ac. 1,411; soil mixed, overlying marl. The church of St. Etheldreda (rebuilt 1856) is Dec.; the nave arcades are borne by piers of Babbicombe marble. In the churchyard are the remains of an ancient cross. St. Audries, a seat, is a handsome building of different dates, and contains some good pictures, the remains of a mammoth, and some British and Roman weapons found near Q.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Quadring	Gosberton (2)	98	852
Quainton	Quainton Road	55	885
Quantoxhead, East	Williton (4)	173	199
Quantoxhead, West	Williton (2¼)	173	248

Quar, vil., pa. of Worth Matravers (q.v.), S. Dors., 3 s. of Corfe Castle.

Quarff, q.s. pa., pa. of Bressay (q.v.), Shetland, Sc., 6 s.w. of Lerwick. It extends for nearly 2 miles from shore to shore, and is terminated on either side by a bay or voe, known as the East and West Voes of Quarff.

Quarles, pa., N. Norf., 4 s.w. of Wells; ac. 596; soil rich light loam, resting on marl and gravel. The church was in ruins as long ago as 1570; what are believed to be traces of it are discernible near Q. Farm.

Quarley, pa. and vil., N.W. Hants, 6¼ s.w. by w. of Andover; ac. 1,683; soil light and friable, of the Secondary Chalk formation, overlying chalk. The Norm. and E. Eng. church of St. Michael (restored since 1882) contains several handsome monuments to the Cox family, of Crays Court. On Q. Hill (562 ft.) is a large Roman double camp, with mound of circumvallation. Formerly there were entrenchments extending along Cholderton Hill, and three others in different directions, but these have now been levelled.

Quarlton, tp., pa. of and 5 N.N.E. from Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.; ac. 798. There are calico-print works here.

Quarmby. [LINDLEY-CUM-QUARMBY.]

Quarndon, pa. and vil., Mid Derbys., 3 N.N.W. of Derby; ac. 778; soil sand, clay, and loam, subsoil various. The old church of Q. was a Norm. building with a good south doorway; it was enlarged in 1835, and the sole remnant of the building is the tower. The present church of St. Paul was built in 1874, in E. Eng. and Perp. styles. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Quarnford, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Alstonefield (q.v.), W. Staffs., 5 s.w. of Buxton; ac. 3,138. The church of St. Paul was built 1744. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Q. has some small charities.

Quarr Abbey. [BINSTEAD.]

Quarrelton, mining vil., pa. of Abbey (q.v.), N.E. Renfs., Sc., 4 w. by s. of Paisley.

Quarrelwood, ha., pa. of Kirkmahoe (q.v.), S.W. Dumfs., Sc., about 3 N.W. of Dumfries.

Quarrendon, pa. and small vil., Mid Bucks., 2 N.W. of Aylesbury; ac. 2,080. There is no church in the pa. The ruins of the chapel of St. Peter show remains of E. Eng. and later work, the chapel was last used in 1746.

Quarrington (1), pa., Mid Lincs., 1½ s.w. of Sleaford; ac. 1,620. At the time of the Domesday survey there were two churches here. The church of St. Botolph is Dec.

Quarrington (2), vil., pa. of Kelloe (q.v.), Mid Dur., 6 s.w. of Durham. [CASSOP-CUM-QUARRINGTON.]

Quarry Bank, eccl. pa., pa. of Kingswinford (q.v.), W. Staffs., about 1 s.E. of Brierley Hill. Christ Church (1847) is in E. Eng. style. There are also Wesleyan, Methodist, New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Quarry Hill, ha., pa. of Bolton (q.v.), W. Cumb., 1½ N.W. of Ireby.

Quarter (1), vil. forming part of Darngaber (q.v.), pa. of Hamilton, N.W. Lanarks, Sc.

Quarter (2), estate with seat of the same name, on the Holms, W. Peebs., Sc., about 2 s.w. of Broughton railway station.

Quarter (3), estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Dunipace (q.v.), E. Stirls., Sc., about 2 N. of Denny.

Quarter Bach, pa. on the Amman, S.E. Carmarths., bordering Glamorgs., 7 s.E. of Llandilo; ac. 7,70[illegible]. The pa. contains tin and iron works and coal mines.

Quarter Mawr, ha., pa. of Llanddausaint (q.v.), E. Carmarths., 5½ s.E. of Llangadock.

Quarter, West. [WEST QUARTER.]

Quatford, pa., tp., and vil. on the Severn, S. Salop, 2 s.E. of Bridgnorth; ac. of pa. 1,813, of tp. 512; soil sandy, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is an ancient building, portions of it (including the chancel arch and font) being Norm. There are some curious old monumental slabs. Here was anciently a college founded in the reign of William II. and united to the college of St. Mary at Bridgnorth in 1101. On a picturesque rock overhanging the Severn is an earthwork, in which a party of Danes are said to have wintered. Q. Castle is a seat.

Quatt, pa. and vil. on the Severn, S.E. Salop, 4 s.E. of Bridgnorth; ac. 2,674; soil and subsoil vary from very light sand to strong clay. The church of St. Andrew is of different periods, the chancel and Wolryche chapel are E. Eng., and the nave and tower Georgian. There are a number of small charities. Dudmaston Hall is a seat.

Quebec, vil., pa. of and 4 s. from Lanchester (q.v.), N. Dur.

Quedgeley, pa. and vil., W. Gloucs., 3 s. of Gloucester; ac. 1,540; soil blue lias, subsoil various. The church of St. James (restored 185[illegible]) is largely modern, but has a 12th-cent. tower. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small. Q. House is a seat.

Queenborough, pa., mun. bor., and small mkt. to., Isle of Sheppey, N. Kent, 2 s. of Sheerness; ac. of pa. and mun. bor. 298. It is situated on the Swale, the channel separating Sheppey from Elmley, and Harty from the mainland of Kent, extending for 16 miles from Q. to Whitstable; this channel is about ¼ mile broad, and is celebrated for its oyster-beds; it connects the Medway with the Thames, and was formerly the regular ship-passage into that river. Q. town returned two members to Parliament up to 1832, when it was disfranchised under the Reform Act. The pa. church of Holy Trinity (restored 1885)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Quarff	Thurso (144)	744	987
Quarles	Walsingham (4)	132	15
Quarley	Grateley (3)	73	148
Quarlton	Turton (½)	201	251
Quarndon	Duffield (2)	133	451
Quarnford, eccl. pa.	Buxton (5)	165	651
Quarnford, tp.	Buxton (5)	165	343
Quarrendon	Aylesbury (1½)	43	52

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Pop. LATION.
Quarrington (1)	Sleaford (1½)	112	4
Quarry Bank	Cradley (½)	138	67
Quarter Bach	Llandilo	230	15
Quatford, pa.	Bridgenorth (2)	149	4
Quatford, tp.	Bridgenorth (2)	149	1
Quatt	Hampton Loade (2)	145	4
Quedgeley	Gloucester (3)	114	4
Queenborough	Queenborough	50	10

n the Gothic style of the 14th cent. There are lso Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The uildhall, almost in the centre of the bor., is a uilding of two storeys, principally of brick, with projecting upper storey, supported on four pillars, bove which is a clock; the ground floor, formerly prison and market-place, has been reconstructed, nd now comprises a town clerk's office, public ibrary, and reading-room; on the first floor is the uildhall proper, with a library which contains ome ancient legal and historical works. The yster fishery, once very considerable, has de-reased greatly in value. There are glue and hemical-manure factories, and it was here that he first copperas factory was established in Eng-and. It is, however, mainly as the starting-point or the London, Chatham and Dover Railway mail-steamers to Flushing that Q. is noted. These leave twice daily, and are largely patronised. Q. was founded by Edward III., who built here a castle called Sheppey Castle, which was demolished in the time of the Commonwealth, and of which only a part of the moat now remains, and the well, the property of the railway company. It was after Edward III.'s queen, Philippa, that the town received its name. The castle was built for Edward III. by William of Wykeham, and is his most original military work. There is an annual fair.

THE SWALE AT QUEENBOROUGH.

Queenbower, pl., pa. of and nearly 1 E. from Newchurch (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants. Queen Anne had a bower here, where she occasionally stayed for the hawking.

Queen Camel, pa. and vil., S.E. Somerset, 5½ N.E. of Ilchester; ac. 2,491; soil sandy clay, overlying clay and blue lias. The church of St. Barnabas (restored 1886) is a Gothic building, containing a carved oak screen, an old font, and some mural monuments to the Mildmay family. Here is a mineral spring, with properties similar to the Harrogate waters. Cattle fairs are held on Trinity Thursday and Oct. 25. Hazelgrove is a seat.

Queen Charlton, pa., N.E. Somerset, 5 S.E. of Bristol; ac. 952; soil clay, overlying gravelly and white lias. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1861) has a Norm. tower. Near the highroad from Bristol are the remains of an ancient cross, and there still stands the Norm. gateway of the court-house of the Abbots of Keynsham.

Queenhill, eccl. pa. and tp. on the Severn, pa. of Ripple (q.v.), S. Worcs., 5 N.W. of Tewkesbury; ac. 650. The church of St. Lawrence, formerly dedicated to St. Nicholas (restored 1855 and 1893), has an E. Eng. chancel and a Norm. doorway; there is a fine oak screen, a brass to Nicholas Barnes (1624), an alabaster tomb to Barbara Leight (1644), and monuments to the Knottesford and Barnes families. There is a small charity.

Queeniborough, or Queniborough, pa. and vil., Mid Leics., 6½ N.N.E. of Leicester; ac. 1,390; soil sand and clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1858) is Dec.; it contains a brass to Margaret Bury (d. 1633). There are Baptist and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are small. Stilton cheese is made. Q Hall is a seat.

Queensberry. [POWFOOT.]

Queensberry Hill, mountain (2,285 ft.), pa. of Closeburn (q.v.), N. Dumfs., Sc., about 8 N.E. of Thornhill.

Queensbury, eccl. pa. and to., pas. of Halifax and Bradford (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3½ N. of Halifax, on the road to Bradford. It is probable that this road was a Roman vicinal way, and that Q., a necessary halting-place on the route, is of equal

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Queen Camel	Sparkford (1)	125	562
Queen Charlton	Keynsham (3)	114	110
Queenhill, eccl. pa.	Upton-on-Severn(2½	172	170
Queenhill, tp.	Upton-on-Severn(2½	172	90
Queeniborough	Syston (2)	104	510
Queensbury	Queensbury	196	6740

antiquity. The church of Holy Trinity (restored 1885) is in Gothic style. There are Baptist, Congregational, Methodist, New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels. A horse and cattle fair is held annually on the first Thursday and Friday following the second Monday in August. Stone quarries are worked largely here, and coal mines to some extent. Q. has increased rapidly in population, mainly from the extensive alpaca, mohair, worsted spinning and manufacturing business carried on here, which provides employment for about 2,500 operatives. The Victoria Hall, Institute, and Public Bath was opened in 1888. The name of the town was changed from Queenshead to Queensbury at a public meeting (May 8, 1863), and the change was further celebrated on Whit-Tuesday in the same year by the inauguration of the Albert Memorial, a drinking fountain in the Gothic style of the 13th cent.

Queen's Cave, in Deepden ravine, S. Northumbs., about 2 s. of Hexham. It derives its name from the story that Queen Margaret and her son Edward took refuge here after the battle of Hexham.

Queen's Channel (1), navigable channel at mouth of the Thames estuary, between Margate and Tongue Sand, 4 N.W. of Margate. It is 3 miles in length, with a depth ranging from 4 to 11 fathoms.

Queen's Channel (2), east entrance of Waterford Harbour, between N.E. co. Waterf. and S.W. co. Wex., Ir.

Queen's County (named in honour of Queen Mary, in whose reign the co. was established), an inland co. of Ireland, province of Leinster, bounded on the north by King's Co., on the west by Tipperary, on the south by Kilkenny and Carlow, and on the east by Kildare. Its greatest length from north to south is 30 miles, and from east to west 33 miles. Its total area is 424,853 acres, of which 31 per cent. is cultivated land, 52 per cent. grazing land, 11 per cent. bog and mountain waste, 2 per cent. timber, and 4 per cent. water, roads, buildings, etc. There is a fair proportion of fertile soil, especially in the centre and south, though interspersed in many parts by partially-reclaimed bog; the grazing-land is often excellent. The small size of the holdings and the consequent insufficiency of the capital employed tends to retard agriculture, but in this respect the co. still compares favourably with most parts of Ireland. The chief crops are oats, barley, potatoes, and turnips. Sheep and cattle are raised and exported in large numbers. There is hilly ground along the north-western border of the co., where the Slieve Bloom attain, in Ardern Mountain, an elevation of 1,733 ft. To the southward and eastward from this range the ground sinks into an undulating plain which rises again into hills towards the south-eastern border. The chief rivers are the Nore (which with its numerous tributaries drains the central depression) and the Barrow, flowing along the eastern margin of the co. There are a few lakelets, of which Anaghmore is the principal. Branches of the Grand Canal enter the co. on the east. The railway communication is supplied by the Great Southern and Western Company, whose main line from Dublin splits in the co. into two branches, running respectively to the south and west of Ireland. The oldest rocks are found on the highest ground, the Slieve Bloom consisting of a core of much-disturbed slaty and gritty rocks of Ordovician age, with a belt of reddish conglomerates, grits, and shales of Upper Old Red Sandstone age resting on their denuded edges. The latter rocks pass upwards into the Carboniferous strata, with which indeed they are often classed; and as their dip is away from the hills, they soon disappear beneath the overlying series. The rest of the co. is occupied by rocks of Carboniferous age, the lower portion being chiefly sandstones and shales, succeeded by limestones, which underlie the central and northern plains, and are covered in turn in the hilly ground further east by Coal Measure sandstones and shales, with thin seams of anthracite coal, forming the northern edge of the Castlecomer or Kilkenny coalfield. Coal has been mined in these rocks near the southern border of the co., but is now about exhausted. In the valley of the Barrow the underlying limestones again emerge. The limestones and sandstones furnish good building-stone, and the former have also been worked for ornamental marble. In the Coal Measures are beds of clay-iron stone, which, with veins of limonite in the limestone, were extensively worked and smelted in the 16th and 17th cents. in the vicinity of Maryborough until the forests which supplied the fuel were exhausted. The "solid" rocks of the co. on the lower ground are generally deeply covered by boulder clay and gravel, left by the ice which covered the district during the Glacial Period, the gravels being frequently piled up in long ridges or eskers, supposed to mark the course of rivers on or in the ice-sheet. The effect of these deposits in blocking the drainage has given rise to many peat bogs, which are dug for fuel. In these bogs are occasionally found the bones of the extinct gigantic Irish elk. The co. contains numerous interesting relics of antiquity, among which are several prehistoric forts and the ruins of the old castle of the O'Moores on the rock of Dunamase, and of Lea Castle, dismantled in 1650; while at Aghaboe and elsewhere are the remains of ecclesiastical buildings. The early history of the co. seems to have been vaguely tumultuous, without salient features. Maryborough is the co. town, and other towns are Mountmellick, Portarlington, and Stradbally. There are some fine country seats. The chief industry is agriculture, and there is some milling and the manufacture of woollens and cotton. For parl. purposes the co. contains two divs. (Ossory and Leix), each returning one member.

Queensferry, parl. and royal burgh, pa., and small seaport on the Firth of Forth, N. Linlithgs., Sc.; ac. of pa. 11. The to., which extends into the pa. of Dalmeny, lies at the south end of the Forth Bridge, and about 8 E. of Bo'ness, and is sometimes styled South Q., to distinguish it from the town of the same name on the north shore of the Firth of Forth, and took its name from the use made of the ferry by Margaret, the queen of Malcolm Canmore, in her journeys to and from Dunfermline. The burgh unites with Stirling, Culross, Inverkeithing, and Dunfermline in returning one member to Parliament. There is a good harbour, accessible at any time, and about ½ mile distant is the Dalmeny railway station. There is a ferry with pier at

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. Port-fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Queen's County	.....	.....	61883
Q'ferry, pa. & roy. bur.	Queensferry, South	406	768

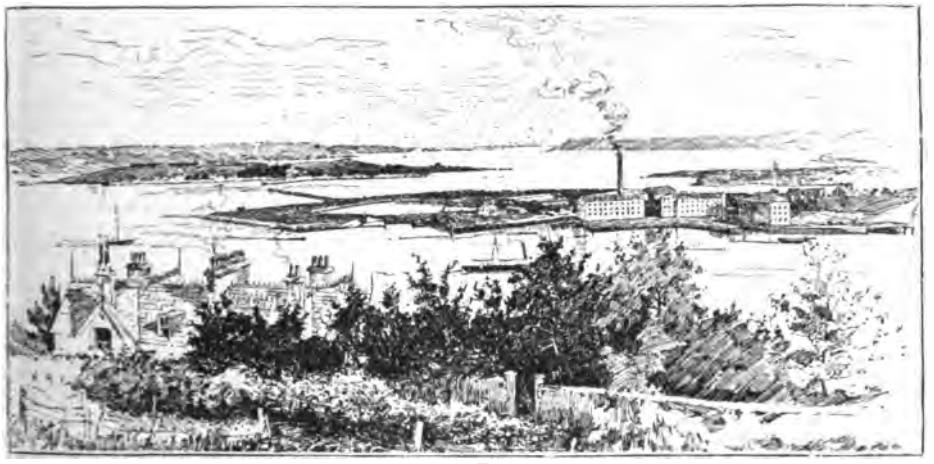
Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. Port-fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Q'ferry, parl. bur. & to.	Queensferry, South	406	1531

Newhalls (a little east of the town) over the Forth, and another pier a short distance to the west for boats when they cannot make the former point. On a height above the town stands Dundas Castle, with a modern house adjoining and bearing the same name. The old Town House has a good steeple. About ½ w. is Port Edgar, so named from Edgar Atheling having landed there. From this place George IV., when on a visit to Scotland, embarked on his return to England. A clock has been erected in the centre of the vil. in commemoration of Queen Victoria's Jubilee (1887). In 1893 Lord Rosebery erected the Countess of Rosebery Memorial Hall; it contains a library and reading-room, billiard and games rooms, and a hall for concerts and public meetings, which serves also as a town hall for the burgh.

Queensferry, North, vil. and sea-bathing resort, pa. of and 2 s. from Inverkeithing (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc. It stands on the point of land opposite to Queensferry (or South Queensferry), in Linliths., and a steamer passes between the two several times daily. The Forth Bridge, for carrying the North British Railway over the Firth of Forth, forms a connection at this place. A short distance to the west of the vil. is the anchorage ground called "St. Margaret's Hope," resorted to by vessels in stress of weather or contrary winds. Here is a station of the coastguard, and a fishing ground for a kind of sprat, of which quantities are taken. There are whinstone quarries, employing a number of me...

Queensbead. [QUEENSBURY.]

Queenstown (formerly known as the Cove of Cork), seaport, pas. of Clonmel and Templerobin (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir. It obtained its present name in commemoration of the visit of Queen Victoria in 1849. This charmingly-situated town overlooks and almost literally overhangs the spacious basin of Inner Cork Harbour, and occupies the steep and northern face of a hill, rising terrace above terrace, from near the edge of the water to a considerable height. The principal streets are wide and regularly built, with handsome ranges of houses, shops, good hotels, and lodging-houses. The salubrity of the climate, the comparative equality of the temperature, and the dryness of the atmosphere add to its attractions. The Protestant church of the united pas. of Clonmel and Templerobin is a handsome structure, and there is also a church at Whitepoint. The Catholic diocese of Cloyne has its seat here; it is of early date, having been formed in the 6th cent.; the cathedral, dedicated to St. Colman, and one of Pugin's graceful structures, cruciform in shape, but the tower yet incomplete, will hold 3,000 persons. The first stone was laid in 1868 by Bishop Keane (1857–74), who was instrumental in its erection and is buried in the crypt. The other places of worship are for Wesleyans and Presbyterians. The principal institutions comprise a fever hospital, a dispensary, and parochial almshouse. There are also loan and charitable coal funds, and a benevolent society for poor tradesmen. Somewhat to the east of Q. is a fort, over which is the military hospital. In a cemetery surrounding the ruins of Clonmel church, a short distance from Q., lie the remains of Tobin, the author of "The Honeymoon," and Wolfe, the author of the pathetic verses upon the death of Sir John Moore. Q. is admirably situated and suited for commerce: the harbour is formed on one side by Great Island, and on the other by the mainland and Spike Island, which enclose an oval basin sufficiently capacious to contain and shelter the whole navy of England, protected by a formidable battery on Spike Island, and the entrance further defended by the Carlisle and Camden forts, on two lofty cliffs on either side. A quay has been constructed the whole length of Whitepoint, which forms a most extensive esplanade, and a pier has been constructed in front of West Beach at the expense of the Government. The banks on each side of the harbour are occupied



QUEENSTOWN HARBOUR.
(Photo. Guy and Co., Cork.)

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Queensferry, North	Queensferry, North	407	410

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Queenstown	Queenstown	178	9082

by seats and tasteful grounds of the gentry or merchants of Cork. Q. is the principal naval station in Ireland, and contains the residence of the rear-admiral commanding the Irish district and the coastguard; and is the great port for the embarkation of troops to Canada and the colonies, for the transmission of the American mails, and the port of call for the largest mail steamers. It is also the great southern station for Government emigration, for which latter purpose an efficient agent is stationed here. The Royal Cork Yacht Club hold their annual regatta here. On the Columbine Quay is a yacht club-house for the members.

Queenwood College. [BUCKHOLT, EAST AND WEST.]

Queich, North, stream, N. Kinrs., Sc., rises in Fossoway and Tullibole pa., among the Ochil Hills, near the Perths. border, and flows 6½ E. by S. through Orwell pa., and afterwards partly through Kinross pa., entering Loch Leven 1¼ N.N.E. of Kinross. Trout descend the stream in large quantities to Loch Leven, and the stream also contains perch, pike, and eels.

Queich, South, stream, S.E. Perths. and Mid Kinrs., Sc., rises in Perths., among the Ochil Hills, close to the Kinrs. border, and, after flowing about 4 miles between Perths. and Kinrs., traverses the pas. of Fossoway and Tullibole and of Kinross, entering Loch Leven at the to. of Kinross. The general direction of its course is E.S.E., with a total length of nearly 10 miles.

Quemerford, ti., pa. and about 1 S.E. of the to. of Calne (q.v.), N. Wilts. The church of the Holy Trinity (chapel-of-ease) is in Gothic style; and the Plymouth Brethren have a place of worship.

Quenby, ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Hungarton (q.v.), Mid Leics. Q. Hall is a fine Elizabethan mansion, standing on an eminence in a large and well-wooded park.

Quendale Bay, inlet of the sea, pa. of Dunrossness (q.v.), near south extremity of Mainland, Shetland, Sc., 19½ S. by W. of Lerwick. The bay is distant between 2 and 3 miles from Sumburgh Head (q.v.). It is about 3½ miles wide at its entrance, extends about 2 miles inland, and affords good anchorage for fishing-vessels. Q. House stands at its north-west extremity.

Quendon, small pa. and vil. near the source of the Cam, W. Essex, 6 N. of Bishop's Stortford; ac. 630; soil mixed. The church (dedication unknown) was rebuilt 1861, in E. Eng. style. Q. Hall is a seat.

Queniborough. [QUEENIBOROUGH.]

Quenington, pa. and vil. on the Coln, S.E. Gloucs., 8½ N.E. of Cirencester; ac. 1,996; soil stone-brash, overlying rock and clay. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1882) has two Norm. doorways. There is a Congregational chapel and a meeting-room of the Plymouth Brethren. The charities are small.

Quenny, stream, S. Salop. It rises in Wenlock Edge, and flows 8 S.E. to the Onny, which it joins at Halford.

Quenvais, sandy tract, pa. of St. Brelade (q.v.), S.W. Jersey, Channel Islands, 4½ W. by N. of St. Helier. The Q. lies some distance above the sea, stretching north and west of St. Brelade's Bay as far as the low sandy ground skirting the south portion of St. Ouen's Bay. It was once a fertile district, but appears to have been overwhelmed by the sand towards the close of the 15th cent. The sands, blown inland from St. Ouen's Bay by the frequent westerly gales, have now covered large tracts of upland in the interior.

Quernmore, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Lune, pa. of and 2 N.E. from Lancaster (q.v.), N.W. Lancs.; ac. 6,789. The church of St. Peter (erected 1834) was rebuilt 1860, in Trans. style. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel and a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. Roman pottery works have been discovered in the tp., which was disafforested by Act of Parliament in 1811. Escow-Beck Hall, Q. Park, and Scarthwaite are seats.

Querrin, pl., pa. of Moyarta (q.v.), S.W. co. Clare, Ir., 5 S.W. of Kilrush.

Quethiock, pa. and vil., S.E. Cornw., 4 E. of Liskeard; ac. 4,531; soil heavy, overlying clay slate. The church of St. Hugh is an interesting building of Perp. date; the tower is a fine specimen of Dec. work; in the south transept is a stone with brass effigies to Roger Kyngdon (d. 1471), Joan his wife, and sixteen children, one of the sons, wearing a crown, supposed to be Ed. Kyngdon, Yeoman of the Guard 1461–84, another to be Walter Kyngdon, prebendary of Coppenhall and rector of St. Martin, East Looe (d. 1515); on the wall are brasses to Richard Chiverton (d. 1617) and Isabella, his wife (d. 1631), and eleven children; there are also memorials to Hugh Vashbond (d. 1599), Obadiah Ghossip (d. 1659), and to the families of Hawkins and Leane. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and almshouses with a small endowment. A cattle fair is held here the last Monday in January.

Quex, or Great Quex, seat, pa. of Birchington (q.v.), E. Kent, a little south of Birchington vil. At the old house William III. was accustomed to stay on his passage to and from his Dutch dominions. The present house is modern.

Quidenham, pa. and picturesque vil. in a valley, S. Norf., 10 N.E. of Thetford; ac. 1,142; soil light, overlying marl and clay. The E. Eng. church of St. Andrew has a Norm. porch, and the chancel retains a piscina and triple sedilia; embedded in the vestry wall are three Saxon pillars, probably part of the base of a font. The highroad from the church to Kenninghall, a mile in length, is lined with trees, forming an unbroken canopied avenue. There is a marble tablet to Lady Sophia (Keppel), eldest daughter of the 4th Earl of Albemarle and wife of Sir James Macdonald, Bart. (d. 1824); and there are two others to the Holland family dated 1679 and 1700. Q. Hall, a large mansion of red brick, with a portico on the eastern front supported by four lofty circular columns of brick, stands in a well-timbered park of 320 ac., in the midst of which is a barrow surrounded by lofty Scotch firs; there is also a small mere in the park, affording excellent fishing.

Quidhampton, ha., pa. of Fugglestone St. Peter (q.v.), S. Wilts., about 2 W. of Salisbury.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Quendon	Elsenham (3)	36	171
Quenington	Fairford (2)	89	366
Quernmore	Lancaster (4)	230	576
Quethiock	Menheniot (2¼)	256	445
Quidenham	Harling Road (2)	98	161

Quilca House. [MULLAGH.]

Quin, pa. and vil. (with railway station 1 mile distant), Upper Bunratty bar., Mid co. Clare, Ir., about 5 S.E. of Ennis; ac. 9,352. The ruin of Quin Abbey, which is completely covered with ivy, is one of the most perfect of these edifices in Ireland; it consists of an unroofed nave and chancel, with a tower rising at the junction, and is considered to have been erected in A.D. 402. Petty sessions are held here every fourth Wednesday, and fairs on July 7 and Nov. 1. Knoppoge Castle is a seat.

Quinag, mountain (2,653 ft.), pa. of Assynt (q.v.), W. Suths., Sc., 8 N.E. of Lochinver, about midway between Kyle Sku on the north and Loch Assynt on the south. It forms a conspicuous feature in the views from Loch Assynt.

Quine's Hill, eminence, pa. of Braddan (q.v.), S. I. of M., 2½ S.W. of Douglas. The hill commands fine views. Near the summit are some interesting antiquities, including a stone circle and a tumulus, originally about 20 ft. long and 15 ft. broad, in which a funeral urn and other relics have been found.

Quintin Bay, inlet of the sea, pa. of Ballyphilip (q.v.), east coast of co. Down, Ir., 2½ E. of Portaferry. The bay is about 1¼ mile wide at its mouth, and extends upwards of ½ mile inland. Q. Castle, close to the shore, is a handsome castellated edifice incorporating an old Norm. castle.

Quinton (1), pa., tp., and vil., N.E. Glouc., 6 S.W. of Stratford-on-Avon; ac. of pa. 3,454, of tp. 2,458; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1864) is Norm. and later, with a fine west tower; it contains an altar-tomb to Sir Thomas Rous (d. 1499), another to Ann Clopton (c. 1430), a memorial to Sir Thomas Overbury (d. 1680), and monuments to the Corbett family; there are sedilia and a piscina and fragments of old glass in the south aisle, a piscina and canopied niche in the north aisle, and a Norm. font. The pa. has several charities and a small endowment for the school.

Quinton (2), pa., S. Northants, 4½ S.S.E. of Northampton; ac. 1,170; soil clay and marl, overlying rock. The church is E. Eng. There is a charity of £5 yearly value for the poor.

Quinton (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Halesowen (q.v.), from which it is distant 2 E., N. Worcs. Christ Church is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyans, Baptists, and Primitive Methodists have places of worship. Here is a convalescent cottage hospital. Some hand nailmaking is carried on.

Quinton (4), ha., pa. of Bockleton (q.v.), W. Worcs., 5 S. of Leominster.

Quinton (5), another form of Quainton (q.v.).

Quiraing, mountain (1,780 ft.), pa. of Kilmuir (q.v.), N. of Skye, Sc. It consists of a number of wonderful rock formations, the "Needle Rock" and the "Table" being the most notable.

Quither, ha., pa. of Milton Abbot (q.v.), W. Dev., 6 S.W. of Tavistock.

Quixhill, ha., pa. of Rocester (q.v.), E. Staffs., 5½ N. of Uttoxeter.

Quoditch, ha., pa. of Ashwater (q.v.), S. Dev., 7 E.S.E. of Holsworthy.

Quoich, Loch, pas. of Kilmonivais and Kilmalie (q.v.), W. Invs., Sc. It is about 5 miles long by 1 mile broad. Glenquoich (q.v.) has its southern termination here.

Quoich Water, stream, pa. of Crathie and Braemar (q.v.), S.W. Abers., Sc. It rises between Ben a' Bourd and Ben Avon, and joins the Dee 2 S.W. of Castleton of Braemar. One mile above its mouth is the beautiful fall known as the Linn of Quoich.

Quoile, river, E. co. Down, Ir., flows into Lough Strangford. It is the tidal portion of the Ballynahinch (q.v.).

Quoisley, pl., pa. of Marbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., about 8 S.W. of Nantwich. Q. Mere covers 21 ac. [MARBURY-CUM-QUOISLEY.]

Quorndon, or Quorn, tp. and to. on the Soar, pa. of Barrow-on-Soar (q.v.), N.W. Leics., 2½ S.E. of Loughborough; ac. 1,990; soil light and sandy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1873) is chiefly E. Eng.—the north doorway, however, is Norm.; the Farnham chapel contains some memorials of that family, including two brasses to Ed. Farnham (d. 1775) and his wife. Thomas Walton was "intending minister" here in 1645. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Free Methodist chapels. The charities amount to over £250 per annum. The kennels of the Quorn Hunt are here.

Quothquan, vil., pa. of Libberton (q.v.), W. Lanarks., Sc., about 2 N. of Symington.

Quy. [STOW-WITH-QUY.]

R.

Raasay Island, pa. of Portree (q.v.), Inner Hebrides, Invs., Sc. It is about 13 miles long and from 2 to 4 miles broad, and lies to the east of Skye, opposite Portree, and separated from it by the Sound of Raasay, about 4 miles wide. The area is about 18,000 ac.; the soil is better adapted for pasturage than tillage, though there are several spots of fertile and well-cultivated land. Freestone of excellent quality abounds. To the north of a hill called Duncan are the ruins of Brochel Castle. R. House is a seat.

Rabbit Island (1), pa. of Myross (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., near Glandore Harbour.

Rabbit Island (2), on Lough Corrib, pa. of Kilcummin (q.v.), N. co. Galway, Ir.

Rabbit Islands, three islands, pa. of Tongue (q.v.), N. Suths., Sc., in the mouth of the Kyle of Tongue. They derive their name from the fact that they are occupied by swarms of rabbits.

Rabley, ha., pa. of Ridge (q.v.), Mid Herts., 4 N.W. of Barnet.

Raby, tp. and vil., pa. of and about 2 N.E. from Neston (q.v.), W. Chesh.; ac. 693.

Raby and Keverston, tp., pa. of Staindrop (q.v.), S. Dur., 7½ N.E. of Barnard Castle; ac. 2,644. Raby Castle, about 1 N. of Staindrop, is one of the finest and perhaps the most perfect of the castles of the

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Quin, pa.	Ardsollus & Quin (1)	149	1162
Quin, vil.	Ardsollus & Quin (1)	149	179
Quinton (1), pa.	Long Marston (1)	105	565
Quinton (1), tp.	Long Marston (1)	105	447
Quinton (2)	Roade (2)	60	104
Quinton (3)	Halesowen (2)	138	3223
Quorndon	Barrow-on-Soar (1)	109	1888
Raasay Island	Strome Ferry (40)	661	438
Raby	Bromborough (2)	189	339
Raby and Keverston	Winston (2¾)	243	266

North of England. It stands on a gently-rising ground, in the midst of a park of 940 ac., with considerable woods on the north-east and south-west; and although the site is low, the great pile of buildings, rising from a terraced platform, founded on the solid rock, produce, with their massive embattled towers and numerous turrets, an effect at once stately and picturesque. The castle is traditionally said to occupy a spot where stood, in the 11th cent., a mansion given by Canute to the monastery of Durham, and of which the south-east (or Bulmer's) tower has been asserted to form a part; but this portion of the fortress is, with greater probability, referred to Bertram, lord of Bulmer and Brancepath, whose only daughter and heiress, Emma, married about 1190 Geoffrey de Nevill; the rest of the castle is chiefly of the 14th cent. The buildings form in plan an irregular trapezium; the whole is surrounded by a spacious terrace of varying height, enclosed by an embattled enceinte, with small square bastions projecting at intervals, the whole area within this wall comprising about 3 ac.; immediately beyond, and encompassing the castle on the west, north, and east, is the moat, now dry. The wide gateway has a portcullis and a postern on one side; in the lodge is preserved the sword worn by Henry (Vane), Viscount Barnard, at the battle of Fontenoy (May 11, 1745). To the north of the castle, on rising ground, are the extensive gardens, divided into sections by walls and enormous yew-hedges 10 ft. thick and 11 ft. in height.

Racavan, pa., Lower Antrim bar., Mid co. Antr., Ir., 2 N.E. of Ballymena; ac. 17,565. It contains the vil. of Broughshane, in which is the pa. church.

Race Bank, sandbank near the coast of Norf., between Dudgeon Shoal and Docking Sand, 20 N.W. of Cromer. The shoal is 7 miles in length, and has a buoy. The depth of the sea above it varies from 2 to 10 fathoms.

Raceit, ha. on the Lowther, pa. of and 1 W. from Shap (q.v.), N. Westmd.

Rackenford, pa. and vil. on the Little Dart, N. Dev., 8 N.W. of Tiverton; ac. 3,938; soil clayey, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints is E. Eng.; the font dates from the time of Henry VII. There is a Bible Christian chapel. The charities are small. Cruwyshaye, Higher Thorne, and Tidderson, an old house, are seats.

Rackham, tp., pa. of and ½ E. from Amberley (q.v.), Mid Sussex; ac. 960.

Rackheath, pa. and small vil., E. Norf., 4½ N.E. of Norwich; ac. 2,009; soil sand and gravel, overlying sand. The church of All Saints (restored 1886), ½ mile from the vil., in a meadow, is Perp. Here was formerly a priory. R. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Racks, vil. with railway station, near left bank of Lochar Water, pa. of Torthorwald (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc., about 4 S.E. of Dumfries.

Racton, pa., W. Sussex, 6 N.W. of Chichester; ac. 1,178; soil chalk and marl. The church (dedication unknown), restored 1875, is E. Eng. and Perp.; in the chancel is a monument to Hugh Gounter and his wife, and there are other memorials to the same family. Lordington House was in the 15th cent. the property of the Poles, and Reginald Pole may have been born here; the house retains some panelling and a fine oak staircase. Only small remains of the Manor House exist.

Radbourne, pa. and vil., S. Derbys., 5½ W. of Derby; ac. 2,034; soil loam and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1888) is E. Eng.; the font, from Dale Abbey, has a finely-carved oak cover; there are several monuments (one being to Sir Peter de la Pole) and fragments of two piscinæ. R. Hall is a seat.

Radbourn, Lower, pa., E. Warws., about 3½ S.E. of Southam, on the Northants border; ac. 515.

Radbourn, Upper, pa., E. Warws., about 3 S.E. of Southam, on the Northants border; ac. 631.

Radcliffe, pa. and mkt.-to. (F.), S.E. Lancs., 7 N.N.W. of Manchester; ac. 3,242. The name is derived from a cliff of red rock on the south-east side of the Irwell, which passes through the town. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored 1870–73) dates from 1282; the tower and some other portions are Norm., the south transept of 15th-cent. work, and the north transept and chancel of modern date; the south transept, or "Sun" chapel, was restored in 1845; the carved oak reading-desk was the gift of the Rev. Charles Beswick, rector in 1665. There are several memorial windows and some remains of ancient glass depicting the arms of the Radcliffe family and various crowned heads. The church contains a monument of alabaster to James de Radcliffe and his wife, which has been restored. There are three eccl. pas. with modern churches. St. Mary's Catholic church, with presbytery and school, dates from 1877. The Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, and Congregationalists have chapels. The market-house was built in 1851. The manufactures comprehend cotton-spinning and calico-printing, gingham, fustian, nankeen, and check weaving, and the making of small wares; dyeing, paper-making, iron-founding, and machine-making are also carried on here. There are several coal mines in the parish, affording abundance of good coal. Radcliffe Tower, now in ruins, was one of the most considerable manorial residences in the co.; there is no precise information as to its date, but it appears that Richard Radcliffe, High Sheriff of Lancashire, 32 Edward I. (1303–4), was of Radcliffe Tower. From him were descended the Radcliffes, Earls of Derwentwater. The last holder of this title was executed after the abortive rising in favour of the Stuarts in 1715, and his estates confiscated in favour of Greenwich Hospital.

Radcliffe cum Farnworth Division, one of the 23 divs. of Lancs. It lies in the south-east of the co., and returns one member.

Radcliffe-upon-Trent, or Ratcliffe-upon-Trent, pa. and large vil. on the Trent, S. Notts., 6 S.E. of Nottingham; ac. 2,173; soil loamy clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1879) is a Gothic building. The charities amount to about £125 per annum. Malting is carried on.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Racavan	Ballymena (2)	138	3857
Rackenford	Tiverton (8)	179	289
Rackham	Amberley	55	134
Rackheath	Norwich (4)	114	324
Racton	Emsworth (3)	77	100
Radbourne	Derby (5½)	128	230

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Radbourn, Lower	Fenny Compton (2)	85	14
Radbourn, Upper	Fenny Compton (2)	85	17
Radcliffe	Radcliffe	193	20021
R. cum Farnw'th Div.	.....	.....	72031
Radcliffe-up'n-Trent	Radcliffe-on-Trent	123	1868

Radclive, pa. on the Ouse, N.W. Bucks., 1½ W. by N. f Buckingham; ac. 1,132; soil mixed, principally ravelly, subsoil various. The church of St. John ie Evangelist is Trans. Norm. and E. Eng.

Radcot, tp., pa. of and 3½ S.E. from Langford).v.), W. Oxon; ac. 438. There is an old bridge ere across the Isis, perhaps dating from the 13th cent., and in 1387 the scene of a skirmish between Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, and the disaffected ubles under Henry, Earl of Derby (afterwards Henry IV.), and Thomas, Duke of Gloucester.

RADCOT BRIDGE.

Raddington, pa. and vil., S.W. Somerset, 10 N.W. of Wellington; ac. 1,505; soil white clay-slate, overlying rock. The church of St. Michael (restored 1845 and 1852) is chiefly Dec., with Perp. windows, and has a fine panelled ceiling; the chancel has a piscina and a good screen.

Raddon, ha., pa. of and ½ W. from Thorverton (q.v.), N. Dev. The remains of a chapel formerly existing here now form part of a workhouse.

Radernie, ha., pa. of Cameron (q.v.), E. Fifes., &c. 6 S.W. of St. Andrews.

Radford (1), pa. in the bor. of Nottingham, S.W. Notts.: ac. 937. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1812) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. The church of St. Michael and All Angels was built 1889, in Gothic style.

Radford (2), ha. on the Glyme, pa. of Enstone (q.v.), N. Oxon, 5 E. of Chipping Norton. There is a Roman Catholic chapel, with an orphanage attached.

Radford (3), ha., pa. of Holy Trinity, Coventry (q.v.), N. Warws., 1 N.W. of Coventry.

Radford (4), ha., pa. of Rouse Lench (q.v.), E. Worc., 6 N.E. of Pershore.

Radford, New, eccl. pa., pa. of Radford (q.v.), W. Notts. Christ Church was built 1847, in E. Eng. style. There are Free Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan, Methodist Free Church, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Here is an Industrial Training Institute. Lace, hosiery, and iron are manufactured. Derby Hall is a seat.

Radford Semele, pa. and vil., Mid Warws., 2 E. of Leamington; ac. 2,093; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1874) is an ancient stone building; during the restoration a Norm. arch was discovered. The Baptists have a chapel. There are several charities.

Radipole, pa. and pleasant vil. on the Wey, S. Dors., 2 N. of Weymouth, within which bor. part of the pa. is situate; ac. 1,338; soil yellow clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1893) is a Gothic stone building.

Radlett, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Aldenham (q.v.), S. Herts., about 6 S. of St. Albans. Christ Church was erected 1864, in E. Dec. style, on Cobden Hill, near the site of a small chantry attached to the abbey of St. Albans.

Radley (1), pa. and vil. on the Thames, N. Berks., 2½ N.E. of Abingdon; ac. 2,994; soil gravel, clay, and stiff loam, overlying principally gravel. The church of St. James is Perp.; in the chancel, against the south wall, is a monument to Sir William Stonehouse, Bart. (d. 1631), and his wife Elizabeth; the effigies of both and those of their children are carved in alabaster and coloured; the Latin inscription was written by Alexander Gill, D.D., headmaster of St. Paul's School, London, and friend of the poet Milton. An avenue of limes leads to the west doorway in the tower. The churchyard contains some good altar-tombs, and a large yew-tree on the north side. There is a small charity. St. Peter's College, opened in 1847 and incorporated by royal charter in 1890, is situated in R. Park. Wick Hall is a seat. A large and ancient brick building, formerly used as a granary, has been bodily moved 90 ft., and placed on a new site as a billiard-room.

Radley (2), ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Avington (q.v.), S.W. Berks.

Radley Green, ha., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Willingale Doe (q.v.), W. Essex.

Radmanthwaite, ha., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Mansfield (q.v.), W. Notts.

Radmore, pl., pa. of Cannock (q.v.), not far from the present town of that name. Here formerly stood a Cistercian abbey, removed to Stoneleigh, in Warws., soon after its foundation.

Radnage, pa. and vil., Mid Bucks., 5½ N.W. from High Wycombe; ac. 1,333; soil chalky, overlying light loam and clay. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng.; in the chancel is a piscina and a squint, also two ancient brasses. There are Primitive Methodist chapels. Chair-making is carried on.

Radnor, tp. near the Dane, pa. of Astbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 2 N.W. of Congleton; ac. 252.

Radnor Forest. [RADNORSHIRE.]

Radnor, New, pa., small to., and head of petty sess. div., on the Somergill, E. Radnors., 6 W.N.W. of Kington; ac. 3,416. New R. is pleasantly situated in a valley surrounded by wild hills. The Welsh name Maesyfed refers to the underground course pursued by the Somergill for some distance near the town. The town was formerly the principal place in the co., to which it gave its name, but

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Radclive	Buckingham (1½)	60	321
Radcot	Faringdon (3)	70	33
Raddington	Wiveliscombe (4)	168	86
Radford (1)	Radford	126	38718
Radford, New	Radford	126	4273
Radford Semele	Leamington (2)	97	544
Radipole	Weymouth (2)	142	1782
Radlett	Radlett	15	544
Radley (1)	Radley	58	733
Radnage	High Wycombe (3)	34	452
Radnor	Congleton (2)	157	30
Radnor, New	New Radnor	176	497

it has been superseded by Presteigne (q.v.). It ceased to be a mun. bor. in 1883, and the Radnor dis. of parl. bors. was dissolved in 1885. The church of St. Mary (1842), situated on the slope of a lofty hill, is Norm. There are Baptist and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. The town hall is a plain brick edifice. In the town is a handsome monument in the form of a cross, commemorating Sir George Cornewall Lewis (d. 1863). A mound alone remains to indicate the site of the castle erected by the Mortimers; but there are some fragments of the town walls. The castle was demolished by Owen Glendower in 1401. New R. was the spot from which Giraldus Cambrensis set out with Archbishop Baldwin on his preaching crusade in 1188. Near the town is the picturesque cascade of Water-Break-Its-Neck. Downton is a seat.

Radnor, Old, pa. and vil., E. Radnors. and N.W. Herefords.; ac. 11,193; soil mostly fertile loam, partly overlying limestone. The Welsh name, Pen-y-Craig or Crûg, is derived from the position of the ancient church of St. Stephen, which is situated on a rocky eminence. It is a venerable massive edifice, containing an elaborately-carved oak rood-screen, a font formed of a single stone and covered with rude sculpture, and an interesting old organ-case of carved oak, dated 1605, which has been restored; there are various memorials of the Lewis family of Harpton Court, and Sir George Cornewall Lewis (d. 1863) is buried here; the church was restored 1882. The Wesleyans and Congregationalists have chapels. Near the church may be traced a moat which surrounded an ancient convent. On August 6, 1645, Charles I. supped and slept at a yeoman's house near the church. Harpton Court is a spacious edifice approached by a beautiful avenue of limes.

Radnor, Old, and Burlingjobb, tp., pa. of Old Radnor (q.v.), E. Radnors., about 3 S.E. of New Radnor; ac. 2,040.

Radnor Park, vil., S.E. Dumbarts., Sc., 1 mile from Dalmuir.

Radnorshire, an inland co. of Wales, bounded on the north by Montgoms., on the east by Cardigans, on the south by Brecons., and on the east by the English cos. of Herefords. and Salop. Its greatest length from north to south is 30 miles, and breadth 33 miles. Its total area is 276,552 ac., of which only 15 per cent. is arable land, 46 per cent. grass and meadow land, 4 per cent. timber, and the remainder chiefly hill-pasture and waste. The predominating soil is stony loam, with some limited areas of sandy land. In the lowland valleys of the south-east the cultivation of the land is carried on with much success, the chief corn crop being oats, with some barley and wheat; with turnips, clover, etc., as rotation crops. There is much excellent grazing on the uplands in all parts of the co., and sheep-farming is pursued on a large scale, also cattle-rearing, with some dairy-farming in the more favoured parts. The surface is everywhere hilly, but not particularly rugged, and there are many fine open vales, especially in the south east. The high land in the centre of the co., known as Radnor Forest, reaches the maximum elevation of 2,163 feet. The chief rivers are the Wye, which bounds the co. on the south for a considerable distance, and presents some charming scenery; its tributaries the Ythân and Elan: the Teme, on the north-eastern border; and many smaller streams. The railway communication is afforded by lines traversing the co. in two directions, under the control of the Great Western Railway Company, and by a branch line to New Radnor. The Silurian rocks occupy the whole of the co., except where, along the eastern margin, the Old Red Sandstone is found in limited areas overlying it, and forming "outliers" from the main mass which covers the neighbouring co. The Lower Silurian (Ordovician), in the west of the co., consists of alternations of grits, flags, and slates, much folded and disturbed, in which fossils are of very rare occurrence. These disappear to the eastward beneath the Upper Silurian strata, which comprise the Llandovery Series (of shales, grits, and flags), the Wenlock Series (of shales, sandstones, etc., with an important band of limestone—the Woolhope Limestone), and the Ludlow Series (of shales, fine-grained sandstone, etc.). The Woolhope Limestone is a massive subcrystalline rock, and is much altered in places by the proximity of eruptive igneous rocks. As it occurs in a region otherwise devoid of limestone, it is extensively quarried at Nash Scar, near Presteigne, and other places for lime-burning. Trilobites and other fossils are found in it, and similar remains occur in abundance in some of the higher beds of the Upper Silurian. Eruptive igneous rocks, breaking through the sedimentary strata, are found in many localities, being most extensively developed in the area between New Radnor and Builth. They include syenite, graphic granite, quartz-felsite, diabase, etc. A few metalliferous veins contain lead and copper, but not in paying quantities. Chalybeate springs occur at Llandrindod and Builth. In pre-Roman times this district formed part of the territory of the Silures, and there are still traces of a few camps and earthworks usually assigned to this period. The Romans had a station near Llandrindod, and their great road from Chester to Carmarthen ran through the co. Under the Welsh princes the larger part lay within the Powys territory. It was created a co. by Henry VIII. Its antiquities are unimportant; they include a few relics of castellated and ecclesiastical buildings. The towns are all small, New Radnor being the co. town, and others Presteigne, Knighton, and Rhayader. Agriculture is the only industry of importance, though there is some manufacture of coarse cloth, flannel, worsted, etc., for home use. The co. returns one member to Parliament.

Rads End, ha., pa. of Eversholt (q.v.), S.W. Beds., about 2 E. of Woburn.

Radstock, pa. and small to., E. Somerset, 8 N.W. of Frome; ac. 1,005; soil light, overlying clay and stone. The church of St. Nicholas was almost entirely rebuilt in 1879; in the porch is a crucifix, and in a niche outside a Virgin and Child; there are remains of a rood-screen, and a Norm. font, rescued from a neighbouring farm, where it had been used as a cattle trough. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Reformed Methodist chapels. A Working Men's Institute

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Radnor, Old	Stanner	172	1214
Radnor, Old, and B.	Stanner	172	340
Radnor Park	Dalmuir (1)	411	1331

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Radnorshire	.....	.....	21791
Radstock	Radstock	114	3488

was opened in 1866. Coal is worked in the neighbourhood. There are two barrows in the pa.

Radstone, pa. and small vil., S. Northants, 2½ N. of Brackley; ac. 1,225; soil generally cold clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Lawrence shows work of various periods, from Norm. to Dec.

Radway, pa. and vil., S. Warws., 9 N.W. of Banbury; ac. 1,401; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1866) is E. Eng.; in the chancel is some fine old stained glass, brought in 1747 from a farm in Dorsetshire called The Priory; there is a tomb with recumbent effigy of a cavalier slain at Edge Hill (q.v.). The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. R. Grange is a picturesque old seat surrounded by a fine park, in which is a clump of trees planted by Lord Chatham.

Radwell (1), pa. and vil. on the Ivel, N. Herts., on the Beds. border, 6 N.E. of Hitchin; ac. 732; soil and subsoil clay and chalk. The church of All Saints is Perp.; the font dates from the 14th cent.

Radwell (2), ha. near the Ouse (here crossed by a bridge of four arches), pa. of Felmersham (q.v.), N.W. Beds., 6 N.W. of Bedford. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Radwinter, pa. and vil. beautifully situated on the Blackwater, N. Essex, 8 S.W. of Haverhill; ac. 3,802; soil clay, overlying gravel. The Dec. church of St. Mary was enlarged and the chancel rebuilt 1869; there is a reredos of carved oak, a curious example of Belgian work, dating from about 1520, exhibiting scenes from the life of the Blessed Virgin. In the pa. are six almshouses.

Radyr, pa. and vil. on the Taff, S.E. Glamorgs., 4½ N.W. of Cardiff; ac. 1,630; soil strong brown earth, partly overlying limestone. The church of St. John (restored 1857) is partly Gothic. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel. The remains of R. Court, the seat of the Matthew family, are now occupied as a farm.

Rafford, pa. and vil., N. Elgs., Sc.; ac. 12,456; soil various. The vil. is about 3 S. of Forres. The district is hilly, but has no lofty eminences. The places of worship are an Established and a Free church. A cattle market is held on the second Wednesday in November.

Ragdale, pa. and small vil. on a tributary of the Wreake, N. Leics., 6 W. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 1,980; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1874) is Gothic; in the churchyard is a fine cross. R. Hall is a seat; and there is an old mansion once belonging to the Ferrers family.

Ragged Appleshaw, ha., pas. of Appleshaw and Weyhill (q.v.), N. Hants, ½ N.W. of Weyhill.

Raghly, fishing vil., pa. of Drumcliff (q.v.), N. co. Sligo, Ir., about 5 W. of Carney. On the shore, close to the vil., is an open basin called The Pigeon-holes, into which the tide rushes with great force through subterranean channels.

Raghtin More, mountain (1,657 ft.) on the east of Lough Swilly, N. co. Don., Ir.

Raglan, pa. and vil., Mid Mon., 8 S.W. of Monmouth, on the road to Abergavenny; ac. 4,090; soil partly sandy, intermixed with a loamy clay, overlying limestone rock. The church of St. Cadoc (restored 1868) is Perp.; the south porch is large, and has a mutilated stoup; in the Beaufort chapel are monuments to the third Earl of Worcester and other members of the family, many of whom are interred in a vault beneath the chapel. There are Baptist and Congregational chapels. R. Castle, on an eminence near the vil., is a venerable structure of freestone, erected at different periods, the earliest not being anterior to the reign of Henry V. An ancient castle is said to have been founded here in the 12th cent., but the present castle was probably founded by the first Earl of Pembroke or by his son William, the second Earl, who, having resigned that earldom, was created Earl of Huntingdon in 1479. It was for some time the residence of the Earls of Worcester, who made various additions to it; the interior exhibits features of the architectural style of the reigns of Henry VII. and Queen Elizabeth, the most modern portions dating from the reign of King Charles I.; Henry, the fifth Earl and first Marquess of Worcester, several times entertained this monarch during the Civil War, and, after the battle of Naseby, Charles sought shelter and remained here from July, 1645, to the middle of September in the same year. The castle was garrisoned in defence of the royal cause, but surrendered in August, 1646, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, after sustaining a prolonged siege. It was subsequently dismantled, and is now a beautiful and picturesque ruin, much visited by tourists and others.

RAGLAN CASTLE.

Ragley Hall. [ARROW.]

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Radstone	Brackley (2½)	68	116
Radway	Kineton (3)	92	241
Radwell (1)	Baldock (1)	37	101
Radwinter	Saffron Walden (4)	44	799
Radyr	Radyr	167	610
Rafford	Forres (4)	365	982
Ragdale	Brooksby (2)	108	104
Raglan	Raglan (1)	151	668

Ragnall, pa. and small vil. on the Trent, E. Notts., 5 N.E. of Tuxford; ac. 1,152; soil loam and alluvial deposit. The church of St. Oswald (restored 1864) is Perp.

Rahan (1), pa., Ballycowan bar., N. K. Co., Ir., about 4½ W. of Tullamore station; ac. 14,985, mostly bog. St. Stanislaus' Jesuit College, founded in 1818, is situated here; and there is a Catholic church and a national school. R. Lodge is a seat.

Rahan (2), pa. on the Blackwater, Fermoy bar., N. co. Cork, Ir., 2½ E. of Mallow station; ac. 10,082. The church was built in 1750. Rockforest is a seat.

Rahara, pa., Athlone bar., S. co. Roscom., Ir., 9 N.W. of Athlone; ac. 5,362.

Raharney, pl., pa. of and about 3 N.E. from Killucan (q.v.), E. co. Wstm., Ir.

Raheltv, pa., Eliogarty bar., Mid co. Tip., Ir., 2½ S.E. of Thurles; ac. 4,875.

Raheny, pa. and vil. on Dublin Bay, Coolock bar., E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 1,054. The vil. is 5 N.E. of Dublin, on the road to Howth. It contains Church of Ireland and Catholic churches, a dispensary, and a court-house, in which petty sessions are held.

Rahill, pa., Rathvilly bar., N. co. Carlow, Ir., 2 N.E. of Rathvilly railway station; ac. 2,662.

Raholp, pl., pa. of Ballyculter (q.v.), E. co. Down, Ir., 4 N.E. of Downpatrick.

Rahoon, pa. on Galway Bay, Galway and Moycullen bars., S. co. Galway, Ir., partly within the bor. of Galway; ac. 15,169. There are two Catholic churches, and public schools and a convent school. Fairs are held in Feb., May, Aug., and November.

Rahugh, pa. and vil., Moycashel bar., S. co. Wstm., Ir., about 5 N. of Tullamore railway station; ac. 4,973.

Raigmore, estate with seat of same name, pa. of and 1 mile from Inverness (q.v.), N. Invs., Sc.

Railstown, pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 3 S.E. of Cashel; ac. 904.

Rainford, tp. and small to., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., 4½ N.W. of St. Helens; ac. 5,872. The church of All Saints was built in 1878, in Gothic style. There are two Primitive Methodist and a Roman Catholic chapel here. The charities amount to over £50 yearly. Coal-mining and tobacco-pipe making are carried on.

Rainham (1) (in ancient deeds "Renham"), pa. and vil., N. Kent, 4 E. of Rochester; ac. 3,562; soil light loam, overlying chalk. The higher ground is chalk, rising into high downs perpendicular to the coast; to the south are woods. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng. and later. The interior has rather an irregular appearance, and the junction of the nave and chancel is awkward. The nave arcade has five arches on octagonal piers, followed by a very wide wall-pier with an octagonal pillar attached to it. The arcade of the chancel is still less uniform, and its central arch is smaller than the other two; in the easternmost arch a later altar-tomb is inserted. In the chancel several members of the Allen family are buried, and it contains a monument, with kneeling effigies, to J. Norris, Esq., Master of the Trinity House, and his wife; and in the floor is a brass to John Bloor (d. 1529). The south wall of the chancel has an arcading with slender octagonal shafts, each arch enclosing a window, and retains three sedilia with triangular canopies and a piscina. There are seven brasses (one dated 1409), and a fine oaken carved chest of the 14th cent. Beneath the north chancel aisle is a crypt, the burial-place of the Tuftons, Earls of Thanet, whose ancestors held lands here in the reign of King John. In this aisle are monuments to George, son of John Tufton, 2nd Earl (d. 1670), and to Nicholas, 3rd Earl (d. 1679). The east end of the nave roof is panelled and painted with the badge of Edward IV. There are several Nonconformist places of worship. Bricks and cement are made here. The charities amount to £20 a year. A recreation-ground of 7 ac. was opened in 1887. Roman remains have been found.

Rainham (2), pa. and vil. on a creek of the Thames, S.W. Essex, 5 E. of Barking; ac. 3,240; soil loamy, with gravelly subsoil. The church of SS. Helen and Giles is Norm. A grand Norm. arch, with chevron moulding, opens into the chancel, the windows of which have been greatly disfigured; the tower is constructed of coursed rubble, with ashlar coigns, and is entered from the nave by a plain semicircular Norm. arch, one tall lancet and three Norm. windows lighting its basement; there is a narrow priest's doorway of Norm. date; the font is ancient, and there are brass effigies on the floor to a civilian and his wife (c. 1500). Large quantities of vegetables are grown for the London markets. Bread is distributed to the poor every Sunday.

Rainham, East, or Rainham St. Mary, pa. and pleasant vil., N. Norf., about 4 S.W. of Fakenham; ac. 1,635; soil good. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1868) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles. There is a small and peculiar brass in the north aisle to Robert Godfrey, LL.B., a former rector of this pa. (d. 1522), with his effigy in academical dress; and another brass to George, son of Roger Townshend, Esq. (*c.*1500). The pa. has some small charities. R. Hall stands on an eminence commanding a delightful view, and surrounded by an undulating park of about 800 ac.; the mansion was built near the site of an ancient moated hall, about 1630, under the direction of Inigo Jones, and contains some valuable paintings.

Rainham, South, or Rainham St. Martin, pa. and scattered vil., N. Norf., about 5 S.W. of Fakenham; ac. 1,025; soil mixed, overlying brick-earth and marl. The church of St. Martin is a Dec. building. There is a dole of £3 6s. 8d. A Cluniac priory (dedicated to SS. Mary and John), a cell to Castleacre, was founded here about 1160.

Rainham, West, or Rainham St. Margaret, pa., N. Norf., about 5 S.W. of Fakenham; ac. 1,370

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ragnall	Tuxford (4½)	132	167
Rahan (1)	Tullamore (4½)	58	2032
Rahan (2)	Mallow (2½)	145	1083
Rahara	Athlone (9)	80	509
Rahelty	Thurles (2½)	87	497
Raheny, pa.	Raheny	4	449
Raheny, vil.	Raheny	4	151
Rahill	Rathvilly (2½)	46	250
Rahoon	Galway	128	7651

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Popu- lation.
Rahugh	Tullamore (5)	58	4
Railstown	Fethard (4)	104
Rainford	Rainford	196	34
Rainham (1)	Rainham	39	30
Rainham (2)	Rainham	13	16
Rainham, East	Raynham Park (2)	115	1
Rainham, South	Raynham Park (2)	115	1
Rainham, West	Raynham Park (1½)	115	3

soil heavy and mixed, overlying brick-earth and marl. The church of St. Margaret has been many years in ruins. The Rev. T. D. Whitaker, the topographer and antiquary, was born at the old rectory house, June 8, 1759.

Rainhill, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 9 E. of Liverpool; ac. 1,640. The church of St. Anne was erected in 1837. The Roman Catholic church of St. Bartholomew was erected in 1840, in Classic style; in the grounds adjoining it is a convent of the Sisters of St. Paul. The Wesleyans and Congregationalists have chapels. The inhabitants are employed in the manufacture of files, various kinds of watch-work, nippers and pliers, saw-frames, brooches, compasses, and tools. There is a large brass foundry and a quarry of fine red sandstone, from which large grindstones are cut. On the hill stands an ancient stone cross. The Hall is a seat.

Rainow, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 3 N.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 5,744. The church of the Holy Trinity was built in 1846, in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel and a Friends' meeting-house. The charities are small, and the schools are partially endowed.

Rainsborrow Crag, mountain (about 1,000 ft.), W. Westmd., about 4 E. of Ambleside, overlooking Kentmere. It descends into this valley very sharply, the crags presenting a fine view from the bottom.

Rainscombe, ti., pa. of North Newnton (q.v.), E. Wilts., 3 S. of Marlborough. R. House, a large mansion standing in a park, is a seat.

Rainton, East, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and 1½ S.W. from Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur.; ac. 1,580. The church of St. Cuthbert was erected in 1866, in E. Dec. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The tp. contains extensive coal mines, and a reading-room has been provided for the use of the workmen.

Rainton, Middle, vil., pa. of Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur., 4½ N.E. of Durham.

Rainton, West, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Houghton-le-Spring (q.v.), N.E. Dur., 4 N.E. of Durham; ac. 1,776. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was rebuilt in 1864, in E. Eng. style. There is a library, news- and reading-room.

Rainton-with-Newby, tp. and vil., pa. of Topcliffe (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4½ N.E. of Ripon; ac. 1,511. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Rainworth, ha., pa. of Blidworth (q.v.), S. Notts., 3 S.E. of Mansfield.

Rainworth Water, small stream, W. Notts. It rises on the hills a little N. of Newstead Abbey, and after a short course, first N.E. and then N., falls into the Maun near Ollerton.

Raise Gap, another name for Dunmail Raise (q.v.).

Raisthorpe, or Raisthorpe and Burdale, tp., pa. of Wherram Percy (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., about 10 S.E. of Malton; ac. 2,112.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rainhill, eccl. pa.	Rainhill	193	3156
Rainhill, tp.	Rainhill	193	2294
Rainow, eccl. pa.	Macclesfield (3)	165	1192
Rainow, tp.	Macclesfield (3)	165	1255
Rainton, East, ec. pa.	Leamside (1½)	254	1986
Rainton, East, tp.	Leamside (1½)	254	1510
Rainton, West, ec. pa.	Leamside (½)	254	3597
Rainton, West, tp.	Leamside (½)	254	2793

Rait, vil., pa. of Kilspindie (q.v.), S.E. Perths., Sc., about 3 N.W. of Errol.

Rait Castle, ruined seat, pa. of and 3 S. from Nairn (q.v.), W. Nairns., Sc. This was formerly the seat of the Comyns, and later of the Mackintoshes of Rait; and was the scene of the slaughter of the Comyns by the clan Mackintosh.

Raith, q.s. pa., pa. of Abbotshall (q.v.), S.E. Fifes., Sc., about 2½ W. of Kirkcaldy. The church was formerly the Free church of Abbotshall. R. House is a fine 17th-cent. mansion, to which additions have been made. Behind the house, on a hill (400 ft.), stands R. Tower, from the top of which an extensive view is obtained.

Raithby (1), or Raithby-by-Louth, pa. and vil., N.E. Lincs., 2 S.S.W. of Louth; ac. 1,930; soil partly chalky and partly clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter was rebuilt 1839, in Florid Gothic style; the font (an excellent example of E. Dec. work) and the piers of the arcade date from 1300.

Raithby (2), or Raithby-by-Spilsby, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 2 N.W. of Spilsby; ac. 865; soil various, overlying clay and sand. The church of the Holy Trinity is Dec. and Perp., with some Trans. remains; it was restored 1873; the chancel retains a piscina. There is a Wesleyan chapel. R. Hall is a seat.

Rake, pl., pa. of Rogate (q.v.), N.W. Sussex, 2 S.E. of Liss.

Rakes Farm, or Mowns Rakes, formerly a pa., S. Lincs., now merged in Swineshead (q.v.).

Raloo, pa., Lower Belfast bar., S.E. co. Antr., Ir., 4 S.W. of Larne; ac. 6,105.

Ralph Cross, an old weather-worn cross, on the road from Kirkby Moorside to Castleton, W.R. Yorks., about 3½ S. of Castleton.

Ralph's Hole, chasm, S. Dev., about 4 E. of Salcombe. It was so called because it was once the resort of a famous smuggler named Ralph.

Ralston, estate, pa. of Abbey (q.v.), N.E. Renfs., Sc., about 2 E. of Paisley. R. House is a seat.

Rame, pa. and vil. on the English Channel, S.E. Cornw., 5 S.W. of Plymouth; ac. 1,410; soil loamy, overlying gravel. The church of St. Germans (restored 1848 and 1885) is E. Eng., and contains numerous monuments; there is a piscina in the chancel, and another in the south aisle, where also are the rood-stairs. There are some small charities. R. Head is in this pa.; it forms the west boundary of Plymouth Harbour; on it are the remains of the chapel of St. Michael. On Penlee Point is a tower, serving as a landmark to sailors. Polhawn battery commands Whitesand Bay.

Ramelton. [Rathmelton.]

Ram Head, headland on the north-east side of Youghal Harbour, pa. of Ardmore (q.v.), S. co. Waterf., Ir.

Ramillies Cove, S. Dev., close to Ralph's Hole. Here the frigate Ramillies was wrecked in 1760.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Raint'n-with-Newby	Melmerby (3)	216	355
Raisthorpe	Burdale (1½)	218	84
Raith	Kirkcaldy (2½)	414	3427
Raithby (1)	Louth (2)	141	198
Raithby (2)	Spilsby (2½)	126	152
Raloo	Larne (4)	137	1252
Rame	Plymouth (5)	229	865

Ramoan, coast pa., Cary bar., N. co. Antr., Ir.; ac. 12,066. R. contains the to. of Ballycastle (q.v.), from which the pa. church is not far distant. There is also a Catholic and a Presbyterian church, and national schools.

Ramor, Lough, Castlerahan bar., S.E. co. Cav., Ir., a little south of Virginia. It is about 4 miles long by 1 mile broad, and is studded with small islands.

Ramoth, vil., pa. of Kilmadock (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., 3 S.E. of Thornhill.

Rampisham, pa. and vil., W. Dorset, 12 N.W. of Dorchester; ac. 2,052; soil clay, flint, and peat, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Michael and All Angels, which has been rebuilt, is Perp., and contains some brasses; in the churchyard are the fragments of an old cross. The charities amount to about £75 yearly. A tessellated pavement was found here in 1799.

Rampsgill, mountain valley, W. Westmd., 7 N.N.E. of Ambleside. R. is a long deep valley, extending about 5 N. by W. from Kidsty Pike to Ullswater. The view down it from its upper extremity is extremely picturesque.

Rampsholm, island on Lake Derwentwater, S. Cumb., between Herbert Island and the east shore of the lake.

Rampsholme, ha., pa. of Grinton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 1 N.E. of Muker.

Rampside, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Dalton-in-Furness (q.v.), N.W. Lancs., 4 S.E. of Barrow. The church of St. Michael stands on an eminence nearly a mile from the village.

Rampton (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Cambs., 7 N. of Cambridge; ac. 1,332; soil very heavy, subsoil blue clay. The church of All Saints is a small building of mixed periods; the chancel arch is Late Norm., the chancel Dec., and the tower Perp. The south aisle retains a piscina, and there is a curious low side window. Under an arched recess in the north wall of the chancel is a recumbent effigy, said to represent the founder; and in the nave is a slab with inscription to Sir R. de Huntingdon. The charities amount to about £28 a year. R. Manor is a seat.

Rampton (2), pa. and vil. near the Trent, E. Notts., 7 S.E. of Retford; ac. 2,109; soil clayey, overlying marl. The church of All Saints (restored 1894) is chiefly E. Eng. and Perp.; in the chancel are monuments to Gervase Eyre (killed while defending Newark Castle during the Civil War), Anthony Eyre (1788), and Vice-Admiral Sir George Eyre (1839). There are some small charities, and the school has an endowment. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Ramsaycleugh, ha. on Ettrick Water, pa. of Ettrick (q.v.), S.W. Selks., Sc., about 18 S.W. of Selkirk.

Ramsbottom, to. with two eccl. pas. on the Irwell, pa. of Bury (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 13½ N. of Manchester. The church of St. Paul was built in 1850, in E. Eng. style; in 1866 an aisle was added to the church and called after Lord Palmerston, to whom also there is a memorial window. The church of St. Andrew was built in 1834, in Gothic style. The Roman Catholic chapel is in E. Eng. style; the Presbyterian church of St. Andrew (built in 1873) is a Gothic building; there are also Baptist, Wesleyan, Congregational, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Public Library, opened in 1838, was closed in 1887. The Oddfellows' Hall was erected in 1849. A fair is held on the Monday after Aug 27. There are iron and brass foundries, machine factories, and printing, bleaching, and spinning works.

Ramsbury, pa. and vil. on the Kennet, E. Wilts., 6 N.E. of Marlborough; ac. 9,742; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of the Holy Cross is Norm., E. Eng., and later. Among the monuments are those to Sir William Jones, Attorney-General to Charles II., and to William de St. John, with a Norman-French inscription; and in the Darell chapel a Purbeck marble tomb, believed to be that of William Darell, Sub-Treasurer of England under Richard II.; also others to (probably) Sir George Darell, of Littlecote, and to William de St. John (dated 1322). There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. Tanning, malting, and brewing are carried on. Cattle fairs take place on May 14 and Oct. 16. R. Manor House occupies the site of the old house taken down in 1672; Littlecote Park, a fine Tudor building, contains a good collection of armour and weapons; other seats are Crowood House, The Cedars, and The Rookery.

Ramsdale (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Monk Sherborne, Tadley, and Wootton St. Lawrence (q.v.), N. Hants, 5 N.W. of Basingstoke. Christ Church was built in 1867, in E. Eng. style. There is a Congregational chapel.

Ramsdale (2), ha., pa. of and 4 S.E. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Ramsdean, ti., pa. of East Meon (q.v.), E. Hants, about 3 W. of Petersfield. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Ramsden, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Shipton-under-Wychwood (q.v.), W. Oxon, 4 N. of Witney; ac. 902. The church of St. James was built in 1872, in Dec. style, on the site of a previous church. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The Roman Akeman Street passes through the pa.

Ramsden Bellhouse, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 8 S. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,693; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1881) is in Dec. style. The Congregationalists and the Peculiar People have chapels.

Ramsden Crays, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 9 E. of Brentwood; ac. 1,456; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1871) is Gothic. There is a small charity.

Ramsey (1), pa. and mkt. to. (W.), N. Hunts., 10 N.E. of Huntingdon; ac. 16,562, chiefly fen-land. The long street called the Great White or Whyte runs north, and the other, called High Street, runs east and west, cutting the south end

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ramoan	Ballycastle	173	3162
Rampisham	Evershot (2)	141	251
Rampside	Rampside	266	366
Rampton (1)	Oakington (2)	63	220
Rampton (2)	Cottam (1½)	142	341
Ramsbottom, to.	Ramsbottom	200	16726
Ramsbury	Hungerford (5)	61	2164
Ramsdale (1)	Basingstoke (5)	48	449
Ramsden	Witney (4)	75	424
Ramsden Bellhouse	Wickford Junction (2	29	395
Ramsden Crays	Billericay (3)	24	196
Ramsey (1)	Ramsey	75	4684

of the Great Whyte, forming with it the letter T. This place gives the title of Baron to the Fellowes family. The church of St. Thomas à Becket (restored 1844) is Norm. and E. Eng.; the chancel, which is the most ancient part of the edifice, has remains of Norm. piers and arches built into the walls; on the south side of the chancel is a double piscina under one arch, and opposite this a richly-ornamented tomb to W. H. Fellowes, Esq., of R. Abbey, who represented the bor. and co. in Parliament for thirty-four years (d. 1837). In the chancel is a fine lectern of wood, with a brass-bound and chained copy of "Dean Comber on the Book of Common Prayer," and a black-letter copy of Erasmus's "Paraphrase of the Gospels." At the east end of the churchyard stands the shaft of an ancient cross about 35 ft. in height. There is a Catholic church, served from Huntingdon; and the Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The grammar school buildings date from 1860. The Abbey Rooms (1877) comprise a library and a large room used for meetings; the R. Institute is used as a branch school of the Peterborough School of Art. The police station, in Italian style, was erected in 1854. There is a cattle fair on July 22. The charities for apprenticing amount to £140 a year, while £80 is distributed among the poor at Christmas. There are almshouses for twelve poor women, and some cottages are let at nominal rents to the poor. This town became infected by the plague in the year 1666 by means, it is said, of a piece of cloth sent from London. On May 21, 1731, a disastrous fire consumed upwards of 80 dwelling-houses, besides shops, barns, and other outbuildings. Here was once a Benedictine abbey, founded in 969 and dedicated to SS. Mary and Benedict. The abbey, which had the distinction of being "mitred," stood at the upper end of the town, and occupied a tract of solid ground, 2 miles in length, surrounded by the Ouse and marshes, and inaccessible save by water; the beautiful Perp. gatehouse and refectory remain. R. Abbey, a modern mansion, is a seat.

Ramsey (2), seaport and watering-place on R. Bay, pas. of Lezayre and Maughold (q.v.), north-east coast of I. of M., 11 N.N.E. of Douglas. R. is intersected by the river Sulby, which expands near its mouth so as to form a commodious harbour. The old town, on the south side of the harbour, consists of a network of narrow winding streets, Parliament Street being the chief thoroughfare. Near its east extremity stands the court-house, a plain building. A little further east is the Market Place, reclaimed from the harbour in 1835, which, on the return of the fishing fleet, presents a very lively scene. South of the Market Place is St. Paul's Church, a plain structure, erected 1819 and enlarged 1844. The mouth of the harbour is protected by a breakwater on the north, and, opposite it, by the South Pier; both have light-houses at their outer extremities. The Old Promenade, constructed in 1875, extends 5 or 6 furlongs from the South Pier to the Queen's Pier, which is about 2,200 ft. in length. A handsome swing-bridge (opened 1892) crosses the Sulby, connecting the south and north portions of the town. It is the changes made in the latter district (known as The Mooragh) which have done so much to alter the character of R., converting it into a fashionable watering-place. A northern arm of the estuary of the river has been formed into a pretty lake, on the west side of which is the Mooragh Park, commanding fine views. The lake is divided from R. Bay by a sandy tract, along the east border of which runs the North (or New) Promenade, nearly a mile in length. The massive sea-wall, the broad parapet and roadway, and the lofty houses lining the promenade give it a very imposing appearance. A little to the west of Mooragh Park is St. Olave's Church (1861), a very plain edifice. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church, and Presbyterian, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Methodist New Connexion chapels. The Albert Tower, situated on a hill a little south-east of the town, commands a very fine view. R. exports horses, cattle, and agricultural produce.

Ramsey (3), pa. and vil. on the coast, N.E. Essex, 3½ W. of Harwich; ac. 5,307; soil and subsoil mixed. The church of St. Michael is chiefly Dec. and Perp., with a Late Norm. north doorway; in the chancel is a monument to Daniel Burr (1782). There are some small charities.

Ramsey Bay, inlet of the sea, north-east coast of I. of M., 11 N.N.E. of Douglas. The bay is 7 miles wide at its mouth, between the Point of Ayre on the north and Maughold Head on the south, the distance of the coast-line between these two points being about 9 miles. The fine stretch of sand, about 7 miles in length, is one of the chief attractions of the town of Ramsey (q.v.).

Ramsey Division, one of the two parl. divs. of Hunts.; it lies in the north of the co., and returns one member.

Ramsey Island, north of St. Bride's Bay, pa. of St. David's (q.v.), W. Pembs., separated from the mainland by a strait 1 mile in breadth. It is about 2 miles long by 1 mile broad, and possesses good farm-land. There were formerly remains of two chapels.

Ramsey Isle, in the estuary of the Blackwater, pa. of Steeple (q.v.), E. Essex, 6 E. of Maldon. It was formerly part of Stangate, and had a church, now destroyed.

Ramsgate (member of the Cinque Port of Sandwich), pa., mun. bor., mkt. to. (W. & S.), seaport and watering-place, and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., E. Kent, 4 S. of Margate; ac. of pa. 2,278. The bor. also includes the pa. of St. Lawrence (q.v.). R. as a watering-place enjoys great popularity; the fine sands, which extend to Broadstairs, are specially adapted for bathing; the air is bracing, although the to. has a southern aspect. The East Cliff Promenade is reached from the beach by a flight of steps, known as "Augusta Stairs," and on the west is a smaller flight once named "Jacob's Ladder." Extensive improvements have been recently carried out, including a new sea-wall, a sloping road carried on arches (connecting the West Cliff and Harbour Street), an inclined approach to the East Cliff, and the widening of the approach to the sands. The church of St. George is a modern building in Gothic style; the tower serves as a sea-mark to ships passing through

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ramsey (2)	Ramsey	301	4866
Ramsey (3)	Dovercourt (2)	70	1877
Ramsey Division	.....	.....	29549

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ramsgate, pa.	Ramsgate	80	16253
Ramsgate, mun. bor.	Ramsgate	80	24733

the Downs. The church of St. Lawrence is Norm. and E. Eng.; in the north chapel is a wooden screen; there are some brasses, including one to Sir Nicholas Manston, Knight, with his effigy, wearing a collar of SS. and dated 1444; in the chancel are some ancient monuments to the Thatcher and Sprackling families. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches. St. Augustine's Catholic church, on the West Cliff, was built at the expense of A. W. Pugin, and is regarded as his masterpiece. The Benedictine monastery, on the opposite side of the road, was built for the Fathers of this order, who serve the church; near the monastery is St. Augustine's College for Boys, conducted by the Benedictine monks. The nuns of the Convent of the Assumption also conduct a school. The various Dissenting bodies have places of worship. The synagogue was erected in 1833 by Sir Moses Montefiore, Bart.; adjoining it is a mausoleum, built in close imitation of the tomb of Rachel in the Holy Land, wherein repose the remains of Sir Moses and his wife Judith, Lady Montefiore, to whose memory he built and founded a theological college for the study of Hebrew law and literature. The town hall dates from 1839, the General Hospital from 1847, and the Royal Dispensary from 1878 (though it was founded in 1820). The "Granville Hotel," designed by E. W. Pugin, is a very picturesque building on the East Cliff, approached by the Granville Marina, opened in 1877. The promenade pier was erected in 1881. The obelisk near commemorates the embarkation of George IV. for Hanover; and here the King and Queen of the Belgians landed in 1837. The harbour, having in 1749 been selected as a harbour of refuge for the Downs, underwent great improvements, and has since been much extended; 400 sail have been received in this harbour at one time. It is protected by two piers, which are favourite promenades, commanding fine views of the coast and the shipping in the Downs and the Goodwin Sands, about 5 miles distant; the lighthouse is on the western pier-head. A slipway capable of taking vessels of 500 tons adjoins the west pier. Some business is done in the building of boats and repairing of vessels. A considerable trade is carried on in importing coal and produce for the local supply, and there is also a fishery of some importance. R. obtains its chief revenue from its harbour and from the fishing and passenger boats. There are charities to the amount of £70 a year, to be given away to the poor of Ramsgate; and the pa. of St. Lawrence has charities to the value of about £50. East Cliff Lodge, East Court, Southwood House, and West Cliffe House are seats.

THE SANDS AT RAMSGATE.
(Photo. F. G. O. Stuart, Southampton.)

Ramsgill, eccl. pa. and vil. on the Nidd, pa. of Kirkby Malzeard (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 15 w. of Ripon. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) was built 1842, in Gothic style. Eugene Aram was born here in 1704. Gowthwaite Hall, an old home of the Yorke family, is now divided into farmhouses.

Ramsgrange, ha., pa. of St. James and Dunbrody (q.v.), S.W. co. Wex., Ir., about 1 E. of Arthurstown.

Ramsgreave, tp., pa. of Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 1 E. of Mellor; ac. 776.

Ramshill, ha., pa. of Horsemonden (q.v.), W. Kent, 8½ S.E. of Tunbridge.

Ramsholt, pa. and vil. on the Deben, S.E. Suff., 7 S.E. of Woodbridge; ac. 1,801 land and 367 tidal water and foreshore; soil sandy, overlying gravel. Here is a ferry across the Deben to Hemley. The church of All Saints is E. Eng., with western tower of early Roman construction, supposed to have been a military station, and very curious.

Ramshope, formerly a separate pa., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Rochester Ward (q.v.), N.E. Northumb., 15 W.N.W. of Elsdon.

Ramshorn, tp., pa. of and 3 W.N.W. from Ella-

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ramsgill	Pateley Bridge (4)	217	371
Ramsgreave	Blackburn (2)	211	239
Ramsholt	Woodbridge (6)	79	157
Ramshorn	Oakamoor (4)	150	82

stone (q.v.), N.E. Staffs.; ac. 1,509. Wootton Lodge, a fine house, partly the work of Inigo Jones, is a seat.

Ram's Island, in Lough Neagh, S.W. co. Antr., Ir. Here is an ancient round tower.

Ramsley, ha., pa. of South Tawton (q.v.), Mid Dev., 3 S.E. of Okehampton.

Ranby (1), pa. on the Bain, Mid Lincs., 7 N.W. of Horncastle; ac. 1,240; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. German (restored 1860) is chiefly Dec., with a Norm. arch removed from the chancel to the tower; it contains several brasses. R. Hall is a seat.

Ranby (2), ha. on the Chesterfield Canal, pas. of Babworth and Blyth (q.v.), N. Notts., 3 N.W. of East Retford. R. Hall and R. House are seats.

Rand (1), pa. and tp., Mid Lincs., 9 N.E. of Lincoln; ac. of pa. 2,120, of tp. 989; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Oswald (partially rebuilt 1826 and 1862) is a Perp. building, containing several brasses, an old font, and in the chancel a fine recumbent effigy of the 14th cent.

Rand (2), or Rands Grange, tp., pa. of and 1 W. from Bedale (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 357.

Randalstown, mkt. to. (W.) and head of petty sess. div. (formerly parl. bor.), on the Main, pa. of Drummaul (q.v.), W. co. Antr., Ir., 5 N. by W. of Antrim. The river is crossed at the town by a substantial stone bridge of nine arches. The town itself has a pleasant and neat appearance. The Protestant church, a handsome structure, is situated in the town; and there are also three Presbyterian churches and a Catholic church. There are two national schools and one for Catholics. In Main Street is the market-house, a handsome building with an assembly room over it; and on the banks of the Main are flax mills, the latter furnishing employment to a considerable number of the inhabitants. Fairs are held on July 16, Nov. 1, and on the last Wednesday in each month except October.

Rands Grange. [RAND (2).]

Rands, The, reach on the Thames, between Erith and Purfleet, 6 E. of Woolwich. The reach extends W.N.W. and E.S.E. for 1½ mile.

Randwick, pa. and vil., Mid Gloucs., 8 S. of Gloucester; ac. 604; soil limy, overlying stone. The church of St. John (restored and enlarged) is chiefly Perp. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. The charities amount to about £60 per annum, part of which is used as an endowment for the schools.

Ranelagh, suburb of Dublin, pa. of St. Peter (q.v.), E. co. Dub., Ir., about 2 S.E. of the city, on the road to Dundrum. Here is a Carmelite convent with chapel, and a Wesleyan chapel.

Ranfurly (or Ramforlie) Castle. [KILBARCHAN.]

Rangeworthy, tp. and vil. on the Leadon, pa. of Thornbury (q.v.), S.W. Gloucs., 11 N.E. of Bristol; ac. 895. The church of Holy Trinity (restored 1851) is chiefly Perp., with a Norm. chancel arch and south doorway. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels.

Rankeillour, Nether, estate, pa. of Collessie (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc., 2 N.E. of Ladybank. There is a seat of the same name.

Rankeillour, Over, estate, pa. of Monimail (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc., about 3 W. of Cupar. There is a seat of the same name, standing in well-timbered grounds.

Rankinston, or Rankinstown, vil. with railway station, pa. of Coylton (q.v.), Mid Ayrs., Sc., 8 S.W. of Old Cumnock.

Rankle Burn, stream, rises on the borders of Selks. and Dumfs., Sc., flows generally N. for about 10 miles through the pa. of Ettrick, and falls into Ettrick Water opposite the tower at Tushielaw (q.v.).

Ranksborough Hill, eminence, pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Langham (q.v.), N.W. Rutld. It was the site of a Roman station.

Ranks Green, ha., pa. of and 2 N. from Fairsted (q.v.), E. Essex.

Ran Moor, eccl. pa., pa. of and 1½ W. from Sheffield, W.R. Yorks. The first church of St. John was destroyed by fire in 1887, and the new building, opened in 1888, is in E. Eng. style. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. The Methodist New Connexion college, erected in 1864, is in Gothic style. The Firth Almshouses were opened in 1870, and include a handsome chapel in Gothic style.

Ranmore, eccl. pa. (formed from Dorking and four other pas.), Mid Surrey, adjoining Dorking. St. Barnabas' Church was erected in 1859, in E. Eng. style. Denbies is a seat.

Rannerdale Knott, hill (1,160 ft.), east side of Crummock Water, W. Cumb.

Rannoch, Braes of, q.s. pa., pa. of Fortingall (q.v.), N.W. Perths., Sc., at the upper end of Loch Rannoch, about 6 miles from Rannoch railway station. The name is also applied to a district extending into Args., and containing a deer-forest. It abounds in lakes, rivers, and woods, the chief of the former being Loch Rannoch.

Rannoch, Loch, pa. of Fortingall (q.v.), N.W. Perths., Sc. It is about 11 miles long and 1 mile broad. It lies nearly 700 ft. above sea-level, and the banks are finely wooded. R. Lodge is situated at its head.

Ranskill, tp. and vil., pa. of Blyth (q.v.), N. Notts., 3 S.E. of Bawtry; ac. 1,317. The church of St. Barnabas was built in 1878. There are Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels.

Ranton, or Ronton, pa. and vil., W. Staffs., 5 W. of Stafford; ac. 1,834; soil and subsoil marl. The church of All Saints (restored 1891) is E. Eng. [RANTON ABBEY.]

Ranton Abbey, formerly a separate pa., but now for civil purposes amalgamated with Ellenhall (q.v.), W. Staffs., 5 W. of Stafford. R. Monastery, a priory of Black Canons, was founded in the reign

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ranby (1)	Donnington-on-Bain		143	140
Rand (1), pa.	Wragby (2)	[(2)]	135	128
Rand (1), tp.	Wragby (2)		135	67
Rand (2)	Bedale (1)		226	29
Randalstown	Randalstown		131	847
Randwick	Stroud (2)		102	546
Rangeworthy	Yate (3)		121	234

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rankinston	Rankinston		385	513
Ran Moor	Sheffield (1½)		158	2012
Ranmore	Dorking (2)		25	307
Rannoch, Braes of	Rannoch (6)		490	290
Ranskill	Ranskill		144	414
Ranton	Haughton (1½)		137	249

of Henry II. by Robert Fitz Noël; only the tower of the church remains. R. Abbey, a seat, is a modern mansion near the remains of the priory.

Ranworth-with-Panxworth, united pa., N.E. Norf., 8 N.E. of Norwich; ac. 2,457. In the Panxworth part the soil is loam, overlying marl; in the Ranworth part, light mixed, overlying gravel and sand. The church of St. Helen is a fine building of flint, in the Gothic style of the 15th cent.; there is a fine rood-screen painted with figures of Apostles and saints. Here is a large malting establishment. R. Hall, overlooking Ranworth Broad (covering 90 ac.), connected with the Bure, and formerly celebrated for its decoy, is a seat, as is also The Priory, in the centre of the vil.

Ranza, stream, Arran Island, Butes., Sc., flows from Loch-na-Davie for about 3½ miles through Glen Ranza in a north-west direction to Loch Ranza, an inlet of the sea in the north of the island.

Raphoe, the seat of a diocese, pa., mkt. to. (s.), and head of petty sess. div., North Raphoe bar., E. co. Don., Ir.; ac. of pa. 13,225. The town is 8 N.E. of Stranorlar, on the road to Londonderry, and environed by a beautifully-diversified country, occasionally rising into considerable eminences. The soil around is fertile, well cultivated, and well wooded. R. consists of one main and several minor streets, with a large central square, called The Diamond, in which are the market house and shambles. The see of Raphoe appears to have originated with St. Eunan, who became the first bishop and converted the church of the monastery into a cathedral. In 1835 the see was united to that of Derry. [Londonderry.] The episcopal palace (formerly a strong castle), burnt down in 1837, is now a ruin. The cathedral church of St. Eunan (restored 1894) is a plain cruciform edifice; the tower was erected by Bishop Forster (1716–42), who also built the transepts with money left for the purpose by Bishop Pooley. The Protestant church of St. Adamnan is a sandstone building. The Presbyterians have two meeting-houses, and there is a Catholic church (1883). The Catholic diocese of R. includes nearly the whole of Donegal. R. has a royal school, three national schools, a literary society, and an asylum (founded by Bishop Forster) for four clergymen's widows. Monthly fairs are held.

Raphoe, North, bar., E. co. Don., Ir.; ac. 79,422. It is bounded on the east by the Foyle (which separates it from co. Londy.), on the south by South Raphoe bar., on the west by Banagh and Boylagh bars., and on the north by Kilmacrenan bar.

Raphoe, South, bar., E. co. Don., Ir.; ac. 140,848. It is bounded on the north by North Raphoe bar., on the east by cos. Londy. and Tyr., the latter also adjoining it on the south, and on the west by Boylagh, Banagh, and Tirhugh bars.

Rarnish, vil., pa. of Lochs (q.v.), Lewis island, Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc., about 5 s. of Stornoway.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ranworth-with-P.	Brundall (5)	120	415
Raphoe, pa.	Strabane (8)	163	3100
Raphoe, mkt. to.	Strabane (8)	163	843
Raphoe, North	....	.....	16063
Raphoe, South	.....	.....	18999
Rarnish	Strome Ferry (54)	661	452
Rasen, Middle	Market Rasen (1¼)	145	776

Rasay. [Blackwater (19)].

Rase, stream, Mid Lincs., rises 4 N.E. of Market Rasen, and flows for about 8 miles in a westerly direction to the Ancholme, which it joins about 4 W. of Market Rasen.

Rasen, Market. [Market Rasen.]

Rasen, Middle, pa. and vil. on the Rase, Mid Lincs., about 15 N.E. of Lincoln; ac. 3,481; soil sand and clay, overlying clay. Formerly there were two churches, but St. Paul's, belonging to Drax Priory, was pulled down in 1860. The church of St. Peter (restored 1860) is Norm., E. Eng., and Dec.; in the aisle is a window taken from St. Paul's Church, and in the chancel the effigy of a priest from the same place. There are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Reformed Wesleyan chapels.

Rasen, West, pa. and vil. on the Rase (here crossed by a 14th-cent. horse-bridge), Mid Lincs., about 15 N.E. of Lincoln; ac. 3,121; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints (partly rebuilt 1829 and partly restored 1870) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; the Norm. arcade of the north aisle (no longer existing) is built into the north wall of the nave; on the south side of the chancel is a Perp. bracket with the figures of a bishop, a monk, and a layman. In the churchyard are the remains of an ancient cross.

Rasharkin, pa. and small vil., Kilconway bar., W. co. Antr., Ir., about 3 E. of Kilrea, and bounded on the west by the Bann, which separates it from co. Londy.; ac. 19,261. The manufacture of linen is carried on in the neighbourhood to some extent.

Rashcliffe, eccl. pa. within the bor. of Huddersfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. Stephen is a modern building in Gothic style.

Rashee, pa., Upper Antrim bar., S. co. Antr., Ir., 3 N.W. of Ballyclare; ac. 6,459.

Rashleigh, ha., pa. of Wembworthy (q.v.), N. Dev., about 4½ S.W. of Chumleigh.

Raskelf, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Easingwold (q.v.). N.R. Yorks.; ac. 4,281. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1879) has remains of a Norm. arcade, some Dec. work, and fragments of ancient glass. There is a memorial to Capt. A. F. K. Cavendish Webb, who fell in the charge at Balaklava. The Wesleyans have a chapel. R. has several small charities.

Rastrick, eccl. pa., tp., and to. on the Calder, pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 15 S.W. of Leeds; ac. 1,290. In the place of an ancient chapel the church of St. Matthew was built in 1796, in Grecian style. There are Congregational and Free Methodist chapels, and a Friends' meeting-house. Law's charity is of the yearly value of about £130, and is used for the free education of ten boys in the grammar school; a charity of £40 is divided among four poor widows, and there is another small charity. The grammar school was founded by John Hanson in 1621, and reconstituted in 1876. There are stone quarries, a silk manufactory, and woollen mills.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rasen, West	Market Rasen (2)	145	218
Rasharkin, pa.	Kilrea (3)	143	5379
Rasharkin, vil.	Kilrea (3)	143	231
Rashcliffe	Huddersfield (2)	188	8451
Rashee	Ballyclare (3)	127	1052
Raskelf	Raskelf [house (½)	201	489
Rastrick	Clifton Road, Brig-	189	9279

Rataine, pa., Lower Navan bar., Mid co. Meath, Ir., about 3½ N. of Trim; ac. 1,631.

Ratass, pa., Trughanacmy bar., Mid co. Kerry, Ir.; ac. 6,982. It contains part of the town of Tralee (q.v.), from which it extends 1½ E., and H.M. prison for Kerry.

Ratby, pa. and vil., Mid Leics., 5 N.W. of Leicester; ac. 4,972; soil marl, overlying clay. The church of SS. Philip and James (restored 1881) is chiefly Dec.; in the chancel is a fine monument to Manfride Sacheverell (d. 1615), and the font is ancient. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are small. On Old Hays Farm is a Roman encampment called Bury Camp, and a spring called Holywell, the waters of which have never been known to freeze.

Ratchwood, tp., pa. of Bamburgh (q.v.), N. Northumb., 4½ S. of Belford; ac. 142.

Ratcliff (= "Red Cliff"), tp. in E. London, pa. of Stepney (q.v.), E. Middx., 2 E. of St. Paul's; ac. 111. R. is situated on the north bank of the Thames, opposite The Pool. It has a very nautical appearance, the notorious Ratcliff Highway (now St. George Street) being the favourite haunt of sailors on shore. It formerly had a very bad name, but such institutions as the Seamen's Mission Hall and the Seamen's Free Reading Room are gradually changing its character. In this street is the famous establishment of the Jamrachs, where animals of all kinds are constantly on sale. There are many smaller shops of the same kind in the vicinity. The murders of Marr and Williamson (1811) in R. Highway form the theme of De Quincey's "Murder Considered as a Fine Art." R. Cross, mentioned in one of Dryden's poems, runs from Butchers' Row to R. Cross Stairs, once a busy landing-place. Lancelot Andrewes (d. 1626), Bishop of Winchester, was educated in the Coopers' Free School here. In the Swedish Church, Princes' Square, rests the body of the mystical writer, Emanuel Swedenborg (d. 1772).

St. George Street, Ratcliff.

Ratcliffe, ha., pa. of and 2 W. from Worksop (q.v.), N.W. Notts.

Ratcliffe Culey, chap., tp., and small vil. on the Anker, pa. of Sheepy Magna (q.v.), W. Leics., 6½ S.W. of Market Bosworth; ac. 1,210. The church of All Saints is Gothic.

Ratcliffe-on-Soar, pa. and vil. near the junction of the Trent and Soar, S. Notts., 9 S.W. of Nottingham; ac. 1,185; soil clay and loam, overlying marl. The church of the Holy Trinity (partially restored 1891) is E. Eng. and Dec.; the tower is E. Eng., and the south aisle Dec., with remains of an altar and piscina; the chancel has three sedilia, a piscina, and a carved oak table, possibly Jacobean; there is also a stone inscribed to Robert Holme (d. 1688), an alabaster altar-tomb (with effigies) bearing an inscription to Henry Sacheverell, his wife and children; there is another altar-tomb in poor condition, with male and female effigies, to Henry Sacheverell (d. 1558) and his wife Lucy (d. 1554). In the north aisle are altar-tombs to Ralph Sacheverell (d. 1539) and his wives Cecilia (d. 1528) and Anna, and to Henry Sacheverell (d. 1625), his wives and children; there are other memorials, some of ancient date, and tombs of the families of Hickinbotham, Chamberlain, and Bosworth. There is a small charity.

Ratcliffe-on-the-Wreak, pa. and vil., N. Leics., 7 N.E. of Leicester; ac. 852; soil clay, marl, and sand. The church of St. Botolph (restored 1877) is Dec.; the tower was rebuilt in 1812; in the chancel is a recumbent effigy, possibly of the founder. There are some small charities. The Roman Catholic college was established here in 1843, and was built from designs by the elder Pugin. R. Hall is a seat.

Ratcliffe-upon-Trent. [Radcliffe-upon-Trent.]

Ratesh, ha., pa. of Dunmore (q.v.), N. co. Galway, Ir., about 7 N.W. of Tuam.

Ratfyn, ha., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Amesbury (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Rath, pa., Inchiquin bar., Mid co. Clare, Ir., about 6 N.W. of Ennis; ac. 8,488. Part of the land is low and rich in pasture. There is a Roman Catholic church.

Rathangan, pa., small mkt. to. (M.), and head of petty sess. div., on the eastern bank of the Grand Canal, East and West Offaly bars., W. co. Kildare, Ir.; ac. 11,531. The to., about 6 N.W. of Kildare, is fairly well built. The Protestant church is situated on an eminence, and the Roman Catholic church is a fine building. The principal trade consists of malting and corn. In the rebellion of 1798 the rebels entered this town, but Colonel Longfield, with the Cork Militia and some Dragoons, dispersed them with a loss of fifty, of whom some were hanged. The ruins of Offaly Castle, from which Lord Offaly takes his title, are situated within ½ mile of the town. Fairs are held on Whit-Tuesday, August 26, and November 12.

Rathaspick (1), pa., Forth bar., S. co. Wex.. Ir., about 3 S.W. of Wexford railway station; ac. 2,084. The church dates from 1723. Here is a national school. Johnstown Castle, the seat of Lord Maurice

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist.: fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rataine	Trim (3½)	30	184
Ratass	Tralee	207	2579
Ratby	Ratby	106	2201
Ratchwood	Belford (4)	323	4
Ratcliff	.....	.....	14928
Ratcliffe Culey	Atherstone (2)	102	220
Ratcliffe-on-Soar	Keyworth (2)	116	135
R.-on-the-Wreak	Syston (2)	104	131
Rath	Corofin (1)	163	1162
Rathangan, pa.	Kildare (6)	31	1603
Rathangan, to.	Kildare (6)	31	655
Rathaspick (1)	Wexford (3)	93	456

Fitzgerald, is a picturesque castellated modern mansion, mostly of granite, exhibiting irregular buildings with towers, including a tower of an older structure, covered with verdure, and the whole surrounded with extensive and ornamental grounds.

Rathaspick (2), pa., Fassadinin bar., N. co. Kilk., and Ballyadams and Slievemargy bars., S.E. Q. Co., Ir., 6 s.w. of Athy; ac. 8,240. There are some remains of a monastery, and various relics have been discovered; the church was built of some of the materials of the monastery. Gracefield is a seat.

Rathaspick (3), pa., Moygoish bar., N. co. Wstm., Ir., 1 w.s.w. of Street railway station; ac. 7,547. The pa. contains the vil. of Rathowen. Newpass is a seat.

Rathbarry, pa. extending to the coast, Ibane and Barryroe and East Carbery bars., S. co. Cork, Ir., 4 s.w. of Clonakilty; ac. 4,734. There are barytes mines in this pa. Castle Freke is a seat.

Rathbeagh, pa. on the Nore, Fassadinin and Galmoy bars., N. co. Kilk., Ir., 4 s.w. of Ballyragget station; ac. 2,823.

Rathbeggan, pa., Ratoath bar., S. co. Meath, Ir., 3 s.w. of Ratoath; ac. 2,865.

Rathborney, pa., Burren bar., N. co. Clare, Ir., 11 N.W. of Corofin station; ac. 9,633. The surface is to a great extent mountainous.

Rathbran, pa. on the Slaney, Upper Talbotstown bar., W. co. Wick., Ir., 3 S.E. of Grange Con station; ac. 5,816. It contains the vil. of Stratford, where is the Protestant church. There is also a Roman Catholic church. Saunders Grove is a seat.

Rathclarin, pa., East Carbery bar., S. co. Cork, Ir., 5½ S. of Bandon; ac. 5,900. It contains the vil. of Kilbrittain (q.v.). There is a Roman Catholic church, and also public schools and a parochial school.

Rathcline (1), bar., S.W. co. Longf., Ir.; ac. 40,421. It is bounded on the west and south by Lough Derg, and on the east by Moydow and Shrule bars. It is traversed by the Royal Canal.

Rathcline (2), pa., Rathcline bar., S.W. co. Longf., Ir., bounded on the west by the Shannon and Lough Ree; ac. 11,043. Besides the Protestant church, the pa. has a Roman Catholic church and three national schools. Part of Lanesborough (q.v.) is in this pa. R. House is a seat.

Rathconnell, pa., Moyashel and Magheradernon bar., Mid co. Wstm., Ir., 2 N.E. of Mullingar; ac. 15,662. Besides the Protestant church, there are two Roman Catholic churches and two schools. Knockdrin is a modern mansion in a fine estate, including the Hill of Knockdrin, which is well wooded.

Rathconrath (1), bar., W. co. Wstm., Ir.; ac. 48,362. It is bounded on the north by co. Longford, on the east by Moycoish and Moyashel and Magheradernon bars., on the south by Moycashel and Clonlonan bars., and on the west by West Kilkenny bar.

Rathconrath (2), pa. and vil., Rathconrath bar., W. co. Wstm., Ir., 7 s.w. of Castletown station; ac. 8,703. There is an ancient mound or moat, from which the vil. takes its name, said to be raised by the Danes. The Protestant church is a very small building, and has been closed since the Disestablishment of the Irish Church. There are two Catholic churches, two public schools, and a constabulary station. Meare's Court and Mount Dalton House are seats.

Rathcoole (1), pa. and vil., Newcastle bar., S.W. co. Dub., Ir., 10 s.w. of Dublin; ac. 4,705. The vil. is small and irregularly built, situated in a mountainous district on the road to Naas. The Protestant church is a plain edifice of stone. Johnstown Kennedy is a seat.

Rathcoole (2), pa., Gowran bar., E. co. Kilk., Ir., 4 N.E. of Kilkenny; ac. 3,672. The surface is partly mountainous, the highest ground having an altitude of 1,000 ft.

Rathcoole (3), pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 1¼ N.W. of Fethard; ac. 5,904.

Rathcooney, pa. on the Lee, Cork bar., Mid co. Cork, Ir., 1 N. of Dunkettle; ac. 5,152. It contains the vils. of Glanmire, Knocknahorgan, and Poulacurry (q.v.).

Rathcor, vil. on Dundalk Bay, pa. of and 4 S. from Carlingford (q.v.), N.E. co. Louth, Ir.

Rathcore, pa., Upper Deece and Lower Moyfenrath bars., S. co. Meath, Ir.; ac. 13,958. The pa. contains Enfield (q.v.), and is traversed by the Grand Canal. Rahinstown is a seat.

Rathcormac, pa., small to. (formerly parl. bor.), and head of petty sess. div., Barrymore bar., E. co. Cork, Ir., 3½ S. of Fermoy; ac. 13,995. The Protestant church is ancient, and was enlarged in 1828. The Roman Catholic church (1818) is a large cruciform edifice, with a low square tower. The town was erected into a free bor. by Charles II., and the inhabitants returned two members to the Irish Parliament until the Union, when the bor. was disfranchised.

Rathdown (1), bar., N.E. co. Wick., Ir.; ac. 34,381. It is bounded on the north by co. Dublin, on the west by Lower Talbotstown bar., on the south by North Ballinacor and Newcastle bars., and on the east by the Irish Sea. It contains the town of Wicklow, and the Dublin and Wicklow Railway runs along the coast.

Rathdown (2), bar., S.E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 32,874. Part of it forms the shore of Dublin Bay, which,

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rathaspick (2)	Athy (6)	45	1523
Rathaspick (3)	Street (1)	63	938
Rathbarry	Clonakilty (4)	199	1228
Rathbeagh	Ballyragget (4)	69	322
Rathbeggan	Batterstown (2)	16	111
Rathborney	Corofin (11)	163	213
Rathbran	Grange Con (3)	38	773
Rathclarin	Bandon (5½)	186	1116
Rathcline (1)	.....	.....	6553
Rathcline (2)	Longford (9)	78	1607
Rathconnell	Mullingar (2)	52	1471
Rathconrath (1)	.....	.....	5325
Rathconrath (2)	Castletown (7)	60	1140
Rathcoole (1), pa.	Celbridge (4)	11	704
Rathcoole (1), vil.	Celbridge (4)	11	276
Rathcoole (2)	Kilkenny (4)	81	372
Rathcoole (3)	Fethard (1¼)	194	552
Rathcooney	Dunkettle (1)	169	1704
Rathcore	Enfield	29	1585
Rathcormac, pa.	Fermoy (3½)	162	1653
Rathcormac, to.	Fermoy (3½)	162	354
Rathdown (1)	.....	.....	9893
Rathdown (2)	.....	.....	55065

with the Irish Sea, bounds it on the east; on the south it adjoins co. Wicklow; Uppercross bar. bounds it on the west and (with Dublin bar.) on the north. It contains Kingstown, and the Dublin and Wicklow Railway passes through.

Rathdowney, pa., to., and head of petty sess. div., Clarmallagh and Clandonagh bars., S.W. Q.. Co., Ir., on the old coach road from Mountrath to Thurles, 5 S. of Ballybrophy railway station; ac. 17,218. The town consists principally of one wide street, at the upper end of which is the Protestant church. There is also a Roman Catholic church, two good public schools, and a Wesleyan chapel. The public institutions comprise a library and reading-room, and a Young Men's Christian Association. There is also a court-house (where petty sessions are held every alternate Saturday), a constabulary barrack, Masonic lodge, and a concert-hall. The principal business here is an extensive ale and porter brewery. There is also a corn mill. Monthly fairs are held.

Rathdrum, pa., mkt. to. (TH.), and head of petty sess. div., North Ballinacor bar., Mid co. Wick., Ir., 9 N.W. of Wicklow; ac. 5,799. The town is on the summit of a hill (700 ft.) on the bank of the Avonmore. The Protestant church, a handsome stone structure, contains a bell with an ancient inscription stating that it was brought from Glendalough. There is a Roman Catholic church; the Sisters of Charity have a convent and an industrial school. The woollen trade once carried on here has disappeared; and the spacious woollen hall erected in 1793 having been destroyed by fire, a court-house has been erected on its site. Monthly fairs are held. Avondale and The Coppice are seats.

Rathdrumin, pa., Ferrard bar., S. co. Louth, Ir., 2 S.E. of Dunleer; ac. 1,207.

Rathen, pa. and vil. (with railway station), N. Abers., Sc., about 3½ S. of Fraserburgh; ac. 9,587; soil in some parts rich and deep, in others light and sandy. This pa. is comparatively destitute of growing timber, though from large masses of oak being occasionally dug up from morasses, it must have been more thickly wooded. The pa. church (1870) is a granite and freestone building; the south aisle of the old church, which is several hundred years old, is still standing. There are two castles in ruins, which seem to have been places of considerable strength.

Rathernan, pa., Connell bar., Mid co. Kildare, Ir., 7 N.E. of Kildare town; ac. 5,139. The pa. contains the Hill of Allan (676 ft.) and the Bog of Mounds (300 ft.).

Rathfarnham, pa., vil., and head of petty sess. div., Upper Cross and Rathdown bars., S. co. Dub., Ir., 4 S. of Dublin; ac. 2,582. There is a Protestant church with tower and spire, and in the vicinity are two convents. Several paper and corn mills are in the neighbourhood. Petty sessions are held at the court-house every alternate Tuesday. R. was one of the earliest places to rise in the rebellion of 1798. R. Castle, built in the reign of Elizabeth, is a seat.

Rathfeigh, pa., Skreen bar., E. co. Meath, Ir., 8 S. of Slane; ac. 2,887.

Rathfran Bay, small inlet of the sea, on the west side of Killala Bay, N.E. co. Mayo, Ir., about 2 N. of Killala.

Rathfryland, small mkt. to., pas. of Drumballyroney and Drumgath (q.v.), Upper Iveagh bar., W. co. Down, Ir., rather more than 10 N.E. of Newry. R. stands on the acclivities of a small hill, and consists of five principal streets, which radiate downward from a tolerably spacious square. The summit of the hill, which commands an extensive view of the surrounding country, is crowned by the ruins of an old castle, anciently one of the fortified residences of the Magennises, lords of Iveagh. The Protestant church, on the south side of the square, is a small edifice, and the Roman Catholic church is a spacious building; the Presbyterians, the Covenanters, Society of Friends, and the Wesleyans have places of worship. The charitable establishments are public schools for children of both sexes. The market-house is a good building in the centre of the square; the upper part is used by the magistrates. A considerable business is carried on, including the manufacture of sewed muslins. A short distance from the town is a spa, strongly chalybeate, and deemed efficacious in scorbutic complaints. Monthly fairs are held.

Rathgar, dis., pa. of Rathfarnham (q.v.), S.E. co. Dub., Ir. It lies about 3 S. of Dublin. In the neighbourhood are several avenues studded with villas and terraces, also extensive quarries of limestone. [RATHMINES AND RATHGAR.]

Rathgarve, pa., Fore bar., N. co. Wstm., Ir., 6 S.E. of Float station; ac. 6,026. It contains the mkt. to. of Castle Pollard (q.v.), where the church is situated. Kinturk House is a seat.

Rathgoggan, pa., Orrery and Kilmore bar., N. co. Cork, Ir.; ac. 3,317. It contains the mkt. to. of Charleville (q.v.).

Rathgormuck, pa. and vil., Upperthird and Glenahiry bars., N. co. Waterf., Ir., 5 S.W. of Carrick-on-Suir; ac. 17,965. The Clodiagh flows through the pa., which includes portions of the Monavonlagh Mountains, interspersed with small lakes at considerable heights. There are remains of an ancient castle.

Rathillet, vil., pa. of Kilmany (q.v.), N. Fifes., Sc., about 4 N. of Cupar.

Rathjordan, pa., Clanwilliam bar., E. co. Lim., Ir., 5 S. of Cahirconlish; ac. 1,063.

Rathkeale, pa., U. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.), and head of petty sess. div., with railway station, on the Deel, Lower Connello bar., Mid co. Lim., Ir., 17 S.W. by W. of Limerick; ac. 12,095. The places of worship are the Protestant church, with a lofty

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rathdowney, pa.	Ballybrophy (5)	67	2874
Rathdowney, to.	Ballybrophy (5)	67	1056
Rathdrum, pa.	Rathdrum	38	1670
Rathdrum, to.	Rathdrum	38	664
Rathdrumin	Dunleer (2)	42	188
Rathen	Rathen	572	2627
Rathernan	Newbridge (3)	26	521
Rathfarnham, pa.	Milltown (1)	2	8019
Rathfarnham, vil.	Milltown (1)	2	713
Rathfeigh	Duleek (6)	37	154
Rathfryland	Ballyroney (2)	96	1461
Rathgarve	Float (6)	67	1550
Rathgoggan	Charleville	130	2504
Rathgormuck, pa.	Carrick-on-Suir (5)	149	1155
Rathjordan	Pallas (4)	115	193
Rathkeale, pa.	Rathkeale	147	3505
Rathkeale, to.	Rathkeale	147	2073

embattled tower with crocketed pinnacles, and a Roman Catholic church. There are several large flour mills, and monthly fairs are held. The town consists principally of one long and wide street extending from east to west. A priory for Augustinian canons was founded here in the 13th cent. Matras (or Matrix) Castle, about a mile from the town, stands in a fine situation, commanding extensive views. It was besieged by Cromwell, but received little injury. R. was formerly a corporate town, and successfully resisted various assaults of the English army during the rebellion in the reign of Elizabeth. The courthouse, in the square, is a stone building, and the bridewell is beneath it.

Rathkennan, pa., Lower Kilnamanagh bar., W. co. Tip., Ir., 4½ S.W. of Thurles; ac. 786.

Rathkenny, pa., Upper Slane bar., N. co. Meath, Ir., 4 N.W. of Slane; ac. 5,496. Rathkenny is a seat.

Rathkieran, pa., Iverk bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 4½ N.W. of Waterford; ac. 3,478.

Rathlackan, pl., pa. of Kilcummin (q.v.), N. co. Mayo, Ir., 17 N.W. of Ballina.

Rathlee Head, headland on east shore of Killala Bay, pa. of and 4 W. from Easky (q.v.), N.W. co. Sligo, Ir.

Rathlin, pa. and island off north coast of co. Antr., Ir., 5 N.N.E. of Ballycastle; ac. 3,398; soil light mould with some basalt and limestone, overlying basalt and limestone. The north part of the island extends 4½ miles from east to west, with an average breadth of about a mile; at right angles to this portion, at its east end, is the south half of the island, which has nearly the same breadth and stretches some 2½ miles north and south. The south extremity is less than 3 miles from Benmore Head, the nearest part of the mainland. The coast scenery is very picturesque, the cliffs varying in height from 180 ft. to 447 ft. The island is difficult to approach, owing to the tempestuous character of the Race of Sloch-na-Marra, which divides it from the mainland. The columnar formation of the basaltic cliffs at various places on the east coast bears a striking resemblance to that of the Giants' Causeway. There are some interesting caves. A Protestant church was built in 1815, and there is also a Roman Catholic church. The scanty ruins of Bruce's Castle, a fortress of unknown antiquity, stand on a lofty rock almost detached from the island near its north-east extremity. The inhabitants are engaged in fishing and agriculture, the soil being fairly fertile; barley and kelp are exported to Campbeltown and Glasgow. A church said to have been founded in the 6th cent. by St. Columban was destroyed by the Norsemen in 790, and again in 973, after which time it disappears from history. Robert Bruce lay in hiding for some time in the castle named after him, and here the well-known incident of the spider is said to have occurred. The fierce attack on the Scots by the Earl of Sussex (1558) was followed by other enterprises of the same character, which resulted in the complete depopulation of the island.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Rathkennan	Thurles (4½)	87	102
Rathkenny	Wilkinstown (2½)	39	792
Rathkieran	Waterford (4½)	112	523
Rathlin	Ballycastle (5)	173	365
Rathlogan	Ballyragget (9)	69	90
Rathlynin	Tipperary (3½)	111	343

Rathlin o' Birne, island, pa. of Glenco (q.v.), off west coast of co. Don., Ir., Donegal. The island is situated within the mainland. It is ½ mile long from south, and has an extreme breadth of 3 fu Rathlogan, pa., Galmoy bar., N. co. I 9 W.S.W. of Ballyragget; ac. 484.

Rathlynin, pa., Clanwilliam bar., S.W. Ir., 3½ N.E. of Tipperary town; ac. 2,781.

Rathmacknee, pa., Forth bar., S.E. co. 5 S.W. of Wexford; ac. 1,861. The la excellent quality and chiefly used for gra there are many good homesteads. The Roman Catholic church and two schools.

Rathmell, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on th pas. of Giggleswick and Long Preston (q. Yorks., 3 S. of Settle; ac. 3,432. The c Holy Trinity is in Gothic style. The W have a chapel.

Rathmelton, or Ramelton, pleasant lit to. (T.) and head of petty sess. div., southern bank of the Leannan, a little entrance into Lough Swilly, pas. of Augh Tullyfern (q.v.), Kilmacrenan bar., N. co. 8 N.N.E. of Letterkenny. The town pre agreeable appearance, the neighbourhood in beautiful views from various points, and of the Leannan is picturesque and finely The Protestant church of Aughnish, sit the town, is a handsome edifice with The Roman Catholics have a church in t also one within a mile of the town; Presbyterians and Methodists have places ship. In 1878 a Public Hall was built. a dispensary and fever hospital and sever schools. Fairs are held on May 22, July Nov. 16. Immediately below the town estuary of the river, is a small quay, up vessels of 150 tons can come at high wa others, almost of any tonnage, can approac half a mile of the town. The trade in considerable, and there are some large mi vicinity. Near the town are the ruins o cent. castle and of the Franciscan friary donnell, founded in the 16th cent. Mu that there is a legend about the bell of t " to the effect that it was carried off marauders from Tyrone, who embarked Lough with the bell in their vessel. arose, and the sacrilegious robbers were to commemorate which act of retributiv the bell is heard to ring once every seven midnight."

Rathmichael, coast pa., Rathdown bar. Dub., Ir., 2 N.W. of Bray; ac. 2,808. It the vil. of Tillytown (q.v.). "The Scalp west boundary, is a natural cut in th tain, about 790 ft. above sea-level, through a road.

Rathmines, dis., pa. of St. Peter (q.v.) Dub., Ir. It is an extensive and fashionabl about 2 S. of Dublin. There are Roman and Protestant churches and schools.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and di fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Du
Rathmacknee	Wexford (5)	9
Rathmell, eccl. pa.	Settle (3)	23
Rathmell, tp.	Settle (3)	23
Rathmelton	Letterkenny (8)	18
Rathmichael	Bray (2)	1

Rathmines and Rathgar, tp., S.E. co. Dub., Ir., lying to the south of the city; ac. 1,714.

Rathmolyon, pa. and vil., Lower Moyfenrath bar., S. co. Meath, Ir., 5 S.S.W. of Trim; ac. 9,713. Tobertynan is a seat.

Rathmore (1), pa., North Naas bar., Mid co. Kildare, Ir., 4 S.E. of Naas; ac. 7,762. Steeplechases are held at Punchestown in this pa.

Rathmore (2), pa., Rathvilly bar., N. co. Carl., Ir., 2 S.W. of Rathvilly station; ac. 815.

Rathmore (3), pa., Lune bar., W. co. Meath, Ir., 1¾ N.E. of Athboy; ac. 5,348.

Rathmore (4), vil. with railway station, and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Kilcummin (q.v.), W. co. Kerry, Ir., 12 E. of Killarney.

Rathmoylan, coast pa., Gaultiere bar., E. co. Waterf., Ir., 3½ E. of Tramore; ac. 2,455.

Rathmullan (1), pa. on Dundrum Bay, Upper and Lower Lecale bars., S.E. co. Down, Ir., 6 S. of Downpatrick; ac. 3,739. It contains the vil. of Killough (q.v.). The pa. church was built in 1701.

Rathmullan (2), vil. and head of petty sess. div., on the west bank of Lough Swilly, pa. of Killygarvan (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 6½ N.E. of Rathmelton. The places of worship are a Protestant church, a Roman Catholic church, and a Presbyterian meeting-house. The town is provided with a good quay for shipping, and there is a regular daily steam communication across to Fahan on the east shore. Near R. are the ruins of a priory of Carmelite Friars, and a castle adjoining, the eastern part of which was till recently used as a church; over the east window remains a figure of St. Patrick as a bishop.

RUINS NEAR RATHMULLAN.

Rathmuriel. [CHRIST'S KIRK.]

Rathnaveoge, pa., Ikerrin bar., N.E. co. Tip., Ir., 6 S.E. of Cloghjordan; ac. 5,152. The pa. includes a portion of the Devil's Bit Mountain.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rathmines & Rathgar	Ranelagh	3	27796
Rathmolyon, pa.	Trim (5)	30	1241
Rathmolyon, vil.	Trim (5)	30	127
Rathmore (1)	Naas (4)	20	667
Rathmore (2)	Rathvilly (2)	46	133
Rathmore (3)	Athboy (1¾)	37	613
Rathmoylan	Tramore (3½)	120	429
Rathmullan (1)	Downpatrick (6)	140	1352
Rathmullan (2)	Fahan (3)	187	591
Rathnaveoge	Roscrea (5)	78	525
Rathnew, pa.	Rathnew	30	2567
Rathnew, vil.	Rathnew	30	497
Ratho, pa.	Ratho	400	1839

Rathnew, coast pa. and vil., Newcastle bar., E. co. Wick., Ir., 27 S.S.E. of Dublin; ac. 8,405. It contains part of the town of Wicklow (q.v.). There is a Roman Catholic church and a school. Rosannah is a seat.

Ratho, pa. and vil., N.W. Edins., Sc.; ac. 6,147. The country in the eastern part of the pa. is flat, and the soil fertile; but the ground rises gradually towards the west. The vil. lies about 8 W. by S. of Edinburgh. The pa. church, originally erected in the 12th cent., is an irregular structure, incorporating work of various periods, but is not without features of interest. The Roman Catholic church was erected in 1883. There are vestiges of two Danish camps. Dalmahoy and Hatton are seats. The latter is one of the oldest houses in Scotland, and its massive walls contain hiding-places used in the old troublous times.

Rathowen, vil. and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Rathaspick (q.v.), N. co. Wstm., Ir., 5 S.E. of Edgeworthstown.

Rathpatrick, pa., Ida bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 3½ N.E. of Waterford; ac. 4,479.

Rathreagh (1), pa., Tirawley bar., N. co. Mayo, Ir., 5 W. of Killala; ac. 4,164. Limestone is found here in abundance. There are two public schools. Fairs are held March 17, the Thursday after Trinity Sunday, June 24, September 29, and December 26.

Rathreagh (2), pa. on the Inny, Ardagh bar., Mid co. Longf., Ir., 5 S. of Edgeworthstown; ac. 4,023.

Rathregan, pa., Ratoath bar., S.E. co. Meath, Ir., 2 S.W. of Dunshaughlin; ac. 2,576.

Rathroe, pa., Shelburne bar., S.W. co. Wex., Ir., 3 E. of Arthurstown; ac. 2,396.

Rathronan (1), pa., East Iffa and Offa bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 1¼ mile from Clonmel railway station; ac. 2,641.

Rathronan (2), pa., Shanid bar., W. co. Lim., Ir., 5 N. of Abbeyfeale; ac. 15,091. Here is a Catholic church.

Rathsallagh, pa., Upper Talbotstown bar., W. co. Wick., Ir., 2 S.E. of Dunlavin; ac. 1,775.

Rathsaran, pa., Clandonagh bar., S.W. Q. Co., Ir., 1½ W. of Rathdowney; ac. 2,290. The Protestant church was built about a hundred years ago. There is a Roman Catholic church and a parochial school.

Rathtoole, pa., Upper Talbotstown bar., W. co. Wick., Ir., 4 N.W. of Baltinglass; ac. 692.

Rathven, pa., N. Banffs., Sc., about 3½ W. of Cullen, extending about 10 miles along the coast of the Moray Frith; ac. 23,166. The greater portion of the land is hilly, but the more level parts near the sea are arable and fertile, being greatly enriched by sea manure, and in some parts there are thriving plantations. Throughout the district the supply of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ratho, vil.	Ratho	400	821
Rathowen	Edgeworthstown (5)	70	236
Rathpatrick	Waterford (3½)	112	826
Rathreagh (1)	Killala (5)	174	453
Rathreagh (2)	Edgeworthstown (5)	70	488
Rathregan	Drumregan (1)	19	112
Rathroe	New Ross (9½)	102	421
Rathronan (1)	Clonmel (1¼)	135	414
Rathronan (2)	Newcastle (4)	157	2732
Rathsallagh	Dunlavin (2)	31	112
Rathsaran	Ballybrophy (4)	67	378
Rathtoole	Baltinglass (4)	42	46
Rathven	Rathven (1)	592	12925

limestone, sandstone, and slate is abundant; and the memorials of antiquity are numerous, Danish cairns being the most general.

Rathvilly (1), bar., N.E. co. Carl., Ir.; ac. 44,803. It is bounded on the north by cos. Kildare and Wick.; the last-named co. also bounds it on the east and (with Forth bar.) on the south; Carlow bar. bounds it on the west. It contains Hacketstown, Rathvilly, and Tullow, to which place there is a line from Dublin.

Rathvilly (2), pa. and vil., Rathvilly bar., N. co. Carl., Ir., 6 N. of Tullow; ac. 9,212. The Protestant church is a plain building with a lofty spire; and there is also a Roman Catholic church. Lisnaragh is a seat.

Rathwire, vil., pa. of and about ½ S. from Killucan (q.v.), E. co. Wstm., Ir.

Rat Island (1). [LUNDY ISLAND.]

Rat Island (2), or Burrow Island, in Portsmouth Harbour, S. Hants, about ¼ N.E. of Gosport.

Ratley, pa. and vil., S. Warws., 7 N.W. of Banbury; ac. 1,634; soil marl, overlying rock. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng.; the arcade columns possess no capitals. There is a Methodist chapel. The school has a small endowment. Stone is quarried. On Edge Hill is the site of a British camp, most likely afterwards occupied by the Romans. Upton House is a seat.

Ratlinghope, pa., Mid Salop, 12½ S. of Shrewsbury; ac. 5,559; soil sandy and clay, overlying rocky subsoil. The church of St. Margaret is an ancient building. There was formerly here a priory of Augustinian (or Black) Canons of St. Victor, founded in the reign of King John as a cell to the priory of St. James at Wigmore, Herts. Between R. and Church Stretton runs the Portway, an old Roman road. There are many tumuli and vestiges of fortified camps in the neighbourhood.

Ratoath (1), bar., S.E. co. Meath, Ir.; ac. 35,697. It is bounded on the north by Skreen bar., on the east by co. Dub., on the south by Dunboyne bar., and on the west by Lower and Upper Deece bars. It is traversed by the Great Northern (Ireland) line to Navan.

Ratoath (2), pa. and vil. (formerly a parl. bor.), Ratoath bar., S.E. co. Meath, Ir., 5 E. of Drumree station; ac. 9,367. R. is said to have been at one period a station occupied by the Danes, and there is a mound or rath in the centre of the vil., the raising of which is ascribed to those invaders. The church, erected in 1817, is a neat edifice; the tower, from its elevated site, may be seen from a considerable distance. The Roman Catholic church is a very spacious and handsome structure. Fairs are held on April 18, June 1, and November 20. The Manor is a seat.

Ratsheugh Crag. [HOUGHTON, LONG.]

Ratsloe. [RATTISLOE.]

Rattachan. [MAM RATTACHAN.]

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rathvilly (1)	.....	.....	8485
Rathvilly (2), pa.	Rathvilly	46	1633
Rathvilly (2), vil.	Rathvilly	46	350
Rathwire	Killucan (¼)	44	97
Ratley	Fenny Compton (6)	85	371
Ratlinghope	Church Stretton (4)	175	222
Ratoath (1)	.....	.....	2690
Ratoath (2), pa.	Drumree (5)	19	749

Ratter, ha., pa. of Dunnet (q.v.), N. Caithness, 8 7 N.E. of Castletown.

Rattery, pa. and small vil. on two tributaries the Dart, S. Dev., 5 W.N.W. of Totnes; ac. 2,8 soil slate and peat, overlying slate, rock, and grav The church (dedication unknown), restored 18 is Norm., and contains a Norm. font and a carv oak screen. The charities are small. Mari House is a seat.

Rattisloe, or Ratsloe, ha., pa. of Poltimore (q.v Mid Dev., 3 N.E. of Exeter.

Rattlesden, pa. and large vil., Mid Suff., 5 W. Stowmarket; ac. 3,254; soil heavy, subsoil cl The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1883) is Per and Dec. There is a Baptist chapel. Clopton Ha situated on an eminence, and surrounded by woo plantations, and preserves, is a seat.

Rattoo, pa., Clanmaurice and Iraghticonnor bar N.E. co. Cork, Ir., 6 W. of Listowel; ac. 8,201. T surface is partly hill, with much marshy land (n drained) and some bog. The Augustinian abb the ruins of which remain, was founded in t reign of King John; in 1600 it was converted in a fortress by the Irish, who set fire to the buildi when they were attacked by Sir Charles Wilm Near the ruins is a lofty ivy-mantled round tower a perfect state of preservation. R. House is a sea

Rattray, pa. and to., E. Perths., Sc., oppos Blairgowrie (q.v.), of which the to. of R. is prac cally a suburb, and with which it is connected a bridge of four arches, spanning the river Erich ac. 5,382. The surface is hilly, the land on the ban of the river arable and fertile, while the high grounds are only suitable for pasture. On the ban of the Ericht are flax and jute mills, which g employment to a large number of persons. To t south-east of the town is an oblong mound cal The Castlehill, surmounted by vestiges of t ancient castle of R. From Hatton Hill, on a cl day, Perth can be seen; and it was at the Hatt of R. that the Scottish martyr, Donald Cargil Covenanting divine, was born in 1610 and execu in 1681. [CRAIGHALL (2).]

Rauceby, North, pa. and vil., S.W. Lincs., 4 of Sleaford; ac. 3,461; soil variable, overly shale and limestone. The church of St. P (chancel rebuilt 1853) is E. Eng. and Dec., south aisle being Dec. and the porch E. En the north arcade and aisle date from 1320–50, at the east end of the latter there is a canop niche; the south aisle contains a piscina, canopied bracket, and a squint; the found tomb bears an inscription to William ffrauns R. (d. 1385); in the north aisle is a large ma painting containing the figure of St. Anthony of a grotesque animal; the font is Perp.; in vestry is a brass to William Styrlay, forme vicar, and canon of the Augustinian priory Shelford (d. 1536). In the churchyard is a 14 cent. tomb with the effigy of a priest. There i Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		PO LAT
Ratoath (2), vil.	Drumree (5)	19
Rattery	Totnes (5)	218
Rattlesden	Stowmarket (5)	81
Rattoo	Listowel (6)	180
Rattray, pa.	Blairgowrie	466
Rattray, to.	Blairgowrie	466
Rauceby, North	Rauceby (2½)	114

the pa. can send two persons to the Carre Hospital at Sleaford. Near the vicarage is the old vil. cross, partly restored.

Rauceby, South, pa. and vil., S.W. Lincs., 3½ w. of Sleaford; ac. 2,430; soil partly clay, overlying limestone and shale. The church of St. James was pulled down in 1640. There is a small charity. R. Hall is in Elizabethan style.

Raughton Head with Gatesgill, eccl. pa., pas. of Castle Sowerby and Dalston (q.v.), N. Cumb., 5½ s. of Carlisle. The church of St. Jude was rebuilt in 1761. Foxley Henning is a seat.

Raunds, pa. and large vil., E. Northants, 4½ s. of Thrapston; ac. 4,287; soil chiefly clay, with some light scaly land, overlying clay and (in the neighbourhood of the vil.) white rock and ironstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1874) is E. Eng., with Perp. and Dec. insertions; the font is a curious circular example on a moulded pedestal. There is a monument (with brass and arms) to William Gage, Esq. (d. 1632); and in the south aisle are effigies of a man and woman in brass, with an invocatory inscription commemorating John Tawyer (d. 1370) and Margaret, his wife. On an adjoining stone is the effigy of a woman, with those of four sons and five daughters; there is also a panelled altar-tomb inscribed to John Wales, vicar (d. 1596). In the chancel is a coffin slab of the 13th cent., ornamented with a rich floriated cross, and supposed to be the tombstone of the founder of the church. In the churchyard is the base of an ancient cross. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a Temperance Hall. The curfew is rung here at 8 p.m. daily from Michaelmas to Lady Day (Sundays excepted). The manufacture of boots and shoes is extensively carried on. At R. was born John Grimbald, who built Trinity College library and part of Clare College, Cambridge. Mrs. Catherine Pepys, of Cottenham, in Cambridgeshire (also born here), whose maiden name was Grimbald, left by will £100 for teaching twelve poor children of the pa. Other charities amount to about £27 a year.

Raveley, Great, pa., Mid Hunts., 7 N. of Huntingdon; ac. 2,040; soil and subsoil clay. The church was destroyed previously to the Reformation. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Raveley, Little, pa., Mid Hunts., 6 N. of Huntingdon; ac. 723; soil clayey, overlying clay. The chapel of St. James (formerly a chapel-of-ease to Bury) contains an octagonal font dated 1377.

Ravelrig, estate with seat of same name, pa. of and nearly 2 S.W. from Currie (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc.

Raven Burn. [JED WATER.]

Raven Crag, hill (1,400 ft.) at north-west end of Thirlmere Lake, S. Cumb. It is a fine elevation, with a fir-planted summit, and affords magnificent views of the surrounding scenery.

Ravendale, East, pa., tp., and vil., N.E. Lincs., 8 S. of Grimsby; ac. of pa. 1,430, of tp. 793; subsoil chalk. The church of St. Martin was built in 1857, in E. Eng. style.

Ravendale, West, tp., pa. of Ravendale East (q.v.), N.E. Lincs., about 8 S. of Grimsby; ac. 637. The site of the church can still be traced. An alien priory for Premonstratensian canons was founded here in 1202, and a few fragments of the chapel remain.

Raven Fall, waterfall, N.E. Merions., about 2 miles from Maentwrog. A small stream here makes its way through a wild and lovely glen.

Ravenfield, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 4 N.E. of Rotherham; ac. 1,170; soil loam, overlying sandy rock. The church of St. James was built in 1756. There are several charities. R. Park is a seat.

Ravenglass, ancient seaport to. on the Esk (formerly with a market), pa. of Muncaster (q.v.), S.W. Cumb., 6 N. of Bootle. The to., largely built with materials from the Roman camp at Muncaster, consists of a single street, in which are a few well-built houses. Near the centre of the street is a pile of stones, said to have formed the base of the market cross. Cattle fairs are now held on May 6, June 8, and August 5; at this last fair races and other diversions take place. Muncaster Hall is a red-brick building; and here divine service is held. The Working Men's Institute comprises a reading-room and library. Near R. are the ruins of Walls Castle, originally a Roman villa, of which the existing ruins are only a fragment. The masonry is of good red freestone, set in coarse but exceedingly hard mortar. Stone axes, arrowheads, and Roman and Saxon coins have been found.

Ravenhead, eccl. pa., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., within the bor. of St. Helens. The church of St. John the Evangelist is in Gothic style. Here are large plate-glass works.

Raveningham, pa. and scattered vil., S. Norf., 3½ S.E. of Loddon; ac. 2,393; soil mixed, overlying brick-earth and sand. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1885), standing in the park, is Perp.; in the chancel are eight canopies, enclosing monumental tablets to the Bacon family. A college was founded here in 1350 by Sir John de Norwich, Vice-Admiral of England, for a master and secular priests, and dedicated to SS. Mary and Andrew; at its dissolution there were eight canons. R. Hall, standing in a park of 200 ac., is a seat.

Raven Meols, ha., pa. of Walton-on-the-Hills (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 8 W. of Ormskirk.

Raven Point, headland, S.E. co. Wex., Ir., on the north side of the entrance to Wexford Harbour.

Ravensbourne, stream, N.W. Kent, rises near Farnborough, and flows for about 10 miles in a N.W. direction past Keston and Bromley to the Thames, which it joins at Deptford.

Ravensbury Castle. [HEXTON.]

Ravenscraig Castle, ruined castle on the Ugie, pa. of and about 2 N.W. from Peterhead (q.v.), E. Abers., Sc. It dates from the 13th or 14th cent., and has walls of great thickness still standing.

Ravenscroft, tp., pa. of and 1 N.E. from Middle-

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Rauceby, South	Rauceby (1¼)	114	390
Raughton Head w.G.	Southwaite (3½)	292	686
Raunds	Raunds	82	3055
Raveley, Great	Abbots Ripton (3)	63	181
Raveley, Little	Abbots Ripton (2)	63	44
Ravendale, East, pa.	North Thoresby (5)	148	180
Ravendale, East, tp.	North Thoresby (5)	148	118
Ravendale, West	North Thoresby (5)	148	62
Ravenfield	Park Gate	164	177
Ravenhead	St. Helens (1)	192	7441
Raveningham	Beccles (3)	109	301

wich (q.v.), Mid Chesh. R. Hall, in Classic style, is a seat.

Ravensdale, vil., pa. of Jonesborough (q.v.), N.E. co. Louth, Ir., 7 N.N.W. of Dundalk.

Ravensdale Park, tp., pa. of and 1 N. from Mugginton (q.v.), Mid Derbys.; ac. 635. Recent researches show that the Derbyshire palace of the royal Dukes of Lancaster was situated here.

Ravensden, pa. and vil., N. Beds., 4 N.E. of Bedford; ac. 2,160; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints is Perp. Here is a Baptist chapel. Bricks, tiles, and draining-pipes are made in the pa. R. Grange and R. House (the latter pleasantly situated about 1½ W. of the church) are seats.

Ravenseat, ha., pa. of Grinton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5½ N.W. of Muker.

Ravensflat, ha., pa. of Laughton (q.v.), N.W. Lincs., 5 N.E. of Gainsborough.

Ravenshall, ha., pa. of and 1½ N. by W. from Falkland (q.v.), W. Fifes., Sc.

Ravenshall Point, headland, pa. of Kirkmabreck (q.v.), S.W. Kirkcuds., Sc., about 6 W. of Gatehouse-on-Fleet. The surrounding coast is said to be the scene of Scott's "Guy Mannering."

Ravenshill, ha., pa. of Suckley (q.v.), W. Worcs., 7 S.W. of Martley.

Raven's Hugo, cavern, S. Cornw., near Cadgwith. It has a fine entrance of serpentine, and is filled with the sea at all states of the tide.

Ravenspur, Ravenser, or Ravensburgh, ancient port in the vicinity of Spurn Head, E.R. Yorks. The sea had caused great injury to the town before 1350, and at the close of the 15th cent. few traces of it remained. It must have been an important place, as the privileges of the burgesses were confirmed in 1298, and it was represented in the Parliament of 1305. Henry, Earl of Hereford and Derby (afterwards Henry IV.), disembarked here in 1399, on his arrival to make war on Richard II., and R. was also the landing-place of Edward IV. during the Wars of the Roses in 1471.

Ravensthorpe (1), pa., tp., and vil., Mid Northants, 8 N.E. of Daventry; ac. 2,871; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Dionysius is of the E. Eng., Dec., and Perp. periods; in the south aisle, which retains a Dec. piscina, are the remains of a rood-loft door; in the vestry is a large and curious chest, covered with thin plates of iron crossing at right angles, in which were found portions of a breastplate and gauntlets, now hung on the wall above; some good original benches remain, with square traceried ends. There is a Baptist chapel. The Ravensthorpe reservoir is here. The charities amount to more than £50 annually.

Ravensthorpe (2), eccl. pa. and small to., pa. of Mirfield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 2 W. of Dewsbury. St. Saviour's Church is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Congregational, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Ravenstone, pa. and vil. on the Ouse, N.E. Bucks., 8 N.E. of Stony Stratford; ac. 2,230; soil clay, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints is Norm., and contains a recumbent marble effigy representing Sir Heneage Finch, Kt., first Earl of Nottingham and Keeper of the Great Seal (d. 1682). In the churchyard is a stone with Latin inscription to the Rev. Thos. Seaton, formerly Fellow of Clare Hall, Cambridge, and founder of the annual Seatonian Prize at Cambridge (d. 1741). Here are twelve almshouses, founded by a former Earl of Winchilsea and Nottingham, for six single men and women, with a small weekly allowance. There is an endowed school, with provision for apprenticing three boys yearly.

Ravenstonedale, pa. and vil., E. Westmd., 4½ S.W. of Kirkby Stephen; ac. 16,406; soil peat clay, overlying limestone and gravel. The church of St. Oswald was built in 1744, in place of the old church, which is said to have had the privilege of sanctuary, and the south porch is believed to be the old porch rebuilt; in the chancel is a brass, and in the nave a fine oak pulpit. The Congregational (formerly the English Presbyterian) chapel was built about 1662, under the Rev. Christopher Jackson, who had been ejected from the pa. of Crosby Garrett under the Act of Uniformity; it was endowed by Philip, fourth Baron Wharton, and others, and some small charities are attached to it. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The pa. possesses a reading-room and a small library. There are several charities. The endowed parochial school, formerly the grammar school, was founded in 1688 by Thomas Fothergill; in 1873 the school was remodelled and new buildings added. The country round R. is extremely beautiful and interesting. In Lord's Park, a little north of the town, is Gallows Hill, a place of execution. At the foot of a mountain is a field-house cut out of the rock, one of the walls bearing an inscription dated 1720. On R. Common is a barrow. Tumuli and skeletons have been found in the pa., and there are the remains of a stone circle.

Ravenstone-with-Snibstone, or Ravenstone, pa. and vil., N.W. Leics., 13 N.W. of Leicester; ac. 2,143; soil heavy, overlying clay and sand. The 14th-cent. Dec. church of St. Michael was restored in 1884; in the wall of the south aisle is an ancient sculptured head of St. John the Baptist in a charger, wrought in alabaster. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There is a large hospital or almshouse, liberally endowed.

Ravenstruther, vil., pa. of Carstairs (q.v.), Mid Lanarks., Sc., about 3 N.E. of Lanark.

Ravensworth (1), tp. and vil., pa. of and ½ N. from Kirkby Ravensworth (q.v.), N.R. Yorks; ac. 2,248. There are remains of an ancient castle, said to date from pre-Conquest days, and on the face of a ruined tower some large letters are still legible.

Ravensworth (2), vil. on the Team, pa. of Chester-le-Street (q.v.), N. Dur., 3 S.S.W. of Newcastle. R. Castle, the seat of the Earl of Ravensworth, is a mixture of the Gothic and Tudor styles of architecture; it was built in 1808, from designs by Nash, on the site of a former building, of

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ravensdale Park	Derby (6½)	128	51
Ravensden	Bedford (4)	50	440
Ravensthorpe (1), pa.	Long Buckley (2)	76	518
Ravensthorpe (1), tp.	Long Buckley (2)	76	352
Ravensthorpe (2), eccl. pa.	Ravensthorpe	183	5159

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ravensthorpe (2), to.	Ravensthorpe	183	5134
Ravenstone	Olney (3)	60	300
Ravenstonedale	Ravenstonedale	277	846
Ravenstone-with-S.	Swannington (1)	114	1271
Ravensworth (1)	Richmond (5)	237	25

which two of the ancient towers are still standing. The principal entrance, over which is a statue of Queen Victoria, is on the north side, and opens into a large hall with a fine staircase at its western end and an open gallery running along its south side. The rooms contain some fine old cabinets and valuable paintings by old masters. The grounds are tastefully laid out, and contain some fine trees and fishponds. Near the entrance is the shaft of a stone cross, named the Butter Cross, concerning which there is a tradition that when the Great Plague was at Newcastle in 1645 the country people left provisions here for the infected town.

Raventhorpe, tp., pa. of Appleby (q.v.), N. Lincs., 4 W.N.W. of Brigg; ac. 641.

Raventofts, ha., pa. of Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.W. of Ripley.

Raw (1), tp. on the Coquet, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Rothbury (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 1,691.

Raw (2), ha., pa. of Heversham (q.v.), S. Westmd., 4 S.W. of Kendal.

Rawcliffe (1), eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Aire and the Dutch River, pa. of Snaith (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 11 S.E. of Selby; ac. 4,668. The church of St. James (rebuilt and enlarged 1842) is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Primitive, and Free Methodist chapels. The charities are small, but the Free School has an endowment of £45. R. Hall is a seat.

Rawcliffe (2), tp., pas. of St. Olave Mary Gate and St. Michael-le-Belfrey, York (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 2½ N.W. of York; ac. 708.

Rawcliffe Out, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Wyre, pa. of St. Michael-on-Wyre (q.v.), W. Lancs., 6 W.S.W. of Garstang; ac. 4,593. The church of St. John was built in 1838, in Norm. style. The school has a small endowment.

Rawcliffe, Upper, with Tarnacre, tp. and vil. on the Wyre, pa. of St. Michael-on-Wyre (q.v.), W. Lancs., 4½ S.W. of Garstang; ac. 3,839.

Rawdon, eccl. pa., tp., and small to., pa. of Guiseley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 N.W. of Leeds; ac. 1,559. The church of St. Peter (rebuilt 1864) contains a 17th-cent. font and some tablets to the Layton family. There are Congregational, Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. The Baptist Theological College (removed here from Horton in 1859) is a building in Gothic style, and contains a good library. Woodlands Convalescent Home was built in 1876. Among the many seats are Benton Park, Buckstone Hall, Cragg Royd, Knottfield, R. Hall, Woodlawn, and Woodleigh Hall.

Rawlsbury Rings. [HILTON (1)].

Rawmarsh, pa. and small to., W.R. Yorks., 2½ N. of Rotherham; ac. 2,549; soil clay, overlying limestone. The church of St. Lawrence is E. Eng. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The almshouses, for six poor women, have an endowment of £30 per annum, and distribute also £50. There are potteries, brickworks, ironworks, steel-rolling mills, and collieries in the pa.

Rawreth, pa. and vil. near the Crouch, S. Essex, 8 N.W. of Rochford; ac. 2,377; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Nicholas (rebuilt 1883) is in Perp. style.

Rawridge, ti., pa. of and 1 S. from Up Ottery (q.v.), E. Dev.

Rawtenstall, mun. bor., pas. of Whalley and Bury (q.v.), N.E. Lancs.; ac. of bor. 9,525. This populous district from being merely a secluded vil. has rapidly become a manufacturing to., and is situated 4 W. of Bacup. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. Mary (restored 1886–87) is in Gothic style, as is the Roman Catholic chapel of St. James the Less in the Burnley Road. There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. A large room at the Co-operative Stores is used for public meetings. There is a Liberal club. The Haslingden workhouse, situated on an eminence known as "Pike Law," is a fine building, and commands a view of the Rossendale valley. A fair is held here on June 21. There are some stone quarries in the neighbourhood, but the population are chiefly employed in the cotton and woollen manufactories.

Rawyards, vil. with railway station, pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 1 N.E. of Airdrie.

Ray, pl. on west side of Lough Swilly, pa. of Aughinish (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., about 6 W. of Fahan station.

Raybarrow Pool, bog on Dartmoor, S. Dev., about 2½ N.W. of Gidleigh. It is dangerous, and quite impassable except in hard frost.

Raydon, pa. and vil. with railway station, S. Suff., 3½ S.S.E. of Hadleigh; ac. 2,290; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary is chiefly E. Eng. It possesses many points of architectural beauty; there are low side windows on the north and south sides of the chancel, believed to be of their kind almost unique; the interior has been partly restored.

Rayleigh, pa. and vil., S. Essex, 13 S.E. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,873; soil mixed, overlying clay and sand. The church of Holy Trinity is Perp., with some parts of earlier date. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. A fair for horses and cattle is held on Trinity Monday. R. gives the title of Baron to the Strutt family. Roman coins have been found here. At the upper end of the vil are earthworks, the remains of a castle first built by Sweyne, who owned the place at the time of the Domesday Survey and was the founder of the De Essex family; these consist of a mound with an oval-shaped base, surrounded by ramparts and ditches; from this spot is obtained a fine view over the neighbouring peninsula.

Ray Mill, or Raymead, ha., pa. of Cookham (q.v.), E. Berks., about 1 N. of Maidenhead. R. M. Lock is a stone lock on the Thames; the weir water works a large corn-mill.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Raventhorpe	Scawby (4)	161	26
Raw (1)	Brinkburn	310	71
Rawcliffe (1)	Rawcliffe	183	1730
Rawcliffe (2)	York (2½)	188	236
Rawcliffe, Out	Garstang (6)	219	721
Rawcliffe, Upper, w. T	Garstang (4½)	219	599

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rawdon	Apperley Bridge (1½)	203	3077
Rawmarsh	Park Gate	164	11983
Rawreth	Wickford (1)	29	323
Rawtenstall	Rawtenstall	204	29507
Raydon	Raydon	68	541
Rayleigh	Rayleigh	33	1301

Raymoghy, pa. on an arm of Lough Swilly, North Raphoe bar., N. co. Don., Ir., 5 N. of Raphoe; ac. 15,190. R. contains the vil. of Manor Cunningham (q.v.).

Raymunterdoney, coast pa., Kilmacrenan bar., N.W. co. Don., Ir., 5 S.W. of Dunfanaghy; ac. 12,018. About two-thirds of the pa. is mountainous. Ballyconnell House is a seat, and on the estate is a salmon fishery.

Rayne (1), pa. and vil., N. Essex, 2 W. of Braintree; ac. 1,676; soil loam and mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints, rebuilt 1840 (with the exception of the tower) and since restored, was originally Perp. The old church, supposed to have been built temp. Henry II., was very famous in Catholic times for an altar and chapel erected in the south aisle to the Blessed Virgin. There are several mural monuments and one large brass, in excellent preservation, to the Capel family. Sir Giles Capel (d. 1556), a distinguished leader at the sieges of Terronenne and Tournay and the Battle of Spurs, was interred here. There are agricultural implement works and a corn mill. The interest of £167 is distributed in bread. R. Hall, now a farmhouse, is a timbered structure, the old part of which was erected by the Wells family and the later by Sir Giles Capel (1510–20). The manor house was in the north of the pa.; there are still traces of the house and of the moats that encompassed it; in the hollow from the road to the house were fishponds.

THE MARKET PLACE, READING.
(Photo. S. V. White, Reading.)

Rayne (2), pa. and vil. on the left bank of the Ury, Mid Abers., Sc., about 7 N.W. of Inverurie; ac. 7,885. Except a small eminence, covered with heath, on the north side of the pa., the surface is flat, with a few rising spots on the banks of the Ury, and is ornamented by plantations. The pa. church is about 2 N.E. of Old Rayne. The vil. is in the central part of the pa. An annual fair is held on the second Wednesday in August.

Rayne, Old, vil., pa. of Rayne (q.v.), Mid Abers., Sc., about 2 N.E. of Oyne railway station.

Rayners. [TYLER'S GREEN.]

Raynham, East, &c. [RAINHAM, EAST, &c.]

Rea (1), river, S. Salop, rises close to Long Stanton, and flows in a southerly direction for 20 miles past Cleobury Mortimer, when it turns westward and finally joins the Teme near Tenbury in Worcs.

Rea (2), river, Worcs. and Warws., rises a little north of the Clent Hills, and flows in a N.E. direction for about 11 miles past Birmingham, and joins the Tame near Castle Bromwich.

Reach (1), or Ruin Reach, vil., pas. of Burwell and Swaffham Prior (q.v.), S.E. Cambs., 5½ N.W. of Newmarket. The school church of the Holy Trinity, in Perp. style, was erected on the site of a ruined chapel, the east end of which still remains. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Reach (2). [HEATH AND REACH.]

Read, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 4 W. of Burnley; ac. 1,548. The church of St. John the Evangelist was built in 1884, in Gothic style. There are cotton mills here. R. Hall, standing in a well-timbered park, is a seat.

Reading (in Domesday "Radynges"), parl., mun., and co. bor., U., assize, and mkt. to., head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., and co. to. of Berks., on the Kennet, 8 S.W. of Henley-on-Thames, and separated from Caversham, in Oxon, by the Thames. R. is an ancient town. Stephen visited it in 1140, and in 1141 came the Empress Maud. In 1153 the castle was surrendered to Henry, Duke of Normandy, afterwards Henry II., who frequently visited R. Richard I. held a Parliament here in 1191, King John in 1213, and Henry III. in 1241; he also visited it in subsequent years. Edward II. was here in 1314, and Richard II. in 1384. Parliaments were again held here in 1440 and 1451; and in 1432 the Parliament was adjourned from Westminster to R. on account of a plague. Edward III. passed Christmas in the town and held a grand tournament in 1346. Hither also, in 1380, came Richard II. to punish such of the townsfolk as had lent help to the rebel, Wat Tyler. Henry VII. was at R. in 1487. Henry VIII. on several occasions, and in 1552 Edward VI., visited it and were received with much ceremony, as in 1554 were Philip and Mary. Queen Elizabeth visited R. several times. The Law Courts were held here in Michaelmas Term, 1625, on account of the plague raging in London. In 1643 the town

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Raymoghy	St. Johnston (6)	169	2647
Raymunterdoney	Letterkenny (23)	127	1697
Rayne (1)	Rayne	46	402
Rayne (2)	Wartle (2)	551	1225

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Read	Whalley (2)	218	1359
Reading, parl. bor.	Reading	36	55676
Reading, mun. bor.	Reading	36	60054 sustained a very severe siege of ten days from the Parliamentary forces. The garrison, having exhausted their ammunition, held out a flag of truce, at which juncture Prince Rupert and the King, who had marched from Oxford to their relief, engaged the besiegers on Caversham Bridge, but after a severe struggle were defeated. In 1663, when Charles II. passed through R., the Corporation presented the King, Queen, and their servants with sums of money. In 1688 a skirmish took place in the streets between the Scots and Irish of James II. and the troops of the Prince of Orange, known as "the Reading fight," in which the former were beaten, and left the town in the hands of the Dutch troops; this affair is still celebrated annually by the ringing of bells on Dec. 21. R. is a bor. by prescription, having sent members to Parliament from the time of the earliest records. The boundaries of the parl. bor. were enlarged in 1885, when the representation was reduced from two members to one. The bor. contains three pas.—St. Giles, St. Lawrence, and St. Mary—with ac. of 2,146, 315, and 1,680 respectively. The soil here principally consists of alternate layers of clays and sands of many colours, with flint pebbles; the clays are made into tiles and drain-pipes, and the sands are mixed with the clays in brickmaking. The church of St. Giles (restored 1873) is an ancient building of various periods; it suffered much from the artillery of the besiegers in the Civil War, and remained in a neglected state till the Restoration. St. Luke's Church, in Italian style, is a chapel-of-ease. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1867–68), on the north-east side of the Market Place, is E. Eng., with a Perp. tower. The south aisle retains its original roof; in this aisle is buried John Blagrave (d. 1611), author of "The Mathematicall Jewell"; there are brasses of the 15th and 16th cents., including one to William Mayor (d. 1463). In the chancel are memorial windows to Charles Lamb (d. 1834) and the children of Judge Talfourd (dated 1848). The west window is a memorial to Archbishop Laud (a native of the pa. and great benefactor to the town), containing also figures of Henry I. (founder of the abbey), Henry VII. (founder of the grammar school), Sir Thomas White (founder of St. John's, Oxford), and Charles I. (the giver of the principal charter to the town). On the south side of the tower arch, in a niche, is a statue of Richard Valpy, D.D., many years master of the grammar school (d. 1836); on the south side is an ancient sundial. The church estate produces £200 yearly. The church of St. Mary, at the end of Minster Street, is Perp., and occupies the site of a convent founded by Elfrida; it was rebuilt in 1551 from materials obtained from the abbey, and since restored. The chancel has a Perp. open timber roof, and the nave a good roof of early character; the Perp. font has a pyramidal crocketed cover. On the north side of the chancel is an Easter sepulchre of early work, and a monument in black and gold (with effigies) to William Kendrick and his wife (1635); in the chancel hang the old colours of the 66th (Princess Charlotte of Wales's Royal Berkshire) regiment, and a window has been erected to the officers and men who fell at the battle of Maiwand (July 27, 1880). The vestry contains some brasses, including a cross fleury and several scrolls to William Baron (1416), and an inscription to John Boome, who died (1558) in his third mayoralty, and Alice his wife. The choir-room contains an altar-piece attributed to one of the Caracci, and there is an alms-box dated 1627. Over the western entrance is an ancient carved screen. There are several eccl. pas. with modern churches; but the church of Grey Friars was reconstructed (1863) from the ancient church of the Franciscan monastery, founded in 1233. This church was completed early in the 14th cent. The west window is one of the finest and largest examples of reticulated tracery in existence; in its grooves fragments of stained glass of great thickness were met with, and a few old tiles of peculiar design, discovered in the flooring, have been relaid. Under the north pier of the chancel arch a perfect skeleton was found without any coffin, evidently laid in the foundations when the church was first built, and arched over with masonry. There is a Roman Catholic church in Norm. style within the ruins of the abbey; in the presbytery are preserved a seal belonging to one of the abbots, and a massive iron key found in the abbey grounds. There are also places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies, and the Friends have a meeting-house. The grammar school was founded in 1486, and reconstructed (1871) as a first-grade classical and modern school. The University Extension College (1895) occupies an ancient building in Valpy Street. Leighton Park School (1890) belongs to the Society of Friends. The Kendrick School was founded in 1624, the Bluecoat School in 1646, and the Green School (for girls) in 1779. The Municipal Buildings (1875–82), which include the Town Hall, Council Chamber, Free Library and Museum, and the Government Schools of Art, are situated in Friar Street and Blagrave Street, and form a pile of black and red brick, with a clock-tower in Gothic style. The niche in the gable over the library is filled with a marble statue of Queen Victoria, presented by the late W. I. Palmer, Esq., of Grazeley Court. The principal entrance, in Blagrave Street, leads to the main corridor or vestibule, at the north end of which is a memorial stone recording on an attached brass plate the foundation of the structure. The Great Hall is entered on the east side by five large doorways, and will hold 1,500 persons. Beneath the hall is a supper-room. At the end of the corridor leading to the library is a marble bust of the late Sir F. H. Goldsmid, Bart., sometime M.P. for R. On the right are the apartments belonging to the library. On the walls of the Council Chamber and in other parts of the buildings are portraits of local notabilities. From the vestibule a stone staircase leads to the General Museum and the Art Museum, both of which are in immediate connection with the Schools of Science and Art. The Museum, under the will of the late Mr. Horatio Bland, has become possessed of the whole of his magnificent collection illustrative of natural history. The Assize Courts (1861), in The Forbury, immediately adjoining the abbey gateway, are in the Italian style, and occupy the site of a hospital for poor pilgrims founded in connection with the abbey. They form a block of buildings consisting of a façade with a colonnade along its lower stage and projecting wings; the whole is built of freestone, and is rusticated in both stages. The assizes and sessions are held here, as are the meetings of the County Council. The Corn Exchange (1854) is approached by a narrow covered way from the Market Place. The same covered way gives access to the Market House. Markets are held on Saturday for corn and stock cattle, and on Monday for fat cattle. Fairs are held on Feb. 2, May 1, July 25, and Sept. 21. The cattle market and abattoirs are in Caversham Road. H.M. Prison (1833) is a castellated building of red brick, with white stone dressings. Other public buildings are the Masonic Hall, the baths, the theatres, the Athenæum, and the Arcade, in Friar Street, for offices and shops. The Hospital, London Road (1839), is in Classic style. The Provident Dispensary was established in 1802. The municipal and pa. charities are considerable; and there are blocks of almshouses for thirty-two inmates, with an income of over £900 a year. R. is noted as a boating and fishing centre, and the Amateur Regatta usually takes place in July. The town was formerly dependent on the country around for its trade; and being situated in the midst of a thriving agricultural district, the supplies of the neighbouring population are still chiefly drawn from R. merchants and traders. As a manufacturing town its chief business is to be found in its biscuit-making, iron foundries, and engine works, and in seed-growing, malting, and brewing. The sale of corn, flour, and cattle is also carried on upon an extensive scale; there are boatbuilding establishments, and pottery and brick works; and rope, mats, twine, sacks, brushes, broom-handles, broom-stocks and staves are made. The Forbury, fronting the ancient gateway of the abbey, is an open space on the north-east side of the town, laid out as a pleasure-garden, with a fountain and ornamental works. A Russian gun, presented by the Government to the authorities of the town, occupies an elevated position in the grounds; here also is a colossal lion of cast iron, on a terra-cotta pedestal, erected in 1886 as a memorial to 11 officers and 317 non-commissioned officers and men of the 2nd battalion 66th (Berkshire) regiment, who fell in the battle of Maiwand, July 27, 1880, and during the Afghan War, 1879–80. The view from this spot is very extensive, commanding a beautiful prospect over part of Oxfordshire. The Horticultural Society's shows are held in these grounds. Palmer's Park (21 ac.), in the eastern suburbs, was presented to the town by Mr. George Palmer. R. Abbey (founded in 1121 by King Henry I.) was dedicated to the Holy Trinity, SS. Mary, John the Evangelist, and James, and intended for 200 monks of the Benedictine order, with an abbot (mitred), prior, and sub-priors. The buildings of the abbey were completed in 1124, but the great church was not finished until 1164, when it was consecrated by Becket in the presence of Henry II. and many of the nobility. At the Dissolution its revenues were not less than £1,938 13s. 3½d. yearly. Of its buildings, with the exception of the gateway, only enormous and shapeless masses of flint and rubble now remain. The chapter-house is now almost the only existing apartment which can be certainly identified. The catalogue of the library in the reign of Henry III. is still extant; it then comprised 100 volumes, 38 of which contained the Holy Scriptures or portions thereof. Hugh Faringdon, thirty-first and last abbot, sturdily refusing to acknowledge the supremacy of Henry VIII. or to surrender his house, was, with two of his monks, Rugg and Onyon, hung, drawn, and quartered within sight of his own gateway, Nov. 14, 1539. The great gateway, which originally gave access to the inner court of the abbey, was some years since very carefully restored, and is a rectangular structure of two stages, constructed of flint with stone dressings; a wide Pointed archway pierces the lower stage; in the upper are small trefoil-headed windows, surmounted by a plain parapet, and at the angles are octagonal turrets rising above the whole.

Reading, St. Giles. [READING.]

Reading, St. Lawrence. [READING.]

Reading, St. Mary. [READING.]

Reading Street, ha., pa. of St. Peter Thanet (q.v.), E. Kent, 2 S.E. of Margate.

Reagh Island, in Lough Strangford, pa. of Tullynakill (q.v.), N.E. co. Down, Ir.

Reagill, ha., pa. of Crosby Ravensworth (q.v.), N. Westmd., 3 N.E. of Shap.

Rearsby, pa. and vil. by the Wreake, Mid Leics., 7 N.E. of Leicester; ac. 1,637; soil sandy, overlying clay. The Gothic church of St. Michael was restored 1860. In the chancel are triple sedilia, an aumbry, and a piscina; and in the south aisle is a piscina. In the churchyard is a stone erected to the memory of Cleare Sacheverelle, formerly rector of the pa. (d. 1660), who is particularly noticed in Walker's "History of the Persecution of the Clergy." There is a Congregational chapel.

Rearymore, pa., Tinnahinch bar., N. Q. Co., Ir., 6 S. of Tullamore; ac. 13,943. There are two public schools. The Slievebloom Mountains and the sources of the Barrow are in this pa.

Reasby, ha., pa. of Stainton-by-Langworth (q.v.), Mid Lincs., 4 N.W. of Wragby.

Reaveley, tp., pa. of and ½ N.E. from Ingram (q.v.), N. Northumb.; ac. 2,310.

Reawick, estate with seat of the same name on Scalloway Bay, pa. of Sandsting (q.v.), W. Shetland, Sc., 6 N.W. of Scalloway.

Reay, pa., W. Caiths. and E. Suths., Sc.; ac. 115,302; soil in Suths. is chiefly dark loam, mixed with sand; in Caiths. it is generally of richer quality. The pa. contains lime, granite, millstone, with traces of lead and iron, mineral springs, etc. The vil. of R. is in Caiths., at the head of Sandside Bay, 10 W. by S. of Thurso. There are two Established churches, one Free church, and five schools in the pa. Fairs are held on the Monday before August 15 and following Tuesday. Achvarasdale Lodge and Sandside House are seats.

Reban. [NARRAGH AND REBAN, EAST; NARRAGH AND REBAN, WEST.]

Recess, vil. on Ballynahinch Lough, pa. of Moyrus (q.v.), N.W. co. Galway, Ir., 14 E. of Clifden.

Rectorial, ha., pa. of Aberporth (q.v.), N.E. Cardigs., 7½ N.W. of Newcastle Emlyn.

Reculver, pa. and vil., N. Kent, 3 E. of Herne Bay; ac. 1,220 and 329 water; soil clayey, overlying sand. Its name, suggestive of the settlement of a Teuton named Raculf, probably approximates very closely to the original word Latinised into the

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Reading, St. Giles	Reading	36	31640
Reading, S. Lawrence	Reading	36	4534
Reading, St. Mary	Reading	36	23880
Rearsby	Rearsby	107	400

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rearymore	Tullamore (6)	58	1028
Reaveley	Hedgeley (3)	322	90
Reay	Thurso (11)	744	1182
Reculver	Herne Bay (3)	63	244

name of the Roman station Regulbium, which lies on the coast, near the coastguard station, about 1¾ N.E. of the vil., and was established here for the purpose of commanding the strait of the Stour (formerly navigable) dividing the island of Thanet from the mainland. Of the ancient E. Eng. church nothing more remains than the two towers called "The Sisters" and a small part of the walls, this fine structure having been undermined by the sea, which has for many years been making encroachments on this coast. According to tradition, Frances St. Clair, abbess of the Benedictine nuns at Faversham, being visited by a violent sickness, vowed that in the event of her recovery she would visit the shrine of the Blessed Virgin at Bradstow (Broadstairs) and there offer up a costly present in gratitude. In fulfilment of her vow she set sail, accompanied by her sister Isabel; but a storm drove the vessel on a sandbank near R. The abbess and part of the crew reached the shore in a boat; and Isabel, who remained on board the wreck, was rescued by a boat, but died the following day. To perpetuate the memory of her sister, as well as to direct mariners to avoid the like calamity, the abbess caused the church towers (then in decay) to be repaired and spires to be added, and further directed that these towers should henceforth be called "The Sisters." They were purchased by the Corporation of the Trinity House from the pa. in 1810, and measures have been taken for their preservation. The modern church of St. Mary is in E. Eng. style. There are preserved in it many ancient tombstones brought from the church near the sea, as well as portions of its fabric, including two perfect arches in the porch; the font, of Perp. date, came from the church of All Saints, Thanet, of which nothing now remains. That R. was not only a military station, but a site of a large town in the time of the Romans, appears from the many cisterns, vaults, and foundations of buildings which have been exposed at different times by the fall of the cliff, and also from the great number of Roman and British coins and the quantities of pottery and various utensils found here. The charities amount to about £17 yearly.

THE SISTERS. RECULVERS.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Red and Yellow Noses. [NEW BRIGHTON.]

Redbank, eccl. pa., pa. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs. The church of St. Thomas was built 1855, in E. Eng. style.

Red Bank, or Loughrigg Terrace, steep slope overlooking Grasmere Lake, N.W. Westmd.; it skirts the north side of Loughrigg Fell (q.v.).

Red Bay, N.E. co. Antr., Ir., near Cushendall (q.v.). The cliffs of Old Red Sandstone give the bay its popular name.

Redberth, pa., S.E. Pembs., 4 N.W. of Tenby; ac. 304. The dedication of the church is unknown.

Redbourn, pa. and vil., W. Herts., 4½ N.W. of St. Albans; ac. 5,551; soil gravel, chalk, and flint. The church of St. Mary (partly restored 1890) retains some Norm. work in the north aisle arcade, but the rest of the structure is chiefly 15th-cent. work; it has a very good carved oak rood-screen, sedilia, and an Easter sepulchre in the chancel, and piscinæ in the Lady Chapel and the north aisle; there is a brass to Richard Pecock (d. 1504), another without date or inscription, but apparently dating from about 1550, and memorials of the families of Baskerville, Eccleston, Benyon, Brandreth, and Burr. In the churchyard are two altar-tombs to the family of Carpenter. There are Congregational, Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan, and Baptist chapels. Among several charities is one founded by Sir Richard Rede (d. 1560). A fair is held on the first Wednesday after January 1. There are corn and silk mills, and straw-plaiting is carried on. Aubrey, near Foster's Farm, is an ancient camp.

Redbourne, pa. and vil., N. Lincs., 17 N. of Lincoln; ac. 3,865; soil loam, overlying limestone. The church of St. Andrew is Perp., and was the burial-place of the Beauclerks, Dukes of St. Albans, whose mausoleum is on the right of the chancel; in the chancel is a stone with the incised effigy of a knight, dating from about 1500; the church contains some good glass. The school is endowed. R. Hall is a handsome mansion.

Redbridge, vil. with railway station on the Test, near its confluence with Southampton Water, pa. of Millbrook (q.v.), S. Hants, 4 W. of Southampton. The Dorchester and Southampton branch of the London and South-Western Railway is here carried over the Test by a handsome viaduct of peculiarly light construction. The railway company have a wharf and saw-mills, and large stores for plant.

Redbrook, vil. with railway station, pa. of Newland (q.v.), W. Gloucs., 3 S.E. of Monmouth.

Redcar, tp., pa. of Marske, and eccl. pa. and tn. extending into the pa. of Upleatham, N.R. Yorks., 5 N.W. of Saltburn; ac. 807. From an inconsiderable fishing vil., R. has become a watering-place of some importance, and has a long range of clear, smooth, and even sands, remarkably firm, and extending from the mouth of the Tees to Saltburn, a distance of 10 miles. In 1870 a fine esplanade was completed for some distance along the seashore, and in 1873 a pier 1,300 ft. in length was opened, the first pile of which was driven August 28, 1871. There are two lifeboats. The church of St. Peter (1828) is a plain building of stone. There is a Roman Catholic chapel (1876), and various Nonconformist bodies have places of

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Redbank	Manchester	183	7039
Redberth	Kilgetty (2)	258	84
Redbourn	Redbourn	29	2016
Redbourne	Kirton Lindsey (3)	157	321
Redcar	Redcar	246	2818

worship. R. has a Freemasons' Hall. Race meetings are held on the racecourse here on Whit-Monday and Tuesday, and in August.

Red Castle (1), seat, pa. of Killearnan (q.v.), S.E. Ross, Sc., about 6½ N.W. of Inverness. It is said to be the oldest inhabited house in Scotland, having been built in 1179.

Red Castle (2), vil. on the west shore of Lough Foyle, pa. of Moville (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 5 miles from Moville.

Red Castle (3). [INVERKEILLOR.]

Red City, pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., containing part of the town of Fethard (q.v.); ac. 722.

Redcliff St. Mary, pa., S.W. Glouc., in the co. bor. of Bristol (q.v.); ac. 72.

Redcross, pa. and vil., Arklow bar., S.E. co. Wick., Ir., 4 N.E. of Ovoca station; ac. 6,247. R. contains a church and two schools.

Reddall Hill, eccl. pa., pa. of Rowley Regis (q.v.), S. Staffs., 3 S. of Dudley. The church of St. Luke is in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist, Methodist New Connexion, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Redding, colliery vil., pa. of Polmont (q.v.), S. Stirls., Sc., about 3 S.E. of Falkirk. Here are large works for the manufacture of detonators for dynamite, and vitriol and other chemicals.

Reddingmuirhead, pl., pa. of Polmont (q.v.), S. Stirls., Sc., about 2 W. of Polmont railway station.

Reddish, eccl. pa., tp., and small to., pa. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about 1 N. of Stockport; ac. 1,541. The church of St. Elizabeth was built 1883, in Norm. style, and possesses a fine reredos. The Roman Catholic church of St. Joseph is in Dec. style. The Wesleyans have chapels. Prescott's almshouses are for six poor women. There are cotton-spinning and doubling mills, calico-printing works, and roperies. [HEATON REDDISH.]

Redditch, eccl. pa., tp., and manufacturing to., pas. of Tardebrigg and Feckenham (q.v.), E. Worcs., and Ipsley, W. Warws., 13 S.W. of Birmingham; ac. 2,040. The church of St. Stephen (1854–55) is in Dec. style, and was restored 1893–94; in the vestry are some encaustic tiles from the ruins of Bordesley Abbey. The church green has been laid out in shrubberies, grass plots, and pleasant walks. St. George's Church (a chapel-of-ease) was erected 1876, in Dec. style. The Roman Catholic church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel was built 1834, in Gothic style; close to it is a Roman Catholic school for boys and girls. There are Baptist, Congregational, Primitive Methodist, United Free Methodist, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. A Literary and Scientific Institute was founded 1850; the building, in Gothic style, comprises a library and reading and chess rooms. The Smallwood Hospital was erected 1895, in Elizabethan style. A fair is held at R. on the Saturday preceding the August Bank Holiday, and another on the third Monday in September, in what is known as the recreation ground. As R. is not chartered to hold a market, the people assemble for trading purposes every Saturday in the principal streets. The centre of the needle and fish-hook manufacturing district, R. is famous for the excellence of its needles, of which it produces yearly many hundreds of millions, giving employment to a very large number of skilled artisans.

Rede (1), or Reed, pa. and vil., W. Suff., 7 S.S.W. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,224; soil and subsoil clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1850) is a small Perp. edifice. The poor have £3 a year, and also some coals yearly. The national school has an endowment.

Rede (2), or Reed, river, Northumb., rises under Carter Fell, and flows for about 20 miles in a S.E. direction through Redesdale to the North Tyne, which it joins near Bellingham.

Redenhall, or Redenhall-with-Harleston, pa. and mkt. to. (Harleston) on the Waveney, S. Norf., 10 N.E. of Diss; ac. 3,318; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1858) dates from the early part of the 14th cent.; the chancel was the work of William de Neuport, who was presented to the rectory in 1311, and is buried here; in the north chapel is a monument with arms to the Wogans. The church of St. John the Baptist is in Dec. style. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The Corn Hall dates from 1849. Repository sales are held on Wednesday. There are agricultural implement works, a hosiery factory, malt-houses, and corn warehouses. Gawdy Hall, an Elizabethan mansion, partly moated and standing in a well-wooded park, is a seat. [HARLESTON (2).]

Redenham, ha., pa. of Fyfield (q.v.), N.W. Hants, 5½ N.W. of Andover.

Redesdale, valley of the Rede, W. Northumb.; it extends about 21 miles, and was formerly held by the Umfranvilles for the service of freeing it from wolves and robbers.

Redfern, vil., pa. of Kenilworth (q.v.), Mid Warws., 4 N. of Warwick.

Redford (1), vil. on the Ore, pa. of Dysart (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., about 4 N.W. of Kirkcaldy.

Redford (2), vil., pa. of Carmylie (q.v.), S. Forfs., Sc., 7 W. by N. of Arbroath.

Redgleam, mountain (2,342 ft.), W. Dur., 13 N.E. of Appleby.

Redgorton, pa. on the west bank of the Tay, E. Perths., Sc., about 4 N.W. of Perth; ac. 6,167; soil various, sometimes changing suddenly from deep rich loam to a cold till, in other places gravelly or sandy earth, while in the upper district there is much open moorland. In the pa. are extensive bleach-works. Battleby is a seat.

Redgrave, pa., tp., and vil. near the source of the Waveney and Little Ouse, N. Suff., on the border

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Red City	Fethard	104	48
Redcliff St. Mary	Bristol	118	5159
Redcross, pa.	Ovoca (4)	43	661
Redcross, vil.	Ovoca (4)	43	190
Reddall Hill	Cradley	138	8195
Redding	Polmont (1)	411	643
Reddish, eccl. pa.	Reddish	180	4019
Reddish, tp.	Reddish	180	6854

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Redditch, eccl. pa.	Redditch	146	8153
Redditch, tp.	Redditch	146	8276
Redditch, to.	Redditch	146	11295
Rede (1)	Glemsford (7)	64	304
Redenhall	Harleston (1)	107	2003
Redgorton	Stanley Junction (4)	452	1369
Redgrave, pa.	Diss (5)	95	958
Redgrave, tp.	Diss (5)	95	503

of Norf., 6 S.W. of Diss; ac. of pa. 3,237, of tp. 1,977; soil generally light, subsoil principally gravel. The church of St. Botolph (restored 1850) is Perp. In a chapel in the north aisle is the marble tomb, beautifully executed, of Sir Nicholas Bacon, Knight, and Anne, his lady (1616); in the chancel is a marble monument to Lord Chief Justice Sir John Holt (d. 1710) in his robes of office, and a perfect brass (1609) to "Anne Bvtts, widdowe." The Wesleyans have a chapel here. There are several small charities. R. Fen, about 80 ac. in extent, is under the management of trustees for the benefit of all poor householders legally settled. R. Hall is situated in a well-wooded deer-park of 300 ac.; the gardens are extensive and tastefully laid out.

Red Head, cape, pa. of Inverkeillor (q.v.), E. Forfs., Sc., rises to a height of 267 ft., and is the termination of the Sidlaw range of hills.

Redhill (1), mkt. to. forming the eastern portion of the bor. and pa. of Reigate (q.v.), S.E. Surrey, 8 E. of Dorking. Here is an important junction of the London, Brighton and South Coast and South-Eastern railway lines. There are two eccl. pas. (St. Matthew and St. John the Evangelist), with churches in Gothic style; mission churches in connection therewith, a Roman Catholic church, and places of worship for various Dissenting bodies. The Market Hall (1860) stands at the intersection of the Station Road with the London and Brighton Road; it contains an Assembly Room and the usual municipal offices. In 1891 large additions were made, including a second hall for meetings, rooms for the R. Library Institution, and other offices. The Reigate Town Council holds its meetings alternately here and at Reigate. A public drinking fountain and a cattle trough, standing in front of the hall, were erected and presented to the Reigate Corporation in May, 1876. Opposite the hall is the Market Field, on which a building for the convenience of persons attending the fortnightly stock and corn market was erected in 1878. The market day is every alternate Wednesday. The R. Agricultural Society holds an annual two days' show in the Market Field in December. The Cottage Hospital, R. Common, dates from 1866. The Reformatory of the Philanthropic Society, for the reformation of juvenile offenders, is situated on an estate about 1 E. of R. station; this society may be considered the parent of the reformatory system in England, and its great success in training criminal boys is universally recognised. The Schools of the Royal Asylum of St. Anne's Society, near R. station, were built in 1884; the society was founded in 1702 for the purpose of clothing and educating twelve boys, the sons of parents in reduced circumstances. The number has been very greatly increased, and girls are now received. There is a brewery, a tannery, and a timber yard, as well as silver sand and fuller's earth works. Some beautifully-worked specimens of barbed and leaf-shaped ancient flint arrowheads, together with many flint flakes or knives, have been found. R. Common is a considerable eminence of red sand, commanding a view over the vale of Holmesdale as it stretches eastward into Kent, and especially over the wide expanse of the weald as far as the South Downs. Part of it has been laid out as a recreation ground. High Trees, so named from some lofty trees once growing on the spot, is a seat; the gardens, park, and model farm are well arranged, and the public have the use of the roads on the estate.

Redhill (2), ha., pas. of Sandon and Wallington (q.v.), N. Herts., 4 N.W. of Buntingford. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Redhill (3), ha., pa. of Wrington (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 7 N.E. of Axbridge.

Redhill (4), ha., pa. of Binton (q.v.), S. Warws., 3 N.W. of Stratford-on-Avon.

Red Hill, eccl. pa., pas. of Havant and Warblington (q.v.), S.E. Hants, about 9 N.E. of Portsmouth. The church of St. John is in Norm. style.

Red Hills, a small chain of mountains (rising to 769 ft.) between Kildare and Rathangan, W. co. Kildare, Ir. They extend for about 7 miles, and are composed of Old Red Sandstone.

Redhills, vil. with railway station, pa. of Annagh (q.v.), Mid co. Cav., Ir., 8 N. of Cavan.

Redhill, St. John the Evangelist. [REDHILL (1).]

Redhill, St. Matthew. [REDHILL (1).]

Redhouse, vil., pa. of Kincardine (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., about 2 S. of Doune.

Redhythe Point, headland, pa. of Fordyce (q.v.), N. Banffs., Sc., about 2 W. of Portsoy.

Redisham, pa. and vil., E. Suff., 4½ S. of Beccles; ac. 730; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is Perp.; the inner door of the porch is Norm. The interior is furnished throughout with low open seats; the font is sculptured, and in the south wall of the chancel is a piscina. The Sunday school has an endowment.

Redisham, Little, formerly pa., now in pa. of Ringsfield (q.v.), N. Suff., about 3½ S.W. of Beccles. The ruins of the church are in the grounds of Redisham Hall, a seat commanding fine views.

Redland, eccl. pa. and dis., pas. of Clifton and Westbury-on-Trim (q.v.), S.W. Gloucs., forming a north-west suburb of Bristol. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1841) is in Gothic style. Durdham Downs (q.v.) is in the dis.

Red Lane, ha., pa. of and 1 W. from Churob Stanton (q.v.), N.E. Dev.

Redlingfield, pa. and vil., Mid Suff., 3½ S. by E. of Eye; ac. 1,055; soil a rich loam, overlying chiefly clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1873) is a Norm. building of brick and flint, formerly a portion of a Benedictine convent founded here in 1120; of this building but little more than the church now remains. The charities arise from land, which lets for about £20 yearly, and is applied —one-third for the repairs of the church, one-third for the education of the poor of the pa., and the remaining third in gifts to the poor, chiefly in coals.

Red Lion (1). [RINGFORD.]

Red Lion (2), ha., pa. of Kinawley (q.v.), N.W. co. Cav., Ir., about 3 S.W. of Belcoo.

Redlynch (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Downton and Langley Wood (q.v.), S.E. Wilts., 8 S.E. of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Red Hill	Havant (1½)	66	596
Redhill, St. Matthew	Redhill	21	7350
Redhill, S. J. the E.	Redhill	21	6439
Redisham	Brampton (1)	105	169
Redland	Bristol	118	6395
Redlingfield	Eye (3½)	94	175
Redlynch (1)	Downton (1)	90	1282

Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is in Gothic style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. New House, an Elizabethan mansion, is a seat.

Redlynch (2), eccl. pa., pa. and about 1 S.E. of Bruton, Mid Somerset. The church is dedicated to St. Peter. R. Park is a seat.

Redmain. [BLINDCRAKE, ISELL, AND REDMAIN.]

Redmarley, ha., pa. of Great Witley (q.v.), W. Worcs., 5½ S.W. of Stourport.

Redmarley D'Abitot, pa. and vil., S.W. Worcs., 6 S.E. of Ledbury; ac. 3,778; soil sand and clay, overlying shale and clay. The church of St. Bartholomew was (with the exception of the tower) rebuilt in 1856, in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £30 a year.

Redmarshall, pa. and tp., Mid Dur., 9 N.W. of Darlington; ac. of pa. 3,529, of tp. 875; soil clay. The church of St. Cuthbert (restored 1893) is Norm. and E. Eng. The south transept, called Claxton's Porch, was added as a chantry in the 14th cent.; in it is a 15th-cent. altar-tomb of alabaster with mutilated effigies of a knight in plain armour with wreathed bascinet and pallets and wearing a tunic, and also of a lady in horned headdress, attired in a long flowing robe, over which is a short jacket and mantle, but her forearms are gone. The chancel has three Perp. sedilia.

Redmile, pa. and vil. on the Grantham and Nottingham Canal, N. Leics., 7½ W. of Grantham; ac. 1,763; soil clay, overlying clay and sand. The E. Eng. church of St. Peter was restored 1883. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Redmire, tp. and vil., pa. of Wensley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 4 W. of Leyburn; ac. 2,318 St. Mary's is a chapel-of-ease. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. Coal and lead are found in the neighbourhood, and smelting carried on.

Redmore, pa. on the south bank of the Little Ouse, S.W. Norf., 3½ N. of Burnt Fen railway station; ac. 625; soil peat and sand, overlying clay and gravel. The pa. consists of two farms. There are a few cottages.

Rednal (1), vil. with railway station, pa. of West Felton (q.v.), N.W. Salop, 4½ S.E. of Oswestry.

Rednal (2), vil., pa. of Kings Norton (q.v.), N.E. Worcs., 4 N.E. of Bromsgrove.

Redpath, ha. on Leader Water, pa. of and 2½ S. from Earlston, S.W. Berws., Sc.

Red Pike (1), mountain (2,479 ft.) overlooking Buttermere Lake, W. Cumb. It commands one of the finest views in the Lake District.

Red Pike (2), mountain (2,629 ft.) overlooking Wasdale, W. Cumb., lying between The Steeple and Yewbarrow.

Redriff. [ROTHERHITHE.]

Red Row (1), part of vil. of Dunlop Place, pa. of Dalserf (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc.

Red Row (2), vil., pa. of Newton (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., about ½ N.W. of Millerhill.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Redlynch (2)	Bruton (1)	117	117
Redmarley D'Abitot	Newent (3)	124	923
Redmarshall, pa.	Carlton (½)	239	360
Redmarshall, tp.	Carlton (½)	239	78
Redmile	Redmile	116	417

Redruth (anciently "Dredruith" = "Druid's Town"), pa., U. and mkt. to. (T. & F.), and head of Co. Co. dis., S.W. Cornw., 10 N.W. of Falmouth; ac. 4,006. The church of St. Uny, about ½ mile from the town, is a modern building in Perp. style, with a 16th-cent. western tower. There are two chapels-of-ease; Wesleyan, Free and Primitive Methodist, Bible Christian, and Baptist chapels; and a meeting-house for Friends. The town hall, Penryn Street (1850), is a granite building in Classic style; the Science and Art School, in Clinton Road, is a stone building (1883). A museum has been added as a memorial to the late Prof. Robert Hunt, a native of Cornwall. The New Hall and Public Rooms (1860), in Penryn Street, are in Elizabethan style, and contain the library of the Literary and Scientific Institution, and a spacious hall for concerts and lectures. The Market House was built for the sale of corn, meat, butter, poultry, and eggs; a flight of steps leads from it into the cattle market, commonly called the Fair Meadow. The butchers' market was rebuilt in 1878. Other public buildings are the Masonic Hall (1876), the Radical Hall (1886), the Mining Exchange (1880), and the Miners' Hospital. In the "King's Head" tavern in 1655 George Fox, the founder of the Society of Friends, was imprisoned; and from the balcony of Bank House John Wesley preached towards the end of the 18th cent. Fairs are held in the town on Easter Tuesday, May 2, August 3, and October 12 yearly, and a holiday fair on Whit-Monday. R. is the mining capital of Cornwall, the Mining Exchange being held here, and the public sales by auction of tin, known as tin-ticketings, at which over 300 tons of tin are competed for and purchased fortnightly by the smelting firms of Cornwall; some of the mines, and amongst them Dolcoath, which is the largest tin-mine in the world, sell their tin by private contract. The bulk of the population in R. and the adjoining districts are employed in tin-mining and at the tin streaming works which abound. It is estimated that more than 10,000 persons, including women and children, are so employed. There are five or six factories for the manufacture of safety fuses in R. and neighbourhood. With the exception of two factories in North and South Wales, this industry is confined to Cornwall, and employs about 450 people. The town also contains an extensive brewery, iron foundries, and a bacon-curing factory.

Red Screes, mountain (2,541 ft.) overlooking the Kirkstone Pass, W. Westmd., 3 N.E. of Ambleside.

Redswire, the scene of one of the last Border raids in 1575, known as the "Raid of the Redeswire," pa. of Southdean (q.v.), S.E. Roxbs., Sc., about 6 S.E. of Chesters.

Redwell, ha., pa. of Ightham (q.v.), W. Kent, 4 N.E. of Sevenoaks.

Red Wharf Bay, east coast of Anglesey, about 5 N. of Beaumaris. The sands on the shore of the bay, which are dry at low water, are so intermixed with sea-shells as to form a substitute for lime, and to be employed as manure.

Redwick, chap. and tp., pa. of and 3 S. by W.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Redmire	Redmire	240	243
Redmore	Brandon (8)	86	44
Redruth	Redruth	304	10324
Redwick	Magor (3)	144	226

from Magor (q.v.), S. Mon.; ac. 1,570 and water 5,560. The church of St. Thomas (restored 1876) is Perp. There is a Baptist chapel.

Redwick and Northwick, tp., pa. of Henbury (q.v.), S.W. Gloucs., 10 N.W. of Bristol; ac. 2,057 land, 3,460 water. Sandford's Charity School has an endowment of £60 yearly.

Redworth, tp. and vil., pa. of and adjoining Heighington (q.v.), S. Dur.; ac. 1,840. There is a Wesleyan chapel. On Shackerton Hill, in this vil., are remains of entrenchments.

Ree, island, pa. of Kilmartin (q.v.), Mid Args., Sc., about 7 N.E. of Balloch.

Reed (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Herts., 4 N. of Buntingford; ac. 1,477; soil mixed, overlying chalk and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1863) contains Norm. and Dec. work, including a fine Norm. doorway. There is a Congregational chapel.

Reed (2). [REDE.]

Reedham, pa. and vil., S.E. Norf., on the Yare, over which is a ferry, 8 S.W. by W. of Yarmouth; ac. 3,328; soil mixed, overlying sand and clay. This place is noted as being one of the seats of the kings of East Anglia, and the place where Lothbroch the Dane was murdered. The church of St. John the Baptist is a Gothic building of flint; there are several memorials to the Berney family, including a tomb with kneeling effigies to Henry Berney (d. 1584); there are also two brasses. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. R. has flour and saw mills, limekilns, a foundry, and brickfield. R. Hall is built on the site of an ancient castle, a portion of the walls and the vaults of which are incorporated in the present building. R. Old Hall is also a seat.

Reedley Hallows, Filly Close and New Laund Booth, tp. on the Calder, pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 2 N.N.E. of Burnley; ac. 1,446. There is a cotton-spinning factory here.

Reedness, vil. on the Ouse, pa. of Whitgift (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 E. of Goole. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels, a small charity, and an endowment for educational purposes. [SWINEFLEET AND REEDNESS.]

Reekie Linn. [GLEN ISLA.]

Reelan, rivulet, Mid co. Don., Ir., rises in the Bluestack Mountain, and flows for 14 miles in a S.E. direction to the Finn, which it joins about 7 W. of Ballybofey.

Ree, Lough, large lake on the Shannon, between cos. Longf., Wstm., and Roscom., Ir. It is formed by an expansion of the river, and is 17 miles long (from north to south) and 7 miles wide in its broadest part; it is situated about 125 ft. above sea-level, and attains a depth of 109 ft. The banks are richly wooded, and the lake is studded with islands, some of considerable size possessing ecclesiastical ruins.

Reen Point, cape on south side of Bantry Bay, S.W. co. Cork, Ir., about 5 S.W. of Bantry.

Reens, pl., pa. of Kilscannell (q.v.), Mid co. Lim., Ir., about 2 S.W. of Rathkeale.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Redwick&Northwick	Pilning (2)	127	385
Redworth	Aycliffe (2)	237	522
Reed (1)	Royston (3½)	45	206
Reedham	Reedham	119	858

Reepham, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 4½ E.N.E. of Lincoln; ac. 1,768; soil various, overlying clay and limestone. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1862) is Dec. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small. The Burton hounds have their kennels here.

Reepham-with-Kerdiston, pa. and to. (Reepham), extending into the pas. of Hackford and Whitwell (q.v.), Mid Norf., 12 N.W. of Norwich; ac. 2,570. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is Dec.; in the chancel is a brass with effigies and marginal inscription to Sir William de Kerdiston (d. 1391) and Cecilia (Brewes) his wife, who wears a mantle and the reticulated headdress of the period. There are other brasses with inscriptions only to Margaret Camplyn (1527), John Jeckes (1577), and to Mr. Richard Heyward (1608). Under an arch in the north wall of the chancel is the altar-tomb of Sir Roger de Kerdeston (d. 1337); the effigy of the knight, which lies on a bed of stones, with the legs crossed, is in armour, the head covered with a bascinet, from which a camail descends over the shoulders; the knight wears a jupon or surcoat and a richly-chased belt with sword and dagger; the right hand is laid on the sword-hilt and the left arm is thrown across the body, the hand touching the pebbly bed near the right shoulder; the sides of the tomb are arcaded, and have standing effigies of relatives and children as mourners. The curious bed of stones on which the figure rests has been the cause of much perplexity to antiquaries. Reepham is remarkable for having had three churches in one churchyard, viz. that of Reepham St. Mary, and those of Whitwell and Hackford; the last, however, was destroyed by fire in 1500. The police station is a building of brick, with magistrates' room and offices attached. Here is also a reading-room, and in the market-place is a library with about 1,000 volumes. The charities are of £9 yearly value.

Reeth, tp. and vil. on the Swale, pa. of Grinton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 8 N.W. of Leyburn; ac. 5,699. There are Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels, and a Mechanics' Institute. The Society of Friends have an endowed school here. There are cattle fairs on the first Friday in May, November 3, the Friday before Masham lamb fair, and the Friday before the first Monday in March. The lead mines are not now much worked.

Reforne, ha., pa. of Portland (q.v.), S. Dors., about 4½ S. of Weymouth.

Regent's Canal, N. London, E. Middx., was constructed by Nash 1812–20. It diverges from the Paddington Canal in the pa. of Paddington, and is carried under Maida Hill (where it passes through a tunnel), the Edgware Road, and St. John's Wood to Camden Town; then passes on by Islington (where there is another and longer tunnel) and Kingsland to Hackney, and finally, turning south, runs through Stepney Fields to Limehouse, where it enters the Thames. It is 5 ft. deep and nearly 9 miles long, falls 90 ft. by means of locks, and is crossed by a large number of bridges. The principal basins are the City Road Basin and the Wenlock Basin.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Reedley Hallows, &c.	Burnley (2)	212	1150
Reepham	Reepham	135	396
Reepham-with-K.	Reepham	136	447
Reeth	Richmond (9)	237	667

Regent's Canal Dock, in Limehouse, E. Middx., 1½ E. of St. Paul's. It is 350 yds. long and 180 yds. wide, and was formed in connection with the Regent's Canal (q.v.).

Regent's Park, eccl. pa., pa. of St. Pancras (q.v.), S.E. Middx., in the north-west of London. The church of St. Mark, in the Albert Road, is in Gothic style. The park, formerly known as Old Marylebone Fields, was named in honour of the Prince Regent, afterwards George IV. It lies between Marylebone Road and Primrose Hill, and has an area of 470 ac. Running through it from north to south is the Broad Walk, lined with fine chestnut-trees; and at the north end of this walk are the Zoological Gardens, containing the finest collection of animals in the world. Near the south end are the Botanic Gardens, in which flower shows are held from time to time, and musical promenades during the season.

FLOWER WALK, REGENT'S PARK.

Regent's Square, eccl. pa., pa. of St. Pancras (q.v.), S.E. Middx., in the north-west of London. The church is dedicated to St. Peter.

Regulbium. [RECULVER.]

Reigate, pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt. to. (T.), and head of petty sess. div., S.E. Surrey, 6 E. of Dorking; ac. 5,994. There were formerly two tps. in the pa. and bor. of R.—R. Borough and R. Foreign. In 1894 the former was transferred to the latter, which was thus made conterminous with the bor. The to. stands on a bed of white sand, which is invaluable for gardening and nursery purposes, as well as for the manufacture of fine glass; firestone and hearthstone are also procured in the neighbourhood. R. (in Domesday "Cherchefelle") probably derives its modern name from a contraction of Ridgegate, the passage through the ridge of the North Downs. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (1877–81) dates from the 12th cent. Lord Howard of Effingham, admiral of the fleet collected to oppose the Spanish Armada, who died at Haling House (1624), is buried in a vault on the south side of the chancel, with several others of the family. Attached to the church is a library, formed in 1701; it contains 1,700 volumes, some MSS., and early specimens of printing. There are two eccl. pas., with modern churches, and places of worship for various bodies of Nonconformists. The cemetery adjoins the graveyard of the pa. church. The grammar school, founded in 1675, has been reorganised. The town hall (1708), in the market-place, on the site of an ancient chapel of St. Thomas à Becket, is a plain edifice of red brick, surmounted by a turret containing a clock with four illuminated dials; it is now used for petty sessions and as a market room. The Public Hall (1861) is a building in Gothic style; its principal entrance is in High Street, with offices on each side; the main hall will seat 500 persons. The lower floor comprises a Literary Institution, with reading and other rooms and a library. Other portions of the building are appropriated to the museum of the Holmesdale Natural History Club. The fairs are on Whit-Tuesday and December 9. At the Youths' Institute, in West Street, Science and Art classes are held. There is a convalescent home, and one for chronic invalids. The ancient market-house stood at the west end of the town, near to Nutley Lane, formerly the entrance to R. from London; an interesting crypt of freestone still marks the site. The "Red Cross" inn stands on the site of a very ancient chapel. Another chapel stood next to the "White Hart" hotel, and portions of the walls still remain. R. Castle, supposed to have been founded before the Norman Conquest, was taken from Earl Warrenne by the Dauphin Louis of France and the Barons in 1216, and was destroyed about 1648, the stone being carried away from time to time to form the road leading from R. to Buckland. Under the keep is a cave, called the "Barons' Cave," with an arched roof cut in the silver sand, and a vault 150 ft. long and 10 ft. to 12 ft. high, whence it is traditionally stated that a subterranean passage leads to the priory of St. Mary and the Holy Cross, a house of Austin Canons, founded by William de Warren, who died in 1240. The revenues at the Dissolution were estimated at £78 16s. 8d. The stone gateway of the castle was erected in 1777; the grounds have been laid out as a public garden, and planted with shrubs, trees, and flowers. The castle and grounds belong to the Corporation, and are at all times open to the public. A tunnel under the castle grounds was formed some years since, whence large quantities of sand have been taken, thus forming extensive vaults, which are now used as stores. Many kinds of fungi grow in these caves, giving them a remarkable appearance. Minster Lea, The Hermitage, The Priory (on the site of the monastery referred to above), and The Wilderness are seats.

Reigate Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Surrey. It lies in the south-east of the co., and returns one member.

Reigate Foreign, tp. conterminous with the bor. of Reigate (q.v.), S.E. Surrey; ac. 5,994.

Reighton, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 11 S.E. of Scarborough; ac. 1,740; soil clay and chalk, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored) contains an ancient font (possibly Saxon), and there is a squint in the chancel. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. R. Hall is an ancient brick edifice.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Regent's Park	.....	.....	10418
Regent's Square	.....	.....	7454
Reigate	Reigate	23	22646

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Reigate Division	.....	.....	64[illegible]
Reigate Foreign	Reigate	23	22[illegible]
Reighton	Speeton (1½)	231	2[illegible]

Reisk, pa., Middlethird bar., S. co. Waterf., Ir., 5½ S.W. of Waterford; ac. 3,826.

Relickmurry. [ATHASSEL AND RELICKMURRY.]

Relubbus, small vil., pa. of and 1 E.N.E. from St. Hilary (q.v.), S.W. Cornw.

Relugas, estate with seat of same name, pa. of Edinkillie (q.v.), Mid Elgs., Sc., about 5 S.W. of Forres.

Remenham, pa. and small vil., S. Berks., 9 N.E. of Reading; ac. 1,503; soil loam, with gravel and chalk subsoil. St. Nicholas's Church is E. Eng.; on the west wall is a brass with effigy and shield of arms to Thomas Maryet of Remenham (d. 1591); also a brass to John Newman, pastor (d. 1622), with effigy in ruff collar and preaching-gown. Tickells' and Batting's charities (£10 yearly) are for bread.

Remenham Hill, picturesque vil., pa. of Remenham (q.v.), S. Berks., about 1½ W. of Henley; it is surrounded by highly-cultivated woodland scenery, and separated from Oxon by the Thames, over which is a handsome stone bridge of five arches leading to Henley. Park Place was for nearly twenty years the residence of Frederick, Prince of Wales, father of George III.; the mansion, rebuilt in the French-Italian style, is situated on the brow of a range of hills, 300 ft. above the level of the Thames, and in the centre of a well-wooded park. It is especially attractive on account of its picturesque scenery; to the east of the mansion is a magnificent cedar planted by George III.

Remilton, vil., pa. of Abdie (q.v.), N.W. Fifes., Sc., nearly 1 S.E. of Newburgh.

Rempstone, pa. and vil., S. Notts., on the Leics. border, 10 S. of Nottingham; ac. 1,579; soil and subsoil clay and gravel. The church of All Saints was erected 1771. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. R. Hall is a seat.

Rendall, ha., pa. of Evie and Rendall (q.v.), Ork., Sc., about 12 S.E. of Birsay.

Rendcombe, pa. and vil. on the Churn, S.E. Gloucs., 10 S.E. of Cheltenham; ac. 2,509; soil loamy and stonebrash, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter is a Perp. building, containing a fine rood-screen, a 14th-cent. font, and several monuments to the Berkeley family; on the gable is a curious old cross. R. Park is a fine Italian mansion.

Rendham, pa. and picturesque vil. in the fertile vale of the Alde, E. Suff., 3 N.W. of Saxmundham; ac. 1,691; soil mixed, portions heavy, overlying clay and sand. The E. Eng. church of St. Michael was restored 1852. During the restoration an ancient piscina was discovered; the pulpit is of carved oak, and bears date 1632. There is a large endowed Congregational chapel near the vil.

Rendlesham, pa. and vil. on the Deben, Mid Suff., 3 S.E. of Wickham Market; ac. 2,020; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of St. Gregory the Great is a small old building of flint with stone dressings. In a recess of the wall on the north side of the chancel is a monument of considerable antiquity, with recumbent figures in stone of a lady with a lion at her feet and a child at each side of her. R. Hall, a handsome mansion of red brick with white stone dressings, was erected in 1871, in Elizabethan style; the park extends over 400 ac.

Renfrew, pa., royal and parl. burgh (forming one of the Kilmarnock parl. dis.), and to., N. Renfs., Sc., lying on both banks of the Clyde; ac. 4,311; soil generally fertile and in good cultivation. The town, which has a station on the Glasgow and South-Western Railway, consists of three good streets, from which several smaller ones issue. R. received its first charter from Robert III. in 1396. In the next century the heir to the Scotch throne was created Baron Renfrew, and this title is still borne by the Prince of Wales. The pa. church (built in 1862), is in Gothic style, in the form of a Greek cross, and has a tower with a tall and graceful spire. Within the church lie two stone figures of Sir John Ross of Hawkhead and his wife, and on one of the walls is a marble tablet to Archibald Douglas Campbell, Esq., of Blythswood (d. 1868), father of Lord Blythswood. Walter Stewart built a castle on an eminence called Castle Hill, by the margin of the Clyde; and R. was an early and favourite residence of the Stewart family, long ere they ascended the Scottish throne. There are two extensive shipbuilding yards, with a dock capable of accommodating vessels of large burthen, and also a commodious and substantial wharf, at which the largest vessels frequenting the river may discharge and load with as great facility as at Glasgow. The main line of the Paisley and Renfrew Railway is connected with this wharf, at which passengers to and from the steamboats navigating the Clyde arrive; here goods are also shipped and discharged by the Liverpool, Irish, and other boats. Fairs are held on the third Tuesday in May and the last Friday in June. Blythsbank and Elderslie are seats.

Renfrewshire, maritime co., W. Scotland, south of the Clyde, opposite to Dumbarts., and divided from Args. by the Firth of Clyde; it is bounded on the south by Ayrs. and east by Lanarks.; it extends from north-west to south-east about 30 miles, by 10 to 15 miles broad, and comprises 156,785 ac., or 245 square miles. When the Romans advanced in A.D. 80 from the Solway Firth, this district was occupied by the Damnii, a British tribe; the principal Roman station was established near where Paisley now stands, and called Vanduara, which was an outwork to the left flank of the Great Wall of Antonine. After the retreat of the Romans in 410, the Cumbrian Britons, with a capital city at Alclyde (Dumbarton), retained a hold on all the country west of the Lothians, which they held until 756; and in 1097 this part was incorporated with the Scottish kingdom under Edgar. Walter, the son of Alan, in the reign of David I., fled from Shropshire during the conflicts of Maud and Stephen, and settled in the district, where David I. made him steward, and gave him lands to support the dignity of his office. Besides these possessions, he subsequently acquired the whole district of Strathgryfe and the western half of Kyle, in Ayrshire, which hence was called Kyle Stewart. Walter the Stewart settled many

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Reisk	Waterford (5½)	112	468
Remenham	Henley (1)	36	546
Rempstone	Loughborough (3)	112	302
Rendcombe	Cirencester (5)	93	229
Rendham	Saxmundham (3)	91	336
Rendlesham	Wickham Market (3)	85	355

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Renfrew, pa.	Renfrew	409	9338
Renfrew, royal burgh	Renfrew	409	6254
Renfrew, parl. burgh	Renfrew	409	6764
Renfrew, to.	Renfrew	409	6777
Renfrewshire	.....	.....	230812

of his military followers on his lands, and by founding the abbey of Paisley introduced a body of instructed men, who taught the ancient people domestic arts and foreign manners. For several centuries this district formed a portion of Lanarkshire. In 1404 Robert III. created a principality, consisting of the barony of Renfrew and the whole of the Stewart's estates, with the earldom of Carrick and the barony of King's Kyle, all of which he granted, in a free regality, as a provision for his son James; and this principality continued, in after-times, the appanage of the eldest sons of the Scottish monarchs. Baron Renfrew is at the present time one of the titles of the Prince of Wales. At Langside, in the extreme east of the co., was fought (1568) the battle so fatal to Queen Mary, and ending in her flight to England. The soil of the co. is very much diversified. In those parts of the high grounds which are not covered by heath and moss a fine light soil on a gravelly substratum is generally found. In the portion composed of detached hills the surface is a thin earth, based on gravel; and in the level districts the plough or spade sinks through a deep, rich brown loam. More than one-half of the shire, comprehending the west and south-east portions, is hilly and devoted to pasture. The cultivated districts comprise the north, the north-east, and the centre of the co., and consist partly of low elevations, and partly of a level tract of rich loam between Paisley and the river Clyde. The hilly part varies in elevation from 500 ft. to 1,250 ft. Owing to the great demand in this co. for dairy produce, and that also of the fold (arising from the vicinity of large and populous towns), nearly one-half of the land in the shire is kept under grass. Nevertheless the system of agriculture is of the most advanced kind, the crops in general being excellent, and comprising wheat, oats, beans, turnips, and potatoes, of which latter great quantities are grown for Glasgow and the markets of other large towns. The minerals are of considerable value—coal, limestone, ironstone, and sandstone abounding in various parts, the first-named being wrought principally in the neighbourhoods of Renfrew, Bishopton, Quarrelton, Nitshill, Neilston, and other places. Underneath the ironstone large quantities of shale are found, from which is extracted a valuable oil, for the manufacture of which large works are established. In commercial and manufacturing importance this co. is second only to Lanarkshire, and with it unites in constituting the great manufacturing districts of Scotland. The goods produced are chiefly of cotton and silk, including, amongst various articles and fabrics, shawls of infinite diversity in texture and price. Whilst Paisley is the headquarters of the trade in these articles, the business of weaving is pursued, to a greater or less extent, in almost every town, village, and hamlet. Another important branch is the manufacture of sewing cotton, which is carried on very extensively at Paisley. There are numerous bleachfields, calico and shawl-printing works, dyeworks, immense flax-spinning mills, linen thread, sailcloth, paper, starch, and earthenware manufactories, large iron foundries, engineering, ship- and boat-building works, distilleries, breweries, sugar refineries, and many other branches of commerce of a varied and important character. The free export of manufactured goods is promoted by the different seaports on the Clyde, especially Greenock, by which also foreign produce is imported. The Forth and Clyde Canal connects this co. with many other shires. The fishing trade is centred at Greenock. The principal streams are the White Cart, the Black Cart, and the Gryfe, all of which ultimately unite and fall into the Clyde below Inchinnan Bridge—that is, about half-way down the river between Glasgow and Port Glasgow. The lakes are Castle Semple Loch, Queenside Loch (in the pa. of Lochwinnoch), two lochs in Neilston pa., and several smaller ones. Good railway communication is afforded by the Glasgow and South-Western and the Caledonian railways. For parl. purposes R. has two divs. (East and West), each returning a member.

Renfrewshire, East. [RENFREWSHIRE.]

Renfrewshire, West. [RENFREWSHIRE.]

Renhold, pa. and pleasant vil., N. Beds., 4 N.E. of Bedford; ac. 2,165; soil clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1863) is Dec. and Perp.; there are four ancient monuments to the Polhill and Beecher families, and an altar-tomb with brasses to W. Wayte and his wife (1509). There is a charity of about £20 a year. Bricks, tiles, and drainpipes are made. Howbury House is a seat.

Renishaw, vil. on the Rother, pa. of Eckington (q.v.), E. Derbys., 6½ N.E. of Chesterfield. R. Hall is a seat.

Rennington, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Embleton (q.v.), E. Northumb., 4 N.E. of Alnwick; ac. 1,773. The church of All Saints was built 1837, in E. Eng. style, on the site of an ancient Norm. structure, the interior being restored in 1888; the font, formerly in Embleton pa. church, is 14th-cent. work.

Renton, q.s. pa. and to., pa. of Cardross (q.v.), S. Dumbarts., Sc., 2 N. of Dumbarton. The vil. is on the west bank of the Leven, on the banks of which are extensive print works. The Victoria Institute, built in 1887 as a memorial of Queen Victoria's Jubilee, and opened on the day of that commemoration, consists of a library of from 3,000 to 4,000 volumes, reading and recreation rooms, and also comprises a working men's club. The public hall, in Main Street, was erected in 1882. In the vil. stands an ornamental stone column, 60 ft. in height, on a square base, and erected as a memorial to Tobias Smollett, M.D., the author of "Roderick Random," "Peregrine Pickle," and other productions. He was born here in 1721, and died near Leghorn, October 21, 1771.

Renton Hall, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Morham (q.v.), Mid Haddings., Sc., about 3 S.E. of Haddington.

Rentscombe, vil., pa. of Worth Matravers (q.v.), S. Dors., 3 S. of Corfe Castle.

Renvyle House, seat on north-west coast of co. Galway, Ir., 4 N.W. of Letterfrack. Renvyle Point and Renvyle Hill (1,172 ft.) are in the vicinity.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Renfrewshire, East	.....	.....	66137
Renfrewshire, West	.....	.....	56622
Renhold	Bedford (4)	50	481
Rennington, eccl. pa.	Little Mill (1)	311	487
Rennington, tp.	Little Mill (1)	311	253
Renton, q.s. pa.	Renton	420	5293
Renton, to.	Renton	420	5256

Renwick, pa. and vil. on Thackmoor Fell, E. Cumb., 11 N.E. of Penrith; ac. 4,293; soil clay and sand, overlying clay, gravel, and rock. The church of All Saints was rebuilt 1846. There is a small charity. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Repentance, Tower of. [CUMMERTREES.]

Reppa, North. [NORTHREPPS.]

Reppa, South. [SOUTHREPPS.]

Repps-with-Bastwick, pa. and small vil. near the Hickling Navigation, E. Norf., 10 N.W. of Yarmouth; ac. 1,229; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1881) is E. Eng. Here is a small Primitive Methodist chapel. At the inclosure in 1808 19 ac. of marsh land were allotted to the poor.

Repton, pa., tp., and vil., and head of petty sess. div., S. Derbys., 7½ S.S.W. of Derby; ac. of pa. 4,042, of tp. 1,868; soil red loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Wystan (restored 1886) is principally E. Dec. Beneath the chancel is a remarkable crypt, the outer walls of which formed part of the cellarage or crypt of the monastery; it is a rectangular building, or excavation, nearly 17 ft. square, with a vaulted stone roof, supported by four spirally-wreathed columns with plain caps, and by eight fluted responds against the walls; in the western angles are two passages, communicating by stairways with the church above; the masonry of the chancel above is also of very early date. The whole church, except the chancel, seems to have been rebuilt at the beginning of the 14th cent.; the nave is separated from the aisles by a Dec. arcade of six lofty pointed arches, on hexagonal piers, those nearest the east end, however, having been rebuilt, together with the porch, in 1854. During the Perp. period the walls of the nave were raised, a flat timber roof fixed, and a clerestory formed on each side. In 1792 the church was renovated, but much damage was then done to the carving, glass, and monuments, including an altar-tomb (formerly in the north aisle) to Sir Robert Francis of Tickenhall, the mutilated effigy of which now lies in the crypt. In the room over the porch is a fine old parish chest. The chancel retains an E. Eng. double piscina and an aumbry of the same date. There was a monastery here previous to A.D. 660, both for men and women, under an abbess: in 874 the Danes destroyed the monastery, but the Saxons afterwards built a church, dedicated to St. Wystan, and given about 1160 to the Austin Canons of Calke, who removed here in 1172. The priory was dissolved in 1538. The grammar school was founded in 1621. The present school buildings, erected from designs by Sir Arthur W. Blomfield, were opened in 1886, and are in Perp. style.

REPTON.
(Photo. R. Keene, Derby.)

Rerigonium. [INNERMESSAN.]

Rerrick, pa. on the Solway Firth, S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 6 S.E. of Kirkcudbright; ac. 19,980; soil generally wet and spongy. The abbey church, many of the piers and arches of which are still standing, was a cruciform building with a central tower and spire rising to a height of 200 ft. The nave and choir were 120 ft. in length, and on the south side of the church were the cloisters, enclosing a garth. The remains now standing are almost entirely covered with a pale grey-coloured moss. The abbey afforded a temporary shelter to Mary Stuart during the last hours she spent in Scotland, after the defeat at Langside (May 13, 1568).

Rescobie, pa., Mid Forfs., Sc., about 3½ E.N.E. of Forfar; ac. 6,559; soil in places good loam, but much of it is thin moorish earth. The church is modern. The castle of R. has entirely disappeared.

Rescobie, Loch, pa. of Rescobie (q.v.), Mid Forfs., Sc. It lies about 3 E.N.E. of Forfar, and stretches for about a mile between hills.

Resolis, or Kirkmichael, pa. on the south side of Cromarty Firth, E. Ross and Crom., Sc.; ac. 12,449; soil in general a light black loam, resting on clay; near the shore of the Firth it is of richer quality, resting on a bed of freestone, but still light. It consists of a portion of the Black Isle (q.v.), being 8 miles long with a breadth of 3 miles, having a coast-line of about 10 miles, and is opposite to Invergordon.

Resolven, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Llantwit (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 7 N.E. by E. of Neath; ac. 4,671. The church is dedicated to St. David. This place is situated near the left bank of the Neath, where the mountains are lofty and rugged. The streams which flow into the Neath through the mountain glens form many pleasing cascades in their course.

Resort, Loch, a sea loch on the borders of the pa. of Uig (q.v.), Ross, Sc., and the pa. of Harris (q.v.), Invs., Sc., in the isle of Lewis. It is about 7 miles long and 2 miles wide at its entrance.

Restalrig, ancient bar. and decayed vil., pa. of South Leith (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., about 1½ E.N.E. of Edinburgh. R. was formerly famous for its old well. Near its site is an ancient church, a simple quadrangular building, which at first sight has the air of a modern edifice, but on inspection ancient mouldings and carvings make their appearance in conjunction with the modern stonework of its restoration.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Renwick	Lazonby (3½)	292	242
Repps-w.-Bastwick	Martham (1¼)	138	259
Repton, pa.	Repton	132	2160
Repton, tp.	Repton	132	1783
Rerrick	Kirkcudbright (6)	362	1582
Rescobie	Forfar (3½)	478	660
Resolis	Conon (12)	606	1339
Resolven, eccl. pa.	Resolven	190	1949
Resolven, tp.	Resolven	190	1685

Rest and Be Thankful. [GLEN CROE.]

Restennet, formerly a pa., now constituting the northern portion of the pa. of Forfar (q.v.), Mid Forfs., Sc.

Reston (1), ha., pa. of and 6½ N.W. from Kendal (q.v.), S. Westmd.

Reston (2), vil. on Eye Water, pa. of Coldingham (q.v.), N.E. Berws., Sc., about 3 W. of Ayton.

Reston, North, pa., E. Lincs., 4½ S.E. of Louth; ac. 703; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Edith (restored 1867) has a chancel-arch dating from the middle of the 11th cent. R. Hall is a seat.

Reston, South, pa. and small vil., E. Lincs., 6 S.E. of Louth; ac. 770; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Edith (rebuilt 1864) is in Dec. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small.

Restormel Castle, ruin, pa. of Lanlivery (q.v.), E. Cornw., 1 N. of Lostwithiel. It is on the summit of a bold headland, and was probably built by the Cardenhams, in the reign of Edward I., and once the residence of the Earls of Cornwall; Edmund, Earl of Cornwall, died seized of this manor in 1300, and since that time the castle has continued to be attached to the duchy; the rampart, or outer wall, very nearly approaches a circle, and is surrounded by a deep ditch; the entrance is beneath a square tower, leading to an open circular area; the interior contains seven apartments, including a chapel, projecting from the outer wall nearly as far as the ditch, with a piscina on the south side; originally there were two storeys, with state rooms in the upper storey, and offices in the base court.

Restronguet Creek, on the west side of the estuary of the Fal, S. Cornw. It runs inland for 3 miles to Perran Wharf, and affords good anchorage for large vessels.

Reswallie, estate with seat of same name, pa. of Kescobie (q.v.), Mid Forfs., Sc., 3 N.E. of Forfar.

Retford, or East Retford, pa., mun. bor. (containing West Retford), and mkt. to. (S.), head of W., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., on the Great North Road, N. Notts., 18 N.W. of Newark; ac. of pa. 118, of bor. 4,660. In 1885 the parliamentary representation was merged in that of the co. The town is well built and paved and connected with West Retford by an iron girder bridge over the Idle. The Chesterfield Canal passes through the pa. The church of St. Swithin (restored 1855), commonly called the "Corporation Church," and formerly of greater extent, is a cruciform Perp. building; the central tower is supported by four massive moulded E. Eng. arches, and the nave is separated from the aisles by arcades of five bays. In the floor of the chantry chapel there remains an incised slab to Henry Smyth (1496); outside the church, in the south wall of the nave, at the west end, is a medallion, containing the figure of a king enthroned, bearing the orb and sceptre. St. Catharine's is a mission church; and there are Wesleyan, Primitive, and Congregational chapels. The grammar school was founded by Edward VI., but the scheme has been much modified by the Charity Commissioners. The town hall (1868) is in Romanesque style; the approach is by a vestibule paved with encaustic tiles, and thence by a grand staircase. The building includes a council room, mayor's parlour, and record rooms; under the whole are the County Court offices; on the south side of the spacious hall with a gallery at the north end, and at the south end a stage with retiring rooms. The large open space under the hall is occupied by the Butter and Poultry Market, abutting on which to the south, are the hall-keeper's apartments. The Corn Exchange, with butchers' shambles, near Carol Gate, is similar in design to the town hall; here also is the court-house, which furnishes premises for the use of the Literary and Mutual Improvement Society, which has a library. It has Conservative and Liberal clubs, a dispensary and cottage hospital, almshouses, and charities for distribution amounting to about £75 a year. The principal branches of trade are corn and malt. Hops were some years back grown extensively, but they are now little cultivated. In the town and immediate neighbourhood are iron foundries, paper and corn mills, and indiarubber works. The market is well attended and abundantly supplied with meat, fowls, butter, eggs, and fruit, large quantities of these supplies being conveyed to Sheffield and other parts of Yorkshire. Fairs are held on March 23 and October 2, for horses, cattle, cheese, and hops; there are also fairs on the last Thursday in July for lambs, Thursday after June 11, and second Thursday in December, for cattle, sheep, and horses.

Retford, West, pa. within the bor. of Retford (q.v.), N. Notts.; ac. 948 and 16 water. The church of St. Michael is in Dec. style. Holy Trinity Hospital was founded in 1664, for sixteen poor bachelors or widowers of good character. New buildings were erected in 1833. The rent of 27 ac. is divided equally between the poor and the church.

Rettendon, pa. and scattered vil. on the Crouch, Mid Essex, 9 S.E. of Chelmsford; ac. 3,934: soil heavy, overlying clay. All Saints' Church is Perp.; in the chancel there are sedilia and a piscina, and several carved benches, also a handsome marble monument to Edmund Humfrey (d. 1727): there are brasses to Richard Cannon (d. 1605), to Richard Humfrey (d. 1607), and some others; the panels of the pulpit are probably fragments of the rood-screen; over the north aisle is a chamber, perhaps once occupied by a recluse. There is a mission-room, and the Congregationalists have two chapels. The charities are small, and the school has an endowment.

Revelstoke, pa. and vil., S.W. Dev., 10 S.E. of Plymouth; ac. 1,478; soil light, subsoil mixed. The church of St. Peter was built in 1882, in Perp. style. The old church of St. Peter, near Stoke Point, is in ruins, but a small portion is used for burial services. Crabs, lobsters, pilchards, and herrings are caught.

Revesby, pa. and small vil., E. Lincs., 12 N. of Boston; ac. 4,577; soil loam and peat, overlying white and blue clay. The church of St. Lawrence was built in 1891, in Flamboyant style.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION
Reston, North	Leghourne Road (1)	138	26
Reston, South	Authorpe (2¼)	135	203
Retford, pa.	Retford	139	3438
Retford, bor.	Retford	139	10603
Retford, West	Retford	139	82
Rettendon	Chelmsford (9)	30	75
Revelstoke	Plympton (6)	237	47
Revesby	Horncastle (6)	130	51

on the site of a former church, and contains some monuments brought from the older church. The almshouses were founded in 1727 by Joseph Banks, and there are some small charities. In the neighbourhood are two mounds believed to be barrows. A Cistercian abbey, dedicated to SS. Mary and Lawrence, was founded here in 1142–43 by William de Romara. R. Abbey, a handsome building in Elizabethan style, is a seat.

Rew, ha., pa. of Malborough (q.v.), S. Dev., 4 S.W. of Kingsbridge.

Rewe, pa. and vil. on the Culm, E. Dev., 5 N. of Exeter; ac. 1,340; soil and subsoil gravel and red sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1867) is Perp.; there is a piscina and a fine screen in the chancel; there are several monuments, including one to Paul Draper (d. 1689). The pa. has some small charities.

Rexton, ha., pa. of Stogumber (q.v.), W. Somerset, 4 S.E. of Watchet.

Reydon, pa. and scattered vil., E. Suff., adjoining Southwold on the north-west; ac. 2,727; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1876) is a Gothic flint building. At the enclosure of the pa. in 1800 an allotment of 22 ac. was awarded to the poor, and is let at a yearly rental of £18, which is distributed in coal.

Reymerston, pa. and vil., Mid Norf., 5 S. of East Dereham; ac. 1,599; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter is a structure of flint of various periods, dating from the close of the 12th cent.; the east window is filled with most beautiful Flemish glass, and the communion rails are also old Flemish work. The church lands comprise 12½ ac., and produce £19 yearly. The charities amount to £8 12s. yearly, and there is a fuel allotment of 15 ac., producing £22. New Hall, a modern mansion of brick, in grounds of 100 ac. in extent, is a seat.

Reynagh, pa., Garrycastle bar., N.W. K. Co., Ir.; ac. 8,746. It is bounded by the Shannon, and contains the town of Banagher (q.v.).

Reynoldston (1), pa. and vil. in Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 12 W. by S. of Swansea; ac. 1,069; soil in the lower parts fertile, partly overlying limestone. Immediately north-east of the vil. is the range of Cefn Bryn. The church of St. George (restored 1866) is an ancient Gothic edifice. On the summit of Cefn Bryn, from which there is a grand view, stands Arthur's Stone, a block of millstone-grit 14 ft. in length and upwards of 6 ft. wide, supported by uprights of smaller dimensions. In the grounds of Stout Hall is a very large bone-cave.

Reynoldston (2), pa., S. Pembs., 5 S. by W. of Tenby; ac. 527. The vil. is supposed to have been originally built by the Flemings who were settled in this part of the country by Henry I. The church is an ancient Gothic edifice.

Rhayader, pa. and mkt. to. (W. & S.), head of U., Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., on the Wye, W. Radnors., 11 S. of Llanidloes; ac. 194. The name of the place is properly Rhayader Gwy (= "Cataract on the Wye"), a considerable waterfall having existed here prior to the construction of a stone bridge in 1780, when the rocks which gave rise to it were partly destroyed; the river at this spot still flows with much violence, forming picturesque rapids. The town is situated on a gentle slope, engirt by wild and barren hills, and comprises four main streets, diverging at right angles from its centre. The church of St. Clement or St. Bridget (restored) is in Gothic style; the tower was rebuilt in 1888. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. R. was defended by a castle, said to have been built in 1178 by Rhys ab Grufydd, Prince of South Wales; the site of the keep is marked by an eminence known as Tower Mount, and there are also some traces of the fosse. The castle was burnt by Llewelyn, Prince of North Wales, in 1231, and was finally destroyed during the Civil War of the 17th cent. There are no traces of the Dominican friary, which is supposed to have been a cell to Strata Florida. R. forms a centre for tourists visiting the neighbourhood. Down to 1885 it belonged to the Radnor dis. of parl. bors. (q.v.).

Rhayader Gwy. [RHAYADER.]

Rhayadr, stream on the borders of Denbighs. and Montgoms., rises in the Berwyn Mountains, and flows for about 6 miles in a south-east direction to the Tanad, which it joins near Llanrhaiadr-yn-Mochnant.

Rhayadr Cwm, valley, N.W. Merions., 2½ E. of Festiniog. The picturesque ravine is traversed by the Cynfael, which descends by deeply-cut channels from the precipitous heights above.

Rhayadr Du (1), waterfall on a small stream, N.W. Merions., about 2 S.W. of Maentwrog. The height is not very considerable, but a large body of water descends.

Rhayadr Du (2), waterfall on a tributary of the Mawddach, Mid Merions., about 5 N. of Dolgelly. It is a fine double fall of about 60 ft.

Rhayadr Mawddach, waterfall on the Mawddach, pa. of and 6 N. from Dolgelly (q.v.), W. Merions. The cataract comprises three distinct falls, the first of which, measuring some 20 ft. both in height and width, descends into a natural basin, below which is the second fall, about 30 ft. high, terminating in a yet larger basin; the third fall, issuing from the second basin, rushes down 30 ft. into a larger pool, from which it bursts forth with great violence. The slanting direction of the strata or rock produces a very peculiar effect. The rocks, the wooded cliffs, and the bridge (a little above the falls) combine to produce a very beautiful picture. (See next page.)

Rhayadr Mawr (1), or Aber Fawr, waterfall, pa. of Aber (q.v.), N.E. Carnarvs., 6 E. by S. of Bangor. Issuing from a narrow channel about 100 ft. in length, the fall descends an abrupt precipice of 180 ft., broken at first by projecting rocks into several divisions, but forming afterwards a single broad sheet of spray about 60 ft. in height.

Rhayadr Mawr (2), or Porthlwyd, waterfall on a small affluent of the Conway, N.E. Carnarvs., 4½ N.N.W. of Llanrwst. The cascade consists of

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rewe	Stoke Canon (1½)	185	247
Reydon	Southwold	110	352
Reymerston	Puxton (1)	117	287
Reynagh	Banagher	84	1813
Reynoldston (1)	Killay (9)	208	307
Reynoldston (2)	Tenby (5)	263	61
Rhayader	Rhayader	199	788

several falls, the highest of which makes a descent of 50 ft.

Rhayadr-y-Wennol, or Swallow Falls, waterfall on the Llugwy, pa. of and 2 N. by W. from Bettws-y-Coed (q.v.), N.E. Carnarvs. After flowing for some distance along a straight rocky bed between narrow meadows enclosed by lofty mountains it falls into a deep chasm, the sides of which are covered with a rich growth of trees. The river descends in a series of cascades, and after rainy weather presents a very impressive scene.

Rheidol, river, N.E. Cardigs., rises on the north-west side of Plynlimmon, and runs W.S.W., S., and W. by N., entering the sea at Aberystwith after a course of 22 miles. Near the famous Devil's Bridge (q.v.) it is joined by the Mynach; the scenery in this part of the glen is extremely beautiful. A little below the confluence of the rivers is a fine waterfall 70 ft. in height.

Rhenass (1), river, pas. of Michael and German, W. I. of M., rises between Colden and Sartfell, 6 N. by W. of Douglas, and runs S.W. along Glen Helen and Glen Mooar to the Neb, which it joins 2 S.E. of Peel.

Rhenass (2), waterfall on the river Rhenass, in Glen Helen, pa. of German, W. I. of M., 3½ E. by N. of Peel. Though but 25 ft. in height, the fall is extremely picturesque, and its beauty is enhanced by the bold cliffs, partly clad with pines, which rise on either side of it.

Rhesycae, eccl. pa., pas. of Cilcen, Halkin, and Ysceifiog (q.v.), Mid Flints., 4½ S.W. of Holywell. Christ Church is a modern building.

Rhidorroch Deer Forest, N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., about 5 E. of Ullapool railway station.

RHAYADR MAWDDACH (see p. 243).
(Photo. Green Bros., Grasmere.)

Rhigos, tp., pa. of Ystradyfodwg (q.v.), Mid Glamorgs., about 10 S.W. of Merthyr Tydfil; ac. 5,582.

Rhinefield, pa., S.W. Hants, 3½ S.W. of Lyndhurst; ac. 7,360; soil and subsoil clay.

Rhinns, peninsula in the west of Islay island, S.W. Args., Sc., 36 W.N.W. of Campbeltown. It extends 17 N.N.E. and S.S.W. between Loch-in-Daal and the Atlantic, and has an extreme breadth of 7 miles. It is joined to the main portion of the island by an isthmus about 2½ miles broad. Off Rhinns Point, its southern termination, is Oversay Island (q.v.), on which is a lighthouse.

Rhinns, The, dis., W. Wigs., Sc., extending from the Mull of Galloway to Corsewall Point, and comprising the peninsula bounded by Loch Ryan and Luce Bay on the east, and by the Irish Channel on the west. Each promontory is crowned with a lighthouse.

Rhinog-Fawr, mountain (2,362 ft.), 5 E. Harlech, N.W. Montgoms. On the moun two cairns. It commands a magnifice embracing Cader Idris, Aran Mowddwy a Benllyn, Blaenau Festiniog, Moelwyn, Moel the Glyders, Snowdon, Moel Hebog, the the range extending along the Lleyn pe and a wide expanse of sea towards the wes

Rhiston. [BROMPTON-WITH-RHISTON.]

Rhiw, river, E. Montgoms., rises 6 E. Llanfair-Caereinion, and runs 14 miles Severn, 5 S. by W. of Welshpool, the gener tion of its course being E. by S. Near Be forms a picturesque cascade.

Rhiw Hill, or Mynydd-y-Rhiw (1,013 ft. ence on west side of Porth Nigel, S.W. Ce 10 W.S.W. of Pwllheli. The highest point ridge is called The loaf. It comman views, embracing th of the Snowdon great part of Cardi and the Irish Sea, extensive tract in Wales.

Rhiwlas, ha., pa. N. from Llandilofaw E. Carmarths.

Rhiw-with-Llanf pa. and vil. on sou of Lleyn peninsul Carnarvs., 9½ W. Pwllheli; ac. 3,240 the higher ground elsewhere stiff clay situated at the Porth Nigel, on the declivity of Rhiw H the summit of whi are magnificent v Snowdon, South W Cardigan Bay. The of St. Aelrhiw is an Gothic edifice. Rhiw is a seat.

Rhobell-Fawr, (2,409 ft.), Mid Me N.E. by N. of Dolge

Rhode, or Road, vil., pa. of Ballyburl N.E. K. Co., Ir., 7 W. of Edenderry. H Roman Catholic church.

Rhodes, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Middle Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about a m Middleton. The church of All Saints is in style; and there are Nonconformist cha has extensive calico-printing works.

Rhodes Green, ha., pa. of Rothwell (q. Yorks., 4 N. of Wakefield.

Rhodes Hill, vil., pa. of and about 2 Ashton-under-Lyne (q.v.), S.E. Lancs.

Rhodogeidio, pa., N. Anglesey, 1 N. Llanerchymedd; ac. 1,802. The church 1845) is in Gothic style.

Rhondda, river, E. Glamorgs., is formed

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Rhesycae	Lannerch (2)	199	541
Rhigos	Ystrad	178	964
Rhinefield	Lyndhurst Road (3½)	84	49

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dis fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Du
Rhiw-w.-Ll'faelrhys	Pwllheli (10½)	27
Rhodes	Middleton (1)	18
Rhodogeidio	Llanerchymedd (1)	25

confluence of two headstreams, the R. Fechan and the R. Fawr, which rise within 1½ mile of one another, about 5 W. of Aberdare, and run almost parallel in a S.E. direction for about 10 miles. The valley of Ystradyfodwg, down which the R. Fawr runs, is one of extreme beauty. After uniting their waters, the streams pursue their joint course 3 E. by S. to Newbridge, where they enter the Taff. The beauty of this lower part of the valley has been much marred by the erection of numerous chimneys in connection with the coal-mines and metal-works. This densely-populated district, known collectively as R. Valley, forms a curacy under Llanwonno, with a modern church, in Gothic style, dedicated to St. David.

Rhondda Division, one of the five parl. divs. of Glamorgs. It returns one member.

Rhondda Valley. [RHONDDA.]

Rhonehouse. [KELTON HILL.]

Rhos, vil., pa. of Penmark (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 9½ S.W. of Cardiff.

Rhosbeirio, pa. on the Irish Sea, N. Anglesey, 3 W.S.W. of Amlwch; ac. 385.

Rhoscilly, Rhossilly, or Rhossili, pa. and vil. on Rhoscilly Bay, N.W. Glamorgs., 15½ W. by S. of Swansea; ac. 2,707. R. is a quaint vil., picturesquely situated on a grand cliff, above which rise some fine downs. The church of St. Mary (restored) is Norm. There are Wesleyan chapels.

Rhoscilly (or Rhosilly) Bay, broad open bay at the west extremity of Gower peninsula, N.W. Glamorgs., 15½ W. by S. of Swansea. The bay, which is 3½ miles wide at its mouth, is bounded on the south by Worms Head. It has been the scene of some disastrous shipwrecks, the most remarkable being that of a richly-laden galleon which was lost early in the 17th cent.; in 1833–34 the sand which covered the vessel was removed, but no treasure was found except some Spanish coins of the period. The City of Bristol was wrecked here in November, 1840. On the shores of the bay are some remarkable limestone caves containing fine stalactites, in which the bones of various animals have been found. Another cave, called The Blow Hole, derives its name from the sound produced when the air is expelled on the inrush of the waves in stormy weather.

Rhoscolyn, pa., W. Anglesey, forming the south half of Holy Island, 3 S.E. of Holyhead; ac. 2,253, with 421 tidal water and foreshore. The church of St. Gwenfaer was rebuilt in 1876. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Calvinistic Methodists have chapels. The pa. contains quarries yielding asbestos and the marble known as verd antique. Bodior is an ancient mansion.

Rhoscrowther, pa. on the south side of Milford Haven, S.W. Pembs., 6 W. of Pembroke; ac. 2,390. The church of St. Decumanus (restored 1869) is mainly modern, but there are considerable remains of the ancient Gothic edifice.

Rhosferig, tp., pa. of Llanfihangel Bryn Pabuan (q.v.), N.E. Brecons., about 6 N.W. of Builth; ac. 1,304.

Rhosgoch, tp., pa. of Worthen (q.v.), E. Montgoms., about 6 N.E. of Montgomery; ac. 1,128.

Rhosllanerchrugog, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 2 N.W. from Ruabon (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs. The church is dedicated to St. John the Evangelist. Llanerchrugog Hall, standing in a park, is a seat.

Rhosmaen, ha. on the Towy, pa. of and 2 N. from Llandilofawr (q.v.), Mid Carmarths.

Rhossili; Rhossily. [RHOSCILLY.]

Rhostie, pa., Mid Cardigs., about 6 S.E. of Aberystwith; ac. 1,313; soil in the lower ground productive, the sides of the hills affording scanty pasturage for sheep. The church of St. Michael is modern.

Rhosybol, eccl. pa. and small vil., pa. of and about 3 S. from Amlwch (q.v.), Anglesey. Christ Church is a neat stone building.

Rhos y Gwalia, eccl. pa. and small vil., pa. of Llanfor (q.v.), N.E. Merions., near Bala. The church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

Rhos y Medre, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Ruabon (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs., about 1½ S. of Ruabon on the road to Chirk. The church of St. John is a modern building.

Rhuddlan, or Rhyddlan, parl. bor., pa., port, and head of petty sess. div., on the Clwyd, N.W. Flints., 3 N. by W. of St. Asaph; ac. of pa. 2,068. R. is said to take its name from the red colour of the ground in the vicinity of the river. It is now a decayed place, consisting mainly of a single street, beautifully situated in the Vale of Clwyd. The town was incorporated by royal charter in 1284. It belongs to the Flint dis. of parl. bors. A two-arched bridge over the river, which is navigable from this point to the sea, was erected by Bishop Hughes in 1595. The church of St. Mary (restored) is an ancient edifice with Dec. features. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The castle, the ruins of which occupy a commanding position overlooking the river, was built or reconstructed by Robert, nephew of Hugh Lupus, Earl of Chester, who gained possession of the place in 1098. The shell alone remains, consisting of a massive quadrangular structure 17 ft. thick, with circular towers at two angles and two gateways, each of which is flanked by turrets. There are also remains of a fosse lined with stone and a square bastion commanding the river. The castle was repaired by Henry II. in 1157, after being partly destroyed by the Welsh. It again fell into the hands of the Welsh several times, but was finally taken by Edward I. in 1277. He established himself here whilst engaged in reducing the principality, and it was hence that he issued the Statutes of Rhuddlan, by which the English judicial system was introduced into Wales (1284). The castle was rebuilt by Edward; and his

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rhondda Division	.....	.....	68721
Rhosbeirio	Amlwch (3)	263	30
Rhoscilly	Killay (12)	208	285
Rhoscolyn	Valley (3½)	260	400
Rhoscrowther	Pembroke (6)	272	168
Rhosferig	Newbridge-on-Wye	192	78
Rhosgoch	Montgomery (6)	188	37

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rhosllanerchrugog	Ruabon (2)	196	7062
Rhostie	Strata Florida (3)	257	133
Rhosybol	Amlwch (3)	263	586
Rhôs y Gwalia	Bala	223	303
Rhos y Medre	Ruabon (1½)	196	4648
Rhuddlan, bor.	Rhuddlan	212	1057
Rhuddlan, pa.	Rhuddlan	212	7757

daughter, the Princess Eleanor, was born here. Richard II. rested here when he was being conveyed to Flint by the Earl of Northumberland (1399). The castle was captured from the Royalists by General Mytton in 1646, and soon afterwards dismantled. There are also remains of a monastery for Black Friars, founded by Ranulph de Blundeville, Earl of Chester, in 1197, and a hospital of the Knights Templars known as Yspytty, or Spital. The mound, surrounded by a ditch, near the Dominican friary, called Tuthill or Toothill, is supposed to mark the site of a fortress erected by Llewelyn ap Sitsyllt in 1015, and destroyed by Harold, son of Earl Godwine, in 1063. R. manufactures agricultural implements on a large scale. Morfa Rhuddlan (="Marsh of Rhuddlan"), between the town and the sea, was the scene of a victory of the Mercians over the Welsh in 795. Bodrhyddan, a red-brick Elizabethan mansion, and Pengwern are seats.

Rhulen, or Rulen, pa. on the Edwy, S. Radnors., 6 E. of Builth; ac. 1,572. The church of St. David is a plain stone edifice. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel.

Rhunahaorine, pl. with school, pa. of Killean and Kilchenzie (q.v.), S. Args., Sc., about 17 N.W. of Campbeltown.

Rhu Stoer, headland (530 ft.), pa. of Assynt (q.v.), west coast of Suths., Sc., 9 N.W. of Lochinver. The headland is formed of sandstone, and has a bold rugged outline. A skerry off the shore, 250 ft. in height, is remarkable for its shape, which has been compared to a ship under sail.

Rhyddlan. [RHUDDLAN.]

Rhydgwern, tp. on the Rhymney, pa. of Machen (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., about 5 E. of Caerphilly; ac. 722.

Rhydmanteg, vil., pa. of Llangranog (q.v.), S.W. Cardigs., 8½ N. of Newcastle Emlyn.

Rhydodridge, vil., pa. of Pendoylan (q.v.), S. Glamorgs., 8½ W. of Cardiff.

Rhydyborthan, ha. on the Taff, pa. of Eglwysilan (q.v.), E. Glamorgs., 4 N.W. of Caerphilly.

Rhyd y Croesau, eccl. pa., pas. of Llanyblodwell, Sellatyn, and Oswestry, N.W. Salop, and Llansilin, S.E. Denbighs., about 3½ W. of Oswestry. Christ Church is a small building in debased Gothic style.

Rhydymwyn, eccl. pa., pas. of Cilcen, Halkin, Mold and Northop (q.v.), Mid Flints., 3 N.W. of Mold. The church is dedicated to St. John the Evangelist.

Rhydypennan, vil., pa. of Llanfihangel-Geneu'r-Glynn (q.v.), N. Cardigs., 4 N.E. of Aberystwith.

Rhydyrgane, vil., pa. of Llanllawddog (q.v.), N. Carmarths., 6½ N.E. of Carmarthen.

Rhyl, eccl. pa. and watering-place, pa. of Rhuddlan (q.v.), N.W. Flints., 4½ N. by W. of St. Asaph. R. takes its name from the mansion of Ty-ny-Rhyl, which was long the only residence in the neighbourhood. Since 1830 it has grown from a fishing village into a prosperous watering-place. It extends east along the coast from the mouth of the Clwyd, standing in the midst of the dead level which extends from the heights above Abergele to the range bounding the Vale of Clwyd on the east. Owing to its pure air, dry climate, and magnificent stretch of firm sand, it is much frequented by visitors during the summer months. Trinity Church was erected in 1835. There are several other Anglican churches; also a Roman Catholic church, and Presbyterian, Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The other public buildings include a town hall, a market hall, and several convalescent hospitals and hydropathic establishments. The iron promenade pier commands fine views of the mountains of N.E. Carnarvs. The Esplanade, including the east and west parades, is nearly a mile long. At the entrance to the pier is the Pavilion (1891), a structure in Renaissance style, with a large central hall. At the west end of the West Parade are the Winter Gardens, near which a marine lake, nearly 40 ac. in extent, was formed in 1895. A little below the lake the river is crossed by the Foryd Bridge. Ty-ny-Rhyl is a Tudor mansion, containing some carved woodwork which originally formed part of the bedstead of Griffith Lloyd, Gentleman Usher to Catherine of Arragon.

Rhymer's Glen, on Huntly Burn, pa. of Melrose (q.v.), N. Roxbs., Sc., close to Abbotsford. It is so called because here Thomas the Rhymer is supposed to have met the Queen of the Fays.

Rhymer's Tower. [EARLSTON.]

Rhymney (1), eccl. pa. and to., pa. of Bedwelty (q.v.), N.W. Mon., 3 W. of Tredegar. The church is a building of stone, in Doric style (1842). Here is a Catholic chapel dedicated to St. John; and there are places of worship for the Baptists, Welsh Congregationalists, Calvinistic Methodists, and Wesleyans. All the houses are very small, and are occupied chiefly by the workpeople employed in the ironworks and coal-mines. There are but a few shops, and the only manufacture is that of iron, which gives employment to the whole of the working population. R. has a station on the Brecon and Merthyr line, which puts it in direct communication with the docks at Newport, and a station on the Rhymney line uniting it to Cardiff. The works of the R. Iron Company are very extensive; the company also work coal and ironstone, and export coal to all parts of the world.

Rhymney (2), river, rises in Brecons., 4½ N.N.E. of Merthyr Tydfil, flows S. by E. for 1½ mile between Brecons. and Glamorgs.; and for the rest of its course divides Glamorgs. from Mon. It runs S.S.E. and S. to a point within a mile of Caerphilly, whence it pursues its way E. to Machen; then forms a curve round Ruperra, and flows S.S.W. past Llanedarn, and Rhymney, again winding S.E. for a short distance before entering the Bristol Channel. The river is 30 miles long, and for 3 miles from its mouth is both tidal and navigable. The scenery on its banks is in many places very picturesque.

Rhynd, pa., E. Perths., Sc., about 2 S.E. of Perth; ac. 2,457; soil in the lower districts clay intermixed with rich black loam, in the upper of a more

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rhulen	Builth Road (6)	186	59
Rhydgwern	Caerphilly (5)	163	275
Rhyd y Croesau	Oswestry (3)	193	401
Rhydymwyn	Rhydymwyn	195	458
Rhyl, eccl. pa.	Rhyl	209	6527
Rhyl, to.	Rhyl	209	6491
Rhymney(1), eccl.pa.	Rhymney	173	7361
Rhymney (1), to.	Rhymney	173	7733
Rhynd	Abernethy (2)	437	270

light and gravelly quality. The name is Gaelic, and refers to the situation of the pa. on a point of land at the confluence of the Earn and the Tay. The church stands on an eminence about the middle of the pa. The castle of Elcho, now in ruins, was originally of great strength.

Rhyndwyclydach, tp., pa. of Llangafelach (q.v.), W. Glamorgs., 6½ N. of Swansea; ac. 7,704. Here are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, Congregational, and Unitarian chapels. The tp. contains coal-mines.

Rhynie, pa. and vil. (also called Muir of R.) on the Bogie, N.W. Abers., Sc., about 4 s. of Gartly railway station; ac. 12,897; soil rich and fertile on the banks of the Bogie; towards the hills light and gravelly, yet productive. Feeing markets are held on the Mondays before May 28 and November 28, and monthly cattle markets from November to May. In the pa. is a vitrified fort.

Rhynns of Islay. [RHINNS, THE.]

Rialton Priory. [ST. COLUMB MINOR.]

Rib, river, N.E. Herts., rises near Buckland, flows S.S.E. past Buntingford to Braughing, then S.S.W. to Standon and Thundridge, falling into the Lea near Hertford. It has a course of about 12 miles.

Ribbesford, pa., tp., and vil. on the Severn, N. Worcs., about 3 S.W. of Kidderminster: ac. of pa. 3,718, of tp. 1,608; soil clay and marl, overlying gravel and sandstone. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1879) is principally Norm. and Perp., with some traces of E. Eng. work; the tympanum of the north doorway is occupied by a curious carving illustrating the legend of a knight who went out to shoot deer on a fast day and had his arrow caught by a fish which sprang from the river; the wooden north porch is dated 1633, and there is a wooden arcade between the nave, chancel, and south aisle; parts of a 15th-cent. rood-screen remain; in the north aisle is a piscina, some fragments of old glass, and three old stone coffin-slabs. R. House was once the home of Lord Herbert of Cherbury, but has been greatly modernised.

Ribble, river, W.R. Yorks. and Mid Lancs., rises on the moors near Gearstones, at a point about 5 S.S.W. of Hawes, and follows a southerly course between Penyghent on the east and Ingleborough on the west, passing Horton-in-Ribblesdale, forming several picturesque falls at Stainforth, and flowing between Settle and Giggleswick. It here enters a fertile plain, and runs S. by E. past Hellifield Peel, and then S.W. past Gisburn Park, Bolton-by-Bowland, and Sawley to the Lancs. border. Continuing its south-west course, the river now forms for 6 miles the boundary between Yorks. and Lancs., having on its left the castle and town of Clitheroe, situated on the summit and slope of a bold detached limestone crag, and further down, on the left, the pretty vil. of Mitton, which occupies the land between the Ribble and its affluent the Hodder. It here enters Lancs., and flows on S.W. through that co., receiving the Calder a short distance below Mitton, soon afterwards passing Stoneyhurst College, and then running by Ribchester, Samelsbury, and Walton-le-Dale (where it is joined by the Darwen) to Preston. A little below Preston it expands into a noble estuary, which at its mouth has a breadth of 6 miles. The river contains an abundance of salmon and trout.

Ribbleton, eccl. pa. and tp. within the co. bor. of Preston (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 649. The church of St. Mary Magdalene (1889) is in Late Dec. style. The Preston cemetery is in the tp. The charities amount to £86 yearly. Here are the Preston Pleasure Grounds. R. Hall is a seat.

Ribbleton Moor, tp., pa. of and about 2 miles from Preston (q.v.), N. Lancs.; ac. 108.

Ribby-with-Wrea, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Kirkham (q.v.), W. Lancs., about 2 W. by S. of Kirkham; ac. 1,387. The church of St. Nicholas took the place of an older building. There is a small charity, and the school has an endowment of £210. R. Hall is a seat.

Ribchester, pa., tp., and small to. on the Ribble, Mid Lancs., 7 N.W. of Blackburn; ac. of pa. 7,685, of tp. 2,068. The church of St. Wilfrid is a very ancient building, dating probably from 1170; a chantry chapel was founded here in 1405 by Sir Richard Houghton (it is enclosed by screenwork, and contains a piscina and some remains of old glass); in the Dutton chapel is a tomb dated 1689 and a window with fragments of ancient glass; the chancel contains double piscina, sedilia, and a pulpit dated 1636. The charities amount to about £76 yearly. There are two weaving mills, and a few persons are still engaged in handloom-weaving and bobbin-turning. R. is believed to have been the Roman station Coccium. Many remains have been unearthed—statues, coins, altars, etc. In 1811 were uncovered the foundations of a temple, believed to have been dedicated to Minerva, and in 1833 an altar of the time of Marcus Aurelius was dug up in the churchyard.

Ribston, Great, with Walshford, tp., pa. of and 2 W. from Hunsingore (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,903. Ribston pippins were first grown here. R. Hall is a fine house on the bank of the Nidd, and contains an ancient chapel dedicated to St. Andrew; there was here a preceptory of Knights Templars. Monuments to two of the Knights, from which the brasses have been removed, still exist; there are also some memorials to the Goodriche family.

Ribston, Little, tp. and vil. on the Nidd, pa. of and 2 N.E. from Spofforth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 856. There is a chapel-of-ease and a small Wesleyan chapel.

Ribton, tp. on the Derwent, pa. of Bridekirk (q.v.), W. Cumb., 5 W. of Cockermouth; ac. 607. R. Hall, now occupied as a farmhouse, was built temp. Charles II., in Renaissance style; the entrance-hall contains a good chimney-piece, and the dining-hall is panelled with chestnut. R. House is also a farm.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rhyndwyclydach	Morriston (2)	205	4018
Rhynie, pa.	Gartley (4)	563	1043
Rhynie, vil.	Gartley (4)	563	445
Ribbesford, pa.	Bewdley (½)	137	2977
Ribbesford, tp.	Bewdley (½)	137	101
Ribbleton, eccl. pa.	Preston (2)	209	1080
Ribbleton, tp.	Preston (2)	209	838
Ribbleton Moor	Preston (2)	209	Nil
Ribby-w.-W., ec. pa.	Wrea Green (1)	219	652
Ribby-w.-Wrea, tp.	Wrea Green (1)	219	401
Ribchester, pa.	Longridge (3)	216	5777
Ribchester, tp.	Longridge (3)	216	1265
Ribston, Great, w. W.	Knaresborough (3)	204	167
Ribston, Little	Spofforth (2)	198	185
Ribton	Marron Junction (½)	313	23

Riby, pa. and small vil., N.E. Lincs., 7 S.W. of Grimsby; ac. 2,720; soil mixed, overlying chalk. The church of St. Edmund (rebuilt in 1868, with the exception of the Perp. tower) has some Norm. and Dec. work, including a fine Norm. doorway. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Almshouses for four poor men were erected in 1848. A fight took place here in 1645 between the Royalists under Col. Foster and the Parliamentary troops under Col. Harrison. R. Grove is a seat.

Riccall, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 10 S.E. of York; ac. 3,060; soil warp and sand, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1865) is Norm. and Dec., and contains many monuments to the Richardson and Wormley families. The vicarage is on the site of the old Prebendal Manor House, part of which still exists. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Lawell (or Wheel) Hall, formerly a palace of the Bishops of Durham, is now occupied as a farm. R. Hall is a seat.

Riccards Down, ha., pa. of and ½ N. from Abbotsham (q.v.), N. Dev.

Riccarton (1), pa. and vil., N. Ayrs., Sc., 7 E. of Irvine; ac. 7,550; soil clayey and stiff, overlying coal, limestone, sandstone, and clay. The surface is undulating, but in the south and south-east there is a range of hills, commanding fine views. The Irvine skirts the north boundary, and the Cessnock traverses the east part of the pa. The vil. adjoins Kilmarnock, with which it is connected by a three-arched bridge over the Irvine. Hurlford (q.v.) is for the most part situated in the pa. The Established church dates from 1823. Coal is extensively mined, and there are also ironworks. Bellfield (q.v.), Dollars (q.v.), Milrig (q.v.), Shawhill (q.v.), and Treesbank (q.v.) are seats.

View from Richmond Hill.
(Photo. York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

Riccarton (2), vil. with railway station, pa. of Castleton (q.v.), S. Roxbs., Sc., 13 S.E. of Hawick.

Riccarton (3). [Rickarton.]

Riccarton (4), estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Currie (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc., 6 S.W. of Edinburgh.

Riccarton Hills, hill range (832 ft.), pa. of and 2½ S. by E. from Linlithgow (q.v.), Mid Linliths., Sc.

Richards Castle, pa. (extending into Salop) and vil., N. Herefords., 3½ S.W. of Ludlow; ac. 4,909; soil light loam, overlying gravel and clay. (For civil purposes the Salop portion is now a separate pa.) The church of St. Bartholomew is Norm., and is now used as a mortuary chapel. The church of All Saints, now the pa. church, was built in 1891-92, in E. Dec. style. The place takes its name from a castle built here in the time of Edward the Confessor. Moor Park, Overton, and Overton House are seats.

Richardstown, pa. on the Dee, Ardee bar., Mid co. Louth, Ir., 3 N.E. of Dunleer; ac. 1,107.

Richborough, ha. situated on a hill, pa. of Ash-next-Sandwich (q.v.), E. Kent, 1½ N.W. of Sandwich. On the navigable Stour are the remains of R. Castle, a Roman structure supposed to have been built by Severus and to have been a part of the station Rutupiæ, its port being named Portus Rutupensis. The walls now remaining are from 20 to 30 ft. high, with a thickness of 12 ft. at the base, and seem to show the castle to have been a regular parallelogram. British, Roman, and Saxon remains and coins have been found here and in the neighbourhood in great abundance.

Richhill, vil. with railway station, pa. of Kilmore (q.v.), N. co. Armagh, Ir., 5 E. by N. of Armagh. There is an extensive preserve factory in the vil. R. Castle, a stately turreted mansion in a fine demesne, is a seat.

Richings Park. [Iver (1).]

Richmond (1), pa., mun. bor., and to. on the Thames (here crossed by a handsome bridge of five arches, connecting Richmond with Twickenham), N. Surrey, about 10 S.W. of London; ac. of bor. 2,534, of pa. 1,210 and 54 of water and foreshore. A new foot-bridge and lock were opened in 1894, the former affording a shorter route for foot-passengers to and from Isleworth, whilst the movable sluices are arranged to prevent the tide falling too low, and to regulate the rapidity of the stream. R., originally known as West Sheen, was so named by Henry VII. in allusion to his former earldom, and was formerly a hamlet of Kingston, lying wholly in the hollow south-east of Kew Park, and clustering round a royal manor-house which had existed here from time immemorial. The church of St. Mary Magdalen, though still partly ancient, has been often altered and partly rebuilt; it is an edifice of brick, flint, and stone, and is chiefly remarkable for its monuments, which are numerous and historically attractive. At the west end of the north aisle was buried James Thomson (d. 1748), author of "The Seasons," whose grave

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Riby	Stallingborough (3)	159	288
Riccall	Riccall	178	736
Riccarton (1)	Kilmarnock (1)	390	7317
Riccarton (1), vil.	Kilmarnock (1)	390	2307
Richards Castle	Woofferton (1½)	157	735
Richardstown	Dunleer (3)	42	118
Richhill	Richhill	94	449
Richmond (1), pa.	Richmond	10	22684
Richmond (1), m. bor.	Richmond	10	26875

is marked by an inscribed brass placed there in 1792. The church also contains memorials to Gilbert Wakefield (d. 1801), the critic; Edward Gibson (d. 1701), the painter; Mrs. Mary Ann Yates (d. 1787), the actress; Edmund Kean (d. 1833), the tragedian, with a monument by Loft. In the churchyard is buried Richard, seventh Viscount Fitzwilliam (d. 1816), the founder of the museum bearing his name at Cambridge. R. has eccl. pas. with modern churches, and there are Roman Catholic and several Nonconformist places of worship. The Wesleyan Theological Institution, founded in 1834, is a large and elegant pile of Bath stone, in Gothic style; on the ground floor are the refectory, lecture room, class rooms, and governor's apartments; on the first floor the library and studies, and on the upper floor are dormitories; the wings contain various other apartments; in the refectory is preserved the pulpit formerly in Wesley's original chapel in Moorfields. This establishment is designed for the training of students chiefly for the foreign missionary work of the Wesleyan Methodist Society. The town hall (1893) is in Elizabethan Renaissance style; it has three fronts, respectively facing Hill Street, Whittaker Avenue, and the Thames; and the space between the hall and the towing-path is laid out as a terraced pleasure ground. Amongst other public buildings are the Free Library, the Public Baths, the theatre, and Royal Hospital. There are almshouses (respectively called Queen Elizabeth's, Bishop Duppas', Michel's, Hickey's, and Houblon's) for seventy-two people. Hickey's Almshouses, to which is attached a small chapel open to the public, have an income of over £1,000 yearly. About £160 is distributed yearly in bread and clothing. In the pa. are market gardens and nursery grounds, and a large local coal traffic is carried on by river. R. Green, anciently the scene of jousts and tournaments, is a large open space nearly surrounded by houses and lofty elms, which on the north side form a wide avenue; on the green stands a Russian gun, captured in the Crimea. Many of the houses on the green, as well as those in Maid of Honour Row adjoining, are fine specimens of the Queen Anne style. Sheen was anciently a royal residence; it was in ruins during the reign of Henry IV., and was rebuilt by Henry V., who founded here in 1414 a magnificent convent of Carthusians, called "the House of Jesus of Bethlehem;" he also founded here a house of Celestines, and Henry VII. established near the palace about 1499 a convent of Observant Friars, suppressed in 1534. Henry VII. during the early years of his reign made the palace a frequent place of residence. Here in 1492 he held a grand tournament; but in 1498, the king being then in residence, a fire broke out in the palace, which destroyed a great part of it; it was, however, rebuilt, and in 1501, when the new work was nearly completed, he ordained that the palace should in future be called Richmond. Queen Elizabeth, who was frequently at R. during her reign, died here March 24, 1603; the palace was repaired and much money expended on it by Henry, Prince of Wales, but it was his brother Charles I. who added to it the magnificent New Park in 1637; the palace, though partly dismantled, was occasionally used by Charles II.; gradually falling into decay, it at length almost disappeared, and the only portion of any interest now left is the entrance gateway to the Wardrobe court, now called Old Palace Yard, over which are the arms of the Tudor monarchs

In the Old Deer Park, north of the town, stands the Observatory, built by Sir William Chambers in 1769; its site is upon that of West Sheen, and the house in which Swift resided, and where also lived Miss Hester Johnson, the celebrated "Stella." In a house on the outskirts of this park lived and died James Thomson, the poet of "The Seasons;" the house is now the R. Hospital, but the poet's rooms are preserved. The New Park, generally known as R. Park, enclosed by Charles I. in 1637, and situated south of the town, comprises 2,253 ac., the brick wall surrounding it being reckoned 11 miles in length; among the trees are some ancient oaks and fine old thorns; this park, which is much frequented on account of its sylvan scenery, is traversed by several carriage-drives, and has eight public entrances. The Park Gate, on R. Hill, was built in 1798 by Lancelot ("Capability") Brown for George III. Close to the Park Gate is the well-known "Star and Garter," which was often frequented by Dickens and Thackeray. From the Terrace Gardens and R. Hill a beautiful view is obtained of the river and surrounding country. Sir Joshua Reynolds lived in a house on the hill, and has painted the magnificent view from the terrace. The custom of Borough English prevails in the manor. Many handsome villas stand on the crest of the hill. R. contains numerous seats, including White Lodge, situated on an eminence in the park, once the favourite residence of Queen Caroline. Her Majesty the Queen lived here for a short time, and it was afterwards occupied by the Prince of Wales, and here in 1894 Prince Edward of York was born.

Richmond (2), pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis., N.R. Yorks., about 15 S.W. of Darlington; ac. 2,483 and 37 water. It is a polling-place for the Richmond division of the Riding, and formerly returned two members to

RICHMOND.
(Photo. Sanderson Bros., Richmond.)

Parliament, but in 1867 its number was reduced to one only; in 1885 the representation was merged in the division. In 1889 R. was made the seat of a suffragan bishop. The town is delightfully situated amidst enchanting scenery; it is supposed to have derived its name from Richmont, or the Rich Mount, from its natural attractions. Viewed from the surrounding hills, the town and castle of R., notwithstanding their elevation above the ground

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Richmond (2)	Richmond | 237	4216

in their immediate neighbourhood, seem to lie at the bottom of a valley. The town is surrounded by a rich agricultural district, and the country for several miles round is studded with the parks and mansions of a numerous body of landed proprietors. The beauty of the scenery and the healthy situation of the town attract an increasing number of visitors year by year. The church of St. Mary (restored 1892) is an ancient building, principally Norm., but having been enlarged at different times it exhibits work of several other periods. In the church is a curious monument (with effigies) to Sir Timothy Hutton (d. 1629) and his wife; the figures are represented in natural colours, and the architecture adorned with gilding. The effigies of Sir Timothy and his lady are placed in a recess in the wall, kneeling; under the parents are engraven small figures of their twelve children, in a row; round the whole are placed emblematical female figures. The stalls, with misereres and canopies, were originally in St. Agatha's Abbey, Easby. The church of the Holy Trinity, in the Market Place, was built in the 12th cent.; it was repaired in 1360, but afterwards became ruined and secularised. In 1744 the nave was reclaimed and fitted up for public worship; in 1864 the north aisle, which had been used as a Consistory Court, was added to the church. The tower is separate from the church, and belongs to the Corporation; it contains a clock and one bell, which has been used from time immemorial as a "curfew bell," and tolled every night at 8 p.m. and on all public and solemn occasions. There is a Roman Catholic church and a convent; and the Congregationalists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The Free Grammar School was founded and endowed by the burgesses and incorporated by Queen Elizabeth; the school-house, near the church, is a Gothic stone building, erected in 1849, and has since been enlarged. The Town Hall is in the Market Place, and contains a spacious assembly-room. Other public buildings are the Savings Bank (a large and handsome stone structure, in which the R. Scientific Society and the Mechanics' Institute also have rooms), the Masonic Hall, and the Workmen's Hall. There are three almshouses and a cottage hospital. The market is held on Saturday, for corn, butter, eggs, poultry, vegetables, and fruit. The corn market is held in the Market Place; the market for butter, eggs, and poultry is held in the Market House, a fine stone building erected in 1854. A fortnightly cattle market was established in 1852. The annual fairs for cattle, pigs, sheep, and horses are held on the racecourse Nov. 2 and 3; there are two other fairs for pedlery held in the course of the year. The races are held annually in September, on a piece of ground about a mile from the town, where there is a grand stand and a stand for the stewards. Several of the resident gentry have training stables near the race-ground; there is also another piece of ground on the high moor, a little south-west of the racecourse, which is used for training. Alan Rufus, son of Hoel, Count of Bretagne (a kinsman of William I., who accompanied the Conqueror in his expedition to England), is generally stated to have been the founder of both the castle and town of R. The castle for many centuries has been in ruins, yet it does not appear to have suffered from any siege or other violence. The site, between the river and the town, occupies a space of about 6 ac.; and the fortress, from the natural advantages of its position, must have been quite inaccessible, except on the north side (or that next the town). The ground on which it is built rises fully 100 ft. above the river, the precipice being broken into two parts about midway down by a walk of 8 or 9 ft. broad, which runs under the castle wall; the portion of the hill above the walk is faced with large stones, so as to give it almost the appearance of a rock. On the west side of the castle is a deep valley, supposed by some to be artificial; and the Swale winds round the east side, where the descent is much more gradual. On the north there was formerly a moat, which, however, has long been filled up. The whole was originally surrounded by a high wall, strengthened at intervals with towers, and measuring nearly half a mile in circumference. For a long time after its erection this castle was probably unrivalled in England either for extent or strength. The principal portion of the edifice now remaining is an immense square tower on the north side, said to have been built about the middle of the 12th cent. This tower consisted originally of three storeys; the arched roof of the lowest is supported by a massive stone pillar placed under the centre; the roofs of the upper storeys have fallen in. At the south-east corner of the castle is the ruin of a smaller tower, in the bottom of which is a dungeon about 14 ft. deep; there is also another tower at the south-west corner, round and narrow, and of considerable height, to which there is no entrance except from the top. One portion of the castle has been converted into stores for the North York Militia (4th battalion Princess of Wales' Own Yorkshire Regiment); in the courtyard are houses for the permanent staff. R. is the depôt of the regimental district No. 19, the Princess of Wales' Own Yorkshire Regiment. At the back of Frenchgate stood a monastery of Grey Friars, founded in 1258, but there now remains only a solitary steeple, a good specimen of Perp. work. The ruins of the monastery of St. Martin, founded in the 12th cent., stand on the southern bank of the Swale, near the railway station. The extensive remains of St. Agatha's Abbey are about 1 mile below the town, on the north side of the river, in the pa. of Easby (q.v.).

Richmond (3), vil., pa. of Handsworth (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 E. of Sheffield.

Richmond Division, one of the four parl. divs. of the N.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Richmond Harbour, on the Shannon, about 5 W. of Longf., Ir. It is the west terminus of the Royal Canal, with its basins and warehouses, named after the Duke of Richmond when Lord-Lieutenant.

Richmond Hill (1). [RICHMOND (1).]

Richmond Hill (2), eminence, pa. of Braddan (q.v.), S. I. of M., 2½ W. by S. of Douglas.

Richmonds Green, pl., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Thaxted (q.v.), N. Essex.

Rickarton, q.s. pa., pas. of Fetteresso and Glenbervie (q.v.), E. Kincs., Sc., 4 N.W. of Stonehaven. Here is the old mansion house of R., which formerly belonged to the Hepburns.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Richmond Division	.....	54439

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Rickarton	Stonehaven (4)	512	408

Rickergate, tp. within the mun. bor. of Carlisle (q.v.), N.E. Cumb.; ac. 358.

Rickham, ha., pa. of East Portlemouth (q.v.), S. Dev., 2 S.E. of Salcombe. Here is a coastguard station.

Rickinghall Inferior, pa. and vil. (the former including part of the town of Botesdale), N. Suff., 9 W. of Eye; ac. 1,996; soil various, some parts mixed, in other parts inclining to heavy, overlying principally clay. The church of St. Mary is Dec. and Perp.; the tower, reputed to be Saxon, is the only part of the original church that has been preserved. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The rent of 9 ac. is expended partly in repairing the church and partly in bread for the poor parishioners; the interest of £10 and the rent of about 2 ac. are also expended for the benefit of the poor. The rent of the fuel allotment is expended in coals for the poor. Hill House is a seat.

Rickinghall Superior, pa. and vil. adjoining Botesdale, and forming part of the town, N. Suff., 6 S.W. of Diss; ac. 1,376; soil principally heavy, overlying mostly clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1868) is a fine specimen of the Dec. flint and stone work of the Eastern Counties. There are some charities, chiefly distributed to the poor.

Rickling, pa. and vil., N.W. Essex, 6 N. of Bishop Stortford; ac. 1,330; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1865) is E. Eng., and contains a fine oak screen, a handsome oak reredos, and some good 12th-cent. glass: in the chancel are tombs of the De Walden and De Langley families, one being to Thomas Langley (d. 1470); the pulpit is 14th-cent. work. There is a small Congregational chapel. R. Hall is now a farmhouse.

Rickmansworth, pa. and to. on the Colne, S.W. Herts., 4 S.W. of Watford; ac. 10,127; soil gravel, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1890) is in Perp. style; the tower was erected in 1630. In the chancel are three sedilia and a piscina; the old stained glass in the former east window originally came from the church of St. John in Rouen and dates from 1550, and was sold during the Revolution in France (1789–92); there is an altar-tomb to the second Baron Carey, of Leppington, second Earl of Monmouth of that name (d. 1661), and his family; and a brass to Thomas Day (d. 1615) and his two wives. Portions of the vicarage-house date from 1450–60. There is a Baptist chapel and a Catholic mission-hall. The town hall (1869) is in Gothic style. There are five almshouses, built in 1862 by John Fotherley, for poor widows, with a small endowment; on the John Beresford trust are now six houses, without endowment; and there are charities left by William Ford (1681), and Ann, Lady Franklin (1798). A market was formerly held on Saturday; a cattle fair is held on Nov. 24, other fairs having been abolished. There is a large brewery and art-fabric printing works. The Dalrymple Home for Inebriates was founded in 1893. William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania, resided (1672–77) in a house in the High Street, known as Basing House. Among the seats are Moor Park, belonging to Lord Ebury (the house was built by James Fitzroy in 1673, and rebuilt about 1720 by Benjamin Heskyn Sykes; the interior was partly decorated by Sir James Thornhill) and R. Park.

Riddell. [LILLIESLEAF.]

Riddells Quarter, tp., pa. of Long Horsley (q.v.), E. Northumb., about 5½ N.W. of Morpeth; ac. 2,174.

Riddings, eccl. pa. and to., pa. of and 3 S.E. from Alfreton (q.v.), E. Derbys. The church of St. James was built 1832, in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist, Congregational, and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. Turner's gift, about £30 per annum, is devoted to educational purposes. There is a Working Men's Club, and a young men's room and club in connection with the church. Coal-mining and the manufacture of iron are carried on. R. House is a seat.

Riddlecombe, vil., pa. of Ashreigney (q.v.), N. Dev., 4½ W. of Chulmleigh.

Riddlesden, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Bingley (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. St. Mary's Church was built 1850, in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. R. Hall, formerly a seat, and a fine specimen of 16th-cent. architecture, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

RIDDLESDEN HALL.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

Riddlesworth, pa. on the Little Ouse, S. Norf., on the border of Suffolk, 6 E. of Thetford; ac. 1,157; soil light loam, subsoil chalky. The church of St. Peter is in E. Eng. style. R. Hall, a fine mansion in Italian style, in a well-wooded park of 120 ac., is a seat.

Riddon, Loch, sea-loch on the borders of pas. of Kilmodan and Inverchaolain (q.v.), Mid Args., Sc. It runs inland for 3½ miles from the Kyles of Bute in a northerly direction, and is nearly 1 mile wide.

Ridgacre, tp., pa. of and 2 E. from Halesowen (q.v.), N. Worcs.; ac. 838.

Ridge-, for places not found under this spelling, see also RIDG-.

Ridge (1), pa. and vil., S. Herts., 4 N.W. of High Barnet; ac. 3,614; soil and subsoil clay.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rickergate	Carlisle	299	5893
Rickinghall Inferior	Mellis (4)	91	362
Rickinghall Superior	Mellis (3)	91	498
Rickling	Newport (2½)	40	375
Rickmansworth	Rickmansworth	21	6974
Riddells Quarter	Morpeth (5½)	288	78
Riddings	Codnor Park (1½)	133	5615
Riddlesden	Keighley (1½)	205	758
Riddlesworth	Harling Road (4)	98	85
Ridgacre	Stourbridge (2)	141	809
Ridge (1)	Potters Bar (2)	13	459

St. Margaret's Church (restored 1885) was built in the 15th cent.; it contains a tablet to Lady Busby (d. 1661). There are five almshouses (built in 1844) and a small charity.

Ridge (2), ha., pa. of and 2 s.w. from Romsey (q.v.), W. Hants. There is a school chapel, a red-brick building.

Ridge (3), ti., pa. of and 1½ s.w. from Chilmark (q.v.), S. Wilts.

Ridge (4), shoal in Strait of Dover, off south-east coast of Kent, 12 s.e. of Folkestone. The ridge stretches 11 n.e. and s.w.

Ridge (5), shoal off Redcastle, in Lough Foyle, N.E. co. Don., Ir.

Ridgehill, ha., pa. of Winford (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, 7 s.w. of Bristol.

Ridgeway (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Eckington (q.v.), N.E. Derbys., 7 n. of Chesterfield. The church of St. John was built 1840, in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Scythes, table-knife blades, and sickles are manufactured.

Ridgeway (2), ha., pa. of and 1 n.e. from Edgton (q.v.), S. Salop.

Ridgeway (3), ti., pa. of Upway (q.v.), S. Dors., 4 s.w. of Dorchester. The Wesleyans have a chapel. A little west is R. Hill, commanding a fine view.

Ridge Way (1), line of downs extending across N.W. Berks. into N.E. Wilts., from Wallingford to Wanborough, by Letcombe Bassett and Ashbury. The total length of the Ridge Way from east to west is about 20 miles. Along it runs an old road, called Barrow Icknield Street, which is said to be of British origin.

Ridge Way (2), Roman road, S.E. Herefords., 1½ e. of Ledbury. The road takes a circular course south of the Herefordshire Beacon, part of it forming a drive in the grounds of Eastnor Castle.

Ridge Way (3), elevated tract (extending 6 e. and w.) between Tenby and Pembroke, S. Pembs. The central portion consists of Old Red Sandstone, on either side of which is a bed of limestone. The name indicates that a Roman road ran along the summit, following probably the same track as the present highway. The views from the R. W. are very fine—the Preseley Mountains, the Treffgarne Rocks, and Carew Castle forming conspicuous features.

Ridgmont (1), pa. and vil., W. Beds., 2½ n.e. of Woburn; ac. 2,248; soil and subsoil sand and clay. The church of All Saints is in Dec. style, from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott; the Dec. octagonal font has canopied work around the basin, and was brought from the old church, which is now only used for the purposes of burial. The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels. There is a wood-carving class for agricultural labourers, affiliated to the Home Arts Association at South Kensington. The charities amount to about £65 yearly.

Ridgmont (2), vil., pa. of Burstwick (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 e. of Hedon.

Ridgway (1), vil., pa. of Plympton St. Mary (q.v.), S. Dev., 4½ n.e. of Plymouth.

Ridgway (2), ha., pa. of Smeeth (q.v.), E. Kent, 4 s.e. of Ashford.

Ridgwell, pa. and vil. on the Colne, N. Essex, 4 s.w. of Clare; ac. 1,724; soil loam, clay, and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Lawrence restored 1871) is Perp.; the chancel contains a piscina, sedilia, and a fine oak screen; remains of the rood-loft staircase still exist, and the pulpit is Jacobean. There is a Congregational chapel. In 1318 R. had a fair and market. Remains of a Roman villa and many Roman and Welsh coins have been discovered.

Riding, or Riding Mill, tp. and vil. on the Tyne, pa. of Bywell St. Andrew (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 1,036. The Riding is a seat.

Ridley (1), pa. and vil., N. Kent, 8 s.w. of Gravesend; ac. 834; soil clay, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter, originally Norm., has additions and insertions of E. Eng. and Dec. periods; there is a low side window, and in the chancel (rebuilt 1855) an oblong aumbry. Winsor's charity of £2 15s. yearly is assigned in the first place to the maintenance of certain tombs in the churchyard, the remainder (if any) being distributed to the poor in bread.

Ridley (2), tp. and vil. near the Tyne, pa. of and 1 s.e. from Haltwhistle (q.v.), S.W. Northumb.; ac. 4,443. R. Hall, a seat, was built about 1743, on the site of an older mansion, but has been largely rebuilt in Jacobean style; of the old building, only a portion of the west end remains.

Ridley (3), tp., pa. of Bunbury (q.v.), S. Ches., 5 s. of Tarporley; ac. 1,439.

Ridley (4), tp., pa. of Holt (q.v.), E. Denbighs., about 6 n.e. of Wrexham; ac. 698.

Ridlington (1), pa. and small vil., S.W. Rutld., 3½ s.w. of Manton; ac. 2,081; soil and subsoil various. The church of SS. Mary and Andrew is Perp.; it contains monuments to John Harington and his wife Frances (d. 1599), and to members of the Cheselden family. The charities are small.

Ridlington (2), pa., E. Norf., 14 s.e. of Cromer; ac. 500; soil various, overlying sand, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1881) is an ancient building of flint.

Ridon, ha., pa. of St. Decumans (q.v.), W. Somerset, about 5 e. of Dunster.

Riecawr Loch, lake, pa. of and 8 s.e. from Straiton (q.v.), S. Ayrs., Sc.; it is 960 ft. above the level of the sea, and is about 6 furlongs long by 5 furlongs wide.

Rievaulx. [Rivaulx.]

Rigdon Shoal, sandbank near north-west coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 11 w.n.w. of St. Helier's.

Rigg, vil. on the Kirtle, pa. of Gretna (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc., about 1½ s.w. of Gretna Green.

Rigg Bank, fishing bank off north-east coast of co. Down, Ir. R. Bank is the west vicinity of Copeland Island.

Riggend, vil., pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 3½ n. of Airdrie.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ridgeway (1)	Eckington (3)	152	2188
Ridgmont (1)	Ridgmont	53	658
Ridgwell	Yeldham (2)	62	550
Riding	Riding Mill (½)	284	240
Ridley (1)	Meopham (3½)	26	86
Ridley (2)	Bardon Mill (1½)	301	208
Ridley (3)	Nantwich (5½)	162	109
Ridley (4)	Wrexham (5)	196	25
Ridlington (1)	Manton (3½)	90	233
Ridlington (2)	Honing (3)	148	217
Riggend	Airdrie (3½)	395	317

Riggindale, deep mountain valley, N.W. Westmd., 7 N.N.E. of Ambleside. R. begins in the south-west vicinity of Hawes Water, and runs up between Kidsty Pike and High Street. The beck which descends it eventually enters Hawes Water.

Rightbolt, ha., pa. of Gosberton (q.v.), S. Lincs., 4 N.W. of Spalding.

Righton. [REIGHTON.]

Rigsby, pa., E. Lincs., 1½ W. of Alford; ac. 1,037; soil and subsoil chalk and clay. The church of St. James was rebuilt 1863, in Norm. style, and still retains remains of the old Norm. church.

Rigside, vil., pa. of and 4 N.E. from Douglas (q.v.), S. Lanarks., Sc.

Rigton (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Kirkby Overblow (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N.E. of Otley; ac. 3,111. The moor (400 ac.) abounds with grouse and other game.

Rigton (2). [BARDSEY-WITH-RIGTON.]

Rigwin, ha., pa. of Llanboidy (q.v.), W. Carmarths., 9½ N.W. of Laugharne.

Rillage Point, small headland on the north coast of Devon, about 2 N.E. of Ilfracombe.

Rilla Mill, vil., pa. of Linkinhorne (q.v.), E. Cornw., 4½ N.W. of Callington.

Rill Head, bold promontory on the south coast of Cornw., about 2 N.W. of Lizard Point. It commands a fine view of Kynance Cove.

Rillington, pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 5 N.E. of Malton; ac. of pa. 4,155, of tp. 2,109; soil sand, loam, and clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1884) is E. Eng.; during the restoration some paintings, believed to belong to the 12th cent., were uncovered in the north aisle. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Rilston, or Rylstone, tp. and small vil., pa. of Burnsall (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 N. of Skipton; ac. 3,197. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1853, is a Dec. building. The charities are small. There are slight traces of the old manor-house, the seat of the Nortons. R. was the scene of Wordsworth's "White Doe of Rylstone," which travelled to divine service at Bolton Abbey.

Rimmington, tp. and small vil., pa. of Gisburn (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 2,753. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels.

Rimpton, pa. and small vil., S.E. Somerset, 6½ N.E. of Yeovil; ac. 999; soil sandy loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1877) is chiefly Dec. and Perp., and contains a piscina, squint, and an ancient font. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small.

Rimswell, tp., pa. of Owthorne (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 10 E. of Hedon; ac. 1,216. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Rindown Castle, ruin on west shore of Lough Ree, S.E. co. Roscom., Ir., 8 N. by W. of Athlone. The castle stands on a rocky tongue of land stretching into the lake. The remains include a strong ivy-mantled keep, a watch-tower with massive walls, and an outer wall nearly 1,700 ft. in length skirted by turrets, in the midst of which is an arched gateway. It existed in the 12th cent., and is thought to have been a residence of the Danish king Turgesius. In the 13th cent. it was captured from the O'Connors by the English.

Rineshark Harbour, creek on east side of Tramore Bay, N.E. co. Waterf., Ir., 4⅓ W. by S. of Dunmore. R. Harbour is situated between a sandbank and the shore.

Ring, small fishing vil. with harbour on Clonakilty Bay, pas. of Desert and Templeomalus (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., about 1½ mile from Clonakilty railway station. Here is a small pier erected by the Fishery Board.

Ringabella Bay, inlet on west side of Cork Harbour, between the pas. of Kilpatrick and Tracton, Ir., 5¼ S. of Queenstown. The bay extends about 2½ miles inland, the upper portion being known as R. Creek.

Ringagonagh, coast pa., Decies-within-Drum bar., S. co. Waterf., Ir., 5 S.E. of Dungarvan; ac. 3,246. The Atlantic coast here terminates at Helvick Head (q.v.).

Ringarogy, island in Baltimore Bay, pa. of Creagh, S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 4½ S.W. of Skibbereen. The island extends about 3 N.N.E. and S.S.W., and has an average width of a mile. A causeway and bridge afford access to it from the mainland. The surface is mostly rocky and sterile, but near the centre of the island there is some fairly productive ground.

Ringaskiddy, vil., pa. of Barnahely (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 5 miles from Monkstown.

Ringborough, ha., pa. of Aldbrough (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 11 N.E. of Hull.

Ringcurran, coast pa., Kinalea and Kinsale bars., S. co. Cork, Ir., occupying the peninsula between Kinsale Harbour and Oyster Haven, and containing part of the to. of Kinsale; ac. 5,418. The church of St. Catherine was built in 1744. There is a national school.

Ringfadd Point, headland, pa. of and 1 S. from Ardglass, E. co. Down, Ir., on east side of entrance to Killough Bay.

Ringford, or Red Lion, small vil., pa. of Tongland (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 5 N. of Kirkcudbright.

Ringinglow, ha., pa. and about 3 W.S.W. of Sheffield (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Ringland, pa. pleasantly situated on the Wensum, N. Norf., 7 N.W. of Norwich; ac. 1,210; soil sandy, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1887) is a fine 15th-cent. building of flint and stone. The Baptists have a chapel. There are some local charities.

Ringmer, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, about 8 N. of Newhaven; ac. 5,626; soil clay, overlying chalk.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rigsby	Alford (1½)	130	90
Rigside	Ponfeigh (4½)	382	322
Rigton (1)	Bardsey (1)	197	345
Rillington, pa.	Rillington	214	1004
Rillington, tp.	Rillington	214	760
Rilston	Gargrave (3)	225	136
Rimmington	Rimmington	226	321
Rimpton	Marston (1)	218	257

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rimswell	Withernsea (2½)	216	123
Ring	Queenstown (1½)	178	169
Ringagonagh	Dungarvan (5)	141	1053
Ringarogy	Skibbereen (4½)	220	221
Ringcurran	Kinsale	190	2683
Ringland	Lenwade (3)	145	291
Ringmer	Lewes (2)	52	1497

The church of St. Mary the Virgin (restored 1885) is Perp.; the old tower is said to have been burnt down in the 15th cent., and was rebuilt in 1885; there are several monuments and brasses. The Congregationalists have a chapel. The largest of several charities (about £336 yearly, left by Miss Hays in 1787) is divided between the poor of this pa. and of Glynde; about £30 from Cheney's charity is used to maintain an almshouse, and there is a small sum for educational purposes. The South Down Foxhounds have their kennels here, and steeplechases are held in April. The remains of an ancient house, said to have been built by one of the Archbishops of Canterbury, is occupied as a farmhouse. Delves House and Oaklands are seats.

Ringmore (1), coast pa. and vil., S.W. Dev., 16 S.E. of Plymouth; ac. 1,225; soil variable, subsoil chiefly shale. All Saints' Church (restored 1861–64) was built chiefly in the 13th cent., but has an E. Norm. north transept. During the Civil War Mr. Lane, rector of the pa., distinguished himself on the Royalist side by taking the field against the Parliamentarians. The pilchard fishery has been abandoned.

Ringmore (2), ha., pas. of St. Nicholas and Stokeinteignhead (q.v.), S. Dev., 2 S.W. of Teignmouth.

Ringrone, coast pa., Carbery East, Courceys, and Kinsale bars., S. co. Cork, Ir., 4 S.W. of Kinsale; ac. 9,240. The pa. includes the Old Head of Kinsale.

Ring's Ash. [ASHREIGNEY.]

Ring's End, pl., pas. of Wisbech St. Mary and Wisbech St. Peter (q.v.), N. Cambs., about 6 S.W. of Wisbech town. The Wesleyans have a chapel. [GUYHIRNE WITH RING'S END.]

Ringsend (1), vil., pa. of Donnybrook (q.v.), S.E. co. Dub., Ir., 2 E. of Dublin. The vil. consists of several streets, containing irregularly-built houses. On the west bank of the Dodder are the Grand Canal docks. In the locality are shipbuilding works, glass and salt works, and an iron foundry. There is a Roman Catholic church, a chapel for the Wesleyans, and a national school. During 1893 a technical school was opened here, the first of its kind in Ireland. Here commences the South Wall, extending 17,754 ft. into Dublin Bay. At its extremity is Poolbeg lighthouse, showing a light visible for 12 miles. Near the vil. is Pigeon House Fort, containing magazines, and the powder depôt for the whole of Ireland, including shot, shell, and ammunition of every sort. In close proximity is the armoury, in which are stored arms sufficient to equip an army.

Ringsend (2), vil., pa. of Aghadowey (q.v.), E. co. Londy., Ir., 5 N. of Garvagh.

Ringsfield, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 2½ S.W. of Beccles; ac. 1,646; soil and subsoil various. The church of All Saints (restored 1883) is a Perp. building of rubble with a thatched roof; there are mural monuments to the Postle, the Garden, and the Bence families; the beautiful old oak has been worked to form the ends of open seats. Here is a Congregational chapel. R. Hall, a handsome red-brick building, in Old English style, in a park of 100 ac., is a seat.

Ringshall (1), pa. and vil., Mid Suff., 4½ S.W. of Needham Market; ac. 2,089; soil and subsoil clay. The 15th-cent. church of St. Katherine (restored 1878–79) has an E. Eng. chancel. Here is a Baptist chapel.

Ringshall (2), ha., pa. of and 4 S.E. from Ivinghoe (q.v.), Mid Bucks.

Rings Hill. [FLOWERS BARROW.]

Ringshill, Great, pl., pa. of Hughenden (q.v.), S. Bucks., 3 N. of Wycombe.

Ringstead (1), pa. and large vil. on the Nen, Mid Northants, 2½ S. of Thrapston; ac. 1,930; soil strong and red land, overlying clay, ironstone, and gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1863) is chiefly E. Eng., with some Dec. portions. The Baptists have a chapel, with school-rooms attached. There is a Temperance Hall. Shoe-making is carried on.

Ringstead (2). [HUNSTANTON.]

Ringstead, East, ha., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Osmington (q.v.), S. Dors.

Ringstead, Great (formerly R. St. Peter and St. Andrew), pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 2 S.E. of Hunstanton; ac. 2,675 and 795 water; soil various, overlying chalk, gravel, and sand. There were formerly two pas.—viz. St. Peter's and St. Andrew's—but in 1771 the church of St. Peter (with the exception of its circular Norm. tower) was pulled down and the pas. consolidated. The church of St. Andrew (enlarged 1865) is an ancient building of stone and flint. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities are of £2 18s. yearly value, and there is, besides, a fuel allotment of 54 ac., producing £26 yearly for coals.

Ringville. [BALLYNAGAUL BEG.]

Ringway, eccl. pa. and small vil., pa. of Bowden (q.v.), N. Chesh., 8 S.W. of Stockport. The church of All Saints was rebuilt in 1870, on the site of an ancient chapel.

Ringwood (1), pa., U. and mkt. to, (W.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., S.W. Hants, 21 W. of Southampton; ac. 11,295 and 221 water; soil partly light and partly heavy, overlying gravel. R. was occupied by the Romans as a military post. In 1685 James, Duke of Monmouth, after his defeat at the battle of Sedgemoor, was brought to R., having been captured at a place called "The Island," not far from the town. R. is pleasantly situated on the east branch of the Avon, which contains salmon, fine trout, and other fish. The body of water in the river being considerable, the meadows, lying low, are frequently overflowed. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is of mixed periods; it was apparently erected in the 13th cent., but having gradually fallen into decay and being also much disfigured by modern additions the body of the church, together with the transepts was taken down in 1853, and reconstructed, the chancel being also rebuilt. The east wall has been decorated with paintings intended to form part PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) ft. Lon. or Dub.	Port-ATION.

Ringmore (1)	Kingsbridge (6)	242	219
Ringrone	Kinsale (4)	190	2157
Ringsfield	Beccles (3)	109	309
Ringshall (1)	Needham (4)	77	286

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) ft. Lon. or Dub.	P...
Ringstead (1)	Ringstead	85	S
Ringstead, Great	Hunstanton (2)	112	4
Ringway	Ashley (2)	183	5
Ringwood (1)	Ringwood (2)	102	40

a memorial to the family of the late Rev. John Keble, M.A., vicar of Hursley and author of "The Christian Year," whose mother was a daughter of a former vicar of this pa.; there is a mutilated brass effigy of a vested priest. Here are Wesleyan, Baptist, Unitarian, and Congregational chapels. The town hall (1868), in the market-place, a building of red brick with Bath stone dressings, contains a magistrates' meeting-room (where the petty sessions are held) and a Corn Exchange, with anterooms, library, and reading-rooms. The Lecture Hall (1874), in Christchurch Street, is in Gothic style; it was presented by Miss Carter for the free use of the town, and comprises reading-rooms, library, and lecture room. In 1887 a drinking-fountain was erected in the market-place by public subscription. In 1888 a theatre was built in Southampton Street. The charities amount to about £88 a year, and there are almshouses for twelve poor persons of R., each of whom receives 10s. on the first Monday in each month. There is a manufactory for making linen collars and cuffs; the manufacture of a peculiar kind of knitted woollen gloves, now well known as "Ringwood" gloves, also gives employment to a number of women and girls at their homes in this town and in the neighbouring villages; an extensive business is here carried on in the manufacture of agricultural implements, and there are also steam saw-mills and a brewery. A market for corn, cattle, and pigs is held on Wednesday, and fairs are held on July 10 and on December 11. Avon Castle, in picturesque grounds, and The Manor House are seats.

Ringwood.

Ringwood (2), ha., pa. of Canewdon (q.v.), S.E. Essex, 1 S.E. of Burnham.

Ringwould, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 6 N. of Dover; ac. 1,604; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Nicholas is E. Eng. and Perp.; it contains brasses to John Upton (d. 1530), with a small and somewhat coarsely-executed figure; to William Abere and Alys and Anne, his wives (1500), with two figures only and a group of children. There are memorial windows to the Monins family.

Rinn (1), lough, pa. of Cloone (q.v.), S.E. co. Leit., Ir., 1½ S. by E. of Mohill. The lough extends 2½ N. and S., and has a maximum breadth of ½ mile.

Rinn (2), stream, N.W. co. Longf., Ir., issues from Lough Rinn, and runs about 6 S. by W. to Lough Forbes.

Rinns, The. [RHINNS.]

Rinrawros Point, headland forming north-west extremity of Arranmore island, N.W. co. Don., Ir., 9 W.N.W. of Dunglow. Here is a lighthouse with a revolving light, visible 25 miles.

Rinroe Point. [KILGALLIGAN.]

Rinvyle Point, cape on the north side of the mouth of Ballynakill Bay, N.W. co. Galway, Ir., about 6 N. of Clifden.

Ripe, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 7 E. of Lewes; ac. 1,900; soil clay and sand, overlying clay. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1864, the tower in 1887) is Dec. and Perp. There is a Calvinistic Baptist chapel. Hall Court is now a farmhouse.

Ripley (1), pa., tp., and to. near the Nidd, W.R. Yorks., 7 S. of Ripon; ac. of pa. 7,386, of tp. 1,606 and 35 water; soil rich and fertile, overlying gravel. The to. consists of one broad street, and the houses, which are all of stone, have a remarkably clean appearance. The Dec. church of All Saints (restored 1862) is supposed to have been founded about 1400. There are several fine monuments to the Ingilby family; one, with full-length effigy of Sir Thomas de Ingilby (d. 1369) is apparently about thirty years older than the church, and from the confused state of the contents of the tomb below is conjectured to have been removed hither from the former pa. church, which stood ½ mile distant; another memorial is to Sir William Ingilby (d. 1617). The rood-screen, from its having been shortened, probably belonged to the old church; there were upon it in 1763, in one row, twenty shields of arms, with the names of most of the then princes of Europe. The stairs outside the steeple bear the date 1567; the font is of Caen stone. There are charities for distribution of £38 yearly value; and the free school (founded 1702) is endowed. Fairs are held on Easter Monday and Tuesday and August 25 and 26 for cattle, sheep, and horses. A handsome town hall was erected in 1854, and is used both for public meetings and for literary purposes. R. Castle, built about the middle of the 16th cent., is a seat; it is a fine edifice, situated in a park, and has spacious pleasure grounds with a large lake formed by a feeder of the Nidd. Oliver Cromwell stayed at this castle the night before the battle of Marston Moor.

Ripley (2), eccl. pa., tp., and mkt. to. (S.), pa. of Pentrich (q.v.), Mid Derbys., 10 N. of Derby; ac. 2,815. The church of All Saints was erected 1821, in Dec. style. St. John's District Church was erected 1894, in E. Dec. style. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, United Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels; and the

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ringwould	Walmer (1½)	83	709
Ripe	Berwick (2½)	58	387
Ripley (1), pa.	Ripley Valley	207	1338
Ripley (1), tp.	Ripley Valley	207	253
Ripley (2), eccl. pa.	Ripley	138	7687
Ripley (2), tp.	Ripley	138	8774

Christadelphians have a meeting-room. The Market Hall contains a large room for entertainments, as well as a board-room and public offices. There are blast furnaces, foundries, boiler yards, and iron works, and an extensive establishment for the manufacture of cotton wicks, and silk, cotton and mohair braids, boot-laces, etc. Fairs are held on Wednesday in Easter week and on October 23. Butterley Hall is a seat.

Ripley (3), eccl. pa., pa. of Send and Ripley (q.v.), Mid Surrey, 5 S.E. of Woking. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was rebuilt 1846, in Gothic style. Dunsborough, R. Court, and R. House are seats.

Ripley (4), ha., pa. of Sopley (q.v.), S. Hants, about 3 N. of Christchurch. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Riplingham, ha., pa. of Rowley (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 2 N.E. of South Cave.

Riplington, tp., pa. of and 1 W. from Whalton (q.v.), S.E. Northumb. ; ac. 379.

Ripon, on an eminence on the right bank (Lat. ripa) of the Ure (whence it possibly derived its name), city, mun. bor., pa., tp., U. and mkt. to., head of a liberty and a polling-place for the Ripon division, W.R. Yorks., 23 N.W. of York; ac. of pa. 58,235, of tp. 1,561; soil occasionally affording useful beds of clay, but generally gravelly, though there is much fertile land. Around the city is a district, comprising more than 30,000 ac., in which from Saxon times the Archbishop of York has exercised an exclusive franchise or jurisdiction, known as the Liberty of Ripon, or Riponshire. The charter of incorporation is dated 1604. The sounding of the mayor's horn is one of the most ancient customs in the kingdom; it formerly announced the setting of the watch, whence the chief officer of the town up to 1604 derived his Saxon style of "Wakeman," but it has now lapsed into the formality of three blasts given at nine o'clock every evening at the mayor's residence by his official horn-blower, and three more at the market cross. The ringing of the cathedral bell at the same hour is a custom of high antiquity, and is supposed to represent the curfew. The town was first represented in Parliament in 1295, sending two members; in 1867 the number of members was reduced to one, and in 1885 the borough was absorbed in the Ripon division. In 1836 an episcopal see was erected here, the collegiate church being made the cathedral, and R. was elevated to the dignity of a city. The diocese has been reduced in area by the creation in 1888 of the see of Wakefield (q.v.). The ancient abbey of R. appears to have been founded about 660 by Eata, Abbot of Melrose; the site of this house, occupying about 2½ ac., is now represented by a triangular plot a short distance north-east of the cathedral. In 664 the monastery was bestowed by the King on Wilfrith, afterwards a presbyter of Ripon and subsequently Archbishop of York, who about 674 rebuilt the abbey on a new site, and dedicated it to St. Peter. King Æthelstan granted to it the privilege of sanctuary with other immunities; but in 948 or 950, when Eadred was laying waste the north country, the abbey was destroyed by fire, and remained desolate until Odo, Archbishop of Canterbury, coming into these parts, caused a new church to be begun on the site of the present minster. The earliest portion of the existing fabric is the Saxon crypt under the central tower (674–78), probably Wilfrith's work, but executed by Roman masons; the Norm. portions (1070–1100) comprise part of the chapter-house and the vestry and crypt below; to the Trans. period (1154–81) belong the transepts, some portions on both sides of the choir and of the nave piers next the western towers, as well as the buttresses supporting the chapter-house and vestry; the E. Eng. period (1215–55) is represented by the west front, including the towers; the Dec. (1288–1300) by the two easternmost bays of the choir and the east end; and the Perp. by two bays on the south side of the choir, the choir-screen, the east side of the south transept, the south and east sides of the central tower, the nave, and the library. The Cathedral (restored 1862–76) is dedicated to SS. Peter and Wilfrid (or Wilfrith), and as now existing consists of a choir of five bays, with aisles, and on the south side the chapter-house and vestry, with crypt below and Lady loft (now library) above these; transepts, each with an eastern aisle or chapel of two bays, nave of five bays, with aisles and a lofty clerestory, a low central embattled tower with small crocketed pinnacles at the angles, and two western towers, each of four stages, reaching a height of 110 ft., and similarly finished. The choir contains thirty-two canopied stalls, with misereres quaintly carved and dating from 1489–94; at the eastern extremity of the southern range of stalls is the Bishop's throne, formerly that of the Archbishop of York; the corresponding stall on the north side is assigned to the mayor, and both these have on their eastern sides small pierced quatrefoils, with slides, intended as squints; on the south side are sedilia and a piscina of the 15th cent. The stone choir-screen was erected about 1460. In the north choir aisle stood the shrine of St. Wilfrith, and attached to the south aisle of the choir is the chapter-house. The vestry is apsidal, and over the vestry and chapter-house is the Lady loft (about 1482), used since 1840 as a library. Below the chapter-house is a vaulted crypt, formerly a charnel house. Both the transepts have triforium and clerestory, and contain interesting altar-tombs and other monuments. The eastern aisle of the south transept, or Mallorie chapel, has been for long the burial-place of the lords of Studley Royal, and there are memorials here to various members of the Mallorie family. The nave is unusually light and wide, and has graceful piers supporting a lofty clerestory; the aisles are groined, and on the capitals of some of the springers are shields of arms, including those of St. Wilfrith, Fountains Abbey, and of Christopher Bainbridge, Cardinal and Archbishop of York (1508–14). In the south aisle is a remarkable altar-tomb covered with a slab of grey marble, on which, in low relief, is the figure of a man in a grove of palm-trees, and near him a lion; below is a defaced inscription; near this tomb stands the Perp. font; the cylindrical arcaded font of Archbishop Roger's church is also preserved here. Near

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ripley (3)	Clandon and Ripley	25	1142
Riplington	Meldon (1½)	293	7
Ripon, bor.	Ripon	214	7511

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ripon, pa.	Ripon	214	16119
Ripon, tp.	Ripon	214	6748

the north-west pier of the central tower is the monument (with bust) of Hugh Ripley, last Wakeman and first Mayor of Ripon (d. 1637), restored by the corporation in 1725; and on the tower-arch on this side, placed on a shaft, is a figure of James I., formerly occupying a niche in the choir-screen of York Minster. One of the windows in the south aisle now contains such fragments as remain of the ancient stained glass of the great east window, dating from about 1340. Below the central tower is the famous Saxon crypt, known as "St. Wilfrid's Needle," entered from the south-east bay of the nave by a narrow passage; it consists of a cylindrically-vaulted cell; in the walls are round-headed niches for lamps, and surrounding the cell on the west and north is another passage leading to the original stairs on the east; from this passage into the cell are two openings, one at the west end and another of extreme narrowness, with a splayed entrance, called "the needle;" this crypt is believed to have served as a reliquary. The fine E. Eng. west front consists of a central gable flanked by towers; the central portion has three portals, each recessed in five orders, and above are two tiers of windows, in groups of five, and in the gable three narrow lights, the whole being much enriched with dog-tooth ornament. The cathedral has a total internal length of 270 ft., the width of the nave being 87 ft. and that of the choir 66 ft. 8 in.; the transept is 132 ft. long and 36 ft. wide; and the height varies from 79 ft. in the choir to 88 ft. in the transepts and nave. The Bishop's Palace, a modern building in Tudor style, lies about 1 N.W. of the city; the deanery is on the north side of the cathedral, and the residentiary house of the canons is a large mansion in St. Mary's Gate. The church of the eccl. pa. of Holy Trinity is a cruciform building in E. Eng. style; and there are Church of England mission rooms. The Roman Catholic church (1860–62), in Dec. style, is dedicated to St. Wilfrid. The Congregationalists, the Wesleyans, and the Primitive and the New Connexion Methodists have chapels. The free grammar school was founded by Edward VI., and reorganised in 1872; it now ranks as a first-grade school. The Diocesan Female Training College dates from 1862, and there is an industrial home for girls. The hospital of St. John the Baptist was founded in 1109; that of St. Mary Magdalen ten years later. Of this last, the original chapel remains, though a new one was erected in 1870. The almshouses of St. Mary's Hospital accommodate six poor widows, each of whom receives 7s. weekly. The hospital of St. Anne consists of four houses, for eight inmates. Jepson's Hospital (or the Bluecoat School) is endowed, and there is about £280 a year for distribution. The Market Place, in the centre of the city, is a spacious rectangular area; it contains a lofty obelisk of stone, 90 ft. in height, erected in 1781 by William Aislabie, Esq., of Studley, for sixty years M.P. for the borough of Ripon; on the east side of the obelisk, raised on two steps, is a drinking-fountain, under an ornamental iron canopy. The town hall, on the south side of the Market Place (1801), in Italian style, is of two stages, the lower being rusticated, and the upper storey relieved by four columns supporting a pediment, in the centre of which is an illuminated clock. The Corporation insignia are highly interesting, and include the ancient horn of the Wakeman of Ripon, now worn attached to a broad belt or baldrick across the shoulder by the Sergeant-at-Mace on special occasions. The great mace of silver-gilt dates from 1674. The Public Rooms (1834) are in Low Skellgate. In 1885 a spacious and handsomely-appointed assembly-room, "The Victoria Hall," was added. The Mechanics' Institution was established in 1831, but a new building has been erected. R. has also a Liberal club and a Temperance Hall. The gas-works, water-works, and baths belong to the corporation. Saddle-trees are made here; but the manufacture of cloth, spurs, and hardware has died out. The principal market is held on Thursday for agricultural produce, butter, eggs, and fowls. There is a supplementary market on Saturday evening for garden produce and butchers' meat, and a wool market is held in the Old Market Place occasionally during the season. Fairs are held on the last Thursday in January; May 13 and 14; the first Thursday and Friday in June; first Thursday in October, for sheep; on the first Thursday in November, and November 23, which is a general hiring day for servants; wool fairs on first Thursday in June, and every other Thursday during the season. The annual commemoration of St. Wilfrid, the ancient patron saint of the town and the founder in the 7th cent. of the early monastery of Ripon, takes place on a Saturday during the first week in August; a grand procession with flags and banners, and headed by a band of music, passes through the streets, the most conspicuous object in the pageant being a figure on horseback, representing St. Wilfrid, attired in archiepiscopal vestments and mitre, and bearing a crosier. On the following Sunday the grounds of Studley Royal are open free to the public, and the ensuing week is regarded as a general holiday.

Ripon Cathedral.

Ripon Division, one of the 19 parl. divs. of the W.R. Yorks. It returns one member.

Rippingale, pa. and vil., S. Lincs., 5 N. of Bourn; ac. 2,740; soil loam, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Andrew (restored) is Dec. and Perp. Among the monuments are two recumbent effigies of knights of the 13th cent. (one supposed to be the monument of the founder of the church, but by some the images are believed to represent Guy and Gobard, two early lords of R.); a large altar-tomb with figures, said to represent Roger de Quincey and his two wives; one to John de Thorp (13th cent.); a canopied tomb (with effigy) of Lady Margaret, who married (first) Lord Roger de Colville and (second) John Gobard; and in the pavement a slab to Mawncere Marmyon (d. 1505) and his wife Edith (d. 1535). The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities are small, and the school has a slight endowment.

Ripple (1), pa., tp., and vil., on the Severn, S. Worcs., 4 N. of Tewkesbury; ac. of pa. 3,847, of tp. 2,462; soil and subsoil gravel and grey sandstone, with a small portion of loam. The church of St. Mary is E. Eng., with traces of Norm. work; in the chancel are two ranges of very Late Perp. stalls, with misereres quaintly carved; the old doors and carved woodwork are of sound English oak, but have suffered from paint; the north porch has a parvise, and there are south and west entrances, the former (now closed) being Norm. Roman remains have been found near here at Bow Farm, and there are traces of a paved road from Bow Bridge to Tewkesbury. R. has four almshouses, and charities amounting to about £120 yearly.

Ripple (2), pa. and vil., E. Kent, 7 N. of Dover; ac. 1,021; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary the Virgin has been rebuilt in Norm. style; a brass to Edward Warren is dated 1591. A little to the north of the church are traces of entrenchments, which, according to Hasted, formed part of the works thrown up by Cæsar in his route from the sea towards his principal encampment on Barham Downs. Sladen's charity is £6 yearly.

Ripplesde, scattered ha., pa. of and about 2 E. from Barking (q.v.), S. Essex.

Ripponden, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 8 N.N.W. of Huddersfield. The church of St. Bartholomew was built in 1868, on an old foundation, in E. Eng. style. R. has a Congregational chapel, a Working Men's Club, and other institutions. The charities amount to £45 a year.

Rippon Tor (about 1,560 ft.), on Dartmoor. W. Dev., 6 S. of Moreton Hampstead. It commands a fine view.

Ripton Abbots. [ABBOTS RIPTON.]

Ripton Kings or Regis. [KINGS RIPTON.]

Ris-, for places not found under this spelling, see also RYS-.

Risborough. [MONKS RISBOROUGH; PRINCES RISBOROUGH.]

Risbury, ha., pas. of Humber and Stoke Prior (q.v.), N. Herefords., 4½ S.E. of Leominster.

Risby (1), pa. and vil., W. Suff., about 4 W. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 2,801; soil sandy and mixed, overlying gravel, clay, and chalk. The church of St. Giles is principally Dec.; a handsome carved screen divides the nave from the chancel; there are tablets to the Danby, Wastell, and Sparke families; Baron Alderson was buried here in 1857, but the body and tomb have since been removed to Holdenby, in Northants. There are several barrows in this pa. Here is a village club and reading-room. There are some small charities; also 150 ac. of land, upon which the poor of the pa. have a right to cut furze for firing.

Risby (2), ha., pa. of Walesby (q.v.), N. Lincs., 3 N.E. of Market Rasen.

Risby (3). [ROXBY-CUM-RISBY.]

Risby (4), ha., pa. of Rowley (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 S.W. of Beverley.

Risca, pa. and to. on the Monmouthshire Canal, Mid Mon., 6½ N.W. by W. of Newport; ac. 1,879. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt 1853, on an ancient foundation, in the Florid Gothic style. The Public Hall (erected 1884, in Italian style) includes municipal and other offices, and a suite of Masonic rooms. In the pa. are collieries, a large tinplate manufactory, an iron and steel foundry, a brewery, and fire-brick works and lime-kilns. R. House and Wain Vawr are seats.

Rise, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 9 E. of Beverley; ac. 2,039; soil stiff, overlying clay. All Saints' Church (rebuilt 1845) is E. Eng.; before the Reformation there were two chantries, but the endowments were given by Edward VI. to the school of Giggleswick-in-Craven; there are various memorials and brasses to members of the Bethell family. R. has a small charity. R. Park, a seat, is a modern mansion in Italian style.

Risegate, ha., pas. of Gosberton and Surfleet (q.v.), S. Lincs., 5½ N.W. of Spalding.

Riseholme, pa. and vil., W. Lincs., 2½ N. of Lincoln; ac. 1,370; soil gravelly, overlying lime-

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon.	or Dub.	POPULATION.
Ripon Division	.....	.....	54923
Rippingale	Rippingale	101	543
Ripple (1), pa.	Ripple	174	896
Ripple (1), tp.	Ripple	174	726
Ripple (2)	Walmer (1)	83	294
Ripponden	Ripponden	198	4309

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Risby	Saxham (1)	81	400
Risca, pa.	Risca	157	5647
Risca, to.	Risca	157	7783
Rise	Whitedale (1½)	206	181
Riseholme	Lincoln (2½)	130	79

stone. The old church of St. Mary went to decay in the 17th cent., and the present church was built (1827–53) in Dec. style. R. Hall, formerly the palace of the Bishops of Lincoln, is a seat.

Riseley, pa. and vil., N. Beds., 10 N. of Bedford; ac. 3,007; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. The church of All Saints is E. Eng., Perp., and Dec. There are Wesleyan, Baptist, and Moravian chapels.

Rishangles, pa. and vil., Mid Suff., 4 N.W. of Debenham; ac. 705; soil mixed clay, overlying gravel. The church of St. Margaret is E. Eng. Here is a Baptist chapel.

Rishton, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of and 3 E.N.E. from Blackburn (q.v.), Mid Lancs.; ac. 3,041. The church of SS. Peter and Paul was built 1873–74, in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan, Congregational, Primitive and Free Methodist chapels. R. has a small charity. In the tp. are stone quarries, cotton factories, fire-brick works, and a colliery.

Rishworth, tp. and vil., pa. of and 6 S.W. from Halifax (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.; ac. 6,548. The grammar school (built 1724) is now used as an Episcopal chapel. There is also an iron church (St. Matthew's). The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Congregationalists have chapels. The school for boys and girls has an endowment, and was founded by John Wheelwright in 1724. Cotton-spinning and paper-making are carried on.

Risingham, pl. on the Rede, pa. of Corsenside (q.v.), N. Northumb., 4 N.E. of Bellingham. Here was the Roman station Habitancum.

Risley (1), chap. and tp., pa. of Wilne, S.E. Derbys., 1½ S.W. of Sandiacre. The E. Eng. church of All Saints was erected 1593.

Risley (2), ha., pa. of Winwick (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 4 N.E. of Warrington.

Risplith, ha., pa. of and 4 S.W. from Ripon (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Rispond, ha. at the mouth of Loch Erriboll, pa. of and about 4 E. from Durness (q.v.), N. Suths., Sc.

Rissington, Great, pa. and vil. on the Windrush, E. Gloucs., 5 N.W. of Burford; ac. 2,420; soil stonebrash, overlying clay and brash. The church of St. John the Baptist is of various periods, ranging from Norm. to Perp.; in the south transept is a monument to John Barnard (1621), and in the north a piscina and a niche with remains of painting; there is also a piscina in the chancel. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. The charities are small.

Rissington, Little, pa. and vil., E. Gloucs., 4 S. of Stow-on-the-Wold; ac. 1,300; soil stonebrash and clay, overlying stonebrash. The church of St. Peter (restored 1850 and 1883) is of Norm. and later work, the chancel and its windows being E. Eng., the remaining windows being Dec., and the porch and font Perp.; in the chancel is a piscina, an aumbry, and a low side window. There is a small charity. The Manor House is a seat.

Rissington, Wick. [WICK RISSINGTON.]

Ristal, or Ristol, island at the mouth of Loch Broom, pa. of Lochbroom (q.v.), N. Ross and Crom., Sc., 14½ N.W. of Ullapool.

Riston, Long, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 7 E.N.E. of Beverley; ac. 1,821; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Margaret, which has been repaired at various dates, is a Perp. building. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There is a small charity, and the school has a small endowment. L. R. Grange is a seat.

Ritton Colt Park, tp., pa. of and 3 N.N.W. from Nether Witton (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 1,069.

Ritton White House, tp., pa. of and 4 N.N.W. from Nether Witton (q.v.), Mid Northumb.; ac. 645. There is a colliery.

Rivals, The, or Yr Eifl, group of mountains, S.W. Carnarvs., 4½ N.E. of Nevin. The group forms the central part of the range extending from Clynnog to Nevin. It presents an undulating outline with three main curves, the principal height rising to an altitude of about 1,870 ft. Within the recesses of a lesser height is the ancient British town of Tre'r Ceiri (q.v.). Towards the east the face of the mountains consists of a line of grand precipices, but from the south and south-west they may be ascended with little difficulty. The view towards the south-west, embracing the whole peninsula with its coast-line, is extremely fine. Seamen believe that these mountains have magnetic properties.

Rivaulx, or Rievaulx, tp. and vil. embosomed in the deep and wooded valley of the Rye, pa. of and about 3 W. by N. of Helmsley (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 5,311. Here is a chapel for Wesleyans. Hard by the vil., amid the pasture fields, almost shut in by the swelling hills which rise on every side, and overshadowed by noble trees, are the beautiful ruins of R. Abbey, less extensive than those of Fountains, but far more striking in the beauty and picturesqueness of their situation. The abbey was founded in 1131 by Walter Espec, the founder also of Kirkham (1122) and Wardon, Beds. (1136), for Cistercian monks, and was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary. Twenty years after its foundation Espee himself became a monk in his own abbey, and, dying in 1153, was interred within its precincts. Owing to the nature of the site, which slopes rapidly from the terrace hill on the east towards the river on the west side of the valley, the abbey church is built north and south. Some fragments of the north side and west end of the nave still linger, but generally this arm of the structure lies in grass-grown heaps, with trees and bushes. The lower part of the transepts is Norm.; the upper portion, as well as the choir, E. Eng. The southern arch of the crossing, 75 ft. in height, is still standing, and forms a striking feature. Of the choir, the arcades, triforium and clerestory, the south gable with a buttress turret, and portions of the aisle walls with their flying buttresses, remain; and the work, very similar in design to that of Whitby, is exquisitely beautiful. In 1819 the site of the high altar and the bases of the columns

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Riseley	Sharnbrook (3)	57	839
Rishangles	Eye (4)	94	152
Rishton	Rishton	210	6010
Rishworth	Rishworth	199	982
Risley (1)	Sawley (1½)	121	248
Rissington, Great	Bourton-on-W. (1)	91	419
Rissington, Little	Bourton-on-W. (1)	91	221
Riston, Long	Whitedale (3½)	206	292
Ritton Colt Park	Ewesley (1)	304	71
Ritton White House	Ewesley (2)	304	34
Rivaulx	Helmsley (2)	220	208

were cleared of rubbish, and a large stone, presumed to be an altar-stone, was found, and has been enclosed with railings; and there are also some stone coffins still lying open in situ. The cloisters, about 135 ft. square, are west of the nave, and had penthouse alleys, now gone. On the north side was the cellarium (garner), of which there are some scanty remains. On the west is the E. Eng. frater (refectory), built over a vaulted undercroft; it has a remarkable trefoil-headed doorway and lancet windows, and on the north wall are remains of the pulpit for the reader at meals, a straight staircase leading up to it from within and a winding stair to the outside. Next the frater, on the north, is the kitchen, and on the south the common-house. Next this, forming part of the south side of the cloister and extending west, is the undercroft of the dorter (dormitory), now choked with fallen ruins overgrown with trees. Uniting this structure with the western transept, and completing that side of the cloisters, were the chapter-house and sacristies, which have wholly disappeared. To the south of the undercroft just mentioned is a smaller quadrangle, which was also cloistered, and has on the south side a doorway leading to the infirmary hall, above which is a mutilated carving of the Annunciation. South of the site of the infirmary hall are portions of its chapel and other buildings. Some little distance north of the abbey, in the road leading to the vil., are fragments of the gatehouse, near which still stands the small chapel, which sometimes, if not generally, occupied this position in Cistercian houses. On the wall on the opposite side of the road may be seen a stone incised with the word "Rievall" in early characters. There were at the Dissolution an abbot (Richard de Blyton) and twenty-three monks, and the revenue was estimated at £278 10s. 2d.

Rivelin, stream, W.R. Yorks., rises in the hills on the Derbys. border, and, after an easterly course of a few miles, falls into the Don, a little to the north-west of Sheffield. Here are large reservoirs in connection with the water-supply of Sheffield.

Rivenhall, pa. and vil., Mid Essex, 8 S.E. of Braintree; ac. 3,601; subsoil loam. The church of St. Mary and All Saints (restored 1840) is Gothic; there is a monument to Sir Ralph Wiseman and his wife (dated 1594), and several tombs of the Western family. R. has some small charities. The remains of a Roman villa were discovered near the church in 1846. R. Place is a seat.

River, pa. and vil., E. Kent, 2 N.W. of Dover; ac. 1,194; soil loam, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter is of flint, brick, and stone. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Kearsney Abbey (through the grounds of which flows the river Dour) and Old Park are seats. The Knights Templar had possession of the latter, and some remains of the preceptory can be seen at Temple Farm.

Riverchapel, vil., pa. of Ardamine (q.v.), N.E. co. Wex., Ir., 3½ S.E. of Gorey. It contains a Roman Catholic church and a national school.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rivenhall	Witham (3)	39	656
River	Kearsney	76	758
Riverchapel	Gorey (3½)	60	169
Rivergreen	Morpeth (6)	288	26
Riverhead	Sevenoaks	21	905

Rivergreen, tp., pa. of Meldon, S.E. Northumb., 6 W. of Morpeth; ac. 525.

Riverhead, eccl. pa. and large vil., pa. of and 1½ N. from Sevenoaks (q.v.), W. Kent. The modern church of St. Mary is in the pseudo-Gothic style of the early part of the 19th cent.; the chancel (1882–83) is in E. Eng. style. There is a pa. room. Bradbourne Hall (rebuilt 1722) contains some fine specimens of tapestry; Montreal, surrounded by woods and plantations, and R. House are also seats.

Riversdown, ha., pa. of Warnford (q.v.), E. Hants, 5½ S. of Alresford. There are several barrows in the neighbourhood.

Riverstown (1), small vil. and head of petty sess. div., pas. of Caherlag and Templeusque (q.v.), E. co. Cork, Ir., 1½ N. of Dunkettle railway station. R. was formerly called Ballynarosheen, and is said to have obtained its present and modern appellation from its situation close to the confluence of two rivers.

Riverstown (2), vil. on the Arrow, pa. of Kilmacallan (q.v.), E. co. Sligo, Ir., 6 N.E. of Ballymote.

Riverstown (3), pl., pa. of and 1½ N. from Ardee (q.v.), Mid co. Louth, Ir.

Rivington, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Bolton-le-Moors (q.v.), Mid Lancs., 4 S.E. of Chorley; ac. 1,787. The church of Holy Trinity is E. Eng. There is a Unitarian chapel. Of a charity amounting to £391, about half is devoted to elementary education in R. and the neighbouring townships. The Pike, a hill rising to 1,193 ft., commands splendid views, and there is a beacon tower. On the moor are two cairns, possibly ancient altars, but believed by the inhabitants to have been erected to the memory of two lads who died in the snow.

Rixton-with-Glazebrook, tp., pa. of Warrington (q.v.), S. Lancs., 6 E. of Warrington; ac. 2,426. At Rixton there are Roman Catholic and Wesleyan chapels, and at Glazebrook a Primitive Methodist chapel. [Hollinfare.]

Roach-, for names not found under this spelling, see also Roch- and Roche-.

Roaches, rocky ridge, N. Staffs., 4½ N. by E. of Leek. The ridge is composed of a coarse sandy grit rock; it consists of huge masses heaped one above another in the wildest irregularity, often presenting the most fantastic outline. Its formation is probably due to a great convulsion of Nature at some remote period.

Road (1), pa. and extensive vil. on the Frome, E. Somerset, 10 S.E. of Bath; ac. 932; soil various, but generally light, subsoil mostly clay. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1874) is a fine building of stone; in the south aisle is a canopied recess, and there are several piscinæ. At one corner of the tower is a railed battlement, called "the King's Chair," and a tradition is current in the pa. that Charles II. after the battle of Worcester (September 3, 1651) ascended this tower to reconnoitre the surrounding country. There is a brass with epitaphs to the memory of the clerks of Road and Woolverton, who were buried on the same day, 1799. There are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Riverstown (2)	Ballymote (6)	122	296
Rivington, eccl. pa.	Horwich (1½)	202	465
Rivington, tp.	Horwich (1½)	202	373
Rixton-w.-Glazebr'k	Glazebrook	190	1195
Road (1)	Frome (4)	107	470

The charities amount to £3 10s. yearly, distributed in bread. The News Rooms and Public Hall is in the main street, and a fine clock was placed in the front in 1887. R. was formerly a market town, but has now only a pleasure fair, held annually on the first Monday after September 9. R. Manor, a modern house in Italian style, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Road (2). [RHODE.]

Roade, pa. and vil., S. Northants, 5½ N.E. of Towcester; ac. 1,615; soil clayey, overlying limestone and rock. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is Norm. and E. Eng. A stone in the wall of the nave bears the date 1619, which is the probable time of the re-erection of that portion of the edifice. The chancel retains a piscina, and has an ancient altar-tomb without ornament or inscription. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The charities amount to about £30 yearly. The Hide (or Hyde) farmhouse was formerly the manor-house and belonged to the Augustinian abbey of St. James.

Road Enstone. [NEAT ENSTONE.]

Road Hill, eccl. pa., pa. of North Bradley (q.v.), W. Wilts., on the Somerset border, 4¼ S.W. of Trowbridge. Christ Church is a Gothic stone building, erected in 1822.

Roadmeetings. [YIELDSHIELDS AND ROADMEETINGS.]

Roadwater, vil. with railway station, pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), W. Somerset, 4 S.W. of Watchet.

Road Weedon. [WEEDON BECK.]

Roag, Loch, sea-loch, pa. of Uig (q.v.), on the west coast of Lewis island, Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc. It is nearly 8 miles wide at the entrance, and has a great number of islets, headlands, windings, and bays. It runs inland for 10 miles in a S.E. direction, and is about 6 miles wide.

Roan. [EILEEN NAN ROAN.]

Roancarrig, islet in Bantry Bay, S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 7 E. of Castletown Bearhaven. R. is situated 1½ E. of the east extremity of Bear Island. It has a lighthouse, erected 1847, with a fixed light visible 12 miles.

Roar Bank, shoal off south-east coast of Kent, extending from the vicinity of Hythe to that of New Romney. The bank is about 7 miles in length.

Roaring Middle, shoal in The Wash, off north-west coast of Norfolk, to the east of Lynn Deeps.

Roaringwater Bay, inlet of the sea, S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 5½ W. of Skibbereen. The bay extends about 6 N.E., and has an average breadth of about 1½ mile; an arm on the north-east side, 2 miles long, runs N.E. to Ballydehob. The name is also used in a more extended sense, so as to include the whole expanse of sea between Cape Clear and Mizen Head.

Roath, pa. on the Rhymney, S.E. Glamorgs., forming a north-east suburb of Cardiff; ac. 2,423, with 925 tidal water and foreshore; soil various, partly gravel and loamy sand. The church of St. Margaret (rebuilt 1871) is in E. Eng. style; a private mortuary chapel, belonging to the Marquis of Bute, was rebuilt 1883. R. contains a Roman Catholic church and Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The Mackintosh Institute has a library, gymnasium, and reading and other rooms.

Robe, river, Costello, Clanmorris, and Kilmaine bars., S. co. Mayo, Ir., rises about 3 W. of Ballyhaunis, and winds W.S.W. past Hollymount and Ballinrobe to Lough Mask, which it enters 20 miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Robeen, pa. on the Robe, Kilmaine bar., S. co. Mayo, Ir., 5 S.W. of Claremorris; ac. 10,240. R. has a Catholic church and two public schools.

Robertland, estate with seat of the same name, and site of old castle, pa. of and 2 N.E. from Stewarton (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc.

Roberton (1), pa., S.W. Roxbs., Sc., adjoining Selks.; ac. 29,419; soil good in the valley of the Borthwick, gravelly on the acclivities, and on the hills wet and boggy. The church is 5 W. from Hawick station. The Borthwick, a tributary of the Teviot, rises in the southern extremity of the pa. and runs through the centre of it. Stock Hill (1,561 ft.) and Craik Cross Hill (1,482 ft.) are in the south of the pa. Harden is a seat.

Roberton (2), vil. on Roberton Brook (a tributary of the Clyde), pa. of Wiston and Roberton (q.v.), S. Lanarks., Sc., 3 S.W. of Lamington railway station.

Roberton Brook. [ROBERTON (2).]

Robertsbridge, or Rotherbridge, vil. with railway station, pa. of Salehurst (q.v.), E. Sussex. R. is on the banks of the Rother. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The Working Men's Club and Institute has a small library. A fair is held in Sept., and a horse and cattle market every alternate Monday. A Cistercian priory was founded here in 1176, and the remains (consisting of the crypt, three arches of the chapel, an arched entrance at the west end, and the eastern gable) have been converted into a farmhouse.

Robert's Cove, inlet near west side of entrance to Cork Harbour, pa. of Ballyfoyle, E. co. Cork, Ir., 7½ S. by W. of Queenstown. Here is anchorage for vessels of 200 tons burthen.

Robert's Head, headland, pa. of Ballyfoyle (q.v.), E. co. Cork, Ir., 8½ S. by W. of Queenstown. The point is crowned by a ruined signal-tower, commanding a wide and fine view.

Robertstown (1), pa., Shanid bar., W. co. Lim., Ir., 4 W. of Askeaton; ac. 5,684. It contains the vil. of Foynes (q.v.).

Robertstown (2), mkt. vil. (W.), pa. of Kilmeage (q.v.), W. co. Kildare, Ir., 7 N.W. of Naas.

Robert Town, eccl. pa., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 11 S.W. of Leeds. The church of All Saints was built in 1845, in E. Eng. style. Here are card and thread manufactories.

Robeston Wathen, pa. on the Cleddau, E. Pembs., 2 N.W. of Narberth; ac. 1,425; soil fertile, overlying limestone, which is worked. R. W. House is a seat.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roade	Roade	60	674
Road Hill	Frome (4)	107	277
Roath	Cardiff (1)	163	39657
Robeen	Claremorris (5)	137	1529
Roberton (1)	Hawick	344	455
Robertstown (1)	Foynes	148	1037
Robertstown (2)	Sallins (10)	18	278
Robert Town	Liversedge (1)	186	3855
Robeston Wathen	Narberth (2)	252	252

Robeston, West, pa., S.W. Pembs., about 2 N.W. of Milford; ac. 1,111, arable and pasture land. R. Hall, in well-laid-out grounds, is a seat.

Robin Hood's Bay, vil., pa. of Fylingdales (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 6 E. of Whitby. The vil., which is developing into a seaside resort, occupies the summit of a lofty and precipitous cliff, some of the houses almost overhanging it. At the close of the 18th cent. a portion of the cliff gave way, and destroyed a great part of the principal street. Since then a new road has been made through the adjoining valley, but in some places the only means of communication between one street and another is by a plank-bridge thrown across the ravine. The whole scenery is wild and picturesque in the extreme, and the heights afford fine sea-views. The sands are firm and level, but are covered at high water. There are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels.

Robin Hood's Butts, two isolated hills with wooded tops, Mid Herefords., about 3 E. of Weobley.

Robin Hood's Stable. [PAPPLEWICK.]

Robin Hood's Well, small ha. on the old road from London to York, pas. of Burgh Wallis and South Kirkby (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 7 N.W. of Doncaster.

Robin Lythe's Hole, cavern near Flamborough Head, E.R. Yorks. The general entrance is from the land side, and is at first low and narrow, but speedily widens, and the path, from being rugged and dark, becomes smoother and less gloomy; advancing, another opening shows itself, and the white spray fringing the base of the rock has an imposing effect. Turning with the back towards the sea, a beautiful sight presents itself; above is a finely-arched dome, rising in the centre to an altitude of about 50 ft., the sides showing many projecting ledges of rock; the floor has the appearance of a regular flight of steps.

Robin Rigg Channel, channel in the Solway Firth, off Allonby, west coast of Cumb., 7½ S.S.W. of Silloth. A light-vessel, put up in 1841 to mark a sandbank here, has a fixed light, visible 6 miles.

Robinson Fell, mountain (2,417 ft.) on the east side of Buttermere (q.v.), W. Cumb.

Robin's Wood Hill, pa. of Matson (q.v.), Mid Glouc., about 2 S.S.E. of Gloucester. The name seems to be derived from a family who were for a long time tenants under Gloucester Abbey.

Roborough (1), pa. and vil., N.E. Dev., 6 E. of Torrington; ac. 3,144; soil clayey, overlying stone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1868) is E. Eng. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The school has an endowment. Ebberly House is a seat.

Roborough (2), ha., pa. of and 1½ W. from Bickleigh-near-Plymouth (q.v.), S. Dev.

Roborough Down, pa. of Buckland Monachorum (q.v.), S. Dev., about 4 S.E. of Tavistock. On the down are two barrows.

Rob Roy's Cave. [CRAIGROYSTON.]

Robroyston, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Cadder (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 4 N.E. of Glasgow.

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Robeston, West	Milford (2)	273	174
Roborough (1)	PortsmouthArms(5)	200	367
Roby	Roby	197	1105
Rocester	Rocester	145	1288

Roby, eccl. pa., pa. of Huyton (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 2½ S.W. of Prescot. The church of St. Bartholomew (rebuilt 1875) is in Gothic style. A parish room was built in 1888. Here are the remains of an ancient stone cross. R. Hall is a seat. [HUTTON-WITH-ROBY.]

Roby Mill, ha., pa. of and 4 S.W. from Wigan (q.v.), S.W. Lancs.

Rocbeq, or Witches' Rock, pl. near the sea-coast, pa. of St. Clement (q.v.), S.E. Jersey, Channel Islands, 2 S.E. of St. Helier.

Rocester, pa. and small to. on the Churnet and Dove, E. Staffs., 7 S.E. of Cheadle; ac. 2,623; soil loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. Michael (restored 1873) is in Gothic style. In the churchyard are two ancient coffin-slabs and the fragments of a cross. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels; and a small charity. The wake is on the Sunday after October 11. Cotton-milling and stone-working are carried on. R. was a Roman station; and an earthwork and other remains, probably a bath, have been discovered. In 1146 Richard Bacon founded an abbey of Austin canons here. Barrow Hill, R. Lodge, and Woodseat are seats.

Roch (1), pa. and vil., W. Pembs., 6 N.W. of Haverfordwest; ac. 4,521. R. derives its name from a steep and rocky ridge, which is crowned by an ancient fortress. It is bounded towards the west by St. Bride's Bay, from which the vil. is 2 miles distant. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt) is a Gothic edifice. The pa. contains Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Coal is mined. The castle is said to have been built by Adam de Rupe (or de la Roche) in the time of Henry I. It was a stronghold of the de la Roches down to the middle of the 15th cent. In 1644 it surrendered, after a two days' siege, to the Parliamentary army. The outer walls of the tower remain; it is a stately pile in three stages, commanding a wide view over St. Bride's Bay and the neighbouring country. Cuffern is a seat.

Roch (2), or Roach, river, S.E. Lancs., rises on the Yorks. border and flows S. to Littleborough, then W.S.W. through the town of Rochdale and past Heywood to the east vicinity of Bury, where it turns S.S.W., joining the Irwell at Radcliffe. A little below Rochdale is a picturesque dell, called Tyrone's Bed, from a tradition that the Earl of Tyrone took refuge here during the reign of Elizabeth. The river affords water-power to many factories. Its length is 10 miles.

Rochdale, pa., mun., parl., and co. bor., U. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis., S.E. Lancs., extending into W.R. Yorks., 6 N. of Oldham; ac. 60,626. The town derives its name from the Roch, on which it is situated, and it is evident from Domesday that it may claim an antiquity as high at least as Saxon times, Castle Hill having, not improbably, been the site of a Saxon castle. A portion of the valley below Castle Hill is called "Kill Danes," from the tradition that a vast number of the Danish invaders were slain on this spot, near which, in 1770, some labourers discovered a

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roch (1)	Haverfordwest (6)	264	530
Rochdale, pa.	Rochdale	195	153219
Rochdale, bor.	Rochdale	195	71401

curiously-wrought sword and several pieces of ancient armour. The Rochdale Canal (Manchester Ship Canal Company, Bridgewater Canal Undertakings), passing from the Duke of Bridgewater's Canal at Manchester to the Calder and Hebble Navigation at Sowerby Bridge, near Halifax (a work commenced in 1786 and completed in 1804), opens a water communication between the eastern and western seas, as well as with the principal seats of trade in the counties of York and Lancaster; and the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company's lines afford communication with all the trunk lines in the kingdom. The church of St. Chad, approached from the Town Hall Square by a flight of 122 steps, stands on high ground overlooking the town, and is an edifice of stone of the Perp. period, built on the site of an older structure which existed in the middle of the 12th cent.; it was restored in 1837, and in 1885 the chancel was lengthened. The Lancashire poet, John Collier, better known as "Tim Bobbin" (d. 1786), is buried in the churchyard. There are several eccl. pas. (for the most part with modern Gothic churches), two Roman Catholic chapels, places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies, and a meeting-house for the Friends. The Cemetery, in the Bury Road, contains three mortuary chapels—for the Established Church, Roman Catholics. and Nonconformists. The grammar school, Sparrow Hill (transferred to a new site 1847), was founded in 1565 by Matthew Parker, Archbishop of Canterbury. The Technical School, Nelson Street (1893), is in Gothic style; the School of Art, held in the town hall, is carried on in connection with the Science and Art Department as part of the Technical School. The town hall (1871) is a stone structure, in the Domestic Gothic style of the 14th cent.; it contains a great hall, intended for an Exchange, and over it a large room for public meetings, etc., the mayor's reception rooms, council chamber, magistrates' room, sessions court, and cells for prisoners, with rooms for the corporation officials and the police. The tower, destroyed by fire in 1883, has been rebuilt, and contains a clock with chimes. The Central Hall, Water Street, formerly a Baptist chapel, is let for meetings and entertainments. The Free Library (1884), on a site on the Esplanade contiguous to the town hall, is a stone building of Elizabethan character. It comprises reference and lending departments and spacious reading and committee rooms. The baths were built by the corporation in 1868. The infirmary and dispensary occupies premises in Heights Lane (1883). The old workhouse has been converted into a hospital for infectious diseases. There is a Roman Catholic Orphanage under the care of the Brothers of Charity. The bor. has many literary, scientific, and musical institutions. The market was anciently held on Wednesday, under a charter of Henry III. It is now held on Monday for the manufactures of the town and neighbourhood, and for the sale of wool, cotton, oil, dye-wares, and grain; and on Saturday for provisions of all kinds. There is also a daily market well supplied with fish. The market hall, the property of a private company, was erected in 1844. The cattle market is in Manchester Road. Fairs are held on May 14 and November 7 for cattle and horses; Monday cattle fairs every month, and at certain times of the year every fortnight. There is also a horse fair on Whit-Tuesday, when the officers of the manor court have to make a procession through the town in order to maintain the old charter of the market. The manufactures of this place chiefly consist of coatings, baize, flannels, friezes, and woollens, considerable quantities of which are made for the Government. There is a large cotton trade in calicoes and strong goods, but the woollen fabrics form the staple trade. Here are several foundries and machine manufactories. The silk-plush and velvet manufacture is carried on to some extent. The pa. and neighbourhood abound with coal and stone. The Public Park, about 12 ac. in extent, situated near the town hall, was purchased by the corporation from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, subject to rental. The position being an elevated one, fine views of the surrounding scenery are obtained. In the neighbourhood are many quaint old gabled halls, and Belfield Hall retains an ancient gateway and courtyard.

Rochdale Canal. [ROCHDALE.]

Roche (1), pa. and vil., Mid Cornw., 5½ N. of St. Austell; ac. 5,014; soil peat, overlying disintegrated granite and clay-slate. The church of St. Gomonda (rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1822, and since restored) was originally Perp., and retains a fine Norm. font. In the churchyard is an ancient cross. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. The Temperance Hall dates from 1884. Fairs are held on the day before Holy Thursday, the third Tuesday in July, and the second Tuesday in October. This is a mining district; china-clay is dug out in immense quantities from this neighbourhood, and forms a large article of commerce in this and adjoining pas. Near the vil. is a remarkable group of rocks; on the highest point are the ruins of the chapel of St. Michael, probably the habitation of some anchorite. In a hollow on the north of the public road stands the "Holy Well." The structure, consisting of a single deep Pointed arch, with some adjacent portions, is of granite. There was formerly a granite figure of a saint on the roof, and near the well a chapel, but both have now disappeared. The spring still maintains its reputation, and before sunrise on Holy Thursday and the two following Thursdays the peasantry frequent the well and invoke the blessing of the saint by an offering of pins, which are sometimes bent and then thrown into the water.

Roche (2), pa. on the Castletown, Upper Dundalk bar., N. co. Louth, Ir., 3 N.W. of Dundalk; ac. 3,305.

Roche (3), or Roach, small river, S. Essex, flows past Rochford, and, after an E.N.E. course of about 10 miles, falls into the Crouch. It is navigable to within about a mile of Rochford.

Roche Abbey. [MALTBY (1).]

Roche Pendante, mass of sandstone rock near Fort Essex, east coast of Alderney, Channel Islands, 1¾ E. of St. Annes. The rock is an immense four-sided block projecting in a sloping direction to a height of some 30 ft. near the edge of the cliff. A similar rock, smaller but more rugged in outline, projects a little lower down; and these two pinnacles, with the loose masses of rock lying round them, form a very picturesque feature in the landscape.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roche (1)	St. Austell (5)	280	1626
Roche (2)	Dundalk (3)	55	737

Roche Point, headland on east side of entrance to Cork Harbour, pa. of Corkbeg (q.v.), E. co. Cork, Ir., 5 S.S.E. of Queenstown. At Roche Tower, on the site of an ancient fortress, stands a lighthouse (rebuilt 1835); it is 49 ft. in height, and has fixed and occulting lights, the latter, which is 98 ft. above the sea, being visible 10 miles.

Rochester (1), city, parl. and mun. bor., on the south bank of the river Medway, Mid Kent, 8 N. of Maidstone. It contains three pas.—R. Cathedral Precincts, St. Margaret, and St. Nicholas—with acreages of 7, 2,492, and 121 respectively. The city, which is built on a somewhat irregular plan, and extends for a considerable distance along the bank of the Medway, is connected with Strood (q.v.) by an iron bridge of three arches (1857), and there are also railway bridges over the river. R. was called by the Britons Dourbryf, signifying "a swift stream," in allusion to the rapidity of the Medway. The Romans called it Durobrovis and Durobrovum. By the Saxons it was denominated Hroffeceaster, from the name of one Hroffe or Roffe, who erected some buildings here, and from the Roman castrum, implying that the Romans had a fortified port here. Ethelbert of Kent founded a bishop's see here in 604, when Justus was appointed the first bishop. The city was several times ravaged and destroyed, and it has suffered severely from fire. Elizabeth visited R. in 1573; Charles II. slept here on his landing at the Restoration; the Dutch in Charles II.'s time sailed up the Medway and burnt several vessels; and in 1688 James II., on his abdication, secretly embarked here in his flight to the Continent. The parl. bor. returned two members from the time of Edward I. until 1885, when the number was reduced to one; it is co-extensive with the mun. bor., and comprises R. and parts of Strood and Frindsbury. In Saxon times the church was parochial as well as cathedral, and served by secular priests. Gundulph, the second Norman bishop, replaced the seculars by regulars, and began the present cathedral; the eastern part was devoted to the use of the monks, while the nave served as the pa. church till early in the 15th cent., when the people built the pa. church of St. Nicholas. The Cathedral of St. Andrew was begun by Gundulph (1077–1108), but is of various periods, and consists of choir (with transepts and chapels), nave, aisles, transepts (with transeptal chapels on the eastern side), and a central tower. Adjoining the north end of the great transept on the east are the remains of Gundulph's tower, probably once forming a transept tower, as at Exeter; and at the west end are two small towers. Ernulph, the architect of great works, while Abbot of Peterborough and Prior of Canterbury, completed the church, built the dormitory, infirmary, and chapter-house, and lengthened the nave by two bays eastward (1115–25). The narrow Early English choir, of which William de Hoo, when sacrist, is the reputed builder, was first used 1227, and is raised considerably above the nave. The choir was restored by Gilbert Scott, when much of the original woodwork of the 13th cent., with other portions added in the 16th cent., as well as some 14th-cent. wall-painting above the stalls, was carefully preserved. On the south side are three Dec. sedilia (restored 1825), which mark the site of the high altar, before the Lady Chapel was thrown into the choir in the 15th cent. The choir transepts were added by William de Hoo. The crypt, which once contained nine altars, is mostly E. Eng., and extends under the whole length of the choir. The tower rises from the intersection of the western or great transept with the nave and choir, and, as originally built in 1352, consisted of a low tower with a short spire, added in 1479; the modern debased and incongruous structure was erected in 1827. The north wing of the main transept (E. Eng.) was built by Richard de Eastgate, sacrist, and Thomas de Meopham; and the south wing by Richard de Waldene, about 1200. On the western side of the south wing is St. Mary's Chapel of three bays, and on the eastern side the muniment-room. The stone screen between the nave and choir is adorned with canopied niches to contain figures of bishops. The nave is the most ancient in the kingdom, and is Norm. (except the two easternmost arches on each side, which are E. Eng., and the windows, which are almost all Dec. or Perp.). Above is a rich triforium, opening into the aisles, but extending along the six Norm. bays only, and above this rises a lofty clerestory, with Late Perp. windows. The modern oak roof is flat, supported on corbels. The north aisle was begun by Richard de Eastgate and completed by William Axenham in the 13th cent.; the south aisle was built in 1240. The west front is a noble specimen of Norm. work. Its doorway consists of a deeply-recessed semicircular arch, enriched with beautiful mouldings of four orders, on shafts with highly-elaborated capitals; on two opposite shafts are figures, now mutilated, of Henry I. and Queen Maud, and the lintel bears reliefs of Our Lord and the Apostles, with figures of cherubim and evangelistic symbols. The whole façade has several ranges of arches, some semicircular and some intersecting. The principal monuments in the cathedral are to—Bishop de Merton (drowned 1278), a fine E. Eng. tomb; Bishop Lowe (d. 1467), an altar-tomb (here also was the shrine of St. William of Rochester, a baker of Perth, murdered outside the city walls of R., when on a pilgrimage to Jerusalem, in 1201); Bishop de Shepey (d. 1361), an effigy with original colouring, discovered in 1825; Bishop Gundulph (d. 1107), a simple stone cist; Bishop Inglethorpe (d. 1291), a canopied effigy of Petworth marble; Bishop Laurence de St. Martin (d. 1274), a perfect effigy with Dec. canopy; Bishop de Glanvill (d. 1214), a coped tomb, much mutilated; Bishop de Bradfield (d. 1283), a mutilated tomb with canopy and effigy; Bishop Hamo de Hethe (d. 1352), a rich Dec. canopy; and Bishop Fisher (d. 1535), an incised slab. There is also a monument to Richard Watts (d. 1579), the founder of the charity bearing his name; and a brass tablet to Charles Dickens, whose boyhood was passed in R., and who died at Gads Hill (1870). At the south-east corner are some Norm. remains of the ancient chapter-house and cloisters. To the southern wall of the cloister was attached the refectory, built by Silvester, the prior, after 1177, and there still exist remains of a passage through the wall to the pulpit, as at Chester Cathedral and Beaulieu Abbey, Hants. The library (of upwards of 1,100 volumes) contains some ancient MSS., and among others the celebrated register of the diocese, the "Textus Roffensis" (A.D. 1120) and the "Custumale Roffense" (composed about 1320). Three gates of the priory remain. Of the three precinct gates, the north or St. William's is destroyed; but the embattled arch of the south

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. Popu- fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	lation.
Rochester	Rochester	30	26290

cloister still exists. The almonry, on the south-west, has been converted into a prebendal house. The ancient palace is cut up into dwelling-houses. The church of St. Margaret was rebuilt in Italian style at the beginning of the 19th cent.; the tower, which forms a striking feature in the landscape, is of Perp. date. In the church is a palimpsest brass of a 15th-cent. vicar, in ecclesiastical vestments; on the reverse is a similar figure in somewhat different dress. The church of St. Nicholas, close to the cathedral, is a plain building, erected in 1421, greatly enlarged in 1624, and restored after injury by fire in 1892; there are several brasses and tablets to the Foord and Gordon families, and a curious octagonal stone font with the word "Cristian" round it in ancient capitals. The church possesses some very valuable communion plate. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. Peter is a modern building in Gothic style. There are also places of worship for various bodies of Dissenters, and a Synagogue. The grammar school was founded (1544) by Henry VIII., the mathematical school (1704) was reorganised in 1878, and the girls' grammar school was founded in 1886. The Guildhall (1687) is an edifice of brick, supported on columns forming an open basement. The Corn Exchange (rebuilt 1870-71), in the High Street, occupies the site of the old Clock House, the pedimented front of which, together with its projecting clock, still remain; over the Exchange is a large assembly-room, with a daïs at the further end; the basement has been assigned to the Rochester Free Library (1887) and to the Museum (1894). Markets are held every Tuesday for corn and cattle, and a fair on May 18. Much trade is carried on by means of the Medway, and vessels of considerable tonnage come up the river; and there is a custom-house. The County Court Offices (1862), in Eastgate, are in modified Tudor style. There are three club-houses, belonging respectively to the Liberals, the Conservatives, and the R. and County Club. The Young Men's Christian Association occupies Eastgate House, an Elizabethan building referred to in "Edwin Drood." Fort Pitt, on an elevated site overlooking the Medway, is now used as a military hospital, the original building having been considerably enlarged. The Recreation Ground affords extensive views of the city and river; The Vines, once the vineyard of the monks, is another place of recreation off the Maidstone Road. The Poor Travellers' House was founded and endowed in 1579 by Richard Watts, for six poor travellers "not being common rogues nor proctors"; each receives a night's lodging, a supper, and fourpence on leaving in the morning. The revenues of Watts' charity amount to about £4,000 a year, and in connection with it almshouses have been erected on the Maidstone Road, baths provided, and provision made for the apprenticing of poor children to some honest trade or calling. The House of Industry (founded 1823) will hold two men and ten poor women. St. Catherine's Hospital, Star Hill, founded in 1316 for lepers, is now appropriated as the residence of twenty-two aged women, each with a pension of £28 yearly. Hawkins' charity (founded 1592) is for decayed seamen. Other charities, producing £150 yearly, are distributed in bread. There are some ancient houses in the city, notably Satis House; the Restoration House (Elizabethan), facing The Vines; and the "Crown" and "Bull" inns. Rochester Castle, near the bridge, built by Gundulph, is a Norm. edifice; but little remains except the magnificent keep, one of the finest castellated ruins in the kingdom, consisting of a massive structure 70 ft. square and 104 ft. high. The interior is divided into two equal parts by an open arcaded wall, indicating that the rooms were of varying height, from 20 to 32 ft., but there is no flooring left. The second storey seems to have contained the state apartments, and exhibits semicircular arches and pillars of excellent workmanship. In the centre of the keep is a curious well, accessible from every floor. The interior of the keep can be viewed, and means have been taken for its preservation. The outer walls of the castle are still to some extent perfect, and the entrances show great ingenuity in the several contrivances adopted for their security. The castle, with its grounds, was purchased in 1883 by the Corporation from the Earl of Jersey, and the grounds subsequently laid out for public recreation and a band-stand erected. From the summit of the keep extensive views of the neighbouring country are obtained; and along the bank of the river Medway here is an esplanade, and a pier has been constructed.

Rochester Castle and Grounds.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London, S.E.)

Rochester Cathedral Precincts. [ROCHESTER.]

Rochester, St. Margaret. [ROCHESTER.]

Rochester, St. Nicholas. [ROCHESTER.]

Rochester Ward, or Rochester, tp. and vil. on the Rede, pa. of Elsdon (q.v.), W. Northumb., 9 N. of Woodburn; ac. 21,819. The school is endowed. The remains can be traced of the Roman station Bremenium, the camp enclosing 6 ac. on the brow of a steep hill; many coins, etc., were found here in 1853.

Rochestown (1), pa., West Iffa and Offa bar., S. co. Tip., Ir., 2½ S. of Caher railway station; ac. 1,063.

Rochestown (2), pa., Clanwilliam bar., N. co. Lim., Ir., 4½ S. of Limerick; ac. 1,164.

Rochestown (3), small vil. on the Lee, pa. of Carrigaline (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 4 S.E. of Cork. St. Joseph's Capuchin monastery is adjacent: and the surrounding scenery is very fine.

Rochford (1), pa. and to. on the Roche (crossed by two bridges), S.E. Essex, 4 N. of Southend; ac. 1,855; soil rich. The town is approached from the west through an avenue of limes and elms over a mile in length. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1862) is Perp.; it contains a brass to Maria Dilcok (d. 1514). There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Almshouses were founded here in 1618 by Robert Rich, Earl of Warwick; and there are other charities producing about £50 yearly. The Corn Exchange was built in 1866, and the court-house (erected 1859) is no longer used for County Court business. In this neighbourhood is held the "Lawless or Whispering Court," established in pursuance of a curious manorial tenure; the court is held on King's Hill at midnight of the first Wednesday after Old Michaelmas Day, and the whole business is transacted in whispers. R. Hall, part of an old mansion which was the birthplace of Anne Boleyn, is now a farmhouse. R. Lawn is a seat.

ROCHFORD HALL.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
R. Cathed'l Precincts	Rochester	30	156
Rochester, St. M.	Rochester	30	12370
Rochester, St. N.	Rochester	30	2778
Rochester Ward	Woodburn (9)	308	342
Rochestown (1)	Caher (2½)	124	225
Rochestown (2)	Limerick (4½)	129	99

Rochford (2), pa. and vil. on the Teme, Mid Worcs., 18 N.W. of Worcester; ac. 1,354; soil clayey, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Michael is Norm. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel.

Rochfortbridge, pl., pa. of Castlelost (q.v.), S. co. Wstm., Ir., 8 S.E. of Mullingar.

Rochill, ha., pa. of and 1½ N.E. from Knowstone (q.v.), N. Dev.

Rochsoles, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N.E. Lanarks., Sc., about 2 N.W. of Airdrie.

Rock (1), pa. and vil., N.W. Worcs., 5 W. of Stourport; ac. 8,425; soil clay and red marl, overlying rock—there is coal, too, in places. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1861) was erected soon after the Norman accession; the south side is Perp.; the north wall and doorway are good examples of E. Norm., and there is an E. Norm. font. In front of the church, by the roadside, stand the ancient stocks and whipping-post, still in perfect preservation. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There are almshouses, and charitable endowments amounting to more than £450 yearly.

Rock (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Embleton (q.v.), E. Northumb., 5 N.E. of Alnwick; ac. 2,019. The chapel of SS. Philip and James is of mixed periods, part being Norm. work; among the monuments are two to the Salkeld family. R. Hall, originally an Elizabethan mansion, was enlarged and restored in 1819.

Rock (3), ha., pa. of Mordiford (q.v.), S.E. Herefords., 4 S.E. of Hereford.

Rockabill, two rocks off north-east coast of co. Dub., Ir., 5 E. by N. of Skerries. The larger rock is crowned by a lighthouse which has a flashing light, visible 18 miles.

Rockbeare, pa. and vil., S.E. Dev., 6½ E. of Exeter; ac. 2,375; soil various, overlying New Red Sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1888) is a Gothic building; the Jacobean front of the old gallery has been used in the screen, and a piscina was discovered during the restoration. The charities are small; the school has an endowment. R. Court, R. House, and The Grange are seats.

Rockbourne, pa. and vil., W. Hants, 9 S.W. of Salisbury; ac. 3,800; soil mixed, overlying chalk. St. Andrew's Church (of which the chancel was rebuilt in 1827) is a Norm. building, containing monuments to Sarah, Lady Coote (d. 1795), and to Henry Longden (1793) and his wife (1792). There is a Baptist chapel, and a village club and reading room. Near the church are the ruins of a monastic house, partly occupied as a farmhouse. West Park is a seat.

Rockbrook, vil., pa. of Cruagh (q.v.), S. co. Dub., Ir., about 3 S.W. of Dundrum.

Rock Channel, the south channel leading into the Mersey, off north-west coast of Wirral peninsula, N.W. Chesh., 4½ N.W. of Birkenhead. The Channel extends 5 W. by S. and E. by N., and has an average

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rochford (1)	Rochford	38½	1612
Rochford (2)	Tenbury (3)	152	283
Rock (1)	Cleobury Mortimer	143	1603
Rock (2)	Little Mill (2) [(4)	311	214
Rockbeare	Broadclyst (1½)	167	451
Rockbourne	Fordingbridge (3)	96	446

breadth of ¼ mile. The water mostly varies in depth from 3 to 7 fathoms. At the east extremity of the Channel is Rock Fort (erected 1826), which is approached from the land by a drawbridge; artillerymen are stationed here. Rock Lighthouse (built 1828–30, in imitation of Eddystone) has a flashing light, visible 15 miles.

Rockcliff (1), or Rockcliffe, pa. and vil. near the Eden, N. Cumb., 5 N.W. of Carlisle; ac. 4,938, including about 2,000 of marsh; soil various, overlying loam. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt in 1848, in Dec. style. R. has a reading-room and library, and a small charity. There is good salmon-fishing in the Eden. Castletown House is a seat.

Rockcliff (2), ha., pa. of Colvend (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 7 S.E. of Dalbeattie.

Rockcorry, vil. with railway station and head of petty sess. div., pa. of Ematris (q.v.), Mid co. Monaghan, Ir., 8 S. of Monaghan. There is a Protestant church, and there are also Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, and Methodist places of worship, and an almshouse for destitute widows.

Rocken End, a name given to the west face of St. Catherine's Point, I. of W., S. Hants.

Rock Ferry, eccl. pa. and dis. on the Mersey and the road from Birkenhead to Chester, pa. of Bebington (q.v.), W. Chesh., about 2 S. of Birkenhead. This place about the middle of the 19th cent. consisted of a few houses, but now it is a favourite suburb of Liverpool. The church of St. Peter is in Norm. style; and the Roman Catholics and several Nonconformist bodies have places of worship.

Rockfield (1), pa. and vil. on the Monnow, N.E. Mon., 2½ N.W. of Monmouth; ac. 1,848; soil clayey, overlying clay. The church of Cenhedloedd was rebuilt 1862 (except the tower), in E. Eng. and Perp. styles. Two ancient crosses, one in the churchyard and one at the entrance of the vil. from Monmouth, have been restored. Pentwyn and R. House are seats.

Rockfield (2), fishing vil., pa. of Tarbat (q.v.), N.E. Ross and Crom., Sc., 2 S.E. of Portmahomack.

Rockhampton, pa. and vil., S.W. Gloucs., 14 N. of Bristol; ac. 1,305; soil marl and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Oswald, of which the nave was rebuilt 1861 and the chancel 1866, is Perp. There are some small charities.

Rockhill, vil., pa. of and 1½ W. from Bruree (q.v.), S. co. Lim., Ir.

Rockingham, pa. and vil. on the Welland, N. Northants, on the Leics. border, 10 E. by N. of Market Harborough; ac. 890; soil clayey, overlying iron and limestone. The church of St. Leonard (partly rebuilt 1868) is Dec. The vil, situated on the declivity of a hill, in the midst of what was once Rockingham Forest, was a market town in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; on the top of the hill a castle was erected by William the Norman for the defence of the extensive ironworks then existing in the adjacent woodlands; the tower and part of the body of the church were destroyed in the Civil War, during the siege of the castle, which was garrisoned for the king. R. Castle is situated in a park of over 400 ac., diversified by hill and dale and well wooded; the present aspect of the castle at its entrance gates still recalls the idea of the military defences of past ages; the archway is flanked by two bastion towers with curtain walls extending on either side; passing through the archway the great court is reached, which comprises that portion of the castle erected in the 13th and 16th cents. and still inhabited.

ROCKINGHAM CASTLE.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

Rock Island, vil. on north side of entrance to Crookhaven, pa. of Kilmoe (q.v.), S.W. co. Cork, Ir., 8½ W.S.W. of Skull. R. Island stands on a rocky tongue of land, opposite the vil. of Crookhaven. Here is a lighthouse with fixed lights, visible 10 and 13 miles.

Rockland All Saints and St. Andrew, pa., S. Norf., about 4½ W. of Attleborough station; ac. 1,623; soil mixed, overlying gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1860) is a small building of flint; the Saxon nave is a fine specimen of herring-bone and ashlar work; the chancel is Early Perp. In the church is a unique cable stetch tombstone, said to be the oldest sepulchral slab in the county. There is a fuel allotment of 26 ac., let at about £20. The workhouse of the Wayland Union is in this pa

Rockland St. Mary, pa. and scattered vil., E. Norf., 6 S.E. of Norwich; ac. 1,360; soil mixed, overlying brick-earth. The ivy-covered ruins of the church of R. St. Margaret's, or Little R., stand a few feet east of the existing church, in the same churchyard. The church of St. Mary, situated on a height, is a small ancient building of flint. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The fuel allotment of 8 ac. produces £16 yearly. Here are brickfields, an iron foundry, and market gardens.

Rockland St. Peter, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 4½ W of Attleborough; ac. 1,010; soil and subsoil various. The church of St. Peter is Late Perp. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The fuel allotment is 15 ac., let at £17 10s. yearly.

Rockley (1), ha., pa. of Askham (q.v.), N. Notts., 4 S. of Retford.

Rockley (2), ha., pa. of Ogbourne St. Andrew (q.v.), E. Wilts., 2 S.W. of Marlborough. There is a chapel-of-ease.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rockcliff (1)	Rockcliffe	303	659
Rockcorry	Rockcorry	85	195
Rock Ferry	Rock Ferry	193	2278
Rockfield (1)	Monmouth (2½)	144	221
Rockhampton	Thornbury (2)	136	149

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rockhill	Bruce (1½)	135	82
Rockingham	Rockingham	94	185
R'land All S. & St. A.	Stow Bedon (2½)	100	394
Rockland St. Mary	Norwich (6)	114	438
Rockland St. Peter	Stow Bedon (2½)	100	273

Rockley (3), ha., pa. of and about 1 s. from Cumnor (q.v.), N. Berks.

Rockmills, vil., pa. of St. Nathlash (q.v.), N.E. co. Cork, Ir., about 2 s.E. of Kildorrery.

Rockmount, pl., pa. of German (q.v.), W. I. of M., 2 E.S.E. of Peel.

Rockness, ha., pa. of Horsley (q.v.), E. Glouc., 3 s.w. of Minchinhampton.

Rocks, ha., pa. of and 2 s. from Marshfield (q.v.), S.W. Glouc.

Rocksavage. [CLIFTON (4).]

Rocks, Great, ha., pa. of Tideswell (q.v.), N. Derbys., 4 E. of Buxton. The valley of Great Rocks Dale is in the neighbourhood.

Rock, The, small vil., pa. of and 5 E. from Pomeroy (q.v.), E. co. Tyr., Ir.

Rockwell Green, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 1 w. from Wellington (q.v.), W. Somerset. The church of All Saints is in Perp. style, and various Nonconformist bodies have places of worship.

Rocky Hills, hill range (845 ft.), pas. of Kilteale and Dysartenos, E. Q. Co., Ir., 2½ w.N.w. of Stradbally.

Rocky Island, islet in Cork Harbour, on south side of Haulbowline Island, pa. of Templerobin, E. co. Cork, Ir., 1 s. by w. of Queenstown; ac. 2. The island consists of a huge mass of limestone, rising more than 40 ft. above the water, and terminating in a conical summit, crowned by a watch-tower. In 1815 the surface (excluding the rocky summit) was levelled, and an underground magazine has been formed, comprising two chambers, in which 20,000 barrels of gunpowder may be stored.

McLEOD'S TOMB AT RODEL.

Rocombe (1), ha., pas. of Combeinteignhead and Stokeinteignhead (q.v.), S. Dev., 4½ N. of Torquay.

Rocombe (2), ha., pa. of Uplyme (q.v.), S. Dev., about 1½ E. of Lyme Regis. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Rocquaine Bay, inlet of the sea, south-west coast of Guernsey, Channel Islands, 5 w. by s. of St. Peter Port. The bay is nearly 1½ mile wide at its mouth; it is studded with a vast number of rocks, which from the cliffs present a very picturesque appearance.

Rodanstown, pa. on the Rye, Upper Deece bar., S. co. Meath, Ir.; ac. 1,621. It contains the town of Kilcock (q.v.).

Rodborne (or Rodbourne) Cheney, pa., a N. Wilts., 1 N. of Swindon; ac. 2,349; soil brash, overlying clay and stone. The ch St. Mary on an eminence, was rebuilt (w exception of the chancel, the Lady Cha south wall, and the porch) in 1848, in Dec the east window is a very beautiful speci E. Eng.; there is a double piscina on th side, and in the Lady Chapel there is piscina.

Rodborough, pa. and vil., Mid Glouc., Gloucester; ac. 1,272; soil sand and ston lying oolite roc church of St. Ma dalen (anciently Trinity) was (w exception of the rebuilt in 1842, and Perp. style Congregationalis Primitive Met have chapels. T a small charity. len cloth manu and dyeing are on. Bownham Fort St. George R. Hall are seat

Rodbourne, v of Malmesbury S (q.v.), N.W. Wi s. of Malmesbury church of the Ho is in E. Eng. R. House is a [CORSTON-WITH BOURNE.]

Roddam, tp., Ilderton (q.v Northumb., 5 Wooler; ac. Three Stone Bu the remains of a ical temple, co of 14 stones for complete circle by stands a mass rock, known as "The Grey Mare." R. H seat, is modern.

Rodden (1), pa., E. Somerset, 1½ E. of Froo 939; soil loam and stonebrash, overlyin The church (dedication unknown) was bui Easthill is a seat.

Rodden (2), ha., pa. of Abbotsbury (q.v. Dors., 7½ s.w. of Dorchester.

Rodd, Nash, and Little Brampton, tp., Presteigne (q.v.), N.W. Herefords., 7 N. of Ki ac. 2,025.

Rode Heath, pl., pa. of Astbury (q.v.), E. about 3 s.s.w. of Congleton.

Rodel, ha., pa. of Harris (q.v.), Outer H Invs., Sc., at the south end of the island of The church was burnt down and had long

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Rockmills	Ballyhooley (6½)	108
Rockwell Green	Wellington (1)	1483
Rodanstown	Kilcock	197
Rodborne Cheney	Swindon (1)	1004

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.
Rodborough	Stroud (1)	102
Roddam	Wooler (5)	331
Rodden (1)	Frome (1½)	107
Rodd, Nash, & L. B.	Presteigne (2)	173

ruins, but some years ago it was roofed in and made fit for divine service. This, however, was done without any attempt being made to restore it in harmony with the original design, and, from an architectural point of view, is a matter less for congratulation than regret. The tower is principally remarkable for the figures carved on it. Two are human forms, supposed to be very ancient, possibly emblems of some forgotten pagan worship. Besides these, are a bishop or abbot, a sheep, a bull's head, and a dog's head. In the church are several tombs of the McLeods, the ancient lords of the soil. The most remarkable is that of Alister Crotach, dated 1528. It is very richly adorned with carving; above are figures supposed to represent the twelve apostles; on the main portion of the tomb, amongst armorial bearings and other emblems, is a curious bas-relief. This represents Satan weighing the sins and good deeds of the deceased in a balance, the latter, of course, outweighing the former.

Rode, North, eccl. pa., tp., and vil. on the Dane, pa. of Prestbury (q.v.), E. Chesh., 5 S. of Macclesfield; ac. 1,516. The church of St. Michael was built 1845, in E. Eng. style. There is an endowed school, built in 1835. The Manor House is a seat.

Roden, river, N. Salop, rises near the north boundary of the co., and flows in a south direction for about 20 miles past Wem, Moreton Corbet, Shawbury, and High Ercall, to the Severn, which it joins near Wroxeter, about 5 S.E. of Shrewsbury. It unites with the Tern shortly before its junction with the Severn.

Rodhuish, ha., pa. of Carhampton (q.v.), W. Somerset, 3 S.E. of Dunster.

Roding (1), another form of Roothing (q.v.).

Roding (2), river, W. Essex, rises a short distance west of Dunmow, and flows in a S. and S.W. direction for almost the entire length of the co. (rather more than 30 miles) to the Thames, which it joins below Woolwich. Shortly after its source it enters the district of "the Rodings"—there being no less than 8 parishes all deriving their name, which has some distinguishing epithet, from this stream. Later on the R. passes Chipping Ongar, and touches Epping Forest near Theydon Bois and Loughton. It then takes a slightly easterly course, and passing Wanstead, Ilford, and Barking (where it is known as Barking Creek), falls into the Thames about 1 S. of the Victoria Docks.

Rodington, pa. and vil. on the Roden, Mid Salop, 7 N.E. of Shrewsbury; ac. 1,628; soil sandy and strong loam, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. George was rebuilt 1851, in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £15 yearly.

Rodley (1), vil. on the Aire and Leeds and Liverpool Canal, pa. of and 5 W.N.W. from Leeds (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. There is a mission church, and Wesleyan, Baptist, and United Free Methodist chapels. The woollen trade is the chief industry, and there are ironworks.

Rodley (2), ha., pa. of Westbury-on-Severn (q.v.), W. Gloucs., 3 E. of Newnham.

Rodmarton, pa. and vil., S. Gloucs., 6 S.W. of Cirencester; ac. 3,879; soil loam, subsoil various. The church of St. Peter (restored 1884) is E. Eng.; the south chapel belongs to the Cox family; in the chancel is a brass to John Edward (d. 1461). There is a small charity. A Roman tessellated pavement was found here in 1636, and some coins of Antoninus and Valentinian.

Rodmell, pa. and vil. near the Ouse, S. Sussex, 3½ N.W. of Newhaven; ac. 1,924; soil clay-marl, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter (restored 1858) is chiefly E. Eng., with Perp. additions and insertions. Ermine Street runs through the vil.

Rodmersham, pa. and vil., N. Kent, 2½ S.E. of Sittingbourne; ac. 1,234; soil in some places a rich loam and in others chalky, with chalky subsoil. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1877) is principally Perp., with some Dec. windows and portions of E. Eng. work; the chancel retains its stalls and desks, and a fine oak parclose screen divides it from the south chapel; in continuation of this are three sedilia of oak, with elegantly-carved canopies and a cornice; the south chapel (in which is a side altar) is enclosed by an oak screen and has two stone sedilia of E. Eng. character. On each side of the east window is the pedestal of a niche; in the north aisle are seen the stone steps which led to the rood-loft. On the Green is a Bible Christian chapel.

Rodmill. [RODMELL.]

Rodney Stoke, pa. and vil., Mid Somerset, 5 N.W. of Wells; ac. 2,641; soil light, with some turf, overlying clay. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1879) is Perp. The north chapel is the burial-place of the Rodney family, who took their title from this pa. Included in the monuments are altar-tombs to Sir Thomas Rodney (d. 1478), to Lady Anna Rodney (d. 1630), and to a son of Sir Ed. Rodney (d. 1657) and Frances, his wife (d. 1659). There is a fine carved screen, presented in 1624 by Sir Ed. Rodney, and two stoups, a fine old carved pulpit, and a covered Norm. font. The charities are small.

Rodsley, tp., pa. of Longford (q.v.), S.W. Derbys., 4½ S.E. of Ashbourne; ac. 820. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Roe, river, Keenaght bar., N. co. Londy., Ir., rises 5 S.E. of Dungiven, and runs north from Dungiven past Limavady to Lough Foyle, which it enters after a course of 25 miles.

Roeburndale, tp. and small vil., pa. of Melling (q.v.), N. Lancs., 7 E.N.E. of Lancaster; ac. 8,841. The tp. is chiefly moor and fell.

Roecliffe, eccl. pa., tp., and small vil., on the Ure, pa. of Aldborough (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Ripon; ac. 1,861. The church of St. Mary was built 1844, in Norm. style. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Tiles and bricks are made here.

Roe Green (1), ha., pa. of Sandon (q.v.), N. Herts., 5 S.W. of Royston. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

Roe Green (2), or Row Green, ha., pa. of Hatfield (q.v.), S. Herts., 1½ S.W. of Hatfield.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rode, North	North Rode	161	247
Rodington	Walcot (2½)	156	539
Rodmarton	Tetbury Road (3)	92	412
Rodmell	Lewes (3)	50	229
Rodmersham	Sittingbourne (2½)	45	407
Rodney Stoke	Lodge Hill (1)	130	676
Rodsley	Ashbourne (4)	152	133
Roeburndale	Hornby (3)	252	106
Roecliffe	Boroughbridge (1½)	210	212

Roehampton, eccl. pa., pa. of Putney (q.v.), near Richmond Park, N.E. Surrey, about 7 S.W. of Hyde Park Corner. The church of Holy Trinity is a cruciform building in Dec. style. St. Joseph's Catholic Church is served by the Fathers from Manresa House, a Jesuit College in R. Lane. There is also another Catholic church, and a convent. The Workmen's Club has a billiard-room and library. At the Hambro' Orphanage (1880) girls are trained for domestic service. Here are several good mansions commanding fine views. R. House is a substantial building of red brick (1712); the ceiling of the drawing-room was painted by Thornhill.

Roeillaun (1), island, pa. of Ballynakill (q.v.), lying off the north-west coast of Galway, Ir.

Roe Island, or Roeillaun (2), island in Clew Bay, pa. of Burrishoole, W. co. Mayo, Ir., 7 W. of Newport; ac. 15. The surface rises towards the south, forming a steep and conspicuous cliff. The island has a good harbour, but the neighbouring rocks are dangerous.

Roel, or Rowell, pa. and vil., Mid Glouc., 11 E. of Cheltenham; ac. 1,640; soil stone-brash, overlying stone. The farmhouse, once a mansion of much greater pretensions, had a chapel attached to it, of which portions still remain.

Roestock, ha., pa. of and 1½ N. from North Mimms (q.v.), Mid Herts.

Roffey. [ROUGHEY.]

Rofford, liberty, pa. of and ½ S. from Chalgrove (q.v.), S. Oxon.

Rofts, The, British camp, pa. of Gresford (q.v.), E. Denbighs., 5 N.N.E. of Wrexham. The camp crowns an eminence commanding wide views over the counties of Cheshire, Lancashire, Derbyshire, Salop, etc.; it is pierced by a railway tunnel of considerable length. Three deep trenches remain on the south side of the camp, but those towards the east have almost wholly disappeared; on the other sides the escarpment of the hill formed a sufficient defence.

Rogart, pa. and vil. lying north-west of Golspie, S.E. Suths., Sc., and intersected from north-west to east by a double range of hills, through the strath of which runs the Brora; ac. 66,267. The vil. is about 7 W. of Golspie, and has a railway station. Most of the inhabitants are agricultural labourers, a few being employed in the woollen factory.

Rogate, pa. and vil. on the West Rother, W. Sussex, 5½ W. of Midhurst; ac. 4,959; soil sandy loam, overlying sandstone. The church of St. Bartholomew (restored and enlarged 1874) is E. Eng. In the chancel are marble tablets to Thomas Bettesworth de Fyning (1723); to Sir Charles Paget, vice-admiral (d. 1839), and to several of his family. There is a club-room, built in 1887. The charities are small. Clayton Court, Combe Lodge, Fair Oak, Fyning House, Habin Hall, and R. Lodge are seats.

Rogerstone, tp., pa. of Bassaleg (q.v.), S. Mon., 3 W. of Newport; ac. 2,299. The church of St. John (chapel-of-ease) was erected 1888, in E. Eng. style. The Roman Catholic chapel of SS. Basil and Gwladys is in Gothic style. There are remains at R. of an ancient castle.

Rogerstown Bay, N.E. co. Dub., Ir., about 2 S. of Lusk. Here is a small harbour.

Roggiett, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S.E. Mon., 7½ S.W. of Chepstow; ac. of land 550, of water 2,355; soil and subsoil various. The church is partly Dec., partly E. Eng.; it has a Roman font, and there are remains of the rood-loft. A fair for cattle, sheep, and pigs is held on the first and third Tuesday in each month.

Roke, ha., pa. of Benson (q.v.), S.E. Oxon, 2 S.E. of Wallingford.

Rokeby, pa. and vil. on the Tees, N.R. Yorks., 12 N.N.W. of Richmond; ac. 1,160; soil loam and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary is in Classic style. R. is the scene of Sir Walter Scott's poem of the same name, which was written here, and describes the beautiful scenery. Mottram Tower, which is immediately beyond the bridge, adjoins the embattled keep of that name; these, together with the near prospect of Eggleston Abbey, constitute Rokeby one of the most enchanting residences in the North of England. The road to the church, which stands on a slight eminence at some distance from the hall, is very fine, and affords extensive views of the surrounding country. R. Park is a mansion in Classic style in a park of nearly 200 acres.

Roke Marsh, ha., pa. of and about ¾ N. from Benson (q.v.), S.E. Oxon.

Roker, small watering-place, pa. of Monkwearmouth (q.v.), N.E. co. Dur., about 1 N.E. of Sunderland Bridge. It is situated on an eminence, and commands an extensive and agreeable view of the North Sea. The land shelves gently to a sandy beach well adapted for bathing. R. Park is laid out as a recreation ground, and there is a terrace promenade and a pier.

Rollesby, pa., E. Norf., 8 N.N.W. of Yarmouth; ac. 1,587, of which 143 are wood and water. The church of St. George (restored 1885), on rising ground, is E. Eng. During the restoration a niche in the porch, with some delicate tracery, two stoups, and a squint were discovered. The fuel allotment of 23 ac. is let for £18 yearly. Here is Rollesby Broad, a picturesque sheet of water comprising 200 ac., situated between Filby and Ormesby Broads.

Rolleston (1), pa., tp., and vil. on the Dove, E. Staffs., 10 S.W. of Derby; ac. of pa. 3,750, of tp. 2,191; soil loam, marl, and gravel, subsoil various. The church of St. Mary (restored 1884) is chiefly Dec.; in the south aisle is a monument to Sir Ed. Mosley (d. 1638) and a curious monument to Thomas Caldwell (d. 1554) and his wife Alice (d. 1579). There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The charities are small, but the almshouses have a yearly income of £133. The free grammar school was founded about 1520 by Robert Sherbourn, and rebuilt in 1640 by Sir Edward Mosley. R. Hall

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roehampton	Barnes (1)	7	2053
Roel	Bourton (7)	91	26
Rogart	Rogart	667	1268
Rogate	Rogate&Harting (1½	59	953
Rogerstone	Bassaleg (1)	154	2389

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roggiett	Magor (2)	144	100
Rokeby	Barnard Castle (4)	249	163
Rollesby	Martham (1)	138	570
Rolleston (1), pa.	Tutbury (1)	133	1200
Rolleston (1), tp.	Tutbury (1)	133	798

(a modern building), East Lodge, and Craythorne are seats.

Rolleston (2), pa., tp., and vil. on the Trent, E. Notts., 5 W. by S. of Newark; ac. of pa. 2,705, of tp. 1,662; soil light, overlying gravel. The E. Eng. church of the Holy Trinity contains a 16th-cent. font and a piscina.

Rolleston (3), tp., pa. of Billesdon (q.v.), S. Leics., 11 S.E. of Leicester; ac. 920. The E. Eng. church of St. John is situated in the thickly-wooded grounds of R. Hall, which is a seat.

Rollestone, pa., S. Wilts., 10 N.W. of Salisbury; ac. 829; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of St. Andrew (repaired 1845) is an E. Eng. structure. There is a small charity.

Rollright, Great, pa. and vil., N.W. Oxon, 3 N. of Chipping Norton; ac. 2,532; soil oolite. The church of St. Andrew is of mixed periods, with Norm., Perp., and Dec. work, and contains a brass to James Battersby, a former rector, who died in 1522, with effigy holding chalice and host. There are two Baptist chapels. About £144 (of which £40 is applied to the national school) is distributed yearly to the poor.

Rollright, Little, pa. and vil., N.W. Oxon, 3 N.W. by N. of Chipping Norton; ac. 625; soil stonebrash. The church of St. Philip is Perp. It contains two canopied altar-tombs—one with a recumbent effigy of a knight in plate armour, with emblazoned shields of arms of the Dixon family; the other has kneeling effigies of a knight in armour, dated 1647. Here are the famous Rollrich stones, locally known as "the King's Stones," and forming part of some prehistoric remains of a date anterior, it is supposed, to Stonehenge. They are disposed in a circle. Close by stands a stone by itself, called "The King." It is 8½ ft. high and 5 ft. 3 in. broad. Originally there appear to have been 72 stones. About 390 yds. eastward are 5 stones, called "the Whispering Knights," which taper towards the top and once leaned together; they are the remains probably of an altar or cromlech. The Commissioners of Ancient Monuments placed a fence round the circle and "Whispering Knights" in 1891. Remains of a Danish mansion are in the locality.

Rolls Liberty. [LIBERTY OF THE ROLLS.]

Rolly Island, islet near west shore of Strangford Lough, pa. of Tullynakill (q.v.), N.E. co. Down, Ir., 4½ S.E. of Comber; ac. 21.

Rolvenden, pa. (occupying a knoll or knot of several ridges, having marshes on the east and south) and vil., S. Kent, 15 S.W. of Ashford; ac. 5,753; soil clay and loam. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is E. Eng. and later; the south chancel, as appears from the inscription on the only remaining brass, was built in 1444. The font is Late Dec., and there is a piscina in the south aisle. The charities amount to £160 a year. Halden Place, now a farmhouse, was formerly a seat. Hole Park, Kingsgate House, Maytham Hall (destroyed by fire 1893, and partially rebuilt), Rawlinson, and Sparkeswood are seats.

Romach, Loch, on the borders of pas. of Rafford and Edinkillie (q.v.), W. Elgs., Sc., 3 S.E. of Rafford.

Romaldkirk, pa., tp., and vil. on the Tees, N.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Barnard Castle; ac. of pa. 54,790, of tp. 1,371; soil loamy, subsoil slaty. There is supposed to have been a church here, dedicated to Rumwald, son of Alchfrid, King of Deira, before the Conquest; the present church, chiefly E. Eng. and Dec., was rebuilt about 1300 by Sir Henry Fitzhugh, of whom there is a full-length figure in the north transept (d. 1304); in the chancel is a brass to John Lewelyne, rector (c. 1470). The school has a small endowment. William Hutchinson founded here a hospital for six poor people, which was rebuilt in 1829. A public library was established in 1855. Flagstones are quarried here.

Romanby, tp. and vil., pa. of and ½ S.W. from Northallerton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 2,469. The church of St. James was built in 1882, in Gothic style.

Romanno Bridge, ha. on Lyne Water, pa. of Newlands (q.v.), N. Peebs., Sc., 3½ S.E. of West Linton. R. House is a seat.

Romansleigh, pa. and vil. on two tributaries of the Mole, N. Dev., 6 N.N.E. of Chulmleigh; ac. 2,495; soil clay, overlying sand and clay-slate. The church of St. Rumon (rebuilt 1868) is Perp.; the tower was built in 1887; there are remains of an old stone cross in the churchyard, and St. Rumon's Well is on the north side. A Roman road bounds the pa. on the north-east.

Roman Wall. [ADRIAN'S WALL.]

Rombalds Moor. [RUMBLES MOOR.]

Rome, ha., pa. of Giggleswick (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 2 S.W. of Settle.

Romfields, ha., pa. of St. Peters (q.v.), E. Kent, about 1 S.E. of Margate.

Romford, pa., U. and mkt. to., and head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., S. Essex, 6 S.W. of Brentford; ac. 7,191 and 33 water. The town originally consisted of two streets, crossing each other at right angles. The principal street, in which the cattle market is held, is a wide thoroughfare of considerable length, running from west to east. The church of St. Edward the Confessor (erected in 1850, on the site of the old pa. church) is in Dec. style. In the north aisle is a stately monument (with alabaster effigies of himself and his lady, in kneeling attitudes) to Sir Anthony Cooke, preceptor to King Edward VI. (d. 1576); the Latin inscription is supposed to have been furnished by his daughters, who were among the learned women of that age. Against the south wall of the chancel formerly stood the fine monument (now in the porch) of Sir Nicholas Hervey of Marks; he had previously been Sheriff of Essex (1595–96), and was at the time of his death (1605) Lieutenant of the Tower of London, where he died, but was buried here on the south side of the chancel with heraldic honours. Also in the porch is the

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rolleston (2), pa.	Rolleston	137	599
Rolleston (2), tp.	Rolleston	137	208
Rolleston (3)	East Norton (2)	93	57
Rollestone	Wylye (5½)	115	28
Rollright, Great	Chipping Norton (3)	89	349
Rollright, Little	Chipping Norton (3)	89	27
Rolvenden	Headcorn (10)	44	1194
Romaldkirk, pa.	Romaldkirk	254	3070
Romaldkirk, tp.	Romaldkirk	254	287
Romanby	Northallerton (½)	218	421
Romansleigh	S. Molton Road (6)	197	165
Romford, pa.	Romford	12	10722
Romford, to.	Romford	12	8733

stately tomb (with her recumbent effigy) of Anne Carew (d. 1605), raised by her famous son George, first and only Baron Carew and eventually Earl of Totnes. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. Andrew is in Perp. style. The Roman Catholics have a chapel dedicated to St. Edward the Confessor, and there are places of worship for various Dissenting bodies. The Corn Exchange, in the High Street, is private property, but is let for public meetings and concerts, as are also the Lecture Hall of the Congregational schools and the Public Hall in South Street. R. has a Volunteer drill-hall and a cottage hospital. A market for cattle and corn, one of the largest around London, is held every Wednesday. Here is the extensive brewing establishment of Messrs. Ind, Coope and Co. Market-gardening, grazing, and agriculture form the chief occupations of the people. There are six almshouses for men and two for widows; one almsman, who keeps the accounts and preserves order, is called "the ruler" and receives £35 yearly, the other men £26, the widows £20—all being supplied with clothes, coals, and medical aid. There are several other important charities. Francis Quarles, the celebrated author of "The Book of Emblems," was born in May, 1592, in the old manor-house, called Stewards. Gidea Hall (where there are golf-links), Marshalls, and Priests are seats.

Romford Common, scattered ha., pa. of and about 2 N.E. from Romford (q.v.), S. Essex.

Romford Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Essex. It lies in the south of the county, and returns one member

Romiley, tp. and vil., pa. of and 4 E. from Stockport (q.v.), N.E. Chesh.; ac. 1,189. [CHADKIRK.]

Romney Marsh, an ancient liberty, S. Kent, governed by a separate Corporation, whose jurisdiction extends over the to. and pa. of Dymchurch, and who have the care and control of the sea-wall. It consists of an extensive tract of rich land, enclosed from the sea by a strong earthen wall thrown up between the towns of Romney and Hythe. In form it is an irregular oblong quadrangle of about 12 miles long and 8 miles broad, containing about 46,000 ac. and including 20 pas., with the corporate towns of Romney and Lydd. The embankment of the marsh is of very ancient date. Few oxen are fed in this tract compared with those kept on other rich marsh-lands; but the number of sheep bred and fattened is thought to exceed that of any other district of the same extent in the kingdom.

Romney, New, Cinque Port, pa., mun. bor., and head of Co. Co. dis., S. Kent, 14 S.E. of Ashford; ac. 4,278 and 359. The land is mostly in pasture, being within the rich grazing district of R. Marsh. R. was formerly a seaport, but the sea has gradually receded from it and is now about a mile distant. It appears at one time to have been a place of considerable importance and extent, since it contained, at the period of the Domesday Survey, five pa. churches. It continued to send two members to Parliament as one of the Cinque Ports from 1366 until 1832, when it was disfranchised. R. was incorporated in the reign of Edward III., and another charter was granted by Elizabeth in 1562–63. The most important records of the Cinque Ports, including the original charter of Charles II., are preserved at the Guildhall. The church of St. Nicholas (restored 1884) is an ancient and spacious edifice of stone, with a massive western tower, surmounted by the base of an octagonal spire, long since destroyed; the tower exhibits a curious mixture of Norm. and E. Eng. work. The chancel is enclosed by stone screens, and contains brasses (with effigies) to Thomas Lamberd (d. 1510) and Thomas Smith, jurat (d. 1610), and Mary his wife, with two daughters; there is also a recessed arch for a tomb. In 1875 a stained window was inserted in memory of the crew and passengers of the Northfleet, run down off Dungeness, Jan. 22, 1873. The Wesleyan Methodists and Baptists have chapels. The Guildhall is used for municipal purposes and the sittings of the County Court, and there are assembly-rooms. A large stock fair is held on Aug. 21, principally for sheep and lambs. Southland's Hospital was founded in 1610, for the maintenance of a governor and four poor folk, by John Southland, Esq., of New R., who left lands for its support, together with a house for the governor and four almshouses, an annual benefaction of £5 to the poor folk and £5 to repair the church, and he also provided for the education of two poor boys. There is also an income of about £51 yearly from land for the inmates of the almshouses.

Romney, Old, pa., S. Kent, 3 W. of New Romney station; ac. 2,491; soil light loam, overlying sand. Old R. was formerly partly within the Cinque Port liberty of New R., but is now included in the county. The church of St. Clement is a small and ancient structure of various periods; the west window is Dec., the font is E. Eng., and there is a brass to John Ips and Margaret, his wife (c. 1520).

Romsey (pronounced "Rumzy"), pa., mun. bor., and mkt. to. (TH.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., W. Hants, 7 N.W. of Southampton; ac. 10,216. A stream of water runs through the town, dividing R. Infra from R. Extra. This stream branches from the Test, and is said to have been made by the Parliamentary forces for watering their cavalry. The abbey was founded early in the 10th cent. by Edward the Elder for Benedictine nuns. The abbey church of SS. Mary and Elfleda (restored 1892) is a cruciform building of stone, of the Norm., E. Eng., and later periods, but mainly of pure and grand Norm. work; the transepts and choir, with the exception of the upper eastern windows, are undoubted Norm. It consists of a nave of eight bays (with aisles, transepts, and eastern apsidal chapels), a choir of three bays (with aisles terminating in eastern apses), an ambulatory (once opening into an eastern Lady Chapel), and a central tower. The choir has a triforium and clerestory, and on the south side is a Norm. piscina. The ancient altar-slab has been replaced after having for many years formed part of the pavement. The choir screen incorporates a portion of the old screen formerly separating the north transept (then used as a

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Romford Division	.....	.....	103546
Romiley	Romiley	178	1920
Romney, New, pa.	New Romney	74	1402
Romney, New, bor.	New Romney	74	1366

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Romney, Old	Brookland (2½)	66	154
Romsey, pa.	Romsey	79	5669
Romsey, bor.	Romsey	79	4276

pa. church) from the ritual choir of the nuns. In the ambulatory are two fine sepulchral slabs—one, of the 12th cent., bears a cross fleury in relief and a hand holding a pastoral staff; the other an inscription to Joan, abbess (c. 1349). In the north choir aisle is a mutilated Perp. altar-tomb to a former abbess; the flooring of this apse retains some good tiles of the 13th and 14th cents. The south choir aisle has a small plain Norm. piscina, and against the wall of the apse is a small sculptured Crucifixion. The eastern apsidal chapel of the north transept is lined with arcading; here is preserved an ancient altar frontal of 15th-cent. work; a still finer example formerly in the church is now missing. On the exterior west wall of the south transept is a large crucifix, perhaps of 12th-cent. work, with the figure of Our Lord nearly life-size. The four eastern arches of the nave are Norm., and the three western bays E. Eng. throughout. On the south side a finely-moulded arch with dog-tooth ornament opened from the cloister door to the south aisle, at the eastern end of which is the abbess's doorway, and here portions of the original tiled flooring are preserved. There are several memorial windows. The Wesleyans, Congregationalists, Baptists, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The town hall, a lofty structure, is situated in the Market Place, and contains a reading-room with library. The old town hall is now used for lectures, concerts, etc. The Corn Exchange (1864) is also used as an auction-room and for occasional public meetings. In the principal market-place is a fine bronze statue of Viscount Palmerston, erected in 1867 by public subscription. Three fairs are held—Easter Tuesday, Aug. 26, and Nov. 8, for horses and cattle. There are tan-yards, breweries, corn-mills, ironworks, jam-makers' works, and a paper-mill. The Berthon Boat-building Company have extensive works, and employ a large number of hands. There are two sets of almshouses, and a sum of £125 from other charities is distributed yearly. Broadlands (formerly the seat of Lord Palmerston) is a noble structure, with lofty porticoes over the principal entrances; it stands in the midst of a park of 400 ac., embellished with cedars and elms of unusual size and beauty; the pleasure-grounds extend to the river Test, which flows through the estate. The old mansion, which belonged to the St. Barbe family and was visited by James I., is no longer visible from the outside, having been enclosed by additions commenced in 1770. The park is close to the town, and is, by permission of the owner, used for festival gatherings of the various schools, friendly societies, and other institutions of the town and neighbourhood.

ROMSEY ABBEY.
(Photo. A. Seeley, Richmond.)

Romsey Extra, tp., pa. of Romsey (q.v.), W. Hants, about 7 N.W. of Southampton; ac. 9,683.

Romsey Infra, tp., pa. of Romsey (q.v.), W. Hants, about 7 N.W. of Southampton; ac. 533.

Romsley (1), eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of and 3 S. from Halesowen (q.v.), N. Worcs.; ac. 1,806. The church of St. Kenelm is E. Eng.; the exterior exhibits some fine gargoyles. There are two Primitive Methodist chapels. On the north-east slope of the Clent Hills, close to the church of St. Kenelm, was a palace of the Kings of Mercia; the saint, a son of Kenulf, King of Mercia (A.D. 794), was murdered when a boy in Uffmoor Wood by command of his two sisters, and his body was thrown into the well over which the present church is said to stand.

Romsley (2), tp., pa. of and 1½ E. from Alveley (q.v.), S.E. Salop; ac. 1,375.

Rona (1), island, pa. of Portree (q.v.), Skye, Inner Hebrides, W. Invs., Sc. It lies off the northern extremity of Raasay (q.v.), from which it is separated by a strait passable for small vessels, and is about 4 miles in length by 1 mile in breadth. The little arable ground which occurs surrounds the scattered vil., which lies at the bottom of the bay, and contains nearly all the population of the island. There is a very fine lighthouse here. Around the coast are extensive caves, some of which afford good examples of stalactites.

Rona (2), island, pa. of Barvas (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, Ross and Crom., Sc., about 40 N.W. of Cape Wrath. Here are some remains of an oratory.

Ronaldshay, North, island and q.s. pa., pa. of Cross and Burness (q.v.), N.E. Ork., Sc., 32 N.W. of Kirkwall. The island is the most northerly of the Orkneys, being separated from Sanday by a dangerous firth 2½ miles wide. It is 3½ miles long from north-east to south-west, and has an extreme width of 2 miles. On the south and east the coast is low and sandy, but towards the west and north-west it rises somewhat and becomes very rugged. The surface of the interior is flat, with the exception of a slight elevation near its central point. The soil is sandy and dry, and for the most part fertile. The Established church is a plain modern structure. There is also a Free church. The remains of the ancient castle of Burrian form the principal antiquity. On the north coast is a lighthouse with a flashing light, which is visible 18 miles.

Ronaldshay, South, island and pa., S.E. Ork., Sc., 10 S. of Kirkwall; ac. of pa. 15,062. The pa. includes the islands of Burray, Hunda, Swona, and the Pentland Skerries. The island extends 8 N. by E. and S. by W., and has an average breadth of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Romsey Extra	Romsey	79	3664
Romsey Infra	Romsey	79	2005
Romsley (1), eccl. pa.	Hunnington (1½)	140	441
Romsley (1), tp.	Hunnington (1½)	140	374
Romsley (2)	Highley (½)	143	92

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rona (1)	Strome Ferry (40)	661	181
Ronaldshay, N., isld.	Thurso (60)	744	501
R'hay, N., q.s. pa.	Thurso (60)	744	501
Ronaldshay, S., isld.	Thurso (22)	744	2315
Ronaldshay, S., pa.	Thurso (22)	744	2455

about 3 miles. The surface is mostly low and flat, reaching a maximum height of 389 ft. near the centre of the island. The coast-line is very irregular. South R. is the most fertile of the southern Orkneys, with a very varied soil—clay, black loam, sand, and moss occurring in many places in close proximity. Sandstone and blue slate are quarried. The churches of St. Peter and St. Mary are ancient buildings; there are also Free and United Presbyterian churches and a Baptist chapel. The inhabitants are occupied in agriculture and in the cod and herring fisheries. There are several remains of brochs or Picts' Houses, the most considerable being at Hoxa Head; the standing-stones near the manse perhaps date from the same period.

Ronanish, island in the mouth of Gweebarra Bay, pa. of Inishkeel, off west coast of co. Don., Ir., 9 S.W. of Dunglow; ac. 21. The nearest part of the mainland, towards the south-east, is about 2 miles distant.

Ronan's Island, or Ronayne's Island, islet in the Upper Lake of Killarney, S. co. Kerry, Ir., 7 N. of Kenmare.

Ronas Hill (1,475 ft.), pa. of Northmavine (q.v.), Shetland Isles, Sc., about 8 N. of Sandwick. It is the highest hill in the islands, and commands a splendid view.

Ronay, island, pa. of North Uist (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, Invs., Sc., 1 S. of the south-east extremity of the island of North Uist. It is 2¼ miles long by nearly 2 miles wide, and considered to be one of the best grazing grounds in the pa. It rises to a height of 600 ft.

Ronayne's Island. [RONAN'S ISLAND.]

Roneval, mountain (1,506 ft.), pa. of Harris (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, Invs., Sc., at the extreme south of the island of Harris.

Ronton. [RANTON.]

Rooden Lane, ha., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about 4 N.W. of Manchester.

Roodhill. [ROAD HILL.]

Roogagh, stream, Magheraboy bar., N.W. co. Fermanagh, Ir., rises 4 N.E. of Kiltyclogher, and winds 9 W.N.W., entering Lough Melvin at Garrison.

Rookhope, eccl. pa. and vil. in a beautiful valley, pa. of and 5 N.W. from Stanhope (q.v.), W. Dur.; ac. 8,860. The church of the Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A fair is held here on the Friday before August 24. There are several lead-mines in the district, and a limestone quarry.

Rookley, vil., pa. of Godshill and Arreton (q.v.), I. of W., S. Hants, 3 S. of Newport. The Bible Christians have a chapel.

Rooksbridge, ha., pa. of East Brent (q.v.), Mid Somerset, 4 S.W. of Axbridge.

Rook's Hill, eminence (about 700 ft.), W. Sussex, about 4 N.N.E. of Chichester. It has an ancient camp with an area of about 5 ac.

Rookwith, tp., pa. of Thornton Watlass (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 7½ S.E. of Leyburn; ac. 934.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rookhope	Stanhope	260	560
Rookwith	Jervaulx (3)	229	39
Roos, pa.	Winestead (4)	212	530
Roos, tp.	Winestead (4)	212	492
Roosdown	Axminster (6)	145	58
Roosky	Dromod (2½)	89	155
Roothing Aythorpe	Dunmow (5½)	40	193

Roos, pa., tp., and vil., E.R. Yorks., 8 E. of Hedon; ac. of pa. 3,526, of tp. 2,190; soil and subsoil clay. All Saints' Church (partially rebuilt 1842) is chiefly Perp., with some E. Eng. and Dec. work; over the vestry is a priest's chamber, with a window into the chancel; there are sedilia and a piscina. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The charities are small. R. Hall was formerly the rectory.

Roosdown, or Rousdon, coast pa. and small vil., S.E. Dev., 6 S. of Axminster; ac. 254; soil flint and marl, overlying chalk. The church of St. Pancras (rebuilt 1872) is in Dec. style. The R. Observatory, built in 1884, contains a transit instrument, a fine telescope in the equatorial room, and other instruments; a meteorological department was organised in 1883; the observations are published in yearly volumes. R., a seat, is a modern house in Queen Anne style, and contains a museum with an interesting collection of curiosities.

Roose, pl. with railway station, pa. of Dalton-in-Furness (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 1½ E. of Barrow-in-Furness.

Roosky, vil. on the Shannon, pa. of Mohill (q.v.), S. co. Leit., Ir., 8½ N.N.W. of Longford.

Roothing Abbots. [ABBOTS ROOTHING.]

Roothing Aythorpe, pa. and vil., W. Essex, 5½ S.W. of Dunmow; ac. 1,394; soil heavy, subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary is an E. Eng. building.

Roothing Barwick, ha., pa. of Abbots Roothing (q.v.), W. Essex, 5½ N. of Ongar.

Roothing Beauchamp, pa. and vil., W. Essex, 10 S.W. of Dunmow; ac. 1,259; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of St. Botolph (restored 1870) is E. Eng.

Roothing Berners, pa., W. Essex, 10 S.W. of Dunmow; ac. 1,071; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is a Perp. building.

Roothing High, pa. and vil., W. Essex, 4 S.W. of Dunmow; ac. 1,811; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1855) contains brasses to Thomas Fytche (d. 1514), his wife and children, and to the Jocelyn family, Earls of Roden.

Roothing Leaden. [LEADEN RODING.]

Roothing Margaret. [MARGARET RODING.]

Roothing Morrell. [MORRELL ROOTHING.]

Roothing White. [WHITE RODING.]

Rootpark, part of the vil. of Wilsontown, pa. of Carnwath (q.v.), E. Lanarks., Sc.

Rope, tp., pa. of Wybunbury (q.v.), S. Chesh., 2½ E. of Nantwich; ac. 573.

Rophey Green, pl., pa. of Great Waltham (q.v.), Mid Essex, about 6 S.E. of Dunmow.

Ropley, pa. and vil., E. Hants, 11 N.E. of Winchester; ac. 4,684; soil light, overlying chalk. The church of St. Peter (enlarged 1848) is an old flint building with a wooden tower.

Ropsley, pa. and vil., S.W. Lincs., 6 E. of Grantham; ac. 2,882; soil various, overlying limestone. The church of St. Peter is of various

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
RoothingBeauchamp	Ongar (4½)	23	254
Roothing Berners	Ongar (5)	23	89
Roothing High	Ongar (9)	23	446
Rope	Nantwich (2½)	162	75
Ropley	Ropley	54	866
Ropsley	Grantham (6)	105	719

periods; the west tower and chancel-arch are E. Eng., the north aisle arcade and a window in the chancel Norm., and there is a fragment of Saxon work in the nave; in the chancel is an Easter sepulchre and a 14th-cent. effigy of a lady. The north aisle contains a curious niche and traces of the rood-loft staircase. The south aisle has an aumbry and a piscina, and near to these another aumbry and piscina; a pillar in the arcade bears the date 1380; the porch was built in 1453. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The charities are small. At R. was born Richard Fox, Bishop of Exeter (1487–93), of Bath and Wells (1493–96), of Durham (1494–1502), and of Winchester (1502–28), and Lord Privy Seal; he was founder of Corpus Christi College, Oxon, and of the free grammar schools at Grantham and Taunton; he died in 1528.

Borrington, vil., pa. of Chirbury (q.v.), S. Salop, 3 N.E. of Montgomery.

Ros-, for words not found under this spelling, see also ROSE- and ROSS-.

Rosbeg Sand, shoal off the coast of Howth, north side of entrance to Dublin Bay, W. co. Dub., Ir. The shoal is about ¾ mile in length.

Rosbercon, pa. and vil. on the Barrow, Ida bar., S.E. co. Kilk., Ir., within the bor. of New Ross (q.v.); ac. 2,674. In the vil. are Protestant and Roman Catholic churches and a national school. A monastery to the Virgin Mary was founded here about 1260. The ruins are extensive and picturesque, comprising the lofty tower of the church, resting on four Pointed arches, and the south wall of an aisle, containing several arches and windows.

Roscarrock House. [ENDELLION.]

Rosclogher, bar., N. co. Leit., Ir., bounded on the north by co. Don., on the east by co. Fermanagh, on the south by Drumahaire bar., and on the west by co. Sligo. It contains Kiltyclogher, a part of Manor Hamilton, and the larger part of Lough Melvin; the Londonderry and Enniskillen Railway just touches it on the south.

Roscobie, pl., pa. of and 4 N. from Dunfermline (q.v.). S. Fifes., Sc. There are extensive limeworks.

Roscommon (1), an inland co. of Ir., province of Connaught, bounded on the north-east by co. Leit., on the north-west by cos. Sligo and Mayo, on the south-west by co. Galway, and on the south-east and east by King's Co. and cos. Wstm. and Longf. Its length from north to south is 60 miles, and its greatest breadth 33 miles. Its total area is 585,407 ac., of which 21 per cent. is cultivated land, 59 per cent. grazing land, 15 per cent. boggy or hilly waste, 1 per cent. timber, and the remainder water, roads, etc. There are many tracts of fertile land, limestone and peaty soils predominating; but owing to the low levels of the valleys of the Shannon and Suck, and the liability of many areas to flood in wet weather, there is much bog-land. The chief crops are oats, rye, potatoes, and turnips; but stock-raising and dairy-farming are the chief branches of agriculture, the export of lean and store cattle being considerable. The holdings are mostly small, and few of the cultivators possess adequate capital for the improvement of their farms. The moistness of the climate and the distance from good markets also unfavourably affect agriculture. In the north of the co. there is hilly ground rising to considerable elevations. Further south there is again hilly ground to the west of the Shannon, but the larger part of the co. is an undulating plain descending into the valleys of the Shannon (with its tributaries the Arigna and Boyle) and Suck, which are the chief rivers and form the boundaries of the co. on the east and west respectively. The Shannon is expanded into a series of navigable lakes—Loughs Ree, Forbes, Boderg, and Allen—much frequented for their pleasing scenery and for the excellent fishing they afford. Besides these, are Loughs Key, Gara, and Arrow, on the north-west border, and numerous smaller lakes scattered throughout the co. Temporary lakes, known as turloughs, are also formed in several localities after heavy rains. Railway communication is supplied by three lines operated by the Midland Great Western Company—crossing the co. on the north, centre, and south. Its chief geological features are such as commonly prevail over the central districts of Ireland. The hilly ground in the north consists of a central nucleus of altered Silurian (chiefly Ordovician) reddish and greenish grits and slates, much contorted, and penetrated by intrusions of igneous rocks comprising both felsites and greenstones. Similar rocks occur in the Slieve Bawn and in some small tracts in the west of the co. In every case these ancient rocks disappear beneath sandstones, shales, and conglomerates of Upper Old Red Sandstone age (with associated volcanic tuffs in the Curlieu Hills), which overlie them unconformably, while these in turn pass upwards without break into the Carboniferous Limestone Series, with which indeed they are often classed. The Carboniferous rocks, which yield some useful building-stones, occupy all the rest of the co.; limestones, frequently very fossiliferous, predominate, but are often alternated with shale and sandstone; while in the extreme north, around Lough Allen, the Limestone Series is overlaid by "Coal Measures," forming part of the Connaught coal-field. Among the sandstones and shales which constitute the bulk of these "Measures" are many bands of clay-ironstone and some thin coal-seams. The iron-ores were worked and smelted in the valley of the Arigna from early times, especially in the 16th and 17th cents.; and this industry, in conjunction with coal-mining, was revived during the first half of the 19th cent., but is now again in abeyance. Large dykes of basaltic rock of igneous origin, cutting the Carboniferous strata, are occasionally met with, especially in the vicinity of Lough Gara, and these yield excellent road-metal. Everywhere on the low ground the solid rocks are much obscured by boulder-clay and gravel, the latter frequently in the form of steep ridges called Eskers, accumulated during the Great Ice Age; and the far-transported "erratic" blocks and striated rock-surfaces indicate that glaciers at first moved eastward from the mountains of Galway, but that the later movement of the ice-sheet was from the north-east. These drift deposits have frequently blocked up old drainage channels, and caused the rivers to take new courses or to be ponded back into lakes. The gradual filling-in of such lakes by peaty growth and detrital material

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rosbercon	New Ross	102	826
Rosclogher	.....	.....	12960

PLACE.	Nearest Rail'y. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roscommon (1)	.....	.....	114397

explains many of the low-lying boggy areas, though the dampness of the climate also fosters a growth of peat on the hillsides. Peat furnishes the common fuel, and in its excavation relics of the ancient inhabitants are sometimes discovered. The bones of the gigantic extinct Irish Elk (Cervus megaceros) also occur. Pipe-clay is obtained from the shores of Lough Ree, and brick-clays in many localities. The co. abounds in objects of antiquarian interest. Among these are traces of ancient lake-dwellings and other indications of prehistoric man; ruined castles at Randown, Roscommon, Crogan, etc.; abbeys or other ecclesiastical remains at Boyle, Roscommon, Kilbarry, and many other places. Its historical associations are also numerous. On its northern border was fought a decisive battle between opposing septs in very early times. The famous Phelim O'Connor, King of Connaught, is buried at Roscommon. Kilbronan, not far from Boyle, is the resting-place of Carolan, one of the last of the veritable Irish bards. This region was granted by Henry III. to Richard de Burgo, but remained in the hands of the natives until long afterwards. Its present limits were settled in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. There was fighting in the co. between the English and the Irish in 1235, and again in 1595 (and no doubt at many intervening dates); also again during the struggle between James II. and William III. Roscommon is the co. town, and other small towns are Boyle, Castlereagh, and (part of) Athlone. Agriculture is the chief and almost the only industry. There are several fine country seats. For parl. purposes the co. is separated into North Roscommon and South Roscommon, each returning one member.

Roscommon (2), bar., Mid co. Roscom., Ir., bounded on the north by French Park and Boyle bars. and co. Leit., on the east by Ballintober North bar., on the south by co. Longf., Ballintober South and Ballymoe bars., and on the west by Castlereagh bar. It contains Strokestown and Elphin, and is traversed at the extreme north by the Longford and Sligo Railway.

Roscommon (3), pa., U. and mkt. to. (s.), the capital of the co. of its name, and formerly a parl. bor., Ballintober bar., Mid co. Roscom., Ir., 18 S.E. of Castlereagh; ac. 9,819. The town is seated principally on the eastern and southern sides of a gently-rising hill, below which are the remains of its ancient and venerable ecclesiastical edifice and its once stately castle. The castle, now in ruins, is situated at the north extremity of the town, overlooking an extensive grassy plain. In 1566 Sir Henry Sidney captured it, and in 1642 the English garrison defended themselves against the Irish; however, it afterwards fell into the hands of the latter, and in 1652 was delivered up to Colonel Reynolds, a Parliamentarian officer. Its ivy-clad walls add much to the picturesqueness of the ruins, and ascent can be made to one of its towers by means of a winding staircase; and from the top a splendid landscape can be viewed. There are remains of a Dominican friary, founded here about the middle of the 13th cent. A few arched windows, through which branches of oaks protrude, are still in tolerable preservation, but the building is fast going to decay; the interior of what was once the chapel is still used as a burial-ground. The town consists of one main street, from which several smaller ones diverge; the principal street extends at one extremity into a wide open area, round which are some of its public buildings and the best of its most ancient houses. The Protestant church is a neat edifice with a square tower. The Catholic church was formerly the old court. The Wesleyans and Presbyterians have places of worship. The court-house, of native stone, is a fine and spacious building of the Doric order, with a portico of large columns; the assizes for the co. are held here, general sessions twice a year, and petty sessions every second Monday. The county gaol, within the same enclosure as the court-house, is an extensive structure, erected in 1819, upon the radiating principle, but is now closed. The county infirmary is a plain edifice, having a centre and two wings. There is a constabulary barrack, and a district inspector resides in the town. The staple commerce of the place is agricultural stock, for which the co. is famed, large numbers being forwarded to Dublin and shipped to England. Monthly fairs are held.

Roscommon, North. [ROSCOMMON (1).]

Roscommon, South. [ROSCOMMON (1).]

Roscomroe, pa., Ballybritt bar., S. K. Co., Ir., 7 E.S.E. of Parsonstown; ac. 5,969. The Slieve Bloom Mountains extend into this pa.

Rosconnell, pa., Fassadinin bar., N. co. Kilk., and Cullenagh and Clarmallagh bar., S.W. Q. Co., Ir., 3½ N.N.E. of Attanagh station; ac. 2,190.

Rosconn Head, on the west side of Oranmore Bay, Dunkellin bar., S. co. Galway, Ir., about 2 W.S.W. of Oranmore.

Roscrea, pa., U. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.), chiefly in Ikerrin bar., N.E. co. Tip., and partly in Clonlisk and Ballybritt bars., S.W. K. Co., Ir., about 12 S.E. of Parsonstown; ac. 10,610. The town, on a tributary to the Brosna, consists of several streets irregularly laid out, and many of the houses are but indifferently built. From the remains of its castles, and ecclesiastical edifices, and its round tower, R. presents a picturesque feature as seen from the hills in the neighbourhood. The Protestant church is a large edifice, erected in 1812, in Gothic style; the Catholic church, near the ruins of a Franciscan friary, is an elegant structure (1870), also in Gothic style. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a meeting-house for Friends. Near the to. is Mount St. Joseph Abbey, a Cistercian house founded in 1878. The retail trade is conducted upon an extensive scale, and there are several flour mills and a small tannery. Monthly fairs are held; most of these fairs are well attended, and large quantities of cattle and other farming stock are sold. R. was erected into a bishopric in the year 620 by St. Cronan, but in the 12th cent. was united to Killaloe. Some remains of the cathedral may be seen in the west front of the old church. Near it is a stone cross, called the Shrine of St. Cronan, as well as a large round tower of square stones.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roscommon (2)	.....	.....	15606
Roscommon (3), pa.	Roscommon	98	3423
Roscommon (3), to.	Roscommon	98	1994
Roscommon, North	.....	.....	56706
Roscommon, South	.....	.....	57691

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roscomroe	Parsonstown (7)	89	430
Rosconnell	Attanagh (3½)	66	207
Roscrea, pa.	Roscrea	78	4074
Roscrea, mkt. to.	Roscrea	78	2568

and in excellent preservation. Near this town the Danes met their first signal defeat. The military barracks are within the walls of the castle, built in 1213 by King John, and form an important station, as the intersection of several great roads occur at this point.

Roscroe, Lough. [ROSBOE, LOUGH.]

Roscrow Hill (586 ft.), pa. of St. Gluvias (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., about 1½ N. of Penryn.

Rosecare, vil., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Kirkham (q.v.), N. Lancs.

Rose Ashe, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 6 S.E. of South Molton; ac. 4,971; soil and subsoil chiefly clay. St. Peter's Church (restored 1889 and 1892) is a Gothic building. There are some small charities. A yearly revel is held on the Sunday nearest August 1.

Rosebank (1), ha., pa. of Bury (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 2 S. of Haslingden.

Rosebank (2), vil. on the Clyde, pa. of Dalserf (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., about 3 S.E. of Larkhall.

Roseberry Topping, said to be 1,488 ft. above sea-level, pa. of Newton-in-Cleveland (q.v.), N.R. Yorks. It is situated at the north-west angle of the eastern moorlands, and is composed of an immense mass of aluminous strata, with sandstone at the top, and ironstone, limestone, jet, and coal intermixed. It rises with a steep ascent in the form of a cone, but the apex has been considerably diminished of late years, owing to its having been worked as a quarry.

Rosebery, estate with seat of the same name, on the South Esk, pa. of Temple (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc., 4 S.W. of Gorebridge.

Rose Castle. [DALSTON (1).]

Rosedale (1), eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Middleton-by-Pickering (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 16 N. of Malton. Attached to the ruins of the priory is the church of St. Lawrence (rebuilt 1839), a Norm. edifice. The priory was founded in 1190 by Sir Robert de Stutville for Benedictine nuns; only fragments remain, the stones having been utilised in the neighbourhood for building purposes. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan chapels.

Rosedale (2), ha., pa. of Wickenby (q.v.), Mid Lincs., 4 N.W. of Wragby.

Rosedale, East Side, tp., pa. of Middleton-by-Pickering (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 5,394. [ROSEDALE (1).]

Rosedale, West Side, tp., pa. of Lastingham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 7,900. [ROSEDALE (1).]

Roseden, tp., pa. of Ilderton (q.v.), N. Northumb., 5 S. of Wooler; ac. 893. There are some remains of ancient camps.

Rosegill, or Rosgill, ha. on the Lowther, pa. of and 2 N.W. from Shap (q.v.), N. Westmd. R. Hall is now occupied as a farmhouse; its ancient peel-tower has disappeared, and the present house does not date before the reign of Elizabeth.

Rosegreen (1), ha., pa. of Pagham (q.v.), W. Sussex, 4 S. of Chichester.

Rosegreen (2), pl., pa. of Tullamain (q.v.), E. co. Tip., Ir., 4 S.E. of Cashel.

Rosehall, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Creich (q.v.), S. Suths., Sc., 7½ S.W. of Lairg.

Rosehaugh, estate with seat of same name, pa. of Avoch (q.v.), S.E. Ross and Crom., Sc., 4 S.W. of Fortrose.

Rosehearty, coast vil., pa. of Pitsligo (q.v.), N.E. Abers., Sc., 18 E. of Banff. It has a good harbour, capable of admitting vessels of from 80 to 100 tons. The chief imports are coals and salt, and it exports fish.

Roseisle, ha., pa. of Duffus (q.v.), N. Elgs., Sc., about 2 S.E. of Burghead.

Roseland, peninsula, S. Cornw., between Gerrans Bay and Falmouth Harbour. [GERRANS.]

Rosemarket, pa. and vil., S.W. Pembs., 4 N.E. of Milford; ac. 1,740; the surface is undulated, and in parts hilly. The church is dedicated to St. Ishmael. In the vil. are the remains of an ancient mansion, formerly the seat of the Walters, in which was born Lucy, the mother of the Duke of Monmouth.

Rosemarkie, pa. and vil., E. Ross and Crom., Sc.; ac. 6,675. R. and Fort George are connected by a ferry. The pa., which contains Fortrose (q.v.), extends 9 miles along the coast of Moray Firth, and is 3 miles in breadth. The hills on the north and south are for the most part arable, being in summer covered with verdure, and producing early and abundant crops. The coast between R. and Cromarty is romantic, being bold and rocky; and as the country lies dry, and has the benefit of fine sea-breezes, the air is pure and salubrious. The vil. forms part of the burgh of Fortrose. The pa. church (1821) is in Late Gothic style. Fairs are held on the Monday before Beauly fair.

Rosemodris Circle, another name for the Merry Maidens (q.v.).

Rosemount, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 2 S. from Blairgowrie (q.v.), N.E. Perths., Sc.

Rosemullion Head, S. Cornw., forming the southern boundary of Falmouth Bay.

Rosenallis, pa. and vil. on the Barrow, Tinnahinch bar., N.W. Q. Co., Ir.; ac. 14,120. The pa. contains part of the to. of Mountmellick (q.v.), from which the vil. of R. is about 3 N.W.

Roseneath, pa. occupying the peninsula between Gare Loch and Loch Long, W. Dumbarts., Sc.; ac. 8,461; soil various, overlying clay-slate, limestone, and sandstone. The pa. church, a small modern edifice, stands within ¼ mile of the ferry and pier. There is also a Free church in the neighbourhood, and a United Presbyterian church at Clynder, 1 N. of R. vil., which is about 5 N.N.W. of Greenock. R. Castle, a seat of the Duke of Argyll, K.G., is the principal object of interest.

Rosepenna, pl. on neck of Rosgull peninsula, between Sheep Haven and Mulroy Bay, N. co. Don., Ir., 7 E. of Dunfanaghy. The greater part of the surface consists of a vast expanse of sea-sand. During the summer the place is much frequented

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rose Ashe	South Molton (6)	192	444
Rosedale (1)	Pickering (10)	220	1364
Rosedale, East Side	Pickering (10)	220	815
Rosedale, West Side	Pickering (10)	220	549
Roseden	Wooler (5)	331	52
Rosehearty	Fraserburgh (4)	575	1179

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rosemarket	New Milford (2)	273	382
Rosemarkie, pa.	Fortrose (1)	616	1343
Rosemarkie, vil.	Fortrose (1)	616	368
Rosenallis, pa.	Mountmellick	59	3463
Rosenallis, vil.	Mountmellick (3)	59	136
Roseneath	Helensburgh (3)	426	2064

by visitors. The fishing and bathing are good, and there are excellent golf-links in the neighbourhood.

Roserk Abbey, ruined Franciscan house near the Moy, pa. of Ballysakerry (q.v.), N. co. Mayo, Ir., 4 N. of Ballina. It was a cruciform building, with a tower rising from the intersection of nave and transepts.

Rosewell, q.s. pa. and vil., pa. of Lasswade (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., 4 S.W. of Dalkeith. There are collieries in the neighbourhood, and the manufacture of fire-clay goods and mineral oils is carried on to a considerable extent. Gorton House, overlooking the Esk, is a seat; it was a favourite residence of Christopher North.

Rosgill. [ROSEGILL.]

Rosglass, small harbour on east side of Dundrum Bay, S.E. co. Down, Ir., near St. John's Point.

Rosguil, peninsula between Sheep Haven and Mulroy Bay, N. co. Don., Ir., 11 N.N.W. of Millford. The peninsula extends 5 miles from north to south, and has an extreme width of nearly 3 miles.

Rosherville, eccl. pa., pa. of Northfleet (q.v.), N.W. Kent, and bordering upon Gravesend. R. now consists of a large number of modern houses, standing on a considerable eminence overlooking precipitous chalk excavations and the Thames. On the river is a pier, at which steamboats call in the season. The church of St. Mark is in Trans. style, and is remarkable for the beauty of its stone carving. R. Gardens were transformed from an old chalk pit.

ROSLIN CHAPEL.
(Photo. A. A. Inglis, Edinburgh.)

Roshin Head, Boylagh bar., W. co. Don., Ir., about 6 N.E. of Ardara. It lies on the north side of the Gweebarra.

Roskeen, pa. on the Blackwater, Duhallow bar., N. co. Cork., Ir., 3 S.E. of Kanturk; ac. 1,674.

Roskeeragh Point, Carbury bar., N.W. co. Sligo, Ir., about 10 S.W. of Cliffony.

Rosley-with-Woodside, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Westward (q.v.), Mid Cumb., 5 S.E. of Wigton. The church of Holy Trinity was built in 1840. R. Hill cattle and horse fairs have long been famous, and are held on Whit-Monday and two alternate Mondays after.

Roslin. [ROSLYN.]

Rosliston, pa. and vil., S. Derbys., 5 S. of Burton; ac. 1,197; soil various, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is chiefly modern, been erected 1819; but it was at an early a chapelry of Walton, and was referred to taxation-roll of 1291. The tower and th are of the first half of the 14th cent. The Primitive Methodist chapel.

Roslyn, or Roslin, q.s. pa. and small vil., Lasswade (q.v.), N. Edins., Sc., 7 S. of Edin The inhabitants are chiefly occupied in agric pursuits, but there are also gunpowder mi extensive carpet works. The place gives t of Earl of Rosslyn to the St. Clair Erskin chapel, on an eminence at the east end of t was founded in 1446 by William St. Cl Sinclair), third Earl of Orkney of that fa a collegiate church, and dedicated to St. M the Apostle. At the Revolution the chap attacked by a fanatical mob, who destroye of the external ornament. The fabric is, ne less, in a larly p condition, judicious tions and have to extent re the traces former ma ment. tecturally famous is conf unique, combine massive ter of N work wit more th elaborate profuse mentation distingu that of th period. the most esting and striking features of the int the celebrated "Prentice's pillar," a cluste wreathed round diagonally with bands of and finely-sculptured foliage; and several arches bear inscriptions or symbolical Beneath the east end is the lower chapel, by the Lady Elizabeth Douglas, wife o (Stewart), Earl of Buchan. In the nort is a monument to George (Sinclair), four of Caithness and Hereditary Justiciar of ness (d. 1582). On the floor of the sam is a large flat stone, incised with the fi a man in armour; this stone is supposed cate the burial-place of Sir William St of R., an ancestor of the founder, wh during the early part of the 14th cent. is also on the north side a large slab, said t the entrance to the vault of the Sinclair of R., ten of whom, previous to 1690, we interred, and, according to the ancient cu the family, in complete armour and with

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
Rosewell, q.s. pa.	Hawthornden Junc.	391	1942
Rosewell, vil.	Hawthornden Junc.	391	1074
Rosherville	Rosherville	27	1721
Roskeen	Kanturk (3)	156	214

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr.Lon. or Dub.
Rosley-w.-Woodside	Wigton (5)	310
Rosliston	Gresley (3)	122
Roslyn, q.s. pa.	Roslin	396
Roslyn, vil.	Roslin	396

coffin—a traditional practice alluded to by Sir Walter Scott in his "Lay of the Last Minstrel." Rosslyn Castle, now a ruin, stands on a lofty and almost isolated cliff overhanging the wooded and picturesque glen through which flows the river Esk. It is said to have been erected in the 12th cent., but in 1447 was partly destroyed by fire, and afterwards rebuilt. In September, 1544, it was again burnt by an English force, but must have been subsequently repaired, for in 1650, when Cromwell crossed the Tweed (July 22), it was held for the Royal cause. General Monk invested the castle, which shortly surrendered and was plundered by the Roundheads; and in 1688 it was much injured by the same mob that attacked the chapel. The ruins, now inconsiderable, are reached by a bridge thrown across a deep ravine. Near the castle are the remains of the ancient chapel and cemetery of the vil., close to which is a copious spring of excellent water, called St. Matthew's Well. Omnibuses ply between this place and Edinburgh, and the walk by the valley of the Esk to Hawthornden is exceedingly picturesque.

Rosmore, another name for the Woodford (q.v.), S.E. co. Galway, Ir.

Rosmore Island, in Clew Bay, pa. of Burrishoole (q.v.), W. co. Mayo, Ir., about 1 W. of Newport.

Rosmurrevagh, island in Clew Bay, pa. of Burrishoole (q.v.), W. co. Mayo, Ir., 7½ W. of Newport; ac. 28. R. is less than a furlong from the mainland.

Rosque, Loch, or Loch-a-Chroisg, lake, pa. of Contin (q.v.), Mid Ross and Crom., Sc., 1 W. of Achnasheen railway station. It is nearly 4 miles long, and lies 508 ft. above sea-level.

Rosroe, Lough, pas. of Kilmurry and Tomfinlough (q.v.), S.E. co. Clare, Ir., 2½ E. of Newmarket-on-Fergus. The lough is about 2 miles long from N.N.E. to S.S.W., and has an extreme breadth of ¾ mile.

Ross (1), pa., ancient bor., mkt. to., and head of U. and petty sess. div., S. Herefords., about 12 S.E. of Hereford; ac. 3,154. This town has been immortalised by Pope in his well-known theme, "The Man of Ross." John Kyrle was born on May 22, 1637, at the White House, Dymock, Gloucs., being the eldest son of Walter Kyrle, Barrister-at-Law, and M.P. for Leominster in the Long Parliament. About the period of the Restoration he became a resident in the town of Ross until his decease in November, 1724, and sheriff for the county in 1683. Among the many mementoes of Mr. Kyrle with which the neighbourhood abounds are the public walk which bears his name, and The Prospect, near the church. From this spot the view of the river and the surrounding country is enchanting, and the beautiful horseshoe form in which the river flows beneath the town is very striking. In the centre of the meadow opposite The Prospect are still standing the remains of a gigantic oak-tree, which, it is said, once stood on the edge of the stream; and from the very visible addition which has been made to this meadow within recent years, there is no doubt that such was the case. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, on an eminence south-west of the town, was restored 1878. It is a spacious building of the Dec. and Perp. periods. The spire, which suggested Pope's well-known line, was struck by lightning in 1852, but has been rebuilt. At the east end of the south aisle is an interesting series of alabaster tombs (with full-length recumbent effigies) to Thomas Brereton and other members of this family, to the Westphaling family (1629), and to John Rudhall (1637). In the chancel, within the rails, is a plain flat tombstone, under which lies John Kyrle, "the Man of Ross"; against the wall close by is an elaborate monument to his memory. Over the south porch is a parvise, used as a choir vestry. At the north-east corner of the churchyard is an old stone cross, which commemorates a visitation of the plague under which the pa. suffered. Not far from the north door are tombs of two great benefactors to R.—Walter Scott and James Baker. There is a mission-room and a Catholic church, and various bodies of Dissenters have commodious chapels. The Corn Exchange (1862), in the High Street, is in Italian style, and comprises a large hall for lectures, etc. The Market House is a quaint old building, in Italian style, supported upon pillars and occupying a conspicuous site in the centre of the town. It has a small square clock-tower, or campanile, with clock and four dials. The date of its erection is shown by a white stone medallion on its eastern end, containing a bust of Charles II., who is also commemorated in a curious monogram on the south-east corner, inserted at the cost of "the Man of Ross." The upper part of the building is used as a town hall. The market day is Thursday, for corn, butter, cheese, and vegetables; and on every second Thursday is a market for cattle. Fairs are held on the second Thursday in March, May, June, October, and December. Opposite the Market House stands the house once occupied by "the Man of Ross"—a wooden construction of the Elizabethan period. It is now divided into two; the one occupied by a chemist, and the other by a bookseller. Over the shop of the chemist is a bust of "the Man of Ross" in a carved oak medallion, surrounded with the following inscription: "John Kyrle, the Man of Ross, died Novr. 7th, 1724, aged 88." On the front of the other is a sign denoting to the stranger that it is the "House of y^e^ Man of Ross." R. has a Free Library and Reading Room, a Conservative club, and a cottage hospital. The Bluecoat School was founded in 1709, and restored and further endowed in 1786. In and near the town are machine works, a brewery, a boot factory, an iron foundry, agricultural implement factories, and flour-mills. There are several sets of almshouses and an important medical charity.

Ross (2), tp., pa. of and 3 N.E. from Belford (q.v.), N. Northumb.; ac. 2,748. Cockles are found here in large quantities.

Ross (3). [ROSS OF MULL.]

Ross (4), estate with seat of the same name, pa. of Hamilton (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., near the junction of the Avon and Clyde.

Ross (5), bar., N.W. co. Galway, Ir.; ac. 77,351. It is bounded on the north by co. Mayo, on the east by Lough Mask and Lough Corrib (except for a small portion which separates these lakes and

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rosmurrevagh	Newport (7½)	168	9
Ross (1)	Ross	132	4897
Ross (2)	Belford (3)	323	49
Ross (5)	.....	.....	8023

joins co. Mayo), on the south by Moycullen bar., and on the west by Ballynahinch bar.

Ross (6), pa., Ross bar., Connemara, W. co. Galway, Ir., 12½ N.W. of Oughterard; ac. 53,364. Lough Mask extends (to the area of 5,430 ac.) into the pa., but most parts are mountainous. There are two Catholic churches, and national and public schools. The pa. contains the vil. of Leenane.

Ross (7), pa., East Carbery and Ibane and Barryroe bars., S. co. Cork, Ir.; ac. 13,537. It contains Rosscarbery (q.v.), and this name is sometimes applied also to the pa.

Ross (8). [NEW ROSS.]

Ross and Burnmouth, fishing vil. with railway station, pas. of Mordington and Ayton (q.v.), E. Berws., Sc., 6 N.W. of Berwick-on-Tweed.

Ross and Cromarty, a maritime co. in the north of Scotland, including the districts of Easter Ross (between Dornoch and Cromarty Firths) and Wester Ross, Ardmeanach, or the Black Isle, and four-fifths of the island of Lewis, and the former co. of Cromarty. This last, being formed of scattered portions within and adjoining Ross, was, under the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, united for all purposes with the co. of Ross. The outline is irregular, and the boundaries on the east and west sides touch the North Sea and the Atlantic Ocean; the west coast of the Mainland is much indented with bays and lochs, and its actual water boundary is the North Minch, the strait which divides it from the isle of Lewis. On the north and north-east the co. of Sutherland forms the boundary as far as Dornoch Firth; from there southwards to the Beauly basin the North Sea and Moray Firth constitute the eastern boundary; thence Inverness with the isle of Skye extend around the south and south-west borders: the Ross portion of the isle of Lewis being bounded by Harris, the portion of the island belonging to Inverness on the south, the North Minch on the east, and the Atlantic on the north and west: the portion of the isle of Lewis belonging to the co. measures 40 miles from north to south by 25 miles in breadth, while the part belonging to the Mainland extends from east to west 67 miles and from north to south 58 miles. It comprises an area of 3,078 square miles, or 1,970,004 ac. The portion of this extensive co. capable of cultivation is very small. The arable lands extend along the eastern coast, and are found in patches here and there on the western; a great proportion of the low lands of Easter Ross, and a small portion of those near Dingwall, is loamy clay, the rest being light soil of various qualities. The whole of this comprehensive shire, except a district on the east side called Easter Ross, is mountainous, wild, and pastoral; the mountains are for the most part in groups, many of them reaching a considerable elevation, where they appear in continuous chains from north-west to south-east, and the lochs necessarily follow the same direction. Almost the whole of the west coast presents magnificent mountain scenery, and the interior is in general picturesque. The climate is unsteady, and exhibits the extremes of long, dreary, cold winters and some very hot summer weather, and the west coast is subject to heavy rains. The natural forests, which formerly covered large tracts, have nearly all disappeared. In the 18th cent. planting was begun, and there are now extensive plantations along the shores of the three great firths on the east coast. The mineralogy of the shire is interesting to the geologist, but of little commercial value. Limestone occurs in several localities on the west coast, but very little coal. Sheep-farming is extensively carried on; and though the number of cattle bred is small, very many are fed for the market. The salmon fishery is carried on to a considerable extent in the different rivers and estuaries, and that for herrings has of late years become uncertain. There are no manufactures of any importance, but in the neighbourhood of Dingwall, Invergordon, and Tain are several extensive distilleries. Of the early history of this co. but little is known; it was at the time the Romans came to these parts inhabited by three tribes, the principal of which, the Caledonii, must have been a part of a larger sept, as the name occurs in other districts in 1135. There was an Earl of Ross, but this title early became extinct. The principal rivers on the east side of the co. are the Conan, which flows into the Cromarty Firth, the Alness, and the Oikel and the Carron, which pass into the Dornoch Firth. The largest stream on the west coast is the Ewe, which has a short course from Loch Maree. The west coast is greatly indented with salt-water lakes, and the co. likewise possesses a great number of lakes of fresh water in the interior; but none of them, save Loch Maree, near the west coast, is of much magnitude or beauty. The co. is traversed by the Highland Railway, and from Strome Ferry the steamers of the company sail to Skye and Lewis; the scenery through which the line passes is very fine and varied. The co. returns one member.

Rossan Point, headland (about 460 ft.), pa. of Glencolumbkille (q.v.), S.W. co. Don., Ir., 16 W.S.W. of Ardara.

Rossbehy, coast vil., pa. of Glenbehy (q.v.), W. co. Kerry, Ir., about 9 S.W. of Killorglin. It is beautifully situated on a fine beach, and is frequented as a seaside and angling resort. There are Protestant and Catholic churches, and also two national schools, in the district. There is very good fresh- and salt-water fishing, good boating, and shooting.

Rosscarbery, small to., pa. of Ross (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 13 E. of Skibbereen, on the main road between Cork and Bantry Bay, at the head of an extensive creek called Ross Harbour. The dwellings, which occupy the acclivity and summit of a gentle eminence, form four small streets and a square, exhibiting altogether but few vestiges of its ancient ecclesiastical importance. The see of Ross had its origin in the foundation of the monastery of St. Faughnan, the church of which is recorded to have become the cathedral of the diocese in the 6th cent., and its founder installed as the first bishop. This cathedral (rebuilt 1612) had been from time immemorial the pa. church. The diocese was annexed to Cork in 1583, and it now forms part of the united dioceses of Cork,

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ross (6)	Ross	139	3961
Ross (7)	Clonakilty (8)	199	3561
Ross and Burnmouth	Burnmouth (1)	344	324

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ross and Cromarty	.....	.....	78727
Rosscarbery	Clonakilty (8)	199	580

Cloyne, and Ross. The present cathedral-church of St. Faughnan, which stands on a rocky eminence encircled with trees, dates only from 1837, and consists of short choir, transepts, nave, and a western tower of two stages. The ritual choir extends into the nave, the west end of which forms a kind of ante-chapel; the interior is fitted with stalls, and has a throne for the bishop on the south side. There are some monuments of the Hungerford and Townsend families. The Catholic church is situated at the eastern part of the town, and in outward show is unpretending. The market, which has fallen into disuse, is chartered for Wednesday. Fairs are held on March 1, May 11, Aug. 26, Sept. 19, and Dec. 19.

Rosscorkey, island in Upper Lough Macnean, pa. of Cleenish (q.v.), W. co Ferm., Ir., 1¾ w. by N. of Belcoo; ac. 27. The island lies close to the north side of the lake.

Rossdhu, estate with seat of the same name, on west shore of Loch Lomond, pa. of and 3 s. from Luss (q.v.), N. Dumbarts., Sc.

Ross Division, one of the two parl. divs. of Herefords. It lies in the south of the co., and returns one member.

Rossdohan, island in Kenmare river, pa. of Kilcrohane (q.v.), S.W. co. Kerry, Ir., about 4 S.S.E. of Sneem.

Rossdroit, pa., Bantry bar., Mid co. Wex., Ir., 3 S.W. of Enniscorthy; ac. 8,166.

Rossduff, pa. on Waterford Harbour, Gaultiere bar., E. co. Waterf., Ir., 5 N. of Dunmore; ac. 196.

Rossendale Division, one of the 23 parl. divs. of Lancashire. It lies in the north-east of the co., and returns one member.

Rosses Point, small vil., pa. of Drumcliff (q.v.), N. co. Sligo, Ir., 5 N.W. of Sligo station. It is situated on Sligo Bay, and is much frequented in the summer season for sea-bathing. The coast-guard have a station here. There is a small inlet from the bay which affords good anchorage for vessels, but others of large burthen are at unfavourable tides compelled to anchor and discharge their cargo into lighters.

Rosses, The, waste tract, pa. of Templecrone (q.v.), W. co. Don., Ir., 2 N. of Dunglow. The district comprises a large area of rugged mountain and moorland, terminating towards the west in steep rocky cliffs. It includes several islands near the coast.

Rossett, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Gresford (q.v.), E. Denbighs. and S. Flints., 5 N.E. of Wrexham. Christ Church is a modern building.

Rossie (1), estate with seat of the same name, pa. of and close to Forgandenny (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc.

Rossie (2). [INCHBRAYOCK.]

Rossie Priory. [INCHTURE.]

Rossinan, pa., Ida and Knocktopher bars., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 1 S. of Mullinavat; ac. 4,333.

Rossington, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Doncaster; ac. 2,941; soil sand, gravel, clay, and peat, overlying gravel and clay. The church (formerly of St. Stephen, now of St. Michael) was rebuilt in 1844, with the exception of the tower; it is chiefly E. Eng., but the chancel arch is Norm. Among the tombs in the churchyard is that of Charles Bosvile (d. 1708), King of the Gypsies. The school has a small endowment.

ROSS CASTLE.

Rossinver, pa. on Donegal Bay, Carbury bar., N. co. Sligo, extending into Rosclogher bar., N. co. Leit., Ir., 2 W. of Bundoran; ac. 52,318. The pa. includes part of Lough Melvin, and much of its surface is mountainous. There is a Catholic church and several public schools. Brookhill, Glenade House, and Mount Prospect are seats.

Ross Island, peninsula on shore of Lower Lake of Killarney, E. co. Kerry, Ir., 2 S.S.W. of Killarney. The shore of the peninsula is deeply indented, presenting a great variety of fantastic shapes. It is tastefully laid out and planted, the arbutus and other evergreens growing very luxuriantly. The peninsula is separated from the mainland by a channel, originally the trench which defended the approach to the castle. It is crossed by a causeway, which is covered by water during the winter, thus forming an island. The castle, dating probably from the 14th cent., comprises an interesting group of buildings, among which is a fine keep. It is supposed to have been the chief stronghold of

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rosscorkey	Belcoo (2)	130	5
Ross Division	.....	.....	49872
Rossdohan	Killarney (30)	186	10
Rossdroit	Enniscorthy (3)	78	1131
Rossduff	Waterford (6)	112	51
Rossendale Division	.. ..	.....	70567

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rossett	Rossett	206	1425
Rossinan	Mullinavat (1)	105	465
Rossington	Rossington	151	365
Rossinver	Bundoran (2)	160	8549
Ross Island	Killarney (2)	186	10

The O'Donoghue Mor. During the Civil War it was held by the Royalists, eventually surrendering to Ludlow, who attacked it by water as well as by land, in 1652. Copper was formerly mined on the peninsula.

Rosskeen, pa. and vil., E. Ross and Crom., Sc.; ac. 33,725. The lower part of the pa., which runs along the Firth, forms a gentle and easy access to the hills. Beyond the upper arable ground and inhabited glens is a very considerable range of mountains, applicable to no other purpose than that of pasturing black cattle or sheep. The pa. possesses some fine plantations, the chief of these belonging to Invergordon Castle. The pa. church (1827) is 1 W. of Invergordon. Fairs are held the third Tuesday in April, the first Tuesday in August, the second Tuesday in October, and the third Tuesday in December. Ardross Castle is a seat.

Rosskit, island in Lough Melvin, pa. of Inishmacsaint (q.v.), N.W. co. Fermanagh, Ir., 5 S. by E. of Ballyshannon; ac. 33. The island is close to the north shore of the lake.

Rosslare, coast pa., Forth bar., N. co. Wex., Ir., 7 S.E. of Wexford; ac. 2,532. The pa. extends to the sea-coast, and one portion juts out in a narrow peninsula forming the southern boundary of Wexford Harbour. The extremity of this peninsula is R. Point.

Rosslea, small mkt. vil. (W.) and head of petty sess. div., pa. of and 5 N. from Clones (q.v.), S.E. co. Ferm., Ir. Fairs are held on the 8th of every month.

Rosslee, pa., Carra bar., W. co. Mayo, Ir., 6 S. of Castlebar; ac. 3,700.

Ross, Little, island at the mouth of Kirkcudbright Bay, near its western boundary, pa. of Borgue (q.v.), S. Kirkcuds., Sc. Here is a lighthouse.

Ross, Lough (1), W. co. Mayo, Ir., 5 S.E. of Oughterard. The lough is about 2 miles long from N.W. to S.E., with an extreme breadth of 5 furlongs. It contains many picturesque wooded islets, and at its head is the seat of Ross House.

Ross, Lough (2), S.W. co. Armagh and S.E. co. Monaghan, Ir., 1¼ W. by N. of Crossmaglen. The lough is nearly a mile long from E. to W., with an extreme breadth of about ¾ mile.

Rossminoge, pa., Gorey bar., N. co. Wex., Ir., 3 N. of Camolin; ac. 4,549. There is a Catholic church.

Rossmire, pa., Decies-without-Drum and Upperthird bars., Mid co. Waterf., Ir., 11 N.E. of Dungarvan; ac. 8,160. It contains part of the vil. of Kilmacthomas (q.v.).

Rossmore (1), island in Kenmare River, pa. of Kilcrohane (q.v.), S.W. co. Kerry, Ir., 10 W.S.W. of Kenmare; ac. 318. The island lies near the north side of the river.

Rossmore (2), pl., pa. of Kilmeen (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., 6 S.W. of Ballyneen railway station.

Rossnakill, small vil. on Mulroy Bay, pa. of Clondavaddog (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 9 N. of Rathmelton. Fairs are held on the 1st of each month.

Rossnowlagh, small vil. on south shore of Donegal Bay, pa. of Drumhome (q.v.), S. co. Don., Ir., 4 N. of Ballyshannon.

Ross of Mull, peninsula on the south-west of Mull Island, Args., Sc., projecting from the main island a distance of 17 miles in a south-west direction. The west end of it is composed of granite, and contains quarries.

Rossory, pa. on Lough Erne, Clanawley and Magheraboy bars., Mid co. Ferm., Ir.; ac. 7,501. It contains part of the co. to. of Enniskillen. There is a Royal School in the pa., supported by a Government grant.

Ross Port, small harbour on an east creek of Broad Haven, N.W. co. Mayo, Ir., 8½ E.N.E. of Belmullet.

Ross Roe, island in Lough Corrib, pa. of Kilcummin (q.v.), W. co. Galway, Ir.; ac. 57.

Ross-shire Alps. [FANNICH (1).]

Rosstrevor, or Rosetrevor, small seaport, pa. of Kilbroney (q.v.), S. co. Down, Ir., nearly 3 E. of Warrenpoint station. R. is a beautiful watering-place, delightfully situated at the foot of the Mourne Mountains, on a gentle declivity which rises from a little cove of Lough Carlingford, and commands very fine views. It is screened by finely-wooded hills from the east and north, and the place is a health-resort. The Protestant pa. church is a handsome structure, in a commanding situation. The Catholic church is in Gothic style, and near it are convent and national schools. There is also a meeting-house for Presbyterians. The town has but little trade beyond the supply of its own immediate neighbourhood. The harbour is good and the quay convenient. About ¼ S.W. of the town is a monument to General Ross, who fell in battle in America. The ruins of an old castle, said to have been built by one of the lords of Iveagh, are in the vicinity. Fairs are held on the first Monday in February, the fourth Tuesday in March, the second Tuesday in May, the first Friday in August, the third Friday in September, the first

ROSSTREVOR QUAY.
(Photo. York and Son, Notting Hill, W.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rosskeen	Invergordon (1¼)	621	3480
Rosslare	Rosslare	104	664
Rosslea	Clones (5)	94	281
Rosslee	Castlebar (6)	152	450
Rossminoge	Camolin (3)	67	555
Rossmire	Kilmacthomas	127	1162
Rossmore (1)	Kenmare (10)	187	107
Rossory	Enniskillen	117	1383
Ross Roe	Oughterard	143	28
Rosstrevor	Warrenpoint (3)	83	660

Saturday in November, and the second Thursday in December. R. House is a seat.

Rostellan, pa. and vil. on east side of Cork Harbour, Imokilly bar., E. co. Cork, Ir., 2¾ S.W. of Cloyne; ac. 2,258. The pa. includes a beautiful little peninsula, and the vil. is much resorted to by the inhabitants of Cork and neighbourhood. There is a Presbyterian church. Overlooking the harbour, on the site of an older structure, is R. Castle, once occupied by the Marquesses of Thomond.

Rostherne, pa., tp., and vil., N. Chesh., 12 S.W. of Manchester; ac. of pa. 20,328, of tp. 1,524; soil clay and sand. The church of St. Mary was originally built in 1188; in 1888 the chancel and vestry were rebuilt and the remainder of the church restored. In the Tatton chapel, which is separated from the chancel by an oak screen, are monuments to Samuel Egerton (d. 1780), by Bacon; to Richard Westmacott, A.R.A.; to the Rev. Thomas Egerton, Canon of York (d. 1847); and to other members of the family. In the Agden chapel is a mural tablet to Robert Venables, of Agden (d. 1757). The church contains numerous memorials and brasses to the Egerton Leigh, Legh, and Brooke families. On the north side of the chancel is an ancient stone figure of a knight, discovered during the building of the present tower in 1742. There is an ancient lich-gate in the churchyard. The Wesleyans, Baptists, and Congregationalists have chapels. The charities are small. A news and reading room was founded in 1873. R. Manor House is a modern Gothic mansion.

Rosthwaite, vil., pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), W. Cumb., ½ N. of Borrowdale.

Rosturk, island in Clew Bay, pa. of Burrishoole (q.v.), W. co. Mayo, Ir., 4½ W. of Newport; ac. 34.

Rosyth, ha. on the Firth of Forth, pa. of Inverkeithing (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., about 2 N.W. of North Queensferry. Here are the ruins of the old castle of R., the celebrated residence of Margaret, spouse of Malcolm Canmore, and subsequently of the Stuart family. The rock on which it stands is connected with the mainland by a causeway; and a stone slab, placed in the wall over what appears to have been the principal entrance, bears the date 1561. In Sir Walter Scott's novel "The Abbot" this castle is alluded to, and tradition points it out as being the birthplace of the wife of Oliver Cromwell.

Rothamstead. [HARPENDEN.]

Rothay, river, W. Westmd., rises near Langdale Pikes, on the border of Cumb., flows S.E. through Grasmere and Rydal Water, and falls into the Brathay near the head of Windermere, about 1 S.W. of Ambleside.

Rothbury, pa., tp., and to., head of U. and Co. Co. dis., within a bend of the Coquet (here crossed by a stone bridge of four arches), Mid Northumb., 15 N.N.W. of Morpeth; ac. of pa. 35,790, of tp. 3,366. Considerable improvements have been made in the town, which is much resorted to by visitors in the summer season. The church of All Saints was rebuilt (with the exception of the chancel) in 1850, in E. Eng. style. The chancel is lighted at the east end by a triplet of lancets, and there are six others on the south side; these, with three on the north side of the south transept, belong to the original fabric; it retains a piscina and a priest's doorway. The stone font consists of a basin dated 1664, placed on a stem once forming part of a Saxon cross, and is carved with interlaced work, grotesque animals, and a rude representation of the "Ascension"; some other fragments of the same cross, discovered under the floor at the restoration in 1850, are now in the museum of the Newcastle Society of Antiquaries. There is a Congregational chapel. The Mechanics' Institute (1850) has a good library; in connection with it a Jubilee Hall has been erected, and is used for lectures, concerts, entertainments, etc. Here is a malting and brewing establishment. Fairs are held on the Friday in the Easter week, Whit-Monday, October 2, and November. Markets for the sale of live stock are held every alternate Monday. In R. Forest is Lordenshaws (or Lurganshaws) Camp, on the summit of a ridge about 880 ft. above the sea level, and affording an extensive view. In the pa. are other earthworks and hut-circles. Cragside is a picturesque and beautiful estate close to the town, affording a valuable example of a reclaimed area of apparently intractable land. The mansion is situated on a stretch of level ground excavated from the rocky sides of a mountain slope rising high above the banks of the river Coquet, and the grounds immediately surrounding it are skilfully laid out in terraces. On part of the estate the allotment system, in lettings ranging from 3 ac. upwards, has been adopted.

Rother (1), river, E. Sussex, rises near Rotherfield and runs E.S.E. and E. by N. past Etchingham, Robertsbridge, and Bodiam to the Kent border; pursuing its course E. by N. past Newenden and then E. by S., divides the cos. of Sussex and Kent; after forming the southern limit of Oxney Island, turns S. by W. through Sussex, and eventually expands into Rye Harbour. At Bodiam a portion of its stream is diverted to form a moat for the Castle. It is navigable for small vessels as far as Newenden. The sea-rover Hasting ascended the river in 893, and one of his ships was discovered near Northiam in 1822. The R. is about 30 miles long.

Rother (2), river, E. Hants and W. Sussex, rises near Priors Dean, runs E. between Empshott and Hawkley; then S. and S.S.W. towards Petersfield; turns eastward a little E. of the town, and entering Sussex flows E. by S. past Midhurst to Stopham, where it joins the Adur. The most interesting spots on its banks are the grounds of Cowdray Park (q.v.) and the beautiful park belonging to Petworth House. [PETWORTH.] It is navigable to Midhurst. Its length is 24 miles.

Rother (3), river, N.E. Derbys. and W.R. Yorks., rises near the vil. of Morton, and flows N. past North Wingfield and Chesterfield to Whittington; here, turning E., it pursues its way to Staveley, then, resuming its northerly course, runs past Eckington and Beighton (on the Yorks. border) to Rotherham, where it joins the Don. The woodland scenery on its banks at Renishaw Hall is very picturesque. Its length is 20 miles.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rostellan	Middleton (5)	178	343
Rostherne, pa.	Ashley (2)	183	3779
Rostherne, tp.	Ashley (2)	183	407

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rusturk	Newport (4½)	168	16
Rothbury, pa.	Rothbury	312	2550
Rothbury, tp.	Rothbury	312	1274

Rotherbridge. [ROBERTSBRIDGE.]

Rotherby, pa. and vil. on the Wreake, Mid Leics., 6 S.W. of Melton Mowbray; ac. 766; soil various, overlying clay. The Dec. church of All Saints dates from the reign of King John; the chancel retains a piscina, and there is another in the south aisle. The charities amount to about £15 yearly.

Rotherfield (1), pa. and small to., N. Sussex, 7 S. of Tunbridge Wells; ac. 14,748; soil sand, clay, and gravel, overlying stone. The church of St. Denys (restored 1873–94) was portion of a monastery founded here by King Egbert in 800; in architecture it is chiefly E. Eng., with some Perp. work; there is a priest's chamber over the north porch; the chapel north of the chancel belongs to the Nevill family, Earls and Marquesses of Abergavenny; in the chancel there are sedilia, a piscina, and several stones to the Fowle family; the east window was designed by Sir Edward Burne-Jones; during the restoration some mural paintings, dating from c. 1450, were discovered. R. has a mission church, and Calvinistic Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The Fermor charity produces about £148 yearly, and is partly used for educational purposes; another charity, founded by Henry Smith in 1628, produces over £20. Fairs are held on June 18 and October 20. R. Hall is an Elizabethan mansion with some good oak panelling and a curious chimneypiece in the drawing-room.

Rotherfield (2), ti., pa. of East Tisted (q.v.), E. Hants, about 4 S.W. of Alton. R. Park is a seat.

Rotherfield Greys, pa. and vil., S. Oxon, 2¼ W. of Henley-on-Thames; ac. 2,910; soil chalk, loam, and gravel, overlying chalk. The church is E. Eng. A large brass with effigy under a canopy has a marginal inscription to Sir Robert de Gray, lord of the manor 1387; in the chapel is a monument erected in 1605 by William (Knollys), first Earl of Banbury, K.G., to his parents, and consisting of a canopy, supported by black marble pillars, beneath which are the effigies of Sir Francis Knollys, K.G., Treasurer of the Household to Queen Elizabeth and custodian of Mary Queen of Scots at Bolton (d. 1596). There is a mural tablet to Sir Thomas Stapleton, Bart.; and a brass inscription to Joan, wife of John Hasteyngs, Esq. (d. 1537). Greys Court is a seat.

Rotherfield Peppard, pa. and vil., S. Oxon, 6 N. of Reading; ac. 2,158; soil chalk and gravel, overlying chalk. The church of All Saints is Norm. There is a Congregational chapel. Blounts Court is a seat.

Rotherham, mun. bor.. pa., tp., U. and mkt. to., head of Co. Co. dis. and polling-place for the R. division, on the Rother, at its confluence with the Don, W.R. Yorks., 6 N.E. of Sheffield; ac. of bor. 5,595, of pa. 13,585, of tp. 1,270. The Don is here crossed by a bridge of five arches, on the centre pier of which is an ancient chapel, used afterwards as an almshouse, then as the town prison, but now occupied as a shop. The river is also crossed by three other bridges. R. is an ancient town; in 1307 Edward I. granted a charter for a market and fair. Mary Queen of Scots and Charles I. both passed a night here as prisoners. During the Civil War the inhabitants sided with the Parliament; the town was obliged to yield to the Royalist forces in 1643, but after Marston Moor (1644) it was surrendered to the Parliamentarians. R. was incorporated in 1871. The church of All Saints (restored 1874–75) occupies the site of a smaller cruciform structure of the Norm. period; it is a magnificent Perp. edifice, dating from the reign of Edward IV. The chancel has a good wood roof, bearing monograms and further enriched with carved emblems and foliaged bosses. On the south side of the chancel are three sedilia and a piscina, and the ancient stalls remain; the chancel chapels are enclosed at the sides and toward the transepts by panelled and traceried oak screens, with elaborately-carved cornices and canopies; the south (or Lady) chapel has a panelled wood roof, coloured and gilt, and the benches retain some of the old work; the north (or St. Anne's) chapel differs materially in style from the rest of the building, and has a plainer roof. The tower is fan-vaulted, but the transepts have wood-framed ceilings. The arcades of the nave have clustered piers, with very slightly projecting caps, ornamented with foliage and a battlemented cornice; the oak ceiling is flat, and ribbed both longitudinally and diagonally, the intersections being covered with carved ornament. The pulpit is a very fine work of the Jacobean period, and has over it a large ornamented canopy. The font, a work of very early date, has a rudely-arcaded basin on a plainly-moulded base, and now stands in the Jesus chapel. The church retains a few ancient monuments, including an altar-tomb with brass effigies to Robert Swifte (d. 1561), his first wife Anne (d. 1539) and four children; and a memorial to John Shaw, vicar (d. 1672), who had been ejected under the Act of Uniformity (1662). In the south transept is a marble monument, raised by public subscription, to 50 young persons who were drowned in the Don at Masbrough on the occasion of a launch (1841). The exterior of the church is embattled throughout, the parapets being relieved by a profusion of crocketed pinnacles rising from buttresses; and the south porch is adorned in the same manner. Remains of Norm. work may be traced on the south side of the chancel, in the north chapel, the bases of the tower piers, the foundations of the north transept, and on the west side of the tower. The church of St. Stephen, Eastwood (q.v.), is in E. Eng. style; there are mission churches, a Catholic church, and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The grammar school was founded 1483 by Thomas de Rotherham, Archbishop of York. During the period of the Reformation this endowment was alienated, but was restored by Elizabeth. A new scheme was promulgated in 1889, and the feoffees purchased the buildings of the Independent College, which institution had been amalgamated with the Independent College at Bradford. The Feoffees' Endowed School dates from 1776, and the School of Science and Art from 1888. The Council Hall, in Howard Street, is a small but well-furnished room; in the same building are the town clerk's, sanitary inspector's, and collectors' offices. The other Corporation

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rotherby	Brooksby (½)	108	138
Rotherfield (1)	Rotherfield	39	5099
Rotherfield Greys	Henley (2½)	36	2747
Rotherfield Peppard	Henley (3)	36	453

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rotherham, bor.	Rotherham	163	42061
Rotherham, pa.	Rotherham	163	46893
Rotherham, tp.	Rotherham	163	19419

offices, in Frederick Street, include those of the borough surveyor, accountant, and chief constable. The court-house, College Yard, is a spacious building erected in 1826; adjoining is a residence for the police superintendent. The hospital (1871) is a stone building in Tudor style; it was enlarged in 1887. The new post-office, a substantial stone building, dates from 1877. The other public buildings include the Baths and Free Library (1887), in Elizabethan style; the Theatre Royal (1867), the Temperance Hall, St. George's Hall, in Elizabethan style; the Masonic Hall, drill-halls for the Volunteers and Yeomanry, and the Mechanics' Institute. The Market Hall, in the market-place, was almost entirely destroyed by fire in 1888, but has been rebuilt. The weekly market is held on Monday; the butter and poultry market weekly on Friday. There are yearly fairs on Whit-Monday and Dec. 1, and a statute fair for hiring servants on the first Monday in November. The shambles are in the market-place and Church Street; and the cattle market, which is held in The Crofts every Monday, is well supplied with fat stock. R. has large works for iron and steel, railway waggons, railway-wheel works, and general forgings; glass, chemical, and brick works; stone china, earthenware, pottery, pot mould, and pipe-clay works; breweries, saw-mills, etc. There are wharves on the river and warehouses at the railway stations. The almshouses were founded in 1780 for four poor women, and endowed with about £70 a year, now considerably increased, the inmates each receiving £20 yearly and two loads of coal; and £10 is also yearly distributed to the poor of the town. The Great Dole produces £180 yearly. The Bentley charity yields interest on three sums respectively, that on £3,000 for annual gifts of about £11 each to six poor men and four poor women, and on sums of £400 for the Dispensary and £100 for the Wesleyan Benefit Society; there are various other small charities. R. Park was opened in 1876, and consists of about 24 ac., a great part of which has been very tastefully laid out and planted, and has extensive walks, with cricket, football, tennis, and bowling grounds; in the rock face near this is a doorway, supposed to have been the entrance to the gardens of the college founded by Archbishop de Rotherham. The old tower is used as a curator's residence. Clifton Park, opened by the Prince and Princess of Wales in 1891, covers 55 ac., and is beautifully wooded.

Rotherham Division, one of the 19 divisions of the West Riding. It lies in the southern part of the Riding, and returns one member.

Rotherhithe, pa. on south bank of the Thames, N.E. Surrey, in S.E. London, 2¼ S.S.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 754. R. extends east from Bermondsey, skirting The Pool; it is bounded on the east by Limehouse Reach. It has been identified with the Ætheredes Hyd mentioned in a charter of 898 A.D. In the 17th cent. it was commonly known as Redriff, and this form of the name still survives among the inhabitants. The church of St. Mary, built 1715 and enlarged 1738, is a brick edifice of the Corinthian order. In the churchyard is a monument to Prince Lee Boo, the son of a chieftain of the Pellew Islands, who died in London, at the age of twenty, in 1784; the inscription records the kindness shown by the Prince's father to the crew of the Antelope, which was wrecked on one of the islands in 1783. R. also contains several ecol. pas. Much of the ground bordering on the river, originally part of an extensive marsh, has been converted into docks, the most important being the Surrey Commercial Docks, originally formed in 1696, and reconstructed on a much larger scale in the early part of the 19th cent. Southwark Park (62 ac.) was opened in 1869. The population is composed mainly of seamen and persons connected with shipping and maritime trade. In connection with the docks there are many wharves, boatbuilding yards, granaries, etc. A disastrous fire which spread from a mast yard in 1765 occasioned great damage. The famous Admiral Sir John Leake (1656–1720) was a native of R.

Rotherhithe Division, one of the three parl. divs. of the metropolitan bor. of Southwark (q.v.). It returns one member.

Rothersthorpe, pa., Mid Northants, 4 S.W. of Northampton; ac. 1,218; soil mixed, overlying clay. The Northampton Canal passes through the pa. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is Perp. Here is a Baptist chapel.

Rothervas. [DINEDOR.]

Rotherwick, pa. and small vil. on a tributary of the Loddon, N.E. Hants, 7 N.N.E. of Basingstoke; ac. 1,983; soil clay, sand, and gravel, overlying clay. The church (dedication unknown) is E. Eng., and contains a fine monument to Frederick Tylney (d. 1725). There is an endowed school, built in 1713. Tylney Hall (rebuilt 1879, in Tudor style) is a seat.

Rothes (1), pa. (extending into Banffs.) and to., E. Elgs., Sc.; ac. 18,965; soil sharp and gravelly along the base of the hills, in the elevated parts much mixed with moss. The town, 11 S.E. of Elgin, contains the pa. church and a Free church. Here are three distilleries. R. gives the title of Earl to the Leslie family. Auchinroath is a seat.

Rothes (2), vil., pa. of and 1 W. from Markinch (q.v.), Mid Fifes., Sc. There is a paper-mill.

Rothesay, royal burgh, pa., co. and mkt. to. (W.), Butes., Sc., 18 S.W. of Greenock; ac. 6,083; soil various, light in the upper portions, alluvial in the lower. The town, finely situated at the head of Rothesay Bay, is on the east side of the island of Bute, of which it is the capital, as well as of the shire. R. was constituted a royal burgh by Robert III., by a charter dated Jan. 12, 1400; and its privileges were confirmed and extended by James VI. in 1584. The bay is very spacious, and the anchorage-ground excellent. The pier was erected in 1882, and since enlarged; and the harbour has been much improved and deepened at considerable expense. The herring fishery has long been active here, and employs about 245 hands. The Bute Farmers' Society has done much for the agriculture and farm stock of the island, premiums and prizes for excellence in which are awarded at the annual

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rotherham Division	.....	.....	78597
Rotherhithe	.....	.....	39255
Rotherhithe Division	.....	.....	73915
Rothersthorpe	Blisworth (2)	63	266
Rotherwick	Hook (2)	42	425

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rothes (1), pa.	Rothes	571	2299
Rothes (1), to.	Rothes	571	1548
Rothesay, burgh	Glasgow (18)	400	9034
Rothesay, pa.	Glasgow (18)	400	9306
Rothesay, to.	Glasgow (18)	400	9108

show of the Society, held at Rothesay in May. The Town Hall and County Buildings form a handsome pile, and include an elegant embattled tower, containing a bell and a clock with four illuminated dials, presented by the late Marquis of Bute. The edifice comprises a spacious court-room (in which the sheriff, burgh, and justice of peace courts are held), the town and sheriff clerks' and procurator-fiscal's offices, and other apartments. At the east end of the court-room is a painting of the second Marquess of Bute. The new Public Halls form a block of buildings facing Prince's Pier, and are used for concerts, lectures, public meetings, etc. The Norman Stewart Institute, in Montague Street, was opened July 4, 1885. There is a large refreshment-room on the ground floor, and on the other floors are amply-supplied reading- and waiting-rooms, a billiard-room, and recreation- and smoking-rooms. The R. Royal Aquarium, near Mount Stuart Road, occupies the site of a battery, constructed at the beginning of the 19th cent. to resist anticipated invasion. In front of the East Pier stands an elegant fountain, erected as a memorial to H.R.H. Prince Albert (d. 1861); and another fountain stands in Guildford Square. The R. Academy and Thomson Institute, in the Public Park, is a structure in the Gothic style. Fairs are held in May, July, October, and December—all chiefly for cattle. About a mile to the east of the town is a medicinal mineral spring; near this is Glenburn House Hydropathic Establishment. On an eminence, called "Chapel Hill," rising above Argyle Street, once stood an ancient chapel, dedicated to St. Bride. About 2 S.W., and at the end of the Chapelton Road, is "Woodend," or (as it is more generally denominated) "Kean's Cottage," from having been built by that tragedian; the house stands in a retired spot a little above the western shore of Loch Fad. The first mention of R. in history is in 1228, when Rothesay Castle was besieged by Hushac, the Norwegian, in conjunction with Olave, King of Man, and taken after a stout resistance. Although recovered from these northern invaders, it was again taken by them about the year 1253, and retaken by the Scots shortly after the battle of Largs (Oct. 3, 1263), in which Alexander III. finally defeated Haco of Norway. During the reign of John Baliol it was seized by the English, but in 1311 surrendered to Robert Bruce. In 1334 Edward Baliol retook the castle, and fortified it; but soon afterwards it capitulated to Bruce, then Steward of Scotland. King Robert II. visited the castle in 1376, 1381, and 1392, and subsequently created his eldest son, Prince David, Duke of Rothesay, and this has ever since been the principal Scottish title of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; the Marquess of Bute being hereditary keeper of the castle.

ROTHESAY.

Rothiemay (called also Milltown), pa. and vil. on the Deveron, and Isla, N.E. Banffs., Sc., 7 E. of Keith; ac. 9,365. The northern district is less fertile than the lands towards the south, where the soil is rich, subsoil chiefly limestone. Fairs are held on the third Tuesday in May and the third Friday in October. R. House is a seat; in a former mansion on the same site Mary Queen of Scots passed a night, and the room in which she slept is preserved in the present house.

Rothiemurchus, q.s. pa. on the Spey, pa. of Duthil and Rothiemurchus (q.v.), E. Inv., Sc., about 7 S. of Grantown.

Rothienorman, small vil., pa. of and about 3½ S.W. from Fyvie (q.v.), N. Abers., Sc. Cattle markets are held here on the second Monday of every month.

Rothley (1), pa., tp., and vil., on a tributary of the Soar, Mid Leics., 5½ S. of Leicester; ac. of pa. 5,439, of tp. 2,129; soil stiff loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is E. Dec. and Perp.; a Perp. carved oak screen, dated 1520 and in good preservation, divides the nave from the chancel; the font is Norm.; there are a number of monuments dating from 1561. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Primitive Methodists have chapels. The court-house stands on the Green. There is a workhouse, a substantial building in Elizabethan style. Many of the inhabitants of the pa. are employed in boot- and shoe-making, in the hosiery trade, and at the granite works at Mountsorrel.

Rothley (2), tp. and vil., pa. of Hartburn (q.v.), Mid Northumb., 2½ N.E. of Cambo; ac. 2,789. On R. Crags is a modern ruin. An ancient tower here was built by John Birtlee, Abbot of Newminster. R. Lake House is a seat.

Rothley Temple, formerly extra-parochial, Mid Leics., has been added to the pa. of Rothley (q.v.). The place derives its epithet from a preceptory of the Templars founded here in the reign of Henry III.

Rothney, vil., pa. of Premnay (q.v.), Mid Abers., Sc., close to Insch railway station.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rothiemay	Rothiemay	573	1291
Rothiemurchus	Aviemore (1½)	529	266
Rothley (1), pa.	Sileby (2¼)	107	2524
Rothley (1), tp.	Sileby (2¼)	107	1199
Rothley (2)	Scots Gap (1)	299	98

Rothwell (1), pa., tp., and to. on the Ise, Mid Northants, 4 N.W. of Kettering; ac. of pa. 4,613, of tp. 3,638; soil red land, clay, and ironstone, overlying ironstone. The church of the Holy Trinity is Trans. Norm., E. Eng., and later. Under the south aisle is a vault or charnel-house, discovered about 1650, and containing the bones (stacked in order) of many thousand persons. The chancel has four sedilia, and on the eastern gable of the nave is a sanctus-bell turret. In the church are several interesting brasses; the earliest is the 14th-cent. effigy of a priest vested in a cope, his head resting on a pillow, supported by angels; another has effigies of a man and his wife in civil costume, and is inscribed to Edward Saunders of Haryngton, first founder of the church or a chantry within it (d. 1514), and Johanna, his wife; the third displays the kneeling figure of a man in ruff and long robe, with a quartered shield of arms, crest, and mantling, and above an invocatory prayer; below is a large tomb, inscribed to Owen Ragsdale, founder in 1593 of the hospital. There is a Congregational chapel, first founded in 1602, and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The 16th-cent. market-house, though roofless, is otherwise in good preservation; the building was intended as an open market hall, and the upper floor probably as a town hall. A fair is held on Trinity Monday and the four following days, for stock and pedlery. Jesus Hospital was founded by Owen Ragsdale in 1593, for ten old widowers. It has since been increased in size. The income, derived chiefly from land, is £830 yearly. There are also a number of small charities.

Rothwell (2), pa., tp., and small to., W.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Leeds; ac. of pa. 9,010, of tp. 3,302; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of the Holy Trinity, which has been several times repaired, is a E. Eng. building, and contains a curious font dated 1662. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities amount to about £20 yearly. There is a Working Men's Club. The remains of a castle belonging to the Lacys can still be seen. The chief manufactures of the to. are rope, twine, and matches, and coal-mining is carried on in the pa.

Rothwell (3), pa. and small vil., N. Lincs., 9 N.N.E. of Market Rasen; ac. 2,783; soil wold soil, overlying chalk. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (repaired 1849) is Norm. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels.

Rotsea, tp., pa. of Hutton Cranswick (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 5 S.E. of Driffield; ac. 805.

Rotten Calder. [CALDER (8).]

Rotten End, ha., pa. of and 2½ S.E. from Wethersfield (q.v.), N.E. Essex.

Rotten Island, islet in north of Donegal Bay, pa. of Upper Killybegs (q.v.), S.W. co. Don., Ir., 1½ S. by E. of Killybegs; ac. 1. It is situated at the mouth of the inlet running inland past Killybegs. Here is a lighthouse with a fixed light, visible 12 miles.

Rottingdean, pa. and vil., S. Sussex, 5 W. of Newhaven; ac. 3,639; soil chalky loam, overlying chalk. St. Margaret's Church is partly Norm., partly E. Eng. The Brighton Industrial Schools are in the pa., and there is a convalescent home for poor children. The Brookside Harriers have their kennels here. R. was formerly noted for its wells, which were influenced by the tides. Pebbles of agate and chalcedony, known as "Rottingdean pebbles," are occasionally found. An electric railway between Brighton and this place was opened in Nov., 1896.

Rottington, tp. near the sea, pa. of St. Bees (q.v.), S.W. Cumb., 3 S.W. of Whitehaven; ac. 697.

Roucan, vil., pa. of Torthorwald (q.v.), S. Dumfs., Sc., 3½ N.E. of Dumfries.

Roudham, pa. lying in a vale, S. Norf., 6 N.E. of Thetford; ac. 2,300; soil light loam, overlying chalk and gravel. St. Andrew's Church was long since destroyed by fire; but the walls, windows, and greater part of the ancient tower still remain.

Rougemont Castle. [EXETER.]

Rouge Nez, headland, pa. of St. Ouen (q.v.), on north-west coast of Jersey, 8 N.W. of St. Helier.

Rougham (1), pa. and vil., W. Suff., 4 E. by S. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 3,840; soil sandy and loamy, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary is Dec. and Perp.; it contains a brass, in fine preservation, of Sir Roger Drury (d. 1400) and his lady (d. 1405). The Baptists have a chapel. Here are six houses for six aged widows, who receive 3s. a week each, and for a married couple without pension. R. Hall, in Tudor style, standing in an extensive and well-wooded park containing some fine oaks, is a seat.

Rougham (2), pa. and pleasant vil., W. Norf., 8 N. of Swaffham; ac. 2,562; soil brick-earth and clay, overlying brick-earth. The church of St. Mary (restored 1876) is E. Eng.; there are several monuments and brasses to the North family from 1710 to 1788, and to the Yelverton family from 1404 to 1668. The Wesleyans and the Primitive Methodists have chapels. R. Hall, in a well-wooded park, is a seat.

Roughbirchwood, ha., pa. of and 1½ S.E. from Penistone (q.v.), W.R. Yorks.

Rough Common, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Harbledown (q.v.), E. Kent.

Roughey, or Roffey, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of and 2 N.E. from Horsham (q.v.), N. Sussex. All Saints' Church was built 1878, in E. Eng. style. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. A Working Mens' Club was opened in 1880. R. House and R. Place are seats.

Roughlee Booth, tp. and vil. on the Pendle, pa. of Whalley (q.v.), E. Lancs., 6 N.W. of Burnley; ac. 1,584. There is a Wesleyan chapel here. Cotton-spinning is carried on.

Roughmill, vil., pa. of Llangeinor (q.v.), Mid Glamorgs., 6½ N. of Bridgend.

Roughmore, ha., pa. of Old Cleeve (q.v.), W. Somerset, 2 S.W. of Watchet.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rothwell (1), pa.	Desborough (2)	78	3451
Rothwell (1), tp.	Desborough (2)	78	3378
Rothwell (2), pa.	Woodlesford (1)	190	14184
Rothwell (2), tp.	Woodlesford (1)	190	6205
Rothwell (3)	Moortown (4)	152	219
Rotsea	Driffield (4)	213	46
Rottingdean	Brighton (4)	51	1627
Rottington	St. Bees (1)	299	64
Roudham	Roudham	94	168
Rougham (1)	Thurston (2)	82	835
Rougham (2)	Massingham (4)	110	304
Roughey	Faygate (1)	34	1111
Roughlee Booth	Nelson (3)	217	324

Roughpark, ha., pa. of Hamstall Ridware (q.v.), E. Staffs., 7½ N. of Lichfield.

Roughrigg, vil., pa. of New Monkland (q.v.), N. Lanarks., Sc., 2½ S.W. of Slamannan.

Rough Shoal, sandbank off coast of Essex, 8 E.S.E. of Harwich. The shoal is 2 miles in length.

Roughton (1), pa. and vil., E. Norf., 3½ S. of Cromer; ac. 1,740; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of St. Mary (restored 1864) is Norm., with a round embattled western tower. There are monuments to the Flaxman family dating from 1760. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. The charities amount to about £15 a year, and are divided among the poor.

Roughton (2), pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 4 S. of Horncastle; ac. 862; soil varied, overlying sand and clay. St. Margaret's Church (restored) is E. Eng.

Roughton (3), or Roughtown, eccl. pa. and vil., partly in Mottram in Longden Dale, N.E. Chesh., but chiefly in Rochdale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks. The church of St. John the Baptist is in Dec. style.

Rough Tor. [St. Breward.]

Roughty, river, Glanarought bar., S.E. co. Kerry, Ir., rises on the Cork border, and runs about 14 miles to the head of Kenmare River, the general direction of its course being W. by S.

Round Bush, ha., pa. of and ½ E. from Aldenham (q.v.), S.W. Herts. There are four almshouses for four aged couples, with an annual allowance of £10 for each couple.

Roundham Pound, a walled enclosure on Dartmoor, S. Dev., about 2 W.S.W. of Chagford. It is of spherical shape, with a diameter of about 23 yds., and encloses a hut-circle.

Roundhay, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Barwick-in-Elmet (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 3 N.N.E. of Leeds; ac. 1,482. The church of St. John was built 1826, in Gothic style. The Wesleyans have a chapel. There are six almshouses for men and women. R. Park was bought by the Leeds Corporation in 1868 for a park.

Roundhill, vil., pa. of Ballymodan (q.v.), S. co. Cork, Ir., near the to. of Bandon. R. House is a seat.

Round Horn, ha., pa. of Iccomb (q.v.), N.E. Glouces., 2 S.E. of Stow-on-the-Wold.

Round Island, one of the northern Scilly Isles, S.W. Cornw., 4½ N. of Hugh Town. The island reaches the height of 157 ft. Its cliffs are haunted by innumerable puffins. Some interesting cairns remain. The lighthouse was built in 1890.

Roundstone, vil. on a bay of the same name, pa. of Moyrus (q.v.), N.W. co. Galway, Ir., about 10 S. of Clifden.

Roundthwaite, ha., pa. of and 3 S.W. from Orton (q.v.), Mid Westmd.

Roundtown. [Tebenure.]

Roundway Down, a little N.E. of Devizes, N. Wilts. The down is formed by the abrupt termination of a long ridge of chalk hills stretching westward from Marlborough; on its brow, and nearly overlooking the town, are the remains of an ancient earthwork or Roman station. Near it is Roundway Park, of 200 ac., with some fine timber.

Roundwood, vil. on the Vartry, pa. of Derrylossary (q.v.), E. co. Wick., Ir., about 5 S.W. of Newtownmountkennedy. Near the vil. are the reservoirs of the Dublin waterworks.

Rounton, East, chap., tp., and vil. on the Wiske, pa. of Rudby-in-Cleveland (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 7 W. of Stokesley; ac. 1,622. The church was restored in 1884. R. Grange is a seat.

Rounton, West, pa. and vil., N.R. Yorks., 8 N.W. of Northallerton; ac. 1,500; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Oswald is Norm.; the font is said to be Saxon.

Rousay, island, pa. of Rousay and Egilshay (q.v.), Ork., Sc., 11 N.W. of Kirkwall. It is about 5 miles long by 4½ miles wide, and rises to an altitude of 811 ft.

Rousay and Egilshay, pa. comprising the islands of Egilshay, Rousay, and Wire, Ork., Sc., adjoining Mainland island and 12 N. of Kirkwall; ac. 13,754. There is communication between Rousay and Kirkwall by steamer twice weekly. Fairs for cattle are held at Rousay on the last Wednesday in March and the third Wednesday in July. Trumbland House is a seat.

Rousdon. [Roosdown.]

Rouse Lench (in Domesday "Lenz"), pa. and vil., E. Worcs., on the Warws. border, 5 N. of Fladbury; ac. 1,434; soil chiefly marl and sand. The church of St. Peter is a good example of early 12th-cent. Norm., especially the enriched work of the south doorway; above it, in a niche, is a figure of Our Lord in the act of benediction. In the Rouse chapel, erected 1885, in Norm. style, are a number of interesting monuments to the Rouse family, chiefly 17th cent. There is a block of buildings known as Chafecote, comprising a lending library, workmen's club, etc. R. L. Court is an interesting specimen of the half-timbered houses of the Tudor period. Here in or about 1645 Richard Baxter wrote the greater part of his "Saints' Everlasting Rest." An original portrait of him by Walker hangs on the panelled walls within. There is also a portrait of Cromwell, copied from the famous crayon portrait by Cooper. Cromwell is said to have passed the eve of the battle of Worcester at this house, the Rouse family being his chief supporters in these parts. In June, 1329, King Edward III. visited the pa., then called Lench Randolph. The name R. L. dates from its acquisition by the Rouse family. Previous to the Norman invasion it bore the name Biscopeslenz.

Rousham, pa. and vil. on the Cherwell, N. Oxon., 5 N.W. of Woodstock; ac. 1,024; soil stonebrash and deep loam, overlying stonebrash. The church of St. James is of mixed periods. In the chantry chapel are effigies of Michael Dormer (d. 1581) and

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Roughrigg	Slamannan (2½)	403	470
Roughton (1)	Cromer (3)	138	461
Roughton (2)	Woodhall Spa (1)	124	137
Roughton (3)	Mossley	188	4585
Roundhay	Leeds (3)	185	962
Roundhill	Bandon (1)	186	120
Roundstone	Clifden (10)	176	325
Roundwood	Newcastle (3)	23	127
Rounton, East	Welbury (2)	223	157
Rounton, West	Picton (2)	228	207
Rousay	Thurso (40)	744	774
Rousay & Egilshay	Thurso (40)	744	988
Rouse Lench	Alcester (5)	121	255
Rousham	Heyford (1)	75	167

his wife Elizabeth Goddard—removed from Steeple Barton church in 1851. There are other mural tablets and floor-stones to the Dormer family. R. House, erected in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, is an embattled mansion with beautiful grounds.

Routh, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 9 N. of Hull; ac. 2,382; soil partly loam, partly clay. The church of Allhallows (repaired 1835) is E. Eng. and Dec.; in the chancel is a mutilated effigy of a knight, temp. Henry III., and a fine brass to Sir John Routh de Routh and his lady.

Rout's Green, pl., pa. of and 2½ S. from Bledlow (q.v.), Mid Bucks.

Row, pa. and small vil., W. Dumbarts., Sc., 2 W. of Helensburgh; ac. 20,126. The pa. is chiefly of a hilly and pastoral character, and the low grounds are fertile and beautiful. The pa. church stands in the vil., near the ferry across the Gare Loch to the peninsula of Roseneath. Ardencaple Castle, on the north-west bank of the loch, was the birthplace (April 30, 1823) of the eighth Duke of Argyll. A portion of the castle is of ancient date, but the greater part is comparatively modern; it commands a good view of the Clyde and the Gare Loch, to a distance of 7 miles into the mainland. The pa., exclusive of a narrow strip on Loch Long, is about 6 miles in length by 4 miles in breadth, bounded by Luss on the east, Helensburgh on the south-east, on the west by Gare Loch, and its south end is washed by the Firth of Clyde.

Rowall, ha., pa. of Kellington (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Snaith.

Rowanburn, vil. near the Liddel Water, pa. of and nearly 2 S.E. from Canonbie (q.v.), S.E. Dumfs., Sc.

Rowbarton, eccl. pa., pa. of Taunton (q.v.), S. Somerset. The church of St. Andrew was built 1880, in Dec. style, and enlarged in 1890.

Rowberrow, pa. and small vil., N.E. Somerset, 4 N.E. of Axbridge; ac. 1,012; soil light, overlying limestone brash and limestone rock. The church of St. Michael (restored 1865) is Gothic; there is a finely-carved pulpit.

Rowchester, estate with seat of the same name, pa. of and 3 S.E. from Greenlaw (q.v.), S. Berws., Sc.

Rowde, pa. and vil., Mid Wilts., 6 S.W. of Calne; ac. 2,665; soil red sand and clay. The church of St. Matthew (formerly of St. Mary), rebuilt almost entirely in 1833, is Perp.; there is a squint in the chancel, and a mural monument to Thomas Spencer (d. 1765). The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. The charities amount to £40 yearly.

Rowden, ha., pa. of Higham-on-the-Hill (q.v.), S.W. Leics., 3 N.W. of Hinckley.

Rowditch, tp. within the bor. of Derby (q.v.), S. Derbys.; ac. 198.

Rowe (1), ha., pa. of Hemington (q.v.), N.E. Somerset, 4½ N.W. of Frome.

Rowe (2), ha., pa. of and 4 S.E. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Row, East, vil., pa. of and 3 N.W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.

Rowe Lane, ha., pa. of North Meols (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 7½ N.W. of Ormskirk.

Rowell (1), ha., pa. of Heversham (q.v.), S. Westmd., 2 N. of Milnthorpe.

Rowell (2). [ROEL.]

Rower (The), pa. and vil. lying between the Barrow and the Nore, Ida bar., S. co. Kilk., Ir., 4 N. of New Ross railway station; ac. 10,758.

Row Green (1), ha. on the road from Braintree to Chelmsford, pa. of Black Notley (q.v.), E. Essex, about 3 S.W. of Braintree.

Row Green (2). [ROE GREEN (2).]

Rowhedge, fishing vil. on the west bank of the Colne, pa. of East Donyland (q.v.), N.E. Essex, about 4 S.E. of Colchester. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Shipbuilding, malting, and brewing are carried on.

Rowington, pa. and vil., Mid Warws., 6 W.N.W. of Warwick; ac. 3,817; soil New Red Sandstone and gravel. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1872) is a building of various periods, chiefly 15th-cent. work; the communion table is Tudor, with elaborately-carved legs; some ancient stained glass has been collected in one of the chancel windows. Among the monuments may be mentioned those of John Hill, Bayliff of R., John Oldnall (1558), John Woollaston of Ryselippe (1615), John Hancockes (1619), and several memorials to the families of Aston, Bradbury, Reeve, Smallbrooke, Knight, and Wallis. There is a chapel-of-ease, built in 1877, and a Congregational chapel. The charities amount to about £200 a year.

Rowland, tp., pa. of and 2 N. from Bakewell (q.v.), N. Derbys.; ac. 303.

Rowlands Castle, vil., pas. of Idsworth and Warblington (q.v.), E. Hants, on the borders of Sussex, 3 N. of Havant. Here is a Congregational chapel. C. Dixon, Esq., of Stansted House, erected and endowed Stansted College, for the reception of six decayed merchants of the cities of London, Liverpool, or Bristol.

Rowledge, eccl. pa., pas. of Farnham and Frensham, Surrey, and Brinsted (q.v.), Hants, 3 S. of Farnham. The church of St. James was erected 1871, in E. Eng. style. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a reading-room and club for working men. Frensham Vale is a seat.

Rowley (1), pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 8 N.W. of Hull; ac. 6,423; soil and subsoil chalky. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng.

Rowley (2), ha., pa. of Bardsey (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 S.W. of Wetherby.

Rowley (3), ti., pa. of Winkfield-with-Rowley (q.v.), W. Wilts., about 2 S.W. of Trowbridge.

Rowley (4), ha., pa. of Paracombe (q.v.), N. Dev., about 11 N.E. of Barnstaple.

Rowley Green, ha., pa. of Shenley (q.v.), Mid Herts., 2 S.W. of Barnet.

Rowley Regis, pa. and to., S. Staffs., 3 S.E. of Dudley; ac. 3,670; soil loam, overlying clay. St. Giles's Church (formerly a chapel-of-ease to Clent)

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Routh	Beverley (3½)	203	169
Row, pa.	Helensburgh (2)	426	11172
Row, vil.	Helensburgh (2)	426	1315
Rowanburn	Canonbie (2)	312	412
Rowbarton	Taunton	158	3044
Rowberrow	Winscombe (2)	136	110
Rowde	Devizes (2)	86	1195
Rowditch	Derby	128	907
Rower, The	New Ross	102	1642
Rowington	Kingswood (2)	116	814
Rowland	Hassop (1½)	154	57
Rowledge	Bentley (2½)	42	849
Rowley (1)	Brough (5)	186	512
Rowley Regis	Rowley Regis	136	30791

is a Perp. building; the original church was built in 1199–1216, and rebuilt in 1840; it contains a Norm. font, and some brasses to the Haden family. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Methodist New Connexion chapels. The charities amount to about £80 yearly. Coal-mining and iron manufactures are largely carried on, as are also brick-making, tile-making, and malting; the quarries yield a hard basaltic rock, known as Rowley Rag.

Rowlston, ha., pa. of and 1 N.W. from Mappleton (q.v.), E.R. Yorks. R. Hall, an ancient mansion, is a seat. [MAPPLETON AND ROWLSTON.]

Rowlstone, pa. and vil., S.W. Herefords., 13 S.W. of Hereford; ac. 1,667; soil loamy clay, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. Peter (restored 1865) is of various periods, and contains some very fine Norm. work, including a good doorway with carving in the tympanum representing the Saviour in glory, surrounded by an elliptical aureole, and supported by four angels; the porch is E. Eng., the font Norm.; the north wall retains two small Norm. windows. The chancel retains a fine Norm. arch, carved with figures of cocks; on the south side are two figures with heads downwards, supposed to refer to the crucifixion of St. Peter. There are two ancient and curious candelabra.

Rownall, ha., pa. of Cheddleton (q.v.), N. Staffs., 6½ N.W. of Cheadle.

Rowner, pa., S. Hants, 3 N.W. of Gosport; ac. 1,216; soil loam, overlying clay and loam. The church of St. Mary (restored and enlarged 1874) is E. Eng., and formerly contained some ancient paintings; there is a monument of the Brune family, dated 1559. Near the church are some ruins, believed to be those of the old manor-house of the Brunes. Forts Grange and Rowner are in the pa.

Rownhams, eccl. pa., pas. of Romsey Extra, Nursling, and North Baddesley (q.v.), S. Hants, 4 W.N.W. of Southampton. The church of St. John the Evangelist is a handsome edifice in Dec. style; in the chancel is a brass in memory of W. O. Colt, founder (d. 1853), and Jane his widow (d. 1875), by whom the work was completed. The vicarage-house is a red-brick building in Elizabethan style. St. John's Convalescent Home (for women and girls, or boys under twelve years) was erected in 1876.

Rowsham, ha., pa. of Wingrave-with-Rowsham (q.v.), Mid Bucks., about 4 N.E. of Aylesbury. The Congregationalists have a chapel. Here is a brewery.

Rowsley, eccl. pa., pas. of Youlgreave, Darley and Bakewell (q.v.), Mid Derbys. The church of St. Catherine is a stone building. [ROWSLEY, GREAT.]

Rowsley, Great, tp. and vil., pa. of and about 4 S.E. from Bakewell (q.v.), Mid Derbys. The vil. is situated near the junction of the Wye and the Derwent, the former being crossed by a modern bridge of two arches, and the latter by an ancient bridge of four arches. There are charities of about £4 yearly. The "Peacock" inn is a quaint, ivied, Elizabethan building with many gables and battlements, an abundance of heavy mullioned windows, and has green lawns gently sloping down to the river. Stanton Woodhouse is an Elizabethan mansion on rising ground commanding a considerable view; the park is extensive, and contains some fine old trees.

THE "PEACOCK" INN, ROWSLEY.
(Photo. R. Keene, Derby.)

Row Stock, ha., pa. of Ridge (q.v.), Mid Herts., about 3 S.W. of Hatfield.

Rowston, pa. and vil., Mid Lincs., 7½ N. of Sleaford; ac. 1,858; soil strong, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Clement is chiefly E. Eng. and Perp., and has some remains of the rood-screen; the chantry chapel is divided from the chancel by an oak screen, and contains a sedile; the font is Perp. There is a Wesleyan Reform chapel. A charity of £42 yearly was left in 1719 by Lady Hodgson, and is partly used to support the schools here and at Ruskington.

Rowthorne, ha., pa. of Ault Hucknall (q.v.), E. Derbys., 7 E. of Alfreton.

Rowton (1), tp. and vil., pa. of Christleton (q.v.), W. Chesh., 3½ S.E. of Chester; ac. 580. There is a Wesleyan chapel. On R. Moor an engagement was fought on September 24, 1645, between the Royalists and Parliamentarians. R. Hall is a seat.

Rowton (2), chap., pa. of Ercall Magna (q.v.), N. Salop, about 6 N.W. of Wellington. The church (rebuilt 1835) is in E. Eng. style. Richard Baxter, the Nonconformist divine, was born in R. (1615).

Rowton (3), ha., pa. of Swine (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 6½ E. of Beverley.

Rowton Castle. [ALBERBURY.]

Row Tor. [ST. BREWARD.]

Row Tor Rocks. [BIRCHOVER.]

Row, West, large straggling vil., pa. of and 2½ W. from Mildenhall (q.v.), N.W. Suff. The church of St. Peter is a flint and rubble building; there are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Fruit and vegetables are largely grown here.

Roxburgh, pa. and vil., N. Roxbs., Sc.; ac. 7,781; soil in some parts sandy and gravelly, and in others a fine rich loam, overlying sandstone. The Roman road Watling Street, from the Firth of Forth to York, divides it from Ancrum on the south. The

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rowlstone	Pontrilas (1)	154	136
Rowner	Brockhurst (1)	79	271
Rownhams	Nursling (1½)	82	515
Rowsley	Rowsley	149	512
Rowsley, Great	Rowsley	149	301
Rowston	Digby (2)	117	225
Rowton (1)	Chester (3½)	179	181
Roxburgh	Roxburgh	362	964

vil. is about 4 s.w. of Kelso. The ruins of the once famous castle of R. are still to be seen crowning a high mound, picturesquely situated in the narrow space between the Tweed and Teviot, and about 2 miles from the site of the present vil. Near the castle, and between it and the Tweed, stood the old burgh of R., which has entirely disappeared; the castle was demolished by the Scots in 1460, after they had retaken it from the English, and the burgh, having lost its protection, gradually decayed. The remains of a Border "keep" may be seen in a field near the pa. church, the lower part only, consisting of a stone-vaulted chamber, being preserved; it is popularly called "Wallace's Tower." It was burned by the Earl of Hertford in his marauding expedition of 1545. The ancient fair of St. James is still held annually on August 5, on St. James's Green, close to the site of the old burgh; it was mentioned in a charter of William the Lion to the monks of Kelso, and for long it was the best-known fair in the South of Scotland. Sunlaws is a seat.

Roxburgh Castle.

Roxburghshire, co. lying on the south-eastern border of Scotland, bounded on the north-east, east, and south-east by Northumb. and by a small corner of Cumb., south and south-west by Dumfs., west by Selks. and Edins., and north by Berws. The shape of the co. is extremely irregular, and it measures from its extreme point on the south to that part which is inserted between the cos. of Berws. and Edins. upwards of 40 miles; and from east to west, near the centre, about 30 miles. The area of the shire contains 665 square miles, or 425,656 ac., about one-half of which is brought into cultivation. The co. is divided by its waters into several districts, of which the chief and largest is Teviotdale, being that division drained by the Teviot and its tributary streams; this district comprehends about 500 square miles. Liddesdale, which forms the south-west corner of the co., comprehends the alpine territory, which is drained by the Liddle and its tributaries, and contains 120 square miles. The third division lies between the Gala and Leader, measuring 26 square miles; and the fourth, which is situate north of the Tweed, is included in the Merse, and comprehends 27 square miles. After being occupied by the Romans —as remains of forts, camps, and roads show— from A.D. 79 to 410, R. fell into the joint possession of the Strathclyde Britons on the west and the Bernicians on the east, to whom succeeded in 573 the Kings of Northumbria. R. shared the shifting fate of the Northumbrian kingdom up to 954, when it was reduced to an earldom; in the next century Malcolm Canmore got back the present Border cos. for Scotland, and about 1157, under Malcolm IV., the Border line was definitely settled. From that time forward this Border co. had to bear the burden of the various disputes between the sovereigns of the two kingdoms. In 1215 John burnt Roxburgh, and in 1292 the English Court of King's Bench sat at Roxburgh; early in the 13th cent. Edward II. held court in the same town, and a little later the English burnt Dryburgh Abbey. In 1460 Roxburgh, which had been held by the English for fifty years, was recaptured by the Scots and dismantled. In 1566 Queen Mary held a court at Jedburgh, and rode thence to Hermitage Castle to see her favourite, Earl Bothwell. In 1715 the Highlanders held Kelso for a few days on their way into England, and in 1745 Prince Charles stayed a night at Kelso. The district is intersected by Roman roads in various directions, and another class of antiquities belonging to the co. are towers or castles —among them the castle of Jedburgh, that of Roxburgh, and Hermitage Castle. The district was likewise famed for its religious edifices, which included the abbeys of Jedburgh, Melrose, and Kelso. The southern part of the co. is very mountainous, and throughout the whole territory there is little land absolutely flat. The Cheviots are the principal range, but there are also several hills of an altitude of over 1,000 ft. The soil varies considerably, much of it being exceedingly fertile; in some parts it is a rich loam, in others gravel and clay — the heavy clayey soil occupying the higher grounds, while loam occurs near the beds of rivers and rivulets. In Liddesdale there is much mossy land. It has been ascertained that so early as the 12th cent. the district produced great quantities of corn, and the amount of barley then ground at the mills exhibited the progress made in this branch of commerce. Under the intelligent monks the agriculture of the co. arrived at considerable perfection; and they introduced the knowledge of horticulture. Apples and pears are now extensively cultivated in the orchards of Melrose, Jedburgh, and Kelso. Excellent crops of wheat, barley, and oats are now grown, as are also potatoes, peas, beans, and turnips, the latter serving as food for the great numbers of sheep and cattle that are reared, and for the disposal of which large stock sales are held at Hawick, Kelso, and Newtown St. Boswells. The mineralogy of the shire is neither valuable nor varied. Between 1700 and 1770 coal was discovered in Carter Fell, near the borders of Northumberland; but, though wrought for some time, it was ultimately abandoned. Another seam was subsequently found near the south-eastern portion of Liddesdale, from which little benefit has been derived beyond that detached district. Various attempts have been made to find coal in different places in the co., but the inhabitants are still

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place. (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Roxburghshire	.....	.....	53500

supplied from Dumfriesshire, Edinburghshire, or Northumberland. The staple of the co. is the woollen trade, the seats of which are at Hawick, Jedburgh, and Kelso, where flannels, blankets, tartans, woollen cloth, lambs-wool yarn, and hosiery are extensively produced. The salmon fisheries of the Tweed are of consequence, and yield handsome rents to the proprietors. The principal streams are the Tweed, the Allan, the Leader, the Teviot, and the Eden. The Tyne and Coquet rivers rise in this co., and, entering England, fall into the sea at Tynemouth and Coquet Isle. The lochs are small and few in number, the principal being Yetholm Loch. The railway system is in the hands of the North British Company, from the main line of which several branches diverge. The co. returns one member to Parliament.

Roxby (1), tp., pa. of and 2½ W. from Hinderwell (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 2,410. St. Nicholas (chapel-of-ease) was rebuilt in 1817; it contains monuments to Lady Frances Boynton (1634), Lady Kathleen Fairfax (1666), and Thomas Boynton (1523), the founder of the chapel.

Roxby (2). [PICKHILL.]

Roxby-cum-Risby, pa. and vil. (Roxby), N. Lincs., 1 S.W. of Winterton; ac. 4,784; soil various, overlying ironstone, limestone, and sandstone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1875) is Dec.; in the chancel are two canopied sedilia and a piscina; in the south aisle are a piscina and an interesting tomb. In 1709 a Roman tessellated pavement was discovered near the church. A reading-room was opened in 1883.

Roxeth, eccl. pa., pa. of Harrow-on-the-Hill (q.v.), W. Middx. Christ Church was built 1863, in E. Eng. style. There is a lecture hall and two mission rooms.

Roxham, pa. on the Wissey, S.W. Norf., 2½ S.E. of Downham Market; ac. 591; soil clay, overlying sand and ragstone. The church of St. Michael now no longer exists. There are traces of a moat which anciently encompassed a house called "Walpole House."

Roxholme, tp., pa. of and 1 N. from Leasingham (q.v.), S.W. Lincs.; ac. 891. There is a Wesleyan chapel. R. Hall, a seat, is a modern mansion.

Roxton (1), pa. and vil. by the Ouse, N.E. Beds., 4½ S.W. of St. Neots; ac. 3,000; soil clay and gravel, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary (restored 1887 and 1890), originally Dec., was much altered in the Perp. period; the chancel retains a piscina and locker. On the south side of the chancel is an altar-tomb to Roger Hunt, who was Speaker of the Parliament 1420–21, and again 1433, and was appointed a Baron of the Exchequer 1438. On the north side of the church is a Perp. arched recess, with the recumbent effigy of a female on a low slab. A brass inscribed to John Fage, of Chalverstone (d. 1400), has been recovered and placed in the chancel. There is a Congregational chapel.

Roxton (2), ha., pa. of Immingham (q.v.), N. Lincs., 7½ N.E. of Caistor.

Roxwell, pa. and vil. on the Can, Mid Essex, 4½ W. of Chelmsford; ac. 4,782; soil mixed. St. Michael's Church (enlarged 1854) is Dec.; in the chancel is a mural monument to Sir John Bramston, Chief Justice of the King's Bench (1635–42); there is also an inscription to Thomas Younge (1593). Skreens Park, an old brick mansion, is a seat.

Roy (1), river, S. Invs., Sc., rises about 8 S. of Fort Augustus, and runs S. by W. to the Spean, which it joins 10½ miles (in a direct line) from its source.

Roy (2), island in Mulroy Bay, pa. of Mevagh (q.v.), N. co. Don., Ir., 7½ E. of Dunfanaghy; ac. 91.

Royal Canal, Ir., runs from the Liffey at Dublin to the Shannon at Richmond Harbour, passing W. through co. Dub., W. by N. through cos. Kildare and Wstm., and W. and N. by W. through co. Longf. It passes on the north side of the city of Dublin, and runs by Castleknock, Leixlip, Maynooth, Kilcock, Mullingar, Ballymahon, Keenagh, and Killashee. It was formed 1789–1802, and is about 95 miles long and 44 ft. wide. There are 46 locks on the canal, which reaches its summit-level (322 ft. above the sea) near Mullingar.

Royal Leamington Spa. [LEAMINGTON.]

Royal Military Canal. [MILITARY CANAL, ROYAL.]

Royal Oak, vil. on the Barrow, pa. of Killinane (q.v.), W. co. Carl., Ir., about 3 S. of Leighlinbridge.

Royal Sovereign Shoals, sandbanks off south-east coast of Sussex, 10 S.W. of Hastings. Here is a lightship with a flashing light, visible 10 miles.

Royalty Farm, formerly an uninhabited pa., S. Lincs., now merged in Swineshead (q.v.).

Roydhouse, ha., pa. of Kirkburton (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Huddersfield.

Roydon (1), pa. and vil. on the Stort, W. Essex, 5½ E. of Hertford; ac. 3,031; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Peter (repaired 1854) is of mixed periods; it contains brasses to Thomas Colte (d. 1471) and his wife, John Colte (d. 1521) and his wives and children, and Elizabeth Stanley (d. 1589). There is a Congregational chapel. A workmen's club was built in 1893. Jane Colte, the first wife of Sir Thomas More, was a native of R. Nether Hall formerly belonged to the Colte family, and was surrounded by a moat and wall. R. Lodge is a seat.

Roydon (2), or Roydon near Diss, pa. and vil., S. Norf., 1½ W. of Diss; ac. 1,329; soil mixed, overlying chiefly gravel. The church of St. Remigius is Perp.; the porch was built by the Rev. Temple Frere in memory of his son, Temple Frere, who was drowned at Cambridge while trying to save the life of a fellow-student; in the chancel are monuments to the Frere family. There is a charity for the aged poor, who have the interest of £900 2¾ per cents., and a charity of £14 yearly is divided between the church (for ornamental repairs) and poor. R. Hall, in extensive grounds, on the road from Diss to Thetford, is a seat.

Roydon (3), or Roydon near Lynn, pa. and vil.,

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roxby (1)	Staithes (2)	255	168
Roxby-cum-Risby	Appleby (4)	165	392
Roxeth	Harrow (1)	11	1869
Roxham	Ryston (1)	86	55
Roxholme	Ruskington (1)	114	126

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Roxton (1)	Tempsford (2)	47	441
Roxwell	Chelmsford (4½)	30	766
Roydon (1)	Roydon	20	969
Roydon (2)	Diss (1½)	95	739
Roydon (3)	Grimston Road	103	174

N.W. Norf., 6 E.N.E. of Lynn; ac. 871; soil mixed sand and clay, overlying clay and gravel. The church of All Saints, originally Norm., was rebuilt in 1857; there are two Norm. doorways, in the south porch and on the north side respectively.

Roydon near Diss. [ROYDON (2).]

Roydon near Lynn. [ROYDON (3).]

Roy's Cairn, hill (1,691 ft.), pa. of Knockando (q.v.). S. Elgs., Sc., about 1 S.W. of Knockando church.

Royston, pa. and mkt. to. (W.), N.E. Herts., 13 S.W. of Cambridge; ac. 315. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1872) is an E. Eng. edifice which formed part of the ancient conventual church, and was built 1250–80; the chancel was added in 1871. There are brasses to William Taverham or Tabram (d. 1421 or 1432), a civilian and his wife (c. 1500), and an inscription to William Chamber (d. 1546); in the chancel is a fine alabaster effigy of a knight. The pulpit and reading-desk are made from fragments of the old rood-screen; during the restoration three E. Eng. windows were discovered; in the vestry there is a library of about 200 volumes. The church and churchyard contain many memorials of the Wortham and Beldam families. There are Congregational, Unitarian, and Wesleyan chapels, and a Nonconformist cemetery. A cottage hospital was built in 1869, and there are almshouses (endowed in 1833 by Mrs. Barfield) for widows and four other almshouses for spinsters, besides several small charities. The Market House was erected about 1836. The Institute (built 1855) contains a museum, library, etc. Fairs are held on Ash Wednesday, Easter Wednesday, Whit-Wednesday, the first Wednesday in July, and the first after October 10. A priory of Austin Canons was founded here about 1180, and James I. built a hunting-seat here, of which latter a portion is still standing. On the hills to the east and west are many barrows, and antiquities have been found in the neighbourhood. Under Melbourn Street there is a curious cavern, known as "The Cave;" the bottom is nearly circular and surrounded by a broad ledge; the walls are covered with carvings of crucifixes, saints, etc., many of which have been coloured. The cave is believed to date from British times, and to have been used by the Romans as a sepulchre, and in later days to have been utilised as an oratory.

Roystone, pa., tp., and vil., W.R. Yorks., 7 S. of Wakefield; ac. of pa. 12,993, of tp. 1,022; soil clay and loam. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1859) was founded by the monks of Monk Bretton, and is Dec. and Perp.; it possesses a fine oak roof, some ancient frescoes, and monuments to the Neviles of Chevet, and to the Bayldon, Wood, Fletcher, and Rimmington families.. The tower has a fine oriel window. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The charities are about £50 yearly. The free grammar school, founded by letters patent in 1607, is endowed from the revenues of the dissolved chantry of R., and was reorganised in 1843.

Royton (1), eccl. pa., tp., and to., pa. of Prestwich (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., 2 N. of Oldham; ac. 1,372. The church of St. Paul is in Dec. style; there are monuments to Elizabeth Radcliffe (1796), Sir Joseph Radcliffe (1819), and Katherine Pickford (1765). All Saints' is a mission church attached to St. Paul's. A Roman Catholic church was built in 1880; there are Baptist, Primitive Methodist, Wesleyan, Independent Methodist, and Congregational chapels, and the Society of Friends have a meeting-house. The town hall and market was built in 1880.

Royton (2), tp., pa. of Bangor (q.v.), S.E. Denbighs., about 4 S.E. of Wrexham; ac. 702.

Rozel, fishing vil., pa. of St. Martin (q.v.), north-east coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 4¼ N.N.E. of St. Helier. The vil. is picturesquely situated at the foot of a valley descending to a small inlet called Havre de Roselle or Rozel Bay. There is a small harbour.

Ru-, for names not found under this spelling, see also RHU-.

Ruabon, or Rhiwabon, pa., to., and head of petty sess. div., S.E. Denbighs., 4½ S. by W. of Wrexham; ac. 13,918. R. is a prosperous little town, pleasantly situated on a small affluent of the Dee, which bounds the pa. on the south. The church of St. Mary is an ancient Gothic edifice, containing some interesting monuments of the Wynn family, and an altar-tomb with recumbent effigies of a knight belonging to the Eyton family and his lady (1526). The Baptists, Wesleyans, Primitive and Calvinistic Methodists, and Congregationalists have chapels. On a hill about ¾ mile from the town is Gardden, an ancient camp or vil. partly defended by concentric fosses. Coal-mining is carried on very extensively, and there are also important iron works and brick and terra-cotta works. Plas Madoc is said to occupy the site of a palace of the ancient Princes of Wales. Wynnstay, a seat, is beautifully situated in a park nearly 8 miles in circuit, through which flows the Dee. The park contains a magnificent avenue, about a mile in length; and there is a column upwards of 100 ft. in height, with an internal staircase. The old mansion, burnt down in 1858, has been replaced by an edifice in Renaissance style.

Ruan, pa., Inchiquin bar., Mid co. Clare, Ir., 4½ N. of Ennis; ac. 10,774. The land is rich and, to a large extent, in pasture. There is a Catholic church and a large public school. Dromore is a seat.

Ruan-Lanihorne, pa. and vil., S. Cornw., 10 S.E. of Truro; ac. 2,250; soil loam, overlying slaty schist. The pa. is washed on the west and south by the Fal, across which a bridge has now been placed from Lamorran to the vil. The church of St. Rumon, in a picturesque valley, was founded in 1315. The chancel retains a sedile, credence, and piscina; and the roof, the pulpit, and the communion table are all of fine old carved oak. In the transept is a squint. Under the floor which faces the altar is interred the Rev. John Whitaker, author of "The Ancient Cathedral of Cornwall" and rector of this pa. (1778–1808). In the wall of the south aisle is a

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Royston	Royston	45	1701
Roystone, pa.	Royston and Notton	178	10371
Roystone, tp.	Royston and Notton	178	2613
Royton (1), eccl. pa.	Royton	191	9244
Royton (1), tp.	Royton	191	12568
Royton (1), to.	Royton	191	13395
Royton (2)	Wrexham (4)	196	93
Ruabon	Ruabon	196	17258
Ruan	Ennis (4½)	151	999
Ruan-Lanihorne	Grampound Road(8)	287	301

stone coffin-lid of the 13th cent., bearing the demi-effigy of an ecclesiastic; and in the south transept is a stone effigy of St. Rumon. There are many modern monuments. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. Near the church formerly stood a castle, the outlines of which can be traced. Here is a small quay, and at high tide the river is navigable for barges of about 30 tons.

Ruan Major, pa., S. Cornw., 8 S.S.E. of Helston; ac. 2,553; soil chiefly clay, resting on serpentine. The church of St. Rumon, originally Perp., was rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1866.

Ruan Minor, coast pa. and vil., S. Cornw., 10 S.E. of Helston; ac. 658; soil clay and loam, overlying serpentine, which is quarried. A large portion of the pa. consists of downs. The church of St. Rumon (restored 1854–55) is Dec. There are Methodist and Bible Christian chapels.

Ruardean, pa. and vil. on the Wye, W. Glouc., 9 N.E. of Monmouth; ac. 1,590; soil sandstone, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (restored 1890 and 1891) is of mixed periods, but chiefly Norm.; the chancel retains a piscina. There are Congregational and Bible Christian chapels. The charities are small.

Ruberslaw, hill (1,392 ft.), pas. of Hobkirk and Cavers (q.v.), Mid Roxbs., Sc., 5 N.E. of Hawick. It used to be a favourite meeting-place for Covenanters, and some crags on its summit are named after Alexander Peden, "Peden's Pulpit."

Ruchill Water, stream, pa. of Comrie (q.v.), S.W. Perths., Sc., rises near Ben Vorlich, and flows for 10½ miles in a N.E. direction through Glen Artney to the Earn, which it joins at Dalginross, opposite the to. of Comrie.

Ruckcroft, vil., pa. of Ainstable (q.v.), E. Cumb., 3 N.W. of Kirkoswald.

Ruckinge, pa. and vil., S. Kent, 7 S. of Ashford; ac. 3,437; soil loam, overlying clay. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is Norm. and E. Eng. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. A charity of £1 yearly, arising from a piece of land called "Tinker's Town," at Romney Marsh, given by an unknown benefactor, is distributed in bread.

Ruckland, pa., E. Lincs., 6½ S. of Louth; ac. 713; soil limestone, overlying chalk. The church of St. Olave was built 1885, in Gothic style; the font is believed to be Saxon. There is a small charity.

Ruckley and Langley, tp. and small vil., pa. of Acton Burnell (q.v.), W. Salop, 5½ W. of Much Wenlock; ac. 1,536.

Rudbaxton, pa., Mid Pembs., about 3 N. of Haverfordwest; ac. 4,255. The church is dedicated to St. Michael. Lieut.-General Picton, who fell in the battle of Waterloo (1815), was a native.

Rudby-in-Cleveland, pa., tp., and vil. on the Leven, N.R. Yorks., 4 S.W. of Stokesley; ac. of pa. 7,562, of tp. 888; soil loamy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is an ancient Gothic edifice; in the south aisle is a tomb dated 1423, probably that of Robert Wyclyft, rector, monument to the Layton family c charities are small.

Rudchester, tp., pa. of and 3 N.E. (q.v.), S. Northumb.; ac. 647. The through the tp., which is the sit station Vindobala. The ruins of Ha to be seen here. There is an extensi Ruddington, large and populous Notts., 5 S. of Nottingham; ac. subsoil various. The church of rebuilt (except the tower) 1887–8 The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Prim have chapels. The inhabitants are ployed in stocking-weaving. The to about £83 annually.

Ruddy Beck, stream, S. Cumb., wick, runs about 1 N. by E. and N extremity of Crummock Water.

Ruddy Gill, mountain valley, S. W. of Keswick. The Gill leads d dale on the south-east side of S It takes its name from the red h A mountain torrent pursues its c ravine, down which there is a embracing part of Borrowdale and with Skiddaw and Saddleback in t

Rudford, pa., tp., and vil., N.W. of Gloucester; ac. of pa. 1,214, clay, overlying sand, stone, and cl of St. Mary (partly restored 1870 cloth covering the communion tab a vault has been opened here co number of human skeletons. T charity. In the pa. is an ancient inscription stating that it marks th the Welsh in Lord Herbert's force,

Rudge (1), tp. and small vil., pa (q.v.), E. Salop, partly in Staffs., hampton; ac. 1,542. R. Hall is a Rudge (2), ha., pa. of Becki Somerset, 3 N.E. of Frome.

Rudge (3), ti., pa. of and 2 s. (q.v.), N. Dev.

Rudge (4), ti., pa. of and 1 w. (q.v.), E. Wilts.

Rudgeway, ha., pa. of Alveston (3 S.W. of Thornbury.

Rudgwick, pa. and vil., N. Suss Horsham; ac. 6,022; soil chiefly Holy Trinity Church is a Dec. buil gregationalists have a chapel. At there are remains of old ironwork a seat.

Rudha Hunish, headland, pa. o Skye island, Invs., Sc., about 6 N the northernmost point of Skye.

Rudham, East, pa., tp. and vil., Fakenham, on the Lynn road; ac.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ruan Major	Helston (8)	319	79
Ruan Minor	Helston (10)	319	253
Ruardean	Cinderford (2)	131	1284
Ruckinge	Ham Street (2)	60	356
Ruckland	Authorpe (4)	135	38
Ruckley and Langley	Leebotwood (4)	172	78
Rudbaxton	Haverfordwest (3)	264	457
Rudby-in-C'land, pa.	Potto (1¼)	232	1190
Rudby-in-C'land, tp.	Potto (1¼)	232	62

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn fr. (1) place, (2) fr. L
Rudchester	Newcastle-on-T
Ruddington	Nottingham (5)
Rudford, pa.	Barbers Bridge
Rudford, tp.	Barbers Bridge
Rudge (1)	Wolverhampton
Rudgwick	Rudgwick
Rudham, East, pa.	East Rudham (1
Rudham, East, tp.	East Rudham (1

tp. 435; soil mixed, overlying principally chalk. The church of St. Mary (rebuilt 1873) is a large structure in Perp. style. The Primitive Methodists and Wesleyans have chapels. There is a fuel allotment of 20 ac. (the rent of which is distributed in coals to the poor at Christmas), and also a charity of £5 for the poor. Of the rent of 9 ac. of land (£15) £5 is expended in fuel and £10 given to the national school. A library and reading-room was erected in 1887 by the Marquess of Townshend. [OXFORD (2).]

Rudha Mhail, headland, north of island of Islay, Args., Sc., about 5 N. of Port Askaig. There is a lighthouse, with light visible 18 miles.

Rudham, West, pa. and vil., N. Norf., 2½ S.W. of East Rudham station; ac. 2,835; soil mixed, overlying chalk, marl, and clay. The church of St. Peter (restored 1891) is Dec.; the rood-screen remains. Here is a Methodist New Connexion chapel.

Rudh' an Dunain, headland, pa. of Bracadale (q.v.), island of Skye, Invs., Sc., at the south extremity of Loch Brittle, near the Cuillin Hills.

Rudheath, tp. and vil., pas. of Davenham, Great Budworth, and Sandbach (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 2 S.E. of Northwich; ac. 1,961. A chapel-of-ease was built in 1835. An engagement between the Royalist and Parliamentarian forces took place here on February 22, 1643.

Rudh Re, headland, pa. of and about 10 N.W. from Gairloch (q.v.), W. Ross and Crom., Sc.

Rudry, pa., E. Glamorgs., 2 E. of Caerphilly; ac. 2,668. The pa. derives its name from the number of yew-trees not far from the church, a modest building dedicated to St. James. The surrounding scenery is pleasingly varied, and from the higher grounds some fine views are obtained.

Rudston, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 5 W. of Bridlington; ac. 5,551; soil loam and gravel, overlying limestone and gravel. The church of All Saints (restored 1861) is a Norm. and Dec. building; the chancel, dating from 1280, has beautiful sedilia and a piscina; the nave has an arcade with circular piers (c. 1330); the font is Norm., as is the tower archway; there are piscinæ in the aisles. In the churchyard is a monolith, said to be the largest standing-stone in the kingdom, and believed to have been used by Phœnician merchants as a landmark, by the Druids for religious purposes, and by the Saxons to mark the crossing of the roads here. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Thorpe Hall is a seat.

Rudyard, tp. and vil., pa. of and 2½ N.W. from Leek (q.v.), N. Staffs.; ac. 1,435. There is a reservoir (covering 400 ac.) for feeding the Trent, Mersey, Leek, and Cauldon Canal. R. is a favourite resort for pleasure-seekers during the summer months. This place was formerly held by the Rudyard family; Ralph Rudyard fought at Bosworth Field, Aug. 22, 1485, on the Lancastrian side, and is said to have slain Richard III. Sir Benjamin Rudyard was a well-known wit and poet in the 17th cent., was also famous as a lawyer, and was the last surveyor of the Court of Wards.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rudham, West	East Rudham (2½)	113	420
Rudheath	Hartford (2½)	170	644
Rudry	Caerphilly (2)	163	409
Rudston	Burton Agnes (3)	219	578
Rudyard	Rudyard	159	75

Ruel, stream, S. Args., Sc., flows through Glendaruel for 10 miles in a S. direction to Loch Riddon.

Rueval, sound separating the islands of North Uist and Benbecula, Outer Hebrides, Invs., Sc. It is 9 miles long from east to west, and about 3 miles wide. It is generally known as Loch Rueval.

Rufford (1), pa. and vil. on the Douglas, W. Lancs., 5 N.E. of Ormskirk; ac. 3,120; soil sand, loam, and moss, overlying sand. The church of St. Mary (built in 1869, on the site of the former church) is in E. Eng. and Dec. styles; in the south aisle is a slab with figures of a knight and lady. Roger Dodsworth, the antiquary, was buried here in 1654. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Peter Lathom's charity amounts to about £25 yearly. A cattle fair is held here on May 13. R. Hall is a seat.

Rufford (2), pa. and vil., Mid Notts., 8 N. of Mansfield; ac. 9,938; soil sand and clay, overlying clay. R. Abbey was originally a religious house for Cistercian monks (a colony from Rievaulx in Yorkshire), founded by Gilbert de Gaunt, Earl of Lincoln, in 1148. Henry VIII. granted it to the Earl of Shrewsbury and Waterford in exchange for estates in Ireland. James I. and Charles I. used to visit it when hunting in Sherwood Forest. It is now a seat, the modern mansion being erected upon, and incorporated with, the remains of the ancient monastic buildings. The park extends over 500 acres, and is well wooded and stocked with deer. Divine service is held on Sunday in a private chapel of the abbey.

Rufforth, pa. and vil., W.R. Yorks., 5 W. of York; ac. 2,463; soil heavy, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is Norm. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Rugby (in Domesday "Rocheberie," and down to the reign of Elizabeth "Rokeby"), pa., U. and mkt. to. (M. & S.), head of petty sess. div. and Co. Co. dis., and important central railway station, E. Warws., about 30 S.E. of Birmingham; ac. 1,617. The Oxford Canal runs to the north of the town, which rests on a gravelly soil, on the summit of a tableland rising considerably from the southern bank of the Avon, distant about a mile. A great number of houses have been erected for the use of families resorting hither for the education of their sons, and few towns of the same size contain so large a body of clergy and gentry, most of whom are permanent residents. Nothing certain is known of the history of R. before the reign of Edward the Confessor—it is probable that it is of much higher antiquity; the existence of two tumuli in the immediate vicinity of the to., and of mediæval earthworks, now nearly obliterated, tend to such a conclusion. In March, 1645, Oliver Cromwell was quartered here with a large body of troops, and in 1690 William III. passed through R. on his way to Ireland just before the battle of the Boyne. The pa. church of St. Andrew was anciently a chapel-of-ease to Clifton-upon-Dunsmore, but in the reign of Henry III. R. became a distinct pa.; the church, after undergoing various alterations and three separate enlargements, was dismantled entirely, and the present edifice erected

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rufford (1)	Rufford	207	816
Rufford (2)	Farnesfield (4)	144	350
Rufforth	Hessay (2)	193	246
Rugby	Rugby	83	11262

in 1879, in Dec. style, the nave of the old church being retained to form a north aisle, and named "the Moultrie aisle," in memory of a former rector. Holy Trinity (built 1854), a chapel-of-ease, is in Dec. style. The church of the eccl. pa. of St. Matthew is in E. Eng. style. The Catholic church of St. Marie, from the designs of Welby Pugin, is in E. Eng. style; adjoining is St. Marie's College, belonging to the Fathers of Charity: and the Sisters of Providence have a convent and school. There are also chapels for various bodies of Dissenters. The grammar school, one of the most important in the kingdom, was founded in 1567 by Lawrence Sherriff, a merchant grocer and servant to Queen Elizabeth, and a native of the town, originally for the children of R. and Brownsover and the neighbourhood. The first endowment consisted simply of a small estate at Brownsover; subsequently the founder added 8 ac. of land, then called the Conduit Close, near the Foundling Hospital, in London, and now forming Lamb's Conduit Street, afterwards let on building leases, and, on these falling in, the income of the charity was increased. The school stood in the first instance opposite the pa. church, on the site now occupied by almshouses, and was removed to the south side of the town between 1740 and 1750. In 1809 the older schools and headmaster's house were rebuilt in their present collegiate style. R. now ranks as one of the first public schools, and numbers among its headmasters many very able men, chief of whom was Dr. Arnold (1827–42). At the tercentenary in 1867 subscriptions were started, by which a gymnasium and pavilion have been completed; the chapel rebuilt, with the addition of a stone spire; and a new quadrangle built, which was finished in 1885. There have also been added the Temple reading-room, the art museum, the observatory, a second racquet court, additional fives courts, a swimming bath, and workshop. The chapel, which contains many interesting monuments to Old Rugbeians, has also received continual improvement and decoration. A lower school was erected in 1878, the cost being defray endowment of the grammar school. T contains a large assembly room, and back a covered market hall. The library was opened in 1891. In the c with an area of 6 ac., near the rail weekly stock sales are held; and ther fairs during the year. The Hospital of Late Domestic Gothic style (1884), R. has three sets of almshouses, the from the 16th cent. The public recre covers about 9 ac. A few Roman r been found, and these, with some me quities, have been deposited in the art

Rugby Division, one of the four p Warws.; it lies in the south-east of returns one member.

Rugeley, pa. and mkt. to. (TH. & S.),

RUGBY, THE CLOSE.
(Photo. E. H. Speight, Rugby.)

situated in a pleasant vale, bounded by the hills of Cannock Chase, and o east by the Trent, over which is a bridg The Grand Trunk Canal passes thr small rivulet also flows through fr Chase on the west, working several course, and joins the Trent. The to of Stafford, on the highroad to Lich church of St. Augustine is a modern Gothic style. The tower and chancel pa. church, still standing on the opp the road, are E. Eng.; the chance partially restored, and is used for div there is a brass to John Weston (1566) (Ford) his wife. There is a Catholic the Congregationalists, Wesleyans, a Methodists have chapels. The gra was founded in 1611, and reorganis The Public Buildings (1879) form a red brick with Bath stone dressings, i and comprise a market hall, public ass and the usual offices. Combined with and recreation room is the R. free l district hospital (1871) is in Dom

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rugby Division	.....	.....	49737
Rugeley, pa.	Rugeley	125	6942

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., an fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. o
Rugeley, mkt. to.	Rugeley style; there is also a provident dispensary, and a convalescent home. Here are three corn mills, two iron foundries, and a tanyard of considerable trade and dimensions. In the pa. are extensive collieries. Four annual fairs are held for horses and cattle, and there are stock sales on alternate Tuesdays. The charities are important, amounting to nearly £1,100 a year; and there are several almshouses. Chaseley House, Hagley Hall (a mansion of some antiquity in an exceedingly picturesque park), and Stone House are seats.

RUGELEY.

Rugley, ha., pa. of and 3 s. from Alnwick (q.v.), N. Northumb.

Ruin Reach. [REACH (1).]

Ruishton, pa. and vil. on the Tone, S. Somerset, 3 E. of Taunton; ac. 1,000; soil marl, overlying Upper Red Sandstone. St. George's Church (restored 1866) is Dec. and Perp., with traces of Norm. work in the porch and tower; the seats are those formerly used in the Royal Savoy chapel, Strand, London. In the churchyard are several tombs of the Proctor family, dating from 1621, and some remains of a stone cross. Henlade House and Woodlands House are seats.

Ruislip, pa. and vil., N.W. Middx., 4 N.E. of Uxbridge; ac. 6,585; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Martin (partly restored 1870) is Dec.; in 1853 some very interesting 15th-cent. paintings were discovered; in the chancel is a piscina, and a monument to Mary, wife of Sir John Bankes (d. c. 1645); among other memorials are those to Raphe Hawtrey (d. 1638), a brass to John Hawtrey (d. 1674), and another to Mary Keene (d. 1695); in the vestry are two fine oak chests and a copy of Jewell's "Apology"; the font is Norm. There are several charities; and ten church houses were built about 1730 by Mary, wife of Sir Thomas Francklyn, Bart. R. Park Wood is a favourite resort of fox-hunters; at the back of the wood is a reservoir, belonging to the Regent's Canal Company, much frequented by anglers. R. Park, with grounds of about 40 ac., is a seat.

Ruislip Common, ha., pa. of and 1½ N.W. from Ruislip (q.v.), N.W. Middx. The Wesleyans have a chapel. The ha. commands a wide and beautiful view.

Rule Water, stream, Mid Roxbs., Sc., rises in the pa. of Hobkirk (q.v.), and flows in a N. direction for about 10 miles to the Teviot, which it joins 2 N.E. of Denholm.

Rullion Green, pl. on slope of the Pentland Hills, pa. of Glencorse (q.v.), Mid Edins., Sc., nearly 2 N.W. of Penicuik. Here the Covenanters were defeated in 1666.

Rumble Churn. [DUNSTON (4).]

Rumbles (or Rombalds) Moor, hill-range, W.R. Yorks., lying between Skipton, Keighley, Guiseley, and Ilkley. It is a moorland tract, comprising a series of broad-based hills extending north-west and south-east for about 10 miles, and reaching an extreme height of 1,323 ft. The moor is supposed to derive its name from William de Romillé, the first Norman lord of the manor of Skipton. The road from Keighley to Ilkley commands very fine views. About 2 S.E. of Ilkley there is an ancient entrenchment, said to be British; also several tumuli.

Rumbling Bridge (1), romantic spot, pa. of Fossoway (q.v.), on the borders of Kinrs. and Perths., Sc., 4 N.E. of Dollar. The bridge crosses the Devon, which here runs through a deep cleft. It is double, consisting of an old narrow arch built in 1713, and a loftier one built in 1816, both commanding a grand view. The roadway is about 120 ft. above the water, which rushes beneath in a continuous roar, and is especially picturesque above the bridge.

RUMBLING BRIDGE.
(Photo. Andrew Young, Burntisland.)

Rumbling Bridge (2), bridge over the Bran, pa. of Little Dunkeld (q.v.), E. Perths., Sc., nearly 3 S.W. of Dunkeld.

Rumbolds Wyke, pa. mostly in the city of Chichester (q.v.), S.W. Sussex; ac. 652. There are

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ruishton	Thorne	157	483
Ruislip	Pinner (3)	13	1836

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rumbolds Wyke	Chichester (1)	69	1497

two small charities. The Teresian convent of Mount Carmel, built in 1872, is a brick building.

Rumbridge, or Rumbridge Street, ha., pa. of Eling (q.v.), S. Hants, 4 N.W. of Southampton.

Rumburgh, pa. and vil., N.E. Suff., 4 N.W. of Halesworth; ac. 1,506; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Michael is an old and curiously-built edifice of flint of mixed periods. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel. The town lands consist of 47 ac., which, together with other parish property, yield about £68 yearly; these funds are applied to the repairs of the church and coals for the poor. Here was formerly a Benedictine priory, founded by the monks of Hulme in 1065, and dedicated to St. Michael and St. Felix. The tower remains.

Rumford and Craigs, contiguous vils., respectively situated in the pas. of Muiravonside and Polmont, S.E. Stirls., Sc., 3 W. of Linlithgow.

Rum Island, pa. of Small Isles (q.v.), Inner Hebrides, Invs., Sc. R. is the largest of the group, and lies about 9 W. of Sleat Point. The island is mountainous, and several of the summits rise to about 2,000 ft. The landing-place is in Loch Scresort, on the east coast. In the northern part of the island is the Small Isles pa. church.

Rumney (1), pa. and vil. on the Rhymney, S.W. Mon., 3 N.E. of Cardiff; ac. 2,158; soil clayey, with some gravel, subsoil stony. The church of St. Augustine (restored 1860) is E. Eng., with some Dec. and Perp. work. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels.

Rumney (2). [RHYMNEY.]

Rumps, The, fine headland, N.W. Cornw., forming the west boundary of Portquin Bay, about 4 N. of Padstow.

Rumworth, tp., pa. of Deane (q.v.), Mid Lancs., partly within the bor. of Bolton; ac. 1,244.

Runckton, ha., pa. of North Mundham (q.v.), W. Sussex, 2 S. of Chichester.

Runcorn, pa., tp., seaport, U. and mkt. to. (S.), Mid Chesh., about 15 E.S.E. of Liverpool; ac. of pa. 18,894 (2,140 tidal water and foreshore), of tp. 1,113 and 619 tidal water and foreshore. R. is on the south side of the Mersey, which is here crossed by a bridge of the London and North Western Railway, with a footway for passengers. The origin of R. is unknown; it has been called "Runcofan" (Anglo-Saxon cofa = "a cove," "the wide cove or inlet"), "Rumcoven," and "Ronchestorn." The town was founded by Ethelfleda, daughter of Alfred the Great, and, to defend it from invasion by the Danes, she built a castle and forts; the rock on which this castle was supposed to have been built, called "Castle Rock," has been removed for the construction of the Manchester Ship Canal. The river Mersey is contracted, by the out-swelling of both shores, to a width at high water of about 400 yds., and this comparatively narrow passage is known as "Runcorn Gap," the Ship Canal now following the course of its southern shore. The church of All Saints (built 1849, on the site of the ancient church existing here in the 10th cent.) is in E. Eng. style. The eccl. pa. of Holy Trinity has a church in Lancet style; and the Roman Catholics and several Nonconformist bodies have places of worship. Other public buildings include the Seamen's and Boatmen's Institute, with chapel and recreation rooms; the Custom House, near the docks; the Market Hall (1856), in Bridge Street; the Bridewell (1831), in Bridge Street, a plain red sandstone building, comprising a large room for public business, a spacious court-room, and in the basement seven cells; the Theatre Royal (1869), in Wellington Street; the Public Hall, in Church Street; the Foresters' Hall (1836), in Bridgewater Street; and the free public library. The charities amount to about £68 yearly, and there is a yearly sum of £10 for education. Two pleasure fairs are held annually, on the first Monday in November and on Whit-Monday. The soap and alkali trades, tanning, and iron-founding are largely carried on. The Duke of Bridgewater's Canal (completed and opened in 1773, under the direction of the famous engineer James Brindley, and now the property of the Manchester Ship Canal Company) has been the chief cause of the rise and increasing prosperity of R. There are extensive docks here in connection with the canal. The Port of R. is about 15 miles higher up the river than Liverpool, has extensive warehouse and shed accommodation, and the most approved appliances are provided for the discharge and reloading of vessels. There is a large traffic in potters' materials, such as china-clay, flints, china-stones, bone-ash, etc., as well as a miscellaneous traffic in pig-iron, slates, ochre, and umber. The exports are mainly coal, salt, and pitch.

Runcton, North, pa. and vil., N.W. Norf., 3 S.S.E. of Lynn; ac. 1,339; soil good, but mixed, overlying principally clay. The church of All Saints (renovated 1887) is in Grecian style. There are 13 ac. of glebe, which produce £40 yearly, used for the maintenance of the church. The charities are of the annual value of about £9 for fuel. R. Hall, situated in pleasant grounds, is a seat.

Runcton, South, pa. and vil., W. Norf., 7 S. of Lynn; ac. 831; soil light, overlying gravel. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1875) is a small Norm. building.

Rundhurst, ha., pa. of Lurgashall (q.v.), W. Sussex, 2 S.E. of Haslemere.

Rundlestone, dangerous granite rock on the west side of Mounts Bay, S.W. Cornw., about 3½ S.E. of Lands End. It has been the scene of several shipwrecks.

Runhall, pa., S. Norf., 6 W.N.W. of Wymondham; ac. 850; soil clayey, overlying brick-earth. The river forms the southern boundary of the pa. The church of All Saints (partially restored 1870) is Perp. The commons were enclosed in 1852, and 3 ac. are let in allotment to labourers.

Runham, pa. on the banks of the Bure (over which is a ferry, called R. Swim), S.E. Norf., 3 S.W. of Ormesby station; ac. 1,636; soil good mixed, overlying light clay. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored 1855) is E. Eng. Here is a small Primitive Methodist chapel. There is 1 ac. of land

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rumburgh	Bungay (5)	114	378
Rum Island	Oban (60)	504	53
Rumney (1)	Cardiff (3)	163	540
Rumworth	Rumworth	197	6754
Runcorn, pa.	Runcorn	180	29060

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Runcorn, tp.	Runcorn	180	29060
Runcton, North	Hardwick Road (2)	96	285
Runcton, South	Downham (4)	86	126
Runhall	Hardingham (1)	116	187
Runham	Great Ormesby (3½)	133	895

for poor widows, and a poor's allotment of 27 ac., let at about £41 yearly, which is distributed in coals.

Runnington, pa. and small vil. on the Tone, S.W. Somerset, 1 N.W. of Wellington; ac. 321; soil loam sand, overlying rock. The church of St. Peter is E. Eng., and contains remains of a rood-loft staircase.

Runnymede, broad level meadow on the Thames, pa. of Egham (q.v.), W. Surrey, about 2 w. of Staines. It is disputed whether King John signed

RUNNYMEDE, FROM COOPER'S HILL.

Magna Charta (1215) here or on the adjacent island named Magna Charta. The charter itself states that it was given in the meadow called R., but the name may have been applied also to the island. Egham races are held here annually.

Runsall, ha., pa. of Danbury (q.v.), W. Essex, 3 S.W. of Malden.

Runston, ha., pa. of Mathern and St. Pierre (q.v.), S.E. Mon., about 3 S.S.W. of Chepstow. R. was once a separate pa. All that remains of the former vil. consists of a few irregular heaps of fallen masonry and the roofless walls of a Norm. church, which appears to have been in use up to the early part of the 18th cent., and occupies a remarkably picturesque though solitary position.

Runswick, picturesque fishing vil. on bay of the same name, pa. of Hinderwell (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 8 S.W. of Whitby. There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. R. is a favourite resort of artists, and presents a quaint aspect, the houses clinging to the sides of the cliff, the cottages here and there being out of the perpendicular.

Runswick Bay, a fine inlet, N.R. Yorks., about 8 S.W. of Whitby. It has a fine stretch of sand, and affords excellent bathing.

Runton, coast pa., E. Norf., about 2 W. of Cromer station; ac. 1,253; soil light, overlying clay. The church of the Holy Trinity (restored 1886) is E. Eng. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel, and a reading-room with a library. The poor's land yields about £56 yearly, distributed in money and coals.

Runwell, pa. and vil. near the Crouch, S. Essex, 10 S.S.E. of Chelmsford; ac. 2,070; soil rich loam. The church of St. Mary is Perp., and contains an ancient monument to Eustace Sulyard (d. 1547) and his wife, and another to Edward Sulyard (d. 1692), "the last of his house"; in the chancel is a slab to Sir Thomas Raymond (d. 1683), Baron of the Exchequer (1679–80) and a Justice of the King's Bench (1680–83); there is a squint in the chancel, and piscinæ both in chancel and in the aisles. R. Hall, a modern mansion, is a seat.

Rusco Castle, seat, pa. of Anwoth (q.v), S. Kirkcuds., Sc., 3 N.W. of Gatehouse of Fleet. It dates back to the 15th cent.

Ruscombe, pa. and vil., S. Berks., 6 E. of Reading; ac. 1,249; soil mostly gravel, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. James dates back to early in the 12th cent. Stanlake Park is a seat, partly in this pa. and partly in the pa. of Hurst.

Rush, small port, pa. of Lusk (q.v.), N. co. Dub., Ir., 7 S.S.E. of Balbriggan. The harbour is difficult of access. Kenure Park is noted for its fine paintings, and as once having been the residence of the Duke of Ormonde.

Rushall (1), pa. and vil., S. Staffs., 1½ N.N.E. of Walsall; ac. 1,924; soil chiefly clay, overlying coal and limestone. The church of St. Michael, formerly a chapel-of-ease to Walsall, is a Gothic building (rebuilt 1858, and the tower rebuilt 1867); Edward Leigh, M.P. for Stafford in the Long Parliament and a colonel in the Parliamentary army, was buried here (d. 1671). There is an iron mission church, and Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. Two almshouses were built here in 1886. Only ruins remain of R. Hall, a fortified place during the Wars of the Roses, and garrisoned during the Civil War; the court or castle was erected by a member of the Harper family, whose arms appear on the gateway near the church; various relics of the Civil War have been found here and on Ryecroft Hill. Mining is carried on. R. Hall, adjoining the ruins of the old house, is a seat.

Rushall (2), pa. and small vil., S. Norf., about 6 N.E. of Diss; ac. 1,150; soil mixed, overlying clay and gravel. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is Dec., with a round tower; the chancel has two remarkable lancet windows; the stairs leading to the ancient rood-loft remain and are perfect. A charity producing £13 yearly is devoted to church expenses. The Hall, now occupied as a farmhouse, is entirely surrounded by a moat filled with water.

Rushall (3), pa. and vil. on the Avon, Mid Wilts., 9 S.E. of Devizes; ac. 2,200; soil clay and chalk, overlying chalk. The church of St. Matthew is partly Norm., with Norm. tower. There is an endowed Baptist chapel.

Rushbrooke, pa. on the Lark, N.W. Suff., 3 S.E. of Bury St. Edmunds; ac. 1,060; soil clay and chalk, overlying chalk and loam. The church of St. Nicholas is a small E. Eng. building; the chapel in the south aisle and the chancel contain several monuments of the Jermyns; and there are marble monuments to the Rushbrooke family in the south aisle, and tablets to the Davers and Moyle families. The almshouse here was rebuilt in 1700, and endowed by Thomas, Lord Jermyn, for

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Runnington	Wellington (1)	165	63
Runton	West Runton (1)	140	601
Runwell	Pitsea (5)	27	275
Ruscombe	Stroud (1)	102	349
Rush	Rush and Lusk (2)	14	1130
Rushall (1)	Rushall	122	6980
Rushall (2)	Pulham St. Mary (1½)	104	199
Rushall (3)	Pewsey (4)	75	188
Rushbrooke	Welnetham (1½)	73	136

four poor persons, who are allowed 2s. per week, with firing. Here is a lake of 6 ac., used for boating, fishing, and skating. R. Hall is a moated mansion in a well-wooded park of 150 ac.; it forms three sides of a quadrangle; the east wing was built in the reign of King John, and the west wing is of the Elizabethan period; the front faces the south; the entrance-hall contains many trophies of arms; in the east wing are the dining-room and other apartments; the library is in the west wing, where many old manuscripts and paintings of the early masters are preserved; passing through this apartment, the drawing-room is reached where Queen Elizabeth held her Court in 1578, and it contains some of the furniture used at that time, which is in good preservation. Adjoining is the old Catholic chapel, now used as a billiard-room. The grand staircase, leading to the royal and other bedrooms, is hung with tapestry.

Rushbury, pa. and vil., S. Salop, 17 S. of Shrewsbury; ac. 3,606; soil chiefly clay, overlying clay and rock. St. Peter's Church (repaired 1855) is E. Eng., and contains some good carved oak. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a reading-room with a small library. The charities are small. R. was a Roman station.

Rushcliffe Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Notts. It lies in the south-west of the co., and returns one member.

Rushden (1), pa. and to., E. Northants, 2 E. of Irchester; ac. 3,590; soil clay and sand, overlying clay, gravel, and limestone. The church of St. Mary (restored 1875) is E. Eng., Dec., and Perp.; in the chancel are three E. Eng. sedilia and a piscina, and there is some ancient stained glass; among the monuments are those to John Ekins (d. 1677), a recumbent effigy of Sir Goddard Pemberton (d. 1616), effigies of Robert Pemberton (d. 1608) and Mary, his wife (d. 1609), and a mural tablet to Elizabeth Ekins (d. 1663). The Wesleyans and Baptists have chapels. Four almshouses were erected in 1883, and there are several charities. A Working Men's Club was built in 1891. Boot- and shoe-making is carried on. R. Hall, an Elizabethan mansion, is a seat.

Rushden (2), pa. and vil., N. Herts., 7½ S.W. of Royston; ac. 1,508; soil heavy, overlying clay and chalk. St. Mary's Church is Dec. and Perp., and contains a monument to Sir Adolphus Meetkerke (d. 1591), moved here in 1754 from St. Botolph, Aldersgate, London; he was Ambassador from the Court of Flanders to Queen Elizabeth. The school has a small endowment. Julians, a seat, was built about 1610.

Rusheenacholla, island, pa. of Moyrus (q.v.), W. co. Galway, Ir.; ac. 78.

Rushen, pa., S.W. I. of M., 9 W. by S. of Douglas; ac. 7,456. The pa. includes the Calf of Man (q.v.), which is separated from the main island by Calf Sound. It contains the towns of Port Erin (q.v.) and Port St. Mary (q.v.). Trinity Church is a modern edifice on the site of an old building demolished in 1775. The Giants' Quoiting Stones, said to have been hurled by giants from the summit of Mull Hill, probably formed part of a stone circle. An ancient cross near the church bears a Runic inscription.

Rushen Abbey, ancient monastery, pa. of Malew (q.v.), S.W. I. of M., 1¾ N.N.E. of Castletown. The abbey was a Cistercian house, and is said to have been founded in 1098 by Macmarus, who ruled the island under Magnus, King of Norway, but, according to a chronicle compiled by the monks, it was built in 1134 on land granted by King Olaf. The remains include the square tower and part of the refectory and dormitories. The Abbot's House is now a hotel. The abbey was not dissolved till the reign of Elizabeth.

Rushen Castle, Castletown, I. of M. The present building was erected by the Stanleys, at the beginning of the 15th cent.; but it is said that a stronghold existed here from the 6th cent. Down to the end of the 18th cent. this castle was the residence of the deputy-governor, and was also used as a prison. [Castletown (1).]

Rushen Castle.

Rushett Common, vil., pa. of Bramley (q.v.), S.W. Surrey, about 5 S.E. of Godalming.

Rushford, pa. on the Little Ouse, S.W. Norf., 4 S.E. of Thetford; ac. 3,603; soil sandy, overlying chalk and gravel. The church of St. John the Evangelist (formerly attached to the college of St. John the Evangelist, dissolved in 1541) is Dec. The only parts of the original church are the nave and western tower, but the adjoining remains of the collegiate buildings, now occupied by the rector as a residence, are curious and interesting.

Rush Green (1), ha., pa. of and 1 S. from Ware (q.v.), E. Herts.

Rush Green (2), ha., pa. of and 1 S.W. from Romford (q.v.), S. Essex.

Rushlake Green, vil., pa. of and 1½ E. from Warbleton (q.v.), E. Sussex.

Rushley, ha. on the Manyfold, pa. of Ilam (q.v.), N.E. Staffs., 9½ N.E. of Cheadle.

Rushley Island, in the estuary of the Roche, pa. of Great Wakering (q.v.), S.E. Essex, about 6 E.S.E. of Rochford.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Rushbury	Rushbury	172	550
Rushcliffe Division	.....	.....	64603
Rushden (1)	Irchester	63	7443
Rushden (2)	Buntingford (4)	34	225
Rusheenacholla	Clifden (5)	197	26
Rushen	Port Erin	291	3415
Rushford	Thetford (4)	90	189

Rushmere (1), or Rushmere near Lowestoft, pa. and vil. in a quiet valley, N.E. Suff., 6 s. of Beccles; ac. 746; soil loamy, overlying sand. The church of St. Michael is E. Dec., with round western tower and thatched roof. In one corner of the nave is a deep and lofty recess for the banners and crosses formerly used in processions. Here are sand-pits.

Rushmere (2), or Rushmere St. Andrews, pa. and vil., S.E. Suff., 3 N.W. of Ipswich, but partly within the liberties of that bor.; ac. 2,142; soil mixed, overlying gravel and clay. The church of St. Andrew was rebuilt in 1861, in E. Eng. style; the tower, a work of the early part of the 16th cent., is the only part of the old church which remains. A Norm. doorway has been carefully preserved and rebuilt in the south wall, and forms the principal entrance. The seats are all open oak benches, terminated by handsome standards. The Baptists have a chapel. Pinetoft is a seat, and there are many other good residences.

Rushmere near Lowestoft. [RUSHMERE (1).]

Rushmere St. Andrews. [RUSHMERE (2).]

Rushock (1), pa. and vil., Mid Worcs., 5 N. of Droitwich; ac. 1,242; soil clay, subsoil marl. The church of St. Michael (1758) is in Gothic style.

Rushock (2), ha., pa. of and 6 N.E. from Kington (q.v.), N.W. Herefords.

Rusholme, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. and within the parl. bor. of Manchester (q.v.), S.E. Lancs., about 2 s. of the city of Manchester; ac. 600. The church of the Holy Trinity is in Gothic style.

Rush Shoal, sandbank off north-east coast of co. Wex., Ir., near Glascarrig Point. It is 4 miles in length.

Rushton (1), pa. and vil. on the Ise, N. Northants, 4 N.W. of Kettering; ac. 3,102; soil loam, clay, and limestone, overlying ironstone. St. Peter's Church was taken down in 1830; All Saints' Church (restored 1869) is chiefly E. Eng.; among the monuments are effigies of Sir William de Goldingham (d. 1296) and to Sir Thomas Tresham, Lord Prior of the Knights Hospitaller of St. John of Jerusalem. R. Hall, a seat, was built by Sir Thomas Tresham.

Rushton (2), tp. and scattered vil., pa. of Tarporley (q.v.), Mid Chesh., 12½ S.E. of Chester; ac. 1,745. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Boothurst is an ancient mansion.

Rushton (3), ha., pa. of and ½ S.E. from East Stoke (q.v.), E. Dors.

Rushton James, tp., pa. of Leek (q.v.), N. Staffs., about 7 S.E. of Macclesfield; ac. 1,390. There is a small charity.

Rushton Spencer, eccl. pa. and tp., pa. of Leek (q.v.), N. Staffs., 7 S.E. of Macclesfield. The church of St. Lawrence the Martyr (formerly known as the "Chapel in the Wilderness") is an ancient building on a steep elevation surrounded by fine yews and firs; it was originally built almost entirely of timber, and in the nave is some extremely curious dog-tooth work in oak. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have chapels. There are several small charities.

Rushton Tarrant. [TARRANT RUSHTON.]

Rushyford, ha., pa. of Auckland St. Andrew (q.v.), S. Dur., 5 S.E. of Bishop Auckland.

Ruskie, ha. on Loch Ruskie, pa. of Port of Menteith (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., 3½ S. of Callander.

Ruskington, pa. and vil., S.W. Lincs., 3½ N. of Sleaford; ac. 4,750; soil light, with some clay, overlying gravel and clay. The church of All Saints (restored 1861) is Norm. and E. Eng.; the tower was rebuilt in 1620, and its fine Norm. arch moved to the south side of the building. The font is Perp., and there is a sedile and an aumbry. Near the tower is a stone slab with the effigy of a priest. There are Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The pa. has a share in a charity of £42 yearly left by Lady Hodgson of Rowston in 1719. Here are two cottages for the poor. A Temperance Hall was erected in 1857, and a reading-room and library built in 1877.

Rusland, eccl. pa. and ha., pa. of Colton (q.v.), N. Lancs., about 10 N.E. of Ulverston. The church of St. Paul is a modern stone building. There is an ancient Friends' meeting-house, supposed to have been founded by George Fox about 1652. A parish room with reading-room was built in 1890. R. Hall is a seat, standing on an eminence overlooking some beautiful scenery.

Rusper, pa. and vil., N. Sussex, 5 N.E. of Horsham; ac. 3,123; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Mary (partly rebuilt 1855) is an E. Eng. building; there is a curious brass of the Kingsfold family. Of R. Convent, founded in the reign of Richard I. for Benedictine nuns, only fragments of the dormitory and refectory remain. R. Nunnery and Normans, an old house, are seats.

Russagh, pa. on the Inny, Moygoish bar., N. co. Wstm., Ir., 4½ S.E. of Edgeworthstown; ac. 2,570.

Russel, Great, sea-channel between Herm and Sark, Channel Islands, 5 E. of St. Peter Port. The channel is about 3½ miles in width.

Russel, Little, sea-channel between Guernsey and Herm, Channel Islands, 3 N.E. of St. Peter Port. The channel varies in width from 2½ to 3¾ miles. It is beset with dangerous rocks, which are marked by beacons.

Russell's Water, ha., pa. of Swyncombe (q.v.), S. Oxon. 3½ S.E. of Watlington. The Wesleyans have a chapel.

Rusthall, eccl. pa., pa. of and 2 s. from Speldhurst (q.v.), W. Kent. St. Paul's Church was erected 1850, in E. Eng. style. There is a Congregational chapel. R. Common is a large open waste, and is noted for its massive and singularly-shaped rocks, one of which, a huge mass of sandstone, is known as the "Toad Rock."

Rustington, coast pa. and vil., S.W. Sussex, 4½ S.E. of Arundel; ac. 985; soil rich mould,

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rushmere (1)	Carlton Colville (2½)	116	154
Rushmere (2)	Ipswich	69	668
Rushock (1)	Hartlebury (2½)	131	165
Rusholme, eccl. pa.	Longsight (½)	182	4094
Rusholme, tp.	Longsight (½)	182	10696
Rushton (1)	Rushton	76	445
Rushton (2)	Beeston Castle (3)	169	324
Rushton James	Rushton (1)	162	242
Rushton Sp., eccl. pa.	Rushton Spencer	162	952
Rushton Spencer, tp.	Rushton Spencer	162	339
Ruskington	Ruskington	114	1095
Rusland	Windermere (3)	259	130
Rusper	Fay Gate (2)	34	548
Russagh	Edgeworthstown (4)	76	306
Rusthall	Tunbridge Wells (1)	33	3081
Rustington	Littlehampton (1½)	61	434

overlying loam. The church of SS. Peter and Paul (restored) is chiefly E. Eng. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel. There is a small charity.

Ruston, vil., pa. of Wykeham (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 5½ S.W. of Scarborough.

Ruston, East, coast pa. and scattered vil., E. Norf., 5½ E. of North Walsham; ac. 2,446, mostly in tillage, with the exception of 300 ac. of common land; soil fine rich loam, overlying sand, gravel, and clay. The church of St. Mary (restored) is Perp.; the panels of the chancel screen are embellished with paintings of St. Gregory, St. Ambrose, St. Augustine, and St. Jerome, and there is a fine font, enriched with carvings, representing the symbols of the Evangelists. Richard Porson, the celebrated Greek scholar and professor of Greek at Cambridge University, was born here December 25, 1759, his father being then parish clerk. R. Hall is a seat.

Ruston Parva, pa. and vil., E.R. Yorks., 4 N.E. of Driffield; ac. 960; soil and subsoil chalk. The church of All Saints was rebuilt in 1832. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Ruston, South. [Sco Ruston.]

Ruswarp, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., on the Esk, pa. of and about 2 S.W. from Whitby (q.v.), N.R. Yorks.; ac. 1,740. The church of St. Bartholomew is in E. Eng. style.

Ruswick. [Runswick.]

Rutherford, decayed vil., pa. of Maxton (q.v.), N. Roxbs., Sc., 6 S.W. of Kelso.

Rutherglen, or Ruglen, pa. and to., parl. and royal burgh, N.W. Lanarks., Sc., 2½ S.E. of Glasgow; ac. 2,151; soil on the whole good; coal is abundant. The town consists of one principal street, with many smaller ones branching from it. R. was erected into a royal burgh in 1126 by David I., and under his charter the inhabitants enjoyed many privileges. After that period small craft came up the Clyde to Rutherglen Quay. The pa. church, with the exception of the tower, was built in 1794; the tower, now standing detached, is a plain square structure, with a sort of broach spire, relieved by dormers. In the old church of Rutherglen Sir John Monteith, in 1291, engaged to betray to the English his friend and companion, Sir William Wallace. The town hall (1861) is a structure of dressed freestone, with a large square tower, containing a clock with four dials. In the vicinity are collieries, and there are chemical and dye works, several factories, a paper-mill, a pottery, tube works, and a shipbuilding yard, which give employment to a large number of the inhabitants. Fairs are held on the first Friday after May 4, first Tuesday after June 4, first Friday after July 25, first Friday after Aug. 25, Wednesday and Friday in the first week of November, and the Friday after Nov. 25. The castle of R. (which stood near to Castle Street, but of which not a trace now remains) was several times besieged during the reign of King Robert the Bruce, and it remained a place of strength until the battle of Langside, May 13, 1568, soon after which the Regent Murray, to revenge himself on the Hamilton family, in whose custody it then was, ordered it to be destroyed. Together with Kilmarnock, Dumbarton, Port Glasgow, and Renfrew, it forms the Kilmarnock parl. dis., returning one member.

Ruthin, mun. and parl. bor., pa., mkt. to. (M. & S.), head of U., Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., on the right bank of the Clwyd, Mid Denbighs., 6½ S.S.E. of Denbigh; ac. of mun. bor. 2,016, of pa. 737. The town is situated on the summit and declivity of a considerable eminence, surrounded by loftier heights, commanding fine views of the Vale of Clwyd. It is a neat, old-fashioned place, containing several ancient houses. The church of St. Peter (restored 1885) is a venerable Gothic edifice, with a handsome modern tower; it originally belonged to a religious society called Bonhommes, but in 1310 it was made collegiate by John de Grey; the north aisle has a beautiful Perp. roof of carved oak, with nearly 500 different panels; the cloisters, which led from the church to the buildings occupied by the canons, have been converted into a residence for the warden of Christ's Hospital. The town contains Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The other public buildings include a Town Hall (1863), with an assembly-room, adjoining which is a Market Hall, a commodious County Hall, and a gaol. The Free Grammar School, one of the best schools in Wales, was founded in 1595 by Dean Goodman, and includes among its benefactors Queen Elizabeth and Bishop Goodman. Christ's Hospital, an almshouse for twelve poor persons, was founded by Dean Goodman in 1590. The legendary history of R. dates back to the reign of Arthur, who is said to have beheaded his rival Huail on a limestone block, which is still preserved in the Market Place. The earliest historical record, however, is no older than the time of Edward I., who gave the castle to Reginald de Grey, first Lord Grey de Ruthin. In 1400 Owen Glendower failed to gain possession of it, although he created fearful havoc among the people assembled to attend the fair. During the Civil War it was surrendered by the Royalists to General Mytton after a two months' siege (1646), and soon afterwards it was dismantled, but some ivy-clad fragments of red sandstone still remain. R. contains brick and terra-cotta works, and chemicals and aërated waters are manufactured; its commercial importance, however, is mainly agricultural. Gabriel Goodman (d. 1601), Dean of Westminster, and Godfrey Goodman (d. 1656), Bishop of Gloucester, were natives. The town was incorporated by Henry VII., and belongs to the Denbigh dis. of parl. bors. R. Castle, a mansion of red sandstone, occupies the site of the ancient fortress.

Ruthrie, Linn of, waterfall on Aberlour Burn, pa. of and 1 S. from Aberlour (q.v.), Mid Banffs., Sc.

Ruthven (1), small pa. and vil., E. Forfs., Sc.; ac. 2,049; soil generally light loam, overlying gravel. The vil. lies 4 N. of Meigle. The inhabitants are chiefly engaged in agriculture.

Ruthven (2), vil., pa. of Cairney (q.v.), N.W. Abers., Sc., 6 N.W. of Huntly.

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ruston, East	Worstead (2)	127	645
Ruston Parva	Lowthorpe (1½)	218	140
Ruswarp, eccl. pa.	Ruswarp	243	633
Ruswarp, tp.	Ruswarp	243	5097
Rutherglen, pa	Rutherglen	398	16178
Rutherglen, parl. bur.	Rutherglen	398	13083
Rutherglen, mun. bur	Rutherglen	398	13364
Ruthin, bor.	Ruthin	215	2760
Ruthin, pa.	Ruthin	215	987
Ruthven (1)	Jordanstone (1½)	469	188

Ruthven Castle. [HUNTINGTOWER AND RUTHVENFIELD.]

Ruthvenfield. [HUNTINGTOWER AND RUTHVENFIELD.]

Ruthven Water, stream, S. Perths., Sc., flows for 9 miles in a N.E. direction to the Earn, which it joins 1 N. of Aberuthven.

Ruthwell, pa. and vil. on the Solway Firth, S. Dumfs., Sc.; ac. 8,693; soil various, overlying coarse limestone. The vil. (about 10 S.E. of Dumfries), being also a barony, is privileged to hold markets and fairs, but it is long since the inhabitants availed themselves of these rights. The kirk and manse stand about a quarter of a mile from the vil. In 1887 the ancient and famous Runic monument here, formerly in the grounds of the manse, was removed and placed in the church. Comlogon Castle, in part an ancient Border keep, is a seat.

Rutland. [RUTLANDSHIRE.]

Rutland Island, pa. of Templecrone (q.v.), off west coast of co. Don., Ir., 4 W.N.W. of Dunglow; ac. 312. The island is about a mile from the mainland; it was named after the Duke of Rutland, who, whilst Lord-Lieutenant in 1785, expended a large sum in erecting quays for the fishing-boats, forming a military station, etc. These works are now almost wholly covered by the sand.

Rutlandshire, or Rutland, a North Midland co. of England, bounded on the north and west by Leics., on the south by Northants, and on the north-east by Lincs. Its greatest length is 17 miles, and greatest breadth 16 miles. It is the smallest of the English cos., its total area being only 94,889 ac., of which 39 per cent. is arable land, 54 per cent. permanent pasturage, 4 per cent. woodland, and the remainder town sites, water, roads, etc. The prevalent soil is a deep red loam (from which the name of the co., Rutland = "red land," is derived) of great fertility, interspersed, especially in the west of the co., by tracts of stiff clay, utilised chiefly for grazing-land; in the eastern districts the soil is frequently of a light stony character. All branches of agriculture are highly advanced. The chief crops, in the order of acreage, are barley (of fine malting quality), wheat (once the principal crop), oats, beans and peas, with turnips, mangolds, and clover as rotation crops. Cattle breeding and rearing, dairy farming, and sheep farming are all widely followed. The surface of the co. is undulating, but without important eminences. The valleys are usually broad and well timbered, and the combination of highly-cultivated rolling country, with glimpses of the fine mansions which adorn it, renders the scenery of typical English rural beauty. In the north-west of the co. is the wide and fertile Vale of Catmos. The chief streams are the Welland, which separates the co. from Northants; its tributaries, the Chater and Gwash; and the Eye. There is a canal to Oakham. Railway communication is afforded by lines of the Midland Railway Company. In geological structure the solid rocks belong entirely to the Lias and Oolite, the former division occupying the western part and the latter the eastern part, though the boundary between them is indented and irregular, outliers and inliers of the one division and the other being of frequent occurrence. The strata dip gently towards the eastward, and the lowest beds are therefore at the surface on the western border of the co. These are the Lower Lias Clays, yielding the characteristic Ammonites, which occur in the valley of the Eye, and are dug for brick-making. The Middle Lias, or Marlstone, only 8 or 9 ft. thick, underlies much of the Vale of Catmos, and forms very productive corn-land. The Upper Lias Clays are about 200 ft. thick, and underlie most of the grazing land in the west of the co. The lowest member of the overlying Oolites is the ferruginous Northampton Sand, which near Uppingham is about 30 ft. thick. As far back as the Roman occupation iron-ore was dug and smelted from this deposit, until, with the destruction of the forests, fuel grew scarce. Traces of the old furnaces still exist. The Collyweston Slate Rock, never more than 18 ft. thick, overlies these ferruginous sands in the south-east of the co., and is quarried for splitting into slabs, when it is used for roofing churches, etc. It forms the base of the Lincolnshire Limestone, which occupies a wider area in the eastern part of the co. This limestone, which is often largely made up of fossil Corals and other remains (including Ammonites, Pectens, Terebratula, and many other shells), is largely quarried in several localities both for lime-burning and for use as a building-stone. The rock from the extensive Ketton quarries is especially prized for the latter purpose, and has been used in the restoration of Peterborough and Ely Cathedrals; for St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet Street, London; and for many buildings in Cambridge. Some isolated patches of the overlying Great Oolite Limestone and Clay, and Cornbrash, occupy small areas near Luffenham and other places in the south-east. These solid rocks are frequently covered by superficial deposits of boulder clay, gravel, and sand, carried hither by the great ice-sheet which covered this part of England during the Glacial Period. The boulder clay is largely composed of broken-up chalk, carried in from the north-eastward, and some of the transported masses of chalk are so large as to have been mistaken for the rock in situ. The antiquities of the co. are not numerous. A few Neolithic implements of flint and other stone have been found on the surface, and there are earthworks in the co. assigned to the same period. At the time of the Roman invasion the district seems to have been inhabited by the Coritani. The Romans carried their great North road (Ermine Street) through the co., and at Casterton was one of their military stations. The region was afterwards occupied by the Middle Angles, and in the 9th cent. formed part of the great Saxon kingdom of Mercia. It was made a co. by Henry III. During the Wars of the Roses a battle was fought and won by Edward IV. in 1470 at Stamford, on its borders. At the fine mansion of Burley-on-the-Hill, near Oakham, James I. paid a state visit to the Duke of Buckingham; and here also Charles I. was entertained. Oakham is the co. to., and Uppingham is another small to., besides which are only some country vils. There are fine parks and mansions at Exton, Burley, and Normanton. Agriculture is the main industry—there being, besides, some stone-quarrying, malting, and boot-making. The co. returns one member.

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ruthwell	Ruthwell (2)	324	858
Rutland Island	Stranorlar (38)	175	87

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rutlandshire	.....	.....	20659

Rutupiæ. [RICHBOROUGH.]

Ruxley, or Rokesley, pl. (formerly a pa.), pa. of and 1 S.E. from North Cray (q.v.), W. Kent.

Ruyton, or Ruyton of the Eleven Towns, pa. and large vil., N.W. Salop, 10 N.W. of Shrewsbury; ac. 4,698; soil chiefly loam, overlying red sandstone. The church of St. John the Baptist (enlarged 1845) is Norm. and Perp.; the E. Norm. chancel, which contains an aumbry, was restored in 1864, and the body of the church in 1868. The site of the old castle is now part of the churchyard. There are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. The ancient mace, an interesting piece of work, bears the name of Richard Kynaston, who is believed to have died here in 1541. Fairs were formerly held on April 2 and July 5. R. Park and R. Towers are seats.

Ryal, ha., pa. of and 1 S.E. from Whitchurch Canonicorum (q.v.), W. Dors.

Ryall, chap. and tp., pa. of Stamfordham (q.v.), S. Northumb., 10 N.E. of Corbridge; ac. 2,106. The chapel (originally built in 1150, and rebuilt 1879) is a Norm. building.

Ryarsh, pa., Mid Kent, 7 N.W. of Maidstone; ac. 1,551; soil light sand, overlying gravel. The church of St. Martin is E. Eng., with a Norm. chancel, in which is an E. Norm. piscina, engraved in Parker's "Glossary of Architecture." Near Calais (or Callis) Court runs an old Roman road; several Roman relics have been found, as well as coins with the words "Callis Court" engraved on them. Farthorwell Hall is also a seat.

Ryburgh, Great, pa. and vil. on the Wensum, N. Norf., 4 S.E. of Fakenham; ac. 1,170; soil mixed, overlying clay. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1860) is a cruciform building, with some parts said to be Saxon, some Norman, and insertions of Perp. date. The chancel contains a piscina on the north as well as the south side, and there is also a piscina and aumbry in the north transept. Here are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. There is an allotment of 29 ac., the rent of which is distributed to the poor in coals. Morse's charity, of about £5 yearly, is for blankets. The church land is let at £14 a year.

Ryburgh, Little, pa. on the Wensum (here crossed by a bridge of one arch), N. Norf., 3 E.S.E. of Fakenham; ac. 868; soil various, overlying clay. The church of All Saints is in ruins. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel. Here is a fuel allotment of 13 ac.

RYDAL WATER, FROM NAB SCAB. (See page 305.)

Rybury Camp. [ALLINGTON (5).]

Rycote, lib., pa. of Great Haseley (q.v.), S. Oxon, about 1 S.E. from Tiddington railway station. R. Park, now in ruins, was formerly the seat of the Norreys of R., in whose family (the Earls of Abingdon) R. still remains. The mansion was partly destroyed by fire in the middle of the 18th cent., and was dismantled at the beginning of the 19th cent. The remains consist of the stables (now used as a farm), some cottages (formerly the laundry), and a red-brick angle tower. Near the house stands the Perp. domestic chapel of St. Michael and All Saints, built by Richard Quartremayne in 1449. On the north is a broad buttress carrying the rood-stair; the tower has a canopied niche. The interior is an excellent example of elaborate Jacobean fittings; the font and most of the open pews are original; there are pews affording an example of the Decorative Renaissance period. The elaborately carved and ornamented pew on the north is of two storeys; the south pew, less handsome, is in the same style without an upper storey, but terminated above by a cupola, and is surmounted by a figure of the Virgin and Child. The churchyard contains a large icehouse, and below the house is a sheet of water known as R. Pond. At R. the Princess Elizabeth was detained in 1554, and she spent two nights here when Queen in 1592. King Charles I. lodged in R. in 1625, when the Parliament sat at Oxford, and a proclamation is dated from here July 31, 1625.

Rycroft, ha., pa. of Birstal (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 4 S.E. of Bradford.

Rydal, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Grasmere (q.v.), N. Westmd., about 1½ N.W. of Ambleside. The church of St. Mary, a modern building in Gothic style, contains a memorial window to Dr. Arnold, the celebrated headmaster of Rugby (d. 1842), his wife, and his eldest son Matthew Arnold, the poet and critic (d. 1888). The charities amount to about £1 10s. a year. R. Hall is a fine old mansion, well sheltered by timber, standing at the junction of two vales near the foot of R. Water. Above the hall is a romantic glen, overgrown with trees, and traversed by a stream which at the end of the descent precipitates itself over the rocks in a fine double cascade, known as R. Falls. Other seats are Fox How, formerly the holiday residence of Dr. Arnold; High Close, a handsome mansion on a thickly-wooded slope; Loughrigg Brow; and R. Mount, for nearly forty years the residence of the poet Wordsworth, and the scene of his death

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ruyton	Baschurch (3)	178	1105
Ryall	Hexham (8)	289	75
Ryarsh	Snodland (4)	36	518

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Ryburgh, Great	Ryburgh	131	629
Ryburgh, Little	Ryburgh (1)	131	139
Rydal	Windermere (6)	259	212

(1850). The Nab, formerly inhabited by Hartley Coleridge, is now in the occupation of a farmer.

Rydal and Loughrigg, tp., pa. of Grasmere (q.v.), N. Westmd., about 1½ N.W. of Ambleside; ac. 4,759 and 130 water.

Rydal Water, one of the smallest but most beautiful of the English lakes, N. Westmd., lies immediately S.E. of Grasmere, from which it receives the Rothay, and that stream, discharging itself at the lower extremity of the lake, passes on to join the Brathay, a little above Windermere, into which the united rivers eventually fall. It is rather less than a mile long, and something under 2 miles in circumference. The shore at its inlet and outflow, owing to the current of the Rothay, is of a marshy character and overgrown with reeds and rushes. In the centre of the lake is an islet, with groups of lofty pine-trees, in the boughs of which is a heronry. On the north side of the lake is Glen Rothay, and near its northern end stood the Wishing Gate immortalised by Wordsworth. The ancient gate has, however, disappeared; but its modern substitute retains the traditionary charm, and is covered with the names and initials of visitors. The best view of the lake is obtained from the western shore.

Ryde, pa., mun. bor., and large and handsome seaside to., I. of W., 7 E.N.E. of Newport; ac. 3,816. The town is beautifully situated, rising from the shores of the Solent, up the slope of a hill, from which Spithead, Portsmouth, Stokes Bay, and the Mother Bank are readily seen. A hundred years ago R. was a small vil., but the beauty of its position has caused it to become a fashionable watering-place. The hilly nature of the site gives many advantages of appearance and aspect. The principal streets are open, well paved, and regularly arranged, most of them crossing each other nearly at right angles; several of the best streets run parallel to each other in almost a direct line to the beach, and from their elevated position one above the other afford an admirable sea-view. There is also an extensive esplanade, affording a carriage drive of nearly a mile in front of the sea, and a footpath extending to Sea View, 3 miles distant, where there is good bathing on fine sands. The pier, which forms a pleasant promenade, is a structure of timber, extending from the Quay to low-water mark; in 1864 a tramway with a double line of rails was laid down its whole length for conveyance of passengers from the station to the pier-head; in 1886 electricity was used as a motive power. Passengers can step direct from the trains into the boats at R.; this involved a pier half a mile long, by the side of the existing pier, and a tunnel under part of the town. Steamboats ply between this place and Portsmouth, Southsea, Portsea, and Stokes Bay every hour in the day during the summer months, and from eight to ten times a day in the winter; there are also boats to Cowes and Southampton, and occasional excursions are made entirely round the island. The pa. church of All Saints, in the Queen's Road, was erected in 1870, from the designs of the late Sir G. G. Scott, R.A.; it is a magnificent building of stone, in E. Eng. style; on each side of the porch are three stained windows, with the arms, monogram, and motto of the late Prince Consort, erected by members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club in 1872. The chapel-of-ease of St. Thomas, in Perp. style, belongs to the Player family, whose arms appear on the west front. The church of the eccl. pa. of Holy Trinity is in E. Eng. style. The font of carved stone bears a Latin inscription by the Rev. John Keble, which states that the font was a thank-offering by the Yard family for the preservation of Major Yard from drowning whilst rescuing a companion. St. James's Church, a debased Gothic building, is proprietary. The Catholic church of St. Mary (1845) has a presbytery attached. There are places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies also. The Market House and Town Hall is a substantial building of stone, in Classic style; the basement is rusticated, and the structure has a projecting colonnaded entrance with Ionic pilasters,

RYDE, FROM THE PIER.
(Photo. F. N. Broderick, Ryde.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rydal & Loughrigg	Windermere (6)	259	474
Ryde, pa.	Ryde	79	12274
Ryde, mun. bor.	Ryde	79	10952

pediment, and balustrading; above is a square clock tower with an open turret, surrounded by Corinthian pillars, and finished with a cupola and vane. The market days are Tuesday and Friday. The Royal Victoria Arcade contains shops and a spacious room for the exhibition of works of art. Opposite the town hall are the Victoria Rooms, with a stone front enriched with Corinthian columns, supporting an ornamental cornice. The Royal Victoria Yacht Club House, in St. Thomas's Street, on the west side of the pier, contains a noble suite of rooms; the first stone was laid in 1846, and in 1864 the clubhouse was enlarged and much improved. The club regatta is held in the month of August, the town regatta also taking place during the club regatta week. The Philosophical and Scientific Society, formed in 1850, had a museum of curiosities, which, when the Society was dissolved, were placed in the School of Art, in George Street. The Young Men's Christian Association and Literary Institute consists of a suite of rooms comprising lecture-hall, reading-room, and reference and circulating libraries; public lectures are given during the winter months. The Temperance Hall (1884), in High Street, is also used for lectures; and the Oddfellows have a hall —a brick building, in Classic style. The theatre is open only during the summer months. The Vectis Physical Recreation Courts (1889) are in Bennett Street; one-half of the floor is set apart as a racquet court—the other is furnished with every appliance for gymnastics; there is a spacious gallery for spectators. The Dispensary dates from 1842 and the Royal Infirmary from 1849; the latter has been more than once enlarged. Wilder's Almshouses (1854) are intended for twelve widows or spinsters of the Church of England, who reside here rent free and receive sundry gratuities of coals, etc.; the almshouses are under the charge of the vicar and churchwardens of R.; there are gardens in front, and over the entrance an impaled shield of arms.

Rye (1), pa., mun. bor., Cinque Port, seaport, U. and mkt. to., and head of Co. Co. dis., on the Rother, S.E. Sussex, 10 N.E. of Hastings; ac. 2,483. R., with several pas. adjoining, formerly returned one member to Parliament, but was disfranchised in 1885. The earliest known charter of incorporation is that of Richard I., which recites and confirms privileges granted by preceding kings. Vessels of 200 tons can enter the harbour, and the trade is considerable, R. being the port for Tenterden, Cranbrook, and the valley of the Rother, and having access by the Royal Military Canal to Romney Marshes. A line of railway, called the Rye Harbour line, extends from the town to the harbour, and is open for goods traffic and cargoes of coal brought to the station for transmission to Hastings. The old town is thickly crowded together, roof rising above roof round the old church, whose low tower crowns the hill. With streets narrow and tortuous, paved in many places with pebbles from the beach, R. has all the aspect of a mediæval fortified town; and the evidence of its gates and of occasional fragments of wall is hardly necessary to prove that there was a time when it was liable to be "straitly shut up" because of its enemies. The church of St. Mary (restored 1882) is a cruciform building of stone, with some Norm. portions, and other parts of E. Eng. date, particularly in the choir, the aisles of which once had fine lancet windows. It has chapels of St. Clare and St. Nicholas, transepts, and an embattled tower springing from the intersection of the nave and transepts, and containing a clock and eight bells. The clock, traditionally believed to have been taken from one of the ships of the Spanish Armada wrecked on this coast, has above the dial a shield supported by two gilt cherubs called "quarter boys," who strike the first three quarters every hour; on the shield is an inscription from the Book of Wisdom, and over it a gabled canopy; the massive brass pendulum descends through the tower. At the east end of the south aisle of the nave, and near the south transept, are the remains of an E. Eng.

RYE.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

private chantry or sepulchral chapel, the roof of which is groined and has moulded ribs, ornamented with bosses; this chantry, now used as a vestry, was for many years the burial-place of the Lamb family. The church of the Holy Spirit, a chapel-of-ease to Icklesham, is situated at the harbour mouth, and was erected for the use of the coast-guards and others. There are Baptist, Calvinistic, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. Horsfield's charity of £4 yearly is distributed in money, and 10s. from other sources in bread. The town hall, in Market Street, is a brick building with stone dressings. The Ypres Tower, overlooking the river, is supposed to have been built in the reign of Stephen (1135–54). Kettle nets are erected on the seashore near R. Harbour during the summer months, and at times very large quantities of mackerel and other fish are caught. Shipbuilding is carried on to some extent; and there is a considerable trade in wool, corn, timber, hops, and oak bark. Here is also a custom-house. The corn and stock markets are held at the Market Hall, Station Yard, every alternate Wednesday. The North (or land) Gate of the town wall yet remains, and is in a good state of preservation. In 1550 Alexander Welles gave to the Corporation a piece of land for the erection of a house for aged, sick, and infirm poor; instead thereof cottages were built, but in 1849 the South Eastern Railway Company pulled these down and in their place erected almshouses for persons selected by the R. Town Council.

Rye (2), river, N.R. Yorks., rises on the fells of Cleveland, 12 S. of Stokesley, and runs S.S.E. passes Rievaulx Abbey, and traverses Duncombe Park on its way to Helmsley, whence it flows S.E.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Population.
Rye (1), pa.	Rye | 70	4354
Rye (1), mun. bor.	Rye | 70	3871

and E. by S. past Nunnington, Butterwick, Great Habton, and Ryton to the Derwent, which it meets 3 N.E. of New Malton. Its length is about 35 miles.

Rye (3), ti., pa. of and about 1½ E. from Odiham (q.v.), N. Hants.

Rye (4), river, S.E. co. Meath and N.E. co. Kildare, Ir., runs 12 S. by E. past Kilcock and Maynooth to Leixlip, where it joins the Liffey. For some distance it forms the boundary between the two cos.

Ryedale, estate with seat of the same name near the Nith, pa. of Troqueer (q.v.), E. Kirkcuds., Sc., just S. of Maxwelltown.

Rye Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Sussex. It lies in the east of the co., and returns one member.

Ryeford, vil. with railway station, pa. of and 2 S.E. from Stonehouse (q.v.), E. Gloucs.

Rye Hill, pl., pa. of and about 2 W.S.W. from Rothbury (q.v.), N. Northumb.

Ryehill (1), ha., pa. of and about 2 N. from Epping (q.v.), S.W. Essex.

Ryehill (2). [BLACK CARTS WITH RYEHILL.]

Rye House. [HODDESDON.]

Ryeloaf Hill (1,794 ft.), W.R. Yorks., about 2 E. of Settle.

Rye Water, stream, pa. of Dalry (q.v.), N. Ayrs., Sc., flows for 7 miles in a S.E. direction to the Garnock, which it joins close to Dalry town.

Ryhall, pa. and vil. on the Gwash, E. Rutld., 3 N.E. of Stamford; ac. 2,681; soil light, overlying rock. The church of St. John (restored 1857) is E. Eng.; it contains memorials to Thomas Harrison, D.D., vicar (d. 1782), Martin Amphlett, vicar (d. 1834), and others. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities are small. The old manor-house is now an inn. R. Hall is a seat.

Ryhill, tp. and vil., pa. of Wragby (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., 7 S.W. of Barnsley; ac. 545. The church of St. James was built 1874, in Dec. style, and enlarged 1886. There are two Wesleyan chapels.

Ryhill and Camerton, tp. and vil., pas. of Burstwick and Paull (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 3 S.E. of Hedon; ac. 1,571. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Camerton Hall is a seat.

Ryhope, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Bishop Wearmouth (q.v.), E. Dur., 3½ S. of Sunderland; ac. 1,585. The church of St. Paul was erected 1870. There are Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. The Christian Lay Brethren have also a place of worship. Extensive colliery works, employing a great number of men, were established in 1858. R. is pleasantly situated on the coast, and is much resorted to for bathing in the summer by the inhabitants of Sunderland.

Ryknield Street, or Upper Icknield Street, a British or Roman way, from Gloucester by Alchester, Branston, Little Chester, Chesterfield, to Aldborough, in Yorkshire, and thence, it is supposed, to the mouth of the Tyne.

Ryle, Great, tp., pa. of and about 3 W. from Whittingham (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 2,042.

Ryle, Little, tp., pa. of and about 4 W. from Whittingham (q.v.), E. Northumb.; ac. 528.

Rylstone. [RILSTON.]

Ryme Intrinsica, pa. and small vil., N.W. Dors., 5 S. of Yeovil; ac. 1,162; soil clay, overlying clay and rock. The church of St. Hippolyte is Norm. On Court Hill there was formerly a royal seat.

Rysome, pl., pa. of Hollym (q.v.), E.R. Yorks., 2 N.E. of Patrington.

Ryston, pa., W. Norf., 2 E. by S. of Downham Market; ac. 592; soil of a mixed quality, overlying clay and sand. The church of St. Michael is a small stone building; it contains several handsome monuments to the Pratt family, including one with an effigy of white marble to Anne (Monyns), wife of Sir Roger Pratt, Knight (d. 1707). The tower, built with quoins of freestone, after being for three hundred years in a decayed state, was restored in 1858; two low side windows, an aumbry, and a very beautiful piscina have also been brought to light and restored, as well as two curious windows in the porch. R. Hall is a seat. A little to the south stands Ket's Oak (or the Oak of Reformation), where William Ket, the leader of the Norfolk insurgents, in 1549 sat and administered justice, and Coniers, the chaplain of the rebels, read prayers and preached.

Ryther, pa. and vil. on the Wharfe, W.R. Yorks., 6 N.W. of Selby; ac. of pa. 3,779; soil loamy, overlying sand. The church of All Saints (restored 1861) was built c. 1100; the chancel and nave are Norm., and the south aisle E. Eng.; among the monuments are one to Sir William Ryther and his wife, a 15th-cent. alabaster tomb, and a brass to John Robinson (d. 1619). There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Ryther-with-Ossendyke, tp., pa. of Ryther (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., about 6 S.E. of Tadcaster; ac. 2,724.

Rythin, ha., pa. of St. Mary Hill (q.v.), S.E. Glamorgs., 4 N.W. of Cowbridge.

Ryton (1), pa., tp., and to. on the Tyne, N. Dur., 7 W. of Newcastle; ac. of pa. 5,436, of tp. 1,201, soil gravel and sandy, subsoil various. The E. Eng. church of the Holy Cross, standing on a woody height on the south bank of the Tyne, was restored 1886. In the chancel is a marble effigy of an unknown ecclesiastic, with a book in his hand and his feet resting on a lion. On the south wall is a cast from the tomb of Bernard Gilpin, "the Reformer of the North" and rector of Houghton-le-Spring (1556–83). Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. In the centre of the vil. stands a stone cross, erected 1795. The charities amount to about £20 yearly. There are several collieries in the pa.

Ryton (2), pa. and vil. on a tributary of the Severn, E. Salop, 8 N.E. of Bridgnorth; ac. 1,390; soil sandy, overlying red sandstone. The church

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Rye Division	.....	.....	57090
Ryhall	Ryhall	90	618
Ryhill	Ryhill	172	1060
Ryhill & Camerton	Rye Hill	206	263
Ryhope, eccl. pa.	Ryhope (1)	258	7666
Ryhope, tp.	Ryhope (1)	258	7541
Ryle, Great	Whittingham (3)	318	72
Ryle, Little	Whittingham (4)	318	20
Ryme Intrinsica	Yetminster (1)	137	170
Ryston	Ryston	86	46
Ryther	Ulleskelf (2¼)	186	298
Ryther-w.-Ossend'ke	Ulleskelf (2¼)	186	255
Ryton (1), pa.	Ryton	274	6341
Ryton (1), tp.	Ryton	274	3393
Ryton (2)	Dorrington	169	171

(dedication unknown), restored 1874, is Dec. There is a charity for keeping the Harding tombs in order and for the relief of the poor.

Ryton (3), tp. on the Rye, pa. of Kirby Misperton (q.v.), N.R. Yorks., 6 s. of Pickering; ac. 2,228. The church of the Venerable Bede was erected in 1856. There is a Wesleyan chapel.

Ryton (4), ha., pa. of Bulkington (q.v.), N. Warws., about 4 s.E. of Nuneaton.

Ryton (5), river, N.W. Notts., pursues a very winding course, rising near Shireoaks on the Notts. border, and running E. by S. past Worksop, E. by N. past Osberton Hall, N.N.W. past Ranby Hall to Blyth, and N.N.W. through the grounds of Serlby Hall, and past Scrooby to Bawtry, where it joins the Idle.

Ryton, Great, ha., pa. of and 2 s. from Condover (q.v.), W. Salop.

Ryton-on-Dunsmore, pa. and vil. on the Avon, Mid Warws., 4½ s.E. of Coventry; ac. 2,067; soil and subsoil gravelly. The church of St. Leonard (restored 1886 and 1891) is an E. Eng. building; portions of one of the doorways are Norm. work; there is an ancient brass to a former vicar. On Dunsmore Heath, on Knightlow Hill, is a tumulus and an old wayside cross surrounded by four fir-trees planted in 1740 (according to local tradition, memorials of four knights there buried). At this cross a curious custom, the collection of "Wroth Silver," by the agent of the lord of the hundred, is observed every Martinmas morning before sunrise, the ceremonial being very quaint.

Ryton Woodside, tp., pa. of and 2 s. from Ryton (q.v.), N. Dur., on the Northumb. border; ac. 3,948. St. John's Church is in Dec. style. There is a Wesleyan Reform chapel. In this tp. is a coal-mine.

S.

Sabden, or Sabden Bridge, large vil., pa. of Whalley (q.v.), N.E. Lancs., 6 E.S.E. of Burnley. There are chapels for Baptists and Wesleyans, and a Catholic chapel in which services are held on the first Sunday in each month. Calico-printing and cotton-manufacturing are carried on here.

Sackett Hill, pl., pa. of St. Peters (q.v.), E. Kent, about 2 s. of Margate.

Sacomb, pa. and vil., Mid Herts., 4 N. of Hertford; ac. 1,521; soil mixed. The church of St. Catherine (restored 1855–56) is Dec., and contains two sedilia and a piscina, a marble monument to Thomas Rolt (d. 1758), and brass inscriptions dated 1537 and 1544. There is a charity of £10 yearly. S. Park is a seat.

Sacriston, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Chester-le-Street and Witton Gilbert (q.v.), Mid Dur., 4 S.W. of Chester-le-Street. The church of St. Peter is in E. Eng. style. Here is a Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Michael and St. Bede. There are also Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. A Literary Institute was established here in 1884, principally for the use of the colliers. The extensive coal-pits of Charlaw and S. are situated here.

Sadberge, eccl. pa., tp., and vil., pa. of Haughton-le-Skerne (q.v.), S.E. Dur., 3½ N.E. of Darlington; ac. 2,050. The tp. has had a separate existence from a very early period. The church of St. Andrew was built (1831) on the site of a former church erected 1214, and is a plain building of stone, in E. Eng. style. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £40 a year. A reservoir, to hold 12,000,000 gallons, was constructed here (1889) for the Middlesbrough and Stockton Water Board. During the excavations a huge boulder, deposited during the Glacial period, was discovered 12 ft. beneath the surface and placed on the village green. S. Hall, a handsome brick mansion, with stone dressings and tower, in a small park about a mile from the vil., is a seat.

Saddell, q.s. pa., pa. of Saddell and Skipness (q.v.), S. Args., Sc., 12 N. by E. of Campbeltown.

Saddell and Skipness, pa. on the east side of Kintyre peninsula, S. Args., Sc., 13 N. by E. of Campbeltown; ac. 46,872; soil in higher parts light earth mixed with gravel, elsewhere alluvial, mostly overlying rock, clay, and gravel. The surface is undulating and in some parts mountainous, reaching its extreme height (1,491 ft.) at Ben Tuirc, from which there are very fine views. The coast-line, extending along Loch Fyne and Kilbrannan Sound, abounds in low headlands and small bays, Carradale Bay being the only inlet of any size. The broad fertile valleys sloping towards the south-east, each traversed by its own stream, form a conspicuous feature in the landscape. The Established church was erected about 1771. There is also a Free church. Saddell Castle is a plain quadrangular structure with machicolations in the battlements, situated at the opening of a picturesque glen. Saddell Abbey, of which there are some remains, was a Cistercian house founded in the 12th cent. by Reginald, son of Somerled, Lord of the Isles. Carradale House (q.v.), Cour (q.v.), Skipness Castle (q.v.), and Torrisdale Castle (q.v.) are seats.

Saddington, pa. and vil. on a lofty eminence, S. Leics., 6 N.W. of Market Harborough; ac. 1,691 and 22 water; soil rich loam, overlying clay. The Union Canal passes through the pa. by a tunnel, and has a reservoir, covering an area of 57 ac., in a valley south-east of the vil. The church of St. Helen (restored 1873) is E. Eng. The chancel retains a piscina; on the north side, in the floor, is an alabaster slab with almost illegible inscription to Richard Holland, rector (d. 1628), his daughter and three sons; in the chancel is a tablet to William Shield, rector and donor of a charity (d. 1732). Here is a Baptist chapel. Charities amounting to about £35 a year are distributed in bread, beef, and coals.

Saddleback, or Blencathra, mountain (2,847 ft.), Mid Cumb., 4½ N.E. of Keswick, is best ascended from Threlkeld; it commands a fine view of

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Ryton (3)	Malton (4)	209	185
Ryton-on-Dunsmore	Brandon (2)	89	460
Ryton Woodside	Wylam (2)	276	1106
Sacomb	Ware (3½)	22	250
Sacriston	Plawsworth (1)	258	5327

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Sadberge, eccl. pa.	Fighting Cocks (1¾)	236	438
Sadberge, tp.	Fighting Cocks (1¾)	236	337
Saddell	Glasgow (80)	400	761
Saddell & Skipness	Glasgow (80)	400	1156
Saddington	Kibworth (2)	89	182

Thirlmere Lake. It is mentioned by Scott and other poets.

Saddle Head, headland (512 ft.), forming the north-west extremity of Achill Island, W. co. Mayo, Ir., 17 S.S.W. of Belmullet. The headland consists of a promontory forming a north continuation of the mountain of Croaghaun (q.v.).

Saddle, The, peak of Cader Idris, S.W. Merions., 3¼ S.S.W. of Dolgelly. The surface of the peak is stony and bare. The climb to the summit of the mountain by this route affords very fine views.

Saddlewood, vil., pa. of and 4 N.E. from Hawkesbury (q.v.), S. Gloucs.

Saddleworth, eccl. pa., extensive and mountainous tp., and manufacturing dis., pa. of Rochdale (q.v.), W.R. Yorks., extending into Lancs.; ac. 18,797. It contains a large and thriving population in the numerous scattered villages, hamlets, and outlying places comprised in this district, some of which are situated in deep and picturesque valleys, others on the hill-sides, and not a few on the bleak summits of the lofty uplands. Being about midway between Manchester and Huddersfield, S. partakes largely in the staple trades of those important towns, and the number of persons engaged in each is found to be nearly equal. In the valleys and on the declivities of the hills there is excellent grazing land. The Huddersfield Canal and a branch of the London and North Western Railway from Manchester to Huddersfield and Leeds pass through the tp. from Mossley to Diggle, where they enter the hills side by side, passing through tunnels, emerging near Marsden. There are several canal wharves in the tp. The original church of St. Chad, dating from about 1300, was a very picturesque edifice, standing on an eminence, and was removed to make room for the present church, which was erected on the same site in 1831, and contains some 18th-cent. monuments. This locality has afforded many traces of the earlier inhabitants of these isles, chiefly tumuli, containing stone celts or hammers and other objects; at Dowry Castle, in particular, is a very large bell-shaped tumulus, another at Brownhill being excavated during the formation of the railway. Some mounds, called "Cinder Hills," are found to consist of partly-smelted ores and hollywood charcoal, and are supposed to have been formed in the manufacture of the bronze weapons used before the introduction of iron by the Romans. Druidical remains are also met with on the hills. Castle Shaw was a Roman station, one march from Mancunium (or Manchester) to Cambodunum, on the route to York; part of the causeway or "street," as these roads were termed, still exists. Some few houses belong to the Elizabethan and succeeding periods; while suits of armour and weapons of the Middle Ages are preserved at St. Chad's.

Saddle Yoke, mountain (2,412 ft.), pa. of and 6 N.E. from Moffat (q.v.), N. Dumfs., Sc.

Sadgill, pl. in Long Sleddale (q.v.), Mid Westmd., 6¾ E. by N. of Ambleside. Beside a farmhouse here a path strikes off to Windermere.

Saffron Hill, Hatton Gardens, Ely Rents, and Ely Place, pa. in Central London, E. Middx., ½ N.N.W. of St. Paul's; ac. 32. Ely Place (q.v.) and Ely Rents (q.v.) are libs. in the pa. Saffron Hill occupies part of the site of Ely Gardens, in which saffron was grown. As far back as Strype's time it was a very low neighbourhood, and the description of it in "Oliver Twist" is by no means attractive. Considerable improvements have, however, been made of late years. The church of St. Peter, Saffron Hill (1832), is in Gothic style. The dis. called Hatton Gardens derives its name from Sir Christopher Hatton (d. 1591), Chancellor to Queen Elizabeth.

Saffron Walden, pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt. to. (s.), head of Co. Co. dis., and petty sess. div., N. Essex, 15 S. of Cambridge; ac. 7,489 and 13 water. The gas and water works are the property of the Corporation. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, a spacious and magnificent edifice of stone (restored at various times), is a fine specimen of Late Perp. work, and was chiefly built in the reign of Henry VI. about 1425, the chancel, with some portion of the eastern part of the nave, being the work of Lord Chancellor Audley, and most of the remaining portion that of John Leche, vicar here from 1489 to 1521. The western tower, supported by bold buttresses terminating in octagonal turrets, with plain elongated spirelets, has a slender spire, added in 1831. In the south chancel aisle is the marble tomb of Thomas, Lord Audley, K.G., Chancellor to Henry VII. (d. 1544), and a memorial to two sons of Lord Braybrooke—Captain the Hon. H. A. Neville, killed at Inkerman (1854); and the Hon. G. Neville, who died of wounds received at Balaklava (1854). Beneath the communion table is the Howard vault, where lie the six Earls of Suffolk who last held Audley End and one Lord Howard of Walden, with his two wives; in the north chancel is an altar-tomb to John Leche (above mentioned); the north porch is at present used as a vestry; in the south chancel aisle is a brass effigy (c. 1430), believed to be that of Thomas Byrd, once rector of Much Munden. The Baptists, Congregationalists, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodists, and the Brethren have places of worship; and there is a meeting-house for the Friends. The grammar school was founded in 1423, and remodelled in 1879. In 1881 the school was removed to a new site. Other notable educational institutions are the training college for mistresses in connection with the British and Foreign School Society; the Friends' School for boys and girls (the oldest foundation school in the Society of Friends); and the charity school, founded in 1717. The town hall (1879) is in E. Eng. style, and contains an assembly room in addition to the usual municipal offices. The Corn Exchange (1847-48) is in Italian style, and the Post Office, a red-brick building with stone dressings, in Renaissance style. The Museum, on the Bury (or Castle) Hill, is recognised by the British Association as a provincial museum of the first class, and contains a fine collection of zoological and geological specimens, Roman and other antiquities, and ancient coins. The Literary Institution, remodelled in 1888-89, contains reading-rooms and a library. The to. has a parish room, in which entertainments are also given; a hospital, in Gothic style; and a district infirmary for infectious diseases. The market-place contains a fountain, shown in the Exhibition of 1862. There are two iron-foundries, three breweries,

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Saddleworth, ec. pa.	Saddleworth	192	3545
Saddleworth, tp.	Saddleworth	192	22462

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
Saffron Hill, &c.	.....	.....	4506
Saffron Walden	Saffron Walden	44	6104

and a steam flour-mill and a saw-mill. Malting is extensively carried on here. The Cattle Market is compact and well arranged. There are fairs on the Saturday before Mid-Lent Sunday (which is one of the largest horse fairs in England) and the first Saturday in November (chiefly for cattle), held on the Common, a public ground of 15 ac. The S. W. Horticultural Society, founded in 1819, is the oldest in England; the Essex Agricultural Society, established about 1830, was one of the earliest institutions of the kind in this country. On the Common, near the town, is "The Maze," supposed by Dr. Stukeley to have been a British cursus or exercising ground for soldiery, and formed by a number of concentric circles with four outworks, all cut in the chalk; it encloses an area of over 100 ft. from east to west and 138 ft. from north to south, the centre of which was formerly indicated by a large ash-tree, unfortunately destroyed by fire on November 5, 1823. The Maze was re-cut by the Corporation in 1699, and since by private individuals, and was also re-cut in 1887 by public subscription. On the opposite side of the town are the remains of an ancient encampment once called "the Paille" (or "Repell"), and now known as "Battle Ditches;" this camp was in the form of a parallelogram, containing about 30 ac., and here, in 1830, at a depth of 20 in. below the surface, in the solid chalk, 50 or 60 skeletons were found, lying in a double row with their feet to the east. In 1876 there were also discovered 150 others of men, women, and children, some of which are now in the museum; upon a few of the bodies were found fragments of Saxon ornaments; beneath the graves a number of circular pits were met with of a date prior to that of the interments. On Castle Hill was a castle, supposed to have been built in the reign of King Stephen, on a previous foundation of Anglo-Saxon origin; this fortress, which stood in the highest part of the town, appears to have been of great strength, being designed after the style of the castle of the De Veres at Hedingham, but built of small flints strongly cemented and faced with stone. All that now remains is the donjon (or keep), about 25 ft. in height; the hollow space on the western side was the cell of the prisoners who were confined underground, and in 1780 a large portion of this was below the surface, but the earth which formed the rising ground has been cleared away. Within recesses in the ruins are placed several stone coffins of the 12th and 13th cents., brought from Ickleton Abbey, Cambridgeshire, founded by Aubrey de Vere, first Earl of Oxford, in 1190. In 1146 a Benedictine priory was founded here; it was raised to the rank of an abbey in 1191, and its revenues at the Dissolution were reckoned at £406 yearly; it was then granted to Sir Thomas Audley, Lord Chancellor. [AUDLEY END.]

Saffron Walden Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Essex. It lies in the northern part of the co., and returns one member.

Saggart, pa. and vil., Newcastle bar., S.W. co. Dub., Ir., 9 S.W. of Dublin; ac. 4,452. The Dublin Mountains occupy a part of the pa., including the picturesque glen of S., through which the Slade flows, and S. Hill (1,300 ft.). Here is a large paper-mill.

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Saffron W. Division	.....	.....	47449
Saggart, pa.	Clondalkin (4)	5	770
Saggart, vil.	Clondalkin (4)	5	154

Saham Toney, pa. and vil., S.W. Norf., 9 S.W. of East Dereham; ac. 4,097; soil chalk and clay, overlying clay. The church of St. George (restored 1864) is a handsome Perp. edifice; a fine oak screen (gilt) separates the nave and chancel; in the north and south walls of the chancel and south wall of the nave are piscinæ; the pulpit rail is Jacobean; the font is of Bath stone, with a very beautiful carved oak cover, dated 1632, surmounted by a pelican in her piety. The church is for the most part seated with oak benches of the 16th cent., some of which have carved poppy-heads and figures of lions; there are others of later date, carved with the Prince of Wales's plume and representations of the rhinoceros. There are brasses to Edward Goffe, of Threxton (1612), Anna Sandhill (1576), and to William Hooper Parker (1876). The advowson anciently belonged to the monks of Rouen, was seized by Henry V. during the war with France, and was presented by Henry VI. to New College, Oxford. Humphrey Prideaux, Dean of Norwich, author of "The Connection of the Old and New Testament with the History of the Jews and Neighbouring Nations," and other works, was rector here in 1686. Here are Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist and Free Methodist chapels. The national school has an endowment. There are seven almshouses, four for widows and three for old respectable married couples. Hunt's charity of £22 yearly is given in calico and flannel to poor parishioners; the fuel allotment of 86 ac. is let for £80 yearly, which sum is distributed in coals. Near the centre of the vil. is a mere of 13 ac., well stocked with fish; eels of a peculiar shape are caught, and black bass are bred. Roman pottery and other antiquities have at various times been found.

Saighton, tp. and vil., pa. of Chester St. Oswald (q.v.), W. Chesh., 1 N. of Churton Heath; ac. 1,725. There is a Presbyterian church. The charities are small. A water-tower was built here in 1891 by the Duke of Westminster. S. Grange is a seat.

Sail, mountain (2,500 ft.), Mid Cumb., about 3 N.E. of the vil. of Buttermere.

Sail Beck. [MILL BECK (2).]

Sail Mhor, mountain (2,508 ft.), N.W. Ross and Crom., Sc., 13 W.S.W. of Ullapool.

St. Abb's Head, promontory, pa. of Coldingham (q.v.), E. Berws., Sc., 4 N.W. of Eyemouth. There is a lighthouse, with light visible 21 miles. The cliff is 310 ft. in height, and on its east side are the remains of St. Abb's Kirk. It obtains its name from St. Ebba, who founded a monastery here in the 7th cent.

St. Agnes (1) (pronounced with the g silent, to distinguish it from St. Agnes, one of the Scilly Isles), a large coast pa. and mkt. to. (TR.), S. Cornw., 8 N.W. of Truro; ac. 5,619; soil clay, overlying spar and clay-slate. The church of St. Agnes (rebuilt 1848) is in Dec. style; in the churchyard is a massive cross with irregularly-shaped head, 5 ft. high and about 2 ft. wide. The Miners' and Mechanics' Institute is a stone building with ornamental granite dressings, and contains reading-room, billiard and committee rooms, and other offices. The Oddfellows' Hall is used also

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Saham Toney	Watton (1½)	103	1149
Saighton	Waverton (1½)	175	302
St. Agnes (1)	Chacewater (4)	300	4249

for public entertainments. Opie (1761–1807), the celebrated painter, was born here. A considerable trade is carried on with Ireland and Wales, but the inhabitants are mostly employed in mining. In a large entrenchment called The Gorres a golden coin of Valentinian was ploughed up. Off the coasts are the Boden Rocks, also called the "Cow and Calf" or "Man and his Man." Trevaunance, formerly a seat, is now a convalescent home for working men. Here is a coastguard station, supplied with Board of Trade rocket apparatus for use at wrecks.

St. Agnes (2), the third largest of the Scilly Islands (q.v.), separated from St. Mary's by the channel called St. Mary's Sound, and at spring tides divided by the sea into two islands, lying N.E. and S.W. The north-east portion, called The Gugh, contains some prehistoric barrows. The island contains about 650 ac. The church of St. Agnes, a small plain edifice of granite, is served by a curate, under the chaplaincy of the Scilly Islands. The Bible Christians have a meeting-house here. The lighthouse on this island (1680) is one of the oldest in the United Kingdom; it is 78 ft. high, and exhibits a revolving light, which can be seen at a distance of 18 miles.

St. Agnes Beacon, a lofty hill of singular geological character, pa. of St. Agnes (q.v.), S. Cornw. It rises pyramidally nearly 600 ft. above the level of the sea, and commands extensive views; on the summit are three barrows.

St. Agnes Head, promontory, S.W. Cornw., about 8 N.E. of Illogan.

St. Albans, city, mun. bor., pa., U. and mkt. to. (S.), head of diocese, petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., pleasantly situated on an eminence on the Ver, and on Watling Street, Mid Herts., 20 N. of London. The bor. includes the pa. of St. Albans, or Abbey (ac. 166), and parts of the pas. of St. Peter's, St. Michael's, St. Stephen's, and Sandridge, which will be found under their own headings. The diocese was constituted in 1877, and consists of Herts. and Essex, with parts of Cambs., Kent, and Beds. St. A. is a very ancient place, and grew out of the old Verulam (q.v.). It owes its name to Alban, a Roman officer who, having assisted Amphibalus, a Christian deacon, to escape from his persecutors, adopted his faith, and became the proto-martyr of Britain. The martyrdom of St. Alban took place in 286, on the hill where the abbey now stands. In the 6th cent. the city fell into the hands of the Saxons, who called it Watlingceaster, from its situation on Watling Street; and in 793 Offa II., King of the Mercians, founded a monastery here, in which he deposited the relics of the saint, to whose canonisation Pope Adrian consented, and placed the house under the Benedictine rule. About 1161 the abbacy became mitred, and its abbot sat in Parliament. Paul of Caen, 14th abbot, constructed the church entirely anew of materials taken from the ancient city of Verulam; eleven years were occupied in this work, of which the present tower and transepts and the eastern portion of the nave form part. Geoffrey de Gorham, 16th abbot, enclosed the relics of the martyr in a costly shrine, subsequently covered by another of great size, constructed by Symon, 19th abbot, during whose time the relics of Amphibalus were discovered at Redbourne and brought to the abbey. After Wat Tyler's and Jack Straw's rising in 1381, the King came to St. Albans with his Chief Justice, when 15 or 18 of the ringleaders were tried and executed. On May 23, 1455, the first battle of the Wars of the Roses was fought at Key Field, south-east of the town, when Henry VI. was made prisoner. On Feb. 14, 1461, the second battle was fought on Bernard's Heath, north of the town, when Margaret compelled the Earl of Warwick to retreat with considerable loss. Cardinal Wolsey succeeded as 38th abbot in 1521, and held the office till his downfall. Richard Boreman, the 40th and last abbot, surrendered the abbey in 1539, and delivered the conventual seal to the Crown. In 1540 the monastic buildings, with all the ground round the abbey church, were granted to Sir Richard Lee, who had scarcely gained possession when he began demolishing the whole. In 1553 the town obtained a charter from Edward VI. for a grammar school in the church of St. Alban, and thus the Lady chapel and the eastern aisle became detached from the rest of the building, which was sold to the Corporation for £400, to be the parish church of the borough. The abbey church, one of the finest buildings of the kind in the kingdom, is in the form of a Latin cross, consisting of nave with western porches, aisles, transepts, choir with aisles, saint's chapel, eastern Lady chapel (with ante-chapel and a chantry chapel on its south side), and a central tower (containing eight bells and a sanctus bell). The central parts are the most ancient, and are built of Roman bricks from the ruins of Verulam. The remains of the cloisters, 150 ft. square, are visible against the south wall of the nave; the chapter house stood in front of the south transept, and the sacristy was immediately under its eastern front, the refectories and dormitories being south of the cloisters and forming a range of buildings parallel with the nave. The Lady chapel (1308–26), together with its ante-chapel, has undergone partial restoration; many persons of note were here buried after the first battle of St. Albans (1455). In the centre of the ante-chapel stood the shrine of St. Amphibalus. Immediately opposite the exterior door leading into the south aisle of the choir is the iron grille through which a sight of the shrine of St. Alban was afforded to pilgrims. From this aisle a doorway admits into the Saint's chapel, so called because it enclosed the relics of the proto-martyr, St. Alban, which remained here, it is believed, until the dissolution in 1539. In the centre of the chapel stands the partially-restored pedestal on which the shrine, properly so called, containing the bones of the saint, once rested; the fragments from which it has been reconstructed were discovered in 1872, built into various blocked-up arches adjacent; this pedestal is of early 14th-cent. work. The shrine itself which reposed on this pedestal consisted of an inner chest containing the remains of the saint, and an outer case richly adorned with silver gilt and jewels, and above all was a canopy let down and drawn up by a rope. On the north side of the chapel is the watching-loft of carved oak, in which a monk was posted; on the south side is the monument of Humphrey,

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Agnes (2)	Penzance (42)	320	130
St. Albans, bor.	St. Albans	20	12898

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Albans, pa.	St. Albans	20	4434

Duke of Gloucester, fourth and youngest son of Henry IV., and Protector during the minority of Henry VI., who died in 1446. The Saint's chapel is separated from the sanctuary by the magnificent altar-screen of stone (restored 1890), and the vacant niches have been filled with statues. In the north aisle is the chantry of Abbot Ramryge, appropriated in 1678 as the burial-place of the Farington family; opposite to it is the chantry of John of Wheathampstead, 33rd abbot (d. 1463), in which is deposited the very fine Flemish brass (engraved c. 1360) of John de le Mare, 30th abbot (d. 1396). On the floor are the despoiled gravestones of Abbots de la Moote, Mentmore, Wallingford, and Eversden; and there are also brasses, effigies, and inscribed slabs. The baptistery extends from the western

The Abbey, St. Albans.
(Photo, Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

arch of the tower to within one bay of the rood-screen, the organ being placed in a gallery near the screen. At the south-east angle, under the tower arch, is the Bishop's throne, a modern canopied structure of oak. Overhead is a magnificent painted ceiling (1376–1400). The transepts, forming part of the Norm. structure (1077–97), have been largely rebuilt. The columns of the triforium, both here and in the south transept and tower, are remarkable for their rudeness and want of uniformity, and may be regarded as remnants of the Saxon church, assigned to these positions when it was superseded by the present building. The nave proper, including the portion enclosed by the rood-screen, consists of thirteen bays, nine now constituting the actual nave in which Divine service is held. This part of the edifice is of three periods, the whole of the north side, with the exception of four bays of E. Eng. work, being part of the original Norm. church. Its transformation was begun by John de Cella, 21st abbot, and continued and completed by William de Trumpington, his successor, the work including the conversion of the porch and of five ...s on the south side; the remaining portion, on account of the fall of some part of it, was in part restored in the Dec. period by Hugh de Eversden, 27th abbot, and completed by Richard de Mentmore, 29th abbot (1335–49). The nave has been restored, and a new west front built in the E. Eng. and Dec. styles, and was reopened in October, 1885. The nine windows in the north aisles are the work of Abbot Wheathampstead, who filled them with stained glass, some of which still remains. Holy Cross screen, formerly extending entirely across the church, divides the nave from the choir; upon its western side are distinctly visible the ancient positions of two altars, the central altar being for the service of the people congregated in the nave, and at that on the north side masses were celebrated for the dead. The repair of the fabric was undertaken from the designs and at the cost of Baron Grimthorpe, and was completed in 1894. Some interesting frescoes were laid open in 1862 on the western faces of the Norm. piers between the nave and north aisle, as well as on the soffits of the arches; these consist of paintings of St. Christopher, the Annunciation, the Crucifixion, and of Our Lord in glory, and are supposed to indicate "stations" at which prayers were offered during processions, etc., and to have been executed at periods extending from the 12th to the 14th cent. Admission to the nave of the church is free. The public are admitted daily to view other portions of the cathedral by tickets (6d. each) obtainable of the verger at the abbey; the proceeds are appropriated to the restoration fund. A little north-west of the abbey stands the Gatehouse, a fine Perp. structure, for many years used as a gaol, but now occupied by the grammar school, the most ancient in the kingdom, having been in existence in some form in the 10th cent.; Nicholas Breakspear, Pope Adrian IV., was educated here. St. Peter's Church, on a commanding site north of the town, was rebuilt with brick in 1804. This church was formerly cruciform, with north and south transepts, the chancel extending 40 ft. further eastward than it does at present; these portions of the structure, being in bad repair, were pulled down and the materials sold in 1799. In each of the five windows of the north aisle are fragments of ancient glass, dating from about 1400. The west front displays in the centre an E. Eng. doorway, with a Perp. window above. Edward Strong, master-mason of St. Paul's Cathedral (d. 1723), is buried in the north aisle. The churchyard contains the tomb of Dr. Nathaniel Cotton, M.D., the poet and the friend of Cowper (d. 1788). There are brasses (with effigies) to Roger Pemberton, Esq., High Sheriff, and founder of almshouses in the city (d. 1627), and Elizabeth his wife, with six children, one of whom, Ralph, was Mayor of St. Albans; and on the reverse of the inscription is one to John Ball, brick-maker (d. 1515). St. Michael's Church (restored 1867), on the west side of the town, is an ancient building, partly Saxon, founded about the 10th cent., and believed to occupy the site of a heathen temple, within the site of the ancient Verulam. The churchyard, although it has been used for centuries, still includes ground where, by reason of solid masonry beneath, it is almost impossible to dig a grave. The chief attraction of this church is the monument of Sir Francis Bacon, Viscount St. Albans and Lord Chancellor in the reign of James I., fixed in the north wall of the chancel, and consisting of a marble statue of the great Chancellor seated in a high-backed chair within a round-headed niche. There is a brass in the nave to Thomas Wolvey (d. 1430), surveyor and esquire to Richard II.; and one in the south chapel, with the figures of a man and his wife, and a shield of arms to John Peacock and his wife, Maud (c. 1380). On the south wall of this chapel are the remains of a memorial fresco, with eight shields of arms, to John Maynard (d. 1556); and in the exterior north wall of the chancel, near its junction with the aisle, is a recessed Dec. arch, within which lies a flat coffin-shaped slab bearing a raised floriated cross. By the side of the pathway, a little south-west of the tower, is a Roman coffin, found in a field in this pa. in 1813. St. Stephen's Church (restored 1860), south-west of the town, was also founded in the 10th cent. The oldest part appears to be the west wall, which is pierced by two small but widely-splayed Norm. windows. The south aisle is late 13th-cent. work, and has a large double piscina; to this date also belongs the south arcade. The other parts of the church belong to the 15th and 16th cents. The chancel arch of oak is for the most part a restoration. The most interesting object within the building is an ancient brass eagle lectern, formerly in Holyrood Abbey; it was found buried near the vestry door in the churchyard in 1750, and is supposed to have been placed there for safety, having been brought from Scotland, as is affirmed, by Sir Richard Lee, on his mission thither in 1544 with Edward (Seymour), Earl of Hertford. In the south chapel are the brass figures of a man and his wife, with nine children, believed to represent William Robins, Esq. (d. 1482), Clerk of the Signet to Edward IV., and his wife Katherine. The font, a 15th-cent. work, is octagonal, the bowl being adorned with angels and shields. Christ Church is an eccl. pa., formed in 1859, with a modern church in Lombardic style. The Catholic church is dedicated to SS. Alban and Stephen; and there are Baptist, Particular Baptist, Congregational, Unitarian, and Wesleyan chapels, a meeting-house for the Brethren, and Salvation Army barracks. The Corn Exchange (1857), in the Market Place, stands on the site of an ancient market-house erected in the reign of Elizabeth. The clock-house or tower, at the Market Cross, and built between 1400 and 1427 for the purpose of containing the town bells and clock, is an embattled structure of flint with stone dressings, the property of the Corporation, and was restored in 1866 at a cost of £800. The curfew bell, cast about 1335 and still in the tower, weighs about one ton. In the area at the base of the tower formerly stood the cross erected by Edward I. in memory of his queen, Eleanor, whose body rested at St. Albans in its progress from Herdeby (Hardby), in Lincolnshire, where she died Nov. 28, 1290; it was destroyed in 1702 and a market-house erected on its site, which was also taken down in 1810. The court-house (1826), in St. Peter Street, where the quarter sessions are held, is a building in the Italian style, and is the property of the County Council; the Corporation have, however, certain rights in the building. The prison, in Victoria Road, near the Midland Railway station, was erected in 1866. The Archæological and Architectural Society (1845) holds its meetings in the town hall. The Public Library and Reading Room (1880) is in Victoria Street; the classes of the School of Science and Art are held here. There is a County and a Liberal club. The hospital and dispensary (1888) is in Verulam Road. The Sisters' Hospital for Infectious Diseases (1893) was presented to the town by Sir J. B. Maple, as was the park and recreation-ground (1894). The principal manufactory is a silk-mill, employing about 300 hands. The manufacture of straw trimmings also gives employment to a large number of persons; and straw-plaiting is carried on, straw hats being the staple manufacture. There are three breweries, maltings, a boot factory, and brush works. Almshouses, called "The Buildings," for 26 men and women, were founded by Sarah, Duchess of Marlborough, in 1736, each inmate receiving £20 by half-yearly payments; there are also Raynshaw's almshouses for 10 poor persons, founded in 1569. There are, besides, other important charities. In the town were formerly three convents, in one of which—that of St. Mary at Sopwell—it is said Henry VIII. was married to Anne Boleyn. This religious house, situated on the south bank of the Ver, was built in 1140 by Geoffrey de Gorham, 16th abbot of St. A., for 16 nuns of the Benedictine order. Among its inmates were many ladies of rank and fortune, one of these being Dame Juliana Berners, authoress of the famous "Boke of St. Albans."

St. Albans Division, one of the four parl. divs. of Herts. It lies about the centre of the county, and returns one member.

St. Alban's Head. [WORTH MATRAVERS.]

St. Aldate, pa., partly in Berks., but chiefly in Oxon, principally within the city of Oxford; ac. 330. The church of St. Aldate (or St. Old), restored and enlarged 1862, is composed of portions

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
St. Albans Division	.....	.....	53261

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
St. Aldate	Oxford	65	3080

of various periods, but is on the whole a venerable structure, deriving additional interest from the comparatively perfect state in which it remains. The chancel encloses some of the oldest parts of the building, particularly an arcade of five small circular arches on the north side, which date from not long after the Conquest. The south aisle, called in 1517 the Trinity chapel, was built in the reign of Edward III.; it retains a piscina and a niche, and below it is a vaulted crypt. The north aisle, originally called from its dedication St. Saviour's Chapel, was built in 1445, but the columns of the arcade date from 1581; there are several interesting monuments, including an altar-tomb to John Noble (d. 1522), enriched on the sides with double-headed canopies, each enclosing an angel bearing a shield; on the top is a full-sized recumbent effigy. The church also contains some ancient brasses, one with effigy in academic dress. The parochial charities supply an income of about £500 yearly, which is expended in maintaining the fabric of the church, paying certain poor and aged pensioners, and certain other objects. [GRANDPONT.]

St. Aldhelm's Head. [WORTH MATRAVERS.]

St. Allen, pa., Mid Cornw., 4¾ N. of Truro; ac. 3,261; soil loamy, subsoil slaty. The church of St. Allen is chiefly Perp.; there is a monument to John Marten, Jun., of Trefonick (d. 1626); the old north door (now built up) is probably the oldest feature in the church, and is believed to date from the early part of the 13th cent. The feast of St. Allen is held on Rogation Sunday (the fifth after Easter).

St. Andrew (1), pa., Mid Guernsey, Channel Islands, 2 W.S.W. of St. Peter Port; ac. 1,203. A prettily-wooded valley extends east into the pa. from the King's Mills. The church of St. Andrew is a Gothic edifice of the 13th cent.; it has been partly modernised. Ste. Hélène and Vauxbelets are seats.

St. Andrew (2), eccl. pa., pa. of St. Helier (q.v.), S. Jersey, Channel Islands.

St. Andrew (3). [PERSHORE ST. ANDREW.]

St. Andrew Ilketshall. [ILKETSHALL ST. ANDREW.]

St. Andrews (1), pa., S.E. Glamorgs., 4½ S.W. of Cardiff; ac. 3,186; soil partly blue clay, elsewhere fine loam, overlying magnesian and lias limestone. The church of St. Andrew (restored 1875) is an ancient Gothic edifice. The Wesleyans and Calvinistic Methodists have chapels. At Dinas-Powys are the remains of an ancient castle, said to have been erected in the 11th cent. by Iestyn ab Gwrgan, consisting of four walls, 6 ft. thick and upwards of 30 ft. in height, crowned by battlements. Brick-making is carried on. The Mount is a seat.

St. Andrews (2), pa., parl. and royal burgh, university and mkt. to. (s.), seaport, and watering-place on St. Andrews Bay, E. Fifes., Sc., about 15 S.E. of Dundee; ac. 11,482; soil sand, loam, clay, and moss, overlying sandstone and flag, with some trap. St. A. was made a royal burgh in the 12th cent., and now forms one of the St. Andrews District of Burghs (Cupar, Anstruther Easter and Anstruther Wester, Kilrenny, Pittenweem, and Crail), which returns one member. The legendary history of this see ascribes its foundation to the translation hither of the relics of St. Andrew by Regulus, a monk of Achaia, who about A.D. 370 is said to have been miraculously guided to this spot; but its actual establishment is, with greater probability, attributed to Acca, Bishop of Hexham, A.D. 709–39, who settled here as a refugee from his own diocese, then ravaged by the Danes. The cathedral of St. Andrew (begun in 1160), now a complete ruin, was connected with the ancient Culdean monastery once existing here, and with the later Augustinian priory, which adjoined on the south side. Of the original Norm. work, there remains the east end of the Lady chapel with its flanking turrets, the bases of some of the piers in the choir, the west and south walls of the south transept, and part of the south wall of the nave, the rest of

ST. ANDREWS, FROM THE WEST BEACH.
(Photo. A. Downie, Jun., St. Andrews, N.B.)

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Allen	Truro (5)	295	468
St. Andrew (1)	Southampton (115)	79	1303
St. Andrew (2)	Southampton (140)	79	4589
St. Andrews (1)	Bridgend (2)	183	1149
St. Andrews (2), pa.	St. Andrews	443	7538
St. A. (2), parl. burgh	St. Andrews	443	6853
St. A. (2), roy. burgh	St. Andrews	443	6853
St. Andrews (2), to.	St. Andrews	443	6853

which and what remains of the west front date from the period 1271–79; beyond these portions scarcely anything now exists. Of the priory nothing is left save the south wall of the chapter-house, its vestibule, and some walling adjacent. The destruction of the cathedral and the priory has been attributed to the fanatic violence of Knox and his adherents, but recent examinations of the site have suggested that its collapse was really due to the inherent weakness of its construction; in or about 1887 the plan of the cathedral was discovered by excavation, and is now marked out on the turf. The see was raised to the dignity of an archbishopric in 1466. After the Revolution the see was abolished, but was revived in 1844, and it now includes also Dunkeld and Dunblane. Nearly opposite St. Mary's College stands the town church, originally built by Bishop Turgot in 1112, and dedicated to the Holy Trinity. The present building was erected in 1800, upon the foundations of the old one, and the interior of late has been very much improved. Within the door, and on the right side, is the monument to Archbishop Sharp, erected by his son in 1679; this is composed of white marble, the figure of the prelate is represented in the attitude of kneeling, and below is exhibited, in relief, the assassination of this dignitary. Besides the Established churches, there are also Free, Episcopal, and United Presbyterian churches, and Baptist, Independent, and Roman Catholic chapels. The University, the oldest in Scotland, was founded in 1410 by Bishop Wardlaw, and in 1411 obtained a charter and endowments, soon after which Benedict XIII. issued a Bull in its favour. The original colleges were St. Salvator (1450), St. Leonard's (1512), and St. Mary's (1537); of these the first two were united in 1747, and in 1890 Dundee College was affiliated to the University. The University Library was founded in 1610, and occupies a building which has occasionally been used for sittings of the Scotch Parliament. Of the old buildings of St. Salvator, only the chapel and steeple remain; and of St. Leonard's, only the ruins of the chapel. The site of the Madras College (1832) is on the south side of South Street, immediately behind and comprehending within it part of that fine old ruin of the Black Friars. The college, endowed by the founder, is now converted into a secondary school. There are four public halls—the town hall, the City Hall, the Good Templar Hall, and the Rifle Volunteers' Hall, the last-named and the town hall being large structures, suitable for entertainments and public meetings. St. A. has a cottage hospital, and in 1884 a hospital for aged, infirm, and sick persons was founded and endowed. St. A. at one time had an extensive foreign trade, having from thirty to forty trading vessels. The harbour is not large, and is very difficult of access, but safe for anchorage; its most dangerous wind is from the north-east. The export traffic is chiefly in potatoes and grain; and the imports are coals, pavement, timber, etc. From the tower of the ruined church of St. Regulus, a structure of the early 12th cent., there is a charming view of the Bell Rock, the bay, the city, and the surrounding country. The ruins of the once formidable castle, the scene of Cardinal Beaton's cruelty to others, and of his own assassination, lie towards the north-east and jut out into the sea. On the shore to the westward is a small eminence called the Witch Hill, the place where those convicted of witchcraft suffered. Near this spot is a monument raised in 1842 to the memory of the martyrs—Wishart, Mill, and others. Golf, one of the national games of Scotland, has its stronghold in St. A., the Royal and Ancient Golf Club having been established in 1754; two great meetings are held annually.

St. Andrews (3), pa., Orkney, Sc., comprising Copinshay island and a part of Mainland island, and containing the vil. of Tankerness, 6 E.S.E. of Kirkwall; ac. 12,830; soil sand, loam, clay, and moss.

St. Andrews (4), pa. on south bank of the Liffey, in S.E. Dublin, E. co. Dub., Ir., ½ N.E. of St. Patrick's Cathedral; ac. 45. The Protestant church of St. Andrew is a handsome edifice, dating from 1860. The Roman Catholic church of St. Andrew, Westland Row (1837), is a building in Classical style, with a font of the Doric order; it contains a beautiful group in white Italian marble by Hogan.

St. Andrews (5). [BALLYHALBERT.]

St. Andrews District. [ST. ANDREWS (2).]

St. Andrews Lhanbryde, pa. on the Lossie, N.E. Elgs., Sc.; ac. 9,197; soil sandy, yet fertile where the land is low and damp, overlying limestone. The pa. church is about 2 S.E. of Elgin. [LHANBRYDE.]

St. Andrews Minor, pa. near the sea-coast, S. Glamorgs., 4 S. by E. of Bridgend; ac. 230; soil various. The ancient church is in a very ruinous state. Clemenston is a seat.

St. Anne (1), or Santon, pa. and vil., S. I. of M., 4 S.W. of Douglas; ac. 4,250. The church is dedicated to St. Sanctain. In the churchyard are several interesting tombstones, among them being one which bears some curious verses, recording the death of Daniel Teare in 1707 at the age of 110. At the summit of the hill, near the church, is a stone circle, 300 ft. above the sea, commanding an extensive prospect.

St. Anne (2), small to., island of Alderney (q.v.), Channel Islands, 24 N.E. of St. Peter Port. The town stands nearly in the middle of the island, less than ½ mile from the harbour. Nearly the whole population is concentrated here. The houses are mostly plain modern buildings, but, owing to the irregularity and windings of the streets and the uneven character of the surface, the appearance of the town is in some places picturesque. The church of St. Anne (1850) is a noble edifice in Trans. and E. Eng. styles. There is a Roman Catholic church, and Presbyterian, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The other public buildings include a court-house and a Government House.

St. Anne's, pa. in S. Dublin, E. co. Dub., Ir., ½ E. by N. of St. Patrick's Cathedral; ac. 71. The church of St. Anne, Dawson Street, is a building in Classical style, with a front of the Doric order; in the vault below it is buried the poetess, Felicia Dorothea Hemans (d. 1835), and Cæsar Otway (d. 1842).

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Andrews (3)	Thurso (30)	744	1607
St. Andrews (4)	.....	.....	3278
St. A. Lhanbryde	Lhanbryde	581	1299
St. Andrews Minor	Cardiff (5)	163	15
St. Anne (1)	Ballasalla (3)	284	510
St. Anne's	.....	.....	5564

St. Anne's Head (1), headland on west side of entrance to Milford Haven, S.W. Pembs., 7 W. by S. of Milford. Here are two lighthouses, with fixed lights visible 20 and 18 miles respectively.

St. Anne's Head (2), headland, south-east coast of I. of M., 3¾ S.S.W. of Douglas. The stratification of the rocks here is extremely irregular, producing a very picturesque effect.

St. Anne's Hill (1), (240 ft.), pa. of and about 1 W. by N. from Chertsey (q.v.), W. Surrey. It is conical, well wooded, and commands on the east a prospect of the river and valley of the Thames as far as Richmond, and at every point of view presents varied scenes of great beauty. On the southern slope of the hill is a mansion, formerly the residence of Charles James Fox, the statesman. On the top of the hill is a fragment of a wall of an ancient chapel dedicated to St. Anne.

St. Anne's Hill (2), or Tanhill (about 1,000 ft.), pa. of All Cannings (q.v.), N. Wilts., 6 E.N.E. of Devizes. A cattle and sheep fair is held here on August 6.

St. Anne, Soho, dis. and pa. of W. London, E. Middx., about 1½ W. of St. Paul's; ac. 53. The dis. was first built over in the latter part of the 17th cent. The origin of the name is unknown. The church of St. Anne is a plain building, erected in 1685. Soho was a fashionable quarter in the early part of the 18th cent., and some fine mansions still remain in Soho Square and the narrow streets surrounding it. Newport Market, a French resort from the time of the Huguenot immigration, was improved by the erection of new houses in 1886. In Gerrard Street is the house occupied by John Dryden. Greek Street probably takes its name from the Levant merchants who frequented this neighbourhood in the time of Charles II. Here is the "House of Charity," established 1846, which affords gratuitous relief to the poor.

St. Anne's on the Sea (formerly Kelgmoles or Kilgromol), to. and watering-place, pas. of Lytham and Poulton-le-Fylde (q.v.), W. Lancs., about 10 N. of Stockport. The church of St. Anne is in Late Perp. style; there is also a mission church, and Roman Catholic and Nonconformist places of worship. North of the to., encompassed by sand-hills, is the Abraham Ormrod convalescent home for children. There is a golf club with extensive and well-laid-out links. The sea-wall, about a mile in length, forms a pleasant promenade, and an iron pier permits steamers to land or embark passengers at all states of the tide. St. George's Gardens are well-laid-out pleasure grounds.

St. Anne's, Shandon, pa. in north of city of Cork, partly also in Cork bar., E. co. Cork, Ir.; ac. 3,143. The church of St. Anne (1722) is a spacious edifice with a remarkable tower, 120 ft. in height, above which rises a stepped turret in three stages, faced on two sides with limestone, and on the others with red stone. The bells of this church, which have become famous through Father Prout's lyric, bear an inscription stating that they were cast at Gloucester by Abel Rudhall in 1750. Francis Mahoney (d. 1866), better known as "Father Prout," is interred in the churchyard. St. Anne's Church stands on the site of St. Mary's, demolished in 1690. The ground formerly occupied by the castle (Seandun = "Old Fort"), which belonged to the Barrys, is now covered by a Dominican church.

St. Anthony in Meneage, pa. on the isthmus of the promontory of Dennis Head, formed by the Helford river and the Gillan Creek, S. Cornw., 11 E. of Helston; ac. 1,840; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Anthony (restored 1890), said to have originally been a votive church built by shipwrecked Normans, is E. Eng.: the ancient granite font consists of a bowl supported by four cherubs bearing shields, with an inscription in relief. The pa. feast day is on the Sunday next to St. Stephen's Day (December 26). Near the church, on an estate called Lantinny, was formerly a cell of Benedictine (or black) monks of Angers, attached to the priory of Tywardreath and existing from the reign of Richard I. In the pa. are two ancient entrenchments, called "Great and Little Dennis or Dinas," commanding the mouth of the Helford river; the latter, occupied as a fort during the Civil War, surrendered in March, 1646, to Sir Thomas Fairfax.

St. Anthony in Roseland, pa. situated on a peninsula formed by the sea, St. Mawes Harbour and the estuary called Carreg Road, S. Cornw., 3 E. of Falmouth; ac. 1,117; soil fine gravel, overlying killas with elvan dyke and loam. The church of St. Anthony (rebuilt 1850) is supposed to have been founded by William Warlewast, Bishop of Exeter, and is in E. Eng. style. The south doorway of the nave is a fine specimen of Norm. work; the roof is of open woodwork, and the open benches, with carved ends, contain shields, showing the marriage connections of the Spry family. There are memorials to Lucy Hill (d. 1670); to George Spry (d. 1658); Arthur Spry, of Place (d. 1685), with a bust between two mourning female figures, intended to represent his two wives Mary (Gayer) (d. 1656) and — (Hele), both buried here. An ancient stone coffin lies exposed in the churchyard. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The pa. feast is on the Sunday nearest to August 10. Near the point where St. Anthony's Battery stood is a lighthouse, 50 ft. high, with a light visible at 15 miles. Here was anciently a priory of Austin Canons, founded in 1124 by Robert Warlewast, Bishop of Exeter, as a cell to the priory of Plympton, and dedicated to St. Mary de Valle, and on the clearing of the site for the rebuilding of the church two skeletons were found near the altar, supposed to be those of two priors, Peter de Antonio and David Bercley (d. c. 1507). The priory was dissolved before 1560. Place is a seat.

St. Arvans, pa. and vil., S.E. Mon., 2½ N.N.W. of Chepstow; ac. 2,214; soil loam and sand, overlying marl and limestone. The church of St. Arvan (restored 1884) is of various periods; the priest's door in the chancel is Norm., and the remains of a Saxon cross were found in the nave; in a cavity in the wall a number of silver coins have been discovered. There is a Congregational chapel. Oak Grove is a seat. Piercefield Park, another seat, was built at the end of the 18th cent., and is surrounded by a fine park.

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Anne, Soho	.....	.....	12317
St. Anne's on the Sea	St. Anne's on the Sea	226	2588
St. Anne's, Shandon	.....	.....	28147

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Anthony in M.	Penryn (9)	303	159
St. Anthony in R.	Falmouth (3)	306	153
St. Arvans	Chepstow (2½)	141	503

St. Arvans Grange, pa., S.E. Mon., adjoining the pa. of St. Arvans; ac. 536.

St. Asaph, parl. bor., city, pa., and mkt. to. (S.), head of U., petty sess. div., and Co. Co. dis., N.W. Flints. and N.E. Denbighs., 5 N. by W. of Denbigh; ac. of pa. 11,346. St. A. is pleasantly situated on a declivity between the Clwyd and the Elwy, just above the confluence of the two rivers. The tract of land is known as Bryn-Paulin, from which it has been conjectured that Suetonius Paulinus encamped here whilst marching to Mona. The city is but a village in size, its importance being entirely due to the cathedral. It belongs to the Flint district of parl. bors. The bishopric originated in the monastery founded about 560 A.D. by St. Kentigern (or Mungo), who had been expelled from his diocese of Glasgow. During Kentigern's time it was converted into an episcopal see by Maelgwyn Gwynedd, Prince of N. Wales. On his return to Scotland, St. Kentigern was succeeded by Asa or Asaf (d. 596), who gave his name to the diocese. The cathedral was destroyed by the English in

ST. ASAPH.

1247 and 1282, and burnt (with the exception of the outer walls) by Owen Glendower in 1402. The existing structure is mainly the work of Bishop Redman (d. 1505), but the style is mostly older, the nave with its aisles and the east window being Dec. The E. Eng. work in the chancel was carried out during the restoration of the building by Sir Gilbert Scott. The most striking feature in the external view of the cathedral is the massive central tower. There are some good Perp. oak choir-stalls. A monument with the figure of a bishop in late 13th-cent. vestments remains in the south transept, and in the south aisle is a memorial of the well-known poetess, Felicia Dorothea Hemans (d. 1835), who resided at Bronwylfa. Two of the bishops are buried in the churchyard—the renowned Isaac Barrow (d. 1680) and Vowler Short (d. 1872). Of the other prelates who have held the see those best known to fame are Geoffrey of Monmouth (d. 1154), Reginald Pecock (d. 1460), William Beveridge (d. 1708), and Thomas Tanner (d. 1735). The episcopal palace was rebuilt by Bishop Carey (d. 1846). The pa. church of St. Cydey and St. Asaph is a modern edifice in E. Eng. style. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The town buildings include a court-house, a workhouse, and a library and newsroom. Almshouses for eight poor widows were founded by Bishop Barrow in 1678. Near the town is a famous holy well called Ffynon Fair, adjoining which are some remains of a Late Perp. chapel. Bodelwyddan and Bronwylfa are seats.

St. Athan, pa. and vil. on the Bristol Channel, S.E. Glamorgs., 4½ S. by E. of Cowbridge; ac. 1,531; soil limestone and clay. The ancient church of St. Athan (partly restored 1888–90) contains monuments of the Berkrolles family with recumbent figures of a knight and his lady. There are Wesleyan and Calvinistic Methodist chapels. The castles of East and West Orchard, of which there are some remains, are said to have been erected by Flemish gardeners who settled here in the reign of Henry I.

St. Aubin, small to. on west side of St. Aubin's Bay, pa. of St. Brelade (q.v.), S.W. Jersey, 3 W. of St. Helier. The town is a neat little place, situated at the foot of a valley which runs north-west towards the Quenvais. It is a seaside resort, and contains many good houses and villas. An extensive tract of firm sand affords excellent sea-bathing. The town has a small harbour with a pier and breakwater. On an islet within ½ mile of the shore stands St. Aubin's Castle, a small fortress built for the defence of the town.

St. Aubin's Bay, inlet of the sea in the middle of the south coast of Jersey, Channel Islands. The bay is nearly 3 miles wide at its mouth, and extends upwards of 2 miles inland. The town of St. Helier is situated near its east extremity; and opposite to it, on the west side, is that of St. Aubin. Excepting towards the west end, the coast is wanting both in variety and grandeur; but the wide expanse of the bay and the fine curve formed by the shore, with the hills rising beyond, produce a very pleasing effect. Elizabeth Castle (q.v.) and the Hermitage Rock (q.v.) form conspicuous features in the scenery near St. Helier.

St. Audoen's, pa. in S.W. Dublin, E. co. Dub., Ir., ⅝ N.N.W. of St. Patrick's Cathedral; ac. 34. The Protestant church of St. Audoen consists of the nave of a Late Gothic edifice, with a west doorway dating from the 12th cent.; the greater part of the edifice is now in ruins; it contains a good font, and the tomb of Lord Portlester (1455) with recumbent effigies of himself and his lady. There is also a Roman Catholic church dedicated to the same saint. Among the charitable institutions is St. Malachy's Orphan Charity for destitute children. Near the Protestant church is a gateway with some remains of the inner wall erected at the time of Bruce's invasion.

St. Augustine's (or Eastern) Division, one of the eight parl. divs. of Kent. It returns one member.

St. Austell, pa., U. and mkt. to. (F.) and head of Co. Co. dis., Mid Cornw., 14 N.E. of Truro; ac. 12,125. The town, situated on the southern slope of a hill, is of comparatively modern date, and

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Arvans Grange	Chepstow (2½)	141	15
St. Asaph, bor.	St. Asaph	212	1858
St. Asaph, pa.	St. Asaph	212	3091
St. Athan	St. Athan	184½	356

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Audoen's	.....	.....	3714
St. Augustine's Div.	.....	.....	68025
St. Austell, pa.	St. Austell	280	11377
St. Austell, to.	St. Austell	280	3477

owes its prosperous condition to the numerous tin and copper mines and china-clay works in the surrounding district. The streets, though still narrow and irregular, have been much improved through the modernising of the old shops and the erection of new buildings. The church of the Holy Trinity, standing in the centre of the to., is of Pentewan stone, in E. Dec. and Perp. styles. In the churchyard, to which it was removed in 1893 for preservation, is a large flat stone called the Menagew (or Mengu) Stone, previously standing near the western entrance to the church; it was said to show the meeting-point of three manors, as well as to define other boundaries, and is the object of some local superstitions. There are several Nonconformist chapels. Among other public buildings are the town hall and market-house (1844), a spacious building of granite; the market is conveniently arranged for general purposes, and is lighted by electricity; the Assembly Rooms, Truro Road, include a large room, with anterooms (lighted by electric light) and private entrance. The Constitutional Club has a library; the Liberal Club, at the west end of Fore Street, was opened in 1890. The St. A. Cottage-Gardening Society holds an annual exhibition about the beginning of August. A market is held on Saturday afternoon, and cattle fairs are held on April 5, May 31, July 26, October 19, and November 30. In this district the principal industry is working the china-clay and china-stone mines; it is estimated that in the various processes connected with this manufacture over 3,000 persons are employed; all the leading firms have offices in St. Austell, which is the capital of the china-clay district, the ports of export being chiefly Par, Fowey, Charlestown, and Newquay. It is estimated that over 400,000 tons of this clay are annually exported to the Potteries and into Lancashire, where it is largely used in the calico-weaving districts of Blackburn and other cotton towns, the china-clay being the principal ingredient in the sizing with which the cloth is heavily loaded; it is also used in chemical works. These mineral substances were first discovered in Cornwall in 1763, and about this time Josiah Wedgwood, the great English potter, in conjunction with a Mr. Carthew, became lessee of certain china-mines near St. Austell; and the manufacture of porcelain from this clay, skilfully superintended by Wedgwood, was highly successful. Carclaze mine is situated 2 N. of the to., at an altitude of 665 ft. From the summit of this rising ground the mine is sunk to the depth of 150 ft., open, and somewhat in the shape of an enormous basin, the surface of which measures upwards of 15 ac., with a circumference of more than a mile. It is supposed to have been worked for more than 400 years, and until about 1851 for tin exclusively, but now produces china-clay (kaolin), of which an immense quantity is washed from the decomposed granite forming the strata of the mine. There are flour-mills and breweries. Near Higher Blowing House (formerly part of Menacuddle Wood), and about ½ N. of the town, is an ancient baptistery or well chapel, close to which was formerly a chapel attached to the priory of Tywardreath, but abolished in the reign of Henry VIII.; the existing building, much overgrown and surrounded with trees, is an E. Gothic structure. There are two entrances, each consisting of a pointed arch, on clustered shafts, opposite each other, one on the north and the other on the south side; at the west end is a small window; the spring, rising at the east end, flows into a divided basin of granite; adjoining this baptistery is the Chapel Main, said to be an ancient burial-place. On the extreme north and north-west boundaries of the pa., about a mile distant from each other, and on the highest land in the pa., are two large barrows, called "Cock's Barrow" and "Hen's Barrow," the latter, 1,034 ft. above the sea-level, being also known as "The Archbeacon of Cornwall;" from the top of these, on a clear day, the whole county of Cornwall can be readily viewed. There are several seats in the neighbourhood.

St. Austell Bay, on the south-east coast of Cornw. It is about 4 miles wide, having Gribben Head for its eastern and Black Head for its western boundary, and runs inland about 5 miles.

St. Austell (or Mid) Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Cornw. It returns one member.

St. Bartholomew, pa. in south-east of Dublin, Dublin bar., E. co. Dub., Ir., 1½ E.S.E. of St. Patrick's Cathedral; ac. 193. The church of St. Bartholomew is a modern edifice.

St. Bees, pa., tp., and large vil., near St. Bees Head, W. Cumb., about 4 S. of Whitehaven; ac. of pa. 71,332, of tp. 1,814; soil mostly high and bare of wood, but fertile towards the sea, abounding in coal, freestone, and limestone. The church of St. Bega (restored 1855–58), formerly that of the priory, is Norm. and E. Eng., dating mainly from 1150 to 1180. A large number of carved fragments of stone, incised coffin-slabs, and other sepulchral memorials dating from the 8th to probably the middle of the 14th cent., have been found in and about the church. There are three fragments of 8th-cent. date, and a number of coffin-slabs with carved or incised crosses of Late Norm. work. The gravestone of Thomas de Cotyngham (d. 1300), a memorial to Walter de Hualton (1281), a 14th-cent. slab and effigy to Lady Johanna Lucy, two mutilated figures of knights of late 13th-cent. date, a Late Norm. piscina, a stoup, and an early mortar also exist. There is a Free Methodist chapel. A

ST. BEES AND ST. BEES HEAD.
(Photo. Green Brothers, Grasmere.)

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
St. Austell Division	....	49624
St. Bartholomew	....	4428

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Bees, pa.	St. Bees	299	2508
St. Bees, tp.	St. Bees	299	104 convent existed here in 650, but was destroyed by the Danes three centuries later—a few interesting fragments, however, still survive. Afterwards (about 1120) a Benedictine priory was founded, and flourished up to the time of the Dissolution. Scarcely a trace remains now, as all the domestic buildings were removed about 1810. St. Bees Theological College (founded 1816) is near the church, and was established to supply a good and economical education for candidates for holy orders; the course extends over two years, during which time each student lives in the vil., under the direction and control of the Principal. The St. Bees Free Grammar School (1583) is also near the church, and has a good library attached.

St. Bees Head, promontory, W. Cumb., about 2½ N. of St. Bees. There is a lighthouse (erected 1867), with light visible for 25 miles.

St. Benet's Abbey. [HORNING.]

St. Blaize's Well. [BROMLEY (1).]

St. Blazey, pa. and mkt. to. (s.), Mid Cornw., 4 N.N.E. of St. Austell; ac. 1,797; soil poor, overlying clay. The church of St. Blasye (or Blaize), restored, is a building of granite, in Perp. style; in the east window is a figure of St. Blaize in painted glass, preserved from the former church, and the festival of the Saint is still duly observed on Candlemas Day, February 2. There is a monument with genealogical inscription and a fine stained window to the Carlyons of Tregrehan, said to trace their descent from Richard I. (Cœur-de-Lion), and a monument to Henry Scobell of Roselyon (first treasurer and paymaster of the farm tin to Queen Anne) and to Ann, his wife, erected in 1729. There are Wesleyan, Free Methodist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The town hall (1881) is a plain stone building; an older town hall still stands. The Working Men's Institute (established 1882) contains reading and recreation rooms and a good library. Tregrehan, with a fine mansion in Italian style, in well-laid-out grounds and commanding fine views, is a seat.

St. Blazey Gate, vil., pa. of St. Blazey (q.v.), Mid Cornw., about 1½ W. of Par, on the road to St. Austell. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. Near where the turnpike formerly stood is a curious sepulchral stone, erected 920, and now used as a gate-post; it is 7½ ft. high, 1½ ft. wide, and 8 in. thick, and bears the inscription "Alvoron, Ullici filius."

St. Blazey Highway, vil., pa. of St. Blazey (q.v.), Mid Cornw., about 2 W. of Par, on the road to St. Austell.

St. Boniface Down (about 900 ft.), S.E. I. of W., a little N. of Ventnor. It is the highest ground on the island, and shelters Ventnor from northerly winds. The down commands fine views.

St. Boswells, or Lessudden, pa. and vil., N. Roxbs., Sc.; ac. 3,155; soil chiefly clay, resting on a tilly subsoil, and frequently mixed with loam and sand. The pa., bounded on the north by the Tweed, is beautifully enclosed, planted, and cultivated. On the west rise the Eildon Hills, and on the east and north the ground is undulating, the latter quarter ornamented by the fine woods of Dryburgh, separated from the vil. by the Tweed, which is here a beautiful river, enclosed within high banks. The vil. consists of one long street, running east and west from the vil. green, and is 4 S.E. of Melrose. Here are the kennels of the Duke of Buccleuch's foxhounds, the largest pack in the South of Scotland. On the green on July 18 is held one of the most important horse fairs in Scotland; it also attracts a large number of salesmen of miscellaneous goods, and is still frequented by the direct descendants of the gipsies for the disposal of earthen, horn, and tin wares. Benrig, Dryburgh Abbey, Holmes, Lessudden House, and Maxpoffle are seats.

St. Botolph without Aldgate, or East Smithfield, pa., Mid London, E. Middx., 1 E. of St. Paul's; ac. 34. The church of St. Botolph (rebuilt about 1740) is in the Classical style of the period; it contains monuments of Thomas Lord Darcy (executed 1537) and Sir Nicholas Carew (executed 1538). White Kennett (d. 1728), afterwards Bishop of Peterborough, held the living.

St. Brelade, pa., S.W. Jersey, 4 W. of St. Helier; ac. 1,315. The pa. occupies the south-west part of the island, being bounded on the west by St. Ouen's Bay and on the east by St. Aubin's Bay, between which is St. Brelade's Bay, forming a deep break in the south coast-line. The north-east part of the pa. consists of the sandy tract of Quenvais (q.v.). The coast from the Corbières past Moye Point to St. Brelade's Bay is for the most part wild and broken and in some places very grand. The Vingtaine de Noirmont, between St. Brelade's Bay and St. Aubin's Bay, forms an open plateau, almost wholly overgrown with heather and furze. The church of St. Brelade is a small and very picturesque Norm. building. A small chapel in the churchyard, probably older than the church itself, is adorned with wall-paintings.

St. Brelade's Bay, inlet of the sea, south coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 3½ W. by S. of St. Helier. The bay is a mile wide at its mouth, and extends about the same distance inland. The inner part of the bay is skirted by a wide expanse of sand, large tracts of which are never covered by the sea. The coast scenery is picturesque, and many villas have been built near the shore.

St. Breock, pa., S.W. Cornw., bounded on the north and east by the Camel, 7 N.W. of Bodmin; ac. 7,976, 65 water and tidal water, and 200 foreshore; soil clay-slate, overlying slate. The town of Wadebridge extends into this pa. The church of St. Breoke (restored 1881) is Dec. and Perp. In the south aisle are some brass effigies (c. 1520) belonging to a memorial to the Tredeneck family of this pa., including the figure of a man in a furred robe, one wife and seven girls; at the restoration in 1881 the figures of five sons were stolen, and the effigy of another wife and shields of arms are also missing; there is also a small inscribed brass to Christopher Tredeneck, Esq., Sheriff of Cornwall 1530–31, who died in 1531; and a brass shield of arms, much defaced. The Bible Christians have a chapel. There are two slate quarries on the Camel, but these are not now worked.

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Blazey	St. Blazey	276	2705
St. Boswells, pa.	St. Boswells	356	962
St. Boswells, vil.	St. Boswells	356	564

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Botolph w. A.	.....	.....	2449
St. Brelade	Southampton (144)	79	2253
St. Breock	Bodmin Road (10)	268	1763

St. Breward, pa. and large vil., S.W. Cornw., 7 N. of Bodmin; ac. 9,237; soil various, overlying granite. The church of St. Breward (restored 1864) was founded by William Breward, Bishop of Exeter (1224–45), who added the 13th-cent. portions to the then existing Norm. church. The north arcade is Norm., and has short cylindrical columns with fluted caps on square bases; the font, also Norm., has a singular basin, diminishing from a square base to a circular form at the top. There are some good bench-ends, carved with shields of arms and emblems of the "Passion." On a low altar-tomb in the south aisle are kneeling effigies in relief of a man and his wife, and a mutilated inscription to Christopher Rogers (d. 1604); in the chancel is a tablet, erected in 1609 by John Adams, to his father, Lewis Adams (d. 1607), thirty-six years vicar here; it has kneeling effigies in relief of the vicar and his wife. There are Free Methodist and Bible Christian chapels. Fairs are held on the first Thursday after June 24, and the Thursday nearest September 25. The highest eminences in the co.—Brown Willy, 1,380 ft., and Rough Tor (locally pronounced "Rowtor"), 1,296 ft. above the level of the sea—are in this pa., which is chiefly situated on a granite formation; both these hills are crowned with rocks and surrounded by extensive moors, relieved in places by patches of cultivated land; on the easternmost peak of Rough Tor stood the chapel of St. Michael, the foundations of which may yet be traced; the stone arch of the doorway, removed in 1836, is now the entrance of an inn between Camelford and Altarnon. On Garrah, a tor near, are numerous remains of prehistoric antiquities, and in the immediate locality, square and circular enclosures of granite and earth, kistvaens, and a barrow. In the wall enclosing the schools is a fine semicircular cross-head; the circular head of another is built into the wall of a house. Middlemoor Cross, a shaft with rounded head, over 6 ft. high and 9 in. thick, lies by the road from Swallock to Roughtor; there are also two bases of crosses in the pa. The celebrated Eddystone granite quarries are here. On the western side of the pa., in a sequestered valley, is an ancient well; the structure is dilapidated, but the arched entrance remains, and there are vestiges near of ecclesiastical buildings, possibly part of the destroyed chapel of St. James.

St. Briavels, pa. and vil. on the Wye, W. Gloucs., 8 S.E. of Monmouth; ac. 4,800; soil loam, overlying limestone and sandstone. St. Mary's Church (restored 1861) is of mixed periods, with Norm., E. Eng., and other work; in the chancel are the remains of a monument to William Warren (1573) and his wife Mariana. There is a mission church, and Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. A reading-room and library was founded in 1854. The charities are small. St. B. Castle, a seat, is an old border fortress; the keep (temp. Henry I.) fell into ruins in 1756; the present buildings, erected 1276, include the entrance towers, the kitchen, and the oratory, which was built in 1300. Bigsweir House is also a seat.

St. Bride's, pa. on south side of St. Bride's Bay, S.W. Pembs., 7½ W.N.W. of Milford; ac. 1,700. The church of St. Bride, an ancient Gothic edifice (restored 1874), stands near the head of a creek called St. Bride's Haven. In former times herring-fishing was carried on very extensively, and an ancient chapel, the ruins of which stand on the beach, is said to have been converted into a curing-house. St. Bride's is a seat.

St. Bride's Bay, inlet of St. George's Channel, on west coast of Pembs., 6 W. of Haverfordwest. The bay is 9 miles wide at its mouth, and extends about 8 miles inland. Ramsey island and Skomer island are situated on the north and south sides of the entrance respectively. The bay lies open to gales from the west, but there is good anchorage in Solva Creek. The sea is here encroaching on the land.

St. Bride's Major, pa. on the Bristol Channel, S. Glamorgs., 3 S. of Bridgend; ac. 5,045 with 534 tidal water and foreshore; soil partly clayey, elsewhere stiff loam, mostly overlying lias limestone. The Ewenny skirts the pa. on the north. The church of St. Bridget is Dec.; it contains some interesting memorials, including an altar-tomb with the recumbent figure of a knight of the Butler family and his lady. The Baptists and Calvinistic Methodists have chapels. The ruins of Ogmore Castle comprise a small square Norm. tower, and part of the curtain adjoining the outer court. Dunraven Castle, the 18th-cent. mansion of the Earl of Dunraven, stands near the site of the ancient castle of Dundryvan, the traditional residence of the ancient Welsh hero, Bran ab Llyr, and the abode of the chieftains of this district down to the Anglo-Norman Conquest. The mansion is beautifully situated on a rocky headland pierced by several caves, one of which is known as the Wind Hole.

St. Bride's Minor, pa. and tp. on the Ogmore, S. Glamorgs., 2½ N. of Bridgend; ac. of pa. 2,306, of tp. 1,919; soil mostly gravelly, partly overlying Coal Measures. The church of St. Bridget is Norm. The pa. contains Baptist, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, and Congregational chapels. Brick-making is carried on. Sarnfawr is a seat.

St. Bride super Ely, pa. on the Ely, S.E. Glamorgs., 6 W. by N. of Cardiff; ac. 601. The church of St. Bride (restored 1849) is Norm. The Congregationalists have a chapel.

St. Bridget's (1), pa. within the city of Dublin (q.v.), S.E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 37.

St. Bridget's (2), pa. within the bor. of Wexford (q.v.), S.E. co. Wex., Ir.; ac. 9.

St. Budeaux, pa. and vil., bounded on the west by the Tamar, S.W. Dev., 3½ N.W. of Plymouth; ac. 3,317; soil strong and loamy, overlying clay. The church of St. Budeaux (restored 1876) is in Perp. style; there are monuments to the families of Gorges and Treville, and one to Sir Thomas Byard of Mount Tamar. The pa. contains Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels. The charities, including almshouses, amount to £15. At Bull Point, Kinterbury, there is a Government powder

Place.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Breward	Bodmin (7)	271	779
St. Briavels	Cinderford (4)	131	1112
St. Bride's	Milford (7)	273	181
St. Bride's Major	Bridgend (3)	183	621
St. Bride's Minor, pa.	Bridgend (2½)	183	2120
St. Bride's Minor, tp.	Bridgend (2½)	183	1072
St. Bride super Ely	St. Fagans (1½)	167	94
St. Bridget's (1)	.....	.....	6357
St. Bridget's (2)	Wexford	93	549
St. Budeaux	St. Budeaux	227	2470

magazine. A range of forts was completed here some time since.

Saintbury, pa. and vil., N.E. Gloucs., 7 S.E. of Evesham; ac. 1,340; soil partly loam, overlying oolite rock. The church of St. Nicholas is partly Norm., and retains some ancient stained glass in the east window. The charities are small. There is an ancient cross in the vil.

St. Buryan, pa. and vil., W. Cornw., about 7 S.W. of Penzance; ac. 6,964; soil decomposed granite, overlying granite. The church of St. Buriana (restored)—said to occupy the site of a collegiate church of Austin Canons, founded by Athelstan A.D. 930, in honour of St. Buriana and dedicated August 26, 1238—is situated on an eminence 400 ft. above the level of the sea, and is a building of granite, chiefly Dec. and Perp., but with some Norm. portions; the remains of a chancel screen, partially destroyed with other interesting antiquities in 1814, still exist, and are of exceedingly rich and bold workmanship, carved, coloured, and gilt; and there are also four ancient stalls. The entrance to the roodloft may be traced on the south side, and in the tower is a stone coffin-lid of the 13th cent., found in the churchyard and bearing an inscription in Norman-French to Clarice, wife of Geoffrey de Bolleit (or Boleigh), still the name of a farm in the pa.; the font, of granite, is E. Eng. In the churchyard stands the quatrefoiled head of a cross, raised on three steps. St. Burian continued to be a deanery and royal peculiar, including the adjoining pas. of St. Levan and St. Sennen (formerly chapelries) until the death (April 11, 1864) of the Very Rev. Fitzroy H. R. Stanhope, rector and last dean, when under the provisions of the Act, 13 and 14 Vict. c. 76, the deanery and peculiar jurisdiction were abolished, the rectory remaining and being endowed, together with the rectories of St. Levan and St. Sennen, out of the income of the dissolved collegiate foundation. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. At Penberth crab and lobster fishing is carried on. A cattle and sheep fair is held on the first Tuesday in March, and horse races are held every Easter Monday. The buildings of the college formerly existing in the pa. were extant in part until the time of the Protectorate, when it is said they were destroyed by one Shrubshall (or Shrubsole), Governor of Pendennis Castle under Cromwell. Mention is said to be made of the college in Domesday. There are the ruins of an ancient chapel or chantry. Scattered over the pa. are many ancient remains, including a rude circular-headed cross about 5 ft. high; a portion of another on a square base; a round-headed cross about 4 ft. high, with a boldly-carved Latin cross upon it; a similar cross 3 ft. in height, on a circular base, and another with a double incised cross on the round head. There are also several so-called Druidical remains, consisting of circles, cromlechs, cairns, pillars, and logan-stones; one circle, 73 ft. in diameter, now consists of 19 stones, the original number being doubtful. There are also the remains of an old mansion of the Levelis family, which from their extent and situation show that the house must originally have surpassed anything of its kind in the co. In this pa. was born (in or about 1577) William Noy, M.P. for St. Ives, 1625, and Attorney-General, October 31, 1631; he is said to have devised the now historical tax called "ship-money," so vigorously resisted by Hampden. Treveren House is a seat.

St. Canice, pa., Crannagh and Shillelogher bars., Mid co. Kilk., Ir.; ac. 6,915. Part of the pa. is in the city of Kilkenny (q.v.), and extends westward from the Nore, which passes through the city.

St. Catherine, pa. and picturesque vil., N.E Somerset, about 4 N.E. of Bath; ac. 1,037; soil loamy, overlying lias. The church of St. Catherine (restored 1846) is Norm., and contains several monuments. The east window is filled with stained glass of the date of Prior Cantlow (1489–99), to whose memory it was erected; it had been much mutilated, but is now restored as nearly as possible to its original design. Here is a reservoir supplying the Bath Waterworks. St. Catherine's Court is a seat.

St. Catherine's (1), pl. on Loch Fyne, with hotel and ferry, W. Args., Sc., opposite Inveraray.

St. Catherine's (2), pa., Uppercross bar., Mid co. Dub., Ir., in the city of Dublin; ac. 477. It contains part of Rathmines and Rathgar.

St. Catherine's Bay (1), sea-inlet on west side of Stronsay island, E. Ork., Sc., 16 N.E. of Kirkwall. The bay is 3 miles wide at its mouth, and extends 1½ mile inland. It contains the island of Lingaholm (q.v.).

St. Catherine's Bay (2), inlet on east coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 4 N.E. of St. Helier. The bay is wide and open, the distance across its mouth being about a mile, but it has been formed into a harbour of refuge by means of a long breakwater at its north extremity and a smaller one on the south side. The cliffs here, which project boldly in some places and are often thickly covered with verdure, are extremely fine. Three valleys, running down to the shore, add to the picturesque and varied character of the scenery.

St. Catherine's Chapel. [ABBOTSBURY.]

St. Catherine's Hill (1), eminence with a clump of trees, pa. of Chilcombe (q.v.), W. Hants, about 1½ S. of Winchester. The summit, commanding a fine view, is surrounded by a deep fosse. There are remains of an ancient chapel.

St. Catherine's Hill (2), eminence, S. Hants, about 2 N. of Christchurch. On the summit, which commands a fine view, are the traces of entrenchments. There are also foundations of an ancient chapel.

St. Catherine's Hill (3). [CHALE.]

St. Catherine's Hill (4), eminence, S.W. Surrey, about 1 S.W. of Guildford. The summit commands a good view, and there are remains of the ancient chapel of St. Catherine, of the E. Dec. period. A pleasure fair is held on the hill on October 2.

St. Catherine's Point, the most southerly point of the I. of W., about 5 W. of Ventnor. Here is St. Catherine's lighthouse; it was commenced in 1838, and finished in 1840; it is a handsome stone tower, 62 ft. in height to the turret, and 86 ft. to the top of the lantern; a fog-horn is situated near the lighthouse, worked by steam. On May 1, 1888,

PLACE.	Nearest Rail. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Saintbury	Honeybourne (4)	101	122
St. Buryan	Penzance (7)	320	1288
St. Canice	Kilkenny	81	4794
St. Catherine	Bath (4)	107	112
St. Catherine's (2)	.....	.....	18968

St. Catherine's lighthouse was fitted with a very powerful electric light.

St. Catherine's Well. [PORT ERIN.]

St. Chloe, ha., pa. of Minchinhampton (q.v.), Mid Glouces., ½ N. of Amberley.

St. Clears, pa., small to., seaport, and head of petty sess. div., on the Taf, S.W. Carmarths., 9 W. by S. of Carmarthen; ac. 2,642. St. C. is a very ancient place; it retained its municipal constitution down to 1889. The church of St. Clare (restored 1883) is Norm. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Congregational chapels. The other public buildings include a court-house and a town hall. The ancient castle, partly destroyed by Llewelyn ap Iorwerth in 1214, and finally demolished in the ensuing struggle between the English and Welsh, is supposed to have stood (either wholly or in part) on a mound in the town called Banc-y-Beili. The principal industries are butter-making and the manufacture of bricks and drain-pipes. The town played a conspicuous part in the Rebecca riots of 1843. Blaencorse and Penycoed are seats.

St. Cleer, pa. and vil., S.E. Cornw., 2½ N. of Liskeard; ac. 10,934; soil light, subsoil stony. Part of this pa. is included in the bor. of Liskeard. The church of St. Cleer (restored) is Perp.; in the north wall of the chancel is a squint; a piscina also remains; on the north side is a Norm. doorway, with zigzag mouldings. There are memorials to the families of Jope (1844–54); Connock (1757–1804), and Langford (1614), with a curious and lengthy inscription. The Bible Christians and Free Methodists have chapels. A short distance east of the church, on the descent of the road, are the remains of the ancient well or baptistery of St. Cleer, formerly enclosed within a small chapel, part of the entrance of which, with other portions, remains; on one side of the well stands an ancient cross, about 7 ft. 2 in. high, with a cross in relief on both sides of it; the cross has been restored in memory of the Rev. John Jope, sixty-seven years vicar; and the well by the Rogers family. In a pathway field between Redgate and St. Cleer are two ancient stone monuments, one of which, about 7 ft. high, is sculptured on one side, and seems to have been part of the shaft of a cross; the other is a square plinth, inscribed in letters of the 9th cent.:—"Doniert rogavit pro anima" (= "Doniert prayed for his soul"). This Doniert was King of Cornwall in the 9th cent., and is said to have been drowned about 872 or 873. The charities amount to about £8 10s. yearly. There are chalybeate springs in the pa., and about 1 N. of the church, on a close of land called "Trethevye," some so-called Druidical remains known as the "Trevethy Stone," a cromlech of granite, consisting of three upright stones, and one large slab in an inclined position. The "Hurlers," another ancient monument, probably consisted, when perfect, of three contiguous circles, bearing from N.N.E. to S.S.W.; of these, 11 stones are still standing and 17 prostrate. On St. Cleer Down, which is about 750 ft. high and commands a fine view, is the reservoir of the Liskeard waterworks.

St. Clement (1), pa., partly within the bor. of Truro, on the banks of the St. Clement's Creek, S. Cornw., 2 S.E. of Truro; ac. 3,549; soil inclined to clay, overlying loam. The church of St. Clement (restored about 1867) is chiefly in Perp. style; there is a monument to Rear-Admiral Robert Carthew Reynolds, of H.M.S. St. George, wrecked off the coast of Jutland, 1811; in 1844 and later years a number of ancient wall-paintings were discovered. East of the churchyard, near to the vicarage-house, stands a very ancient monumental stone, formerly used as a gate-post to a field in this pa.; on the head is carved a plain Greek cross within a circle. There is a chapel for Bible Christians in the pa., and a pa. Sunday school is held at St. Clement's Church Town. The charities amount to £10 yearly, distributed in bread and fuel. Bodrean, Lanilly, Penair, Pencalenick, Penmount, Polwhele, and Rosedale are seats.

St. Clement (2), pa., S.E. Jersey, Channel Islands, 2 E. by S. of St. Helier; ac. 1,044. The pa. occupies the south-east corner of the island; it includes the tract called Samares (q.v.) and the promontory terminating in Plat Rocque, these two being separated by St. Clement's Bay. The surface is mostly sandy and level, with a considerable extent of marsh. The coast is quite low, cultivation extending in some places to the margin of the sea. On the shore of St. Clement's Bay is the vil. of Pontac (q.v.). The church of St. Clement is an ancient Gothic edifice. Samares Manor House is in the pa.

St. Clement Danes, pa. in Central London, E. Middx., 1 W. of St. Paul's; ac. 55. The pa. is so called either because Harald, son of Knut, and other Danes were buried here, or because the church was built by some Danes who retreated hither when they were expelled from other parts of the kingdom. The church of St. Clement (rebuilt 1681 and restored 1879) is in the Classical style of the period. Dr. Johnson attended the services here, and a brass plate has been fixed to the pillar next the seat which he occupied; the baptismal register contains the names of Robert Cecil, afterwards Earl of Salisbury (1563), the poet Sir Charles Sedley (1639), and Anthony Ashley Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury (1671). Among those buried in the church or churchyard are the poet Otway (d. 1685), Bishop Berkeley (d. 1685), and Rymer of the Fœdera (d. 1713).

St. Clement's Bay, inlet of the sea at the east extremity of the south coast of Jersey, Channel Islands, 2½ E.S.E. of St. Helier. The bay is upwards of 1½ mile wide at its mouth, and extends about ½ mile inland. It is studded with a vast mass of rocks, especially in the east part, which are covered by the rising tide. The few that rise completely above the sea are in many cases covered with verdure.

St. Clement's Isle, a rocky islet in Mounts Bay, S.W. Cornw., about 3 S. of Penzance.

St. Clement's Reach, bend in the Thames, between Essex and Kent, 16 E. by S. of St. Paul's. The reach extends about 1½ mile between Greenhithe and Grays Thurrock. A marshy tract skirts it on either side.

St. Clether, pa. on the Inny, N.E. Cornw., 8 W. of Launceston; ac. 2,960; soil mixed, overlying

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	POPULATION.
St. Clears	St. Clears	241	937
St. Cleer	Liskeard (3)	259	2124
St. Clement (1)	Truro (2)	295	3983
St. Clement	Southampton (142)	79	1349
St. Clement Danes	.....	.....	8422
St. Clether	Launceston (8)	223	197

slate and rock. The church of St. Clether (rebuilt 1865) is E. Eng. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. Not far from the church, in a field called "Chapel Park," are the ruins of an ancient chapel, with the remains of an altar. Basil, in this pa., was a seat of the Trevelyan family; of the ancient mansion, part of which is now a farmhouse, there are considerable remains. On the banks of the river is a granite cross, nearly 7 ft. in height.

St. Columba, q.s. pa., pa. of Kilmore and Kilbride, Mid Args., Sc. It forms part of the to. of Oban (q.v.).

St. Columb Major, pa. and ancient mkt. to. (TH.) on the road from Camelford to Truro, Mid Cornw., about 16 N.E. of Truro; ac. 12,687; soil various, overlying marl. The church of St. Columba is E. Dec. and Perp.; in 1676 the chancel, originally 10 ft. longer, was injured by an explosion of gunpowder. The south chancel aisle was formerly a chapel, built or rebuilt about 1427 by Sir John Arundell of Lanherne, and under which several members of this family are buried. In the nave floor, on the south side, is a very fine brass, one of the most elaborate and interesting in the co., originally placed in the Arundell chapel, to Sir John Arundell (d. 1545), and Elizabeth (Grey), his first wife, and Katherine (Grenville), his second wife; the brass includes effigies of all three, and of five out of eight children; there are also six quartered shields of arms and the matrices of two others, a banner, and some inscriptions; a ribbon border of brass with inscription (now imperfect) surrounds the whole. Occupying a corresponding position on the south side of the nave, on a single stone about 7 ft. long, are brasses with effigies of parents and children and shields of arms to Sir John Arundell (d. 1590) and Anna (Stanley), his wife (d. 1602), and also to his son, Sir John Arundell (d. 1633), and Anne (Jernegan), his wife. The church also contains a monument to Robert Hoblyn (d. 1756), author of a work on the Stannary Laws. The benches in the north and south aisles still retain the ancient bench-ends, most of which are exquisitely carved. The stone stairs to a parvise over the south porch still remain. The font, of early date, is ornamented with grotesque faces. During some repairs in 1846 much fresco-painting was discovered, and beneath the floor an altar-stone, now placed on four granite shafts, and re-erected in the chancel. The churchyard contains a small granite cross of curious design; and there is another (of more ancient date) by the south porch with a nearly obliterated inscription. The Bible Christians, Congregationalists, Free Methodists, and Wesleyans have places of worship. The town hall (1848) is a stone building, with a basement used as a meat market. There is a Mechanics' Institution and Newsroom, with Temperance Hall, built 1874. The town is the centre of a large agricultural district, and on market days the sale of cereals and other produce is considerable. A charter for a market here was granted to John Arundell by Edward III. in 1333 at Berwick-on-Tweed, for his services on the occasion of an incursion into Scotland. The cattle markets are held on the third Monday in every month, except March and November, when fairs are held in lieu thereof on the first Thursday after Mid-Lent Sunday and the first Thursday after November 12. Jenkyns' charity of £200, given by James Jenkyns in 1628, now realises £60 10s. yearly, and is distributed in money. About 2 S.E. of the to. stands Castle-an-Dinas (q.v.). The pa. also contains the Nine Maidens (q.v.). The ancient game of hurling with a silver ball is still annually practised here on Shrove Tuesday and the Saturday week following. Trevan, a seat on an eminence north of the town, is an embattled structure of the 15th cent., with a granite entrance hall of Elizabethan date.

St. Columb Minor, pa. and vil., W. Cornw., 12 N. of Truro; ac. 5,897 (including 335 of water); soil sandy and loamy, overlying clay-slate. The church of St. Columba (restored 1889) is Late Dec. and Perp. The chancel retains its piscina, and the rood-stairs also remain; there are several slate monuments, and the effigy of a man in civilian dress boldly carved in slate. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Bible Christian, and Primitive Methodist chapels. A fair is held on June 9 yearly, for oxen, horses, and sheep. The pa. feast is on the Sunday nearest to November 17. The manor of Rialton or Ryalton ("Rieltone" of Domesday) formerly belonged to the priory of Bodmin. The mansion house at Rialton was much augmented by Thomas Vivian, the wealthy prior of Bodmin, who occasionally resided here and died in 1533, and whose tomb is in Bodmin church. In the court of Rialton Priory house is a well, contained in a gabled building, with a good arched entrance; at the back is an elegant niche with a pedestal. A considerable part of the house was destroyed by fire, and subsequently these interesting remains have nearly all been swept away; a solitary fragment attached to the mill now alone exists.

St. Columb Porth, bay, N. Cornw., 2 N. of Newquay. It contains the island of Trevelga Head, noted for its fine cliffs and caves.

St. Comb, fishing vil., pa. of Lonmay (q.v.), E. Abers., Sc., 5 S.E. of Fraserburgh.

St. Constantine's Cells. [WETHERAL.]

St. Cross, southern suburb, included in the parl. bor. of Winchester (q.v.), Mid Hants. The Hospital of St. Cross was founded in 1136 by Henry de Blois, Bishop of Winchester, for poor men, described in the charter of 1185 as "poor impotent men, reduced in strength as rarely to be able to support themselves without the assistance of another," and these were to be provided with "garments and beds suitable to their infirmities." In 1445, the Hospital having been in existence for some three centuries, Cardinal Beaufort (then Bishop of Winchester) conceived the idea of engrafting upon it a far larger and more complete scheme. With the consent of the Master and Brethren of St. Cross he erected upon ground closely adjacent to the church of St. Cross, and to the buildings then occupied by the Brethren, that quadrangle, part of which still exists, with its original features unimpaired; and at the same time provided endowment for thirty-five Brethren, three Sisters, and two priests. After many abuses, made the subject of proceedings in Chancery about 1840, a scheme was approved in 1855, and modified 1857, by which there are now thirteen Brethren on the foundation

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Columba	Oban	504	1834
St. Columb Major	St. Columb Road (2¼)	290	2612
St. Columb Minor	Newquay (2)	296	3056
St. Comb	Lonmay (3)	570	565

of Henry de Blois, who receive 10s. a week and cloth gowns yearly, and four on the Beaufort foundation, together with a cook, porter, and some pensioners. The most direct way from Winchester to St. Cross is by Kingsgate Street, and then across a pleasant meadow, called Barton Court, from which a footpath leads to the entrance of the Hospital, a large but undecorated gateway opening into a small and narrow courtyard, enclosed on either hand by low buildings, much modernised. On the left (or east) side these consist chiefly of Hundred Men's Hall, now a brewhouse, where once that number of almsmen were fed daily; on the west side are the stables, kitchen, larder, and bread-room; the buildings at the south end of the courtyard include the gateway erected by Cardinal Beaufort, which leads to the great quadrangle; it is a massive square tower, well supported by buttresses and by an octagonal turret at the southwest angle; the quadrangle is completely surrounded by buildings on three sides, and the nave of the church partially closes its southern boundary. To the left of Beaufort's gatehouse is the porter's lodge, where a horn of beer and a manchet of bread are offered to every visitor; to the right is the hall, entered from the quadrangle by a flight of steps; it retains a screen, above which is a gallery, overhanging the entrance; at the east end, which is wainscotted, is a raised daïs, and on the wall a Flemish triptych, with paintings of the Holy Family, St. Catherine, and St. Barbara. The hall is lighted by mullioned windows, the upper portions of which contain some remains of ancient glass; under the hall is a vaulted crypt. Adjoining the hall westward is the residence of the Master, some windows of which have ancient glass; the west side of the quadrangle is occupied by the houses of the Brethren; on the east side is a cloister, with a stair turret leading to chambers above. The church (restored), which stands at the south-east angle of the quadrangle, is of mixed periods; it has all the features of a collegiate church, and is lofty and stone-vaulted throughout. The choir is surrounded by a stone wall, and stone screens enclose the sacrarium on either side; there is also some good screen-work of wood, a piscina and credence, and some very curious cinque-cento stalls, carved with the date 1572; the central pier on each side supporting the arches of the short arcade is Perp., but the original bases remain; above is the celebrated triforium of intersecting arches; the clerestory has Norm. windows; at the end of the choir aisles are the sites of altars, and in the north choir aisle is a singular enriched piscina on a low shaft, and two elegant brackets attached to the shafts of one of the piers. At the angle of the south choir aisle and transept is the famous triple arch, both portions of which are ornamented with the chevron and cable mouldings; the transept portion has the appearance from without of a blocked doorway, but internally contains several recesses or aumbries. The transepts are of somewhat later date than the choir, some portions being almost E. Eng. The lower windows are round-headed, with rich mouldings; the upper range on the north side are lancets, and on the south Norm. At the ends of the transepts the domestic buildings of the hospital join the church; at the south end is a vaulted chamber with aumbries, the only remaining part of the Norm. Hospital; and the north wing is united to the ambulatory, and opens to it by a small Perp. doorway. The nave is chiefly E. Eng. with Dec. insertions; the west front has a splendid window of five lights with rich tracery, and below it an elegant doorway. There are several monumental remains, including a fine brass to John Campden, archdeacon and master of the Hospital in 1382. The Park, which extends from the Hospital southwards to the banks of the Itchen, is well timbered, and contains an extensive rookery.

The Church of St. Cross.

St. Cuthberts, pa., N. Edins., Sc., partly in the mun. bor. of Edinburgh; ac. 6,628. The church of St. Cuthbert, on the north-west side of Castle Hill, was rebuilt 1894; it is in Renaissance style, with two square towers at the east extremity; the old west tower, erected in 1755, remains. St. Cuthbert's Hall is used as a Sunday school, also for bazaars and entertainments, and there is a library connected with it.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.	Popu-lations.
St. Cuthberts	Edinburgh	395 | 185499

St. Cyres, Newton. [NEWTON ST. CYRES.]

St. Cyrus, pa. and vil. on the North Esk, S.E. Kincs., Sc.; ac. 8,249. The surface of the pa. is pretty level, but intersected with several glens and rivulets, and is elevated in some places to little hills. More than three-fourths is arable. The pa. contains limestone quarries and plenty of excellent freestone. The vil. lies 4 S.W. of Johnshaven, between the coast and the road from Montrose. The sea-salmon fisheries along the coast of the pa. are very valuable. The burn in Den Fenella forms a beautiful cascade by falling over a rock 63 ft. in height. The ancient residence of the Barclay family, known by the name of the Kame of Mathers, stands in ruins on a peninsulated rock, the base of which is washed by the sea. The Castle of Lauriston is an ancient building.

St. Davids (1), pa. and city, W. Pembs., 14 W.N.W. of Haverfordwest; ac. 11,244. The surface consists principally of a barren rocky plain, which presents a very bleak appearance; but the soil varies much in character, fertile tracts occurring at intervals amid the general sterility. The greater part of the city, or vil., is comprised in a single street and two others which cross it at right angles. It is situated on the Alan, about a mile from St. Bride's Bay. The cathedral of SS. Andrew and David, and the ancient buildings connected with it, occupy a deep hollow close to the vil. It owes its existence to St. David, who transferred the archiepiscopal see of Caerleon to this place in the 6th cent. The existing structure was erected by Bishop Peter de Leia 1176–98; but various alterations and additions were subsequently made, especially in 1220, when much damage was caused by the fall of the central tower. The effect produced by the Trans. nave, with its rich Late Perp. ceiling, is very impressive. Internally the choir and transept are also Trans. The tower consists of three stages, which are Norm., E. Eng., and Perp. respectively. The principal chapels are Trinity Chapel (Perp.), with a rich fan-tracery roof, immediately east of the choir; and the Lady Chapel beyond it, at the extreme east of the building, which belongs to the period of transition from E. Eng. to Dec., with Perp. windows. Among the many interesting features of the interior are the shrine of St. David and the beautiful Dec. rood-screen, erected by Bishop Gower in the 14th cent. A thorough restoration, which included the rebuilding of the west front and the greater part of the tower, was begun in 1863. North of the cathedral stand the scanty ruins of St. Mary's College, including a graceful tower 70 ft. in height and a chapel containing some good Perp. windows. The Bishop's Palace, on the opposite bank of the Alan, is quadrangular. A very striking arcade runs along the walls immediately below the parapet. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The town hall is a very plain structure. The ancient market cross was restored in 1873. The pa. is rich in antiquities, the most noteworthy being the earthworks of Penllan and Parc-y-Castell; the stone rampart called Clawdd-y-Milwyr, separating St. David's Head from the adjoining land; a cromlech situated on the Head itself; and a rocking-stone, now prostrate at the foot of Carn Llidi (592 ft.), a rocky ridge forming an inland prolongation of the Head. Some fragments of ancient wall on the shore are generally thought to mark the site of the Roman station of Menapia, the Welsh Menyw or Mynyw, represented by the modern Menevia, a name still applied to the see.

THE CATHEDRAL, ST. DAVIDS.
(Photo. Poulton and Son, London.)

St. David's (2), small port on the Firth of Forth, pa. of Dalgetty (q.v.), S. Fifes., Sc., about 1½ E. of Inverkeithing. The rise of this place can be mainly ascribed to the advantages it affords for the shipment of coal, brought from the collieries at Fordell by means of a private railway five miles in length. The pier has been extended, and upwards of 500 tons of coal can be shipped daily; and vessels of upwards of 600 tons can receive cargo here.

St. David's (3), vil., pa. of Madderty (q.v.), S. Perths., Sc., 5½ E. of Crieff.

St. David's Head, a bluff precipice (about 100 ft. high) about 3 N.W. of St. Davids, W. Pembs., forming the most westerly part of Wales. It projects a considerable distance into the sea, and displays scenery of the wildest character. At the entrance to it, from a heathy tract producing various aromatic plants, rises a lofty mass of rugged rocks, towering in the most grotesque forms, and commanding from their summits an extensive and diversified prospect by sea and land. At the southern base of this rocky elevation lies the celebrated Logan Stone, of enormous size, and once so delicately poised as to yield to a slight pressure; but its equilibrium was destroyed in the 17th cent. There is also a remarkable cromlech, the table stone of which is supported by a single upright stone. In the clefts of the precipitous and abrupt rocks forming the Head is found a kind of crystal, called "St David's diamond," which, when first obtained, resembles the amethyst, and, being extremely hard, is susceptible of a better polish than most of the British gems.

St. Day, or St. Dye, eccl. pa. and vil., pa. of Gwennap (q.v.), S. Cornw., about 2 N.E. of Redruth. The church of St. Day (1828) is in the Gothic style. On what is called the "Gorland" there formerly stood a church, of which no traces now remain in situ, but some fragments of pillars and two crosses are to be seen in the grounds of Tregullow House. There are Primitive Methodist and Wesleyan

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Cyrus	St. Cyrus	493	1327
St. Davids (1)	Haverfordwest (14)	264	1816
St. Day	Redruth (2)	304	2292

chapels. The Market House, situated in the centre of the to., is a partially-covered building, and has a lofty tower containing a clock; a market is held on Saturday. A fair is held in the third week after Whitsuntide. Scorrier House is a seat.

St. Decuman's, pa. on the Bristol Channel, W. Somerset; ac. 3,758; soil rich loam, overlying marl. The church of St. Decuman (restored 1888) is E. Eng. and Perp.; it contains some monuments of the Wyndham family, including an altar-tomb with brasses to Sir John Wyndham (d. 1574) and his wife (d. 1571); and brasses to John Wyndham (d. 1572) with effigy in armour, and to his wife (d. 1596). There are also funeral helmets, and a modern blue marble tomb, with emblazoned shields to George Francis (Wyndham), fourth Earl of Egremont (d. 1845). In the churchyard is an ancient cross about 16 ft. high. The Baptists, Wesleyans, and Bible Christians have chapels. The charities amount to about £100 yearly.

St. Dennis (in Domesday "Lan-Dines" = "the Church of the Hill"), pa. and vil., Mid Cornw., bounded on the north-west by the Fal, 7 N.W. of St. Austell; ac. 3,230; soil clay, overlying disintegrated granite. The church of St. Dennis (rebuilt 1847) is a plain building of native porcelain stone; near the south porch is an ancient granite cross, about 6 ft. high; the porch (which has been modernised) and the tower are all that remain of the old church, which consisted of two aisles and a transept, and contained a reputed Saxon font. There are United Free Methodist and Bible Christian chapels. The feast of St. Dennis is celebrated annually on October 9, if it fall on a Sunday; if not, on the Sunday following. In this and the adjoining pa. of St. Stephen are some of the largest clay works in the co.; china-stone is also dug out in great abundance, and large quantities of china-clay and porcelain stone are dispatched by the Quay tramway.

St. Devereux, pa., S. Herefords., 8 S. by W. of Hereford; ac. 1,102; soil clay and loamy, overlying marl and limestone. The church of St. Devereux is E. Norm.; the chancel retains a piscina, and there are several 17th- and 18th-cent. floor-stones. The charities are small.

St. Dogmells, pa. and vil. on the Teifi, N.E. Pembs. and S.W. Cardigs., 1 W. of Cardigan; ac. 6,285; soil mostly fertile. The bor. of Cardigan lies partly within the pa. The church of St. Thomas (formerly St. Dogmael) is an ancient Norm. and E. Eng. edifice. There are Baptist, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The remains of the abbey (begun by Martin of Tours in the reign of William I., and finished by his son Robert Fitz-Martin) comprise the north and west walls, the north transept, and some ruined buildings on the east side. A stone pulpit, ascended by an internal staircase, remains in a shattered condition. In the grounds is a stone some 5½ ft. long, with a memorial inscription in Latin, which long served as a bridge over a small affluent of the Teifi passing through the vil. Here also is an Ogham stone and a coffin-lid and slab adorned with crosses. At the Dissolution the monastery was granted to John Bradshaw, of the same family as the regicide. St. D. commands fine views of the Teifi, including the rock scenery at its mouth. The inhabitants are chiefly occupied in the salmon and herring fisheries. St. D. is a place of great antiquity. It suffered from an incursion of Norsemen in 987, when the church was destroyed.

St. Dogwells, pa., W. Pembs., 6 S. of Fishguard; ac. 3,417. The church of St. Dogvael (restored 1876–78) is Norm. Owen Glendower is said to have been buried in the pa. The antiquities include a cromlech, three tumuli, and a rocking-stone, which stands within an ancient encampment.

St. Dominick, pa. and vil. on the Tamar, E. Cornw., 12 N. of Plymouth; ac. 3,226; soil free and light clay, overlying slate and stone. The church of St. Dominic is Perp.; it contains a piscina and the rood-loft stairs; at the east end of the south aisle is a large tomb with effigies to Ambrose Rous, dated 1659, and Maudlin (Osborne), his wife. Here are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. In this pa. is Dupath Well (q.v.). By the side of the road leading from Chapel Farm to the Tamar is the Holy Well, at the back of which is a niche; the whole structure is now much overgrown. A fair is held on the first Thursday after May 12 yearly for cattle.

St. Donats, pa. on the Bristol Channel, S. Glamorgs., 6 S.W. of Cowbridge; ac. 930. The church of St. Donat, situated in a romantic dell, is Norm.; a chapel adjoining the chancel contains some ancient monuments of the Stradling family, including a cenotaph of Thomas Stradling (d. 1480) and memorial paintings of the 15th or 16th cent. St. D. Castle was originally erected by Sir William le Esterling, one of the companions of FitzHamon, and remained in the hands of his descendants, whose name became changed to Stradling, down to the year 1738. It is a spacious structure, partly modernised, surrounding a quadrangle, with the arms of the Stradlings over the gateway. The quadrangular watch-tower in the park is supposed to have served less as a beacon than as a vantage-post for wreckers.

St. Doolaghs, vil., pa. of Balgriffin (q.v.), E. co. Dub., Ir., about 4 N.E. of Dublin. The church is an interesting 13th-cent. building, with a stone roof; and near it is a baptistery and a cross. Here is a coastguard station.

St. Doologe, pa. within the parl. bor. of Wexford, E. co. Wex., Ir.; ac. 4.

St. Dunstan, pa. on the Stour, E. Kent, at the west end and partly within the bor. of Canterbury; ac. 342. The church of St. Dunstan (restored 1878–79) is Dec. and Perp.; four E. Eng. arches with elegant moulded piers and circular shafts divide the nave from the aisle; the nave and aisle windows have good E. Dec. tracery, that of the west window being Perp. Two E. Eng. arches with an octagonal pillar separate the chancel from its south aisle or Roper chapel, which is built of red brick, and dates from about 1500; it has a flat timber ceiling, panelled, and contains two ancient altar tombs

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Decuman's	Watchet (1)	175	3073
St. Dennis	St. Columb Road (2½)	290	1302
St. Devereux	St. Devereux	151	164
St. Dogmells	Cardigan (1)	275	2220
St. Dogwells	Clarbeston Road (6)	259	346

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Dominick	Saltash (9)	245	7[illegible]
St. Donats	Cowbridge (2)	180	1[illegible]
St. Doologe	Wexford	93	3[illegible]
St. Dunstan	Canterbury	62	18[illegible]

Bethersden marble to earlier members of the Roper family; in a vault below this chancel, enclosed in a leaden case, resting in a niche, is preserved the head of Sir Thomas More, placed there by his daughter, Margaret Roper, who had rescued it from the gate-tower of London Bridge, where it was placed after his execution (1535). The communion table, of walnut wood, is curious from its being made to lengthen out at will, like a dining-table; it formerly stood on wheels. The Roper monument, now in the north wall and formerly in this chancel, is a memorial to the son of Margaret Roper. Several quaint old tombstones cover the now filled-up vaults; one in the south aisle is inscribed to Claude Rondeau (d. 1720), a Canterbury merchant and "refugee in England for the Protestant religion;" near is a curious memorial to Elizabeth Scranton, spinster (d. 1685); there are others to Christopher Browne (1657) and Daniel Hall, twice Mayor of Canterbury; below is an octagonal font with an elaborate oaken cover of tabernacle work. In the Trinity chapel, now used as the vestry, is a squint (now closed up) and a well-preserved piscina. During the restoration some early work, attributed to Archbishop Lanfranc, was uncovered. In a field opposite the church once stood a chapel, built by Archbishop Baldwin in 1187 and dedicated to St. Thomas à Becket.

St. Edmunds. [SUTTON, ST. EDMUNDS.]

St. Edmund's Point (about 60 ft.), N.W. Norf., lying N.E. of Hunstanton. It derives its name from the tradition that St. Edmund the Martyr landed here when he came from Germany to be crowned king of East Anglia. [HUNSTANTON.]

St. Edmund's Way, ancient name of the part of Watling Street (q.v.) between London and Canterbury. The name was derived from a chantry chapel situated immediately east of Dartford church, and dedicated to St. Edmund the Martyr, which was always visited by the Canterbury pilgrims.

St. Edrins, pa., W. Pembs., 9 N.N.W. of Haverfordwest; ac. 952. The church of St. Edrin or Edryn is a modern edifice in Gothic style. The Baptists have a chapel.

St. Elvis, pa. on the north side of St. Bride's Bay, W. Pembs., 4 E. by S. of St. Davids; ac. 440. The church has fallen into ruins. The ancient Norm. font, with a new shaft and base, is preserved in the pa. church of Whitchurch.

St. Enoder, pa. and vil., Mid Cornw., 10 N.E. of Truro; ac. 6,827; soil loamy, overlying clay and spar. The river Gannel rises in this pa., which also affords the chief source of the Fal. The church of St. Ennodorus (restored 1870) is E. Dec. and Perp. There is a Norm. font and a few good bench-ends; there are monuments to Dorothy (Arundell), wife of Anthony Tanner (d. 1634), to Anthony Tanner (d. 1742), to John Freseyse (16–6). There is a Bible Christian chapel. By the side of the road leading to Fraddon are the head and base of a cross. In this pa. are china-clay works and a tin mine. Carvinick House, in this pa., built in 1699, is now occupied as a farmhouse.

St. Erme, pa., Mid Cornw., 3½ N.E. of Truro; ac. 4,507. The church of St. Hermes (rebuilt 1820) is in Perp. style, and stands on the site of a former decayed building, the tower of which, being more modern than the rest, remains in a good state of preservation. There is a carved stone font of E. Eng. date, and in the vestry is a brass (with kneeling effigies and seven quartered shields of arms) to Robert Trencreeke (1594) and Anis (Vivian) his wife (1596); and there are others to Johan (Haydon), wife of John Cooke (1630), John Jago (1652), besides a number of modern memorials. Trevella, Treworgan, and Trehane Vean, once seats, are now occupied as farmhouses. Truthan is a seat.

St. Ernans, island in Donegal Bay, pa. of Drumhome (q.v.), S.W. co. Don., Ir., 2 S.W. of Donegal. The island takes its name from St. Ernan, who established a monastery here in the 7th cent. St. Ernan's is a seat on the island.

St. Erney, pl., pa. of Landrake with St. Erney (q.v.), S.E. Cornw., 1½ N.E. of St. Germans. The church of St. Erney (restored 1872) is a small building of the E. Eng. and later periods.

St. Erth, pa. and vil. on the Hayle river and estuary, S. Cornw., 7 N.E. of Penzance; ac. 4,092; soil various, overlying killas and ironstone; there is a stratum of sand, used by ironfounders in moulding. The church of St. Erth (rebuilt 1874) is in Perp. style; a curious feature of the building is that the arcades of six bays which divide the nave and aisles rise gradually from the west end, suggesting that the original floor was laid in steps; in the north aisle portions of the old carved-oak beams and the rood-loft remain. Within the churchyard stands the head of an ancient cross, elegantly carved as a quatrefoiled rose, with five large bosses, and four smaller ones between the leaves; in the vil. stands another cross, about 6 ft. high. There is a mission chapel on the Bosworgy estate, and there is also a Wesleyan chapel. At Trevan is an ancient cross 4 ft. 4 in. in height and 1 ft. 9 in. broad; the round head bears a rude carving of the "Crucifixion." In the vil. is another cross, 7 ft. 2 in. high and 1½ ft. wide, with a square head, carved on one side with a representation of the "Crucifixion," and on the other with a Greek cross. About ½ mile from St. E. bridge, on the summit of a hill, is a Roman entrenchment. The poor have £1 5s. yearly, distributed in bread. Trewinnard (the Trewindoi of Domesday) is the principal place in this pa.; the house has been greatly altered, but still contains the old state coach (the first of its kind introduced into Cornwall) of Sir Christopher Hawkins (d. 1829).

St. Ervan, pa., Mid Cornw., 4 S.W. of Padstow; soil schist, overlying stone; ac. 3,142. The church of St. Ervan is Perp. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels.

St. Ethelbert's Camp, a strongly-fortified Roman camp near Mordiford, Mid Herefords. It derives its name from the legend that Ethelbert encamped here on his visit to King Offa in 782. It has a double entrenchment towards the east.

St. Eval, coast pa., Mid Cornw., 6 S.W. of Padstow; ac. 2,875; soil various, overlying in some places rough stony clay, in others slate. The church of St. Eval (or Uval), restored 1889, is chiefly Perp.,

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Edrins	Haverfordwest (9)	264	80
St. Elvis	Haverfordwest (12)	264	14
St. Enoder	St. Columb Road (8)	290	1114
St. Erme	Truro (3)	295	462

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Erth	St. Erth	315	1985
St. Ervan	St. Columb Road (8)	290	337
St. Eval	St. Columb Road (6½)	290	245

and contains remains of a squint and rood-loft, and a curious small arch between the first and second bays of the main arcade, probably over a founder's tomb; there are various memorials. The ancient bench-ends (some of which date from the 15th cent., and bear the emblems of the Passion, the royal arms of Henry VI., and other subjects) are carefully preserved; during the alterations a window of (presumably) Saxon date was discovered in the north wall; over the south porch is an inscribed sun-dial. There is a Free Methodist chapel. In this pa. is the Fogou (q.v.), a subterranean cave; there are also several tumuli, besides an ancient British encampment called "Red Cliff Castle."

St. Ewe, pa. and vil., Mid Cornw., 6 S.W. of St. Austell; ac. 5,749; soil rich loam, overlying slate. The church of All Saints of St. Ewes, or St. Tues (restored 1881), is E. Dec.; there are monuments to the Mohun, Seymour, and Scobell families, and to John Williams Hope, Esq. The original rood-screen, a very fine specimen of Dec. Gothic work, and elaborately carved, has been replaced on its ancient site. There are Bible Christian chapels. There remains here a portion of an ancient cross, consisting of two broad square steps and a pedestal. The charities amount to £3 2s. 6d. yearly; and there are four almshouses founded by the Tremayne family. Heligan is a seat.

St. Fagans, pa., tp., and vil. on the Ely, S.E. Glamorgs., 2 W. of Llandaff; ac. of pa. 3,250, of tp. 2,175. According to Bede, St. Fagan was a missionary sent to Britain by Pope Eleutherius in 180 A.D. The church of St. Fagan (restored 1860) is Norm. and E. Eng. The Calvinistic Methodists have a chapel. An important engagement took place here in 1648, in which a party of Welsh Royalists were defeated by the Parliamentary forces. St. Fagans Castle, the seat of Lord Windsor, is a picturesque mansion with lofty gables, situated within the walls of a castle erected in the 12th cent. by Sir Peter de Vele.

St. Faith's. [HORSHAM ST. FAITH AND NEWTON ST. FAITH.]

St. Feighin's, pa., Fore bar., N. co. Wstm., Ir., 8 N.E. of Clonhugh; ac. 10,092. It contains the vil. of Collinstown (q.v.). Barbavilla is a seat.

St. Feock. [FEOCK.]

St. Fergus, coast pa. and vil., N.E. Abers., Sc. (formerly constituting a detached part of Banffs.); ac. 8,856. It is bounded on the south by the Ugie, which separates it from Peterhead. The vil. is 5 N. of that town, and 13 S.E. of Fraserburgh. The Established church (1849) is a plain stone building; there is also a Free church and a Baptist chapel. James Francis Edward Keith, Field Marshal in the Prussian service (killed at Hochkirchen 1758), was born in 1696 at Inverugie Castle, the ruins of which stand in a bend of the river.

Saintfield, pa. and small mkt. to. (M.), and head of petty sess. div., Upper Castlereagh bar., N. co. Down, Ir., about 11 S.E. of Belfast; ac. 13,333. The Protestant church is in E. Eng. style; there is also a Catholic church, and the Presbyterians have two. On June 9, 1798, a brisk skirmish occurred here between a party of the yeomanry and the insurgents, when the latter obtained the advantage and temporary possession of the place. S. House is a seat.

St. Fillans (1), vil., pa. of Comrie (q.v.), Mid Perths., Sc., 5½ W.N.W. of Comrie railway station. The vil. is pleasantly seated at the foot of Loch Earn, where boats are kept for fishing parties or other visitors. There is an excellent inn.

St. Fillans (2). [HOLY POOL OF ST. FILLAN.]

St. Finbar's, pa., Cork and East Muskerry bars., E. co. Cork, Ir., 2 E. of Cork; ac. 9,506. It contains part of the city of Cork and the vil. of Blackrock (q.v.). The surrounding scenery is very picturesque and beautiful, and there are numerous seats and villas in the vicinity.

St. Finnan's Bay, S.W. co. Kerry, Ir., between Puffin Island and Bolus Head; it is 4 miles wide at its entrance. Ballynabloun House is on its north shore.

St. Florence, pa. and vil., S. Pembs., 3 W. of Tenby; ac. 2,528; soil various, partly overlying clay, elsewhere limestone. The church of St. Florence (restored 1871) is Norm. and E. Eng.; it contains a monument, with a Latin inscription, to the ejected incumbent Robert Rudd (d. 1648). The pa. contains a Congregational chapel. Elm Grove and Ivy Tower are seats.

St. Gennys, coast pa. and vil., N. Cornw., 7 S.E. of Boscastle; ac. 5,516; soil clayey, overlying slate. The church of St. Genesius (restored 1871) is E. Eng., and contains many memorials of the 17th and 18th cents. In the churchyard is a granite tomb to Benet Mil (d. 1593) and Christopher Bligh. There are United Methodist and Bible Christian chapels.

St. George (1), long straggling pa. within the parl. bor. of Bristol, S.W. Glouc., bounded on the south by the Avon, and extending 1½ E.; ac. 1,831; soil light and very rich, subsoil various. The chief crops are vegetables. There are many market gardens, which supply the Bristol and South Wales market; but the land is rapidly being taken up for building purposes. The church of St. George (burnt down in December, 1878, and rebuilt 1880) is in the Gothic style of the 14th cent. There are Congregational, Wesleyan, Baptist, and Primitive Methodist chapels. The cemetery is situated at Avon View. The charities amount to £42 yearly. Several collieries are situated in this neighbourhood; there are also iron foundries, chemical manufactories, and waggon works.

St. George (2). [EASTON-IN-GORDANO.]

St. George (3), pa. and vil., N.E. Denbighs., 2 E.S.E. of Abergele; ac. 2,067. The church of St. George was erected in 1893. At Dinorben there is an ancient mansion. A hill in the pa. is crowned by an ancient fortification, defended on two sides by steep precipices, and on the two others by a

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Ewe	Burngullow (3)	282	998
St. Fagans, pa.	St. Fagans	167	587
St. Fagans, tp.	St. Fagans	167	490
St. Feighin's	Killucan (10)	44	1422
St. Fergus	Inverugie (3½)	570	1318
Saintfield, pa.	Saintfield	129	3485

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
Saintfield, to.	Saintfield	129	657
St. Finbar's	Cork (2)	166	13954
St. Florence	Manorbier (2)	267	311
St. Gennys	Camelford (10)	241	430
St. George (1)	Bristol (2½)	118	36718
St. George (3)	Abergele (2)	213	286

triple entrenchment nearly a mile in circumference; here Owen Gwynedd withstood the advance of Henry II. into Wales. Kinmel Park, the seat of Lord Dinorben, stands in a well-stocked deer-park; the east and west fronts have porticoes of the Ionic order, and along the north side runs a terrace commanding beautiful views of St. George's Channel and the Vale of Clwyd.

St. George (4), pa. and vil. on the Ely, S.E. Glamorgs., 6 W. of Cardiff; ac. 1,024; soil partly good loam, overlying gravel. The church of St. George (restored 1886) is Dec. There are traces of an ancient castle, bestowed by FitzHamon on the family of Fleming. Cwedriglan Park is situated on the slope of a steep hill, commanding fine views.

St. George (5), or Pains Lane St. George, eccl. pa. and vil., pas. of Shifnal, Lilleshall, and Wrockwardine Wood (q.v.), N. Salop, 4 N.W. of Shifnal. The church of St. George, in E. Eng. style, was erected as a memorial to the Duke of Sutherland (d. 1861). Here are Wesleyan, Primitive, and Free Methodist chapels. There are extensive engine works, capable of turning out 400 tons of castings a month, and employing upwards of 400 hands.

St. George, Bloomsbury, eccl. pa., pa. of St. Giles in the Fields and St. George, Bloomsbury (q.v.), West Central London, E. Middx. The church of St. George (built 1731) is chiefly noted for its incongruous styles of architecture. The architect (Hawkesmoor, the pupil of Sir C. Wren) chose for his model the description given by Pliny of the tomb of Mausolus, in Caria. The church has a tower and steeple at the side of the main building; upon the former, at the four sides, is a range of Corinthian pillars. The steeple consists of a series of steps, with the royal arms, guarded by fierce-looking lions and unicorns; and on the summit is a statue of George I. in Roman costume. The front of the church, facing Hart Street, has a grand portico, elevated on a flight of steps which support Corinthian columns. The church is singular from its standing north and south; hence, contrary to the established custom, the altar stands at the north end. There is a tablet to the memory of Lord Mansfield. [BLOOMSBURY.]

St. George Division, one of the seven parl. divs. of the Tower Hamlets. It returns one member.

St. George, Hanover Square, pa. in West London, E. Middx., 2 W. of St. Paul's; ac. 1,117. The church of St. George (1713–24), in George Street, Hanover Square, is an edifice in Classical style, with a very handsome portico of the Corinthian order; the tower was destroyed by fire in 1896. The Jesse window at the east end, supposed to have been executed in the 16th cent., was originally placed in a convent in Mechlin; it was removed to its present position in 1841. During the first half of the 19th cent. all fashionable marriages were solemnised here, and St. George's is still the church usually selected for this purpose by people of rank.

St. George in the East, pa. in the parl. bor. of Tower Hamlets, E. London, E. Middx., 1¾ E. by S. of St. Paul's; ac. 244. The church of St. George (1715–29), Cannon Street Road, is a plain spacious structure with a massive tower of 150 ft.

St. George's, pa., Coolock bar., S.E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 653. It lies partly within the city of Dublin, and contains Drumcondra, Clonliffe, and Glasnevin.

St. George's Channel, sea-reach between Wales and Ireland, joining the Atlantic to the Irish Sea. The channel extends 100 miles N.N.E. and S.S.W., and has an average breadth of 56 miles, the greatest distance across being 72 miles (between Aberystwith and the opposite coast), and the least 45 miles (between Bardsey Isle and Mizen Head). Cardigan Bay embraces about one-sixth of the entire area, which is estimated at 5,600 square miles. The bottom of the channel consists chiefly of sand and gravel, and there are numerous sandbanks extending along the Irish coast. In mid-channel the current running N.E. impedes navigation, and has caused many shipwrecks on the Welsh coast.

St. George's Down, eminence in the I. of W., S. Hants, just north of Arreton. On its summit are the manor-houses of East and West Standen. St. G.'s Down is covered with beds of yellow gravel.

St. George's Hill, eminence (about 500 ft.), pa. of Walton-on-Thames (q.v.), about 1 S. of Weybridge, N. Surrey. It commands some fine views. Near the south-east corner is an entrenchment, known as "Cæsar's Camp," though it is doubtful whether it is of Roman origin.

St. George's Island, another name for Looe Island (q.v.).

St. George the Martyr, pa. in the parl. bor. of Southwark (q.v.), S.E. London, N.E. Surrey, 1¼ S. by W. of St. Paul's; ac. 284. The church of St. George is a plain structure of red brick, erected 1736, and much altered on several occasions.

St. Germans (1), pa. and vil. on the Lynher, E. Cornw., 9 S.W. of Devonport; ac. 9,997 and 298 water; soil loam and clay, overlying clay-slate and limestone. The to. returned representatives to Parliament from 1562 till 1832. The church of St. Germanus, originally attached to a monastery of Austin Canons, founded here in 1050, is a structure of local stone and granite, of the Norm., E. Eng., and later periods. The west front is Norm., and consists of a gable pierced with three round-headed windows, below which is a projecting gabled porch with a deeply-recessed Norm. doorway; the north tower is Norm. in its two lower stages; the south tower is Norm. in its lower stage only; both towers have newel stairs in the thickness of the walls. The nave of six bays retains two Norm. pillars on the south side, but its eastern portion is Perp.; the south aisle is E. Dec. and Late Perp., and contains canopied sedilia, a Dec. drain, a granite stoup, and an ancient miserere chair, the movable seat of which is rudely carved with figures of a hunter carrying game, and attendant dogs; in this aisle is the monument with effigies of Edward Eliot, Esq., of Port Eliot (1722), and his two wives. There are also various memorials to the families of Moyle of Bake, baronets (1661–1762); Glanvill (1599–1847); Boger (1755–92); and Eliot, Earl St. Germans (1761–1864),

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. George (4)	St. Fagans (1)	167	261
St. George (5)	Wellington	153	3003
St. G., Bloomsbury	.....	.....	16556
St. George Division	.....	.....	47918
St. G., Hanover Sq.	.....	.....	78364
St. George in the East	.....	.....	45795
St. George's	.....	.....	30418
St. George the Martyr	.....	.....	59712
St. Germans	St. Germans	250	2384

with others; a cenotaph was erected in 1854 by the tenants of the St. Germans estate to the memory of the Hon. G. C. C. Eliot, of the Coldstream Guards, killed at Inkerman (Nov. 5, 1854). The ancient font, which was broken up in 1793 and its fragments thrown in the north tower, was restored in 1840. The priory on its suppression was valued at £227, and was granted to the Champernownes in 1541. The Wesleyan chapel is a plain edifice of stone. The poor have £1 14s. yearly, distributed in bread; and on the north side of the town there are twelve almshouses, erected by one of the Moyle family, to the inmates of which one shilling and a peck of wheat is distributed yearly, on New Year's Day, by the owner of the estate charged, who is also bound to keep the dwellings in repair. There is a cattle fair held here on May 28, and a pleasure fair on Aug. 1. The St. Germans Mutual Improvement Society occupies rooms in the town hall, and has a library of about 400 volumes. Port Eliot is a large, irregularly-built, and embattled mansion of stone, pleasantly situated on the site of the ancient priory, in park-like grounds of about 500 acres, the higher portions of which command very extensive views of the surrounding country. In the dining-room, on the site of the refectory, is a series of portraits, by Reynolds, of members of the Eliot family; and there are also some good pictures by old masters.

St. Germans (2). [WIGGENHALL ST. GERMANS.]

St. Giles in the Fields and St. George, Bloomsbury, pa. of Central London, E. Middx., 1 W.N.W. of St. Paul's; ac. 244. The church of St. Giles, High Street (1733), is a building in Classical style, modelled on St. Martin's in the Fields; here are interred the poets George Chapman (d. 1634), whose tomb, by Inigo Jones, remains in the churchyard; James Shirley (d. 1666) and Andrew Marvell (d. 1678), Lord Herbert of Cherbury (d. 1648), and Sir Roger L'Estrange (d. 1648). [ST. GEORGE, BLOOMSBURY.]

St. Giles in the Wood, pa. and vil., N. Dev., 3 E. of Torrington; ac. 4,827; soil sandy, overlying stone. The church of St. Giles (restored 1879) contains a recumbent effigy and brass (dated 1648) to Thomas Chafe, and brasses to Margaret Forde, wife of John Rolle (d. 1592), to John Risdon (d. 1610), and to John Rolle (d. 1570). There is a Wesleyan chapel, and the Baptists have a room for service. The charities are small, but there are four almshouses, with an endowment. A reading-room and library was opened in 1867. Stevenstone and Way are seats.

St. Giles on the Heath, pa. and vil. on the Tamar, W. Dev., 5 N.E. of Launceston; ac. 3,044; soil and subsoil clay. The church of St. Giles (rebuilt 1877) is chiefly Perp., but shows traces of E. Eng. work; the chancel retains a piscina; there is a mural monument to the Cary family, dated 1565. The Bible Christians have a chapel, and there is a small charity.

St. Gluvias, pa. and tp., S.E. Cornw., adjoining the to. of Penryn, and partly within that parl. bor.; ac. of pa. 2,840, of tp. 2,549; soil loamy, overlying granite. The church of St. Gluvias, situated on the border of the estuary of Falmouth Harbour, is an edifice of stone, and, with the exception of the tower, was rebuilt in the 18th cent. in Classic style, and restored 1883. There are monumental tablets to the families of Pendarves and Roskrow (1643-83), Enys (1611-1857); memorials to John Grills, merchant (d. 1673), Henry Carverth (d. 1684), and others of the 17th cent.; and in the south aisle a brass with effigies and inscription to Thomas Kyllygrewe (c. 1484), and Joan and Elizabeth, his wives; there are also a number of monuments of modern date. The reservoir of the Falmouth waterworks is partly in this pa. Enys, a mansion of granite, and St. Stephen's, in a park of 50 ac., are seats. Roskrow, the seat of the family of that name until the reign of Henry VI., was demolished in 1890.

St. Gowan's Head, promontory (160 ft.) on the Bristol Channel, S. Pembs., about 6 S. of Pembroke. In the neighbourhood is some magnificent cliff scenery. Here is the chapel of St. Gowen—an anchorite who has been identified by some writers with Sir Gawaine, one of Arthur's Knights of the Round Table. In the chapel is the "wishing-place," a cleft in the rock just large enough to allow one person to sit down therein. If anyone seated in this chair conceives a wish, with faith in its accomplishment and with the performance of certain ceremonies, the wish will, it is said, be fulfilled before the year's end.

St. Gregory, pa. within the city of Canterbury (q.v.), E. Kent; ac. 10.

St. Gregory's Sound, strait between the largest two of the Aran islands (Inishmore and Inishmaan), S.W. co. Galway, Ir. It is 2 miles wide.

St. Harmons, pa. on the Wye, N.W. Radnors., 3½ N. by E. of Rhayader; ac. 15,383. The church of St. Garmon is a plain structure, erected in 1821. The Baptists and Wesleyans have chapels.

St. Helena, small island at the head of Luce Bay, pa. of Old Luce (q.v.), S. Wigs., Sc., about 1 S. of Glenluce.

St. Helen, Auckland. [AUCKLAND ST. HELEN.]

St. Helens (1), parl., co., and mun. bor., manufacturing and mkt. to. (8.), head of Co. Co. dis., pa. of Prescot (q.v.), S.W. Lancs., 12 E. by S. of Liverpool. There are several eccl. pas., with modern churches. The Catholics have two chapels; and there are also Wesleyan, Congregational, Presbyterian, Primitive Methodist, Baptist, and Welsh chapels, and a meeting-house for the Society of Friends. The town hall (1873), in Corporation Street, is a building of grey brick and Stourton stone, in a simple Gothic style; the main entrance is approached by a spacious flight of steps, leading to a gabled archway surmounted by the arms of the town; on the left of this, adjoining the central portion of the building, is the clock tower, rising to a height of 130 ft. to the top of the vane; on the right of the porch is a wing two storeys in height, terminated by a gabled projection with a large bay window and surmounted by a niche containing a figure of St. Helen, the ancient patron saint of the bor.; on the left of the tower are the police offices and court-room entrances. The building includes

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATIONS.
St. Giles in the Fields	.....	.....	39782
St. Giles in the Wood	Umberleigh (6)	205	778
St. Giles on the Heath	Tower Hill (1)	218	262
St. Gluvias, pa.	Penryn (1)	303	4247

PLACE.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATIONS.
St. Gluvias, tp.	Penryn (1)	303	90
St. Gregory	Canterbury (1)	62	1212
St. Harmons	St. Harmons	205	78
St. Helens (1)	St. Helens	192	7128

also a council chamber and an assembly-room; there is likewise a police office, court-room, and the usual offices. The Central Free Library has several branches, and in the same building the Technical School is carried on. The baths belong to the Corporation. There are two hospitals, supported by voluntary contributions; and two isolation hospitals for infectious diseases. There are several charities, one amounting to £1,000 yearly, derived from land given in 1714 for educational purposes. In this town and district is the great seat of the manufacture of crown-, sheet-, and plate-glass, for which it has a world-wide renown. The glass made here, while equal to either the French or Venetian glass in brilliancy of colour and style of finish, is perfectly free from that mistiness to which the foreign article is subject, and is made with the addition of various kinds of borders and mouldings. Flint-glass and glass bottles are also made here. There are several very extensive chemical and copper-smelting works, a brewery, iron and brass foundries, coarse earthenware potteries, and several collieries; watch movements are also made. Within the last century this place has risen from a small vil. to a large and populous town, its rapid increase and prosperity arising chiefly from its proximity to Liverpool as well as from the numerous factories in and about the town, whose establishment is principally owing to the plentiful supply of excellent coal with which this district abounds. Victoria Park (1887), a fine recreation-ground of about 36 ac., contains a mansion, used for art exhibitions. Taylor Park (1893), on the south-west side of the bor., is named after its donor.

St. Helens (2), large pa. and vil., I. of W., 4 S.E. of Ryde and 10 E. of Newport, finely situated on the bay called St. Helen's Road, much used in the time of war as a rendezvous for the Royal Navy; ac. 1,883 and 954 water and foreshore; soil chalk, overlying clay. The ancient church of St. Helen was situated close to the sea-side, and the churchyard was so much encroached upon by the sea in the beginning of the 18th cent. as to endanger the church, which was pulled down, part of the tower, which is still standing, being left as a sea-mark. The church (rebuilt 1717 in a more elevated situation, and again rebuilt 1831) is in Gothic style; in the chancel are several mural tablets to members of the Grose family—one being to Sir Nash Grose, judge of the Court of King's Bench (d. 1814), and another to his only son, Edward Grose, mortally wounded at Waterloo (1815). There are Wesleyan, Free Wesleyan, and Bible Christian chapels. The vil., called St. Helen's Green, stands about ½ S.E. of the church and as much inland from the sea, near Brading Harbour. The Priory, founded for Cluniac monks about the year 1155, has been the seat of the Grose family and their ancestors since the reign of James II.; it is beautifully situated on the shore, at the head of a spacious lawn which gently declines from the house to the brink of a high ridge overhanging the sea, and is covered to the water's edge with wood, through which various pleasant walks have been formed. The priory property was appropriated by Henry VI., and used by him for the building and endowment of Eton College.

St. Helen's (3), one of the Scilly Islands (q.v.), S.W. Cornw., near Tresco. It has an area of 40 ac., and is uninhabited.

St. Helen's (4), coast pa., Forth bar., S. co. Wex., Ir., 9 S.E. of Wexford; ac. 670. It includes Greenore Point.

St. Helen's Green. [ST. HELENS (2).]

St. Helen's Road. [ST. HELENS (2).]

St. Helier, pa., seaport, and mkt. to. (W. & S.), S. Jersey, Channel Islands, 26 S.E. of St. Peter Port; ac. 2,125. St. H. is pleasantly situated on the east side of St. Aubin's Bay. The greater part of the town is concealed from view as one enters the harbour, the most conspicuous objects being Elizabeth Castle (q.v.), Hermitage Rock (q.v.), and Fort Regent (q.v.). The streets near the water's edge are mostly narrow and incommodious, but improvements are being gradually carried out. Beyond these streets is the Royal Square, used as a market down to 1803. On its south side is the Cohue or Royal Court House, the meeting-place of the States, the legislative and administrative body which carries on the government of the island. The principal chamber contains portraits of George III.; of Marshal Conway (d. 1795), who became governor of the island in 1772, by Gainsborough; and of Major Pierson, who was slain at the "Battle of Jersey," which took place in the adjoining square when the French landed in the island in 1781. Close to the Royal Square is the Public Library, a plain brick structure erected in 1736 by the Rev. Philip Falle, author of a well-known "History of Jersey," and chaplain to William III.; it contains some rare books, divinity and ecclesiastical history being well represented. From the Royal Square neat streets, lined by well-built houses, diverge to the various quarters of the town. Opposite the entrance to the Square stands the church of St. Helier, a Gothic edifice erected in 1341 and recently restored; it contains some interesting monuments, among which are those commemorating Major Pierson (d. 1781), the Baron de Rullecourt (d. 1781), commander of the French troops in the "Battle of Jersey," and General Anquetil (d. 1842), who was slain in the retreat from Cabul. The churches of St. Paul, St. James, St. Mark, All Saints, St. Luke, and St. Andrew are modern edifices. The other places of worship include a Roman Catholic church and various Nonconformist chapels. Victoria College is picturesquely situated on an eminence; it was erected 1850–52 as a memorial of the Queen's visit to the island in 1846; attached to the school are several scholarships at Oxford. The Hospital, situated at the west end of the town, is at the same time an infirmary, a poorhouse, and a temporary home for the destitute. The prison is a spacious granite edifice. The market accommodation is excellent, separate markets being provided for each class of goods. The harbour-works embrace a large area, but they still remain unfinished, the Southampton packets being able to enter only in certain states of the tide, whilst the entry is dangerous for large vessels in stormy weather. The old harbour now forms an inner harbour, a large outer harbour having been formed (1841–46) by the erection of the Albert and Victoria piers. Dredging was carried on in 1886, and the approach to the harbour is now

PLACE.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Helens (2)	St. Helens	86	4611
St. Helen's (4)	Rosslare	104	95
St. Helier	Southampton (140)	79	29133

protected by the Hermitage Breakwater. A statue of George II. (formerly supposed by some to represent Charles II. or some person unknown) stands in the Royal Square. The Parade is an open recreation ground, originally formed for the purpose of drilling troops. There are also monuments commemorating Constable Le Sueur (in Broad Street) and Centenier Le Cronier (in Green Street Cemetery). The pa. is singularly devoid of antiquities, a fine cromlech which stood near the site of Fort Regent having been removed by Marshal Conway to his Berkshire estate in 1785. Two fine valleys—the Val des Vaux and the Grand Val—leading northwards from the town, add greatly to the beauty of the neighbourhood.

St. Herbert's Isle, Derwent Water, near Keswick, S. Cumb. It is said to derive its name from a hermit who, according to Bede, took up his abode here in the 7th cent., and died in 687. It is now densely wooded, but the woods are traversed by footpaths; and from a few points where it is sufficiently open delightful prospects are obtained.

St. Hilary (1), pa., tp., and vil., S.W. Cornw., 6 E. of Penzance; ac. of pa. 3,505, of tp. 2,786; soil stiff clay, overlying clay-slate. The town of Marazion is within this pa. The church of St. Hilary, situated on an eminence, and rebuilt in 1853, is an edifice of granite, in Dec. style. The previous church, erected in the reign of Henry VII., was destroyed by fire on the night of Good Friday, 1853, the small tower (which originally belonged to a cruciform church of the reign of Edward III.) alone escaping. Two curiously-inscribed stones were found in the old walls, and are now near the south entrance. The churchyard is exceptionally distinguished by its numerous and costly tombs and monuments, including one to the family of Davies (1699), and others of modern date to those of Penneck, Blewett, Cole, Maugham, Millett, and others. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels.

St. Hilary (2), pa. and vil., S.E. Glamorgs., 1½ E.S.E. of Cowbridge; ac. 1,268; soil mostly fertile, overlying limestone. The church of St. Hilary (restored 1862) is Norm. Here are the ruins of Beaupré Castle; the remains are partly Gothic and partly Classical in style. The latter portion was added about 1600, and is considered to be among the earliest instances of the employment of Grecian style in the country. Beaupré is a seat.

St. Iberius (1), pa. near the coast, Forth bar., S. co. Wex., Ir., 9 S.S.E. of Wexford railway station; ac. 891. It contains the vil. of Broadway (q.v.).

St. Iberius (2), pa. within the bor. of Wexford (q.v.), S.E. co. Wex., Ir.; ac. 16.

St. Ishmael, pa. on the Towy and Carmarthen Bay, S.W. Carmarths., 7 S. by W. of Carmarthen; ac. 3,584; soil fertile. The church of St. Ismael is a plain edifice, restored 1861. There are chapels-of-ease at Ferryside (q.v.) and Llansaint. The Baptists, Calvinistic Methodists, and Congregationalists have chapels. Cockle and mussel gathering is carried on extensively. Iscoed is a seat.

St. Ishmaels, pa. and vil. on north shore of Milford Haven, S. Pembs., 5 W. of Milford; ac. 3,123. The church of St. Ishmael is E. Eng. The Congregationalists have a chapel. There is a large tumulus near the church. Trewarren is a seat.

St. Issels, pa. on Carmarthen Bay, S.E. Pembs., 3 N. of Tenby; ac. 3,787. The surface is very broken, steep eminences alternating with deep wooded dells. The church of St. Issel (restored 1864) is an ancient Gothic edifice; the old square embattled tower remains. There are Presbyterian, Baptist, Wesleyan, Calvinistic Methodist, and Congregational chapels. The pa. contains collieries and iron and brass foundries, and coal is exported. Saundersfoot (q.v.) is a seaside resort. Heaven Castle is a mansion in Elizabethan style, situated in a well-wooded park and commanding beautiful views.

St. Issey, pa. and vil., N.W. Cornw., 10 N.W. of Bodmin; ac. 3,531; soil clay and loam, overlying schist or soft slate. The church of St. Issey (rebuilt 1871) is in Gothic style. There are Congregational and Wesleyan Methodist chapels. In this pa. is the Lægossic mine, and a circular entrenchment; there are some remains of Halwyn, the ancient residence of the Champernownes.

St. Ive (pronounced "Eve"), pa. and vil., E. Cornw., 5 N.E. of Menheniot; ac. 5,780; soil clay, overlying clay-slate. The church of St. Ivo (restored 1864) is Dec. and Perp., the east window being a very fine example of the former period; there are good Dec. sedilia and a piscina in the chancel, and another piscina and a squint in the transept; in the south porch is a holy-water stoup. There are memorials to John Wrey and his wife (1597), John Deminoe (1680), and the Dodson, Saltren, and Helyar families. The pa. has Wesleyan and Wesleyan Reform chapels. The charities are small. In the pa. are two ancient encampments; one, on the summit of an isolated hill, is probably British, and is called "Cadson Bury." There was a preceptory of Knights Templar, founded here about 1150. There is a copper mine in the pa.

St. Ives (1), pa. and mun. bor., on the south-west coast of Cornw., 9 N.N.E. of Penzance; ac. 1,876; soil compact and slaty felspar rock, traversed by metalliferous veins. Formerly it was called Pendennis or Pendunes (= "the Head" or "Fortress"), and is recorded as a borough in 1558; it returned two members to Parliament from that time until 1832, when it lost one member, and in 1885 it was merged in the county. The town is irregularly built, and has very narrow streets, but there are terraces of good private houses and many modern villas, and on entering the town from Hayle the general appearance of the place is charmingly picturesque. The church of St. Hya, or Ia (restored), is a fine old building of granite, erected in the early part of the 15th cent. The curious font of granite has four figures of demons, and on the bowl are four other figures representing angels. At the east end of the

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Hilary (1), pa.	Marazion Road (3)	319	2298
St. Hilary (1), tp.	Marazion Road (3)	319	956
St. Hilary (2)	Cowbridge (1½)	182	175
St. Iberius (1)	Rosslare	104	345
St. Iberius (2)	Wexford	93	1182
St. Ishmael	Ferryside (1)	227	1315
St. Ishmaels	Milford (5)	273	457
St. Issels	Saundersfoot (½)	263	1788
St. Issey	Wadebridge (4)	279	557
St. Ive	Liskeard (4)	259	1716
St. Ives (1)	St. Ives	319	6084

aisle is a slate slab, in which have been reset the fragments of a brass to Otho Trevrwyth, Esq. (d. 1462–3), and Agnes his wife; these now include the kneeling effigy of Dame Agnes, and a small figure of St. Michael, bearing a shield with a cross and vanquishing the dragon. There is also a brass to the original members of the St. Ives Artillery corps. The churchyard, which is near the sea, is defended from the waves by a strong and high wall. In the churchyard is an octagonal cross with a square panelled head carved with representations of the "Crucifixion" and other subjects, discovered in the churchyard in 1832. In connection with the pa. church is a Mariners' chapel; and there are places of worship for the Countess of Huntingdon's Connexion, Wesleyans, Primitive Methodists, Bible Christians, and the Methodist New Connexion. The charities are small. There is a subscription reading and news room, and a Masonic lodge. The town hall and meat market (1832) is a plain but substantial building. The municipal insignia include two maces, a covered loving-cup, and a corporate seal. The population here are almost entirely dependent on the fishing industry, pilchards and herrings being at times in great abundance. The pilchards are cured and packed in hogsheads, and are chiefly exported to Spain and Italy, and the mackerel sent to the London markets. Some boatbuilding is carried on; there are also sail and netting manufactories. The remains of the ancient chapel of St. Nicholas have been converted into a storehouse. St. Ives Bay, which is a creek under Falmouth and a lifeboat station, affords excellent shelter, except against north-east gales, which too frequently prove fatal to such vessels as may not be moored within the pier. On a hill south-east of St. Ives is a triangular pyramidal monument of granite ashlar; it was erected by John Knill, of St. Ives, and has a receptacle in the basement intended by him for his place of sepulture. Mr. Knill bequeathed certain property to be expended yearly in a singular and grotesque celebration, which is still strictly observed. He eventually became a bencher of Gray's Inn (d. 1811), and was buried in St. Andrew's, Holborn. The only remaining fair is held on the Saturday before Advent Sunday. Tregenna Castle (1773), for many years a seat, is now an hotel.

St. Ives.
(Photo. Frith and Co., Reigate.)

St. Ives (2), pa., mun. bor., U. and mkt. to., on the Ouse, N. Hunts., 5 E. of Huntingdon, on the road to Lynn; ac. 2,117. It was anciently called "Slepe," and appears under that name in Domesday Book, but acquired its present name from Ivo, a Persian bishop, who, it is said, travelled through England preaching, and at last came here, where he died about the end of the 6th cent. Abbot Ednoth in 970 erected a church on the site where the remains of Ivo, the Persian bishop, afterwards removed to Ramsey Abbey, were said to have been found; and in 1070 a Benedictine priory was founded here and colonised by monks from Ramsey. In 1207 the church and buildings were burnt, but were rebuilt, and the monastery continued to exist as a cell to Ramsey till after the Dissolution, when the site was granted to Sir Thomas Audley. A house was erected on the spot in 1872, and some portions of the walls of the priory barn still remain in the garden. The church of All Saints is Norm. and Perp.; the spire was rebuilt in 1879. In the south aisle is a double piscina of the Trans. period. One of the pa. account books contains, under the date 1634, the signature of Oliver Cromwell, then a resident at St. Ives. The Free church (1865) is in Dec. style. There are Baptist, Wesleyan, and Primitive Methodist chapels, and a meeting-house for Friends. St. Ives has a market every Monday for cattle, sheep, and pigs. The markets are convenient to the railway station, and belong to the corporation. There are also two well-frequented fairs on Whit Monday and Oct. 11; at these great quantities of cattle, sheep, and general wares are disposed of. The Corn Exchange, in the centre of the town, is the property of a company, and the building is let for public meetings and concerts. The police station is on the south side of the Sheep Market, and in 1884 a building was added to serve as a court-house. The Liberal and Constitutional clubs have buildings of their own, each with a large hall. The charities are considerable. In connection with one, for the distribution of Bibles, the provision occurs in the testator's will that six boys and six girls shall cast dice for the Bibles in church during divine service. A great part of the town was destroyed in 1680 by a fire, which broke out at the end of White Hart Lane and crossed the Sheep Market, consuming everything in its way down to the waterside, the whole loss amounting to upwards of £13,000. One of the most ancient and interesting specimens of domestic architecture in the town is a residence close to the river and bridge; it contains some very fine oak panelling, and with its many gables presents a most picturesque appearance. The lower parts of the to., built directly on the Ouse banks, have been frequently overflowed. This was particularly the case in Nov., 1823, when a very high flood occurred, in which a considerable quantity of property was destroyed; destructive floods also occurred in 1875, and during the six years following, which have been very detrimental to trade. Over the river is a stone bridge of six arches, said to have been erected by the Abbots of Ramsey; two of the

Place.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Ives (2), pa.	St. Ives	64	3005
St. Ives (2), bor.	St. Ives	64	3037

arches were rebuilt in 1716, and the wharf was widened in 1724. Near the centre of the bridge, over one of the piers, is an ancient building, the lower part of which was anciently a chapel, but is now used as a dwelling-house; adjoining the bridge, on the south side, is a brick causeway on arches, erected in 1822, reaching a considerable distance, the arches affording a free passage for the water during the overflowings of the river. Slepe Hall, once the residence of Oliver Cromwell, has been taken down, and a number of houses built upon its site.

St. Ives Division, one of the six parl. divs. of Cornw. It lies at the south-west extremity of the co., and includes the Scilly Islands. It returns one member.

St. James, formerly tp., pa. of Long Sutton (q.v.), S. Lincs., about 4 S.E. of Holbeach.

St. James and Dunbrody. [DUNBRODY AND ST. JAMES.]

St. James's, pa. on the Liffey and the Grand Canal, Castleknock and Uppercross bars., E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 1,099. The pa. lies partly within the city of Dublin (q.v.).

St. James's Park. [WESTMINSTER.]

St. James, Westminster, pa. of West London, E. Middx., 1¾ W. by S. of St. Paul's; ac. 163. The church of St. James (1684), in Piccadilly, is a plain red-brick edifice; it was designed by Wren, who devoted all his energy to the adornment of the interior. It contains a good marble font by Grinling Gibbons. Here are buried Charles Cotton (d. 1687), one of the authors of "The Complete Angler," and Mark Akenside (d. 1770), author of "The Pleasures of the Imagination."

St. John (1), or St. Johns, pa. and vil. on a creek of the Hamoaze, S.E. Cornw., 7 S.E. of St. Germans; ac. 764; soil and subsoil clay and slate. The church of St. John (restored 1868) is a 15th-cent. building. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The charities are small.

St. John (2), or St. John near Swansea, pa. in south-west of Swansea bor., N.W. Glamorgs.; ac. 419. The church of St. John the Baptist (1880) is in Perp. style. Here are very extensive collieries and copper works, which give employment to the greater number of the inhabitants.

St. John (3), pa., N. Jersey, Channel Islands, 4½ N. by W. of St. Helier; ac. 2,154. The church of St. John is a Gothic edifice of the 13th cent. At Mont Mado are extensive granite quarries. The descent from this point to Bonne Nuit Bay is extremely picturesque.

St. John (4), eccl. pa., pa. of and ¾ N. from St. Peter Port (q.v.), Guernsey, Channel Islands. St. John's forms a northern suburb of the town. The church of St. John is a plain modern edifice.

St. John Baptist, pa., Middlethird and Slieveardagh bars., Mid co. Tip., Ir., 7 S. of Goolds Cross railway station; ac. 5,616. It contains part of the town of Cashel (q.v.).

OLD BRIDGE, ST. IVES. (See page 333.)
(Photo. A. Hendry, Godmanchester.)

St. John in the Vale, eccl. pa., pa. of Crosthwaite (q.v.), W. Cumb., 2½ S.E. of Keswick. The church of St. John stands on a fell 700 ft. above sea-level. It is a simple structure, rebuilt in 1846; in the chancel is an oak chair bearing date 1685; the oak pulpit is also old, and has a sounding-board. The charities, amounting to about £4, are distributed in bread, prayer-books, and money.

St. John in the Wilderness, pl. with ruined church, S.E. Dev., about 3 N.W. of Exmouth. The church is now used only for funerals.

St. John, Lee. [LEE, ST. JOHN.]

St. John near Swansea. [ST. JOHN (2).]

St. Johns (1), vil. with railway station, pa. of German (q.v.), I. of M., about 3 S.E. of Peel. The chapel was built about the middle of the 19th cent., on the site of an ancient chapel; in the porch is a Runic cross with an inscription.

St. Johns (2). [ST. JOHN (1).]

St. John's (1), pa. on south bank of the Liffey,

PLACE.	Nearest Raily. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Ives Division	.....	.....	50187
St. James's	.....	.....	14639
St. J., Westminster	.....	.....	24995
St. John (1)	Devonport (4)	231	194
St. John (2)	Swansea (2)	204	8389
St. John (3)	Southampton (144)	79	1673
St. John (4)	Southampton (115)	79	4375
St. John Baptist	Goolds Cross (7)	96	3534
St. John in the Vale	Threlkeld	295	774
St. John's (1)	.....	.....	1794

Central Dublin, E. co. Dub., Ir., ¼ N. by E. of St. Patrick's; ac. 14. The church of St. John (rebuilt 1773) is an edifice in Classical style, with a façade of the Doric order.

St. John's (2), pa., Athlone bar., S. co. Roscom., Ir., 8 N.W. of Athlone; ac. 8,018. Limestone is found here in abundance. There is a Catholic church and a public school.

St. John's (3), pa. on the Barrow, West Narragh and Reban bar., S.W. co. Kildare, and Ballyadams bar., S.E. Q. Co., Ir.; ac. 1,131. It contains part of the mkt. to. of Athy.

St. John's (4), pa., Carbury bar., N. co. Sligo, Ir.; ac. 6,511, of which the greater part is within the bor. of Sligo (q.v.).

St. John's (5), pa., Gowran and Shillelogher bars., Mid co. Kilk., Ir.; ac. 5,268. It forms part of the city of Kilkenny (q.v.).

St. John's (6), pa., Clanwilliam and City of Limerick bars., N. co. Lim., Ir.; ac. 133.

St. John's (7), pa., Forth bar., S. co. Wex., Ir.; ac. 325. It contains part of the town of Wexford (q.v.).

St. John's (8), pa. on the Slaney, Bantry bar., S. co. Wex., Ir., 1 S.W. of Enniscorthy; ac. 2,206. St. John's is a seat.

St. John's (9), promontory, S. co. Don., Ir., between Inver Bay and McSwyne's Bay. It is a singular narrow stretch of land jutting out for some distance into the sea, terminating in St. John's Point, where there is a lighthouse, with light visible for 14 miles.

St. John's Beck, small stream, Mid Cumb. It flows out of Thirlmere, through the vale of St. John, and, after a short course in a N.E. direction, falls into the Greta about 4 N.E. of Keswick.

St. John's Common, pl., pa. of Clayton (q.v.), E. Sussex, about 1 N. of Burgess Hill. There is a church in Dec. style; and here are gas-works.

St. John's Point, promontory forming the north-east extremity of Dundrum Bay, S.E. co. Down, Ir. On the point is a lighthouse showing an intermittent light, visible for 12 miles.

St. Johnstown (1), pa., Middlethird bar., E. co. Tip., Ir., 3 S.E. of Killenaule; ac. 2,180. There is a parochial school.

St. Johnstown (2), vil. with railway station, on the Foyle, pa. of Taughboyne (q.v.), E. co. Don., Ir., 7 S. of Derry. It was formerly a borough, and returned two members to Parliament, but was disfranchised at the Union. A fair for pigs, sheep, and cattle is held here Nov. 25.

St. John's Within, pa. in bor. of Waterford (q.v.), E. co. Waterf., Ir.; ac. 13.

St. John's Without, pa. in bor. of Waterford (q.v.), E. co. Waterf., Ir.; ac. 920.

St. John's Wood, north-west suburb of London, pa. of St. Marylebone and Hampstead, E. Middx., ¼ W.N.W. of St. Paul's. The dis. lies immediately north-west of Regent's Park, and consists for the most part of comfortable villas and gentlemen's residences of moderate dimensions. It takes its name from the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem (or Knights Hospitaller), to whom it belonged. After the Dissolution it became a royal deer-park, and continued to be so in the reign of James I. Anthony Babington and two of his fellow-conspirators hid themselves here in 1586. The dis. includes the eccl. pas. of All Saints and All Souls. All Souls' Church is in Italian Gothic style. Of the many artists who have resided here, the most celebrated were Sir Edwin Landseer (d. 1873) and his brothers Charles and Thomas. Lord's Cricket Ground is one of the two most important cricket-fields in England, the other being Kennington Oval. It was originally established by Mr. Thomas Lord, about 1780, on the ground now occupied by Dorset Square; its existence in its present position dates from about 1814. It is the property of the Marylebone Cricket Club, but the Middlesex County Matches (home) are played here, also the contests between Oxford and Cambridge and Eton and Harrow. In the immediate neighbourhood is the Clergy Orphan School for Girls, founded in 1749.

St. John, Vale of, a narrow picturesque valley, Mid Cumb., extending from the head of Thirlmere to the Saddleback Mountain. White Pike and Great Dodd lie on the eastern, and Naddle Fell on its western side. Through it flows St. John's Beck (q.v.).

St. John Weardale. [WEARDALE ST. JOHN.]

St. Jude, vil., pa. of Andreas (q.v.), I. of M., 3 W.N.W. of Ramsey. There are remains of a fort retaining bastions at the corners.

St. Jude's, pa. in city of Dublin and Castleknock and Uppercross bars., E. co. Dub., Ir.; ac. 868.

St. Juliot, pa. and vil., N. Cornw., 7 N.N.E. of Camelford; ac. 2,699; soil light, overlying rock. The church of St. Julietta (restored 1872) is a Perp. building; there are some memorials of the Holder family. In the churchyard are two ancient granite crosses. The Bible Christians have a chapel. There are several barrows in the pa., and an ancient gold torque was discovered many years ago. Hennet, a fine old house (now occupied as a farmhouse), was formerly the seat of the Rawle family.

St. Just, or St. Just in Penwith, pa. and mkt. to. (s.), S.W. Cornw., 7 W. of Penzance; ac. 7,421. The church of St. Just (restored 1865) is Perp.; in the chancel is a curious incised slab with the inscription "Silvs Hc Jacet;" in the north aisle is an ancient cross brought from the chapel on Cape Cornwall; there are memorials to the Millett, Chenhalls, and other families. In the vicarage grounds are two ancient granite crosses and a holed stone. On Cape Cornwall are the ruins of St. Helen's Oratory. There are Wesleyan, Bible Christian, and Free Methodist chapels. The Market House was built in 1840, and a Literary Institution was opened in 1842. The Botallack

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. John's (2)	Athlone (8)	80	1149
St. John's (3)	Athy	45	2266
St. John's (4)	Sligo	136	8388
St. John's (5)	Kilkenny	81	4034
St. John's (6)	Limerick	129	7473
St. John's (7)	Wexford	93	3243
St. John's (8)	Enniscorthy (1)	78	393

Place.	Nearest Rly. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Johnstown (1)	Laffan's Bridge (4)	96	235
St. Johnstown (2)	St. Johnston	184	338
St. John's Within	Waterford	112	1427
St. John's Without	Waterford	112	6015
St. Jude's	.....	.....	6924
St. Juliot	Camelford (7)	241	233
St. Just	Penzance (7)	329	6119

mines (the workings of which run under the sea), the Wheal Owles mines (now unworked), and the Levant and New Balleswidden tin-mines are in this pa.

St. Just in Roseland, pa. and vil., S. Cornw., 8 s. of Truro; ac. 4,192; soil clay and loam, overlying slate and granite. The church of St. Just (restored 1872) is Perp.; the rood-stairs remain, and there is a brass with the effigy of a priest (c. 1520). The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. The charities are small.

St. Katherine by the Tower, pa. in E. London, on the north bank of the Thames, E. Middx., 1¼ E. by S. of St. Paul's; ac. 14. Here stood an ancient hospital, founded in 1148 by Matilda, queen of Stephen, which, on the formation of St. Katherine's Docks in 1825, was removed to Regent's Park. The construction of these docks—some 24 ac. in extent—entailed the removal of upwards of 11,000 persons.

St. Keverne, coast pa. and vil., S.W. Cornw., 19 s. of Falmouth; ac. 10,173; soil loam, overlying marl and rock. The church of St. Keverne or Akebron (restored) is a building of various periods, chiefly E. Eng. and Perp.; there are memorials to Robert Hill (1637), Thomas Toll (1668), and others. The Wesleyans and Bible Christians have chapels. The charities, of which a portion is devoted to educational purposes, amount to over £40 yearly. The "Deadman," a lofty embankment, was probably an ancient earthwork. Benjamin Charles Incledon, the singer, was born here in 1764.

St. Kevin's Bed, small cave overhanging the upper lake, Vale of Glendalough, Mid co. Wick., Ir. It was here that, according to legend, St. Kevin fled to escape from all womankind. Kathleen, however, traced him, and St. Kevin, in sudden madness, hurled her into the lake below.

St. Kew (anciently called "Lanehoc" and "Lanho"), pa. and vil., N.E. Cornw., 4 N.E. of Wadebridge; ac. 7,550; soil stiff clay, overlying slate. The church of St. Kewa (restored) is Perp.; the chancel retains a piscina and credence, and a priest's doorway; the east window of the north chapel contains ancient glass, including scenes from the life of Christ, the royal arms of the Tudors, and those of the Kingdon and Carminowe families; in the north aisle is a newel staircase, formerly leading to the rood-loft; both windows in the south chapel contain old glass, including a shield of the arms of Arundell, and in the south wall is a piscina. The memorials in the church comprise a stone with arms and inscription to Thomas Treffry, Esq., of Fowey (d. 1590), and a number of other members of his family to 1775; and there are others (some bearing arms) to Honor (Calwodley), wife of John Webber (d. 1601); John Cavell, Esq. (d. 1602); Thomas Hutton, B.D., vicar 1606–40 (d. 1639–40); Robert Bellmain, M.A., vicar 1640 (d. 1640), and Philippa (Hutton), his wife (d. 1640). In the south chapel is a slate slab of the 16th cent., with a large incised cross and a mutilated inscription in Latin to William Carnsuysuwe, and another with the date 1634, and there are many modern monuments. In the 14th cent. there was a chapel in the churchyard, kept in repair by the prior of Plympton, and in the pa. was also another chapel, dedicated to St. Wenne, the site of which is uncertain; no traces of either now exist. There is a Bible Christian chapel (originally built by the Wesleyans) and Free Methodist chapels. There are some small charities. On the highland on the north side of the pa. is Tregaer Castle, an ancient earthwork, consisting of two circular ramparts with deep ditches and an entrance on the south-east; and on Trevinnick Farm is a quadrangular earthwork, about 100 yds. square, near which fragments of weapons have been ploughed up. On the by-road leading to Polrode Mill, and now serving as a stepping-stone over a small watercourse, is an ancient round-headed cross, 5 ft. 5 in. in length. The farmhouse of Trewane, an interesting old mansion with mullioned windows, contains in one of the rooms a representation in plaster relief of the "Offering up of Isaac," with two rhyming lines; and in other rooms are the arms of the Nicoll (or Nicholls) family, who held this estate from the 16th to the 18th cent. Tretawn farmhouse (probably erected by the Molesworths) is a building of Jacobean date, and a block of granite in the wall near one of the fireplaces has the inscription, "Phila. Molesworth, 1620."

St. Keyne, pa. and vil., S.E. Cornw., 3 s. of Liskeard; soil generally light on a shelfy rock; ac. 944. The church of St. Keyne (restored 1877) stands on the summit of a hill, and the Eddystone light, 18 miles away, may be seen from the top of the tower. About 1 mile from the church is the famous well of St. Keyne, concerning which there is a popular tradition that whichever of a newly-married couple first drinks a draught from this spring obtains and holds the supremacy. St. Keyna (or Keyne), the tutelary saint, was, according to early writers, a pious virgin of British blood royal, and lived about 490 A.D.

St. Kilda, island, pa. of Harris (q.v.), Outer Hebrides, Invs., Sc. This island, also called Hirt (or Hirta) by the natives, is the most remote of the Western Isles. The nearest land to it is Griminish Point, the north-west extremity of North Uist, from which it is distant 40 miles in a westerly direction. In length it is about 3 miles from east to west, and in breadth 2 miles from north to south. The whole island is fenced by one continued perpendicular face of rock, of prodigious height, with the exception of a part of the bay, or landing-place, lying towards the south-east; and even there the rocks are of considerable height. The bay is inconvenient; and the tides and waves are so impetuous that, unless in calm weather, it is extremely hazardous to approach. There is no regular means of intercourse with St. Kilda. Yachts call occasionally, and during the summer excursion steamers make trips from Glasgow, though sometimes visitors are obliged to return without being able to land. The surface of the island rises into four high mountains, covered with a blackish loam, except at their summits, where is moss of about 3 ft. in depth; but the soil is rendered fertile by the industry of the inhabitants, who manure their fields so as to convert them into a sort of gardens.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Just in Roseland	Truro (8)	295	1178
St. K. by the Tower	.....	.....	182
St. Keverne	Helston (12)	319	1630

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr.(1) place,(2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Kew	St. Kew Highway	275	1048
St. Keyne	Liskeard (3)	259	139
St. Kilda	Glasgow (350)	400	71

There are several springs that form a burn running close by the vil., which is situated about a quarter of a mile from the bay. The climate is mild, but damp; and the island is often visited with severe storms. There are no trees or shrubs, but the grass is abundant, and forms excellent pasture for sheep and cattle. The island and the neighbouring islets swarm with sea-birds—puffins, guillemots, razor-bills, fulmar petrels, and gannets. These last, however, do not breed on St. Kilda itself. The sea-birds, and chiefly the puffins, form a large part of the food of the islanders. Feathers are largely exported, as is fulmar oil. The only manufacture is that of cloth and blankets from the sheep's wool, which is plucked and not shorn.

St. Kingsmark, pa., S.E. Mon., about 1 N.W. of Chepstow; ac. 23. Here was once a small priory, founded before 1291, of which some fragments still remain. There was also a church here, every vestige of which has disappeared.

St. Laurence, pa., S. Jersey, Channel Islands, 2½ N.W. of St. Helier; ac. 2,337. The pa. lies between those of St. John on the north, St. Helier on the east, and St. Mary and St. Peter on the west. It is well wooded, and contains several picturesque valleys sloping down to the sea. The church of St. Laurence (restored 1892) is a plain edifice erected in 1199.

THE PIER, ST. LEONARDS ON SEA.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

St. Lawrence (1), coast pa. and vil., I. of W., 2 W. of Ventnor; ac. 327, the greater part a slip of land forming a part of the romantic tract called the Undercliff (q.v.); soil chalky marl, rich in fossils, overlying good freestone for building. The old church of St. Lawrence (built in the reign of Richard I., and enlarged in 1849) is one of the smallest in England, its dimensions being 25 ft. in length, 11 ft. in width, and 11 ft. 4½ in. in height; it is now used as a mortuary chapel. The present church of St. Lawrence (1878) is a fine stone building in Dec. style; in the chancel is a brass to a late rector. The view from the old churchyard is singularly beautiful and picturesque. The slope of the hill on which the church stands is so great that a road has been cut like a groove; on the opposite side a cliff, some 100 ft. high and nearly perpendicular, towers overhead; yet, from the richness of the soil that clings to the rocks, they are clothed with clusters of flowers and shrubs flourishing in the crevices. The Royal National Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest dates from 1869; the patients are placed in a series of houses or villas, well sheltered from unfavourable winds; in connection with the hospital is a handsome chapel named St. Luke's (the services in which are open to the public) and a library.

St. Lawrence (2), pa. and tp., E.R. Yorks., partly within city of York (q.v.); ac. of pa. 2,717, of tp. 75.

St. Lawrence (3), pa. within the bor. of Ramsgate (q.v.), E. Kent; ac. 3,246 and 1,185 water.

St. Lawrence (4), pa. on the Cleddau, W. Pembs., 8 N. of Haverfordwest; ac. 1,862; soil mostly fertile. The church of St. Lawrence (restored 1878) is a plain building of ancient character.

St. Lawrence's, pa., Clanwilliam and City of Limerick bars., N. co. Lim., Ir.; ac. 279. It contains the vil. of Blackboy (q.v.).

St. Leonard, eccl. pa., pa. of Aston Clinton (q.v.), Mid Bucks., 6 S.W. of Tring. The ancient church of St. Leonard was formerly a chantry chapel to the abbey at Missenden.

St. Leonards (1). [ST. LEONARDS ON SEA.]

St. Leonards (2), small pa., E. Fifes., Sc.; ac. 1,008. It is so intersected by that of St. Andrews that it is identical in all its interests. It consists of detached portions in and around the city, and is connected both historically and politically with the city and pa. of St. Andrews (q.v.).

St. Leonard's Forest, tract of land, pa. of Lower Beeding (q.v.), N.W. Sussex. It lies north-east of Horsham, and contains about 11,000 ac. It consists mainly of oak and beech, with several plantations of larches. It formerly belonged to the Braose family, but has been broken up, and the ownership is now shared by several persons. Many traditions concerning this forest exist, among them being the legend that no nightingales will ever sing within its precincts, and the story of "a strange monstrous serpent or dragon, lately discovered, and yet living to the great annoyance and divers slaughters of both men and cattle (1614)."

St. Leonards on Sea, pa. and to. within the bor. of Hastings (q.v.). There was scarcely a house in the pa. until 1828. The success of St. Leonards led to building outside the boundary of the town, and there is now an uninterrupted line of houses reaching to Hastings Old Town, and commonly called St. Leonards as far as the pier, although the actual boundary is at the baths and assembly-rooms, which lie within it. The Esplanade, opened in 1878 and about 2,000 ft. in length, was constructed at a cost of about £15,000, and forms a sea-wall from the Fish Market to Bo-peep.

PLACE.	Nearest Railv. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		POPULATION.
St. Kingsmark	Chepstow (1)	141	5
St. Laurence	Southampton (142)	79	2440
St. Lawrence (1)	Ventnor (2)	92	318
St. Lawrence (2), pa.	York	188	3456
St. Lawrence (2), tp.	York	188	2979
St. Lawrence (3)	St. Lawrence	84	8897
St. Lawrence (4)	Clarbeston Road (5)	259	189
St. Lawrence's	Limerick	129	1995
St. Leonard	Tring (6)	32	147
St. Leonards (2)	St. Andrews	443	1217
St. Leonards on Sea	St. Leonards	61	10283

St. Leonards Pier was opened in 1891; about 60 yds. from the shore end is a pavilion, where concerts are given, and at the pier-head is a band kiosk. The pa. church of St. Leonard (1831–32), on the Marina, is a plain structure in the Gothic style. The ancient pa. church was washed away by the sea about 1430. There are several eccl. pas., with modern churches; and places of worship for various Nonconformist bodies. The St. Leonards Public Gardens are the property of the Corporation, and free to the public; they contain a huge unshapen mass known as "the Conqueror's stone," traditionally stated to have been placed over the grave of Harold, after he was first buried on the seashore. Gensing Public Gardens, occupying 6 ac., tastefully laid out, lie to the north, between Charles Road and London Road, and form an attractive resort. The chief public buildings are the Royal Concert Hall (1878), Warrior Square, a building in Classic style; and the St. Leonards Assembly Rooms, a building of the Grecian Doric order, with a good portico and an entablature, enriched with triglyphs. There are several convalescent homes and a cottage hospital.

St. Levan, coast pa. on the extreme south point of the Penwith peninsula, S.W. Cornw., 8 S.W. of Penzance; ac. 2,328; soil growan, overlying granite. The church of St. Levan (restored 1876) is in the Late Perp. style; the screen (restored 1885) retains some fragments of old oak carving, and there are a number of curiously-carved old bench-ends, one of which has a figure of a jester in cap and bells; the piscina and rood-stairs remain, and in the south porch is a singular square stoup. In the churchyard is an ancient cross, about 7 ft. high, on a round base, the head of which bears a rude carving of the "Crucifixion"; on the churchyard wall is the round head of another, and a third stands in an adjoining field. At the north and east entrances to the churchyard are the old lich-stones, used as resting-places for funerals. There are Wesleyan chapels. Tol-pedn-penwith (q.v.), the most southerly point on this coast, is in this pa. Eastward, on the headland called "Treryn Dinas," is the celebrated "Logan Stone," an immense block of granite placed on the summit of three piles of rock rising from the sea; the weight of this stone is supposed to be 90 tons, yet it is so nicely balanced that it may be easily logged, or rocked to and fro in a certain direction. The headland has at some time been fortified, and portions of the entrenchments still remain.

St. Luke, eccl. pa., pas. of St. Clement, St. Helier, and St. Saviour (q.v.), S. Jersey, Channel Islands, forming a south-east sub. of St. Helier.

St. Luke, Old Street, pa. in the parl. bor. of Finsbury, E. London, E. Middx., 1 N.N.E. of St. Paul's; ac. 237. The church of St. Luke (1733) has a front of the Doric order, and a remarkable pyramidal tower diminishing in stages, with a fluted obelisk as spire. The pa. comprises a large number of eccl. pas. The Wesleyan chapel was established in 1777 by John Wesley, who frequently preached here. The Tabernacle, a Congregational place of worship, occupies the site of a chapel founded by Whitfield. The Roman Catholic church of Moorfields formerly served as a cathedral for London. The pa. contains several hospitals, including St. Luke's Hospital for Lunatics (1784), the City of London Lying-in Hospital (1773), the Royal London Ophthalmic Hospital, and St. Mark's Hospital, City Road (1852).

St. Luke's, pa. in the west of Dublin City, E. co. Dub., Ir., ¼ S.W. of St. Patrick's; ac. 39. The church of St. Luke is a plain edifice, built in 1708.

St. Lythans, pa., S.E. Glamorgs., 5 W.S.W. of Cardiff; ac. 1,284. The church of St. Lythan is E. Eng., with a saddleback tower. Here is an interesting cromlech, consisting of a capstone and three uprights; it is 11 ft. 8 in. high, 14 ft. 8 in. long, and 10 ft. wide.

St. Mabyn, pa. and small vil., N.E. Cornw., 5 N.W. of Bodmin; ac. 4,088; soil clay-slate, overlying clay. The church of St. Mabena (or the Holy Mother) is Perp. There is a piscina on the north side of the chancel, where also remain the rood-loft stairs, now built up; in the south aisle is another piscina and a priest's doorway; the font, of E. Eng. date, has a circular basin hollowed in a square block, and set on a round shaft. The entrance to the tower on the west exhibits shields of arms, and the string courses have grotesque figures at the angles; the monuments in the church, at one time both numerous and fine, have been much mutilated. There are Free Methodist and Wesleyan chapels. Mayne's charity of £101 (Consols), left in 1818, is applied to education. At Tredethy is the rectangular head of an ancient cross, rudely carved on all four sides with a representation of the "Crucifixion" and figures of the Blessed Virgin and bishops. At Cross Hill, near a gate, is an ancient cross with a round head, the symbol being, as usual, of the Greek type; on the road leading to Longstone, built into a wall, is the round head and part of the shaft of another cross, about 4 ft. in height; there is also the granite base of a cross in the churchyard. Some remains of the old manor-house of Colquite exist near the present residence of this name; the ancient mansion of Tregarden, a 16th-cent. building, consists of a central block, with wings, enclosing a quadrangle, which is approached through a handsome gateway; in the hall is a large quartered shield, and in 1876 there was lying loose on the premises another quartered shield carved in wood. A fair for cattle is held on Feb. 14.

St. Macdara's Island, pa. of Moyrus (q.v.), W. co. Galway, Ir., about 8 S. of Roundstone. There are remains of a primitive church; and the boatmen, on the saint's day, lower sail three times in his honour while passing the island.

St. Madoes, pa. in the Carse of Gowrie and on the Firth of Tay, E. Perths., Sc., about 6 S. of Perth; ac. 1,160; soil various, overlying chiefly Old Red Sandstone. The church is a plain building near Glencarse railway station. Pitfour Castle is a seat.

St. Magnus Bay, on the west coast of the mainland of Shetland, Sc. It is about 13 miles wide at entrance, runs inland nearly 14 miles, and contains several smaller bays, which afford safe anchorage.

St. Margaret (1), pa., S.W. Herefords., about 14 S.W.

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Levan	Penzance (8)	320	629
St. Luke	Southampton (140)	79	3630
St. Luke, Old Street	.....	.....	42440
St. Luke's	.....	.....	4278

Place.	Nearest Rally. Stn., and dist. fr. (1) place, (2) fr. Lon. or Dub.		Population.
St. Lythans	Cardiff (5)	163	114
St. Mabyn	Bodmin (5)	271	638
St. Madoes	Glencarse	454	439
St. Margaret (1)	Vowchurch (2)	160	257

of Hereford; ac. 2,609; soil sandy and clay, overlying chiefly clay and sandstone. The church of St. Margaret is of mixed periods, and has a small wooden tower.

St. Margaret (2), vil., pa. of Preshute (q.v.), E. Wilts., a suburb of Marlborough.

St. Margaret and St. John the Evangelist, Westminster, pa. in parl. bor. of Westminster (q.v.), E. Middx., 2½ S.W. of St. Paul's; ac. 813. The church of St. Margaret (rebuilt in the reign of Edward I.) is a plain but handsome Gothic edifice, with a good panelled ceiling. The most striking feature of the interior is the stained glass in the east window, executed by Dutch craftsmen and presented by the merchants of Dort to Henry VIII., who after his first divorce gave it to Waltham Abbey. It afterwards passed through the hands of Thomas Ratcliff (Earl of Sussex), George Villiers (Duke of Buckingham), Oliver Cromwell, General Monk, and other noted persons, and was finally purchased by the pa. of St. Margaret in 1758. Among the eminent men interred here are William Caxton (d. 1491), John Skelton (d. 1529), Nicholas Udall (d. 1556), Sir Walter Raleigh (d. 1618), and James Harrington (d. 1677). The church was restored by Scott. The church of St. John the Evangelist (1716–28) is in the debased style of the period; the poet Charles Churchill (d. 1764) was for some time its minister.

St. Margaret at Cliffe, pa. and pleasant vil., E. Kent, about 4 N.E. of Dover; ac. 1,865; soil light and chalky, overlying chalk. The church of St. Margaret (restored 1869) is Norm.; the clerestory presents externally a range of Norm. arches, formerly continued uninterruptedly round the tower, the western doorway of which is one of the finest examples of Norm. work to be found in this country. The aisles are narrow, but the nave is spacious and lofty, and has on each side four very fine semicircular arches springing from cylindrical or clustered piers; the chancel opens to the nave by a rich Norm. arch. On either side of the chancel are four plain Norm. windows. The curfew bell is rung here from November to March.

ST. MARGARET AT CLIFFE CHURCH.
(Photo. Chester Vaughan, Acton, W.)

St. Margaret Island, islet off south-east coast of Pembs., 2 S. of Tenby. The island is ¼ mile from Caldy island (with which it is connected by a reef of rocks) and a little over ½ mile from the nearest part of the mainland. It contains some remains of a small monastic cell. There are some very fine caves on the shore.

St. Margarets (1). [STANSTEAD ST. MARGARET.]

